CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

1 WHEREAS, A towering figure in the Texas Legislature and the 2 United States Congress, Houston native Barbara Jordan blazed a 3 remarkable trail on the national stage for other women and people of 4 color; and

5 WHEREAS, Barbara Charline Jordan was born in 1936 and 6 graduated from Texas Southern University and Boston University
7 School of Law; in 1966, she became the first African American woman
8 elected to the Texas Senate, and she pushed through bills 9 establishing antidiscrimination clauses in business contracts, the 10 Texas Fair Employment Practices Commission, and the state's first 11 minimum wage law; recognizing her wisdom and skill, her peers chose 12 her as president pro tempore; and

13 WHEREAS, Barbara Jordan continued her work to advance social 14 progress after winning election to the U.S. House of 15 Representatives in 1972, when she became the first African American 16 woman from the Deep South to be elected to Congress; as a member of 17 the Judiciary Committee, she galvanized the nation during the 18 Watergate hearings, signaling the historic weight of the 19 proceedings as she thundered, "My faith in the Constitution is 20 whole, it is complete, it is total. I am not going to sit here and be 21 an idle spectator to the diminution, the subversion, the 22 destruction of the Constitution"; and

23 WHEREAS, Following her third term in the house, Congresswoman
24 Jordan retired from politics to take up the Lyndon Johnson Chair in

1 National Policy at The University of Texas at Austin's LBJ School of

3 teaching courses on intergovernmental relations, political values,
4 and ethics, and she served as ethics advisor to then-governor Ann
5 Richards; appointed chair of the U.S. Commission on Immigration
6 Reform, she again emerged as a key supporter of the framers' intent 7 in 1994 when she powerfully decried a proposal to end the 8 constitutional provision of birthright citizenship; and

9 WHEREAS, Barbara Jordan passed away in 1996, but the 10 magisterial voice she lifted as a champion of the vulnerable and 11 disenfranchised and as a defender of the constitution continues to 12 resonate, and naming a new building in the Capitol Complex in her 13 honor would provide a fitting tribute to her enormous legacy; now, 14 therefore, be it

16 hereby direct the Texas Facilities Commission to name the building
17 being constructed on the east side of North Congress Avenue between
