2023	($9,700,000)
2024	($10,400,000)

Fiscal Analysis

The joint resolution proposes a constitutional amendment to Article III of the Texas Constitution that would allow the Texas Water Development Board (TWDB) to issue additional general obligation bonds for the Economically Distressed Areas Program (EDAP) account of the Texas Water Development Fund II in an amount not to exceed $200 million. The resolution would clarify the allowable uses of the bond proceeds.

The proposed amendment would be submitted to voters at an election to be held November 5, 2019. If the resolution passes, the constitutional amendment would take effect upon certification of the election by the Governor and the Secretary of State.

Methodology

Based on the analysis of TWDB, it is assumed that TWDB would issue bonds with $50 million in par amount on December 1, 2020 and on December 1, 2022 at six percent interest. This analysis assumes that debt service payments would be made with General Revenue and that there would be no loan repayment revenue within the first five years.

The cost to the state for publication of the resolution is $177,289.

Local Government Impact

No significant fiscal implication to units of local government is anticipated.
