AUTHOR'S / SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

Although Texas law has created protections for victims of sexual assault, certain statutes require strengthening in order to provide these victims with the same level of protections afforded to victims of family violence. While courts have the explicit authority to prevent communication of any kind between victims of family violence and an assailant, current law regarding sexual assault protective orders (Chapter 38, Penal Code) only prohibits communications of a "threatening or harassing" nature for sexual assault cases, which is considered a Class A misdemeanor. In addition, current law considers a violation of bond conditions in family violence cases at least a Class A misdemeanor (Chapter 25, Penal Code); however, there is no offense for violating bond conditions in sexual assault cases. Furthermore, current law requires information relating to protective orders to be entered into the Texas Crime Information Center (TCIC) while information relating to bond conditions is not required.

S.B. 893 allows the court to prohibit a perpetrator from communication of any kind with a sexual assault or abuse, or stalking victim, making the offense a Class A misdemeanor. In addition, S.B. 893 extends the protections afforded to victims of family violence to victims of sexual assault or abuse and stalking, so that a violation of bond conditions is also considered a Class A misdemeanor. Lastly, in addition to the current entry requirement for protective orders, S.B. 893 requires the entry of bond conditions into TCIC for sexual assault or abuse, stalking, and family violence cases.

S.B. 893 amends current law relating to certain conditions of, penalties for violating, and collection of information about protective orders issued in certain family violence, sexual assault or abuse, stalking, or trafficking cases.
