AUTHOR'S / SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

Some institutions of higher education (institution) that offer doctoral level chiropractic degrees, including out-of-state institutions and two in Texas, also offer undergraduate courses unrelated to those doctoral level chiropractic degree programs. For example, one Texas school offers courses leading to baccalaureate degrees in human biology and public health. These institutions are accredited by state and regional agencies and their undergraduate course credits are fully transferable to other accredited institutions. Their chiropractic degree programs are separately accredited by nationally recognized organizations in that field.

The staff of the Texas Board of Chiropractic Examiners (board) have questioned whether undergraduate courses taken at one of the Texas institutions constitute college hours completed "at a school other than a chiropractic school." In June 2006, an attorney general's opinion was requested regarding undergraduate education requirements for licensure as a chiropractor (RQ-0494-GA). The attorney general's opinion (GA-0487) was rendered on December 4, 2006, stating that a student's undergraduate coursework at a chiropractic college does count toward the degree plan.

S.B. 776 clarifies existing law regarding whether undergraduate courses at a chiropractic college counts toward an undergraduate degree plan.
