

Alisa S. Max Biography

Alisa S. Max, P.E. has over 25 years' experience practicing engineering in Texas, both in the public and private sector. She currently serves as the General Services Division Manager of the Harris County Engineering Department, which includes the Harris County Permits Office. The regulation of new development in the unincorporated areas of Harris County, including with respect to floodplain regulations, falls under her division. Following Hurricane Ike, Max served as the Planning Section Chief for debris removal operations for the County's Engineering Department. Following Hurricane Harvey, she served as Deputy Incident Commander over the Engineering Department's recovery operations. She is a Civil Engineering graduate of Rice University and a licensed Professional Engineer in the State of Texas.