

1. It's impossible for any law enforcement and resource officer workforce to adequately keep everyone safe. However, if the Texas legislature repeals mandatory "gun-free" zones for honest citizens, community safety will increase without having to increase any government budgets for an additional workforce.
2. Mental health professionals and law enforcement must not misuse mental health "threat assessment" to wrongly target gun owners and deprive people of their gun rights. This has happened in other states with "red flag" gun confiscation orders. As our country has become more polarized, one's view of a person with mental health problem can be subjective. For example: Democrats believe that gender is fluid, however traditional normal people believe that there are only two genders. There have been two genders since beyond the birth of Christ. Based off of this disagreement, one person could see one another as "threat" and say that one is mentally unfit to be armed. With a vague language, abuse is inevitable.
