AUTHOR'S / SPONSOR'S STATEMENT OF INTENT

Persons applying for a protective order are required to include their address and county of residence in the notice that is sent to the respondent. In 2023, S.B. 578, by Senator Judith Zaffirini, authorized applicants and protected persons to request that this information be kept confidential, but courts retained discretion to deny the request. This has resulted in inconsistent protections, leaving survivors of family violence vulnerable during one of the most dangerous times in their lives. Survivors may hesitate to seek court protection if they fear their personal information will not remain private.

This issue extends beyond the initial protective order application. Courts can also deny requests for confidentiality when issuing a final protective order or when a protected person files a change of address or phone number. This gap in confidentiality protections undermines the safety of those at risk and prevents survivors from fully utilizing the legal protections available to them.

S.B. 1807 would require courts to grant requests for confidentiality of personal information from applicants and persons protected by a protective order. This change would ensure that survivors are protected and do not hesitate to seek protection from the courts.

As proposed, S.B. 1807 amends current law relating to the confidentiality of certain personal information of an applicant for or a person protected by a protective order.

RULEMAKING AUTHORITY

This bill does not expressly grant any additional rulemaking authority to a state officer, institution, or agency.

(a-1) Requires the court, in a hearing on an application for a protective order, to inform each person described by Subsection (a) who is present at the hearing of the person's right, on request, to have information described by that subsection excluded from the protective order and specifically ask the person if the person wishes the court to exclude that information from the protective order.

SECTION 3. Amends Section 87.004, Family Code, by adding Subsection (a-1), as follows:

Requires the court, on granting a request for confidentiality under this subsection, to order the clerk to maintain a confidential record of the information as described by Section 85.007(b)(2) (relating to a confidential record of the information for use only by certain institutions) and exclude that information from the notification. Requires the applicant, if the applicant seeks to keep confidential the applicant's mailing address, to disclose the applicant's mailing address and county of residence to the court, designate a person to receive on behalf of the applicant any notice or documents filed with the court related to the order, and disclose the designated person's mailing address to the court.
