AUTHOR'S/SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

In August of 2002, a ruling on Dickerson v. Bailey, 212 F. Supp.2d 673,695 (S.D. Tex. 2002) found that Texas's ban on direct shipment of wine from other states was unconstitutional. On July 26, 2003, the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the ruling. Under the court's opinion, the State of Texas is currently enjoined from enforcing these laws which, effectively, allow Texas consumers to order wine from out-of-state suppliers and to have that wine shipped directly to them with only basic limitations restricting the sale to minors and restricting deliveries in dry areas. Conversely, Section 110.053, Alcoholic Beverage Code, requires a Texas winery to route purchases by a Texas resident through a package store that participates in the Texas Wine Marketing Assistance Program if the purchaser is not physically present at the winery at the time of the sale and allows those package stores to deliver in dry areas.

The United States Supreme Court is currently considering a case relating to the ability of states to enact legislation to regulate direct-to-consumer shipment of wine, and that places different restrictions on in-state and out-of-state consumers.

S.B. 877 seeks to address issues relating to the direct-to-consumer shipment of wine for both Texas-based wineries and out-of-state wineries in a manner that will meet constitutional standards.
