HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

1 WHEREAS, Created in 1965, the federal Medicare program 2 provides health insurance coverage for more than 40 million 3 Americans; although most of those enrolled in Medicare are senior 4 citizens, approximately six million enrollees under the age of 65 5 have qualified because of permanent and severe disability, such as 6 spinal cord injuries, multiple sclerosis, cardiovascular disease, 7 cancer, or other illness or disorder; and

8 WHEREAS, Despite the physical and financial hardships wrought by these conditions and the fact that Social Security 9 Disability Insurance (SSDI) is designed for individuals with a work 10 11 history who paid into the social security system before the onset of 12 their disability, federal law mandates a 24-month waiting period 13 from the time a disabled individual first receives SSDI benefits to 14 the time Medicare coverage begins; a prerequisite to Medicare, the SSDI program itself delays benefits for five months while the 15 16 person's disability is determined--effectively creating a 29-month waiting period for Medicare; and 17

18 WHEREAS, This restriction affects a significant number of 19 Americans in need; as of January 2002, there were approximately 1.2 20 million disabled individuals who qualified for SSDI and were 21 awaiting Medicare coverage, many of whom were unemployed because of 22 their disability; consequently, under these conditions, by the time 23 Medicare began, an estimated 77 percent of those individuals would 24 be poor or nearly poor, 45 percent would have incomes below the

1 federal poverty line, and close to 40 percent would be enrolled in 2 state Medicaid programs; and

3 WHEREAS, Furthermore, it has been estimated that as many as 4 one-third of the individuals currently awaiting coverage may be 5 uninsured and likely to incur significant medical care expenses 6 during the two-year waiting period, often with devastating 7 consequences; studies indicate that the uninsured are likely to 8 delay or forgo needed care, leading to worsening health and even premature death, and the American Medical Association has 9 determined that death rates among SSDI recipients are highest in 10 the first 24 months of enrollment; and 11

WHEREAS, Eliminating the 24-month waiting period not only 12 illness and disability for 13 would prevent worsening SSDI 14 beneficiaries, thereby reducing more costly future medical needs 15 and potential long-term reliance on public health care programs, but could also save the Medicaid program as much as $4.3 billion at 16 17 2002 program levels, including nearly $1.8 billion in savings to states and $2.5 billion in federal savings that would help offset a 18 substantial portion of the accompanying increase in Medicare 19 expenditures; and 20

21 WHEREAS, Recognizing the consequences of the waiting period 22 to those suffering from amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS), or Lou 23 Gehrig's disease, the 106th United States Congress passed H.R. 5661 24 in 2000 and eliminated the requirement for enrollees diagnosed with 25 the disease; in passing H.R. 5661, the congress acknowledged the 26 enormous difficulties faced by those diagnosed with severe 27 disabilities and established precedent for the exception to be
