Fiscal Analysis

The bill would amend Chapter 11 of the Tax Code, regarding taxable property and exemptions, to increase the taxable value below which tangible personal property held or used for the production of income is exempt from property taxation from $500 to $2,500.

The bill would take effect January 1, 2020.

Methodology

The bill's proposed increase in the taxable value below which tangible personal property held or used for the production of income is exempt from property taxation from $500 to $2,500 would create a cost to school districts, other local taxing units, and to the state through the school funding formula.

Information from appraisal districts on the statewide number and value of tangible personal property parcels was used to estimate the value loss from the proposed new exemption of tangible personal property parcels valued from $500 up to but not including $2,500. Tangible personal property parcels valued at less than $500 were excluded because they are exempt under current law.

Projected tax rates were applied to the taxable value losses through the five-year projection period to estimate tax revenue losses to school districts, special districts, cities and counties. Under provisions of the Education Code, the school district tax revenue loss is partially transferred to the state. Projected school funding rates were applied to estimate the state loss and the net school district loss.

In the school district enrichment formula (Tier 2), property values do not reflect the first-year value loss because of the one-year value lag. Because the formula does reflect a tax collections decline in that year, school districts lose Tier 2 funding creating a state gain. In the second and successive years the previous year's enrichment loss is generally transferred to the state (a state loss).

Note: The constitutional authorization for this exemption is not specified in the bill. The authorization for this proposed increase in exemption is unknown; however, Article VIII, Section 1(g), Texas Constitution, does state that "The Legislature may exempt from ad valorem taxation tangible personal property that is held or used for the production of income and has a taxable value of less than the minimum amount sufficient to recover the costs of the administration of the taxes on the property, as determined by or under the general law granting the exemption." The estimated costs in the table above are net of the estimated local taxing unit administrative savings that would result from the bill.

Local Government Impact

The estimated fiscal implication to units of local government is reflected in the above table.
