Fiscal Analysis

The bill would entitle certain eligible Juvenile Justice Alternative Education Programs (JJAEPs) that received funding through Chapter 41 arrangements in the 2005-06 school year to state aid equivalent to the difference between the funding received through Chapter 41 arrangements in the 2005-06 school year and funding received through Chapter 41 arrangements in each year of the 2008-09 biennium. In order to be eligible for state aid under the provisions of the bill, the JJAEP must be located in a county with a population less than 1.4 million that contains at least 7 school districts and must attempt to enter into similar Chapter 41 arrangements in 2007-08 and 2008-09 as were in place in the 2005-06 school year.

Methodology

The Bexar County and Travis County JJAEPs are the only programs that meet the eligibility requirements of the bill. According to the Texas Education Agency (TEA), the Bexar County and Travis County JJAEPs received about $2.0 million through Chapter 41 arrangements in the 2005-06 school year and neither program is receiving funding through Chapter 41 arrangements in 2006-07. Assuming that neither eligible JJAEP is able to enter into a Chapter 41 arrangement in either the 2007-08 or the 2008-09 school year, the estimated cost of additional state aid would be $2.0 million annually in FY2008 and FY2009.

Local Government Impact

The Bexar County and Travis County JJAEPs would be entitled to about $2.0 million in state aid annually in FY2008 and FY2009.
