Fiscal Analysis

The bill would amend the Government Code to create two new County Courts at Law in Hidalgo County. County Courts at Law No. 7 and No. 8. The bill specifies that the courts would be created January 1, 2011. The bill would take effect January 1, 2011.

Methodology

The annual recurring cost to the state per county court at law would be $75,000 from Judicial Fund No. 573. Under current law, the state provides a county-court-at-law judge a salary supplement an amount equal to 60 percent of the state salary of a district judge ($75,000).

Also, the salary supplement program for county court at law judges is funded from fees and court costs collected by county courts at law statewide and deposited into the Judicial Fund No. 573. This estimate assumes that the County Courts at Law in Hidalgo County would generate sufficient revenue to Judicial Fund No. 573 to cover the cost of the salary supplement.

This estimate prorates the cost and revenue estimate to Judicial Fund No. 573 at 8 out of 12 months for fiscal year 2011 since the County Courts at Law would not be created until January 1, 2011.

Local governments pay the other operating costs associated with a county court at law.

Local Government Impact

Hidalgo County is currently served by six county courts at law. There would be no costs to the county for fiscal 2009-2010. The average annual total operating costs for the two courts are estimated at $1,041,373 for fiscal 2011-2014. First year, start-up costs for technology are estimated at $18,953.

Hidalgo County would be responsible for paying salary and benefits for court personnel. According to the County, it would need two judges, two court reporters, two court coordinators, two bailiffs, and two court administrators. According to Hidalgo County, the average cost of personnel total for two courts for fiscal 2011-2014 is estimated at $975,525.

Hidalgo County's fiscal year begins January 1.
