Fiscal Analysis

The bill would amend the Agriculture Code to create the Rural Workforce Investment Pilot Program. This pilot program would issue grants for developing partnerships in rural areas among school districts, public junior colleges, public technical institutes, general academic teaching institutions, and business and industry to provide greater access to career and technical education and industry certification to high school students in rural areas.

The bill would prohibit the Department of Agriculture (TDA) from issuing more than four grants under the Rural Workforce Investment Pilot Program in each state fiscal biennium.

The bill would take effect immediately if it receives a vote of two-thirds of all members elected to each house; otherwise it would take effect September 1, 2009.

Methodology

The bill states that TDA may issue a maximum of four grants per biennium. TDA indicates that each grant would be approximately $200,000, therefore it is anticipated that $800,000 would be provided in grant funding in each fiscal biennium under the Rural Workforce Investment Pilot Program.

TDA indicates that any administrative costs associated with administering the grant program could be absorbed within the agency's existing resources.

Local Government Impact

The bill would allow a "rural area" as defined by the provisions of the bill to submit an application for a grant to participate in the Rural Workforce Investment Pilot Program. A local governmental entity that chose to participate in the program would be required to commit public or private funds to match the grant to be eligible to apply for a grant. The fiscal impact to local governmental entities would vary depending on an entity's decision to participate, and the ability to match the funds of the grant.
