Fiscal Analysis

The bill would require services or organizations that provide consolidated application services for applications to medical or dental schools to include applications for nursing schools, including the Texas Health Education Service at The University of Texas System.

The bill would require the Texas Health Education Service at The University of Texas System to establish an advisory board to develop recommendations for including applications for nursing schools in consolidated application services and to publish a plan for implementing the recommendations.

Methodology

The Texas Health Education Service administers the Texas Medical and Dental Schools Application Service (TMDSAS). According to The University of Texas System, the cost to expand TMDSAS as required by the bill would total $3,728,217 in the 2026-27 biennium and will decrease in subsequent biennia. The System estimates an additional 10.0 full-time equivalents would be needed, totaling $1,938,398 in the 2026-27 biennium for salaries and benefits. Other costs include technology costs to support the application platform and internal maintenance and operations expenses.

TMDSAS would begin with a piloted cohort of approximately 6 schools in fiscal year 2027 with plans to grow to 50 by fiscal year 2030. TMDSAS would assess an application fee on submitted applications and expects to raise $229,120 in fee revenue in the 2026-27 biennium based on a fiscal year 2027 estimated 2,400 applications.

Fee revenue generated would be used to supplement any appropriated General Revenue in the continued operation of the application service. The System estimates that fee revenue will increase in future years as the number of applications and partner institutions increases and will eventually sustain TMDSAS without the need for additional General Revenue.

The System estimates a one-time cost of $150,000 for consulting services to help develop the implementation plan that the advisory board is responsible for producing under the bill's provisions.

Local Government Impact

No fiscal implication to units of local government is anticipated.
