Fiscal Analysis

The bill would continue the Texas Funeral Service Commission for 12 years.

The provisions of the bill would require the Funeral Service Commission to inspect and regulate cemetaries and crematories; set and collect fees for the issuance of an individual crematory operator's license and a license for each crematory and cemetery facility; and arrange for the administration of a crematory operator's license examination.

Methodology

It is assumed the agency's increased inspection responsibilities would require an additional Inspector II position at $34,854 per year (salary plus benefits) and additional annual travel costs of $18,000.

It is estimated the agency could develop a crematory operator's professional examination at a cost of $3,000 in fiscal year 2004.

It is assumed the agency would adjust fees to offset any costs associated with the implementation of the bill.

Technology

It is assumed the agency would need $3,000 for the purchase of one laptop computer for the additional inspector. This cost would cover all applicable software, licensing fees, and accessories.

Local Government Impact

No fiscal implication to units of local government is anticipated.
