Fiscal Analysis

The bill would amend Section 261.203, Family Code, to require the Department of Family and Protective Services to provide certain information about child fatality investigations to judges across the state. The information would include the child's age, sex, date of death, who the child resided with, and a summary of previous reports, dispositions, services rendered, and assessment results. The bill would take effect on September 1, 2011.

Methodology

The agency estimates the bill would require judicial notification of 980 child abuse and neglect investigations involving a child fatality each year, including 950 child protective services cases and 30 residential child-care licensing cases. The agency also estimates the bill would require judicial notification of 230 completed investigations with a determination of death caused by abuse or neglect, including 227 child protective services cases and 3 residential child-care licensing cases. It is assumed the agency would use the health and human services enterprise print shop to copy and disseminate 1,210 reports to 506 judges across the state each year. The average cost per report would be $0.834, and the total cost would be $276,999 in General Revenue Funds ($340,535 All Funds) in fiscal year 2012, and $415,499 in General Revenue Funds ($510,803 All Funds) each following year. The first-year cost assumes the agency will begin providing judicial notification on January 1, 2012, following promulgation of administrative rules.

Local Government Impact

No fiscal implication to units of local government is anticipated.
