AUTHOR'S / SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

The Texas Business Organizations Code became effective January 1, 2006, and codified the provisions of prior law found in the Texas Business Corporation Act, Texas Non-profit Corporation Act, Texas Miscellaneous Corporation Laws Act, Texas Limited Liability Company Act, Texas Revised Limited Partnership Act, Texas Real Estate Investment Trust Act, Texas Uniform Unincorporated Nonprofit Associations Act, Texas Professional Corporation Act, Texas Professional Associations Act, Texas Revised Partnership Act, and Cooperative Associations Act. These prior statutes were repealed as of January 1, 2010.

Since the time of its original drafting, a number of provisions within the Business Organizations Code have been cumbersome or problematic.

S.B. 748 revises the Business Organizations Code to address many of these provisions. Among other things, this bill makes the following amendments to the Business Organizations Code.

Under current law, when a judgment creditor files a judgment on a partner in a limited partnership (LP) or limited liability company (LLC), that creditor can obtain a lien on the partnership interest's income stream but cannot foreclose on the partnership interest of that partner. Such a provision does not currently exist for general partnerships. S.B. 748 expands current law to allow charging orders for general partnership interests.

Texas was the first state to implement a limited liability partnership (LLP) statute. The Texas statute has always included a requirement that LLPs obtain certain forms of insurance, while other states have since adopted similar statutes without these insurance requirements. S.B. 748 eliminates the antiquated insurance requirements for LLPs under Texas law, which puts Texas at a competitive disadvantage against other states with respect to businesses seeking a state in which to headquarter.

The current Business Organizations Code is unclear as to the rights of an assignee of an LLC member's interest upon divorce or death of that member. However, this issue currently is addressed with respect to partnerships. S.B. 748 adds provisions clarifying how membership interests in an LLC are to be treated upon divorce or death of a member. More specifically, the bill states that a person who receives LLC membership through divorce or death of a member is only an assignee rather than a full member, meaning that other members are not forced to be co-members with a former member's spouse or children. Assignees are entitled to economic benefits and ownership rights but not voting rights.

The Business Organizations Code currently provides that, for an LLC, an informed board of directors, committee members, or shareholders may approve the LLC to enter into an agreement that involves a separate financial interest of one of the company's officers or directors. However, the Business Organizations Code does not specify that such an agreement will not be "void" or "voidable" once it is approved. S.B. 748 clarifies that where an informed board, committee, or stockholders approve what would be considered an interested transaction, that transaction does not become void or voidable through operation of the common law. Also, S.B. 748 clarifies that this section applies both to managers and directors as well as their affiliates and associates.

The Business Organizations Code provides that LLC members have the right to access and review the books and records of an LLC, generally without restriction. S.B. 748 provides more flexibility for LLCs company agreements, allowing reasonable restrictions on member access to books and records to protect trade secrets and intellectual property rights. Such restrictions would need to be specified in the company agreement.

Nonprofit corporations are generally required to hold annual shareholder meetings. Nothing under current law allows nonprofit corporations to adjust this requirement to accommodate the needs of the individual company. S.B. 748 provides nonprofit corporations with the ability to modify their annual meeting requirements for the benefit of their members. For example, the bill would allow a company to have a meeting biennially rather than annually, or allow the company to dispense with the annual meeting. Any such modification would need to be included in the certificate of formation, which is a public document filed with the secretary of state.

As proposed, S.B. 748 amends current law relating to business entities and associations.
