

BILL ANALYSIS

H.B. 1071
By: Allen
State Affairs
Committee Report (Unamended)

BACKGROUND AND PURPOSE

Current law authorizes a state agency to contract with another state, local, or federal department, agency, or institution, including a state-supported college or university, to train or educate its employees or to join in presenting a training or educational program. Interested parties suggest that institutions of higher education may be able to provide quality training and education at a lower cost, but are not always used for such purposes. H.B. 1071 seeks to implement the use of state institutions of higher education to train and educate state agency employees given certain conditions.

RULEMAKING AUTHORITY

It is the committee's opinion that this bill does not expressly grant any additional rulemaking authority to a state officer, department, agency, or institution.

ANALYSIS

H.B. 1071 amends the Government Code to require a state agency to use an institution of higher education to provide training or education under the State Employees Training Act to its administrators and employees if the institution can provide the training or education under the following conditions: at a comparable level of quality but at a lower cost to the agency; on the subject matter required by the state agency; in the geographic area in which the state agency administrator or employee is located; not later than the date the agency requires the training or education to be completed; and according to a schedule acceptable to the agency. The bill authorizes a state agency to use an institution of higher education to supplement or enhance the training or education provided by full-time state agency employees to the agency's other employees. The bill prohibits a state agency from contracting with a private person to train or educate a state agency administrator or employee if the agency is required to use an institution of higher education to provide the training or education.
