3 profound loss to the family, friends, and many admirers of this 4 esteemed Texan; and

5 WHEREAS, Born in Dallas on July 17, 1941, Mr. Beck devoted his 6 life to honoring his cultural heritage by capturing on canvas the 7 essence of African American life in the Southwest; his impressive
8 body of work also includes landscapes, portraits, and other images
9 inspired by his travels in Jamaica, England, West Africa, Egypt,
10 Brazil, and Central America; working in oil, watercolor, pencil, 11 and charcoal, he depicted his own personal evolution as well as the 12 historical and religious experiences of the African American 13 community; and

14 WHEREAS, This largely self-taught painter received his only
15 formal art training at Lincoln High School; he continued his art
16 education by searching the library for art books during his breaks 17 at various clerical and janitorial jobs at department stores and 18 the post office; and

19 WHEREAS, His paintings and drawings have hung in museums, 20 galleries, and universities in the United States and abroad, and he 21 received an array of prestigious awards and honors throughout his 22 career, including his appointment as an ambassador of goodwill by 23 Governor Mark White in 1985; and

3 Center in Atlanta and Paul Quinn College, he worked with patients at 4 the Dallas County Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center and 5 shared his passion for art as a teacher at a number of schools,
6 including Mountain View College; moreover, he provided a
7 much-needed venue where area African American artists could exhibit
8 their work by founding the Arthello Beck Gallery in Oak Cliff; a
9 member of the National Conference of Artists and the Southwest 10 Alliance of African American Artists, he was also one of the 11 original founders of the Southwest Black Artists Guild; and

12 WHEREAS, Arthello Beck was a man of tremendous talent, and 13 although his presence will indeed be greatly missed, his spirit 14 will live on in the memories of the many people fortunate enough to 15 have known him and in the inspiring works that he leaves behind;
16 now, therefore, be it
