ETI'S first March 2021 billing cycle.

The effect of the refund on customers' bills will vary depending on the rate schedule under which they take service. For a residential customer using 1,000 kWh a month, the interim refund will result in a $9.08 reduction in the customer's bill for each month of the refund, or a net decrease of approximately 7.5 percent as compared to current charges. Additionally, transmission voltage level customers and seasonal agricultural customers as a group will receive a net refund; however, certain individual transmission voltage level and seasonal agricultural customers may experience a surcharge based on historical usage. ETI's fuel and purchased power expenses will be subject to final review by the Commission in a future fuel reconciliation proceeding.

Persons with questions or who want more information on this petition may contact Entergy Texas, Inc. at Attn: Customer Service - Fuel Refund, P.O. This is to give notice of intent to introduce in the 87th Legislature, Regular Session, a bill to be entitled an Act relating to the Brazos River Authority, following recommendations of the Sunset Advisory Commission; specifying grounds for the removal of a member of the board of directors. The costs for the publication of this notice were paid by the Sunset Advisory Commission.

on the mailing list for this application. If comments are received, the mailing will also provide instructions for requesting a contested case hearing or reconsideration of the Executive Director's decision. A contested case hearing is a legal proceeding similar to a civil trial in a state district court.

TO REQUEST A CONTESTED CASE HEARING, YOU MUST INCLUDE THE FOLLOWING ITEMS IN YOUR REQUEST: your name, address, phone number, applicant's name and permit number, the location and distance of your property/activities relative to the facility, a specific description of how you would be adversely affected by the facility in a way not common to the general public, a list of all disputed issues of fact that you submit during the comment period and the statement "[I/we] request a contested case hearing." If the request for contested case hearing is filed on behalf of a group or association, the request must designate the group's representative for receiving future correspondence, identify by name and physical address an individual member of the group who would be adversely affected by the proposed facility or activity, provide the information discussed above regarding the affected member's location and distance from the facility or activity, explain how and why the member would be affected, and explain how the interests the group seeks to protect are germane to the group's purpose.

Following the close of all applicable comment and request periods, the Executive Director will forward the application and any requests for reconsideration or for a contested case hearing to the TCEQ Commissioners for their consideration at a scheduled Commission meeting.

The Commission will only grant a contested case hearing on disputed issues of fact that are relevant and material to the Commission's decision on the application. Further, the Commission will only grant a hearing on issues that were raised in timely filed comments that were not subsequently withdrawn. If a hearing is granted, the subject of a hearing will be limited to disputed issues of fact or mixed questions of fact and law relating to relevant and material water quality concerns submitted during the comment period.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR ACTION. The Executive Director may issue final approval of the application unless a timely contested case hearing request or request for reconsideration is filed. If a timely hearing request or request for reconsideration is filed, the Executive Director will not issue final approval of the permit and will forward the application and request to the TCEQ Commissioners for their consideration at a scheduled Commission meeting.

MAILING LIST. If you submit public comments, a request for a contested case hearing or a reconsideration of the Executive Director's decision, you will be added to the mailing list for this specific application to receive future public notices mailed by the Office of the Chief Clerk. In addition, you may request to be placed on: (1) the permanent mailing list for a specific applicant name and permit number; and/or (2) the mailing list for a specific county. If you wish to be placed on the permanent and/or the county mailing list, clearly specify which list(s) and send your request to TCEQ Office of the Chief Clerk at the address below.

All written public comments and public meeting requests must be submitted to the Office of the Chief Clerk, MC 105, TCEQ, P.O. Box 13087, Austin, TX 78711-3087 or electronically at publiccomments@tceq.texas.gov, within 30 days from the date of newspaper publication of this notice.

INFORMATION AVAILABLE ONLINE. For details about the status of the application, visit the Commissioners' Integrated Database at www.tceq.texas.gov/cid/. Search the database using the permit number for this application, which is provided at the top of this notice.

Vaccine super sites possible

Governor Greg Abbott says the state may partner with the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) to open up a vaccination "super sites" in Dallas and Houston, and more could be on the way.

Abbott tweeted Monday those vaccine locations would be open every day and operate for eight weeks, handling up to 4,000 shots per day. Further details were not released at that time.

The possible partnership may come after California partnered with FEMA last week for two similar vaccine super centers under President Joe Biden's push to create 100 such sites nationwide in 100 days.

It wasn't immediately estimated when these new sites could launch, however, as the COVID-19 vaccine remains in short supply. Currently, the state remains in Phase 1A of its distribution plan, focusing on the vulnerable.

According to FEMA, they are working with different state governments to launch a small number of vaccination centers using primarily federal staff to support local governments with a goal to open these centers to get more people vaccinated, with a focus on making sure communities with a high risk of COVID exposure and infection are included.

The announcement came just one day after President Joe Biden said his administration intended to take up the NIH on its offer to use all of the league's stadiums as COVID-19 vaccination sites. In Texas, that means the Dallas area and the Houston area.

Up to 100 sites run by FEMA could begin offering coronavirus vaccine within the next month, part of a strategy that would dramatically expand the federal government's role in the effort to control the pandemic.

The plan is taking shape in the form of a draft "Concept of Operations," which was obtained by The Washington Post.

It is not yet clear if FEMA will be to "provide federal support to existing or new community vaccination centers and mobile clinics across the country."

"FEMA ... will mobilize thousands of clinical and nursing clinical staff and contractors who will work hand-in-glove with the National Guard and state and local teams to assist, support, and expedite the distribution and administration of coronavirus vaccine," the FEMA document states.

If requested by states and other jurisdictions, the draft notes, "the U.S. Government would develop, equip, provide information management, and staff and operate the site."

Shots administered at these sites are expected to draw on the vaccine supply made available to individual states and territories, and some large cities, rather than relying on a new federal allocation stream. A lack of abundant vaccine supply will remain the most pressing problem, probably through March.

TFB signs 100th radio station

The Texas Farm Bureau Radio Network signed its 100th radio station, reaching the largest number of affiliates in the network's 10-year history.

"We are thankful to the more than 100 radio stations that affiliate with us to bring the latest agricultural and rural news to their communities," Texas Farm Bureau Radio Network Manager Carey Martin said. "It's a huge milestone for us, and we're overjoyed in reaching it. It's a great opportunity to share the stories of Texas farmers and ranchers who grow our food, fiber and fuel."

The network specializes in programming for the agricultural audience, covering state legislative and regulatory issues, crop and livestock conditions, market information and analysis and national policy issues from Washington, D.C.

According to the 2019 AMR Farm Radio Listening Study, the Texas Farm Bureau Radio Network had the largest farm and ranch listening audience in Texas.

"That audience is much bigger now, thanks to the addition of more than 40 radio stations in the last year," Martin said.

A new revenue sharing model has played a big role in the recent growth. The network shares its advertising revenue with the radio stations that air Texas Farm Bureau Radio Network programming.

"The more programs they air, the more revenue potential they have," Martin said. "Stations find that very attractive, especially when the ongoing pandemic has cut sharply into local radio advertising."

The network has the largest and most experienced farm news team in Texas, anchored by Martin, Tom Nicolette and Jessica Domet. New reporter additions have strengthened the programming lineup, including Texas Panhandle reporter James Hunt and livestock auction market reporter Larry Marble.

"James Hunt has been a fixture in the Panhandle as a farm broadcaster and radio talk show host for decades, and Larry Marble has been reporting on Texas livestock auctions for over 25 years," Martin said. "We're happy to add that extensive knowledge and experience to our team."

The network also recently launched a daily farm news podcast, Texas Ag Today. Several radio stations are also podcast as a long-form morning farm and ranch news program.

Two-thirds of the network's affiliated radio stations air all the programs offered. "It's a great relationship that allows us to support agricultural communities across Texas by providing the news and market information that they may not hear elsewhere," Martin said. "We can also support locally owned, small-town radio stations by sharing our advertising revenue, helping them to stay on the air and provide a valuable service to their communities."

To find a station that airs Texas Farm Bureau Radio Network programming in your area, visit <https://local.farmbureau.org/radio>.

Ogallala Aquifer Virtual Summit set for Feb. 24-25

What are the major challenges in conserving groundwater in the Ogallala Aquifer region? What strategies are needed to help preserve this natural resource? What can be done to help sustain rural communities that depend upon irrigated agriculture for their local economy?

These and many other questions will be addressed during the Ogallala Aquifer Virtual Summit to be held Feb. 24-25 from 8 a.m. to noon.

High Plains Underground Water Conservation District (HPWD) in Lubbock has invited all interested persons to participate in this two-day virtual event. Those interested should try to register by Feb. 23.

There is a $40 general admission fee and a $20 fee for ag producers and students. Speakers, panelists, and media representatives can register free of charge. Zoom meeting details will be shared with attendees after sign-up.

"The 2021 Ogallala Aquifer Virtual Summit gives producers and water management leaders an opportunity to connect and hear from one another on many important dimensions of the water-dependent future of this region," said Dr. Brent Auerman, director of the Texas A&M AgriLife Research and Extension Center at Amarillo. He is a co-chair of the event.

The Ogallala Aquifer underlies portions of Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Texas, and Wyoming.

While many agricultural producers organizations will likely participate, organizers see this as an excellent opportunity for bankers, city managers, teachers, utility directors, and other interested persons to learn about the Ogallala Aquifer and discover ways to conserve it for future use.

"Water conservation technologies are helpful and we need more of them. However, human decision-making is the real key to conserving the Ogallala," said Auerman.

That decision-making process can be enhanced by making sound, science-based water data available to the public. HPWD Education and Outreach Coordinator Kathleen Drury is one of the panelists for the Feb. 25 session, "Effective Communications and Training the Next Generation of Water Leaders."

"Members of this panel will provide a brief overview of the ways that people get their water information. They will then discuss methods to improve learning opportunities for maximum impact," said Drury.

In addition to panels and facilitated workshops, the meeting will also feature updates on projects, new programs, activities, and policies resulting from the 2018 Ogallala Aquifer Summit in Garden City, KS.

The Virtual Summit is sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture Ogallala Water Coordinated Agriculture Project team, Texas A&M AgriLife, Kansas Water Office, the USDA-ARS Ogallala Aquifer Program, and other agencies in the Ogallala Aquifer region. HPWD is among the supporters of the 2021 Virtual Summit.

The conference agenda and other information is available at ogallalawater.org.

Public Notice

Q&A

What is a public notice?

It's information about important government activities. Notice in the newspaper is required for a good reason—to make sure it's NOTICED. It's crucial to government transparency...and government accountability.

Your local paper is the most visible, independent source for this crucial service. We not only print notices in the paper, but post them on our website and a statewide website at no extra charge. And they're archived forever, so there's a permanent and unalterable record.

Texas newspapers have published public notices since 1836. As your hometown paper, we're proud to provide this service to our communities.

What makes newspapers the best source for public notice?

Newspapers are independent, credible, and can guarantee readership. Newspaper readers pay attention to what's going on in the community.

Newspapers are read both in print and online. So are the public notices we publish. And after they're published, we archive them. Forever.

Since 1836, Texans have relied on their newspapers to provide public notices. They still do...for lots of good reasons.

They teamed up to hold Texas Tech to 0-of-13 shooting from 3-point range.

Whether it's at the 3 or wherever it means a lot to us. I just thought we were very, very tuned in to what we were trying to do defensively when the game started."
