Committee Report (Substituted)

AUTHOR'S / SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

Under current law, the legislature—pursuant to Section 59, Article XVI, Texas Constitution—may create regional water management entities to provide water development and planning services to a river basin or portion of a river basin, known as river authorities. Each river authority is governed by a board of directors with a number of members specified in the enabling legislation. Board members are either citizen-elected or appointed by the governor, serving term lengths specified in the enabling legislation (generally six-year staggered terms).

Because each river authority is created individually through separate enabling legislation, there is lack of uniformity in the leadership structure of the boards of directors. This means that some presiding officers are elected by the boards themselves, while others are appointed by the governor.

Having the governor designate the presiding officer of agency boards ensures a more direct connection between the board and the state's highest elected official. This reform will increase the agency's accountability to the state's leadership.

C.S.S.B. 739 amends current law relating to the presiding officers of the boards of directors of certain river authorities.
