Based on the analyses of the Comptroller of Public Accounts and Higher Education Coordinating Board, costs to implement the bill's provisions relating to career and technical education program of study curricula and publicity of the historically underutilized businesses certification procedure could be accomplished using existing resources. The Office of the Governor estimates there would be a cost relating to promotion of the establishment of small business development centers; this analysis assumes the cost could be absorbed within existing resources.

Local Government Impact

No significant fiscal implication to units of local government is anticipated.
