Fiscal Analysis

The bill would amend Chapter 56 of the Code of Criminal Procedure by adding Subchapter C, which would create an address confidentiality program within the Office of Attorney General (OAG). It would require the OAG to act as agent to receive service of process and mail for victims of family violence, sexual assault, or stalking. The OAG would be required to: review and certify applicants; forward mail to program participants and identify state, local and other agencies to provide access and assistance with the program.

The bill would also amend Article 56.54 of the Code of Criminal Procedure by adding Subsection (1) to allow the OAG to use Compensation to Victims of Crime Funds to cover the costs of implementing this program. The OAG would be required to implement the program by June 1, 2006.

The Act would take effect immediately if it receives two-thirds vote of all the members elected to each house or on September 1, 2005.

Methodology

Based on analysis of data from 10 states that operate similar programs, the Office of the Attorney General (OAG) estimates approximately 2,153 participants in the first year (FY 2006), resulting in approximately 97,402 pieces of mail to forward. The OAG also estimates that the program would grow by 10% each year.

A public awareness requirement would be necessary to educate others about the program and application requirements. Specifically, to inform and train the state and local agencies that provide counseling and shelter services to victims of family violence. The proposed legislation authorizes the OAG to require these entities to "provide access to the program, including making program information and application materials available and providing assistance in completing program applications."

It is anticipated that additional staff will be needed to process the high volume of mail that is associated with the mail-forwarding project and to handle the additional duties of promotion and training associated with development of the awareness program beginning in FY2006. Two Information Specialist I positions in FY 2006-2010, and one additional Administrative Assistant II position added in each of the remaining fiscal years (FY 2007-2010) would be added to the Crime Victims Services Division.

Estimated travel cost for each fiscal year 2006-2010 is $43,200. This includes six public awareness presentations per month per trainer (two Information Specialist I positions) at approximately $300 per training presentation.

Annual cost for each FY 2006-2010 for the development and printing of brochures and application forms for the awareness and availability of the Address Confidentiality Program is $23,300. Brochures and applications would be published in English and Spanish.

The cost for FY 2006 to process 97,402 pieces of mail to program participants at a rate of $0.734 is $71,493. It is estimated that the program would grow by 10% each year.

Technology

The technology impact to the OAG to implement the provision of the bill would require network stations at a cost of $8,148 in fiscal year 2006 and $2,037 each fiscal year thereafter.

Local Government Impact

Local agencies would be required to provide access to the program and assist victims in completing program applications. The state or local agencies would be required to forward the application to the OAG. There will be a cost to local government for the time associated with assisting victims; however, the total fiscal impact on local governments is unknown.
