2 deeply saddened by the death of restaurateur and community leader
3 Bruce Derden Walcutt, who passed away on May 6, 2006, at the age of 4 58; and

5 WHEREAS, Born on September 26, 1947, on a farm outside 6 Grapevine, Bruce Walcutt moved with his family to Austin in 1955; he 7 graduated from Austin High School, where he met his future wife,
8 Mary Holt, and then earned a bachelor's in business administration
9 from The University of Texas at El Paso; after an honorable 10 discharge from the U.S. Marine Corps Reserves, he returned to 11 Austin to enter the restaurant business; and

12 WHEREAS, Mr. Walcutt cofounded Pelican's Wharf in 1972, and a
13 few years later he and some friends opened the County Line, a 14 barbecue restaurant that has since become an Austin institution, as 15 well as a success in 10 other cities; known for his willingness to 16 do everything from wait tables to slice brisket, he sincerely cared 17 for his staff, many of whom have been with the company for more than 18 20 years; and

19 WHEREAS, Deeply dedicated to Austin, this esteemed Texan
20 shared his time and talents with many local organizations; he 21 served as president of the Capitol Area Council Boy Scouts of 22 America, the Austin Convention and Visitors Bureau, the Westlake
23 Community Library, and the Headliners Club; moreover, he served on 24 the boards of Big Brothers-Big Sisters, the Austin Heritage

1 Society, the Austin Restaurant Association, Ballet Austin, and 2 Philmont Scout Ranch; and

3 WHEREAS, Having been a Boy Scout himself, Mr. Walcutt
4 relished the chance to renew his interest in scouting when his son, 5 Paul, joined Troop 5, and throughout the years, they had many 6 outdoor adventures and made important friendships; Mr. Walcutt 7 continued his support of scouting long after his son was grown, and 8 in 2001, he received the Silver Antelope Award, one of the highest 9 honors granted by the Boy Scouts, for his outstanding service to 10 youth in the capital area; and

11 WHEREAS, Mr. Walcutt was a devoted family man who loved to 12 travel; together with his wife and son, he explored the terrain and 13 culture of locales throughout the world; in addition, he took great 14 pleasure in going on regular camping trips with a group of close 15 friends; and

16 WHEREAS, Bruce Walcutt inspired people everywhere with his 17 integrity, enthusiasm, and generosity, and although his passing has 18 left a void in the lives of those who knew and loved him, his spirit
19 will live on in their hearts forever; now, therefore, be it
