The bill would amend the Government Code to expand the eligibility of state death benefits to survivors of individuals employed by the Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS) whose principal duties directly support a law enforcement function by the state or individuals with certain special assignments, as certified by the director. DPS and the Employees Retirement System anticipate that any costs associated with implementing the bill could be absorbed within existing resources.

The bill would take effect on September 1, 2013, and would apply only to deaths that occurred after that date.
