

LEGISLATIVE BUDGET BOARD
Austin, Texas

FISCAL NOTE, 81ST LEGISLATIVE REGULAR SESSION

March 30, 2009

TO: Honorable Kip Averitt, Chair, Senate Committee on Natural Resources

FROM: John S. O'Brien, Director, Legislative Budget Board

IN RE: SB1491 by Williams (Relating to the definition of supplemental environmental projects.), As Introduced

No significant fiscal implication to the State is anticipated.

The bill revises the definition of a Supplemental Environmental Project (SEP) done in place of a fine or penalty owed to the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality to include projects that would allow for free screenings for early detection of breast or prostate cancers.

Because the respondent of the alleged violation would be required to pay for the breast or prostate screening costs, no significant fiscal impact to the state is expected. Although there could be some loss of revenue to the state if the bill's passage resulted in violators participating in the SEP instead of paying a fine or penalty, this estimate assumes the bill would only affect violators that would have otherwise chosen another form of SEP.

Local Government Impact

No fiscal implication to units of local government is anticipated.
