Whether it's in 2, 4, or 6 years, the day will come when Texas no longer has billions in surplus funds for entitlements like this. When that day comes, will we shutter the ESA program and force children to change schools yet again? Not likely. Instead, it will come at the expense of our already struggling public schools.

Private schools do great work and should be applauded. I urge you to look to those schools to see what makes them successful. You will find that they do not have high-stakes standardized testing or mountains of mandates. If such restrictions were imposed on them, many have already said that they would refuse ESA funding—because they know it would hinder their ability to educate students effectively.

Our state's education system does need reform. But it does not need an expensive, government-funded, inefficient parallel system. It needs relief from excessive mandates and bureaucracy so that local educators can focus on their mission: educating the children of Texas. Let's empower them to do that. If we do, we will see better outcomes at a fraction of the cost of an unsustainable ESA entitlement program.

I know this isn't easy. There are powerful forces aligning in support of this bill. But deep down, I believe you know that it is not the solution to our state's educational challenges.

As Plato said:

"Courage is knowing what not to fear."

I know you have heard the voices of the people in your district. The real people. Not the bots online, not the paid lobbyists, not the out of state special interests. The real people in your communities. Those who don't have the resources to drive to Austin to speak with you today, but only want a quality education for their kids at the school right down the street. They are the ones who need your courage today.

Thank you for your time, your service to our great state, and your courage to protect and defend our state's children.

Tammy Turner, Dr.

Self

Frisco, TX

I am deeply concerned about school vouchers. Vouchers will, admittedly, provide little to no relief for individuals who are not currently able to afford private school. They will simply offset the cost for parents who already send their children to private school at the expense of fully funding public education. Public education is the bedrock of democracy and serves all students regardless of socioeconomic status, ability, etc. It provides the opportunity for students to realize the American Dream of achieving an education and becoming a contributing member of society, yet Republican lawmakers in Texas, swayed by billionaire donors, continue to try to defund and cripple public education. They have withheld funds for years and are now claiming public education doesn't work, yet, had they supported public education and fully funded it, they would have seen immense growth in our students. As an educator of 24 years and mother to three children who attend public schools, one of which is classified as Special Education, I have seen miracles performed by teachers, yet I've known they did it in spite of funding constraints and lack of government support. Imagine the miracles they could have worked had they had the full support of our elected officials. It is past time to quit forcing the rhetoric that public education isn't working and provide the support it deserves instead of cutting off funding and then claiming it isn't living up to expectations. Public funds are for public education. Private education is a choice and should be funded fully by the parents making that choice.

Beyond the concern regarding level of support for our students is the very real possibility to that vouchers will bankrupt TRS and leave educators who have worked for years, putting money into TRS, without retirement funds despite their service and financial contributions. That is unconscionable. Teachers should not have those retirement stolen by billionaire donors any more than students should be left stranded due to lack of funding.

No one should be looking at children and see dollar signs. Privatizing education is not in the best interest of our students. No amount of political theatre or propaganda will make it so.

Elizabeth Wakehouse Werzner

Self

Austin, TX

I am a 47 year old mother of two elementary aged students who attend public school. My mother and grandmother were teachers. My other grandmother was a librarian. Multiple generations of aunts and uncles in my family were & are still current educators in the public school system. I believe in the right of every American to an education through the public school system. We should be funding our existing system and supporting our teachers, rather than wasting money to establish a new system that will be devoid of parent's voices. In the public school system parents vote for school board members, advisory committees, we are seen and heard. Education is a right, not a privilege. This proposed voucher system will take education from those who need it most. There will be huge numbers of children left behind who's families will not be able to afford school. Higher education has become so much more expensive than when I attended college. My husband and I used to worry about being able to afford college for our kids. This voucher program now has us worried about whether or not we'll be able to afford High School. This proposal HB 3, SB 2 has already caused such stress to our committed public school teachers. They work so hard with so little. Paying for their own supplies, having to rely on PTA and parent support for resources that should be part of the budget. I read the spending budget for AISD has not increased since 2019. The US inflation has risen 23.45% from 2019 to now. Instead of waisting time with these proposals that take away a system that works, why don't we make the existing system better? It would be more fiscally responsible to invest in our public schools than create a new system. Economists say our middle class is dwindling. If we make access to education more challenging the middle class will vanish. The key to our economy is the middle class. We can not allow HB 3 SB 2. Whatever your political views, this proposal is not good for children, or their parents, and their communities. This bill will do irreparable damage that will affect everyone. I do not support this bill and implore you do the same.

Sean Close

Self

Austin, TX

I am against HB3. School vouchers are simply a way to funnel money away from public schools into the pockets of the wealthiest Texans that need it the least.

Geraldine Rasmussen, Mrs
Self, Teacher (EC-12)
Harlingen, TX

As an American and more specifically a Texan, we are instilled with choice as a cornerstone to our freedoms. Peddling a bill that will unequivocally destroy the quality of public education as a choice, is not only manipulative but a purposeful misdirect. Voucher programs have been proven to disproportionately benefit those who already send their children to private schools. And those districts who do not have attainable alternatives will not only lose funding, but never actually have a “choice” as this bill implies.

My greatest concern lies with our students who do not classify as traditional learners; our 504 and IEP students. They require services that are not required in most private schools, and certainly not for the number of students that any public school services. Private institutions will always maintain the right to deny a student entry; this can be for religious belief, economic status, or availability of academic resources. If we as Texans allow this type of selective education to be government funded, our children will be the ones to suffer.

Rachel Adams
Self/Teacher
Arlington, TX

Public teachers and public school staff work exceptionally hard to meet the demands of the state and work to educate and push students to their fullest potential. We do this with limited resources and constant scrutiny and criticism from our own state government. Please quit withholding funds and provide appropriate funding to public education. The public has voiced their opinion. We do not want vouchers or ESAs or whatever they are called today. We want funding for public students attending public schools.

Beatrice Smith, Dr.
Self
Austin, TX

This bill is horrific for Texas schools and children. It gives the wealthy even more opportunity and the poor even less than they have now. This legislation is anti teacher and anti student. This worsens the “the rich get richer and the poor get poorer” already in existence in Texas schools. This bill only helps children already in good schools in good districts and puts even bigger limits on schools who desperately need funding, teachers and support. What happens if all students in a county want to attend the same school with their voucher? This is a classist bill meant to hurt those already vulnerable. Texas students deserve support and funding in their public neighborhood schools, and those schools need to be uplifted. Public money needs to go to public education! Do not pass this bill. PUBLIC MONEY NEEDS TO GO TO PUBLIC SCHOOLS!!! All children deserve a quality public education in their own community supported by public tax dollars. No vouchers!

Johanna Parrish
Self - substitute teacher
Austin, TX

Dear members of the committee,

I am writing a simple letter to encourage you to be brave and vote down this voucher scheme. As a substitute teacher in Austin ISD, I am witness to the great things our schools have to offer our children. Vouchers would truly take away from the incredible collective effort we have in our schools today.

What a joy it would be to live in a place where I know that the public education has my kids backs.

Honestly, we have spoken year after year on this subject. This needs to end, it simply is not in our best interest.

Thank you,
Johanna Parrish
847-769-5982

Diana Savage

Self/teacher

Lubbock, TX

This bill is an absurd misuse of public funds. We already have school choice, of any of the public schools in our areas. Parents who want to send their kids to private school or homeschooling already have that right and exercise that right. By defending public schools, you are removing school choice for thousands of young Texans. This will end up costing us more in the future when our children are unable to compete in the job market, because they are not educated. This bill is stealing from taxpayers and damning underprivileged children to lives of hardship and societal regression.

Hayley Thomas

Self

Waco, TX

I'm a Texan. I care about our K-12 public education system being well-funded for all students. I do not support HB 3, the education savings account bill, and I ask for all representatives to oppose this bill.

Sam Leonard

Self

Austin, TX

I do not support using public funds to pay for private education. In my opinion, this will have a long term negative effect on our public education system, that is already underfunded. A better option, in my opinion, would be to create a property tax credit or exemption for families that send their kids to a private school, similar to the homestead exemption.

ZEPHYR STONE

Self

Pflugerville, TX

Education Savings Accounts are just another way to funnel money that could be supporting public schools away to private and religious schools. This bypassing of the constitutional use of our tax dollars is blatantly wrong and ill-spirited. If those dollars were invested in public schools, more students could get a better education rather than the few who could use the ESAs effectively. If the goal is to actually improve education and move Texas out of the bottom 10 rated states for education Savings in the country, you would find ways to utilize our tax money to help ALL Texas children get quality public education rather than scamming the taxpayers to benefit a few....and not to benefit donors who are on private school boards (like Gov. Abbott's wife).

Cole Weaver

Self, Peer Support Specialist

Cedar Park, TX

I urge the House to do the right thing. Don't defund public schools and vote no on this bill!

Jennifer Ottinger

Self

Plano, TX

This hurts children in public schools. All education funds should go to public education.

Tyler Gray

Self

Irving, TX

I, Tyler Gray, a resident of Irving, TX, STRONGLY oppose HB 3 and school vouchers.

Connie Turner
Self
New Braunfels, TX

Please do not go against the constitution.
Public tax dollars should not go to private schools.

Anne Schellekens
Self, Homemaker
Austin, TX

I want you to know that this Voucher Scam represents a fight between a bi-partisan, pro public education coalition vs. billionaire mega-donors who control Greg Abbott and Dan Patrick. Your constituents love their kids, believe in public school teachers, support our neighborhood schools and want them fully funded. We don't want a Voucher Scam that will eventually defund our local schools.

I would like to see these things:
the Basic allotment tied to inflation indexes to Gov Abbott cannot hold it hostage anymore
The basic allotment become enrollment-based vs. attendance based Full funding to make up for 6 years of missing funding
Vote NO on the Voucher Scam.
Thank you.

Alison Fader-Brock
self - (social worker/part-time student)
Austin, TX

I am writing to ask you to protect neighborhood schools and oppose House Bill 3 in Texas. I believe that our state should provide quality, accessible public education for all. Every Texas student deserves an education that prepares them to succeed, not just students at exclusive private schools.

The Texas state constitution says our Legislature is responsible for funding our neighborhood public schools for students, not subsidizing tuition for wealthy families at exclusive private and religious schools that pick and choose who will enroll.

I am a concerned Texan and a proud parent of two children currently attending our neighborhood public school. I ask you to vote down House Bill 3, which diverts tax dollars from neighborhood public schools. Public dollars should stay in public schools.

Please say NO to vouchers that use tax dollars to fund the tuition at exclusive private schools.

Brenda Black
Self
Pollok, TX

This is an overreach of our parental rights regarding our faith and how our children are educated.

Stacy Lugo
My family
Georgetown, TX

I strongly encourage you to NOT pass the school choice bill. Texas already has school choice, and this bill adds more government to our education system. My children left the public school system because it is failing, and we choose to homeschool. It has been a huge blessing for our family, and that was our choice. This bill opens the door for government to control homeschool curriculum and especially private school. It takes away our choice. Public school needs help, but this effort needs to go towards fixing school to what it used to be. We do not know any families that want this bill to pass so it leads me to believe that special interest groups, maybe those who would control curriculum, are pushing this. This will harm our children, and if it passes, it will add more taxes to Texans. This bill is not the answer, and we beg you to not pass it. Thank you.

Amber Clark
Self
Conroe, TX

I do not want vouchers. Public schools are not fully funded and this will only cause segregation throughout our public school system. Parents who can afford private schools are already going and don't need tax payers money to do so.

Dovid Wohlgelemerter
Self
Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Kimberly Pendleton
Self
Lubbock, TX

I am opposed to passing a bill allowing for educational saving's accounts in Texas. As public representatives, your focus should be on fully funding public education in Texas which is required to serve all students and has accountability measures to demonstrate where they are successful and areas that need additional assistance. Parents have always had school choice. This isn't the voice of the people of Texas. You have an opportunity to do what is right by the parents and children of Texas and focus our public dollars into appropriately funding a school system that has the responsibility, one they don't take lightly, of serving every student that walks through their door.

Jonell Randall
Retired teacher
Ben Wheeler, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Luziris Pineda Turi
Self
Houston, TX

I am against the "education savings acocunt program" which in reality is not offering savings to anyone. This program would further underfund already ailing public schools and negatively impact public school teacher pay. This would also funnel government funds to private religious education which goes against separation of church and state. H3 is harmful for our public school system. Taxpayer money needs to go directly to pubich school districts and not private schools. The priority for the Texas government needs to be public schools and not helping individuals send their children to private schools. Additionally, there is not oversight about how private schools will use these taxpayer funds.

Jennifer Donato
Pleasanton ISD
Poteet, TX

For our kids right now, funding was held back the last 2 years.

Holly Edwards
self
Corpus Christi, TX

School voucher programs are for the rich and keeps funds away from the poorer and rural schools. Only private schools will reap the rewards. And why did a wealthy investor donate so much money for this to happen. I implore you to vote against this bill so every child gets a proper education.

Sherrie Caplan personal
Austin, TX

This bill will take away funding for the vast majority of children who rely on a quality public education. Those who are financialoly priveleged to send kids to a private school if they choose will only be receiving a cut on tuition. No school is only A$10000 making it unattainable for any but the wealthy. And many areas do not have a private school choice making this NOT a bill for ALL Texans michelle filer

Self Alto, TX

I am against this! No vouchers!

Margo Green, MS
Green
LUBBOCK, TX

I find it interesting that our elected officials, who swore an oath to represent the citizens, are refusing to listen to them. We do not now and have never wanted vouchers. We want good reliable public education for our children. We pay for good reliable education for our children. Vouchers will decimate rural school districts specifically, under served children and special needs children and programs. If we are forced to use vouchers, then the state should shoulder all the costs and not our tax dollars. You must vote NO on HB3. No one wants vouchers. So please do what you were elected to do and follow the lead of your constituents by voting no.

Alexis Miller
self-registered nurse
Houston, TX

As a Houstonian and Mother, I am against this bill. It will hurt the underserved and vulnerable in our community. It will further the gap between the haves and have nots and children who do not have parents that understand or are willing to put in the work will be hurt by this bill. Many low-income children benefit from public schooling to better themselves and many at time do so without the assistance of parents, as they may not have this family support. I am one of those kids due to drugs and alcohol taking my parents ability yet became an educated and productive citizen through public education. This Bill will hurt Texas Education, not help. We need to look at how to fix public schools versus privatization of the Education system. I, as the person who votes and follows politics, will remember who votes and how and will not let my community in Houston forget how you voted and will go out in the streets and educate my neighbors when the time comes. Please do right by our children and not your personal agenda. If you are religious (any religion) you will at some point have to answer on your judgement day, please do not have this be one you will have to answer for, as taking away from the least is not morally correct. Thank you for taking my comment into consideration and for doing the work of the people. Remember listen to the people as that is who you serve.

Kathy Goss
self Pre -K 3 teacher
Houston, TX

Please fully fund public schools before approving a voucher bill. Offer the same amount of money per student to public schools as you are funding for vouchers.

Jeana Actkinson
Self - Retired Educator
Runaway Bay, TX

Our duty to the students of Texas is to provide them with an education that will contribute to our society in general and them specifically. The future of our state and country is dependent on this and was recognized by the men that wrote our constitution.

Cameron Wiley, School Board Trustee
Self/Abilene Wylie ISD School Board Place 7
Tuscola, TX

I come before you in strong opposition to HB 3 and any form of voucher program that continues to siphon critical resources away from public education.

I wholeheartedly believe in healthy competition among educational institutions—but that competition should take place on an equal playing field. Right now, we do not have that. Voucher programs, including ESAs, divert taxpayer dollars to private and homeschool options that do not face the same accountability, transparency, or mandates as our public schools. Public schools serve every child, regardless of ability, background, or socioeconomic status. Private schools and ESA programs do not. They can set admissions policies, charge additional tuition, and dismiss students who require additional resources. This is not competition—it's a system designed to undercut public education while holding it to a different, higher standard.

While some argue that public education funding has increased, the reality is that no meaningful increase has accounted for inflation. As our state sees record growth, we are expected to educate more students with fewer dollars in real spending power. Public education does not have the luxury of turning students away—we welcome every child with open arms. And yet, we are being forced to do more with less, while teachers continue to leave the profession in droves.

Rather than diverting public funds to unaccountable alternatives, we should be prioritizing significant investment in our public schools, including:

- ? Meaningful teacher raises across the board—not selective increases tied to specific programs.
- ? A substantial increase in the Basic Allotment—not the mere $220 being discussed, which falls woefully short of covering rising costs.
- ? An increase in the Security Allotment—ensuring schools can invest in the necessary measures to keep students and staff safe.

Our school finance system is failing under the weight of outdated formulas and underfunding. While SB 26 shows some promise, no proposed bill has adequately addressed the real needs of public education. We need solutions that put students and teachers first—not a program that diverts public money into an ESA system with zero meaningful oversight.

If the state is determined to pursue an ESA program, it must have equal accountability, transparency, and oversight. But even then, the priority should be strengthening public schools—where the vast majority of Texas students are educated.

I urge you to reject HB 3 and any voucher-style program that weakens public education and instead focus on real funding solutions that benefit all Texas children.

Thank you.

Carolyn Spahr

Self

Arlington, TX

I believe this bill will only benefit the wealthy that are already attending private schools. This bill will defund public schools and will harm students with physical and learning disabilities. Low-income students will suffer. Public schools are struggling now. This bill will harm public schools.

David Fink, Dr.

Myself - Attorney

Fort Worth, TX

School voucher is another abdication of a central role of government. There is not governmental role more important than providing for the education of the people. Vouchers are a gift to the rich and theft from those who are not. Every year since I was child Texas education has had less and less funding this will destroy public education in Texas, ensuring that only the rich can get a decent education. Remember when the Texas lottery was supposed to fund Texas education? That was as bid a lie as the voucher system being good. If this passes, I will devote the rest of my life to ensuring that those who voted for it are never elected to anything ever again.

Nefia S Peterson

Myself, retired

Pearland, TX

I am opposed to spending taxes on private schools for many reasons but mostly because I am Republican and truly want less government and less taxes. Not another bureaucracy and a give away of a billion dollars. This money could be more wisely spent on providing appropriate facilities and therapies for the very disturbed, mentally ill kids in our public schools. It is awful for our teachers and our kids to be exposed to such abnormal behavior. These kids truly need more appropriate therapy and psychiatric care. Government created the problems in our schools nor fix them instead of admitting you can't by saying here is some money find a better school. The only way this should pass is if it is a level playing field, same regulations across all schools including private and home schooling. Why are billionaires pushing this so hard? Very suspicious!

ANGELA TENG

Self, operations leader

Austin, TX

I oppose the school voucher program. I do not want my tax dollars to fund private school tuition. It will take away from already low funding of public schools. Thank you

Michael Idemudia, Dr.
Forney ISD, family nurse practitioner
Forney, TX

Good morning. Thank you for the opportunity to have a voice on this matter. I write to you today as a parent and as a school board trustee. The issue before us today is not about what “parents have overwhelmingly demanded” because we know if that were true, the easiest way to bring school choice to life would be to put it to the voters, and let them decide at the ballot box. But instead the real issue before you today is to determination ways to kill public education in Texas.

HB 3 is the first step in killing public schools in Texas. Here is what will happen if HB 3 passes.

- [] Public schools, with limited funding, will still be required to bring every child that comes through its doors to the same educational level by the end of the reporting period, regardless of the child’s prior educational background. Failure to accomplish this will give the school a low performing grade, which will eventually lead to less funds and increased exodus to private schools. Private schools on the other hand can pick and choose who to accept into their programs. Why wouldn’t they perform better than public schools? After all they can curate their own students.

I implore you to kill HB 3 because it does not serve Texas parents. HB 3 serves only one purpose - special interest groups. Last time I checked, lawmakers in Texas are not for sale. Texas lawmakers serve the people of Texas. The problems ailing Texas public schools is not going to be solved by diverting money away from it, and giving it away to private entities. What we need is all hands on deck. This includes adequately funding public schools, demanding accountability, celebrating successes, and investing in our children - especially among the most vulnerable population.

Thank you for your time.

Dr. Michael Idemudia

Stefanie Mott
Self
Austin, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

- 1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.
 - 2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.
 - 3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.
 - 4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot. This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.
- Thank you!

Toni Milburn

Self

Murphy, TX

Dear Representative,

As a taxpayer in the State of Texas, I do NOT want an Education Savings Accounts (ESAs) Program. I pay my public tax dollars and, therefore, want my money to Fund Public Schools in Texas. Public school funding has been stagnant since 2019 while we have had inflation of over 20%. Our children and all the educators, and staff, deserve to have the funding. To be clear, I want to reiterate the following:

I do NOT want vouchers/ESAs.

I support an Increase of the Basic Allotment.

I support Funding Public Schools in Texas, including the inflation of over 20%.

Again, I support Public Schools and want my tax dollars to Fund Public Schools (not private schools) in the State of Texas.

Sincerely,

Toni H Milburn

Lorrie Culpepper, Retired

Canton ISD

Canton, TX

Completely oppose!

Haileu Gowens

Self - teacher

Lubbock, TX

I am a teacher at a public high school. Passing this bill would decimate our education system as we know it. So many schools are already in a deficit and topping it off with the voucher system is going to lead to GOOD teachers being laid off and/or leaving education forever. Teachers and students at title one schools will be punished by this voucher system. Private schools will up the cost of their tuition and this will have all been for nothing in the first place. PLEASE support your public school teachers. We are begging for people to listen to teachers who have actually been in the field. I have been a supporter of Greg Abbott all my life, but he has lost my vote for this.

Teri Zatopek

Self

Leander, TX

My children attend public schools, and that's where my tax dollars should go!

Andreaz Zolas self/Cornerstone Academy
Houston, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.

HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.

Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.

We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot.

This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.

Thank you!
Andrea Zolas

Mary Nelson
Self
Waco, TX

I'm very opposed to the voucher program. I have been working in and with Texas schools since 2010. Majority of that time was and is in Title 1 schools. This bill will only harm those schools more than the continual lack of full funding they already face. My children go to a title 1 school and the teachers are so dedicated and loving but they are so limited with support they really need. The vouchers are only a way to help wealthy families who already send their kids to private schools. And most of the private schools in my area won't comply with the 504 plans my children have. Fully fund Texas public schools so all students have a chance to thrive!!!

Kathy Hughes
self/teacher
Houston, TX

I support public schools. I oppose HB 3. We should be putting more funding into public schools so that they can better serve all students in our state. Public schools are essential to all communities throughout our state. It is the responsibility of our state government to fund them fully to educate all Texas students.

Clifton Beene, LTC retired
Concerned retired educator
Mexia, TX

It appears you are determined to give money to private schools. All I can say is if you do make SURE ALL RULES, POLICIES AND REGULATIONS that apply to public school goes with the money; transportation, meals, special education and they must accept anyone that applies. Thank you brianda delgado

Self/ self employed

Austin, TX

Don't continue in the steps of ruining this entire country. Those in power are aiming to keep the majority of humans at or below poverty line. Adding school vouchers that only help those in certain tax brackets, is wrong and a shame. Looking out for the rich will only empower the poor to continue fighting injustice for themselves and others. Public school got me where I am today. 3 owned businesses and 3 owned cars and a lifetime of advice and Knowledge.

Carole Howard

Self as a Public educator in Texas

Canyon, TX

As a teacher, I strongly oppose Texas HB3 and the negative impact it could have on our students and the future of public education in Texas. The bill falls short of addressing the true needs of our classrooms, educators, and most importantly, our students. While the proposed funding may seem like a step in the right direction, it does not do nearly enough to ensure that every student, regardless of their background or ZIP code, has access to the resources and opportunities they deserve.

Texas students deserve a fully funded public education system that provides equitable opportunities for success. Our classrooms are already underfunded, with teachers spending their own money on supplies and struggling with overcrowded classrooms. We need a comprehensive, long-term solution that fully funds public schools, supports teacher salaries, and ensures that every student receives a high-quality education.

HB3 fails to meet these needs. It is essential that we prioritize real, sustainable investments in public education, not just short-term measures that fall far short of addressing the systemic issues. Texas has the resources to make education a top priority, but we need leadership that will commit to fully funding schools and providing educators with the support they need to succeed in preparing our students for the future.

Every child in Texas deserves the opportunity to succeed, and that can only happen when we invest in them through a fully funded public education system. We must stand up for what our students deserve and push for policies that reflect their potential, not just political expediency.

Chris Reyes

self

Bryan, TX

I vehemently oppose school voucher programs. I based the opposition based on the following:

- Exclusion and Accountability– with no oversight or regulations, private and charter institutions can exclude individuals from their program. This will be done to insulate success metrics they value and will result in discrimination of special needs students and children from poor communities.
- Funding – This would divest funds from public schools that will primarily hurt rural and poor communities. I do not believe pulling funding is the correct path. Public school teachers are underpaid and not supported by the current state administration. The Governor has been republican controlled since 1995 and control of the senate and house since at least 2002. This funding shortfall has been created by this leadership and should be addressed probably not but subsidizing affluent families.
- Access – Rural and Poor communities will not be able to truly access this voucher programs. Creating an additional obstacle for those in these communities will result in less access not more. The lack of ability and support will reduce these communities access and result in more affluent communities receive subsidies.
- Success – Voucher implementation success metrics are mixed at best. There is not successful measure that says these programs work. In some cases the only people who benefit from programs are those who were already in private school to begin with. To base billion-dollar funding on these measures shows a wanton decision made on ideology backed by campaign contributions, not realistic and sound judgement.

I am not a single-issue voter but education is by far my most important issue for me. Moving forward I will not support any candidate that votes in support of this initiative.

Jennie Dancer

self, parent, substitute teacher

Austin, TX

I am a parent and current substitute teacher, a Texan who opposes HB 3 and any private school vouchers. Our children and teachers deserve fully funded public schools. Tax payer money should support public education and not be given to private schools without accountability.

Sarah Orendorff, Dr.

Self

Sunnyvale, TX

As a parent of three children in Texas public schools and a long-time educator and local PTA executive board member, I oppose this bill. We do not want this. This bill not only takes away from our public schools, but takes away rights for those that choose to homeschool and utilize the funds. Thank you.

Trevela Gaines

Self

Amarillo, TX

In the past 6 years, we experienced Covid and having to go to an online platform or home schooling our children. Some parents enjoyed it and other parents hated it. Where I agree where the choice should be given, I believe it may be offered without enough guidelines in place and could take away from the public educators that pour everything into teaching and providing for their students. We have seen the aftermath of what Covid allowed. A lot of children are farther and farther behind and teachers are working day in and day out to work with these students to caught them back up to their grade level. This could be the same result of allowing the choice to home schooling and cause a bigger amount of students to actually be behind and not ready for the next grade but yet, we keep pushing them forward because that's what we have to do, even though they aren't ready. As well as taking away from the public school funding that gives teachers their salaries and allows us to stay dedicated in our career even though thousands are experiencing burnout out year and year, as a result of more behaviors, farther behind, and other issues.

Brittany Deen

Self- Registered Nurse

Mansfield, TX

Vote to Fund our PUBLIC schools. ESAs do our children with IEPs a disservice as private schools do no implement nor do they follow IDEA. VOTE NO on HB 3

Shauna Young

Self

Lubbock, TX

I am shocked that Texans have no say in vouchers. I am a proponent of public and private schools, my children attended both. I think vouchers are a huge mistake. This is only for the wealthy. My nephew goes to school in a voucher state. The special needs service s have suffered. Our society needs great public schools who serve ALL. Holding funds until a bill is passed is not doing what is besr for children. This life long republican will have to vote differently in the next election.

Clayton Waters

Self

Arlington, TX

Committee members, I'm writing you today to ask you to fund public schools FIRST. Public schools across Texas, including my district, Mansfield ISD, are in desperate need of a $1,340 increase in the Basic Allotment. The State must prioritize getting public education back on track and ensuring our school districts are fiscally sound. Please vote NO on any Educational Savings Account legislation. Public funds should be kept in public schools. The most good can be done by fully funding public education.

Deborah Barrow

Self

Cypress, TX

Vote no for vouchers . Care about public education in texas

Alison Stoltzfus

Self, parent and editor

Cedar Park, TX

As a Texas parent and constituent, I strongly oppose HB three and any bill that progresses voucher schemes, which promote using public tax fair dollars to fund private schooling. This is an improper use of taxpayer dollars, does not benefit the children of this great state, and is deeply unpopular with parents in the state. Congress's duty is to protect all Texans, and this bill D funds our public schools and rather than providing broad solutions.

JACLYN LANG

SELF

Ballinger, TX

NO. NO. NO. Taxpayer money needs to stay in PUBLIC schools. I live in a rural district - my children DO NOT have a private school choice - but this bill will take money from my kids' school and funnel into more wealthy areas of Texas. NO. NO. NO.

Julia Ray

Self Daycare Supervisor

Pollok, TX

I am in opposition of HB3.

Marcia Sherrod

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose this bill. I do not support school vouchers

Dawn Forrest

Self - retired

Lewisville, TX

Paying for school vouchers will only benefit the wealthy students because vouchers will not cover the entire cost of tuition. This is just to re-segregate schools and deprive middle class and poor students from getting an education. I do not want my tax dollars to support this nonsense.

Cindy Vandiver

Self

Midlothian, TX

This bill will only benefit those who are wealthy and is giving parents of school children the false hope that they will have this opportunity. And even if given a voucher, it will not be enough to cover costs. Our public schools need to be funded (and funds being withheld by Abbott need to be released; shameful he's been allowed to hold these) to provide adequate dollars for schools/teachers/administrators to do their job appropriately and in good form for their students. Supporting this bill opens the door to the billionaire who has contributed to Abbott (which in itself should be illegal) to bid on opportunities this voucher program opens up to the rich. It's baffling to see how grown, educated adults can do such harm to children and families then go home and sleep at night. Our Republican leaders have no moral compass or ethical values left in them. They are not leaders that can be looked to in valuing any voice of their constituents let alone to represent them. All children deserve the right to an education and this bill will close schools and force parents into difficult decisions that they should never have to make...all because of a men and women that only seek to get richer while disregarding their oath and the people they are supposed to be helping.

Mary Fero

Self

Austin, TX

The Legislature has failed to meet its constitutional obligation to adequately fund public education for decades. This voucher / ESA scheme is guaranteed to further drain resources from public schools and at the same time drive expenditures to unsustainable levels as billions of dollars are diverted to private entities that do not have to accept all students. Nor will these institutions meet the same accountability or fiscal transparency requirements as do public schools. This is not conservative leadership. It is reckless stewardship of taxpayer dollars. Please vote NO.

Emily Williams

Voting constituent

Fort Worth, TX

Texans do not need an ESA program. We need funding for public education which is in a shambles. Just say no to taxpayer money for private school education and all the unwanted regulations that go with it.

Elizabeth Russo

teacher/ self

Austin, TX

As a public school special education teacher I want to say that Vouchers are a scam and are hurtful to the most vulnerable population the most. I understand that Texas politicians like Abbott, Paxton, Cruz etc are all wanting this. Those men do not care that it hurts our children. VOTE NO to Vouchers.

Barbara Terry
self, attorney
Austin, TX

If this bill passes and becomes law in Texas, my school district - Round Rock ISD - will lose almost $20 Million dollars in funding as that money is siphoned off to private schools. That loss of funds would mean a loss of over 300 teachers, a larger teacher/student ratio, fewer library books, and a decrease in extracurricular activities for our kids. I am a product of the public school system in Texas and I chose to have my only child attend the public schools in RRISD because I've always trusted that our public schools were the best system for educating our next generations. Under HB3 as written, the private schools that these vouchers would fund would have no accountability. Unlike our public schools, their curriculum and their staff and their students can be whatever their founder and/or board decides at any given moment will be. Claims that vouchers improve academic performance are false. Look at the data from Louisiana, Ohio, Indiana and Alabama. Children are not learning more or better; parents are not satisfied. The only entities who succeed in a state voucher program are the private schools, who will run en masse to Texas to grab some of our taxpayer monies for their school. And with no accountability by the State of Texas, how long do you think it will be before we start hearing stories of entire schools of children left behind? Please do not defund our public schools so that a few wealthy donors can manipulate the private schools to their benefit. HB3 and vouchers are NOT the solution. It will be to the detriment of all our citizens, and mostly importantly our children.

Alyssa Ketner
Self
Houston, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,
We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

- 1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.
 - 2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.
 - 3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.
 - 4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot. This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.
- Thank you!

Ava Coates
Self
Austin, TX

I am a proud product of the American public school system. Private school and charter school vouchers take money away from hard working Americans children and undercut the very foundation of American education. We are not a dumb nation let's not allow our children to be. Fund public schools, support public school teachers, support public education!

Bailey Williams
self
Kyle, TX

I oppose the education savings account. Why should my tax dollars go to private schools that do not have the same accountability as public schools? If they are getting state, tax paper money, they should have to meet the same standards as public schools for that money.

Michael Don

self

Austin, TX

I oppose this bill and I'm against school vouchers.

Sara Coburn

Self

Richmond, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a native Texan, 5th generation, whose entire family are products of the public education system, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas.

Amy Wilson

Self

Austin, TX

I am writing to strongly oppose HB 3, the largest and most expensive school voucher scheme ever proposed in Texas. This bill takes taxpayer dollars meant for public schools and redirects them to private schools that lack transparency, accountability, and equal access for all students.

Public tax dollars should support public schools, which serve every child, regardless of ability, income, or background. Texas lawmakers have not increased the basic per-student funding allotment for public schools since 2019, despite rising costs, inflation, and a record budget surplus. If there is money in the budget for education, our priority should be fully funding public schools first—ensuring teacher raises, better resources for students, and improvements to school infrastructure—before sending tax dollars to private institutions that are not accountable to the public.

Furthermore, HB 3 does not even prioritize the students who need the most support. It allows families already in private schools—including those making over $200,000 per year—to receive taxpayer-funded vouchers. Wealthy families will get a discount on private school tuition while public schools lose funding, harming the vast majority of Texas students.

This bill also fails students with disabilities. While HB 3 offers larger voucher amounts for special education students, private schools are not required to accept them or provide the necessary services. Public schools are legally required to serve all children, yet HB 3 shifts funding away from them to schools that are not obligated to meet these needs.

Texas public schools educate more than 5.4 million students—far more than private institutions ever will. If we truly care about education, we should be investing in strong, well-funded public schools that serve everyone, rather than subsidizing private schools that can pick and choose their students.

HB 3 is bad for Texas families, bad for students, and bad for our public schools. I urge legislators to reject this costly and irresponsible voucher scheme and instead invest in fully funding public schools, raising teacher pay, and ensuring that every Texas child has access to a high-quality education.

Sincerely,

Amy Wilson

Austin

Dana Wilson
SELF
Fort Worth, TX

158 out of 254 Texas counties do not have a private school option.
This means that approximately 62% of Texas counties lack private schools.
NO to Vouchers!
Stop the Greed! Higher Property Taxes!
Put Vouchers on a Ballot and let Texans VOTE!

Keenan Tuck
Self, stay at home mom
Deer Park, TX

I oppose this bill strongly. My son's school district will lose almost $5 million in funding and almost 100 teachers (who deserve the money more than any parents sending their children to private school). Abbott's complete disregard to what his constituents want is disgusting.

Gema Barrera
Self
San antonio, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a native Texan and 1st generation college graduate with 2 science degrees as a product of the public education system, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution.

Kayla Bachmeyer
Self
The Woodlands, TX

I strongly oppose school vouchers because they divert essential funding away from public schools, which serve the vast majority of Texas students. Under the proposed system, private schools would receive significantly more funding per student than public schools, creating an unfair advantage and deepening resource disparities.

Public schools are already struggling with teacher shortages, low paraprofessional pay, and transportation challenges. Meanwhile, private schools are not required to provide transportation, nor are they held to the same academic and financial accountability standards. This system does not create more choices—it simply weakens public education for the students who rely on it most.

Texas should focus on strengthening its public schools rather than funneling taxpayer dollars into private institutions that are not obligated to serve all students. I urge lawmakers to vote against vouchers and prioritize funding for public education.

Kristen Keys
Indeed
Austin, TX

I oppose this bill and am against school vouchers!

Andrea Wootton, Mrs.
Self
Allen, TX

I strongly oppose the establishment of an education savings account program using taxpayer money towards private school education via vouchers. The school voucher program will defund our public schools further and create devastating consequences for our communities. NO ON HB3.

Lucinda Mendoza

Self

Conroe, TX

This "savings account program " does NOT support every single Texas student. Our education dollars are to support a public education. We owe it to our students and our tax payers to nurture and generate the best and brightest of Texas future. Regardless who their daddy happens to be or which zipcode they live in. Favoring charter schools over public schools takes away valuable resources from rural schools, and will abolish the social mobility an education can provide. This bill only supports families that do not need the support. Stop selling the future of Texas and actually support that future.

Kimberly Kofron

CHILDREN AT RISK

Round Rock, TX

Chair Buckley, Vice Chair Bernal, and Members of the Committee,

Thank you for the opportunity to testify today on the importance of a mixed-delivery system in early childhood education and the impact of Education Savings Accounts (ESAs). My name is Kim Kofron, and I am the Sr. Director of Education for Children at Risk.

A mixed-delivery system—including private child care centers, faith-based providers, home-based providers, and public schools—is essential to ensuring that all Texas children have access to high-quality early learning experiences. Since Texas does not offer universal public Pre-K, private and community-based providers fill a critical gap for families who do not qualify but still need early education options. Without a strong mixed-delivery system, many families will struggle to find suitable care for their children.

While ESAs are designed to expand parental choice, they must be structured to strengthen—not undermine—the mixed-delivery system. Key concerns include:

1. Access: ESAs have the potential to assist families seeking quality Pre-K. ESAs may also disproportionately benefit families who can supplement costs beyond the voucher amount, leaving lower-income families with fewer options. Many private child care providers operate on thin margins and may not be able to accept ESA-funded students without financial losses.
2. Sustainability of Providers: Increased ESA-funded enrollments in private schools could reduce enrollment in private child care centers, threatening their financial viability. Since public Pre-K serves only eligible children, private child care providers must remain a strong option for all families.
3. Quality, Transparency, and Accountability: Child care providers receiving public funds must meet high-quality standards to ensure children receive the best possible education. Strong oversight is essential to protect taxpayer dollars and ensure programs maintain essential health, safety, and educational benchmarks.

To ensure ESAs enhance rather than disrupt the mixed-delivery system, I urge the Committee to:

- Encourage Public-Private Collaboration: Strengthen partnerships between public Pre-K and private child care providers to create seamless early learning opportunities.
- Ensure High-Quality Standards: Require ESA-funded programs to meet clear quality benchmarks to provide a safe and enriching environment for children.
- Provide Adequate Funding: Ensure ESA programs offer funding levels that sustain high-quality private child care providers.
- Maintain Transparency and Accountability: Implement strong oversight and reporting requirements to ensure funds are used effectively.

Texas has an opportunity to expand parental choice while building a strong mixed-delivery system. Thoughtful policy design is critical to ensuring ESAs do not weaken private and community-based providers, particularly those serving our most vulnerable children.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Jennifer Martin

Self

Bandera, TX

Living in a rural area where students have no access to other schools, it is shameful to consider taking funding away from local public schools. It is even more upsetting to learn that Greg Abbott has received millions in donations from an out of state man in exchange for pushing for vouchers.

Nadia Elhaj, Ms

Self

Austin, TX

I am against the school voucher for initiative!

Jessica Kelton Dean

Self

Austin, TX

Please vote no on HB 3. I don't want my tax dollars paying for private education vendors.

Heather Hullum

Self

Fort Worth, TX

I oppose HB3. This bill does not provide the financial support that Texas needs to fund its public school system appropriately. I am from a small town in Texas in a rural area that does not have private or charter schools. This bill does not support or better the rural areas of Texas with limited options for school choice. I would like the state to increase the funding for public education without any option for school vouchers. Fund the school system so many Texans already rely on. I have two children in the public school system that have already experienced budget cuts within their school districts in the last few years. Fund our schools and remove voucher language from all bills. My family and I strongly oppose this bill.

Cynthia Laster

Self

Plano, TX

A public hearing at the Texas Capitol is happening on the school voucher bill (HB 3). Use the link below to ensure your opposition is on record. Not a drill.

Here's what I said:

“Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a native Texan, 5th generation, whose entire family are products of the public education system, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution.”

I oppose HB3. Our taxes are supposed to fund public schools and should be used for that purpose, not for private vouchers. I am a native Texan, a product of public school. My children attend public school. Taking billions away from public schools will only hurt our state and give our children poorer educations. My school district is facing hundreds of job, facilities and program cuts because of funding insecurity as caused by the Texas government. This is not what is fair on our families and mandated public education systems.

Frances Sullivan

Self

Austin, TX

I am against this bill. I am disappointed that the legislature is working to undermine our education system instead of working to improve it. I do not support school vouchers in any form.

Lisa Johnston
Self - SAHM
Brenham, TX

Please vote against this bill. It is not what public schools need and will only try out students. Funding private schools should not be tax payer responsibility

Michelle Sammon
Self-Ag. Science Teacher
Dawson, TX

I encourage you to consider what will benefit the majority instead of the minority. Public schools serve to educate ALL students despite disabilities, financial standings, or religion. Even with the "choice" to attend private institutions, this will not be a possibility for students in rural areas across the state. The passage of this bill, therefore, will diminish funding for the public schools already struggling to provide the "free and appropriate education" our government tasks them with providing.

Eva Guzman
Self
San Antonio, TX

Vote No on HB 3.

Atlanta Holland
Self. Homeschool mom.
Lubbock, TX

No no no. This is only good for rich people.

Scott Bailey, Owner
Double J Farm
Austin, TX

We don't want school vouchers. This will harm our public schools.

Randi Koehler
Self
Wimberley, TX

I am firmly against the school voucher program.

Erin Miller
Self
Spring, TX

I oppose HB3

Haley Rose

Self, independent consultant

Dripping Springs, TX

I recently attended PTA Rally day at the capitol with my 8-year old, and we observed some heated discussions during the day. I was trying to explain to him what the conversations were about. I framed it up for him this way. "What if you had a twin brother who received a lot more allowance than you did, but he didn't have to do any chores?" He said, "That would be totally unfair!" I explained that that's what would happen to our schools under the current voucher bill. Suddenly, he understood.

Please consider the impact this bill will have on Texans. Like many, my family relocated to a school district in order to access a quality education, leaving a very underfunded, underperforming rural school district with a limited tax base, a community with no private school options. Vouchers would only have helped kids in that district who could commute 45 min each way each day to a private school or whose parents could afford to stay home and homeschool them. (At the opposite end of the spectrum, our current school district is hamstrung from many student-focused goals by the funding limitations of Recapture.) Not all Texans have this flexibility to relocate, but ALL Texans would see their affordable education options REDUCED by this bill.

Vouchers for wealthy families in good school districts should NOT exist. Vouchers for private schools that do not have to meet the same standards as public schools should NOT exist. Funding for vouchers should NOT be based on enrollment when public school funding is based on attendance. Funding for vouchers per student should NOT exceed allotment per student. Fundamentally, public funds should be directed to public education. And public school property tax dollars "recaptured" should be spent on public education.

For my family, increased pressure on school district finances (as a result of inflation and Recapture) is gradually eroding some aspects of our fantastic schools, resulting in more limited library staff and time, increased class sizes, reduced staffing counts, and limited bus service and increased responsibilities for teachers who are underpaid. Everything costs more, so basic necessities for operations take a larger share of a flat budget. Great teachers are leaving the profession. Frustratingly, not even all of our Recaptured budget is being released to help schools like those in our previous community.

Our kids and educators deserve better.

Lastly, consider that private schools provide no transportation, which is important to families with working parents, fewer extracurriculars, and no standards to assure parents of the quality of education. There are not enough desks at private schools for the students in our public schools, so the vouchers would drive prices up, further DECREASING access for Texans to quality education.

Please consider other ways to improve access to quality schools and abandon or overhaul this voucher bill.

Katreeva Phillips

Self/Educator

Fort Worth, TX

Absolutely against. Say no to anything that racist, sexist, piece of shit oligarch proposes. Which one? Take your pick. Your children will suffer if this goes through. You don't need public schools to be defunded down the road, you need a new generation to be educated enough to fix the mess we're in right now.

David Ansley

Self

Houston, TX

My name is David Ansley, and I oppose HB 3. As a homeschool dad of 5 children, I highly value the freedoms Texas currently gives to homeschool parents to educate their children in the best way they see fit for each child and their family as a whole. HB 3 sounds appealing with the promise of funds to go toward curriculum each year, especially for a large family like mine, but in reality, few homeschoolers spend that much money per child per year on educational materials thanks to purchasing pre-loved books and most curricula not costing anywhere near $2k.

Additionally, I do not agree with the promise of such funds still giving me 100% autonomy in making the best educational choices for my children based on their individual needs and our personal and religious convictions. History and current homeschool bills and laws in other states have shown that when the government gets involved with financial incentives for homeschool families, the freedoms of the people suffer.

I do not believe it would take very long for the government to start telling me how I should educate my children and what curricula I should use if this bill were to pass.

Again, I oppose HB3 and encourage you to do the same.

Lisa Phillips

Self/ retired

Houston, TX

Opposed to this bill-send the $1billion budgeted to this to public schools. The income limit of $150,000 is way too high to qualify as a "poor" student. Public funds deserve to be used in public schools.

Jane Bomer

Klein isd parent

Spring, TX

Please say no to school vouchers. Fully fund public schools first!

Patricia Kea, Ms.

Self

Buda, TX

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.

2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity - which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept - NOT parents.

3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability - any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.

4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue.

Vouchers would use public dollars for private education

- Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot.

This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable.

Public funds are for public schools.

Thank you.

Sarah West

Self

Austin, TX

This bill is not in the best interest for most Texans. We should fully fund our public schools!

Diana Robertson

Self

Pflugerville, TX

Do we really want no set standards for Texas students? I remember getting students from another state who were taught to lower or no standards as what we maintained in Texas. The children and the parents were so confused as they thought their children were doing fine. HB3 will make that more common for Texas children. It is naive to think that every business if private schooling will do what is academically best for every student, on its own with no accountability to set standards. Private schools need happy students or the student might move elsewhere. Many children could find themselves unwelcome at the their private school for various reasons—hard to teach because of physical, cultural, social issues. These students then return to their public school now impoverished from lack of the public funds now siphoned to private schools. Do you see a problem here? Vote no to school vouchers. Keep public funds in our public schools.

Britney Taylor

self/Assistant Principal

Forney, TX

I believe that public educational funds should not be used for private institutions.

Hilah Tanev

self/physician assistant

Plano, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Kate Waters

Self, ADA Consultant

Austin, TX

I STRONGLY oppose the proposed voucher/ESA program. I do not want my tax dollars paying for private education. Keep public money in public schools!

Tina Lacey

Self--Retired Special Education Teacher

CLARENDON, TX

I vote for no education savings account. I believe it will segregate public schools even more. School choice is available now, and giving more money to one group over another is wrong. Each student has value. Public money should stay with public schools. Public education has not been given an allowance increase since before 2011. It is time to put the ISD students first instead of private schools. Do the right thing for Texas and not those who have a money trail. Listen to your constituents.

Rachel Powell

Self

Fort wortg, TX

The will of the people is clear. We overwhelmingly do not want vouchers/ESA. It has been proven in every state that has passed a similar program, that these become bloated expenses that take money away from our kids. We need to fund public schools, not take money away. Texas currently is ranked 29th overall in education with score of less than 50/100!! We rank 42nd in school in school spending. 42nd!! With such a large, diverse state and population, we should be in the top ten. Especially since we have the surplus in the budget to FUND our schools and PAY our teachers. It's shameful what this current administration in Texas has done to our schools. Abbott promised to fund schools in 2019, and he has failed.

Fund our schools. Say no to voucher scams!!

Louis Tanner

self

Austin, TX

I am against this bill. It will deplete badly needed tax revenue from public schools and benefit in the most part people who already have the means and choice to send their children to private schools. There are so many more reasons to oppose this bill I can't list them all here.

lori healy

Self

Friendswood, TX

Stop this insanity!! There is NOT a one size fits all answer to improving public schools. In fact, there are a lot of districts that are great just as they are. This bill will destroy those great districts and cost them amazing teachers and extra curricular programs, and further divide the privileged from the economically disadvantaged students. They ALL deserve the opportunity to get a great education. This will NOT offer that. It doesn't hold private institutions accountable, and gives less money to public schools. The education isn't worth more at a private school. This bill penalizes students who have parents who work and rely on school transportation. There is SO much wrong here, that I'm only skimming the surface. Do the RIGHT thing for our children!

Rossana Dondeo

Self

San Antonio, TX

Cutting public education will hurt the future of this country. Uneducated children leads to unprepared adults.

CLAUDIA TORRES-YANEZ

Self

PFLUGERVILLE, TX

I was born and raised in Del Rio, TX and grew up with my abuelitos (Grandparents). We were low in income, but rich with love. When I was a child, they would say to me, “estudia, porque la educación nadie te la puede quitar.” ”Study, because an education, is something no one can take away from you.” I believe that opening the door to use public funds for private education providers with HB 3 will start to IN FACT erode access to quality public education to many MORE students than those it purports to benefit. I have heard about the size of this ESA program, that it is small in relation to public schools. I don't believe that it can BOTH NOT be a threat to public schools AND also be beneficial to MOST families.

In my professional life in the tech industry, I learned the theory of Occam's razor, a problem-solving principle that states that the simplest explanation or solution is often the most likely to be correct. The framers of the Texas constitution created that simple solution for us in Article 7 that states “public education is a right and that the state legislature is responsible for establishing and maintaining a system of free public schools.” Period, full stop.

Texas has a public education system, and HB 3 will create a separate system, bureaucracy and government monitoring that will add complexity and split attention and focus from its obligation under Article 7 in my view, to the detriment of Texans.

As a human resources leader, I believe what has made the Texas miracle possible, has been investments long ago in public education. Public education is the cornerstone of economic prosperity - helping uplift families and communities like mine, and it creates a virtuous cycle>generating job growth and economic prosperity. My school district superintendent TODAY stated that our campuses are averaging 20 years old and the proposed basic increase allotment in HB 2 of $220 is NOT EVEN CLOSE to what's needed. We need $1,114 just to keep up with 2019-2020 levels, and $892 of that just for personnel.

No one can argue that parents want the best for their children, but diverting public funds for private education that is not accountable or necessarily even available across our large state will only serve to erode quality public education, cripple communities and economic prosperity in our great state at a time that the challenge of preparing our kids for the future is more daunting than ever.

Thank you.

Laura Martinez

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose HB 3. I have a daughter on an IEP in public school. She deserves to have as much funding as a private school child. Keep property taxes in public schools!

Melinda Brasuell

CTE Teachers

Lufkin, TX

Support our public school teachers! The Texas children need us not vouchers. As a CTE teacher, I see daily how much value we bring to the schools and our students. Vouchers will do nothing but undercut our most vulnerable students. Support us!
#proudCTEteacher34years

Katherine Wallace

Self/Public school teacher in Region 8

Sulphur Spgs, TX

This bill is harmful to our public schools and does not proportionally help our students that are at the greatest risk of not graduating or dropping out. Public schools funding have been held hostage over this bill and is an absolute disgrace. Texas parents already have school choice in that Texas is one of the most friendly states for homeschool/private school. In addition, most parents who choose to homeschool or send their student to private school have chosen do so to get away from standardized testing. This bill is a complete farce in that helps students. That is 100% not the case. I, along with every teacher & parent I have talked to, have no desire for this bill to pass. Please vote NO on HB 3.

Ray Salinas, Mr.

Ingram Elementary School, Ingram ISD Teacher

Kerrville, TX

I DO NOT support HB 3 which establishes Educational Savings Accounts (ESAs) that divert taxpayer dollars to fund private education which is not accountable to taxpayers.

Chris Smith

Self

Rising star, TX

As a Texas voter and retired teacher, I urge you respectfully to vote against this

Richard Faidley

Self -- securities trader

Austin, TX

As a Texas voter and taxpayer, I am fundamentally opposed to the diversion of public dollars for private education. This bill -- regardless of whether you call it a voucher, school choice, etc. -- seems particularly haphazard when the present funding of our public schools can best be described as miserly (Texas ranks somewhere around 45th in the nation in dollars allotted per public school student). These programs have not been a glowing success in the states where they have been implemented -- quite the contrary, they have burdened state budgets and undermined public ed. Wouldn't it make more sense to properly fund our public schools rather than siphon away money to private schools that are not accountable to the state? That's what I'm asking you to do. Please do not support the poorly conceived HB 3. Thank you.

Cecily Dennis

Self

Smithville, TX

This bill is about anything but choice nor does it secure quality education for Texas children. This bill will have serious negative impact on public schools and transfer desperately needed funding to private institutions. This bill should not pass. If you vote for this bill I will assume Texas representatives loath and despise the children of Texas (unless they have enough money to buy their own education), and seeks to dumb down the population rather than raise the standards for education. Do not vote for this lie disguised as a bill to help Texas students & families, it is exactly the opposite.

Belinda George

Self

Katy, TX

Vouchers are not the solution for a majority of Texas residents. Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a native Texan, whose entire family are products of the public education system, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution. Please stop taking the opinion of out of state billionaires and listen to the people in Texas.

Christie Milner

Self

Austin, TX

I am opposed to the school voucher program. It will deteriorate the quality of our public schools and only benefit those who are already sending their kids to private schools. Please vote no on school vouchers.

Jackie Anderson, Ms

Self

Houston, TX

I am writing to express my concerns regarding the use of school vouchers and their impact on public education. While school vouchers are often promoted as a way to provide families with more choices, I believe they come with significant drawbacks that could harm students and the broader education system. It's schools choice not school choice. Let's be clear.

One of the major concerns with school vouchers is their effect on public school funding. Since vouchers redirect public funds to private institutions, they can drain resources from already underfunded public schools. This can lead to larger class sizes, reduced programs, and fewer resources for students who remain in the public school system.

Additionally, private schools that accept vouchers are not always held to the same standards of accountability as public schools. They may not be required to follow the same curriculum, administer standardized tests, or provide services for students with disabilities. This lack of oversight raises concerns about the quality of education that students receive.

Another issue is the potential for increased segregation. Many private schools have selective admission processes, which can exclude students based on academic performance, religious beliefs, or financial ability (since vouchers often do not cover the full cost of tuition). This can deepen educational inequities rather than providing equal opportunities for all students.

Rather than expanding school vouchers, I urge policymakers to focus on strengthening public schools by increasing funding, supporting teachers, and improving resources for all students. Ensuring that every child has access to a quality public education should be our top priority.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I hope you will take these concerns into account when evaluating school voucher policies. I look forward to your response and further discussion on how we can best serve all students.

Amanda Deibel

Self

San Antonio, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a native Texan, whose entire family are products of the public education system, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution. Support our teachers, students and families by shutting down this voucher program.

Lisa de Oliveira

self

Denton, TX

As a veteran homeschool mom of 25 years, I have homeschooled in Rhode Island as well as in Texas...what a world of difference! please simply let parents have their parental rights accepted and protected and not tainted by money from the state. We know what is best for our children and we don't need federal bureaucrats assigning our curriculum or preventing us from using our faith-based curriculum.

Donna Ferry

self

Boerne, TX

VOTE NO to vouchers, why are you using my money to help the rich, You need to support public school and teachers!! DO what is right for all , not just the rich!!why are we helping the rich when they can already afford schools? What about the teachers that will need to find other employment d/t vouchers, and yes this will happen
You need to represent the people who say NO!!

Meghan Watkins

self, teacher

Waco, TX

There is not evidence to support positive outcomes for students because of vouchers. Public schools and public school employees in Texas work hard to provide the very best they can for every student, no matter the barriers they may face. Private schools do not have that same responsibility or a history of putting themselves to work for all students. The very students who are purported to be helped by vouchers are those who will not be able to take advantage of them: students with barriers that would prevent them from getting transportation to a private school, students with learning disabilities or in special education programs, kids with a lack of parent support/interest, and those who cannot pay the difference between total tuition and voucher amount (which will become the case for everyone as private schools inevitably raise tuition as they have in other states). Private schools will still be able to deny admittance to prospective students, effectively taking away the so-called choice that wasn't even available to see many in the first place. As higher performing students and families who already have the means to send their children to public school take advantage of the ESA program, students who are left behind will be in schools that are made weaker by this bill.

An educated citizenry is essential to our democracy, and that means educating ALL students. Our public schools have worked hard to do just that for generations. Support our public schools by improving funding and support for students there. Do not establish an ESA program that will undermine public schools further.

Katie Saunders

Self

Allen, TX

STRONGLY oppose school vouchers! Let Texans vote on if WE want this!

Aaron McAdams

Self

Haslet, TX

No state has successfully increased student performance with vouchers. They are simply discounts for current private school families. Representative Nate Schatzline told me personally on Wednesday, March 5th in his office that New Hampshire was a successful model. Even New Hampshire vouchers went to over 80% of families that were already in private schools. Defunding public schools and sending public dollars to private schools is a transfer of wealth from the poor to the wealthy. It is equivalent to using parks and rec dollars to landscape my yard or taking money from the police to pay for my own private security. It is against our state constitution and is literally stealing from children and schools. As a registered republican, I am working with hundreds, if not thousands, of educators to rally against any form of a voucher scam and to instead fully fund our public schools and increase the basic allotment, which has not been raised in 6 years despite record inflation.

Mary Ghim

Self

Double Oak, TX

I oppose this bill, please DO NOT PASS this bill, as we would like as parents to continue to have the freedom to choose the education for our children. Anytime government money/tax payer's money is given, there is always the catch of government overreaching. The current freedom we have in Texas is one of the freedoms we enjoy, and why we live in Texas!
PLEASE OPPOSE THIS BILL! Thank you!

Martha Blalock

Self, 5th grade Public School Teacher

Christoval, TX

The voucher program is akin to punishing your whole class because 2 or 3 students are misbehaving. It is not effective. As a public school teacher in my 20th year of teaching, I fear the changes coming in the future. Eventually, teachers in good standing may have to relocate to go where the jobs are if enough students change schools. I also worry about students who qualify for Special Education and 504 services, which are not mandated or tracked nearly as vigorously in private schools. Parents are not educated about the fact that their SpEd/504 students will not receive the services and accommodations they need to be successful from private schools. Furthermore, I'm married to a high school basketball coach. He is rightfully worried about losing athletes to private schools. Private schools are allowed to recruit, and with vouchers now offered to these athletes, his job security is in danger as he loses talented players.

Jackie Knutson

Citizen/ public school educator

Eules, TX

I oppose HB3. Public schools should be fully funded. My tax dollars I pay should go to public education and not private schools. Especially without accountability.

Silvia Revello, Mrs

self

Roanoke, TX

Private schools want it EASY. I quickly learned that the private school sector wasn't interested in welcoming my autistic son.

He had been in daycare since he was six months old without any issues. However, when he was late to start walking and talking, we were asked to leave the first school. They were concerned he might be deaf and that their school wasn't equipped to meet his needs, even though he could hear, say a few words, and had no behavioral issues. They simply preferred an EASIER child to take his place.

The second time, he was almost two years old. The teacher disliked having to hold his hand to help him walk, as all the other children could walk independently. They would call us to pick him up at 10 a.m. almost daily, using subtle excuses to encourage us to find a new place for him. My son had no behavioral issues; he just needed more support. However, a for-profit private company doesn't pay its staff enough to do more than the minimum, so we left.

When he was three, he joined Northwest ISD PPCD program, which is designed to provide early intervention for children like mine. The staff not only loved their jobs but also had impressive qualifications, including doctorate degrees. The change in my son was nothing short of miraculous. He was catching balls and talking, and he finally felt like he belonged with his peers.

As the years went by and my son learned to socialize, we tried other private sector institutions for sports, summer camp, and math tutoring. However, the only places where he was truly welcomed and never rejected were those provided by NISD.

Private schools prefer the EASY route, avoiding the need to hire highly qualified staff by cherry-picking their students. When politicians claim that school vouchers will benefit our special education kids, they know nothing. The only children who will benefit are those already attending private schools. These vouchers will divert funding from children like mine, so that rich will have it even EASIER.

Kristen Paterson

Self

Conroe, TX

This takes away from the support of public schools, which are the backbone to our communities. Students will not benefit from this if they are in special programs or if they live in a rural area where there aren't public schools. The amount given per child for school choice is over the amount given per student in public school and they is not right. If this passes the decline of public education will have impacts on the families, staff, students and communities in the state of Texas. From a 20 year educator I urge you to vote NO!!

David Sanders

Self- Retired Teacher

Austin, TX

ESA/Vouchers WILL accelerate the erosion of our public schools.It will make the local funding crisis worse. Subsidizing private schools is wrong. Vote No!

Kelly Fair Fair

Self

Cypress, TX

Vote NO to school vouchers

Maricela Bustillos Rodriguez

Self

Lewisville, TX

As a special education teacher at a Title I campus in LISD, I strongly oppose HB 3 by Rep. Buckley. LISD's One Ask is clear: fully fund public schools and reject vouchers. This bill diverts public funds to private schools that are not required to serve all students, follow IDEA, or provide accountability for taxpayer dollars.

Texas already underfunds public education by $4,000 per student below the national average, yet HB 3 would funnel millions away from the 5.4 million students in public schools to benefit a select few. In LISD alone, 44% of students are economically disadvantaged, and our Title I schools rely on public funding to provide critical services.

Instead of ESA vouchers, lawmakers should invest in teacher pay, special education, and student mental health resources. Reject HB 3 and fully fund public schools—because Texas students deserve better.

Geleen Friemel

Self

Round Rock, TX

NO to HB 3!

Teresa Grundstrom
Self -software development
Lewisville, TX

I am against vouchers or “education savings accounts”. Public funds should only be spent on public schools and should never be given to private schools. It is the responsibility of the state of Texas to adequately fund and support public schools. Tax money should not be taken from hard working Texans and given to rich families that choose to send their children to for-profit private schools that discriminate against students on the basis of religion, race, disability, or academic ability. Vouchers have grown out of control in states that have implemented them with no measurable benefit in student performance. In addition to sucking money from taxpayers and public schools, vouchers invite waste and corruption. We especially do not want our public tax dollars going to out of state grifters who want to administer the program and open sham schools for profit. Vouchers will waste taxpayer money and grow government. They are an entitlement program for the rich and should not be implemented by the state of Texas. If you are truly concerned about the education of Texas students then adequately fund public schools including fully funding or removing mandates and revamping student testing to actually measure a student’s progress and provide valuable information about their needs to their teachers.

Pamela Stewart
Self
Austin, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a native Texan, whose entire family are products of the public education system, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution.

Lori Izaguirre
Self
Cypress, TX

Please vote against school choice to save our public schools in Texas. As a public school educator for over 30 years, a parent of three public school educated young adults, and as a Texas tax payer, I do not support school choice & vouchers. Please listen to Texan citizens and vote against vouchers.

Subha Yeshwanthapur Students
Austin, TX

We oppose the School vouchers, they funnel money away from already-struggling public schools and children and redistribute tax dollars to private schools and middle-class children.
They do not improve the quality of education and infact make it worse by turning qualified teachers away from public to private schools.
They will cause discrimination among kids between private and public schools, bullying and entitlement among the private school kids.
All in all it is in no way in the interest of the kids in public schools who actually need a well funded/rounded education system.

Glenn and Debra Kovar retired
Brenham, TX

Please say no to school vouches. Sounds like we're going back to the 60's.

Jennifer Bettis

self/homeschool community/fellow tax payers

Houston, TX

As a homeschool mom of 6 children, going on 17 years, I VEHEMENTLY oppose this bill regarding ESAs! Texas homeschoolers already hold the choice and freedom to school our children the way we see fit, which the Leeper Decision gave us over 30 years ago! We do NOT need taxpayer dollars to attach us to any potential and inevitable strings that would come through a newly opened door of legislation that allows us a false sense of freedom. As a tax payer, I believe that there SHOULD BE strings attached to our money as it is handed out because there SHOULD BE accountability and justification as to how the taxpayer money is being spent. Anyone who somehow believes that homeschool families could dip into public funds—other people’s tax dollars—to pay for their family’s homeschool (or private school!) use without any accountability is naive at best. For the government or any “homeschool coalition group” to say that “there won’t be strings attached” to any money given to homeschoolers (via ESAs or other modes) is intellectually dishonest!

Furthermore, history and the testimony of other states’ homeschool families have shown that, as they were “given” money by their state governments to use in their homeschooling, the requirements to report to, document for, and be under supervision by the state either began or increased, leaving them without the freedom from such overreach. This is easily researched!

Nothing the government “gives” is free. It comes from somewhere...the tax payers, and it never comes for “free”.

We respectfully demand our parental, homeschooling, and tax-paying voices to be heard and reflected in your vote of “Nay” for HB-3, and continue to uphold our freedom to homeschool that the Leeper Decision gave us. Thank you.

Robert Rose

Self

Bryan, TX

I don’t support using public funds for private schools and home schools. This benefits a very small number of families and would harm public education. In addition, I believe this violates the letter and spirit of the U.S. Constitution. My previous experience as a public school teacher also informs my position. I also look to the experience of Arizona and the experiment has not gone well.

Tarah Lantz myself/homemaker and community volunteer
Plano, TX

Dear Chairman Buckley and committee members,

I am writing today as a Texas citizen and not in my official capacity as a school board trustee. Today, I am sending the committee personal commentary regarding House Bill 3 to establish Education Savings Accounts (ESA)s giving taxpayers money to send their children to private schools. I was always taught that if something is broken, you fix it. You don't sweep it under the rug to fix later. This bill creates an entirely new way to pay for education in the state of Texas. Not only does this bill sweep an education system that needs fixing under the rug, it's building a whole new system! According to the fiscal note for this bill, 38 full-time employees will be needed in the Comptroller's office. I know you have been patient with this issue and have spent a lot of time reviewing documents, testimony, meeting people, and listening. Isn't it a principle of conservatism to focus on smaller government and efficiency? This effort to create legislation for a minority of voters and taxpayers in the state of Texas is antithetical to how I was taught legislators should be making policy. One should be making sweeping policy that does the most amount of good for the most amount of people. HB3 caters to a subset of Texas parents and is couched in the language of choice and freedom as if parents don't have those options now. They do. Period. Parents already have the ability to seek the best educational opportunities for their children. I believe the implementation of this program will be costly to the citizens of Texas. I believe it will benefit those who intend to open new private schools. I predict that in a few years the data will show what we see in other states that the majority of ESA recipients will be those who already attended private schools. I know my words don't matter in the end, but as a Texas taxpayer I'm bemused. You won't even entertain reasonable amendments and additions to the bill limiting ESAs to those less fortunate or of modest incomes. I hope you add some transparency to this bill allowing for those entities receiving public funds to be held to the same rigorous accountability measures as public schools. I want to see these private school budgets. I doubt they spend as little on central administration as our public schools. How come the private schools get to use taxpayer dollars to advertise and market to families about their offerings? I view this bill as a stain on the great state of Texas. Public education is a constitutional given and one that is struggling to meet the needs of our students. You have the ability to fix that and not sweep it under the rug. You may try to glue it together this session with HB2. Let's face it, you can't even get back to 2019 funding levels from that HB3. You'd need to raise the basic allotment $1,340. The priority of public education to the state legislator is lacking and this bill is part of that reason. I urge you to not vote this out of committee.

Amelia Gunter
Self
Leander, TX

I urge you to vote no! Public money belongs in public schools. I urge you to fully fund ours schools at a minimum of $1300 per student. Our kids all kids deserve better!

Leslie Steward
Self
Hempstead, TX

We are so grateful for our current homeschool freedoms. We understand that our students' education needs are nuanced and therefore cannot be adequately met or assessed outside of an ongoing relationship. We do not wish to begin such a relationship with the state. Please vote to protect families from interference from the state with failed and controversial policies such as standardized testing.

Deanna Darr
Self, public educators
Bedford, TX

No. No. No.

Please listen to the people of Texas. If there's doubt that the majority of people in our state DON'T WANT THIS, put it to a statewide vote. Read the comments on Abbott's daily Facebook posts. Think about the future of Texas. We educate ALL of Texas students in the public schools. Please don't let us down or bring us down.

Amy Collinsworth
Self
Highland Vlg, TX

I oppose this in all aspects. Not only as a teacher, mother, tax payer and public educated myself. There is no benefit to this other than to help out the wealthy that already attend private schools. This will not help any child nor better their education by passing.

Alissa Stolz
Self retired teacher
Cypress, TX

Please give the money to public schools not private. School vouchers are not going to be available to all students. Our districts need your financial support. Parents already have choice.

Dmitriy Belyi
Self
Austin, TX

I strongly oppose this bill. We are already underfunding many individual public schools across the state, this bill will make it even worse.

Debi Riggs
self
FORT WORTH, TX

We do not want vouchers in any form in Texas. This is not beneficial for public schools in any way. Follow your constituents wishes and vote no to vouchers.

Rosellen Matthews
Self
Houston, TX

NO!! ABSOLUTELY NO!!! Taking much needed funding from our public schools and in essence giving wealthy families a subsidy is out of the question! What on earth are you people thinking? Given the huge number of counties which have NO private schools and the fact that the middle and lower income families cannot afford the remainder of the tuition anyway, this is nothing more than THEFT! If our leaders have been bought and paid for to advocate for this, they should be ASHAMED and thrown out! NO, NO, NO on vouchers!

Dixie Davis
Self, public school parent
Fort worth, TX

No vouchers for private schools! Fund public schools.

Sara Borchardt

Self

Brenham, TX

I have committed my whole life to serving as a public educator. It is my life's work. Public education deeply affects the future of our state and communities. Texas public schools need more funding to meet the diverse needs of all students to ensure they all are future ready. In providing a voucher to allow a student "to escape" a said struggling public school instead of providing the adequate funding and resources to the said struggling public school to fix it for ALLLLLLL students not a select few who receive a voucher. Teacher pay needs to be pay that attracts the best and the brightest to the profession. Currently , teacher pay does not. Public educators are passionate about serving our students. When given the correct funding to provide the needed support all schools can be successful. Thank you for your continued belief in what together we can do to serve the children of Texas. Public educators are counting on each of you to fully fund our schools, so we can serve our communities children through public education. Thank you.

Renee Boydston

self

FORT WORTH, TX

Public funds should be used for public education, not vouchers for private schools. FULLY FUND PUBLIC EDUCATION!!!!!!!

Kinzee Blend

Self

Burnet, TX

I oppose HB 3 as a rural Texan. If I wanted to send my child to a private school the options are scarce and beyond my pay scale even with a voucher scam. I love our public school and would never want to take funds away from them to give to the wealthy. This bill does not benefit lower or middle class rural Texans! I say NO to HB 3.

Layne Myatt

Self

Lubbock, TX

I strongly oppose HB 3 and the creation of vouchers for students in the state of Texas. I believe that it seriously damages our state's ability to provide high quality education to all students in Texas. I also oppose the proposed education savings account.

ERICA Robinson

self

Lubbock, TX

Dear Sir or Madame,

I am writing to plead for your vote AGAINST HB 3 by Buckley. Millions of Texas residents are against this bill, but our governor is not listening. This bill will only further hinder our state's education system. Roughly 62% of school-aged children in Texas are economically disadvantaged. Most private school tuition and other associated fees required for attendance will not be covered by the amount allotted in these vouchers, leaving their families to cover the difference. These poverty-stricken children will not have the opportunity for school choice. I encourage your consideration of the schools across our state that are currently suffering because of the lack of state funding, giving funds to private schools will only hinder their ability to provide a quality education. This bill will increase the disparity that our schools and children are facing. Most private schools do not offer programs for children with disabilities. Lack of funding for programs such as 504 will decrease schools' ability to provide proper care and accommodations to these children, leaving our most vulnerable children who already suffer because of their disabilities behind. Public tax dollars paid by Texas residents are to provide for public education only, giving that money to privatized institutions is unconstitutional. Please, consider your vote seriously and listen to your constituents' cries against HB 3 by Buckley!

Thank you,

Minh Le
Self
Plano, TX

This is not a bill that helps the majority of students, this bill helps the few that already have the privilege while adding more reductions to the majority that aren't afforded these privileges.

This bill is using taxpayer dollars to fund private education while taking critical resources away from public schools. Public education is already underfunded, and diverting resources to private institutions will only harm the majority of Texas students. Instead of taking money away from public schools, we should be investing in them to ensure every child—regardless of income—has access to a quality education.

If we have a billion dollars of “surplus” to initiate this program in the first few years, how do they plan to sustain if it's not cutting costs elsewhere?

Many ppl don't have private school as an option. Lower income families will not be able to afford private school tuition even with $10k. The majority of Texas counties are rural and don't have private schools within a reasonable driving distance. And many private schools don't offer programs for special needs.

Jeri-Ashley Bremer
Self
San Antonio, TX

My name is Jeri-Ashley Bremer and I'm a constituent in zip code 78248. I strongly oppose HB3 and urge our representatives to vote NO on HB3. As an educator of almost 15 years I have seen what a lack of funding to public schools does to our most vulnerable communities. It takes away VALUABLE resources, and in this case redistributes them to private schools that have a steady flow of resources. This will not only harm public schools in our major Texas cities but will also disproportionately impact families in our rural communities who already have limited choices and a lack of resources. We have seen how vouchers have negatively impacted other cities and communities who have them and that is NOT what Texans want nor deserve. Again, I urge my representatives to vote NO to HB3.

Eliza Morse
Self
Dallas, TX

I oppose vouchers for many reasons, but the one most disturbing to me is that very wealthy people who want vouchers, even though who don't live in Texas, have contributed millions of dollars to elect Legislators, who will vote in favor of a voucher and will promote vouchers at every opportunity to the detriment of the 5.5 million students in public schools. If parent choice is so popular, why not put it on a ballot for voters to decide instead of the very wealthy?

Katrina Keener
Public school parent
Palmer, TX

URGENT! ACT NOW THEN SHARE THIS POST!

Easy way to give comments without making a trip to Austin. This takes 2 minutes!!

Voucher bill being heard now!

Click and send:

<https://comments.house.texas.gov/home?c=c400>

Example you can copy and paste below!

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the “bought”? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Bridget weir, Substitute teacher

Self. Substitute teacher

Spring, TX

Please do not vote for vouchers. You will be hurting children across our state. Children are our future. Don't let the governor get rich off our children.

Kimberly McLaren

self, physician

Austin, TX

Please vote NO against school vouchers and increase basic student allotment to $7500. Texas kids deserve public education funds to be used to build our public schools!

Gregory McKenna

self

Austin, TX

Subject: Request for Increased Funding and Opposition to Vouchers/ESA

Dear Education committee

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the use of vouchers and Education Savings Accounts (ESAs) as a means of funding education. These programs divert crucial resources away from public schools, undermining their ability to serve all students equitably.

I respectfully request the following changes to improve the funding structure for education:

1. Increase the Basic Allotment to $7,500: The current funding allocation is insufficient to meet the needs of students and educators. Raising the basic allotment to $7,500 would better support our schools and allow for more equitable access to quality education.
2. Determine Funding by Enrollment, Not Attendance: Funding should be based on student enrollment rather than attendance. This would provide more consistent and predictable funding for schools, allowing them to plan and allocate resources effectively, even in times of fluctuating attendance.
3. Tie Funding to Inflation: Education funding should be adjusted annually based on inflation rates. This would ensure that the value of the funding keeps pace with the rising costs of education, maintaining its purchasing power over time.
4. Ensure Funding for All Current and Future Mandates: All current and future state or federal mandates should be fully funded to avoid placing additional burdens on schools. This would ensure that schools can comply with legal requirements without sacrificing other essential services.

I hope you will consider these requests as part of ongoing efforts to improve the education system. Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

Sincerely, Greg McKenna

Eva Malina

self retired teacher

Bay City, TX

I urge you not to let this HB 3 bill come to the house floor. It will undermine and short change public and create a small group of favored students. All students deserve a good education and funding to public schools for each student should be the same as the proposed voucher amount. As a former public school teacher, I know that there are increasing demands on teachers and students. Teachers often fund things out of their pockets due to underfunding of public schools. We need to respect all students and not just some. Please equitably fund all public schools at the same rate as the proposed voucher rate. It is unfair to students and teachers to do otherwise.

Alicia Smith

Self

Fairfield, TX

Public Education Committee Members,

I am against HB 3. I've been against vouchers/ ESAs for years since I learned about them. Vouchers/ ESAS take public money and give to private intencies with little to no accountability of the money, curriculum, and certification of teachers. HB 2 as it is now has some of these things added in it. I have listened to the committee/ testimonies and I am even more concerned by this bill HB3. Tge passing of this bill will greatly grow the government offices that administer all the different parts to roll it out and keep it going. Now I'm hearing of third party admisters msking

Derek Thorn

Self

Bedford, TX

Please vote no on HB3! Taking monies away from Public Education for vouchers that support Private schools will help cause the breakdown of public education even more. Public education is already underfunded as it is. Homeowners already are receiving a break on school taxes. Vouchers will only help the wealthy and there is no proof that vouchers will improve the education of the middle and lower class. Private schools will increase tuition and place higher restrictions on who they will accept. Also, all who receive public funds must all follow the same rules with accountability. This bill does not force Private and Charter schools to follow the same rules that Public Education has too. Make it fair, make it make sense!

Jenny Brown

Self

Canadian, TX

Vouchers are against the fundamental principle's of the Texas constitution which requires the state to fully fund public education. Vouchers do not support or help the vast majority of Texas students and the rural areas of the state will dry up and blow away because when schools die, so does the town. And when you live 45 miles to the closest place with a Walmart, alternatives for public school and private school are few and far between. Texans don't want this. Teachers don't want this. What we ALL want is for public schools to be fully funded with no strings attached. Vouchers steal public funds to the detriment of everyone EXCEPT those with money to send their students to private schools. Our district pays millions in recapture because Gov. Abbott refuses to release public funds to provide for educational needs and to meet the continuous onslaught of unfounded mandates. Buildings need reparations, students need qualified and skilled teachers, everyone needs to have fair access to resources, even when we live 450 miles from Austin. Vouchers will take away funding for public schools and will take away opportunities for students to shore up their college resumes with extracurricular activities, which will go away when we can't pay for them. Traveling to football games, band contests, basketball games, theatre competitions, the upkeep of buses and school vehicles, the maintenance for facilities to host those events all cost money. It's demoralizing and exhausting to continuously have to do more with less. We want to continue to celebrate ur students' many accomplishments from way up here in the panhandle. You are threatening to take away our students' abilities to do these things by taking even more funding from us all so wealthy folks can subsidize the cost for a private school education they are already paying for because they can already afford it. Vouchers are a scam. For The betterment of Texas, vote no. For The sake of our rural communities, vote no. For the betterment of our students, vote no. You have a constitutional obligation and a duty to the citizens of this great state to vote no and keep our public schools great by fully funding our schools. No vouchers!

Peggy Adams Edge, Rev.

Self

Fort Worth, TX

Public education deserves our full funding. It serves all people without bias. Please refrain from issuing vouchers.

Melissa Crosby

Self

Hempstead, TX

Please fund public education and ensure our children are not less valuable than those in private education settings. We must keep public education as a quality and viable option to ensure opportunity is afforded to all Americans.

Kendall Sullivan

Self

Houston, TX

As a concerned parent and active voter in Texas, I support educational freedom including educational savings accounts.

Israel Ackerman

Self

Dallas, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Lauren Richardson, Mrs.

LAUREN RICHARDSON

Fort Worth, TX

This voucher bill will ruin the public school system in Texas, much like what is happening in neighboring states like OK. This will take away tax payer money away from public schools and give it to the rich as a discount towards private, unregulated schools. I moved to Texas in 2013 when my oldest was 6 weeks old, and I was really excited for him as well as much future children to grow up in Texas and receive an education here, as I did not have a great public education in the state that I grew up in. Now if vouchers get put into place, I am worried my kids will not have the opportunities that they should have, that my property value will go down because the public schools around me will get worse, and I will be forced to move my family out of this state to seek a better education for them. PLEASE do not pass this scam of a bill and support the majority of students in this great state!

Kelly Patrick

Self

New Braunfels, TX

Vote NO!!!

Carole Peltier

self/my private school aka homeschool

Converse, TX

Please consider voting against the so called "school choice" or voucher bill that is coming for a vote. As a part of the homeschooler community, we do not want this!! We already enjoy true school choice and freedom. Keep your money! Government money = government regulations 100% of the time. We rather have the freedom we already have than have all the money in the world and have more regulations.

Laura Lee Daigle, Mrs

Self

Austin, TX

NO to HB3! Our public schools need to be fully funded before public funds go to private schools. As the parent of two kids in SpEd, private schools are not an option, no matter who is paying for them. Kids like mine deserve a fully funded, robust school system. Past votes show that Texas does NOT want school vouchers! Please listen to your constituents and vote no. Thank you for your time an service to the state!

Violeta Guerra self, Elementary School Principal
Corpus Christi, TX

To whomever it may concern:

Holding desperately needed funding for public education hostage until school vouchers are passed is a travesty! This has only hurt Texan children and only benefits the most wealthy families and their children. Community schools will be closed because operating costs become too much to pay for. Governor Abbott and the TEA do not have the best interest of ALL Texan children in mind and everyone needs to understand that. Please oppose HB 3. It will eventually ruin public education (what TEA wants) and end up costing more than it should've in the long run.

Rachel Stern
Self
Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

David Mider
SELF, Graphic Designer
Austin, TX

School vouchers are purported to be school choice for all. However, the scale is tilted to families of wealth.

- no limit on income. So the state pays private school tuition for wealthy families.
- Private schools can accept, or reject any student
- Private schools are not held to education standards or testing.
- Lower income students don't live in areas where those schools can be accessed, and those schools aren't required to provide transportation.
- Unlike public schools, private schools will receive voucher money regardless of attendance, while public schools lose funding when students are absent. This creates an unfair system where public schools are punished while private schools get guaranteed taxpayer dollars—with no oversight or accountability.
- Texas has the resources to fully fund public education. With a $24 billion general fund surplus and a $28 billion rainy day fund, we are the second-richest state in the nation. Yet, lawmakers plan to spend $1 billion on vouchers/ESAs that will benefit only 1% of Texas kids, with costs set to balloon over time, draining even more taxpayer dollars and strain TRS.
- Over 150 counties in Texas don't even have a private school available making vouchers inaccessible.
- Private/Charter schools are not required to accommodate students with learning disabilities, special ed needs, or 504 designations. They simply reject their enrollment.
- Texas has the money to pay for a good education system, but for some irrational ideology, our lawmakers don't want that.

Please oppose this bill. It leaves too many families behind.

Sincerely,
David Mider

-

Amy Gross
Self
Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Nancy Salisbury, Ms
Myself
Houston, TX

This bill does not benefit the overall public and will take away from Children's education who are unable to go to a private school.

Yaffa Rubin
Self occupational therapist
Dallas, TX

There should be funding for all educational choices

Caitlyn Fowler, Dyslexia specialist
Self
Ackerly, TX

"I strongly disagree with this bill's approach to school funding and teacher compensation. It does not adequately address the root causes of educational inequality and may disproportionately impact underfunded districts, particularly rural communities. Additionally, it fails to consider the unique needs of students requiring special services, potentially widening the gap in support for these vulnerable groups."

Keri Haarde
Self
Dallas, TX

I am a Texas resident and want my tax dollars to fund public education, not a voucher program for private schools. Please use my public tax dollars to fund public schools for Texas kids.

Shawna Haynie
Myself as a tax payer
Shallowater, TX

It is absolutely unacceptable for my PUBLIC tax dollars to be given to PRIVATE schools that are required to meet any PUBLIC school requirements. Either the public schools don't have to play by the rules or the private ones have to play by the same rules!! Period!! Private schools are allowed to CHOOSE who they educate. Private school do not have that option. You can make it less fair than it already is!!

Patricia Myers

Self

Keller, TX

Excited for this bill to get passed!!! I am in need of the right to education... in Southlake texas they are allowing ramadan (muslim) influence and lunches for teachers but do not allow christian influence.. i want my son to attend a christian school where yhe lord is the influence and not liberal agendas/propaganda!!!

Rachel Keesee

Self

Abilene, TX

Against public school vouchers!

hershel Gross

Self - underwriter

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Shanna Sulak

self

Buda, TX

I oppose school vouchers

Jill Hutchings, Ms

Self

McKinney, TX

Fully fund public education!

Vote NO on vouchers!

Lynnette Liska

Self- teacher

Three Rivers, TX

Passing this bill would put an end to the public education system as we know it. There is no accountability system in place for this bill. Literally any student can go to any school with $10,000 in hand when the students sitting in a public classroom doesn't even bring that to a district. If the public education system is so bad that we have to allow parents and student a way out of it then shouldn't it be fixed? Instead this bill just puts a bandaid on some of this issues but it will eventually cause a "hemorrhage" of money and more issues! Fix our public education system first!!!

Dayna Jones
Self - attorney
San Antonio, TX

These vouchers will harm all children and only help the wealthy. Do not allow the voucher scam who to hurt innocent children.

Amanda Rojas
Self
Carrollton, TX

This would be a disgrace to the Texas educational system. It would be HORRIBLE to all public schooling but devastating to our rural population. If you pass this bill you are actively punishing low and middle class families and their children by depriving them of a well funded education and actively creating wealth and educational disparity that will be felt for decades to come. NO VOUCHERS!

Stacey Beckworth
Self
Austin, TX

Vouchers for private schools are a terrible idea for the average Texan. They take from the poor and middle class and give to those that can already afford private school. Private school is actually not available to everybody. I taught in public schools for many years. They are already underfunded. NO TO VOUCHERS!

Zach Montandon
Self - Software Support
Lubbock, TX

I oppose the private school voucher concept.

Public/government funds should be for the public sector, not private schools.

Ezriel Weinberger
Self
Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Mara Pfund
self, teacher
Austin, TX

As a teacher who has taught mainly in public schools and 3 years in a private school, I strongly oppose the concept of school vouchers. They mainly help people of means and will gut the public school funding on which low-income families depend. I believe strongly in the rights of all to a good quality public school education. Those who would benefit already can afford private schools. Vouchers will create a two-tiered system that we must reject as people who believe in good education for all. Please reject the voucher program, as most Texans do. Thank you.

Brian Dresher

Self

Austin, TX

I am deeply opposed to this bill. If passed, this bill would do extreme damage to the services available to my children. Further, it would greatly erode education in rural areas where private schools aren't an option.

Anysia Trevino, Dr.

Alice Independent School District

Alice, TX

As the Superintendent of Alice Independent School District, I strongly oppose HB 3 due to its lack of accountability and transparency in how taxpayer dollars would be used. Texas public schools must meet rigorous academic, financial, and operational accountability standards, ensuring that funds are spent effectively and that students are receiving a high-quality education. HB 3 circumvents these safeguards by funneling taxpayer dollars to private institutions that are not subject to the same level of oversight.

Public schools are required to administer standardized assessments, report student achievement data, comply with state curriculum requirements, and undergo financial audits. Private schools and other ESA-approved entities, however, are not held to these same standards. Without proper accountability, taxpayer dollars could be spent on low-quality or unregulated educational services that do not guarantee student success.

Moreover, HB 3 creates the potential for misuse and fraud. Other states with ESA-style programs have encountered cases where funds were used for personal expenses, unapproved services, and even fraudulent vendors due to weak oversight. Texas should not risk taxpayer dollars on a system that lacks financial controls and academic accountability.

If the goal is to improve education for Texas students, we must ensure that all schools receiving public funds meet the same high standards. Instead of diverting resources to an unregulated system, Texas should be investing in public schools that serve all children and are held accountable for student success.

For these reasons, I strongly urge you to oppose HB 3 and instead support policies that strengthen public education with transparency, accountability, and student outcomes in mind. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Lisa Fletcher

Self / teacher / parent / voting citizen

Flower Mound, TX

I strongly oppose Texas HB3 and the proposed educational savings program and voucher system. These initiatives divert much-needed resources away from public schools, undermining the core principle of equitable education for all students. By funneling taxpayer dollars into private and charter schools, which are not held to the same standards of accountability as public schools, HB3 threatens to deepen educational inequality, particularly for low-income families and communities of color. Instead of investing in programs that help strengthen and support our public schools, HB3 exacerbates disparities by enabling wealthier families to access better educational opportunities, while leaving public schools with fewer resources to serve the majority of students. It is critical that we focus on improving our public education system, ensuring that every child—regardless of their background—has access to high-quality education. This voucher system will only serve to weaken public schools, dilute accountability, and leave our most vulnerable students behind.

Jeremy Chen

Self

Cedar Park, TX

My name is Jeremy Chen and I am an educator writing to express my strong opposition to HB 3 and any voucher legislation that diverts public taxpayer money toward private schooling. Vouchers have been tried before in other states and have been proven ineffective. Above all, public funds should be used to support all of Texas's kids, not provide welfare for the wealthy.

Nathaniel Stern

Self

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

June Dyke

Self

Houston, TX

I support this bill

Taryn Pendleton

Self

Lantana, TX

Fund public schools! Our children, teachers, communities deserve that!

Melissa Fritsche

Self

Tomball, TX

I homeschool and I am against HB 3. Please keep Texas a great place to homes school without strings.

Howard Gatewood, Sgt. Major

Venus ISD

Grand Prairie, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Tim LaPoint

Self/ cybersecurity engineer

San Antonio, TX

Vote NO on HB 3. This is an attack on public schools and Texas education

Lauren Sims
self, parent
College Station, TX

I am a Conservative Texan who is strongly opposed to the school voucher program that is being proposed. I respectfully request that you consider my feedback regarding this as a resident of College Station with children currently in the public school system. Instead of this approach, I would support investing in providing more funding and opportunities to our current school system, and we can work together to come up with a better way to help all children in Texas. They are our future after all. Not just the wealthy or middle class, but all of them. I was not concerned until recently when I started to research and review more detail regarding this bill and the changes it presents, and despite the rhetoric and viewpoints that supporters of this bill continue to share, I am convinced that this mostly benefits those families who are already using private schools to educate their children. These families likely already have the financial means to do this pretty comfortably (which I applaud them for), but even with vouchers, families like mine still would not be able to afford the same private school tuition. I don't believe the introduction of the voucher program is appropriate at this time. As it stands it will present better opportunities for a small group of children and families who are already benefiting from the advantage of schools with private tuition. Please consider this and all children, not just a few. They need us and a good education more now than ever. As a proud, and born and raised Texan, I ask that you please do not pass this bill, and instead we continue to work together to find more appropriate and meaningful ways to provide additional and necessary funding to our public school system.

Amy Friend
Parent of school age child
San Marcos, TX

NO vouchers!

Sheryl Russell
Self
Wolfforth, TX

I feel that Texas should put all the efforts into improving public schools. This bill strictly supports middle and upper middle class families. The private schools will not be required to waive whatever fees/tuition the voucher does not cover, so in effect, the wealthy will only continue to benefit, the private schools can select only the students they consider "the best". This bill would be bad for Texas public schools!

Krista Sankey
Self
San antonio, TX

Stop lowering the USAs spot in global education.

Margaret Martinez
Self, Mother
Fort Worth, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a native Texan, 5th generation, whose entire family are products of the public education system, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution.

Bobby Hooten
self, marketing
Lubbock, TX

Until public schools are fully funded, staffed, and given the resources they need to make EVERY Texan successful, there is no place for conversation about allocating funds for other education. Texas's constitution charges you, our public servants with our public school system, in Article IX, Section I: "It shall be the duty of the Legislature of this State, to make suitable provisions for the support and maintenance of a system of Public Free Schools, for the gratuitous instruction of all the inhabitants of this State, between the ages of six and eighteen years." Until this is fulfilled in its entirety, any other funding of education outside of that charge is negligent and irresponsible. Public funds are for the public, not the wealthy outliers. All children in our state deserve a chance at quality education. My wife is a public school teacher, and my oldest child attends our public schools here in Lubbock. Is there room for growth in our public schools? Of course—and much of that could be fixed by adequately equipping those teachers and administrators to succeed with our students, and in turn, the future of our state. To look at the problems in our system and then assert that the answer to that question is to abandon that system for a private, largely unregulated sector of education instead of addressing and working to fix and mend those problem areas, is deeply irresponsible and abandons your duties as public servants and to the constitution of this state.

Additionally, there have been numerous problems with similar programs in other states. The results speak for themselves: the beneficiaries of such programs are far more likely to be already wealthy families whose children already attend private schools than lower-income families who wish to send their children to private schools—only further widening the gap between the wealthy and those with less.

Do not abandon our public schools, children, staff, and administration. Fulfill your charge to ALL Texans.

Elena Carrizales
San Antonio ISD
San Antonio, TX

No Vouchers!! Not equitable for all Texas families. It's welfare for the rich. Proposes no accountability for private or home school education.

Public school needs to be funded. Texas is the bottom of the barrel in the country regarding education. You will soon get what you pay for if education funding is not increased to prepare our future workforce.

Alyssa Leal
Self/Teacher
Round Rock, TX

This bill is absolutely harmful to our children, teachers, and schools. Our schools need MORE funding, not less. The future generations we produce will be stunted by a lack of accessible education for all. Our students are ALREADY behind. If you want our children to be put behind even more, then sign the bill. If you care for the FUTURE of Texas and America, DO NOT sign this bill. Any signature is a result of selfishness, greed, and shows that you do not care for Texans. It would be absolutely disgraceful.

Pat Gabriel

Self, Advertising agency, creative dept.

Fort Worth, TX

I was raised by my mother who was divorced and my father never paid child support. My mother would get down to pocket change between paydays.

In spite of that I got a good education - I'm proof positive that the public school system does work. I only have a high school education, but I have put two children and my wife through college.

I've had a full-time job since I was 16 years old, so have paid toward public school taxes for 48 years.

The idea that all that money put toward the Texas public education system could be for not - That the taxes that I will now continue to have to pay, even though I'm about to retire from full-time work could be diverted to a private institution makes me very angry.

If I wanted to donate money to a private school, I would do that. What I want is the public education system in the state of Texas to be properly funded. I want teachers to be paid properly and for everybody in my state to have the opportunity I had growing up. That was, to get a good education.

As important as this state is nationally, how could it its school ranking possibly still be at 29 out of 50?

If you would just properly pay teachers, properly invest in the Texas public education system that already exists, we could pull that number up into the top 10.

Please do not vote for the voucher system!

But even more important than that - do something about paying teachers better and funding our public education better.

Really, it's disgusting when you think about it. Why can't the great State of Texas have great public schools too!

Sincerely, Pat Gabriel

Thank you for your time and service and for reading my letter.

PS: Private schooling is never going to be for the average child. This is just a giant money grab for people who are already somewhat wealthy and very wealthy. It's disgusting!

Monica Wetzig

Self/community

Port Lavaca, TX

I absolutely oppose this bill and can honestly say that I haven't spoken to one friend or neighbor that is in favor of this. I am in favor of fully funding public schools. The children in Texas deserve this.

Megan Estep

Self

Stockdale, TX

As a long time homeschool parent I absolutely do not want ESAs and pray that there be an opt out or opt in clause. We pay well over the $2,000 out of pocket to homeschool our four children and do not want there to be any changes in the liberties we enjoy in the great state of Texas. These ESAs will inevitably create a change to the laws regarding homeschool (see the study of the education system in Sweden over the last 20 years). Where there is government money there will be government oversight. I am accountable to God, my husband and my children when it comes to their education. The governments standards will be lower than mine and will inevitably get in the way of providing a superior education to my children. ESAs will destroy the current free market of homeschooling in Texas. There is no long term proof they are effective in any states. Tax exemptions or credits, with minimal demands, are the only way to benefit homeschool families with out infringing on our current liberties.

Daniel Fletcher

Self (Writer)

Austin, TX

I oppose HB 3 and school vouchers

Jessica Nunley

Self

Highland Vlg, TX

Voucher programs divert funds away from already underfunded public schools which disproportionately affects students from lower socioeconomic backgrounds who have no option to attend anything but public school. Private schools are not required to admit anyone, including special needs children, follow any set state guidelines or requirements and they don't provide transportation for students, this automatically makes attendance to a private school for children of lower socioeconomic means not possible. Private schools have zero oversight and are using tax payer dollars fund schools that may not have the educational requirements we have come to expect of Texas Students. Texas already ranks in the bottom percentages of public education.

Lisa Roberts

Self

Austin, TX

I am an Austin resident and tax payer saying that I am VERY opposed to this bill. No one in our neighborhood wants this except the 2 multi multi millionaires with kids already in private schools. Just show you actually care for ALL residents and actually put some money into our public schools that are poised for success - if our state would just support us. This is all just ridiculous and a waste of time. Let's get to educating our children. Efforts to "keep Texas dumb" have got to stop.

Daniel Ben-David

Self

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Nancy French, Mrs

Self

Lantana, TX

I am against school vouchers and want public schools to be fully funded. All Americans should have a free and appropriate education, and for that to happen public schools need to money!

jonathan schreiber

Self

Dallas, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them

Courtney Palmisano

self

Princeton, TX

Please keep taxpayer money in Texas public schools. As an educator for over 25 years, I believe Texas children deserve the best from our legislature. Please increase the student allotment so that our students have the resources available to them. Many districts across our great state are shutting down schools due to lack of funding. School vouchers do not belong here.

Debra Gaston

Self

Elgin, TX

I totally disagree with the reasoning behind this bill. I am a retired public school teacher. My children are grown. My granddaughter is in middle school. What if everyone wanted to go to private school? Will there be some type of lottery? Will public schools be left with all the ED and special needs children? Will private schools go through the same stupid test requirements that public schools must adhere to? What about multiple children from one household? Will the STATE increase ADA funding to public schools to make up for lost capital to run mandatory school programs? Is this a Republican pushed Bill? For what purpose? To dismantle public education all together? Please explain better and answer my questions?

Anastasia Gabriel

Self/artist

Fort Worth, TX

As your constituent, I am writing to oppose private school subsidies, also known as vouchers or education savings accounts. Public schools in Texas are underfunded every year, yet public schools educate more than 90 percent of Texas students. They serve all students, they do not pick and choose whom to educate. Texas families and educators deserve a well funded public education system. I request that you reject private school vouchers again and properly fund Texas public schools. Private schools select students for admission many do not have a plan for special need students. They do not hold elected boards or have state oversight, private schools offer no financial or academic accountability. Why would you divert publicly collected funds to entities without oversight? VOTE NO ON VOUCHERS.

Thank you for your time and service.

Sincerely

Anastasia Gabriel

Kathleen Hayes

Self/semi retired teacher

Stephenville, TX

Public schools are in crisis but IT CAN BE FIXED. Ignoring the problems and creating vouchers will cause more teachers to leave than already are. Public schools need to be remodeled not destroyed. The people who are designing education in this state don't have the experience in schools that make for good management. The state level is the worst but the district level is just as bad. We need teachers making decisions. The TEA committee that convened two years ago originally had ZERO teachers involved. How could that possibly make sense. You politicians have a high level of conceit if you believe you know better than teachers how to run schools. Allowing people with no or minimal classroom experience to manage those who know how to teach is ludicrous. It is insulting. You , collectively, have ruined education. I challenge you to work in a classroom for a week. In fact, it should be a requirement for anyone touching educational decisions to have to spend a week or two in the same school until they understand the hands on issues. They should be required to take the same professional development as teachers. Education shouldn't be making state or local administrators wealthy. Teachers should be driving the decisions made in schools. By creating vouchers you are demonstrating that you have no desire to educate the future voters/citizens of this state. Your intention to destroy public education can be for nothing but personal gain. That's called prostitution.

Lisa Sitzes

Self

Cedar park, TX

Vote NO to VOUCHERS. We need funding for PUBLIC SCHOOLS- $1300 Basic Allotment.

Gina Anderson

Self

Denton, TX

As a higher education administrator in a college of education as well as a former public school teacher, I opposed HB 3. School vouchers will drain funds from public schools, which will also shrink the TRS funding base. These actions will lead to weakened schools and communities as well a crippled Texas economy.

Eric Hartman

self--retired

Austin, TX

For at least the past 35 years in the Texas legislature, we have heard the hype that taxpayer-funded subsidies for private-school students' tuition are the wave of the future and will inevitably pass. Yet session after session, such voucher bills ultimately have failed, for good reason. Lawmakers have recognized that our state constitution directs the legislature to provide for a system of free public schools, not for taxpayer funding of an entitlement to private-school vouchers. I urge the committee to reject this latest attempt to drain taxpayer dollars from the public schools to subsidize private schools. Instead, the legislature should put those dollars to work in support of Texas public schools as the state constitution mandates.

David Wilson

Self

Georgetown, TX

I am strongly opposed to HB 3 due to the damage it will do to small, rural school districts and underserved communities. This bill is disingenuous in its nature and will only benefit individuals seeking private education who can already afford it. Please do not allow this bill to pass the committee.

Menachem Twersky

Self

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Shirley CAESAR

Self

Justin, TX

1) If rural community school student gets voucher and no private school in their community, how will transportation be addressed so that parent can afford to drive longer distance?

2) will families with children in private school (already paying for school), still be considered for vouchers? Does not seem like we will be helping others get into privates if those already in private will now be getting basically a subsidy to apply to what they are already paying.

3). Let's fund our current schools and teachers rather than using our tax dollars to supplement the rich getting more assistance. Public schools are the backbone of our country,

Heather Berger

Self

Austin, TX

I am writing to express my strong opposition to Texas HB 3 due to its emphasis on law enforcement solutions rather than investing in critical mental health interventions for students. While ensuring school safety is of the utmost importance, this bill fails to address the root causes of violence and instead places an undue focus on policing measures that may do more harm than good.

Research consistently shows that early mental health intervention, access to trained counselors, and social-emotional learning programs are among the most effective ways to prevent violence in schools. However, HB 3 does not allocate sufficient resources toward these evidence-based strategies. Instead, it increases law enforcement presence without ensuring that students have the support they need to address trauma, bullying, and other underlying issues that contribute to behavioral concerns.

This approach risks criminalizing students—particularly those from marginalized communities, including students of color, those with disabilities, and those from low-income backgrounds—who are already disproportionately affected by disciplinary policies. Increased policing without corresponding mental health support can lead to higher suspension and expulsion rates, further fueling the school-to-prison pipeline rather than fostering a safe and supportive learning environment.

A truly comprehensive approach to school safety must include robust funding for school counselors, mental health professionals, social workers, and restorative justice programs. Schools should be equipped to intervene before crises occur, rather than relying solely on punitive or reactive measures. I urge lawmakers to reconsider HB 3 and instead focus on policies that prioritize the well-being and long-term success of Texas students.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I strongly urge you to oppose HB 3 in its current form and advocate for a more balanced approach to school safety.

Cathy Thomas

self, retired Associate Professor of Special Education at Texas State University
San Marcos, TX

School vouchers/school choice/privatization of schools in Texas will be hugely detrimental to children, families, and all school personnel. First, there are few existing private options for rural children, and in many cases, these options do not exist. There is no evidence that the few existing private rural options are providing a quality education. In fact, while there are exceptional charter/private schools, research shows that few do provide a quality education, and many of those are extremely expensive, and would only serve the richest families in Texas. I think that the majority of those wealthy families already have their children enrolled in such schools. Rural schools in Texas historically and perennially struggle to staff their schools with licensed teachers, and already offer reduced options at the secondary level for dual credit and a range of coursework that makes them competitive in college. Regarding teacher education, every year since 1990-1991 school year, Texas (along with most states) has reported statewide teacher shortages, most often to fill math, science, special education, and bilingual education positions. Texas is not competitive nationally for teacher salaries and benefits. Texas has one of the largest alternative certification pipelines which has served to institutionalize turn over and attrition--alternatively certification programs often require limited/no field practice, and these underprepared teachers are more likely to leave their field. Vouchers will not improve educational outcomes for Texas children and are most likely to cause further teacher attrition. Typically, private school options may not require licensure (a gatekeeper of quality, even with Texas' low standards for teacher preparation--in comparison to many other states). Private schools do not have to provide services for students with disabilities and may choose to exclude students. I personally find this a violation of equal protection, citing the 14th amendment, Section 504, and the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act. Texas, a state with a large budget surplus, by any group ranking is near the bottom for school spending, and below average in school quality. Texas has the capacity to have one of the best school systems in the nation, but we do not...by choice. School vouchers/school choice/school privatization will result in poorer outcomes for Texas children and reduce the quality of our schools. As a concerned citizen, as a retired teacher and teacher educator, I strongly recommend against this bill and I am against any legislation that would move toward a system of vouchers, choice, privatization of public education. Thank you for the opportunity to submit public comment. Also, I would be happy to provide references for all of my comments.

Dayna Corley

Self

Benbrook, TX

HB3/SB2. This is an absolutely awful bill and should never have been considered. We are not interested in this type of state controlled student outcomes. Stop using our children as guinea pigs and pawns in your socialistic agenda! We need less government controlled programs, less intrusive surveillance. You want more control and we the people want less of your failures. This bill is NOT about choice for the parents at all! We don't approve of your choices. We do not give you the right to dictate what is taught, that is a parents right and different schools can offer different curriculum. You have proven failures in our public schools, stop trying to control our other options.

Blair Dowdy

Self (marketing manager)

San Antonio, TX

I strongly disagree with HB3, for some of the following reasons:

- Private schools are great for those that can afford them, but they do not provide REAL choice for ALL Texas residents
- Private schools can deny admission to any child, for any reason they want.
- The majority of Texas counties do not have private schools.
- Providing funding to the families that can already afford private schools will only accomplish less funding for our already struggling Texas public schools, just giving a discount to already wealthier families.
- Private schools do not have to provide transportation or special education services, further limiting those who can actually benefit from a voucher.
- HB3 will essentially use the tax dollars of hard-working families to fund benefits that only the upper-class can use.
- PUBLIC dollars should stay in PUBLIC education
- Texas, who prides herself on being bigger and better, is in the bottom 10 states in the country for per-pupil funding. Vouchers will further diminish that number.

Angel Fuentes

NA

Houston, TX

The essence of a truly flexible educational system lies in its ability to allow students to seamlessly enter and transition between diverse career paths without facing unnecessary barriers or delays. Despite notable progress toward this ideal, our current educational framework still exhibits substantial areas for improvement. Students often encounter rigid curriculum tracks that may impede their ability to explore various fields or adapt their career trajectories in response to evolving interests and shifting job market demands.

To effectively address these challenges, several strategic initiatives are proposed:

Cross-Disciplinary Opportunities: We need to develop programs that foster cross-disciplinary learning and skills development. By integrating elements of technology, business, and creative arts into various curricular tracks, we can equip students with a well-rounded skill set that is applicable across multiple industries.

Modular and Stackable Credentials: Implementing a system of modular learning where students can accumulate credits or certifications that are stackable and transferable across different institutions and programs is essential. This flexibility allows for a more customized educational experience and better accommodates students' changing interests and the demands of emerging industries.

Career Exploration Platforms: Investing in comprehensive career exploration tools will enable students to make informed decisions based on their interests, skills, and market trends. These platforms should provide insights into various career paths, including emerging fields, and offer practical experiences like virtual job shadowing and internships.

Advisory Services: Enhancing advisory services is crucial to guide students through their educational journeys. Advisors should be trained to help students navigate their options and make strategic pivots in their career plans as necessary.

Partnerships with Industry: Expanding partnerships with diverse industries ensures that educational programs are aligned with real-world demands. These partnerships are vital for facilitating smooth transitions from education to employment, especially in high-demand sectors.

Moreover, for working adults, particularly those with family responsibilities like parents or those considering homeschooling, the educational system's structure must accommodate unique time constraints and responsibilities. The challenge of balancing a job, family obligations, and education should not impede educational advancement due to a lack of temporal flexibility. Additionally, stringent reporting and management of transition services, including a clear timeline for advising and accessing services such as housing and state benefits, are crucial. These measures are particularly important in communities where Section 8 zoning limitations restrict portability and may impose special hurdles.

Carleigh Cody

Teachers

Shallowater, TX

Please consider not doing the vouchers. This will end our rural towns. This is just a way for private schools to make more money. They will only increase their tuition so that the voucher can't cover the tuition. Public education is in danger.

Georgee Ruiz, Ms.

Self/ Educator

Amarillo, TX

This voucher bill is a SCAM by Governor Abbott for his oligarch friends & his wife. This only benefits the WEALTHY. Wake up Texas it's a SCAM!

John Ruffier

self, student

Austin, TX

Ensuring that Texas remains a robust and productive state starts with creating a skilled, educated workforce. Depriving our public schools of dollars will create chaos and confusion, ultimately ridding Texas of what makes it appealing in the first place. This item is a waste of taxpayer dollars and will harm every inch of this state, not just cities.

Stephen Meyer

Self

Austin, TX

I support public schools and strongly oppose HB 3. Fully fund public schools first!

Chaim Weinberg

Self

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Kelly Buchanan

Self

DENISON, TX

Vouchers for "school choice" are a bad idea and will affect all Texans negatively. Vouchers have failed before because law makers know that they will have a negative effect on their communities and constituents. Parents currently have school choice, they just have to pay for it if they want to send their children to private schools. I don't want my tax dollars to go to a handout for wealthy families who already have their children in a private school. I want my tax dollars to go towards making Texas Public schools the best in the country. I know we can do it, our state has the resources. The effects of high quality education in Texas public schools, available to all children, will be an immeasurable good for our state and individual communities.

Andreanna Ditton, Ms

Self, Editorial Director

Buda, TX

The voucher system is just another way to disenfranchise students and families from equal and equitable public education. This money (and effort) should be going towards the current school systems in Texas, not wasted to promote private companies and privatizing education. Texas HAS school choice, and we should be voting against systems that strip access (no matter how they're worded to fool people into thinking these voucher programs will pay for private schools instead of just further enlarging the gaps between wealthy students and those who most benefit from public education). Please vote against this bill.

Cheletia Johnson

self

college station, TX

Vote NO to HB3!!!!

Jennifer Sinopoli

Self/Parent

Austin, TX

Dear Education committee,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the use of vouchers & Education Savings Accounts (ESAs) as a means of funding education. These programs divert crucial resources away from public schools, undermining their ability to serve all students equitably. I request the following changes to improve the funding structure for education:

1. Increase the Basic Allotment to $7,500: The current funding allocation is insufficient to meet the needs of students and educators. Raising the basic allotment to $7,500 would better support our schools and allow for more equitable access to quality education.
2. Determine Funding by Enrollment, Not Attendance: Funding should be based on student enrollment rather than attendance. This would provide more consistent and predictable funding for schools, allowing them to plan and allocate resources effectively, even in times of fluctuating attendance.
3. Tie Funding to Inflation: Education funding should be adjusted annually based on inflation rates. This would ensure that the value of the funding keeps pace with the rising costs of education, maintaining its purchasing power over time.
4. Ensure Funding for All Current and Future Mandates: All current and future state or federal mandates should be fully funded to avoid placing additional burdens on schools. This would ensure that schools can comply with legal requirements without sacrificing other essential services.

I hope you will consider these requests as part of ongoing efforts to improve the education system. Regarding vouchers, please look to other states to see what's happened elsewhere. Studies of voucher programs in Louisiana, Indiana, Ohio & Washington DC have shown that students that use vouchers to leave public schools perform worse than their peers that stayed in public schools. Public school vouchers do not treat children with disabilities equally. Vouchers fund schools that are allowed to discriminate in ways that public schools do not. Look at other states and learn: the majority of these vouchers go to children already enrolled in private schools. In Florida, it was 69% of applicants to the voucher program were already enrolled in private school. In Arizona, that number is 75%. Please, Texas needs to go the way of Colorado, Kentucky, and Nebraska, which are all states that rejected ballot measures that would have allowed public school money to go to private schools.

I also want to add, I hate how this is framed as argument around "school choice." My children are enrolled in public school & we have school choice within our public school system. My kids don't attend the school we are zoned for, we have instead chosen to transfer to a different public school & couldn't be happier. What you should be doing is looking at the states with the best K-12 educations: Massachusetts, New Jersey, Connecticut, New York, New Hampshire, Utah. What can Texas do to be at the top? Not this.

Jennifer Sinopoli

Mary sue Blackwell

Self retired educator

Hudson Oaks, TX

HB 3 is not an education savings account. It is $10,000 for wealthy families to use toward private schools alone. Middle income and poor families will not be able to pay for private schools with $10,000. The idea that they can borrow money or apply for scholarships is unreasonable and unfair as they don't have the same access as the wealthy families do. Also, no matter what has been printed in the paper by Governor Abbott, the billionaires, and the legislators that Governor Abbott has placed in their positions over the last election, the money will in fact be taken from the public schools. The public schools have been held hostage over the last two years by the governor and the legislature because the vouchers were not passed in the last election. Teacher pay raises were held hostage funding for public schools was held hostage. In the future, if vouchers are allowed, Families will receive the $10,000 yet if they have special needs children, private schools will not have to provide education for their students and they will not be able to access those schools and will return to the public school no matter what. It is hard to believe that the legislators within the state of Texas have no children, grandchildren, nieces, nephews, friends, or other family members who have special needs and would not be affected by the voucher bill in a negative way Think long and hard, people. It also seems odd that the legislature isn't listening to teachers and public school, educators, superintendent, but is only listening to apparently the governor and his cronies. That's a big concern.

Marcy Antiuk

Self

Houston, TX

Please do not have this voucher plan. It will take funds from our already underfunded schools. I am a constituent and please vote no

Donna Coffelt

Constituent

Spicewood, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the “bought”? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Rhonda Boylson

Self

Granbury, TX

Vote no because this bill will harm public schools in Texas , only benefitting a limited number of families . Our children deserve better, all of our children not just children of the rich minority .

Vote no on this school voucher program,

Cassie Weaver

Self, Texas Teacher

Ennis, TX

Texas Teachers and parents are not for ESA's (vouchers). Public tax dollars belong in public schools. Please make Texas students a priority this legislative session. Do not be railroaded by big money. Our children need you to support them!

As a Texas educator of more than 30 years, I implore you to consider the choices you are making. I have taught in affluent schools and title 1 schools.

This bill will benefit only a small percent of Texas children while leaving other children with less funding.

These stud day I teach in public education depend on you and us to make the schools the best place they are. Help us keep it that way! Say NO to Vouchers!

Sarah Cassara

Self

Arlington, TX

This bill does not benefit the majority of Texas students. Parents who choose private schools have already made their “school choice”. This bill is wrong for Texas and bad for the students. Please vote No!

Sharon Raney

Self

New Boston, TX

I do not support using tax payers' dollars to fund vouchers. This is detrimental to our public schools, students, and teachers - especially in rural areas of our state. We already have school choice.

Geoff Hanshaw

Self

Mansfield, TX

I do NOT support this bill.

Cara Bond

Self

Houston, TX

Terrible idea. Most private schools will increase and not be "equal" to free. Not to mention the special needs kids will be left behind. As a speech-language pathologist I firmly object to this. In rural communities there isn't a private school for hours. How will those children be provided school?

Stacie Gooch

Self

Wylie, TX

No

Patricia Marshall

Self

San Antonio, TX

I oppose the voucher system and the elected officials need to represent their constituents and not their pockets

Tricia Reed

Self

Lubbock, TX

I am AGAINST HB 3 and fell all representatives should VOTE NO. Our elected officials should quit catering to the wealthy and start taking care of ALL children by fully funding public education!

Stacy Kyle, Mrs.

Self

Kempner, TX

Good morning, my name is Stacy Kyle and I am a teacher for GATESVILLE ISD. The current voucher scam, let's call it what it is, gives parents school choice. Wait.... I'm confused as I thought they always had a choice where they wanted to send their kids to school. They did.... I'm just confused then as to how you are putting something out there that's "new". When it's not. The only new part about this is that you will be taking money from public schools to help only a small percentage of Texas students. This is by no means fair at all. So my question for you all is this, is the state going to start paying for things that I cannot afford but I want because that'd be the right thing to do. While I'm on the subject of doing what's right... I'm hearing that this may take money away from trs, cause it to go away or raise how much I have to put in. I've spent 12 years almost 13 educating Texas children and now essentially by even mentioning something about my TRS, you are telling me that you don't care about me. In our very unpredictable world at the moment can you all do away of all this talk and shine a bright light on the line star state burning a good way.... Please just once do something right for everyone.

Mandie Sanchez

Self

Round Rock, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a Texan, whose entire family are products of the public education system, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution.

John Irish
self - education
Bridgeport, TX

I have dedicated the past 25 years to public education in Texas and strongly oppose the ESA (school voucher) program. I believe this bill is unconstitutional under both the Texas and U.S. Constitutions. Its passage would have a detrimental impact on public education in Texas, diverting much-needed funds from public schools and weakening the Teacher Retirement System (TRS), which I have contributed to for 25 years. By discouraging new educators from entering the profession, the bill threatens the long-term viability of TRS.

Furthermore, the claim that vouchers provide school choice for low-income families is misleading. No state that has implemented a voucher system has seen a significant increase in low-income students attending private schools. Instead, these programs primarily function as subsidies for wealthy families already paying for private education.

While I recognize that Texas public schools face significant challenges that must be addressed, this bill does nothing to solve them. Rather, it deepens economic divisions, exacerbating disparities between the wealthy and the rest of the state. Public education is essential to the preservation of democracy and the cultivation of an informed electorate, and policies like this undermine its foundation.

Jaylyn Sprinkel, Mrs
Wylie PTA
Wylie, TX

This is a complete joke for our public schools. We do NOT want vouchers!!!!

John Squier
Self
Longview, TX

Vote no on school vouchers. I don't like having vouchers forced upon us and I don't like not getting to vote personally on this issue. Please look at the polls that are being taken on TV. They show majority of Texans do not want school vouchers. Thank you for your time.

Jack Wehner
PTA, WylieISD
Wylie, TX

OPPOSE VOUCHERS and ESAs

Julie Fulgham
Self
Victoria, TX

As the spouse of a public school teacher as well as a parent who spends in excess of $10k a year on private school tuition for my child, I am vehemently opposed to education savings accounts and any program that sends public funds to private schools. This is not the solution for improving public education. It will negatively affect both public and private schools in the future and degrade our already fragile educational system in Texas. Please listen to the majority of your constituents and vote against this bill and any bill that attempts these types of programs.

Shanna Bodenhamer, Dr.

Self: parent and educator

Spring Branch, TX

As a special educator and a parent of a child with disabilities that attends public school, I strongly oppose HB 3. As some researchers have testified during the hearing on HB 3, school voucher programs/ESAs do NOT improve academic outcomes. Further, in states that have implemented similar legislation, vouchers cost more than anticipated, leading to budget shortfalls. It is fiscally irresponsible to allocate a billion dollars to a discredited education policy that research demonstrates is NOT effective for improving academic outcomes.

The legislature should focus their efforts and our tax dollars towards strengthening our public schools and addressing actual barriers to quality education. Texas is facing a teacher shortage crisis, especially in areas like special education. We should focus on fixing issues that address our teacher shortage, such as, recruiting and training the next generation of teachers, and improving teacher working conditions and salaries so our schools can retain teachers.

This bill has been touted as "parent choice" and "parent empowerment". I am a parent and I want my child to attend a fully-funded public school in our community. I want my local public school to have the resources and training to implement evidence-based practices. I want my daughter's teachers to experience improved working conditions with smaller class sizes and to receive a salary that appropriately compensates all their hard work.

When my daughter was preschool age, I wanted to enroll her in a private school but her acceptance was declined because the school said they were not equipped to handle children with "behaviors". This was in Houston, a large urban area, with more opportunities than most Texas regions. It was our local public school district that provided the individualized services my daughter needed within an intensive early intervention program. And because of these services, she learned how to talk, follow a routine at school, make friends and be included in her community.

Because of my experiences as a parent of a child with autism and as a former special educator in our public schools, I do NOT support HB 3. Public tax dollars should NOT go to private schools that can discriminate against students with disabilities through denying their admission or refusing to provide necessary interventions and supports.

Brittany Castillo

Self

Justin, TX

Vote no!

Karen Pulver

Self retired

Granbury, TX

Please vote NO on HB3.

I implore you to consider the negative ramifications of HB 3 and vouchers in all Texas schools however exponentially more detrimental to our rural schools where communities come together around school activities to support one another. Students needing extra educational support to be successfully educated members of our state will be left behind without the services and support necessary from the public programs. This bill does so much harm to our Texas families.

Having 2 of our 5 grandchildren who are currently benefiting from these special programs will thank you!!

Kathyleen Wilson

Public schools

Austin, TX

I have a special needs son who has Autism and is non verbal. If we did not the wonderful teachers at his public school then we would be in debt trying to get a specialized education. It cost over 30,000 a year for care with no transportation service available if choose a private school. That is that private school would even take him. You are giving welfare to the rich to give to their private schools that they already attending. This is not school choice, only for the school that can get extra money from you and they get to choose their students.

Stacy Blanchard

self

Sachse, TX

Please make sure the vouchers do not pass. They do not work for majority, and I have not been proven to be successful in other states

Camille Knight

Self-retired public school teacher

Henderson, TX

No to vouchers. Don't rob our public schools to give to wealthy.

María López-Rogina, Sra

Retired Teacher

Houston, TX

I am opposed to the use of public tax dollars for vouchers. that is a means of stealing our tax money and limiting resources for public use. we need improvement for our school buildings and better funding of special education as well as general education to assure we have prepared citizens that can function and work in our society. less funding will increase crime, drug use, and poverty rates. Save our schools and our communities!!!! NO VOUCHERS

Jerilyn Reagan

Arlington ISD-18 PLUSS

Mansfield, TX

I am writing to you as a public school teacher with 29 years of experience, a product of public schools, and a parent of children who have attended public schools. I strongly oppose the proposed school voucher legislation, as I believe it will have a detrimental effect on our public education system.

For years, public schools have been chronically underfunded, and despite our best efforts, we continue to be asked to do more with less. Yet, the narrative that public schools are failing is continually perpetuated. The truth is that it is not public schools that are failing students—it is the lawmakers who have consistently failed to provide adequate funding and resources to support our students and teachers. We cannot expect our schools to succeed when they are not given the tools they need to thrive.

Vouchers, by diverting much-needed public funds away from public schools, will only further exacerbate these challenges. Public schools are the cornerstone of our education system, serving every child, regardless of their background. Instead of focusing on draining resources from these schools, we should be strengthening them, increasing funding, and addressing the root causes of educational disparities.

Furthermore, it's important to note that parents already have the ability to choose where they send their children. In many states, charter schools, magnet schools, and open enrollment policies already offer a variety of choices. What vouchers really do is redirect public money to private institutions, many of which are not subject to the same accountability and oversight as public schools. This is not about providing choice—it's about undermining the very system that serves the majority of our children.

As a teacher, I've seen the dedication and hard work of my colleagues and the resilience of our students, but we are continually being held back by a lack of adequate support. We need to invest in public education, not drain its resources. The future of our children depends on it.

I urge you to reconsider your support for school vouchers and instead focus on policies that will adequately fund and strengthen our public schools. Public education is an investment in the future of all our children, and it deserves our full support.

Amy Johnson, Mrs.

self

Plano, TX

As public school educator, I am against this bill because it prioritizes private school education over public school education. My private school teacher friends are against this bill as well for the same reasons. This bill is not fair, it will not help economically disadvantaged students attend private school - it will only give the ones who can already afford private school a monetary boost. If anything, more money needs to be designated for public school education as private school is just that "private" and their financial support should come from private sources, not public sources like the government. Our Texas government should really prioritize the improvement of public education because that is where improvement needs to be dedicated. For the good of millions of students who attend public school, for the good of the many public school educators who work tirelessly for their students, this bill does not need to be approved.

Mary Taylor, Mrs.

Self

Angleton, TX

Public funds should not be used to fund private enterprises. Public schools are our hope for the future. Fully fund mandates and use surplus funds to make our schools the best in the nation. We the constituents are not beholden to billionaire donors.

Jim Schneider

Self

San Angelo, TX

The pattern is clear: once universal #schoolchoice programs are enacted, their costs escalate far beyond original estimates, creating massive funding gaps that disproportionately harm public schools as it has clearly done in other states. #HB2 / #HB3 sets the stage for similar expansion in Texas, risks following the same trajectory, jeopardizing the state's long-term education budget and straining financial resources. Don't be by the propaganda!! Texas Republicans will own this and be on the wrong side of history.

The pattern is clear: once universal #schoolchoice programs are enacted, their costs escalate far beyond original estimates, creating massive funding gaps that disproportionately harm public schools as it has clearly done in other states. #HB2 / #HB3 sets the stage for similar expansion in Texas, risks following the same trajectory, jeopardizing the state's long-term education budget and straining financial resources. Don't be by the propaganda!! Texas Republicans will own this and be on the wrong side of history.

The pattern is clear: once universal #schoolchoice programs are enacted, their costs escalate far beyond original estimates, creating massive funding gaps that disproportionately harm public schools as it has clearly done in other states. #HB2 / #HB3 sets the stage for similar expansion in Texas, risks following the same trajectory, jeopardizing the state's long-term education budget and straining financial resources. Don't be by the propaganda!! Texas Republicans will own this and be on the wrong side of history.

Julie Lorberbaum

Self/teacher

Houston, TX

I am a constituent in Spring branch a neighborhood of Houston. My child's public school is directly impacted by your decision to vote on this bill. Please vote no on this bill. A yes vote will severely cripple schools' ability to provide quality education for all students, regardless of location or socioeconomic background. Vote no in favor of our families!!! Once again, I am a parent of a school child in spring branch ISD. Please vote NO!!!

Julie McCarty
True Texas Project
Grapevine, TX

As CEO of True Texas Project and as an individual voter, I am opposed to HB 3. While I was determined to keep an open mind regarding a school choice bill, and will I've mostly stayed out of this debate for years (contrary to what some have said about me), now that we have the details about the bill, I cannot support it. A school choice program needs to utilize existing dollars in the education budget, not create a new category. Likewise, the new bureaucracy required for this plan is not acceptable. This is not a bill that will make education better... It seems to merely be a bill to get something passed to say they did it. We can definitely do better than this.

Katie Hembree, Mrs.
Self; stay at home mom of 3
Richardson, TX

Hello,
I am a public school mom of 3 children in Richardson, TX. I am very concerned about the possibility of school vouchers being approved. Public schools are already under extreme financial strain and vouchers will not truly fix the problem you are trying to address. We need to prioritize giving adequate funding to public schools so they can provide quality education for every child.

Voucher programs in other states have exploded beyond their initial budgets, draining resources from public schools. Worse, vouchers do not improve student achievement and, in many states, lead to a decline in achievement. Furthermore, the reality is that vouchers are not about "parent choice" because the only choice in a voucher program belongs to private schools that can hand-pick their students, often denying children with special needs, learning disabilities, neurodivergent disorders, & behavioral issues - admittance into their schools. Private schools are also not accountable to taxpayers or the state. Texas parents already have school choice, and vouchers undeniably funnel public tax dollars away from our already-strained public schools.

ACTION IS NEEDED NOW. The 5.5 million children who rely on and choose Texas public schools deserve better!

- Studies show vouchers do not equate to improved academic outcomes.
- HB 3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas families already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity with public money.
- Public money means public accountability. Any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing, and accountability requirements as public schools.
- Texans should decide! Vouchers would use public dollars for private education—Texans deserve a voice in this decision. Urge lawmakers to put the measure on a statewide ballot and let the people vote

Thank you for your consideration in this very important matter!

Gratefully,
Katie Hembree

Sherry Montgomery
Self
San Antonio, TX

We object to HB 3. I have three grandkids and we consider ourselves and our children to be middle class. Even with a voucher, private school is beyond our reach. And it will be beyond the reach of those with an even lowered income. This bill will mostly benefit those already enrolled in private school often the wealthier class that can already afford to pay private tuition. Stop making decisions that affect the wealthy. If parents need a choice to send their kids to a private school, give a tax cut for those with moderate or low income if their child attends private school!

urmila gupta, Dr

Self

Plano, TX

Please stop the steal of money from public schools to few elite private schools. Public schools already don't have enough resources and sometimes teachers have to buy the supplies on their own . A community is known by the standards of its public schools. People who want to send their kids to pvt schools have too much money and public schools shouldn't pay for tuition for religious schools. These hard working students going to Public schools often have both parents working so that they can save for the college education of their children . America is a secular country and there is no place to take money from public schools to send to private schools and religious schools. Greater good of many outweighs the tiny money saved for people who are already sending their kids to private schools. It is not enough for a poor person to send his kid to a private school. America is known for its excellent public education system and let's not downgrade this status . Among the developed European nations all kids have opportunity to get the same education, even college in many. Hope you will keep our education Great in Public schools.

Loren Morris

Self

Cedar Park, TX

I am strongly opposed to HB3. While I feel Representative Buckley is coming from the right place, I feel that this honestly going to cause more damage to students with disabilities. Please vote no to HB 3.

Atisha Manhas

Self

Dallas, TX

I am a longtime resident of Dallas and I urge representatives to vote against school vouchers. Allowing all families to have vouchers will amount to gutting out public school system, which is funded by the state! The absolute only way a voucher system would make sense is if there was a cap for income so that in-need only students would benefit. There are plenty of public schools which are functioning well and we don't need to punish those schools and property owners in those areas. Vote against HB3!

Laura Li, Mrs.

Self

Denton, TX

I do not agree with the public savings account being passed until there is an appropriate increase in the basic allotment for public schools. Our Texas constitution requires we provide an appropriate education for ALL Texas students. This bill prioritizes the small minority who will benefit from it. It's unethical to fund ESA for the small minority who will benefit while refusing to properly fund and support education for ALL Texas students, regardless of their socioeconomic status or where they live. A majority of small Texas counties don't have a private or charter option, and many charter and private schools require travel, financial investment, and parent involvement that a significant amount of our population cannot abide. We cannot leave behind our most vulnerable populations and take away from their educational opportunities while we elevate those who already have ample resources and access. It's unethical. Texas is a state where we have prioritized being neighborly and kind, and this is anything but neighborly or kind to rob from our public schools and give to for-profit institutions.

Nancy Lawrence

Self

Plano, TX

No, no, no. Private schools have funds to support low income families. Keep state funding for education in public schools.

Shelley Ames

Self, I am a homemaker

Arlington, TX

I am a homeschooling mother of 4. We currently enjoy THE MOST education freedom in this state. I do not want government intrusion into my homeschool. Our family makes sacrifices so I can stay home and educate our children and I do not want government money. I also don't want my tax dollars to support private schools, opening the door to government intrusion into private education. I do not want to open the possibility of requiring any standardized testing for homeschool or private schools. These bills claim that we can simply not take the money, but eventually, there will be a call to regulate everyone if even a few people submit to regulations in order to get this money. The best way to help us educate our children is to end the evil that is property taxes and let us keep our own money. Use this surplus on public schools, but don't use it to fund private and homeschools. I don't know a single homeschooler who wants this bill to pass. I do know several public school teachers who plan to quit teaching to start schools so they can get in on this money-is that what we want? To encourage teachers to leave public schools? This bill does nothing to fix the problem it sets out to fix, rather it just creates more problems. We know there are corrupt politicians getting bribes or kickbacks in exchange for passing this awful bill, and that will be the only thing we know about the republicans who vote for this-we will know they are corrupt because this bill doesn't help students, as they claim it will. So that is the only option left. Leave homeschoolers alone. Leave private schools alone. We don't want government money. It's not right for government money to come to us anyway, so stop it.

Emily Voigt-Bandurski

Self

Trophy Club, TX

I'm pleading to the committee to please vote AGAINST school vouchers. The impact of vouchers will create an even more devastating blow and result in even more staffing and program cuts than we're already experiencing due to the legislature's refusal to properly fund public schools. My children's class sizes have already been increased due to the lack of state funding, they will increase significantly in the fall, and if the voucher bill passes, they will be increased more. This will be devastating to our students. My children have already been impacted but the cutting of programs due to the lack of funding.

My perspective is unique, as my children have been educated in public schools, homeschooled, and in private schools until last year. I can unequivocally say that a school voucher bill IS WELFARE FOR THE WEALTHY on the backs of public school students who will suffer more. Even after being enrolled at two different non-elite, "moderately priced" private, NON-urban Christian schools, I can attest that only parents who own second and third homes, take lavish vacations and drive luxury cars, sent their children there -- and not for the academic reasons Gov. Abbott claims private schools provide. Having had kids in two different private schools, they were no comparison to the rigor, accountability, academic opportunity, skilled and accredited teachers, and exposure to diverse opinions and experiences that public schools provide. The majority of private schools are adept at providing a carefully curated cohort of children with like-backgrounds, but not for providing exposure to the careers of the future, diversity of thought that children must navigate as adults in the workforce, challenging curriculum, and future workforce preparation that our public schools do. Parents already have a choice to send their children to private schools, but the vast majority of Texas parents who cannot afford private schools or have a lifestyle that enables them to self-transport their children to private schools - do NOT. Please don't further defund public schools and further punish the vast majority of Texas children. Please vote AGAINST school vouchers.

Trent Lewis

Self/storm water consultant

Pottsboro, TX

I am against HB 3. Please vote no.

Emily Lewis

Self - business owner

Pottsboro, TX

I am against HB 3. Please vote no.

Jennifer Spivey

Self, teacher

Magnolia, TX

Stand up for public schools by putting aside politics and fully funding our schools. Public money should not be spent on private schools. Our representatives that vote in favor of this bill do not represent the will of the majority and do not support or value our public schools or teachers. Stop holding school funding hostage over governor Abbott's misguided priorities. Parents have always had school choice and vouchers will only help affluent families.

Marsha Shaw

Self retired teacher

Georgetown, TX

I oppose state funding for charter schools and/ or vouchers. There is little to zero accountability for charter schools. Public schools are the bedrock of our country and must be protected. The Texas legislature has woefully underfunded schools throughout the 44 years I have lived here. We are shamefully one of the lowest funded states in the country with teacher salaries so low that second and third jobs are needed for survival. With a large surplus of revenue of which the governor is so proud, one would think some of it would be used to remedy this dire situation. School districts have limited ability to raise revenue from property taxes due to constraints placed on them by the legislature. Many districts are functioning in the "red" as income does not cover expenses. Our children are the future and if their education is not a priority, we are all doomed.

Amanda Fierro

Self, Accessibility Consultant

Austin, TX

While I acknowledge that families want more educational choices, I am concerned that this school voucher program does not create real choice for families. I taught students with visual disabilities in public schools for twelve years, and I agree that many issues with our public education system prevent it from effectively serving students. However, funneling money out of this system and into private institutions through vouchers is not the solution. A strong public education system is integral to our democracy, and vouchers undermine public education. Additionally, these programs, as implemented in other states, often lack proper accountability and exacerbate inequality. Private schools, unlike public schools, are not legally required to provide special education services, and they frequently do not have the resources, expertise, and staff to provide high-quality instruction to students with disabilities. Instead of diverting funds to private institutions, I support strengthening public schools to ensure that every child has access to a high-quality education.

Carol Winters

Self. Retired educator.

McKinney, TX

The voucher plan will benefit only a small percentage of Texas families while harming a greater percentage by taking money from public schools. If you want to provide true choice, give the parents of EVERY child $10,000 to spend as they see fit—for the local public school or private one. But don't give private schools more taxpayer money than you do public schools. Too many communities don't even have private school options. You're forcing public school districts to cut programs because they are underfunded. And vouchers will only make things worse. VOTERS DO NOT SUPPORT VOUCHERS. Put it to a vote and see just how unpopular the voucher program is among Texans.

Jordan Pollock

Self - attorney

Dallas, TX

I am a parent of a student in Dallas Independent School District (DISD). I am writing today on behalf of myself and my husband to express our strong opposition to HB3. In our time at DISD, I have been consistently in awe of its incredible teachers and how they meet students where they are academically and socially. These teachers take children from varied cultural, socio-economic, racial, and religious backgrounds and create an environment where children learn not only from their teachers but from each other.

I have seen what these schools have achieved despite inadequate funding from our state. And I know what heights they could reach if our legislature funded them properly. Giving away taxpayer dollars to private schools would do nothing to educate the leaders of tomorrow but would instead harm our communities. DISD already provides families with an incredible array of school choices. There are ways to improve school choice and quality throughout Texas without funding the voucher privatization scam using taxpayer dollars.

Despite being one of the wealthiest states in our nation, Texas consistently ranks near the bottom in funding education for our children. The proposed voucher program would only make this shameful situation worse. A voucher program would not only undermine public schools and harm their students. It would open the floodgates for unregulated for-profit schools that offer poor academics. Most counties in Texas don't even have private schools and would therefore receive almost no benefit from vouchers. Those rural communities would be particularly vulnerable to low quality for-profit schools, which this bill would incentivize. In the cities, which do have private schools, the cost greatly exceeds the proposed vouchers. Accordingly, these vouchers would do nothing but provide an unnecessary cash break to wealthy families who already have their children in private school—coming at the expense of middle class taxpayers.

Parents in Texas do not want the measure passed. Listen to the PTAs, listen to the parents, and think about what a beautiful future Texas would have if it actually invested in our public schools and students. If you truly want to improve public education in Texas, fund it. Don't reduce the already meager amount you allocate to our children's education. We are watching our representatives now; we will remember their actions when election day comes. Stand alongside your constituents and oppose this bill that poses a grave threat to our communities and our children.

Debi Derrick, Ms.

Self-retired energy sector communications specialist

Beaumont, TX

I deeply oppose a bill that will transfer money away from public schools and lavishly shower it on schools whose students/parents are mostly among the wealthier among us. It is a 'land grab' only instead of land barons spitting in the face of farmers, we have ill-informed legislators spitting in the face of children who deserve educations that can propel them into brighter futures. The very idea of giving more money per pupil to private schools than to public schools is a travesty on the face of it.

Shannon Hix

Self

Mckinney, TX

Please don't vote for vouchers. Public school need to be fully funded. Public schools are reducing teachers and increasing class sizes, discontinuing student programs, and even worse, closing schools.

Allison Estolas

self

Fort Worth, TX

Public dollars belong to public education. I oppose the school voucher program.

David Fusco
Concerned Citizens of Texas
Arlington, TX

Please vote "NO" to vouchers in our state. Let the wealthy pay their OWN money to send their children to private schools. Do NOT do anything to defund or lessen the protection of our already stressed public school system. Instead, work to INCREASE the pay for public school system educators.

Crystal Taylor
Self
Round Rock, TX

As a parent, I stand firmly against the school voucher bill HB 3 proposed by Buckley. My primary concern is the diversion of public funds from our already underfunded public schools to private institutions. Public schools are the backbone of our educational system, serving the majority of children in our community, and they desperately need more resources, not less. Redirecting funds to private schools will only widen the gap between those who have access to quality education and those who do not.

Public schools are required to adhere to state educational standards and provide services to all students, including those with special needs. By contrast, private schools have the autonomy to select their students and are not bound by the same regulations. This selective admissions process can lead to a system where public schools become the only option for students with special needs or from disadvantaged backgrounds, further straining their resources and limiting their educational opportunities.

Moreover, the introduction of vouchers could lead to an increase in segregation within our educational system. Historically, vouchers have been used in some areas to create more homogenous school environments, which can result in diminished diversity and fewer opportunities for students to learn from and appreciate different perspectives.

Another critical issue is the lack of accountability in private schools. Public schools are held accountable through standardized testing and public reporting of their performance. In contrast, private schools are not subject to the same level of scrutiny, making it difficult for parents and policymakers to evaluate their effectiveness. This lack of transparency can lead to a misuse of public funds and undermine the goal of improving educational outcomes for all students.

I also worry about the long-term implications of this bill on our public education system. If vouchers become widespread, we risk creating a two-tiered education system where only those who can afford the additional costs associated with private education can access high-quality schooling. This outcome would be detrimental to the principle of equal opportunity and undermine the foundational idea that education should be a public good accessible to all.

Furthermore, the administrative costs of implementing a voucher system can be substantial. The funds spent on managing the voucher program could be better invested in improving public schools, hiring more teachers, and providing essential resources to support student learning.

In conclusion, as a parent, I believe that HB 3 will do more harm than good. It will divert much-needed resources from public schools, increase segregation, reduce accountability, and ultimately create a more unequal education system. Our focus should be on strengthening and improving our public schools to ensure that every child, regardless of their background, has access to a high-quality education.

Shannon Washburn, Dr.
Self
College Station, TX

I am vehemently opposed to school vouchers. It will destroy the public education system and hurt WAY more students than it will help. I have put 4 kids through public school and am a university professor. VOTE NO TO VOUCHERS!

Nick Macha

Self

Amarillo, TX

If we have money for this, we have more money for public schools. This will solve nothing, private schools won't be able to handle more students anyway and will drive the cost up further keeping it inaccessible to most people. This is the most half baked money grab since the PUF that alienates a giant swath of Texans.

Jeffery McMahan

Self

Dayton, TX

I am a resident of Liberty country Texas. And I support school choice for Texas. And am proud of all those who stand for School Choice and those fighting to uphold truth, justice and righteousness for our Texas school children.

Kelly Coleman

Self

Kyle, TX

I am writing to express my opposition to voucher bill HB 3. The bill for creating vouchers to fund private school education for students using tax dollars and public funds will significantly impact our local schools, potentially taking millions of dollars from local schools, which are already extremely underfunded. I am an advocate for funding schools using enrollment based per student allotments in alignment with national averages (Texas is currently 42nd in the US in funding, and has a funding deficit of approx $4,000 per student).

We need to stop trying to line the pockets of Billionaires from out of state, and start educating young Texans, as they are our future. Jeff Yass, Tim Dunn, and Farris Wilkes do not represent us, and should not dictate the education of our children. Say no to HB3, and instead fund Texas public schools appropriately!

Catherine Gault

Self

Houston, TX

I am not in favor of this bill. There are no plans for accountability and sustainability. It is maddening to siphon public dollars from public schools. Look, I pay roughly $6000/year in property taxes. Only part of that is directed toward the school district. I have two children. So I would PROFIT $14,000 with this bill? Not only is that stealing from public schools, it's stealing from taxpayers. I can see why wealthy people or those who buy more house than they can afford want this - it's theft. A well-educated population and robust middle class is healthy for society. If you continue to dismantle public education, then the onus to educate employees is going to fall on the business owners. They need employees who can read and who have critical thinking skills! And not everyone can afford private schools. I can't for my two kids. We are solidly middle class, own our home, have college and post-undergrad degrees, but we do not live outside our means. That $14,000 I mentioned above would not be enough. Public schools work best because EVERYONE benefits and EVERYONE contributes. Yes, even those without kids continue to benefit by having a population that is educated. Finally, I went to private schools all through my bachelors degree. I have no problem with private schools. I get it! But even when I was a student I understood why everyone funds public schools and even benefitted from public schools. At the time, our schools were well-funded and I was able to take extra art classes and music lessons and drivers ed over the summers. Wouldn't it be better if we had comprehensive drivers ed again!? I was able to take English classes over the summer and my local high school to help get ahead. So, yes, as a private school student I STILL benefitted from public education. Please reconsider this bill. Thank you.

Delinda Wells

Self

Poolville, TX

We are against this bill

Jaylyn Sprinkel, Mrs

Pta

Wylie, TX

I OPPOSE HB3!!!!

Landry Sprinkel, Miss

PTA

Wylie, TX

I opposed HB3!!

Ashley Hopkins

Self/Katy ISD parent

Katy, TX

Texans value our public schools. We do not want funding steered into private schools when the majority of Texans attend public schools, which desperately need updated funding. It's clear this bill will serve to protect a privileged few and hurt the majority. Many Texans specifically choose to reside in areas with strong public schools, and we want them to remain so. Without adequate funding you are hurting millions that have no interest or ability to send children to private schools.

Diana Dale

Self

Andrews, TX

I am NOT in agreement to send my money to any entity that is not public education. Our tax payer money should only go to public schools. It's in our Texas Constitution so why am I having to state this! These ESAs are a scam to get at our tax payer money & in the end they will ruin public education. Our forefathers were correct that we MUST maintain a free and public education for all to get the best citizenry. I am officially and loudly declaring my stance against Hb 3.

Jepilyn Matthis

Self

Montgomery, TX

If you are going to have vouchers then make all schools adhere to equal rules to get the money. That means private schools must hire certified teacher, have required amounts of subjects daily, and have to meet criteria for state testing. They should also have to admit all students.

Debbie Lee

self/financial project manager

Colleyville, TX

Education savings account programs, or vouchers for private school students, only serves students who are already attending private schools. It is welfare for the wealthy, since typically the voucher is not enough to cover all of the tuition. Other states who have adopted voucher programs are now going bankrupt as wealthy people use the vouchers to fund their vacations without any sort of accountability. In addition, why are public school students only worth $6000 while private school students would receive $10,000 per student? It is very sad to know that our elected officials, who are supposed to work for the public, actually have been bribed by billionaires who do not even live in this state.

Nicole Verkerk

self - teacher

Austin, TX

Do not establish a education savings program. We need our public schools funded and not to give welfare to the rich who can afford private schools. This bill is more hand outs for the rich. Fund public education!

Melanie Brown
Self - Consultant
Coppell, TX

I am OPPOSED HB 3 for school vouchers and FOR increasing funding for public schools and teacher salaries.

Dr. Johnny Cordero
My Dreams Academy
Ft Worth, TX

We are fully supporting school parental choice and the voucher program.

Jody Elverum
Self
Fort Worth, TX
Oppose

Marco Guajardo self, Organizer
El Paso, TX

I would like to urge the committee to reject HB 3 and vouchers in general. The pro-voucher testimonies did not adequately address the needs of families in our state and taxpayer money should NOT go to private schools. We have a brilliant and dedicated workforce of public educators (teachers, paras, nurses, counselors, bus drivers, cafeteria staff, and all others) serving our students faithfully - let's show them the respect they deserve and focus on giving them pay raises and improving their working conditions.

Brittany McElroy
Self
Flower Mound, TX

I DO NOT support the voucher bill. Public tax dollars should stay in public schools. Period. This will be welfare for the wealthy and will have a terrible impact on treasured public schools that the Texas legislature has already done a horrendous job of supporting. Please vote no on House Bill 3.

Heather Reck, Mrs
Self/ IT Project Manager
Fort Worth, TX

What a mess of an idea during the worst possible time in history. Do you really want to risk collapsing the systems in favor of education the future generations? Now? While they watch classmates disappear from ICE visits? After learning through a pandemic? While hiding in corners during active shooter lockdowns? While the economy goes to shit? You want to 'f' educating our kids too? So entitled private school kids get MORE entitlement?

I want public schools funded. Stop. I want taxes for educating all kids in public schools. Stop.
Why are you doing this? What is the problem this bill is trying to solve? What problem?

Danna Watkins
Self/teacher
Lubbock, TX

This is one of the worst things that can happen to public school. School choice will only be for the wealthy that can provide transportation and fund what the $10,000 will not (which is the larger part of it for most all private schools). Neighborhood schools will continue to be full of underprivileged children and there will now be even less funds to provide the education they badly need. This has been presented in a very idealistic way, but it is anything but ideal. The majority DO NOT want this!! Listen to your voters!

Dorothee Irisson Smith

Self

Flower Mound, TX

No to the voucher scam. Stop distorting public education.

Stephanie Barajas

Self

San Antonio, TX

I oppose HB 3, which will benefit the wealthy Texas and hurt the rest of our state. We need to ensure that ALL student have access to to a high quality education, not just for those that can afford it. We need to to strengthen our neighborhood schools.

Scott Sharp

Self

Lybbock, TX

I am strongly opposed to this bill for the reasons that (1) any voucher program will detract from the appropriate funding of public schools; and (2) this particular bill contains no appropriate oversight or accountability. The distribution of public funds without accountability is neither conservative nor financially responsible.

Monica Golemo

Self- management

League City, TX

Education is the great equalizer. Vouchers, which will but be accessible to all students, are in contrasts to all this. Every state that has passed vouchers shows a majority go to those already attending private school, thus making the impact minimal for additional students. Please vote no to vouchers.

Jim Windham, Mr.

Self. Former banker and founder of the non-profit Texas Institute for Education Reform.

Houston, TX

HB 3 is one of the most important Texas education reform initiatives of the past century. It will begin to transform the delivery system by putting children and their parents first in choosing what is best for their education needs with funding following the student.

Carolyn Ireland

Self

San Antonio, TX

I am against vouchers. Data shows that voucher programs in other states are overwhelmingly used by and benefiting the wealthiest citizens who could already afford private school and whose children were already attending private schools. All it would be is a handout to the wealthy at the expense of public school funding. Public schools need all the help they can get and this just takes away. It also disproportionately funds students in private schools more than those in public schools as per pupil funding is behind 2019 figures when adjusted for inflation. It is disgusting how public education has been demonized in recent years. Support your public schools and educators.

Eric Anasco

Self - Tutor

Fort Worth, TX

I reject HB3 based on expert testimony and the fiscal note presented on HB3. This is not sound fiscal policy and it will hurt Texas public schools.

Paul Aguilar
Self
Fort Worth, TX

Strongly oppose how much this bill would hurt my children and our community this is nothing but a scam for the rich

Theresa Williams
Self
San Antonio, TX

I don't want my tax dollars going to this program. Helping rich people that are already sending their kids to private school or homeschooling, does not help the public schools in my area. This will not help public schools in general. This will not help rural areas that do not have private school options. If you want to leave choice to the parents, I choose keeping tax dollars going to public schools and not vouchers.

Patti Wade CISD
Coppell, TX

I have strong beliefs for our public schools and that all children not only in Coppell, but all of Texas should have the funds and opportunity to be educated equally. I therefore am against Bill HB 3

Cynthia Ford
Self
Dallas, TX

I do not support school vouchers. Even though I have no children, I am happy to pay for public school funding to improve our state's standing related to education. From my research into this type of program, I see no true benefit to the groups of people who have an economic roadblock to sending their children to private schools. Our state's rural areas do not have easy access to private schools and any help through this program, would not provide enough money start help to provide children with true access, as there are a number of things other than tuition that create expenses for the families of students who might want to attend. This will only help those already enjoying private schools, by giving them a discount. I encourage all to vote no.

Maria Elena Ortiz, Mrs.
Myself
Fort Worth, TX

I oppose vouchers. Please vote against vouchers and school of choice.

Please increase the cost spent on education for children to $1300.

Elizabeth McCullough
Self
Red Oak, TX

As an educator for 15+ years, I am on the front lines. We, one of the wealthiest states in the country, have been underfunding public education my entire career. As of late, we have been held hostage in efforts to pass this voucher scam. Yet, we are still trying to do what is best for kids. Imagine if we invested in public education? Spent the money necessary to put us in the top ten in the nation. We could knock down so many barriers for these kids. Lower class sizes. You name it. And then the second is investing in teachers, retaining teachers, and recruiting teachers. Nobody wants to be a teacher any more and who could blame them!?! The way no one wants to listen to our opinion (when we are the experts in the field) but then blame us with the results they get. Yet there are some of us holding the torch in the darkness waiting for the state to come to its senses. Texas already has school choice. Fund public education. Invest in teachers. Don't provide welfare to the wealthy.

Alicia Baker

Self

Frisco, TX

Vote No to HB3.

Annie Bray

Self

Lubbock, TX

This bill DOES NOT have average working Texans or their children in mind. VOTE NO!

Teresa Douglas

Self

Lubbock, TX

I am a retired teacher and I am VERY MUCH against the voucher program, and very much in support of maintaining our public school system for ALL children in Texas - and some of why:

We need a consistent and quality education standard for teaching and testing of ALL of our students throughout our state. Private/voucher schools do not have to follow such standards for their students.

Many of our families cannot afford non-public schools, even with the help of a voucher system, and voucher schools do not have to take special needs children. These children are also deserving of a quality education. We ALL live in this world together, and we all learn from each other. If parents want to put their children in private schools, they can choose to use their own money to do so - but a voucher system reduces the option of a quality of education for ALL children.

Community life, strength, and livelihood has historically and largely been built around the local public schools in rural communities, and the voucher system would dilute this, and have a disastrous effect on these communities throughout the state.

Emily Petrisky

self

Port Lavaca, TX

This is NOT a liberal issue. This is for ALL Texans. ESAs (vouchers) are anti-public education. In public education, we take ALL of the students regardless of creed, socioeconomic status, race, or intellectual ability. Our economy thrives when the masses are educated. This will greatly impact all public schools, but especially the Title I schools in low socio-economic areas. ESAs are welfare for the wealthy, but truly hurt all middle-class and low socio-economic families that may not be able to afford the difference between the voucher amount and the actual price of the private school, as well as the transportation costs as private schools do not offer transportation. This program will also hurt public schools in rural areas, as they may not even have access to private schools to "choose."

ESAs undermine the very foundation of public education by introducing measures that prioritize partisan agendas over the needs of our students, teachers, and communities. I believe this bill will place an undue burden on our already underfunded schools and further exacerbate the challenges faced by our students and educators. We are already dealing with overcrowded classrooms, a lack of resources, and a system that is struggling to support all students equally. Instead of investing in solutions that improve our schools, such as increasing teacher salaries, reducing class sizes, and ensuring equitable access to resources, This bill seems to prioritize political motivations that hurt our students in the long term.

I ask you to reconsider your stance and listen to the voices of educators, students, and families who are directly impacted by these decisions. We need lawmakers who will support public education, fund it properly, and focus on creating an environment where all students can thrive, regardless of their background or the community in which they live.

Vahista Ussery

Swlf

Fort Worth, TX

Vote no! Do not defund public schools. You are destroying the future of our state, our children's education!!! We cannot handle more deficit, less funding to our district. Republicans and democrats are united in this cause - it's time to listen!

Shohreh Polozadeh

Self

Rowlett, TX

Texas does not need this. This will not help the children who need to be in public schools. This will only help parents who have money. We need more money into our public schools not vouchers for children to go to private schools!!

Cindy Miller

Self

Corsicana, TX

I am not in favor of tax dollars to fund a parents choice off private school. I have raised 5 children in attending both public and private school. Private school was a choice, but not my only choice. For many parents, they do not have a choice. Redirecting public funds only serves to reduce quality of public education and would only assist those like myself, who struggled but managed to pay for private school anyway. With the additional uncertainty of DOE funding, now is not the time to erode State funding of public schools. It would be a backwards move creating economic segregation of our kids, our teachers and our resources. I will not vote for any elected official that votes in favor of passage of this bill.

Molly Jessup

Self/teacher

Denton, TX

I oppose school vouchers because they defund public schools. There will always be families who need public schools, and those schools will always need to be funded. The school system cannot be privatized because there will always be kids who miss out.

Patricia Esquivel, Teacher

Self

Bastrop, TX

Against this most inequitable bill that is a slap in the face for public educators and the families that we serve!

Donna Lefevre

Self

Avoca, TX

Say ni to school t

Say no to school voucher

Rhonda Stratton

Self, Administrative Assistant with an education degree

Crowley, TX

In Rural Communities, Vouchers Aren't a Real Choice

Those who champion vouchers are out of touch with the realities of a state that encompasses nearly 270,000 square miles — second in size in the U.S. to only Alaska and big enough to simultaneously fit 15 of the smallest states, including Kentucky, Virginia, Indiana, Maine, South Carolina, West Virginia, Maryland, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Hawaii, Connecticut, Delaware, and Rhode Island.

Of the 5.4 million public schoolchildren in Texas, nearly 950,000 live in rural areas, where options other than their local public schools are few and far between. It's disingenuous to claim that vouchers will give these families more choice when that means driving dozens of miles every day to a private or religious school. It's not a realistic option for hard-working Texas families in rural areas of our state.

That's precisely why Texas' rural lawmakers have long opposed voucher programs. They know that vouchers would weaken their local public schools, which for generations have rightfully been the pride of their communities.

Vouchers Aren't the Better Educational Choice

A central argument for establishing a publicly funded voucher program is that students in failing schools would have access to a better education. The research clearly suggests otherwise.

An often-cited 2016 report tracked the progress of students receiving private school vouchers in Louisiana and found “strong and consistent evidence that students using an LSP [Louisiana Scholarship Program] scholarship performed significantly worse in math after using their scholarship to attend private schools” (p. 8).

In 2017, a group of researchers did an extensive survey of available studies and concluded “the evidence to date is not sufficient to warrant recommending that vouchers be adopted on a widespread basis.” They noted that awarding students a voucher is not a reliable way “to improve educational outcomes.”

Rather than funnel public money into a new voucher system with no guarantees, those seeking to expand school choice in Texas should consider how to do that within the current public school system, which already has experience in implementing new programs and initiatives to expand options for students.

Texas Public Schools Are Leaders in Choice

The data is clear on how well public schools in Texas are doing in terms of expanding educational options and choices for their students through specialized and personalized learning opportunities.

Here are some important highlights of that success, documented by the Texas Education Agency:

- Texas has nearly 200 public Early College high schools designated across the state, giving students a way to graduate with both a high school diploma and an associate degree.
- More than 1 in 5 Texas public school students in grades 11 and 12 took at least one AP or IB exam in 2019-20, helping ensure college readiness.

Continued in following message...

Richard Anderson

Self

Mansfield, TX

I strongly disagree with this house bill. This would take vital funds from already underfunded schools/districts. We cannot let him take our funds away.

Jessica Massengale

Self, parent

Plano, TX

I hope my Texas representatives stand with me and the majority of Texans in opposing ESA/school vouchers/school choice. The opposing amount increased and that's because it's a plan that is detrimental to the education of Texas children. In a country where we want to be the best and brightest, I hope our elected representatives stand with us to fight for public education - help us provide a great education for Texas children so that Texas and American can thrive!

Connie Briggs
Self/School Counselor
Kingwood, TX

I am asking you to vote No on this and any other Bill that includes voucher. This Bill is strictly political. The Texas public does not want vouchers. Vouchers will not help the average Texan or those with Special needs. Private schools will not serve these students and do not want them. Find Public schools do that we can provide an exceptional education for ALL students!! Vote No!

Sarah Hoffman
Brown County Christian School
Early, TX

First thank you for taking the time to read my comment. Though I represent a private, Christian School, I first and foremost want to say that as the bill is written right now, we would not be eligible to receive funds as a non accredited school. Our school has been open 1997 but was operated as a 2nd location of another school in Oklahoma which provided satellite accreditation. We've been operating independently for almost 2 years now without accreditation but have the goal of beginning the lengthy process soon.

Even though we would not be currently eligible, I want to say that I am in favor of the bill. A lot of comments in person mentioned that private schools often don't have special education services. This bill will give pathways to private schools to be able to start special services. For instance, at our school, we'd love to be able to offer services for Dyslexia, Dysgraphia, Autism, and more as we see the growing need in our own community, however, our limited financial resources keep up from being able to hire the specialized staff. Our administrator and a teacher have already been going to trainings for Special Education in Christian Schools and have already begun small steps to move in the direction of providing additional services. I hate it every time we are unable to accommodate a child's needs due to our limited resources. Parents that sit across from me all want the best place for their child and a lot of times motivated by the desire to see their child's education rooted in the Word of God. Even if ESAs do not happen, we hope to grow to be able to offer these much needed services. In the last 2 years, we've provided more trainings to our staff on these special education topics (including Dyslexia training) and try to accommodate students and IEPs if we are able, but if their needs exceed our limitations, accepting these students would be a disservice and not in the best interest of the child. I see ESAs can provide opportunities for private schools to expand special education offerings. Many may not, but it opens the door to increase extra services.

I had not heard one person share this view point, so I wanted to make it known. I heard a lot about how private schools can turn down students, and that is totally true. However, this could allow new private schools specializing in special education and disabilities to open, give current private schools an opportunity to grow in that area, and over time give more options to children with special needs, not less.

Whether you are FOR or AGAINST HB3, ESAs, and this school choice issue, thank you for advocating for the education of Texas children. Thank you for service in the Texas House of Representatives. Thank you for hearing both sides of the issue. Thank you for carefully considering what is best for our state. Thank you for stewarding Texas tax dollars in what you believe will be best for Texas. God bless you, and God bless Texas.

Paula Collins
Self/retired
Angleton, TX
Opposed

Cheryl Treadwell
Self - retired
Lubbock, TX

No to vouchers!! No to ESAs!!
Private schools do not accept ALL students! Public tax dollars should stay in public schools which do accept all students! Support public education by fully funding!!

Kathryn Garza
Self
Missouri City, TX

School vouchers are elitist and will not serve the majority of Texas kids. Private schools can and will pick only those kids they deem as suitable for their schools which will leave our underserved kids still underserved. Evidence from other states proves that the majority of parents who benefit from vouchers are wealthy ones whose kids were already in private schools before vouchers. Public money should stay public and should not be handed out freely to a small group of families. When you're able to provide vouchers for EVERY child in our state and when there are private schools willing and required to accept whomever applies, then maybe this could be revisited.

Cyral Miller
League of Women Voters
Austin, TX

I was at the hearing from before 8am and until a little before 10:30pm without being able to speak. Not sure how y'all lasted all night! I appreciate this opportunity to submit this testimony. from the League of Women Voters of Texas.

PUBLIC EDUCATION COMMITTEE

I am Cyral Miller, testifying as a member and on behalf of the League of Women Voters of Texas in opposition to HB 3. We appreciate the opportunity to appear before you today. Thank you for allowing us to share the League of Women Voters of Texas position on this bill.

We Oppose HB 3.

The League of Women Voters believes that an equitable, quality public education is critical for students and that taxpayer dollars should be allocated to public institutions subject to public review and supervision. This commitment to public education is also enshrined in the Texas constitution.

The League of Women Voters opposes any program using taxpayer dollars to fund private, for-profit, or religious schools. Education savings accounts divert taxpayer dollars to fund private education delivered by entities and vendors that are not accountable to taxpayers. Given that our Texas public schools are already underfunded, experiencing school closures, discontinuing programs, and losing highly educated, professional, certified educators, any further decline in funding will make it even more difficult to provide the high-quality education our students need and deserve.

Voucher programs have not been proven to increase student achievement or expand opportunities for students with the highest needs, they operate without the requirements for state approved curriculum, certified teachers, or academic accountability, they are not subject to mandates to address special education or English learner needs, they lack transparency and equity considerations, and there are few high-quality private options in rural areas. If private schools are to be the beneficiaries of public money, the public should have the ability to judge the quality of instruction, as they can for public schools; for example, by using state test results, attendance and graduation statistics.

Texas already allows for school choice. The League of Women Voters encourages lawmakers to prioritize the equitable and adequate funding of our public schools. Public education is the best investment we can make in the future of our children and our state. For additional information, please contact: Sharon Hirsch, Public Education Issue Chair, hirsch.sharon@gmail.com.

The League of Women Voters is one of America's oldest and most trusted civic nonprofit organizations. Formed in 1919, the League of Women Voters of Texas represents over 13,000 grassroots advocates and 34 local Leagues across the State of Texas.

Nicole Duvall
Self
Fort worth, TX

Against school vouchers. They hurt kids. Any politicians for this is either corrupt, stupid or both.

Dax Petty
Self
Fort Worth, TX

Against vouchers

Addae kraba
Texas Unitarian Universalist Justice Ministry
Boerne, TX

Tacking tax dollars for public schools to fund private schools is egregious and unjust.

Samantha Sanders
Self
McKinney, TX

I am writing to oppose HB 3. I send my children to public schools and they have been well served by those hard working teachers and staff that put so much heart and work into providing my children with the tools they need to succeed. I want public schools to receive the funds they need to provide the best education we can offer students in the state of Texas. Other states like Indiana, North Carolina, and Louisiana have voucher programs and the academic results are mixed, at best. Why would we rob public schools of funds for a program that hasn't demonstrated its effectiveness in other states? Why do families that can already afford private school need public funds to send their kids to private school? I believe we need to do the most good for the most number of students, and I believe that is through fully funding our public schools.

Rachelle Edwards
Self - parent of 3 school aged children
Lucas, TX

Hello, I am writing today as a parent of three Texas students in a small north Texas district. My district, Lovejoy ISD, has suffered many set backs over the years due to the way Texas funds it's public schools. The ESA/Voucher programs being proposed would directly impact my district in a negative way. Funding loss estimates for Lovejoy ISD range from $500,000 up to $1.6 million dollars. We cannot afford ANY loss. We are constantly fundraising in an attempt to make up for the way the state short-changes us. For example, we have resorted to crowdfunding the salaries of some of our school marshals because the state requires us to meet security standards, but doesn't provide the funding necessary to meet those standards. We only had three elementary schools to start with, and we have had to close one of them. We have had to cut a class period from our middle and high school days - hence cutting classes and reducing educational opportunities for our kids. We are having trouble hiring and retaining certified teachers because our schools are so chronically underfunded. To have this voucher system implemented that would reduce our already meager funding even further feels like a slap in the face. We should not be diverting public tax dollars to private schools while our own public schools, that serve the vast majority of Texas children, are struggling to pay teachers and keep their doors open. As a taxpayer and a parent, this entire plan feels like a betrayal. Tax dollars are supposed to be used for public services, not handed over to private businesses that are exempt from oversight and allowed to, essentially, discriminate against children with disabilities by choosing not to enroll them. I want my tax dollars spent on making our public schools the best in the country. As it stands, Texas schools are ranked in the bottom half of the nation. We have no business spending public funds on private entities while our schools are slipping down the ranks. We should be investing aggressively in all students' futures; not just the ones who happen to live near a private school.

Kelly Mills
Self
Mesquite, TX

Please think again about what these bills do to public education in Texas. Public schools already struggle to adequately pay teachers and staff. They already struggle to implement government mandated programs without sufficient funding to do so. They already struggle to maintain safe and updated antiquated facilities. They already struggle to provide health and community services to students and parents. Instead of taking money from public education to fund a voucher system geared toward those already able to seek alternative education, please invest money into our public schools so that all students in Texas can receive public education at a higher level. Invest in teachers and staff so all Texas students are served by the best. Invest in programs that serve to advance all Texas students so we graduate students who are the best in their fields and who will be sought after to represent and serve our state, communities, and nation. Invest in facilities and technology that provide safe and savvy environments for all Texas students. School choice doesn't have to exist outside of our public schools. Work to create a public school system that provides for choice within the system at strong schools supported by our Texas government, parents, communities, and taxpayers. Texas deserves to be #1 in the nation for quality education for all students, not just the few.

Dave Mason
self/retired
LEXINGTON, TX

Please consider that MOST Texas student have no access to private schools and giving $10,000 to some parents will not change this. There are no private schools in Muleshoe or Dime Box but those hard earned tax dollars will flow somewhere to private individuals who may or may not need them. Since when is $160,000 any indication of poverty? Average income for 2023 in Lee County is under $35,000. PUBLIC MONEY BELONGS IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS as per the Texas Constitution, not billionaires who fund political campaigns. This is robbery of public funds for private purposes.

Mary Brown
Self
Georgetown, TX

As a native Texan and 23 year veteran teacher, I ask you to vote no on HB 3. Vouchers will primarily benefit families who can already afford private education, while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. Private schools do not have to accept students with disabilities, special needs or behavior challenges, thereby leaving the choice with the schools and not parents. Furthermore, this violates separation of church and state and I want NONE of my tax dollars to support someone else's religious ideology. Please uphold the Texas constitution and fully fund our public schools.

Carl Carl
Self
Austin, TX

I do not support vouchers. Stop draining public school funding.

Lily Garcia
Self, Family.
Houston, TX

My family and I are homeowners, homeschoolers, freedom-lovers. We pay over $6k in property taxes yearly, vote, and serve as educators in our community. We stand in opposition to this bill, which serves as a slippery slope into additional regulation and loss of liberties. This bill holds little to no benefit, and the repercussions will be felt for generations. Please listen to the people.

Misty Schnabel

Teacher

Mineral Wells, TX

Vouchers hurt public schools! I'm a teacher at Millsap ISD and have been for the last 15 years! We are paid less but educate business men/women, doctors, lawyers, nurses, teachers, and. Etc. we educate ALL students we don't choose! We need that money in our schools to pay teachers, paraprofessionals and provide for the students who deserve the best education and that doesn't mean private schools! Private schools choose and refuse! Public do neither but we do educate ALL! Think about how many teachers you will screw over with this stupid bill! We don't have enough now! You will be putting teachers and students in danger if you pass vouchers! Over loaded classes is just asking for trouble and it's not fair to the students nor the teachers!

Pam Lougee

Self

Austin, TX

"Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As s Texan, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance. Vouchers are welfare for the rich, please use our tax dollars to help public education and educators.

Cooper Woodard

Self

Paradise, TX

School vouchers are a terrible idea and will make the state broke. Help public schools so all Texas children benefit.

Delinda Lucke

Self

Floydada, TX

I taught in public schools for over 17 years. The amount spent on each public education student by the State of Texas is not near enough for all the programs and services they are expected to get and for all the things that they are supposed to effectively learn. I believe that the State of Texas should be spending more on public education and actually fully and effectively be paying for that education, and not taking tax payers' money away from those public education students. I believe that parents that want to put their children in private schools should pay for them on their own. In most rural communities, like the one that I live in, there isn't a private school within 30 miles and it requires a lot more than tuition to pay for that private education, like gas for driving that distance twice a day. Also, private schools do not have the same standards, accreditation requirements, or any kind of accountability, like standardized testing to track their learning and results, or how their money is spent on, and for, each student. I don't believe that public education funds should be spent on private schools, in any way or for any reason.

Eve Myers
Self—consultant
Tomball, TX

My concerns about this bill are the same as last year and every time this ESA scheme has been presented since James Leininger first funded the voucher plan. Fund public education FIRST to ensure ALL students have the opportunity to attend a high quality public school. Restore the $4.5 billion that was withheld in 2023 AND increase the basic allotment to offset the impact of inflation. Do not create a separate entitlement that will cost taxpayers billions with zero accountability as to how the funds are used. As a taxpayer, parent of two public school graduates, and community member in Tomball ISD, I want to know that any private school funded with my tax dollars has to meet the same standards as our public schools. Any schools receiving a voucher should have to accept ALL students, hire certified teachers, and test students annually using the STAAR test and report data so student achievement can be compared to public school students. Private schools should have to meet the same safety requirements as public schools. Vouchers or ESAs should be limited to those who cannot afford private schools and should not be used as a discount for those already sending their children to private schools. The ESA program should be limited to a small percentage of students so that the program doesn't become unaffordable for the state as we've seen happen in AZ and other states where it's created budget deficits. And there should not be financial benefits to vendors for managing the program. This is nothing but a vendor bill in disguise. Fund public schools and forget ESAs.

Kristen Nowell-Green
Self/self-employed hairstylist
Wylie, TX

Please, vote NO on HB 3.

Maria Robinson
"Self" Skin Therapist
Cypress, TX

I am strongly against this voucher bill.

This bill will not benefit those that need it , instead it will give the wealthy a reduction in their private school costs , which the majority , if not all , do not need assistance with - it is a waste of money that could be put to much better use .

This bill is of no use to those in the lower income bracket as they would still not be able to afford private education . This must be stopped .

The most dispicable part is that it is also taking money away from public schools - what an absolute disgrace - anyone who genuinely cares about education in Texas should not support this bill . Anyone who does support this bill needs to take a long hard look at themselves , their morals & be SURE they understand what this bill means . Think of young children & not how many $'s you can save - be good , be kind , do the right thing & don't be selfish so those who are not as fortunate as yourself , have the chance of a good education , money not taken out of public schools & an opportunity they deserve .

Kristen Shepperd
Self
College Sta, TX

Parents currently have a choice to send their kids to private schools or home school. Our public education system needs to be fully funded. There is no other option. Parents wouldn't need alternative schooling options if the public schools were funded and could support all the necessary programs. Do not pass this bill or fund this ridiculous program. Public education first.

Eli Newman
Chabad of Allen-McKinney
Plano, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Kimberley Martin
Representing Myself as a Parent and Community Member
San Antonio, TX

I am a Republican, I strongly oppose HB 3, and I am against school choice and vouchers. Public funding should not be used for private schools. A proposal of $10,000 a year for vouchers for private schools and raising the basic allotment only by $600 per public school student is sickening. As a product of public education and a educator in the public school system for 28 years as a teacher, assistant principal, principal, and director, I believe those who support the bill want to destroy the public school system.

Nicole Herron
Self - parent
Allen, TX

I am writing to request that the education committee oppose HB3.

School choice and vouchers are not the same thing. No one is saying that parents can't choose private or home schooling. But taking money away from public schools for vouchers only hurts the people that already couldn't afford those choices and really doesn't make it actually about choice. Garland ISD allows school choice within the district. The only requirement is that parents provide transportation if they choose a school that isn't in their neighborhood. That choice I can get behind. But vouchers only take away from the schools that are doing everything they can with as little as they already get for their students.

Again, I request that the committee vote NO on HB3.

Sincerely,
Nicole Herron

Kristy Ybarra
Self/Parent
San Marcos, TX

We already have school choice! No to the vouchers. It will not help those who can not afford private school! Want to help schools get rid of the STAAR Test!

Juan Cortina
Macedonian Christian Academy
McAllen, TX

My kids have always attended private schools. My daughter is currently a public school teacher and thrives on strong biblical foundations. My son is currently in a private high school and is thriving in community service and I strongly believe that Christian schools impact our youth.

Lisa Bushong
Self retired teacher
Houston, TX

FUND PUBLIC SCHOOLS FIRST
By increasing their basic per student allotment which hasn't been intended since 2019. DO NOT divert taxpayers funds from public to private schools.

Tiffany Baban
Self
Houston, TX

I oppose vouchers & I implore you to vote against this bill.

Lauren Nygard

Representing my self, my children, and all the children of Texas.

San Antonio, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a native Texan, 5th generation, whose entire family are products of the public education system, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution.

Beth Crowley

Self

Spicewood, TX

I oppose school vouchers categorically.

Michelle McVey

Self, public school teacher

Brookshire, TX

I want to strongly express that I do NOT support HB3 and the education savings accounts (vouchers). Our public schools are sorely underfunded, forcing class sizes to grow, certified and experienced teachers to leave the classroom, and forcing ISDs to hire inexperienced or uncertified teachers. Our public schools are educating the next generation of Texans, and I know we would all appreciate being able to hire well-educated workers in every sector of the workforce, as well as be able to elect well-educated leaders. It is a constitutional obligation to fully fund our public schools. Please listen to the public who actually uses the public schools and vote AGAINST HB3 and educational savings accounts.

Julie Weidemann

Self, RDH

Brenham, TX

This house bill is a disgrace. I do not understand how any of those who voted for it actually believe it is what the people of Texas want and believe it is a good idea. This bill is not fare in any way and will only make the education system worse. I am a republican but I am ashamed of all the republican representatives that voted in favor of this. I am still trying to wrap my mind around the fact that people actually think this is a good choice. It is absolutely crazy!

Carole Harbison, Mrs

Self

Lubbosb, TX

Please vote against HB 3. This bill serves 2% or less of Texas students but causes a great disadvantage for 98%. We must protect public education.

Tara Fitzpatrick

Self

Houston, TX

FUND PUBLIC SCHOOLS FIRST by increasing the basic per-student allotment, which hasn't increased since 2019, to offset the impact of inflation and RESTORE the $4.6 billion in funding that was withheld in 2023. Also, restore bus service to neighborhoods for the safety of students. NO TO THE VOUCHER SYSTEM.

CARA FULLER

Self

Sanger, TX

This bill does not benefit the majority of Texas students. This money should go to public schools to help fund the items public schools are currently struggling with including unfunded federal regulations.

Rachael Jenkins

Self

Fort Worth, TX

Public schools are dying! You need to fully fund them! As at MINIMUM the per student allotment needs to be raised $1,300 to get to 2019 levels if you account for inflation. There is no more fat to be trimmed in these districts! Please! They need to be FULLY funded! Now!

Diana Bridges, MS

Self church staff

San Antonio, TX

Vouchers disproportionately benefit the wealthy and also subsidize religious education. It's the job of the legislature to fund public schools for the benefit of all Texas children--not to do the bidding of Greg Abbott and his billionaire enablers.

George Edwards, Mr

Self

Center Point, TX

I strongly oppose HB 3 and any other bill that promotes the voucher scheme. Passage of such legislation will destroy public schools and rural communities. It will only benefit the rich. It is also unconstitutional as the Texas Constitution calls for free public education for the diffusion of knowledge. It also creates a significant divergence between haves and have nots. The American Dream is based on the ability to rise above one's circumstances. And the key to that is education. This bill will close off opportunities for those born in less fortunate circumstances to succeed. It also goes against the basic premise of public education to create a community of successful citizens. Not merely pawns for billionaires and religious fanatics. Grow some balls and do your job. Even if you are a Conservative. Nobody voted for this bullshit or the line of bullshit you are trying to sell. Don't allow yourself to be a prostitute for special interests.

Ashley Anderson

Self

Spring, TX

Texans do not want vouchers! We want public education to be fully funded. We have a lack of resources to help our students because the state has a surplus they are refusing to use to help students. These students need all the resources we can give them!

Pat Ridlehuber

Self education

Woodway, TX

Have you thanked the teacher who taught you to read? You might do that by supporting public education that you messed up by creating this bill. Fix your mess by voting NO.

Jerri Pool

Self, retired educator and grandparent

Round Rock, TX

Texas school children deserve better than under funded public schools. Taxpayer money should not be used to fund private education especially since there will not be the accountability that public schools face. If legislators are wanting to change the education system in Texas by funding vouchers with taxpayers money, then I feel that voters/taxpayers should have a chance to vote on the issue. I am absolutely against funding ESAs with taxpayer money.

Sarah Dyer

Self

Georgetown, TX

I support public education and DO NOT support vouchers!!!

Joyce Litwitz
Self
Round Rock, TX

No school vouchers for private schools

Steve Cook
Self
Austin, TX

Our schools and teachers need better funding! NOT USING ALREADY UNDERFUNDED SCHOOLS TO HELP THE RICH PAY GIR PRIVATE SCHOOLS. Our students and our state deserve better!!!! Do the right thing and VOTE AGAINST SCHOOL VOUCHERS

Nicole Zunker
Self
Cypress, TX

My name is Nicole Zunker, and I am a parent, an educator, and a resident of Cypress, Texas. I am here today to urge the committee to oppose House Bill 3. This bill would have significant negative consequences for our education system and the students it serves.

I'm employed in the third largest school district in Texas - I teach in a high school that has a student population that is close to the total population of my hometown (about 4,000 people) - it's quite the change. This year my largest class size is 32 students. I don't have enough desks for each student as each classroom is allocated 30 desks and there aren't any more to be had on campus, so I purchased two folding tables so my students had a place to sit and learn. If this bill were to pass, my district would have to make even more budget cuts to cope with the loss of funding, likely in staff reductions this time - which could mean I could be looking at class sizes of 40+ students. How are students supposed to learn in a class that size? How am I supposed to get to know my students? Building relationships is the reason I am in education - people matter. Their stories matter.

Shifting our tax dollars to private schools in the name of "school choice" is robbery. School choice for who? Not my Special Education students who are almost always denied entry into private schools because of their disabilities. Their only choice is public school and it's criminally underfunded now. We barely have the resources we need to serve our vulnerable student populations. Teachers barely make enough to make ends meet - I should know. I'm a single parent to two kids on a teachers salary. It's becoming untenable.

Instead of implementing the measures outlined in HB 3, I urge the committee to prioritize policies that strengthen public schools, invest in teachers, and provide equitable opportunities for all students. Texas should focus on improving education through increased funding, reduced testing pressures, and policies that empower educators and local school districts. Our public schools go beyond preparing the next generation for the future - they are the lifeblood of the present.

For these reasons, I respectfully urge you to oppose House Bill 3 and advocate for legislation that truly supports Texas students and teachers. Please, think less about the wants of the wealthy that help line your pockets and more about the needs of your constituents who are lining the Capitol today. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Frieda Schuck

Self

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Janann Pittman

Self

Houston, TX

I am writing to strongly oppose Texas House Bill 3 (HB 3) introduced in 2025, which seeks to expand school vouchers in the state. As a concerned citizen and advocate for quality education for all Texas students, I believe this bill will harm public schools and undermine the core values of equity, fairness, and opportunity in our education system.

Expanding school vouchers would divert much-needed funding away from public schools that serve the vast majority of Texas children. Public schools are the cornerstone of our education system, legally required to accept all students, regardless of background, abilities, or socioeconomic status. By funneling taxpayer dollars to private schools, HB 3 would severely weaken the resources and programs available to students in public schools, especially those who rely on them for a quality education. This move would disproportionately impact students in low-income and underserved communities, who are already facing significant challenges and disparities.

Instead, I recommend increasing funding per student, as research shows this approach has a proven impact on academic performance. A 2023 study from Rice University's Kinder Institute for Urban Research found that increased funding directly improves student outcomes, including academic achievement, behavior, and future employment (source: Rice University Study: <https://kinder.rice.edu/urbanedge/when-it-comes-education-outcomes- we-get-what-we-pay>).

Hispanic, Black, and other marginalized students face disproportionate financial barriers due to systemic racism and historical inequities in education. Increasing per-student funding would help bridge this gap, offering these students greater opportunities for success. A 2021 study from Rutgers University calculated the cost of bringing the average test scores of the poorest 20% of students in each state up to the national average. The study found that in Texas, $12,682 per student annually is needed to close this performance gap (source: Shanker Institute Study: <https://www.shankerinstitute.org/sites/default/files/The%20Real%20Shame%20of%20the%20Nation.pdf>).

While the gap in funding is substantial, it is not insurmountable. By prioritizing alternative legislation that invests directly in public schools, we can ensure all students receive the quality education they deserve.

Public School Funding = a Strong Texas!

Anne Price

Self, Nurse Practitioner

Hurst, TX

I am a native Texan who grew up using the Texas public education system. Because of my education, I was successful in college and was able to achieve a master's degree and Nurse Practitioner certification. I am now raising two children who are also using the public education system, and I love their schools. However, funds are already short and we are often having to fundraise and donate, both time and money. And this is in a zone that I would consider to be one of the more advantaged in our school district, so I can only imagine what challenges schools in a lower socioeconomic area are facing. A voucher system in no way benefits a student who cannot afford private school as a voucher would not cover their entire tuition. As our state elected officials, it is your job to advocate for a robust public education system in your state, a system that is accessible to all children and that provides a strong educational foundation regardless of socioeconomic status. A voucher system takes away even more funding from our students who rely on public education. I cannot understand why it would be prudent to market "school choice" when this is already an option. A discount for the rich does not improve outcomes for the majority of Texas children. Please advocate for your Texas children and build up our public education system instead of stripping it away- this is your job!

Julie Welch

Aisd

Austin, TX

Nooooo on school vouchers!!!

Pamela Wilson

Self

Cypress, TX

Vouchers are good but state needs to regulate charter schools and require standardized tests the same as public schools. But people should have a choice. When public schools compete, they will not keep bad teachers and teach liberal agendas.

Nancy Marston

Self

Dallas, TX

I am totally against this bill. We need more money in public education. This bill will benefit the wealthy families with students in public schools. And will cause schools to be opened that charge the exact amount of the vouchers that won't be required to provide special education.

Krista Conner

Self; Teacher

Abilene, TX

Parents and guardians currently have the choice of where they want their children to attend. All funding should be used for public education, not for vouchers.

Taylor Tidmore, Dr.

Self - Physician

Abilene, TX

I just recently joined the Abilene ISD school board in June of 2024. I am still learning a lot, but I have really enjoyed the job so far. I have had children in AISD for 15 years and it was my deep love for the district that motivated me to run for school board last year. While I have always been very appreciative of the district, being on the board and getting an insider's look has made my love and appreciation of our district, our administrators, and our teachers grow exponentially. I get to witness on a regular basis a group of people giving their heart and soul to better the lives of the children of our community.

While the work they do is so impressive, it often seems they are fighting an uphill battle. It often feels like they are not getting the support and appreciation they need and deserve from the state level. While money cannot solve every problem, it sure would make their jobs easier and their chances of success seem much more in reach.

In August the AISD school board, like 50-60% of the districts in our state, adopted a deficit budget ($14 million in our case). We did not adopt a deficit budget because we are not being good stewards of our money or because we are being wasteful. It is because our public schools are not being funded at a level that has kept up with inflation and allows us to do the job of educating kids at the highest level. In the last six months we have made major changes to help us move towards a balanced budget—implemented a hiring freeze, enforced a strict staffing matrix, voted to close two elementary schools (one of which my kids attended for 14 years), and asked principals to begin cutting expenses by 5-10%, just to name a few examples.

I am asking you to fight for an increase in the basic allotment. While special moneys for safety, implementing new curriculum, and teacher raises is great there is no guarantee the money will be given in the next legislative session. The basic allotment is the money schools can count on to be there consistently and that they can base a balanced budget on. A $500-$1000 increase in the basic allotment would go a long way towards allowing districts like ours and others across the state to do the job they are asked to do.

I would also ask that you vote against Governor Abbott's Education Freedom Plan / ESA / vouchers. Using state funds for private school education is unacceptable in my opinion. We have a lot of low-income families in our district. Even if you give them $10,000 they still cannot afford one of the few private schools in our city. And even if they can come up with the funds there is no guarantee the private school will accept them. Not to mention all the rural communities in our area have no private school options to even consider. Taking money from struggling and hurting schools and giving it to private schools is not the solution.

I think you are aware that the large majority of the Texas public is against vouchers. Please listen to them!

April Hughes

Self

Moran, TX

I am asking you to vote not to HB2 AND HB 3. Passing these bills will tell me all I need to know as far as the value you place in me as a public school teacher. I have wanted to be a teacher for as long as I have been alive. I have poured my blood, sweat, and tears into this profession. I have seen students find their passion and been there when they find success in the classroom in something that was a struggle for so long. By taking funding from my classroom and giving it to a private school because parents made a CHOICE to send their child is wrong on many levels. As with Joe Biden's student loan forgiveness program, parents make the choices to send their children to private school or homeschool their children. Those same parents should figure out ON THEIR OWN how they will find that choice. No one is forcing them to do that. If you want those who choose to go to college to pay their own way, then it should be the same for parents who choose private school for their children.

Yvonne Beatty, LTC(R), US Army

Self

Lakeway, TX

The voucher scam is just that, a scam that misrepresents what funding for vouchers will do or not do. More importantly, it will take already insufficient funding of public schools, down and away from where it is needed, and give it to people who have plenty of money, and can already afford to pay for their kids to attend private schools. There is already a "choice"; and unfortunately those who cannot afford this "choice" will be even more disadvantaged by less funding to public schools. The Governor is lying to Texans. It's shameful. Educating our children is the best thing we could do for them, and stripping funding away public schools is robbery. We the public aren't stupid, as much as Abbott may think we are. I know he owes his billionaire buddies brothers from Cisco, who run a weird private church/ school, because they believe in religion and tailored schooling, also called "grooming", but we aren't buying it, and we know AND YOU KNOW, it's bad for average Texans. Please do not vote for school vouchers.

VIRGINIA JENTSCH

self & neighbors

Arlington, TX

As you have seen in the news, private schools have no oversight as to what they pay administrators. One religious school district of 1000 kids was paying the superintendent $800k+ in salary & bonuses. Much of the money controlled by the parents will be spent on private lessons--horseback riding, rock climbing, etc. Arkansas allows this as do other states. Most of Arkansas' vouchers were spent at the urban private school used by the governor.

Why would I want my tax dollars going to pay for a child's hobby?? Welfare for the wealthy!

Parents already have choices in public schools--a lot more than they will get in a little private school with uncertified teachers. Give public schools the funds they should have gotten 6 yrs ago and maybe this state wouldn't be so far behind in reading & math. Private schools only work for rich parents who can provide transportation, can pay the rest of the tuition, their child has no disabilities, the child can pass the entrance exam & provide references, and the child is white. Keep our public schools strong--they are the foundation of our Democracy.

Karen Trost, MS

Self/editor

Keller, TX

I am against HB3; establishment of an education savings account program would fund school vouchers with taxpayer money. Instead of funneling funds toward unregulated private schools, I recommend that the Texas legislature focus on fully funding and supporting Texas public schools so that every Texas student has an equal chance of success. Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Phyllis Prycer, Ms

self

Mesquite, TX

Please put a stop to the School Voucher bill!! It places a disproportionate burden on those least able to go to private schools. Properly fund public schools and raise the bar there. Then, more will be wanting public education!! Abbott's additional concern to encourage training for the trades is admirable, but seems contra to the vouchers. Folks in private schools are less likely to want a vocation with plumbing, electrical, etc than those in public schools.

Just say NO! to school vouchers!! Small districts and rural counties will suffer!

If state of Texas can afford to fund private schools at $10,000 per student, it can't afford to do less for those who attend public schools! We should have "Students over Billionaires!" Most likely those kids won't have transportation to the fancy schools because their parents work! If you give a portion of Texas school-age students a certain amount, ALL Texas school-age students should get the same amount!!

Please stop this School Choice/Voucher nonsense OR take it to the voters!!

How many Congressmen have a direct connection to a private school?? Would be interesting to know and definitely a conflict of interest!

Ann Jones

Self

Austin, TX

No to school vouchers!
We need an educated society.

Sam Graff, Mr.

SELF

Austin, TX

Please consider leaving the education system in place as it is. Only the rich will benefit from school vouchers. The citizens of Texas and the United States deserve better than this proposal.

Nicola Toubia, ESQ

Self -- Attorney

Houston, TX

Dear Elected Officials, I am strongly against vouchers for public education. From 2010 - 2017, I served as a Commissioner to the Houston Housing Authority, which is responsible for distributing Section 8 vouchers to eligible persons. In 2014/2015, my fellow Commissioners and I opened up the housing voucher waiting list for new applicants. We had over 80,000 folks apply for 2,000 vouchers. I STRONGLY OPPOSE education vouchers because supply will never ever equal demand. Further, I do not want my hard-earned tax dollars to subsidize education costs for wealthy students. That is ridiculous and inefficient. My tax dollars will go farther by providing good public education to more Texans. I favor a strong public education system because I want to interact with educated Texans -- whether they are drawing my blood, fixing the roads, or repairing my car -- because educated folks will do a better job. These vouchers are a very very bad idea.

Elizabeth Strand

Self

Buda, TX

I urge you to reject the establishment of an education savings account. Give that money to public schools. Texas ranks in the bottom 10 states for per-student funding. Put your efforts and money into making public education in Texas the best it can be. Say no to vouchers!

Angela Sherr

Self/ teacher

Richardson, TX

Vote NO on HB3

Katherine Storck

Self

Austin, TX

As a teacher and voter, I oppose the school voucher programs because it takes money away from schools and therefore children.

Robert Szafran

self

Nacogdoches, TX

Please vote NO on HB3. It will ultimately hurt all Texas public schools. It will particularly hurt rural public schools. It will disburse public monies to private organizations without adequate monitoring.

CLOEVA SPITZER

PTA/ Parent/ Student/ Self

Carrollton, TX

This is not good for public education. Stop holding our public funds! Uphold Article VII of our state constitution that requires the state legislature to establish and maintain a system of free public schools. Article X prohibiting the diversion of the fund for other uses (private school funding). FUND OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Jill Black

Self

Fort Worth, TX

As a former public school teacher in Texas and a parent of 3 children who attended public schools, I want to register my STRONG opposition to vouchers. Vouchers do not offer low income people access to private school, they essentially provide another financial incentive to the wealthy. Our wealth gap in Texas has increased and our testing scores have dropped. We need to FULLY fund education and restore basic allotment by at least $1340 to return to 2019 levels.

Jeremy Matthews

self engineer

Plano, TX

I am opposed to HB 3, because it diverts state funds away from "the support and maintenance of an efficient system of public free schools" as required by the Texas Constitution. Public schools are the schools that need help, and they should be the legislature's focus. HB 3 is a diversionary effort that does not put faith in or a best effort into our public school system. It undercuts our public schools. Public schools are foundational to our communities. Instead of strengthening that foundation, HB 3 weakens it. HB 3 is about very wealthy people pushing the state legislature around with their financial contributions to get their wishes for private and religious-based schools. They don't need any help. They're doing just fine and can fund their favored private schools themselves. Do not make ordinary middle-class and poor taxpayers do this. Finally, tax dollars should not go to schools which are highly unaccountable compared to public schools which must meet many standards and can not turn away students.

Madeline Thorpe

Self, teacher

Cypress, TX

I am a concerned constituent from Cypress, TX and I'm urging the Texas House of Reps to vote NO to HB 3 and the educational savings account program. Instead I would urge you to advocate for increased funding for public schools that does more than simply keep up with inflation.

I am a private school teacher who supports full funding for public schools so that ALL students in Texas have access to high quality education. The proposed educational savings account program is expensive and yet will only serve a very small percentage of Texas students. While it claims to serve low income students, the income threshold is high and it does not provide adequate funding to allow truly low income students to attend private schools. Thus, this will amount to a coupon for select families who already have the means to attend private school. Additionally, it only funds enough educational savings accounts to support a very small percentage of Texas students and only some Texas counties even have access to private schools. All our students deserve a high quality education, regardless of their family's income or which county they call home.

This is not school choice. Abbott has curried favor with billionaires to push an educational savings account program that Texans on both sides of the aisle do not support. PLEASE VOTE NO on HB 3.

Angela Briggs Briggs

Self

Trophy Club, TX

Public money should go to public schools only. Stop trying to hold public funds hostage by trying to create a voucher system to give public dollars to private religious schools.

Rhonda Greene, Ms

self

Austin, TX

Texans do not want to have school voucher programs created, implemented or funded. We want our Public Schools to be fully funded as promised by the implementation of a State Lottery. What happened? Why are 73% percent of our school districts underfunded? And 14% drastically underfunded. We need to fix our current education system, fund it correctly and stop trying to complicate the system along with adding additional, not well defined, oversight. Where did this idea come from and why are we still discussing it?

Lindsey Deringer

Self

Wimberley, TX

Hello,

I am a parent of three Wimberley ISD kids and am also a newly elected Wimberley ISD school board member. I ask that you please consider our public schools and how we have had to pass deficit budgets the last few years. We cannot afford to lose any more public funding, that includes funding to vouchers. I have seen so many people against this bill, including republicans and democrats. I have rarely seen, if any, people for this bill. Please REALLY listen to your constituents. Seek us out, ask us. Funding is in a dire situation in districts like ours and we hope that you hear that and consider that when contemplating your vote. I ask that you vote AGAINST this voucher bill. Thank you for your time and commitment to doing what is best for Texas public schools.

Lindsey Deringer

Samantha Armbruster

Self

San Marcos, TX

Please don't dismantle our public education system. Our school district is a community and family support system and needs MORE of our support and funding, Not less.

Stand up for Texas kids, stand up for the future of Texas-do not pass this bill and move forward with vouchers

Leonora Boulton

Self, stay-at-home-mom

Austin, TX

Let's slice through the rhetoric and call this what it really is; one more way for billionaires to make money and destroy the lives of regular Americans. All of your talking points are outright lies that I don't have time to refute here. We have school choice now; people are free to transfer to schools. They are also free to talk with their school if they have an issue, and the school is pretty likely to listen to them because they're so desperate for enrollment and funding after a seventy-one-year smear campaign by the Republicans. Because, let's be honest, vouchers were an idea in response to school integration. A ticket away from black students. A way to ensure that white people didn't have to share any of their resources with the people they had been taught to hate. I've watched Senator West politely bring up this point. I won't be so polite. Vouchers were a way to avoid integration in the 1950's, and they are a way to further segregate our schools today. They are absolutely rooted in racism and white supremacy. I'm not worried about my family, we can afford for me to stay home and homeschool when our schools disintegrate. I'm also not worried about Christian Nationalists who are terrified of their children being taught truth, it's about time they return to reality. I'm worried about the rural poor and the black children who will be victims of a new form of structural racism. Your president has banned that word, as if we live in a country without free-speech. Forbidding things doesn't eliminate them.

After he suggested to southerners that they create a voucher program, Milton Friedman went on to found Ed Choice. Milton Friedman is an economist. I'm not sure why anyone thinks an economist is the person to listen to when it comes to education, but I guess if he's singing the tune you want to hear, you'll listen. In the bits of the Senate Education Committee hearing and the floor debate, I heard Senator Creighton reference this non-profit and their research several times. It's funny, when I want to make a case for or against something, I don't use biased sources. That was literally what I taught my 8th grade students. I'm happy to lead a seminar if any of you need a refresher on an 8th grade persuasive essay. Milton Friedman is also a Libertarian. Libertarians fundamentally do not believe in public education. Here's where that funny piece about listening to an economist about education comes in. They think schools are better with the free-market. Here in America, we worship at the feet of the free-market, but we haven't actually been living with one for over one hundred years, in my opinion as a non-economist, former educator. Public schools are not businesses, this is a fallacy. I'm not sure what type because I'm not an attorney, but I know rotten logic when I see it. Our schools exist for the public good and they serve every child in our community. They are not profitable, and their nature as a space for everyone necessarily means their "sc

Anita Acharya, Mrs.

self, wife, mother, school volunteer, events coordinator

Austin, TX

I am deeply concerned about the proposed education savings account program (school vouchers) in Texas, as similar programs in states like Indiana, Louisiana, and Ohio have failed to demonstrate meaningful educational improvements. Research shows that students using vouchers in these states often experience declines in academic performance rather than gains.

In fact, these programs disproportionately benefit students already enrolled in private schools, diverting taxpayer dollars away from public education without expanding opportunities for the majority of students. Vouchers also fail to provide equitable access, particularly in rural and low-income areas where private school options are scarce, and no transportation funding is provided to help students reach distant schools.

Texas families know that our lawmakers have both the ability and the expertise to do better for our students and teachers—investing in fully funding public schools, increasing teacher pay, and ensuring all students, regardless of zip code, receive a high-quality education. Instead of diverting resources to programs that have repeatedly failed elsewhere, I ask legislators to focus on strengthening our public schools, which serve the vast majority of Texas students.

Donna Ferry

Self

Boerne, TX

This is a terrible idea. Really you are helping the rich. There will not be public education any more. Only a voucher system. And what about special ed. ? Who is going to help them ? Be proud of what you do

Carolyn Shirley self retired RN
Lexington, TX

I am opposed to HB 3 By Buckley because it gives tax payer money allotted for pulic school students to private entities offering educational experiences to wealthy families who choose not to allow their children to attend school with ordinary Texas students. Our public schools are and long have been underfunded to a crisis point where teachers and other staff cannot make a living.

Ashton Landers
Self, CPA
McKinney, TX

I am urging the House of Representatives to vote NO on HB 3. Public taxpayer dollars should not be used to subsidize a student's private school tuition. If the Texas government feels that public schools are lacking in such a significant way that we need to use taxpayer money to fund "school choice," meaning we need to use tax dollars to send children to private school, the issue at hand is only being worsened. Public schools are already suffering from inadequate funding, which leads to inadequate resourcing. Pulling money away from public education is not the answer. I have multiple close friends who used to be teachers, who were amazing leaders and examples for today's youth, but they have left teaching because they are unable to provide support for their families with the salary they made teaching. One of these friends recently had to re-interview for her tenured job due to budget cuts, which would result in her making the same salary she started at a decade ago. With an average annual inflation rate of 2.6% in the past ten years, this is unacceptable when it comes to how our teachers are being compensated. Approving this school voucher bill will only make this problem and other issues facing public schools worse. Recent polls show that the majority of voters oppose this school voucher program. Also, 85% of parents polled reported that the voucher amount being discussed would never be sufficient to fully cover private school for their child. Therefore, the only people who will benefit from this bill are people already sending their kids to private school (i.e. people who already have school choice). Please listen to the voices of your constituents and vote no on HB 3.

Helena Dobay
retired
San Antonio, TX

The Texas Constitution requires the state to provide an adequate education for all students. Yet Texas ranks 43rd in the nation in public school funding and teachers are paid lower than in most of the country. Having a well-educated population is crucial for a functioning democracy as well as to compete with other countries economically. These bills call for public school funding to be siphoned away to private and religious schools. Private schools cost more than $20,000 per year per student. Public schools are a vital part of rural towns and are often the largest employer. Public schools do much more for less. Whereas private schools do not educate students with learning disabilities and can turn away students, oftentimes small towns in Texas do not have any public schools. Public schools are used for election polling places, community meetings, and offer vocational training, nurse care, counselors, social services, job training, sports, statewide competitions, clubs, and other benefits to the community. Public schools are required to follow the state curriculum, but private schools are not. Public schools offer standardized tests to measure academic attainment. Public schools prepare students for college and jobs. Private schools can be places in which ideologies are fostered, rather than academics. Public schools provide the foundation for well trained workers who can work in specialized technical fields. Public schools are an essential part of our state responsibility to educate all students and are a source of pride, inclusion, and opportunity. Private schools are mainly used by wealthy families. They should remain private and public funds must not be devoted to expensive and often inadequate learning facilities. Please save our public schools using some of the over $35 Billion budget surplus so that Texas can improve its rankings. Texans deserve strong schools that are majority funded by the State of Texas. Do the right thing for Texans and follow our desires and needs. Do not keep giving money to boondoggles like the $400 million being spent on an Alamo expansion. Use it for schools, healthcare, mental health facilities and providers, infrastructure, and job creation instead. Public school educators should also be eligible for both social security and TX TRS benefits. Thank you.

Cleophus LaRue, Mr.

Self

Kemah, TX

I am opposed to HB 3 that would use public money to pay for children's private school tuition. I strongly support public school education and urge the Texas legislators to vote against this bill. .

Ruth Harmon

Self

Georgetown, TX

Taxpayer funds need to go to Public NOT Private Schools!

Our Public Schools have been neglected for 5 years - DO NOT send Public dollars to Private Schools.

Greta Davis

Self, Counselor Educator and Professional Counselor

RICHARDSON, TX

Dear Committee,

My name is Dr. Greta Davis and I am a counselor educator and administrator and professional counselor. I am also a parent of two children who attend public schools. I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB 3 and to urge you to reject this legislation. The introduction of school vouchers is a recipe for disaster in Texas public schools by siphoning off money to be redirected to private school. It will most certainly destabilize the public school finance system in Texas. Our public schools are underfunded, and taking taxpayer dollars away from the public system through vouchers will cripple our public schools. Many of the costs of having a school open are fixed and taking dollars away to fund private institutions is one less dollar available to our students, teachers, and schools. Also, unlike public schools, which are subject to rigorous oversight, accountability, and transparency requirements, private schools that accept voucher funds are not held to the same standards. There is no guarantee that these institutions will provide a high-quality education, and taxpayers have no means of ensuring that their hard-earned money is being spent effectively. If we are going to spend public funds, those funds should go toward systems that are accountable to the public, not unregulated private institutions. Vouchers also disproportionately disadvantage rural and marginalized students. Low-income students and students with special needs, are less likely to have access to private schools that can meet their unique needs. Vouchers will further entrench inequality and widen the gap in educational opportunities for those who need it most. I believe that public schools should remain the cornerstone of our educational system, and I urge you to stand with our students, teachers, and communities and the majority of Texans who through polling are opposed to vouchers. Please reject HB 3 support our schools.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Dr. Greta Davis

David Tuthill, Mr.

School tax pkayer via property taxes

Dallas, TX

Several thoughts regarding school vouchers:

- 1) Why will this not be voted on by the citizens in an election?
- 2) Availability of students to benefit from "Vouchers"-those who come from under privileged families, disabled students, and rural families where there are no private schools in the area.
- 3) Home schooling; Seem to recall that a sizeable amount of money (10,000?) per student has been mentioned, Large families with many children would receive how much money from the state taxes? Can easily see that this income per family would grossly exceed the amount they would have paid in school property taxes. Also to what level of "competence" would these home schools be held to-would the student be able to pass a GED for example?
- 4) I have always been concerned regarding the amount of money paid on such items as football stadiums -here in the Dallas area there are several high $$$ priced/valued football stadiums (Allen, Garland and Plano come to mind). Perhaps a "structure" outside education should be devoted to sport-
- 5 As an old person (geezer) I am wondering after all these years of paying school related property taxes why are those over 65 burdened with this at all?

Nicholas Cardenas

Self

San Antonio, TX

I am a parent and former teacher. I made a choice when my daughter turned 5. I chose to send her to a public school. I had the funds and means to send her to a daycare. I have the funds and means to send her to a private school. I choose not too. Every parent has this choice. This new bill will not strengthen my choice or give me a new choice I never had before. Please understand that I am completely opposed. My school district is underfunded because this Legislature is withholding funds if they do not get their way. Please fund the schools we have and do not pass this bill. If people are concerned about the content of education, please remind them that this Body, a Republican based Body, is responsible for the standards taught, not teachers. Teachers take the standards and teach them. For parents who want their children to be in a Christian environment, it starts at home. Please do not pass this bill.

Kasey Havens

Self

LUCAS, TX

Please consider students who are low income and parents will not be able to commute them to a private school. The proposed savings will not be enough for low income families to still afford private school. Provide funding for public schools so that they can hire and retain good teachers to provide a good education for all

Amanda Erickson

self

Austin, TX

I'm going to keep this short as you probably won't read or consider any of these testimonies. No one wants vouchers. Not Republicans. Not Democrats. Not Independents. If you actually listen to your constituents (which I'm pretty sure you don't care to do) you will find that NO ONE wants vouchers, especially rural republicans. This is a solution looking for a problem. We all know from looking at other states that have implemented vouchers that it ends up going to a limited amount of people and absolutely balloons the budget to give away money to people who are already in private schools. I wish I had the bandwidth to provide a more eloquent response with all sorts of facts and figures (as I'm sure you are getting) but at the end of the day are you actually going to listen to the people who voted you into office??? Guaranteed that the program will balloon and only support the wealthy while taking money away for the other 5.5 million kids in public school. Just imagine what type of society we could have if we actually funded schools appropriately! Cures for cancer, alzheimers, better and more interesting work, etc. The sky's the limit, but without actually funding public education you are limiting what YOU could be benefiting from.

Jonathan Blundell

self

Forney, TX

I am firmly against school vouchers or "education savings account programs" in Texas. They will do nothing to assist my family in selecting a better school but it will take money away from the public schools they currently attend. The closest independent schools to us is 20-30 minutes away and we've already heard that one of them in our area already plans to deny vouchers because they don't want the state dictating curriculum. Other schools in the area are further away and they may take vouchers but at $15k a year for tuition, my family would have to pony up $15k for three of our kids to attend as well as be responsible for transportation to and from the school and after school activities. We already have school choice in Texas. If I want to homeschool my children I can, if I want to spend money on tuition to an independent institution I can. I can also enroll my kids in dual credit courses at the local community college if I choose. Public schools need more funding, not less. Vote no on HB3.

Molly Thornberg

Self

Lucas, TX

NO to HB3. This has got to be a joke. Let's solve real issues, fund public education properly, pay our teachers what they deserve and stop with talk of ESAs/vouchers. Neither party wants this, stop with the games and fund our public schools.

Mitzi Behnke

Self -Mother

Murphy, TX

Vote NO on Vouchers!

Ellen Bennett

Self

Fort Worth, TX

I reject HB3 based on expert testimony and the fiscal note presented on HB3. This is not sound fiscal policy and it will hurt Texas public schools. We need Public Schools to be properly funded so the next generation of Texas can be smarter. Reducing the amount allotted to public does not help create a better future for all out little Texans.

Esra El-Haraty

Stinson Elementary School

Richardson, TX

I am asking you to vote no to the school vouchers bill. Our tax dollars should stay in our public school systems that serve all Texas children, including the kids that need it the most. It ensures they have access to the kind of education that grows the Texans of the future. Neighborhood public schools are the glue that helps hold our communities together and funding them only serves all of us versus the select few.

Paula Bales

Self- data analyst

Austin, TX

I am strongly against vouchers of any kind. I am an upper middle class parent of a teenager in a private school and I would benefit financially from this bill, but that does not make it right. Fund our public schools. Pay teachers. This is a cash grab in the guise of school choice. It's not going to help poor families—only leave them further behind. $10,000 does not cover tuition at most private schools, meaning they are still out of reach for most families. Private schools are not required to accept any and every student. They can discriminate. They can reject. They are not required to provide accommodations for those who need extra help—and those that do often place a hefty price tag on that assistance. Vouchers are a scam and school choice an illusion. Be better. Do better. Vote no on school vouchers.

Megan Herdman, Mrs.

Self

San marcos, TX

I oppose this bill as it is an attack on public education.

Ann Ideker

Self

Dallas, TX

I am against this bill. As a home owner/ resident of Dallas for the past 40 years, I have always been in favor of having and fully supporting/funding a public system. For those who wish to go private school they can with their own finances. A country is as only strong as its weakest and least educated link. The voucher system would take away money from public schools and hurt the poorest of the poor who live in the most marginalized neighborhoods.

Claire Heath

Self

Wylie, TX

I oppose HB3. It is not a clean bill. We already have school choice. Private schools should stay private and not have access to government funds. If you care about the future of the state of Texas, you would invest in ALL children not just some.

Colby Cress
Self, business man
Sugar Land, TX

I oppose HB 3.

Janell Moyes Children
Austin, TX

We should be proud of our Texas Education system. We should the model of how to educate all students. While we should laud parents who scrimp and sacrifice to provide their children's best education -- We must also be deeply ashamed we failed those children and their parents. The proposed educational savings will not improve our education in Texas - it creates a new point from which Texas to bleed money and a point where we will not have any improved measures of student success. Parents should be free to choose to decline public education -- yet absolutely law makers should be unwaveringly focused on making Texas the best state for public education.

Lauren Nix

Self, executive board member PTA

Houston, TX

Chairperson and Members of the Committee,

My name is Lauren Nix, and I am a parent in Spring Branch ISD in Houston and I am providing my written testimony to urge you to support legislation that will close the funding gaps in critical education programs that serve our students.

The data from SBISD's state funding allocations highlight a troubling trend -- our schools are significantly underfunded in key areas, forcing them to absorb millions in unfunded costs. Special education, safety and security, transportation, and pre-kindergarten programs are all experiencing funding shortfalls that put immense strain on school districts and, ultimately, harm our students.

For example:

Special Education: The state allotment for special education in 2023-24 was $31.5 million, but actual expenditures reached $53.5 million, leaving a $22 million shortfall. This gap is projected to be $20.3 million in 2024-25. Without adequate funding, students with disabilities may not receive the legally mandated services they need to thrive.

Safety & Security: In 2023-24, the state provided only $0.9 million, but the actual cost was $8.9 million, creating an $8 million deficit. For 2024-25, the gap is projected to grow to $10 million, putting school safety measures at risk.

Transportation: The 2023-24 state allocation was $1.5 million, while the cost of maintaining transportation services was $10.4 million, leading to an $8.9 million shortfall. In 2024-25, the gap is expected to be $8.3 million, making it difficult to ensure students have reliable and safe transportation to and from school.

Pre-Kindergarten: This critical early childhood education program faced a $3.7 million funding gap in 2023-24, with an estimated $3.2 million shortfall in 2024-25. Underfunding pre-K limits access to high-quality early learning opportunities that set children up for future success.

Our educators and administrators are doing their best with limited resources, but without legislative action, these funding shortfalls will continue to compromise the quality of education and essential services for Texas students. We need a bill that ensures state funding keeps pace with actual costs of running these programs. These includes:

Increasing the Basic Allotment at a minimum of $500

Fully funding special education services to meet the true cost of providing federally required support for students with disabilities.

Increasing state funding for school safety and security to protect students and staff.

Expanding transportation funding to ensure students have safe and reliable access to school.

Boosting investment in early childhood education to support pre-kindergarten programs that lay the foundation for academic success.

I urge you to prioritize our students by closing these funding gaps. Texas schools cannot afford to keep operating with such large deficits, and our children deserve better. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Holly Saunders, Mrs.

Self

Houston, TX

Chairperson and Members of the Committee,

My name is Holly Saunders, I am a current parent/community member in Spring Branch ISD in Houston, as well as a former SBISD special education teacher and speech language pathologist in HISD. I am providing written testimony that is the opposite of what I have spent years supporting with my fellow area parents. The schools and district are failing to meet the academic needs of the students. My family has now decided to pursue private school, even though it will be a financial burden for us on top of paying high school and property taxes that support SBISD. I don't think that my family will meet the requirements for the voucher system, but something has to change and we'd like the opportunity to try for private school financial support. I urge you to support legislation that will allow for the voucher program.

My family have been huge advocates for public school, and wish our schools could provide the academics as well as private schools. We still support increasing the allotment so that the public schools have a chance to close the funding gaps in critical educational programs that serve students. We especially would like to see funds and support directed towards gifted and talented students, as well as those with dysgraphia and dyslexia, all of which have been underserved.

My husband and I have been very active participants in school and district level committees over the last 9 years in attempts to improve the academic components of our children's education. Both our sons are identified as GT and one is identified as having dysgraphia. These special needs areas have received minimal support, but the general academic needs have also been neglected. All things considered, our academic-focused family is having to leave the public school system that we've supported our entire lives. What do you think would help a family like ours? Vouchers? More money for academic support in the public schools? Both? Something has to change in our education system. Please try to do your job well so we end up with a well-educated next generation.

Brian McFarland

Self

Plano, TX

I oppose HB 3!

Micah Murphy

Self

Wylie, TX

I OPPOSE HB3

Amy Vega

Self

Vidor, TX

I do NOT support HB3! My tax dollars should NOT be going to vouchers for private schools in any way! The public school systems should get every dime of that money!!!

Heather Hammer

Self

Mckinney, TX

This morning I am praying that Texas listens to their people! In an increasingly divisive climate, we all seem to agree on this one thing- school choice vouchers are NOT in the best interest of Texas. As the mother of 3 public school students and the wife of a teacher, I have seen how our public schools are building our communities and creating leaders of the next generation of Texans. Each year it becomes a little bit harder as budgets are cut and our schools continue to be under funded. Invest in ALL the children of Texas!

Christine Gibson

Self

Richardson, TX

I am firmly opposed to vouchers. School choice already exists but it does not require funding from public schools. Support appropriate funding for public schools now in order for them to effectively run.

Samuel Hallerman

Self, Freight Forwarder

Fort Worth, TX

I am writing to state my opposition to establishing an education savings account program. My primary concern is that this program does not help, and could even be detrimental to the poor population's education. The amount of money laid aside by this program is not enough to cover full tuition at a private school, so the only people who already afford private schools would benefit. Public transit to private schools is limited, so people with working parents would not be able to use this. Private schools in rural areas are also next to non-existent. Put together this means only wealthy people in cities would be able to use this program. This is welfare for the wealthy. This program will also reduce the amount of money in our already poorly funded public education system. The way to fix our education system is to fund public education, not to seek alternatives.

Moishe Traxler, Rabbi

Chabad Outreach of Houston

Houston, TX

This bill is VERY IMPORTANT to me and our community.

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Holley Rider

Public education

Weatherford, TX

HB 3 is nothing more than pandering to the elite of Texas. The Texas education system is for the people, by the people. It is the education system that brings fair education to all. By pushing vouchers, this imperfect system will continue to fail. Not only will it serve a small fraction of the Texas private school population, there is no evidence that has been presented by Governor Abbott that this will in fact improve education for all Texans. Private schools are not held to the same standards like hiring certified teachers, accepting all students no matter their intellectual or physical abilities, no standardized testing from STAAR, having a nurse on staff, providing transportation etc. These are standards that are "good enough" for public education kids but not for the elite. This is an elitist push to satisfy the top tier income earners in Texas, and it wouldn't even cover all of them, only 100,000 students. That math isn't matching. There are over 5 million students enrolled in our public schools. Public schools haven't received an increase in funding since 2019. Through covid our schools were pinching pennies to meet the needs of our students and now inflation has made our funding unsustainable. We need a funding increase to continue meeting the needs of our students. Our public system is not perfect, but there is no one offering to pass a bill that improves the school system, only tear it down. Our children, future tax payers, and constituents deserve more. The way that Governor Abbott has handled this is deplorable. Holding funding hostage unless the Senate passes this bill is outrageous and shameful. His agenda is not to truly improve the school choice for Texans, it was to get a fat paycheck from Jeff Yaas. This bill will not only send a strong message to the students in public education, it will send a strong message to the teachers. Teachers make up a great deal of your voting population and this will certainly set a standard of care which you display for us all. This is a non-partisan issue. Check out Governor Abbott's Facebook comments. He is being reprimanded and destroyed by everyone in Texas even though he keeps trying to push this forward. Your constituents are speaking, but are you listening?

Ruth Noel, RN
Self Registered Nurse
Belton, TX

I support public schools and request that you provide uniform education for all students. I am opposed to the voucher system, as I believe it will negatively impact students that are not from wealthy families. Wealthy students should not receive special treatment and tax payer money to fund private schools that others cannot afford.

Crystal Meadows
Self, Director
Spicewood, TX

I oppose HB 3.

Victoria Cutaia
Texas public schools
League City, TX

Constituents do not want vouchers.

Kevin Smith Kids
Buda, TX

This bill is bad for Texas and our kids

Debby Schmucker
Teacher
Rockwall, TX

URGENT! ACT NOW THEN SHARE THIS POST!

Easy way to give comments without making a trip to Austin. This takes 2 minutes!!

Voucher bill being heard now!

Click and send:

<https://comments.house.texas.gov/home?c=c400>

Example you can copy and paste below!

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the “bought”? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Cynthia DeNard
Public school - teacher
Cypress, TX

What about public school?? What about teacher and professionals in public schools? My child working in a different field makes about 5000 less then me after I have been working 28 years. I have steered people away from education for the lack of support from the government. What about public schools, what is being done for them.

Abigail Restrepo
Self -Graduate Student
BUDA, TX

Please Vote NO on HB3 today. Our children deserve so much better. No one wants this bill in Texas. Let's be clear: Texas ranks among the lowest states in the nation for state funding of public education, contributing a mere 32%. This forces local districts to shoulder an overwhelming burden. If this legislature truly seeks to decouple funding from zip codes, it must invest in public education at the state level.

Furthermore, Texas has a shameful history of violating federal law. The state has illegally decreased funding and artificially capped the number of students receiving these vital services. The U.S. Department of Education and federal courts have repeatedly intervened, yet problems persist.

HB 3, as it stands, does not solve these problems. It exacerbates them. This bill in effect diverts public funds to private schools, offering $10,000 per student while public schools receive a mere $6,500. This disparity is not only unjust but also unsustainable. Proponents of this bill tout "school choice." But for families like mine, it's a false choice. There are few private schools equipped to serve students with complex needs, and even with vouchers, they remain unaffordable. More importantly, private schools are legally permitted to—and will—deny admission to students like my son.

This is not "school choice." It is a system that further underfunds public education, erodes the civil rights of students with disabilities, and creates a two-tiered system where some children are deemed worthy of investment, and others are not.

We don't need vouchers. We need the state to fulfill its constitutional obligation to fully fund public education. We need to safeguard the civil rights of all students, ensuring they receive a free and appropriate public education, regardless of their needs. Public education is the cornerstone of our democracy. As John Adams wrote in 1785, "the Whole People must take upon themselves the Education of the Whole People and must be willing to bear the expences of it. there should not be a district of one Mile Square without a school in it, not founded by a Charitable individual but maintained at the expence of the People themselves."

I urge you, members of this committee, to uphold that fundamental principle. Reject HB 3, and instead, invest in the future of all Texas children.

Christina Hernandez
Self - legal analyst
HUTTO, TX

I urge you to vote NO to defunding our public schools. We know the majority of Texas students and families will not benefit from the "school choice" bill. Parents already have the freedom of choice for their schooling needs. Do not take taxpayer money away from our children! NO to school vouchers.

Ashton Alkire
Self
Austin, TX

Please do not do this and support our public schools.

Sidney Nance

Self (Student and scientist)

Austin, TX

While this bill is packaged in pretty packaging, it is only to hide the fact that you are selling our children's education. This bill would only further strip funding for our public schools causing even greater education disparity for underprivileged students. The focus should instead be placed on sufficiently funding our public school system. Paying teachers fair wages, updating curriculum and technology, repairing infrastructure, etc. Please take a moment to listen to Texas' teachers. They are the professionals, they know what students need. Focus on what is best for all of Texas's children. Vote no. Keep our public education public.

Roger Schafer

Self

Canyon Lake, TX

Please do not use public money for private schools. Please do not allocate tax dollars to unaccountable schools. If you think that the public schools need improvement, then properly fund them. If you think that private schools, which don't face any accountability or measurement of student ability, are better than public schools, then consider removing the accountability "grades" and tests. I am against the state providing tax incentives or money for private school tuition.

Courtney Albright

Self

Richmond, TX

No to vouchers. We already have school choice in Texas. No to another educational agency and more taxpayer money going towards a program that is going to negatively change the private, public, and homeschool arenas. If the public system is broken - IT needs to be fixed! Start there. Lack of discipline, lack of family priorities, lack of accountability, crazy testing, moving children ahead who have no merit to do so, not giving teachers the ability to teach bc their rooms are full of behavioral problems and kids with needs that cannot be handled by a teacher alone in a classroom of 20 kids... etc. Please say no to this bill!! We don't want it for our kids or grandchildren or future Texans.

Ashley Baker

Self, parent and educator

Spring, TX

House bill three will decimate Texas public education. As Texas parents, we have always had school choice, and now you are taking public dollars to fund private institutions with not even close to the same accountability measures. If public dollars are going to other educational systems, then they too should be held to attendance expectations, certification requirements, and state testing mandates. Please fund public education first and foremost, the billion dollar surplus should go to public schools to help improve the system that we have been running on a deficit budget since 2020. If appropriate funding is provided for public school districts, then they can increase salaries, helping to retain high-quality teachers, and support the numerous programs that educate our various student populations. House bill three is not conservative spending for Texas. It is disappointing to see my representatives backing a bill that will not only negatively impact the students in public education, but the families and communities in my district and throughout our state. The negative portrayal of public education from Governor Abbott's office is disheartening because many of the factors that inhibit public educators from being successful were mandated by Governor Abbott and TEA. Fund public education first, then you will see improvements in the systems and structures when they are not having to do all of the mandates with a significantly limited amount of money.

If Houseville three is passed, then please even the Plainfield and remove the TEA and Governor Abbott mandates on attendance, certifications, and state accountability testing.

Gladys Gonzalez

Self

Uvalde, TX

We don't need vouchers we need our state legislators to increase public school funding. Our rural communities are in desperate need.

Larry Lentz, None

Myself

Austin, TX

Don't find private schools for the well to do parents. If they want their children to attend private schools they can fund it. Public schools need more funding not less.

Texans like to do things in a "Big" manner, except for education!

Janet Cloud

Self

Wylie, TX

No school vouchers

Emma Duncan

Self, student

Dallas, TX

I am strongly against the introduction of vouchers. Vouchers will make public education in Texas harder to access and less effective.

Matthew Vela

Self

Kyle, TX

I do not agree with this

Amy Denton, Keeping Homeschool Freedom

Self/bookkeeper

PFLUGERVILLE, TX

I am a home educator of 7 years and a mother of 2. I do not approve of HB3.

For the price being paid, not enough children will benefit from this voucher system. This will only benefit those who have invested parents, transportation, the skills/time/education to fill out these forms, and the extra money to cover the rest of tuition. This week also only benefit those who have educational options near them. This means our lowest income kids, who this is intended for/being marketed for, will not have the means to use this. Meaning, it will go mostly to lower middle class kids and Not to those it is saying it will help. Rural kids will not have a secondary option. This is educational welfare that will only help those that already have the means and options to privately educate.

Secondly, as a homeschooler, this is very concerning. Currently we are by law considered private schools. This re-categorizes us and will change how the educational laws apply. We fought hard to be considered private schools and will lose our protections. We are blessed to have one of the most free states regarding homeschooling and do not want to see this change. You can see in other countries and states that pass this voucher system slowly impose more and more requirements for homeschool and even outright ban it like in Sweden. My oldest child would have many SPED labels if she were in public school. On some subjects, she's 3 grades head of her peers, on the other subjects, almost 3 years behind. Because of we homeschool, we can work as long as we need to on any topic until she fully grasps what we are learning. This bill is foreshadowing the requirement of standardized tests for all Texas students and that will not work for my child. We sacrifice a lot for me to stay home with our children and educate them and will not be applying for this voucher. We are definitely qualified to receive this but will not be applying. I want to keep our hand selected curriculums that are working quite well for us and would not want to be limited to only those who are on the Texas payroll.

The idea is good but this bill is not. This is a huge tax burden that does not help enough children. Thank you.

Kathryn Rutherford

Self/retired public school administrator with 36 years of experience.

Johnson City, TX

Vote NO to HB3- please vote NO to vouchers

Elizabeth Navarro

Self

Melissa, TX

Vote no!! Vouchers don't work and there's data to back that up! Don't privatize education for Texas students!! Every child regardless of income deserves an education.

Julie Ham

Self

CANTON, TX

Listen to the people!

Cheryl Stepp

Teachers

Spring, TX

Why do we continue to cripple our education system? Stop putting bills into place, that hurt the teachers that are teaching our future.

Matt Brewer

Self, Teacher

Commerce, TX

I urge you not to support giving public money to unaccountable organizations, like charter, private, or religious schools. Public money should stay with accountable public schools. Not all students will benefit from education savings accounts or any other voucher like program. If it's not open to all students, it's not equitable and should not be supported with taxpayer money. Public schools are the only schools that provide an education to all students. If you want better public schools, invest in public schools.

Meaghan Peters

Homeschool/ Self

Hockley, TX

I strongly oppose Bill HB 3. As a single parent of a child with learning disabilities, I made the decision to homeschool after the public school system failed him through fifth grade. Despite my efforts, they refused to conduct the necessary testing, so I took matters into my own hands—at my own expense and by my own choice.

Since homeschooling, my son has thrived without unnecessary interference dictating what he can or cannot do. This has always been my choice. I have the financial means to send him to private school or relocate to another district if I wanted to—but again, that is my choice.

By implementing these bills, you are stripping away that choice. Eventually, government overreach will dictate how I educate my child. I carefully select the programs and specialists that best support his success, all funded out of my own pocket. Texas already offers choices—this bill is unnecessary and threatens the very freedom that allows parents like me to make the best decisions for our children.

Nathan Lammert
Just myself as a taxpayer
Mcgregor, TX

This will only help the wealthy. Whatever amount you are giving to a child for private education will only fund a portion of the cost. Tuition at these schools is so expensive no one but the wealthy could pay the remaining balance. Also a person chooses to move to a big city for whatever reason, usually high salaries. The school system you get is part of that choice. You have a publicly funded school system there like I have in Crawford. All is fair. Now you want me to fund what amounts to a luxury item because you don't like what you got with your life choice of a move to a big city. I cannot afford private school and there is not a private school within reasonable distance from my house. So I am being asked to fund something that is not possible for me to cash in on. It isn't possible for 90% of rural people because we don't make enough to fund private school tuition and there is not a private school nearby to the vast majority of rural school districts. Also, many of us own property and pay taxes. This is wrong. We are being asked to fund something for wealthy people only.

Leca Addison
Self retired teacher
Seagraves, TX

URGENT! ACT NOW THEN SHARE THIS POST!

Easy way to give comments without making a trip to Austin. This takes 2 minutes!!

Voucher bill being heard now!

Click and send:

<https://comments.house.texas.gov/home?c=c400>

Example you can copy and paste below!

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

William Weber
Self
Buda, TX

I am the father of a now 26 year-old autistic child. My son now has a job, pays taxes, has his own apartment, and contributes to the state in multitudes of ways. My son wasn't speaking until he was about 5 years old. The only reason he has succeeded to the level he has is because of the education he received from our public. When he was in school, there were limited programs so we contributed a lot to help bring more programs into the school. Please do not move forward with vouchers, this will eliminate a lot of families being able to afford education for children on the spectrum. There is absolutely no school that can help guide a young autistic child into success that is affordable to any family even with this voucher.

Rachel Forbes

Self

Lubbock, TX

Please listen..NO ONE but the wealthy will benefit from this bill passing! Public education will suffer and those that cannot or do NOT want private school will suffer. I beg you for once listen to the masses and vote according to what the majority of your Constituents want!

Tiffany McDonald

Self

Shallowater, TX

I fully support the Voucher system. I'm beyond excited of the possibility my child would be able to go to a private school. Please pass this. I am currently a teacher at Shallowater ISD.

Lindsay Perlmutter

self

austin, TX

I am opposed to HB3. It takes much needed dollars out of public schools. I also urge you to increase the basic allotment by $4000 or at least $1500. Though there are many moral reasons I am opposed to this bill, I would urge all members to also think about the political consequences of supporting the bill. Public schools and districts are the community hubs, social fabric, and often largest employer of your community. Those who support this bill will have to face neighbors who know that you chose out of state campaign dollars and were weak to political pressure over protecting your neighbors' jobs at the district, what's best for the kids in your community, and the joy and support that thriving schools and their events bring to all families in your district. Please choose kids, families, and our economic health over politics and out of state dollars.

Norma Tomlinson

Self

Richardson, TX

It has long been recognized that public education is essential and needs to be fully supported. Previous attempts to deprive Texas public schools of funding have failed for decades, and for good reason. Many counties in Texas have no private school options. How many parents, if forced to home-school their kids, are even minimally qualified to provide the standards for an education in the many fields of study that certified teachers have pursued while earning advanced degrees? Depriving public education to Texas is an unacceptable choice. Please oppose the school voucher bill.

Ashley Matthews

Self

Houston, TX

Stop the voucher scam bill. Public dollars are for public schools. It is really very simple.

Reagan Moore

Self

Lubbock, TX

Please but against this bill. I believe in public education. Do what's right for all kids.

Angel Fuentes
Houston, Texas.
Houston, TX

I stand before you today, troubled by a truth revealed in my research—a truth that shakes the foundation of our commitment to justice and equity. HB R’s tax plan, together with the proposals in HB3, risk siphoning off vital funds from child welfare—a system that upholds the promise of opportunity for our K–12 students, our youth who have aged out, and our higher education institutions—redirecting these resources toward universal Catholic schooling. As the HB3 Public Forum warns, “HB R’s tax plan risks redirecting funds from child welfare—affecting K–12, aged-out students, and higher ed. Its push for Catholic schools betrays freedom of religion and increases admin complexity, undermining family unification, disability support, and middle-class workforce growth.”

Data from Texas and Houston budgets reveals billions invested in education, health, and child welfare through general, dedicated, federal, and other funds. For instance, Houston’s FY2025 Budget sees property tax revenue at roughly $1.42 billion and sales tax revenue near $893 million—forming a General Fund of about $2.85 billion. Meanwhile, the state allocates nearly $29.9 billion to public education, $1.95 billion to students at risk, and $1.35 billion to support those with disabilities. If HB3 channels this abundant flow into selective initiatives, then the nourishing current that has sustained child welfare, disability accommodations, and robust workforce development will be constricted.

One glaring oversight in such proposals is the depiction of an education savings account as if it were a personal bank balance “owned” by each student and freely diverted from public schools. In truth, this money is public revenue, not a private pot attached to a single child. It funds teachers, facilities, and community-wide services, ensuring that all students, including those most vulnerable, receive equitable support.

Furthermore, Houston’s legacy of inclusion—exemplified when Mayor Anise became the first openly gay mayor—reminds us that overcoming obstacles and nurturing our youth are paramount to a just society. Let us, therefore, reject any measure that would divert these public funds away from the common good. Each adjustment, measured in billions and millions, decides whether our resources will empower every child, every family, and every community, or be misdirected to exclusive ventures that leave our shared commitments starved.

Erin Inala
Self/self employed
Round Rock, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a social worker who has worked in Title I schools across Central Texas, I have seen firsthand the impact of underfunded schools on students, families, and communities. For the future of all Texas children, I urge everyone to vote against the creation of a voucher program and to fund our public schools. Thank you.”

Angela Rouse
Self
Royse City, TX

I oppose HB3 vouchers and ESAs. Having attended private school myself, I believe taxpayer money should be used to support public schools and build the community. This bill limits opportunities for the majority of Texas students. Vouchers will be more costly to Texans than is being presented. Please, reject HB3 vouchers and ESAs.

Kip Sikora
Self
Austin, TX

I oppose the privatization of public schools, especially when motivated by unregulated theocratic interests.

Ashley Zimmermann

Self

Cibolo, TX

I do not want my taxes going to vouchers. I support the public school system. No vouchers!

Traci Phillips

Self

Lubbock, TX

Please listen to the vast majority of Texans who oppose education savings account programs. These programs are designed to benefit a select group of people who wish to further drive TX into being a theocracy. Vouchers are not "parental choice" as described by Abbott. They are a scam to further the initiatives of Christian white nationalists who fail to uphold the rights of the citizens of TX. Fund public education. Fund our teachers and future teachers who are shaping the the lives of our children.

Dana Gregory

Self/teacher

Lubbock, TX

Teachers are against HB3. This bill will cause complete devastation and turmoil for public education. Instituting a voucher system will seem like an attractive concept for some; however the long term results will be on the underserved in our community, those struggling with paying their bills and making ends meet. Those children will go with food and services if this bill passes. This bill would be a terrible disservice to education in general.

Valerie Ruiz

Self

Plano, TX

Please save our public schools! 504 accommodations are so important and should not be taken away.

Lancia Stewart

Self

San Antonio, TX

I received a fantastic public school education in Texas. Schools were well funded and teachers were paid for their expertise. Now the leash is controlled by billionaires, the governor and the lege are starving public schools specifically to claim they're failing when they're the ROOT CAUSE. Everybody deserves an education, not just whoever private schools pick. Stop creating a slave class and do what the Texas constitution requires you to do.

Brooke Cunningham Koss

Self

Richardson, TX

As a homeschooling parent who relies on our school district for special services, I am against defunding public schools in favor of vouchers. Public schools provide invaluable experiences for all children in our community. I am against the voucher program. Please do not pass this bill.

Katelyn Hoffman

Self

Sachse, TX

I am strongly against HB3. I can only see how this will hurt the already underprivileged public school students and underfunded public schools and teachers. This will cause tremendous harm in both the short term and long term for our state's education. Tax payer funds should go to assist public schools that are inclusive, available in all areas, and that offer services special needs.

Candice Bellis

Self - teacher, parent, business owner

Bryan, TX

Say no to vouchers and release funding above inflation rates to increase school funding paying teachers better and all school personnel.

Stacy Renfroe

Self

Cedar Hill, TX

When such a majority of voters are against this bill, I don't understand why it is still being discussed. It will hurt the public schools - the places where teachers are actually certified and held accountable. Instead of sending money for "choice" to a small percentage of Texans, the money should be used to actually strengthen the public schools.

David Wilson

self

Dallas, TX

I AM AGAINST VOUCHERS AND HB 3! Fund public education. Fund special education. Get rid of the basic allotment "disability penalty". Texans don't want vouchers. I don't want to use my tax payer money to pay for other kids to go to private schools. Parents can already choose to send their kids to private school as we have done for one of our children. I already pay $40,000/ per year for a private school to help my dyslexic child who Texas failed because of the 8.5% special education cap and because Texas failed to follow IDEA for our kiddos with dyslexia. I am fortunate and can choose to pay for private school but your $11,000 will not be helpful for those families cannot. Vouchers are a SCAM!

Amy Hoag

Self

Morgan Mill, TX

This bill isn't in the best interest of Texans. It does not benefit any Texans, but the ones that can already afford the tuition for a private school. Support and fund our public schools. Support its teachers and students. Take away the high stakes testing and stop strangling the curriculum. Hire someone at the head of TEA that actually has experience in education.

Understand that education is multi-faceted. It's a difficult job. Education is the only job people think they can do by proximity. It's "I've been in a classroom". Yeah, as a student. The pedagogy necessary is never learned or known. People don't assume they can be a surgeon because they've been in a surgery as a patient, but they do have that expectation with education. The training necessary isn't seen as important. Knowledge of Vygotsky, Bloom's, and many others is constantly changing, but the public doesn't see this. The Texas government does not support its educators, and that is pathetic. Makes me think you want to keep your voter base uneducated because then they continue to vote for you. Stop with this foolishness and support PUBLIC EDUCATION.

Lauren Ladd

Self

Conroe, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As Taxpayer and supporter of the public education system, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution.

Lewis Choate

Self and disabled son

The Woodlands, TX

Unless there are the same accountability standards as public schools, this is an outrageous use of taxpayer funds. Without similar standards, how can any Texan including the government know funds are not being wasted on in-effective education. Please make sure final bill includes the same evaluation standards and consequences for all uses of public funding ob education.

Cindy Kessler
All students of Texas
Texas City, TX

I am a strong opponent to HB3. I believe it to be wrong for public money to fund private entities. Texas has had school choice for years with public, private, charter, magnet, online and homeschool. With approx. 2/3 of the state's students living in areas where there are very few private school options, how is this bill what is best for ALL Texas students? To say it sparks competition for public schools to do better is an insult. There is no true competition without having a level playing field. Private schools only take the students with good grades, excellent test scores and great behavior, while public schools take everyone. A large population of special needs children will be discriminated against if this bill passes. There are many other points I could write but I know that you know them already. I am asking you to do the right thing for the children of the state of Texas and to put that money into better funding public schools. Please do the right thing and vote NO to HB3.

Thank you,
Cindy Kessler

Corrian Thompson
Self
Spring, TX

I do not support school vouchers. It is taking funding away from our public schools.

Latoya Higgins
Self
Cedar Hill, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas.

Sara Bonser
Self
Plano, TX

The idea that subsidizing private education will benefit students across the state of Texas is false. Less money for public schools that educate the masses is not the answer. With no accountability and inequitable levels of funding, this scheme is designed to destroy public education and privatize it. At the core of this country a free and appropriate public education is required and nothing about vouchers or education savings accounts is appropriate. It takes from the poorest and weakest and gives to the richest. Perhaps things by design but it is immoral and anybody voting for this has lost my vote forever.

Lucinda Ordonez
Self
Lubbock, TX

Good morning,

I am a constituent of Rep. Carl Tepper, living in zip code 79416.
Public funds should stay in our Public schools, aka(Public fund) not billionaires funds. The funds should not be divided up to Un accountable private schools.! Do not sell out our kids to billionaires! We the People will be watching you.

Thank you for your time,

Lucinda Ordonez

Shabbir Hossain

Self

Allen, TX

This will destroy public education and we should not stand for it.

Lindsay Wood

Self

Austin, TX

Strongly opposed to educational savings accounts. Public schools are already severely underfunded due to robinhood state recapture that equates to taxation without representation. The voucher program would further defund the public schools and leave them destined to fail. Most families will not be able to afford the remaining $10k (or more) costs that exceed the voucher amounts for private schools and even if they can, they may not find private schools willing to accept the if they have any specials needs or need any special accommodations and would have no such protections at a private school even if accepted. Further, they would not have access to school bus transportation leaving such an option not viable for working parent households. This bill should be called Every Child Left Behind! If representatives were actually representing us, they would be focused on improving the public school system by eliminating the robinhood recapture program and increasing teacher pay. Public tax money should go to public use and benefit - not only benefit the elite.

Erisbel Delgado

Jolt Action

Houston, TX

Hello, my name is Erisbel Delgado and I am a constituent in Houston. I would like the Public Education Committee to say NO to House Bill 3.

All Texas students deserve an education that prepares them for the future. The Texas state constitution says our Legislature is responsible for funding our public schools, not subsidizing tuition for wealthy families at exclusive private schools. There is no oversight for these private schools and they don't disclose why they choose or don't choose certain students. House Bill 3 diverts tax dollars away from public schools, and those dollars should stay in public education.

I previously served as an elementary public school teacher and saw firsthand the lack of funding that hindered students' access to essential resources. House Bill 3 will only worsen this issue by severely underfunding our public schools, making it even more difficult for students to get the support they need. As I worked with predominantly Hispanic students, I know that Black and Hispanic students make up more than 60% of Texas public schools. House Bill 3 threatens to further undermine their education and future opportunities. This bill fails to address the real needs of our diverse student population.

I'm a concerned Texan and I ask our representatives to vote NO on House Bill 3.

Andrea Robinson

self - mother

Houston, TX

My name is Andrea Robinson and I am writing to ask that you vote against the school voucher program. Making public funding available for educational programs that have no accreditation and no oversight to meet minimum standards, while sending less money per student to the public schools, which have established goals and measures for educational goals at each grade level, is an irresponsible use of our tax money.

Our family has 2 kids in public school, and one in a private school / homeschool combo. While I agree that private or homeschool should remain an option, it should NOT be funded by the state. Our state needs to keep its focus on the public schools.

In addition to disagreeing with the vouchers altogether, I object to the disparity of the amount. Why should a public school student receive $6380 in funding and private school student $10,000? If you insist on going to go forward with this voucher idea, these two amounts need to be fair and equal.

Additionally, I think the funding for school vouchers will ultimately bring greater inequality and division in our society. If the public schools are not adequately supported, the neighborhoods that are joined by the fabric of the schools they share will be more disjointed. Just as the transition from the nightly news to internet news delivered by algorithm has increased the divide in our country, swapping to a system where more kids have a less common ground in their educational experience will bring even greater divides in our country's future.

Luanne Nelson

Self

Austin, TX

Please do not vote for the "education savings account program." We need to support our public schools by providing more financial support, not less. I have two granddaughters currently attending the Austin public schools and don't want their educations affected by this bill. I also worry about those families in rural areas who do not have private school choices. Their public schools should also be financially supported so that Texas children can receive the first class education they deserve.

Marguerite Monogue

Self

Dallas, TX

House Bill 3 (HB 3), introduced by Representative Brad Buckley, proposes the establishment of an Education Savings Account (ESA) program in Texas. While intended to offer families more educational choices, this bill raises significant concerns regarding its potential impact on public education.

Diversion of Public Funds

HB 3 would allocate taxpayer dollars to private educational expenses, effectively diverting funds from public schools. This reallocation could exacerbate existing financial challenges within public school districts, particularly those already underfunded. Superintendent H.T. Sanchez of Plainview ISD highlighted this issue, stating that such programs could significantly reduce public school funding.

Equity and Accessibility Concerns

The proposed ESA program may disproportionately benefit higher-income families, potentially widening educational inequities. Critics argue that voucher systems like the one proposed in HB 3 often fail to assist low-income students as intended, instead favoring those who can already afford private schooling.

Lack of Accountability

Private schools receiving public funds through ESAs are not held to the same accountability standards as public schools. This discrepancy raises concerns about the quality of education provided and the appropriate use of taxpayer money. Without stringent oversight, there is a risk of funds being misused or directed to institutions that do not meet established educational standards.

Public Opposition

The bill has faced substantial opposition from various stakeholders. Dozens of local elected officials across Texas have expressed their dissent, urging legislators to oppose the statewide voucher program proposed in HB 3.

Additionally, public school advocates recently rallied near the Texas Capitol to protest the bill, emphasizing the need to prioritize funding for public education over voucher programs.

Conclusion

While the goal of expanding educational choices is commendable, HB 3 poses significant risks to the integrity and funding of public education in Texas. It is crucial to consider these potential consequences and explore alternatives that strengthen public schools and ensure equitable access to quality education for all students.

Rosanne Joseph

Self

Kingwood, TX

Representative Buckley and Cunningham,

I strongly oppose the establishment of an education savings account program. I am a speech language pathologist that worked in multiple employment settings. My experience in the public school setting was by far the most valued. I witnessed dedicated teachers and staff that worked collectively for the benefit of all students. The voucher system would create an unequal access to education and discriminate between the "haves" and the "have nots." The public generated funds should not be used to undermine and discriminate by funding private schools- who can choose their student population and are not accountable to their performance.

Josue Rosa

Jolt Action

Dallas, TX

Hello, my name is Josue Rosa, and I am a constituent from Dallas, Texas. I am writing to urge the Public Education Committee to reject House Bill 3. Every Texas student deserves access to a high-quality education that prepares them for the future. The Texas state constitution clearly states that the Legislature is responsible for funding our public schools—not subsidizing tuition for wealthy families at exclusive private institutions.

House Bill 3 diverts critical tax dollars away from public schools, where they are desperately needed, and funnels them into private schools that lack oversight and transparency. These private institutions are not required to disclose their admissions criteria, leaving many families in the dark about why their children are accepted or rejected.

This bill essentially uses taxpayer dollars to provide a discount for wealthy families who can already afford private education. Meanwhile, working-class families who might be interested in this discount cannot afford the remaining tuition costs, as private schools are extremely expensive. This means the bill primarily benefits those who are already financially privileged, further widening the gap between the wealthy and everyone else.

As our representatives on this committee, your priority should be strengthening our public schools, not undermining them. If you help pass this bill, let it be clear that you are diverting resources away from public education, House Bill 3 jeopardizes the quality of education for working-class families. Our schools are already underfunded, and many are being forced to close. This bill only worsens this crisis.

I urge you to stand with working-class Texas families and vote NO on House Bill 3. Our public schools need your support now.

Edgar Sanchez, Mr.

Jolt Action

Cedar Hill, TX

Hello, my name is Edgar Sanchez and I am a constituent in Cedar Hill. I would like the Public Education Committee to say NO to House Bill 3.

All Texas students deserve an education that prepares them for the future. The Texas state constitution says our Legislature is responsible for funding our public schools, not subsidizing tuition for wealthy families at exclusive private schools. There is no oversight for these private schools and they don't disclose why they choose or don't choose certain students.

House Bill 3 diverts tax dollars away from public schools, and those dollars should stay in public education.

I have nieces and nephews who will depend on public schools as my sisters and I have in the past.

I'm a concerned Texan and I ask our representatives to vote NO on House Bill 3.

Margaret Wirick

Self / Teacher

Grapevine, TX

I do not support HB3 voucher bill.

Emily Herrell

Self

Mckinney, TX

I oppose HB 3

Grace McCreary
Self, Non-Profit Think Tank
Austin, TX

I wholeheartedly support HB3. Put parents in charge of their child's education by supporting education savings accounts. ESAs would allow all parents to customize their child's education for their unique needs. It's time for Texas to put parents and students first.

Nancy J Rodriguez
Self
New Braunfels, TX

Taxpayer money should be used to fund Public School as it was intended. I do NOT support Education Savings Acct. meant to divert money to private schools and take money way from public schools. Parents have a choice in their child's education. It is THEIR RIGHT & RESPONSIBILITY TO PAY FOR IT NOT TAXPAYERS.

VOTE NO on ESA & VOUCHERS!

Kellie Klotz
Travis County Resident
Austin, TX

I oppose this bill and I am against school vouchers

Jane Ford
1800166784
Spicewood, TX, TX

"I oppose House Bill 3 and its proposal to implement school vouchers in Texas. Public education is the foundation of a strong society, and it must remain fully funded and accessible to all children. Instead of diverting resources away from public schools, we should be working to strengthen and improve the system we already have. We need to ensure that every child in Texas has access to the resources, support, and opportunities they need to succeed, no matter their background."

Margaret Rhoads, Mrs.
Self - nonprofit development director
Houston, TX

School vouchers only benefit those who are already able to pay for private education and effectively doom poorer and rural children to be educated in extremely underfunded public schools. Special needs kids like mine have been shortchanged for years and now the legislature wants to take even more resources away from their education? How does that make sense? It's almost like you WANT Texas children to fall further behind their peers in better funded states. Our state government should fully fund public education in Texas - which it hasn't done for decades - and FIX the problems there, not make it worse by bleeding it dry.

Shawn Blagowsky, Dr.

Self

Plano, TX

As a Texas resident I strongly oppose the education savings account program. Both of my children attended public schools in our state and my daughter taught special education for several years in Plano at a Title 1 school. This program will take away funding from the district that will widen the equity gap of students. While there are many private schools in my area, they would still be cost prohibitive for many students and especially those my daughter taught—because those schools would be unwilling to accept those students with high needs. So, once again, it isn't equal or equitable. A strong public education system is a benefit for ALL of society. Not just the students being educated. Many large districts in our state are already struggling with funding. Recapture has not been kind. And public schools provide services for all students. They do not have a choice to refuse to educate those they deem too difficult as do private schools. Consider also how a program such as this will impact smaller rural districts. In the end, should this pass, it will hurt the students who are most vulnerable and widen the equity gap. None of which is good for society as a whole.

Debby and Michael Breen

self

Jacksonville, TX

I am a retired master educator with an M. ED in Curriculum and Instruction from UT @ Tyler. HB3 is a red herring.

Deanne Murillo, Ms

Self

Anna, TX

This took me about 2 minutes to complete. If you oppose school vouchers- as they are being proposed- please consider filling this out and sending.

URGENT! ACT NOW THEN SHARE THIS POST!

Easy way to give comments without making a trip to Austin. This takes 2 minutes!!

Voucher bill being heard now!

Click and send:

<https://comments.house.texas.gov/home?c=c400>

Example you can copy and paste below!

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the “bought”? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Steven Jones

Self

North Richland Hills, TX

We do not need a voucher program in Texas. Almost all instances of similar program adoption in the US show net negative results, and the vast majority of students impacted will be at-risk kids who are harmed rather than helped. Our public education system needs more support, not direct challenges... and a voucher system will only succeed in shuffling money around in ways that benefit few people, raise competition and cost for private schools, and divert funding from a system that is already overtaxed.

More meaningful legislation would: improve public health support that can decrease the social workload of our educators, directly fund public schools in order to relieve the property tax burden from local districts (thus freeing money for private education in households that desire it), and overhaul our curriculum to create a more holistic approach that focuses on actual preparedness rather than testing standards.

I urge you to reject HB 3.

Julie White

Self

Austin, TX

Vouchers hurt schools and mostly help the rich. Fight for our children! They have no voice. Abbott should be absolutely ashamed of his loyalties and his disregard for ALL children.

Thomas Rolling

Self - retired

Austin, TX

This is not in the best interest of providing quality education to all; as this only allows for private institutions to profit from education. Private institutions are not readily available to everyone - so why would we divert funds from the State to a private institution that is not and cannot support everyone. I do not want you to waste my tax dollars on sending money to institutions that are not for everyone. That's an overreach of your responsibility. This will clearly hurt the marginalized and those with learning disabilities. Vote NO!

Rebecca Cook

Self

Cypress, TX

I am strongly opposed to HB3! As a former educator of 41 years, I believe in public education for all students. This bill will take money away from already underfunded public schools and funnel it into private schools who are selective in who they allow in the schools. The voucher system has failed in other states, such as Arizona, and it will fail in Texas. It doesn't help rural school districts at all. In the district in which I live, parents already have choice if they want to transfer their student to another school within the district boundaries. In addition, there was testimony that it could, and likely will, impact the teacher retirement system of which I'm a part. I gave 41 years to education with the assurance that I would be able to count on my annuity for the rest of my life. With the passage of this bill, I could possibly have to go back to work at age 78!

Please do not support this bill. It has far-reaching effects on many people, specifically students, teachers and retirees!

Melanie Roldan

Self

Houston, TX

I am writing to ask you to protect neighborhood schools and oppose private school vouchers in Texas.

All Texas students deserve an education that prepares them to succeed, not just students at exclusive private schools. The Texas state constitution says our Legislature is responsible for funding our neighborhood public schools for students, not subsidizing tuition for wealthy families at exclusive private and religious schools that pick and choose who will enroll. Vote down any voucher scheme that diverts tax dollars from neighborhood public schools. Public dollars should stay in public schools. Provide more resources to public schools so they can provide more to the communities.

Carol Jenson, Voter

Self

Austin, TX

School vouchers will result in further underfunding of public schools. Our public schools are being held hostage by private interests. FUND OUR SCHOOLS as required by the Texas Constitution.

Lauren Beam, Engineer

Self

Midland, TX

I oppose HB3 vouchers and ESAs. Voucher programs cost accelerates quickly. The current senate proposal shows more than $11 billion will be spent on vouchers through 2030, with $4.6B spent in 2030 alone. Additionally, the fiscal note on SB 2 shows an increase of 42 employees to manage the program. Properly fund public education.

Kara Hoekstra

Self

Joshua, TX

Please listen to your constituents and vote no to HB3. Find a more sensible approach to funding public schools that doesn't involve private school vouchers. These two requests are what the majority of Texas residents want.

Marcia Grissom

Self- retired teacher

Richardson, TX

As a retired public school teacher, I urge the members of this committee to vote no to vouchers. Texas has a teacher shortage and public schools need to be able to compete with private schools for the best teachers. Private schools can offer a less stressful job (no IEPs, no TELPAS and STAR testing, smaller classes) and a higher salary. I taught advanced math classes at L. V. Berkner High School in Richardson ISD for 32 years and taught with many exemplar teachers. If there are to be vouchers, then there needs to be equal testing, private school acceptance of all students, equal student/teacher ratios and equal pay. In other words, public money given to private schools needs to be issued with accountability and fairness. I oppose HB3!

Hallie Parchman

Self, product manager

Austin, TX

I am 100% against vouchers. I have two school aged children that rely on public education.

Christi Caulfield
Self
Friendswood, TX

I want to STRONGLY register my opposition for HB3. As a Republican voter, I do NOT support any voucher bill. Fund public schools!

Mary Veasey
Self,retired
MCKINNEY, TX

This is a money robbery. Nothing in this bill for ordinary taxpayers. These voucher programs don't work as proven by many other states and studies. Our broad income levels and many rural people are being ignored, glossed over. This is a big NO in my household and a lie and will lead to soo many democrats being elected it will make your head spin.

Aaliyah Iglesias, Student
Self
Tyler, TX

This bill will not aid Americans. It will quite literally do the exact opposite. How long has it been since yall have been students? Exactly. And you're trying to make a bill that completely changes our life's. The bill is carelessly written, and lacks the point of view of view from real students. The public school system is already impaired, and this bill will just be the cherry on top of the catastrophe we call the American School system. If you truly do care and value your constituents opinions, you would not pass this bill that will hurt more Americans than help.

Corina Zepeda
Self, Entrepreneur
Hutto, TX

WE PARENTS CHOOSE OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS! I am a success because we f my public school education and extracurricular activities and dedication educators. NO TO VOUCHERS. We want invest ment in our public education system, one which is designed to accept and benefit everyone. We are voting, I'm am a BDR, actively registering more people to VOTE OUT those who wan to dismantle or underfund our children's schools. No to vouchers, fund public schools!

Jess Waldrop
Self
Flower Mound, TX

Do not pass any bill that diverts funds from public schools. There is reason that public schools came to exist, and let us not have to relive the history where public schools did not exist. Our future is brighter when all kids have access to education. Private schools and charter schools do not serve all and will not move good citizenship forward.

Travis Ray
Self pharmacist
Austin, TX

This bill should not pass. These vouchers are not helping the people that need it the most. I have 3 children in public schools and they are thriving. We do not need to change what is not broken. I strongly oppose the bill in favor of the vouchers

Patti Adams
self - educator
Hurst, TX

Please vote NO for HB3. We all know it will lead to several negative consequences for public schools, namely diverting funding away from public schools, which are already facing financial challenges. It will reduce the resources available for public schools, potentially exacerbating issues like overcrowded classrooms, lower teacher pay, and limited access to essential educational services. Why do most "private school parents" support it? Because school choice policies will disproportionately benefit wealthier families who have the means to take advantage of the options, leaving behind low-income families and students with fewer opportunities. This will only deepen educational inequality, especially in areas where public schools already struggle to meet the needs of disadvantaged students. Where is the accountability and oversight in private and charter schools? Since these schools are not subject to the same state regulations and standards as public schools, there is a glaring lack of transparency and inconsistent expectations. Furthermore, our highest state official, Greg Abbott, continues to spout claims that our schools are "indoctrinating students." I don't know a single teacher who has time to do so, since they are so busy providing their own resources, giving HOURS over contracted time, and dealing with parents who believe they can do a better job teaching than the highly qualified teachers IN the classrooms. Respect is at an all-time low, and Greg is throwing gasoline on the fire, whipping the public into a frenzy. This bill and our governor MUST be stopped. Please vote FOR public schools in Texas by saying NO to HB 3.

Shannon Helms
Self - Special Education Teacher
Lubbock, TX

This bill is something that I am deeply passionate about, as it is completely against the students that I teach. Here in Lubbock, our special education population is high and our class sizes are very high (even as high as some general education classes). We are unable to recruit and maintain teachers to work in this unstable environment to teach the most vulnerable of student populations. We need MORE funding for our public schools! The ESA is a joke for my students. My students would not be welcome at private institutions due to various intellectual disabilities or behavioral concerns. We need much more funding for our schools in order to increase pay and help bring many more teachers and paraprofessionals to our schools. I have two TA's, and neither one of them earn a livable wage as a full time employee of the school district. They both are single moms and are living below the poverty line. They have to seek out government assistance to just be able to put food on the table for their families and pay their bills. How is this okay? We do not have the funding to cover pay raises for them to receive a livable wage. Our students need the most support and NEED people that are willing to put their whole heart into their job. How are we to retain staff that are qualified if they can't even afford to live? My current pay went down $400 PER MONTH this year, making me make less than I did 4 years ago due to increase in insurance premiums. We need help. I absolutely love my job, and I adore my student population. We shouldn't have to be begging for funding. We need support from the state, not for it to be spread to private schools. All this will do is cause segregation of schooling. Don't do this to us. Show us that you care about us teachers that are expected to deal with being hit, choked, kicked, bitten, cussed out, hair pulled out, etc every day. Not increasing the allotment to account for inflation is a slap in the face to us already beaten down teachers. Our students deserve better. Our teachers deserve better.

Lynda Burchett
Self
Houston, TX

How does this redirection of funding away from public schools possibly help rural areas where there are none of your voucher eligible institutions (that are not subject to testing standards)?? These rural areas already have huge challenges to find teachers and keep the doors open. VOTE NO!!

Laura Ashley Pagenkopf

Self

Fort Worth, TX

This is absolutely a poor choice. I am a Christian Republican who believes strongly in the public school system. I believe EVERY child has the right to good, true and beautiful education that represents the beauty of the world we live in. By establishing vouchers, you are stealing money that should be going towards establishing the best public school system in the nation that pays teachers well for the hours they spend teaching. That money should go to the training and support of the teachers to teach rich curriculum not based in data but based in depth. This money should go to make sure Texas kids equally have access to safe and state of the art facilities with teachers who are trained and valued and held accountable to high standards of teaching. This money should go to training all teachers in trauma informed care. It should go to making sure that even rural students are given the same opportunities to rich curriculum that city kids are. This money should go towards Texas adopting applied learning curriculum state - wide and training teachers on how to implement project based and applied learning throughout the state. Let's use this money to raise a generation who knows how to think, love and problem solve. Vouchers only benefit a handful of people who already have the means to benefit their kids. Instead let's go back to the creation of the public school system and the value that was placed on teachers and on children. Let's help Texas children be successful by pouring into their neighborhood schools and communities. Let's bring people together not give them more options to separate.

Veronica Longoria

Self

Pearland, TX

I'm for school vouchers. I stand with gov abbott

Christina Erickson

Self, mother of 4

Midland, TX

I oppose HB3 vouchers and ESAs. Voucher programs cost accelerates quickly. The current senate proposal shows more than $11 billion will be spent on vouchers through 2030, with $4.6B spent in 2030 alone. Additionally, the fiscal note on SB 2 shows an increase of 42 employees to manage the program. Properly fund public education.

Vicki Ginger

Self

Cypress, TX

Don't destroy public education by diverting funds to private schools via vouchers. A voucher won't pay for all of the tuition for a private school so poor kids will be left out. Private schools will not have to meet standards, accept all students, or have accredited teachers. It's supplementing families who are already able to afford private school. If you do this the public schools will be defunded and the kids that are left there will have a hard time becoming productive citizens. We will remember who voted in favor of this bill in the next election .

Kathryn Cruzen, Mrs

Self

Cypress, TX

Texans do not want their tax dollars to be wasted when our public school students are already hurting. ESAs would increase government spending and expand the already failing TEA, and would still do nothing to address the problems in Texas public education. Other states have shown that the cost of ESA programs has exploded way past their original projections while ESAs have been proven to fail at improving students' academic achievement, the very thing they are supposedly created to do. Texas Constitution Article 7 Section 1 charges the Legislature of Texas with establishing and making suitable provision for the support and maintenance of an efficient system of free public schools. It's time for our Legislators to stop looking for new programs or bills and instead to take a look at the root causes of why Texas students are failing to keep up with the rest of the country and to do something about it.

Holly Splawn
Self SAHM
League City, TX

I am a parent. My child currently attends a private Christian school and two of my children have graduated from the same. I ask that you do NOT pass the school voucher bill. I am against funding this bill. We need to keep state money in the public schools. The public schools provide needed services that are not provided in private school. My middle child attended public school in 5th grade. That year he was diagnosed with a speech impediment. He began speech therapy in that school. The next year he transferred to the private Christian school. While enrolled there he continued to receive excellent speech therapy from the public school for the next two years. It was an essential service provided by the public school. Kids in my city need those services and everything else that fully funding public school provides. Please do not pass this bill. Thank you.

Rachel Hewitt
Self
Austin, TX
Opposed

Kortney Taliaferro, Mrs.
Self/Private School Parent
Spicewood, TX

I oppose HB3!

Matt Smith
Self - Educator
Arlington, TX

Chairman Buckley and House Public Education Committee Members,
Thank you for allowing me to provide public comment against the voucher program proposed in HB 3. I am against the bill for the following reasons:

1. The Texas Constitution clearly states in Article 7, Section 1 that "... it shall be the duty of the Legislature of the State to establish and make suitable provision for the support and maintenance of an efficient system of public free schools." Given the fact that our legislature currently funds Texas Public Schools in the bottom 20% of the United States, I contend that our legislature has not, and will not, make "suitable provision" for our public schools. Diverting our tax dollars to private schools without fulfilling your constitutional duty to fund public schools is unacceptable.
2. School choice already exists in Texas, and more specifically, in Arlington ISD. Creating a third stream of publicly funded schools systems (public, charter, private) creates an unsustainable future. If choice already exists in our public schools, in our charter schools, and in the existing private schools, why would we create an unsustainable future for school funding?
3. Establishing a tax-payer funded voucher program that does not accept, teach, and support the learning of each and every student is a shocking proposal from our legislature. Public funds should support our public, which includes every person in our community. Every student, no matter ability or disability, should be served by any educational institution receiving public tax dollars. Establishing a voucher program without equal expectations and safeguards will establish systematic discrimination in our school system. Students with special needs deserve the opportunity, support, and protections afforded to them through our public schools.

Please vote against HB 3 and make "suitable provision" for all 5.5 million students throughout Texas by fully funding our public schools.

Greg Barra
self
Houston, TX, TX

All public schools need more resources, not less. As a former student and current patron of local private/parochial schools, they definitely have a place, but it's not with our property tax dollars. My kids attend public schools, and I expect my neighbors' tax dollars to support our neighborhood schools, and if they elect to spend additional money on private schooling, that's on them. As it would be on me and my family should we elect to attend private schools. I recognize the need for unique options for high performing students in low performing schools, but it makes no sense to me to rob those schools of resources, when those resources should rather be simply better deployed. It's a big problem, but fewer resources for the school districts is not the solution.

John Pickard
Self
DALLAS, TX

This bill is a tragedy for public education and those supporting it should be ashamed.

Brekka Larrew, Mrs
Self
Lakeway, TX

When private schools can deny children and yet use our taxpayer monies to fund theme, you know you are funding discrimination. This bill is discriminatory.

Rachel Beaulieu
Self, SAHM
Austin, TX

I strongly oppose ESAs. My daughter is in 1st grade and she receives SPED services through our school district and has since she was 3 years old. I have looked into private schooling and private therapies for her and there are no private schools or therapy practices that provide the services that she has needed, which she receives in public school.

No private school is required to accept my child. No private school provides bus service. No private school is required to provide my child with the accommodations she receives in public school with her IEP. And no private school worth sending her to would be fully covered by the amount Texas is willing to pay. And because of that, the vast majority of kids who will take advantage of this program are from families who could have afforded private school without assistance. In practice this would not provide me with any additional choices, all it does is divert needed funds away from my daughter's current best option.

Celia Mange
Self
Austin, TX

I oppose HB3. Private schools will not be not accountable for how they use public money. Plus, they will be able to pick and choose their students instead of accepting all students, which means that special education students will be left out.

Hilary Selden
--None--self, researcher in an academic lab
Austin, TX

Public funds should be used to fund public schools, NOT private schools. This is non partisan, the majority of small, rural communities don't have a private school option. They need their public schools fully funded! Further, similar programs in other states have been proven to lead to failure for public education in those states. Let's learn from their examples and not make the same mistakes! Texans, you already have unrestricted school choice.

Jackson Conway

Self

Austin, TX

I'm opposed of this bill because I am an 8th grade public school student that does not want to lose funding for my school.

Niki Millward, Dr.

Self

Houston, TX

Vote no, my two children go to public school and to not see why tax money is going to private schools or home schooling with no form of ensuring that these students are getting an education. My children have to take the STAR test every year and would have to repeat a grade by missing 7 days of school. In addition, this bill will take vitals funds from our public schools while not making sure that kids who do not attend public school are performing at grade level. This will weaken our educational system significantly.

Julia Blackburn

self/ Pharmacist

STEPHENVILLE, TX

This bill creates the illusion of choice but does nothing to guarantee that a parent's choice for their child will be fulfilled. It offers a chance, not a choice. Furthermore, more towns in Texas do not have a private school nearby for students to attend than towns that have them. The very small private school available to attend in my hometown does not provide the same programs available in our public school. The private school in my hometown is known to deny admission to certain students with special needs. My tax dollars should not go towards funding of vouchers for private school attendance when said private school denies admission to students. Ultimately, the true decision-maker in this system of education offered in this bill is not the parent, but the private school. I ask my representatives to vote "NO" on HB 3. Let your constituents vote on this option.

Ann Wacker

Self

Seabrook, TX

I oppose this bill and all associated or related or similar bills which seek to establish savings accounts or otherwise enable private school "vouchers". This is styled as giving a choice but the net effect is to defund or lessen public schools which have not had a significant increase in funding for years. This goes against the Texas State Constitution Article 7 which makes the legislature responsible for establishing and maintaining public schools. The proposed bill does the opposite in that it will take funds away from public education. Furthermore it appears that this bill is only being brought forth because wealthy donors have bought our public servants. Governor Abbot accepted over $6mm from a wealthy out of state donor. Have some respect to your duty as elected officials and follow the constitution.

Jennifer Hill

Self

Cypress, TX

I'm sure you've heard it all, but I am against HB3. This will tear down public education, affect TRS, and only helps the wealthy. Abbott has held public money hostage from public schools resulting in the weakening of the school system. We are already struggling to get and keep highly qualified teachers and this will not help. I personally have been in public education for 28 years and worry about my retirement, I worry about the education of kids from all backgrounds in our great state, I worry about our future and if all students will have access to a quality education. Education is the KEY to having a successful life and future. I see so much change in the education system right now and I honestly wonder why. What has happened all of a sudden that has caused this. I have been a conservative Republican my entire life and as previously stated have been in public education for 28 years and do not see what has changed to cause this.

School choice has been available forever...want to homeschool? Ok. Want private school? Ok. Want charter school? Ok. You can wordsmith however you want, vouchers, educational savings account, etc. it's all the same. When PUBLIC funds go to PRIVATE organizations they should have the same standards as public schools. I bet you find private schools would not want that. I don't blame them. Testing requirements, attendance requirements, curriculum requirements would change private school/ homeschool/ etc. and then we would have an even playing field. I started teaching in 1993 and have seen a lot of change. Teaching used to be more fun and I had more flexibility to meet and challenge my students, more like private schools have. Maybe consider that.

I guess I want to say either keep money public or change the standards so it is an even playing field. Either way, make it fair.

Alana Meyer

Self

Houston, TX

Defunding public schools will ruin communities, the suburbs, property values, businesses who want to set roots where there are excellent public schools. Teachers are already using their own money FROM WHAT LITTLE THEY MAKE to help pay for supplies. Don't leave the schools even more financially strapped!

And, how does this help rural communities where there are no private schools?

I am tired of hearing how low Texas rates in education. We need to support and fund our public schools. Support our educators, and make Texas a place known for the best education, not one of the WORST. Say NO to vouchers. Support public schools.

Deborah Johnson

Self

Carrollton, TX

I oppose the establishment of an ESA program as it discriminates against the majority of Texas children. All Texas children deserve a well-rounded education regardless of their abilities. ESA programs help very few students as private schools for not have to provide services for all children nor are private schools required to crept all children regardless of services needed. Texas obviously does not want to provide services to support all childrens' access to a good education so they can be functional contributing adults in the future. Please instead provide the funding necessary to properly fund public education and provide teachers with the financial support they deserve.

Lisa Garza
self retired teacher
Cypress, TX

I am strongly against the passing of vouchers. As a retired teacher of public schools for 28 years, I strongly believe that vouchers would discriminate against so many of our children. Vouchers don't help ALL children. They only help the wealthy that can already afford for their child to go to private school. Making vouchers available does not help a family who has a child with any type of learning disability. Vouchers don't level the playing field at all when it comes to the type of education a parent can choose if their child has any kind of learning disability or has been diagnosed with ADD/ADHD. Private schools DO NOT address any of these issues whatsoever. Those who work in a public school go above and beyond to help a child be successful despite their learning disability. There is a process that takes place where accommodations or modifications can be made to meet the child where they are at so that they can feel successful. This IS NOT the case in private schools. Those who work in a private school WILL NOT do what it takes to meet a child's needs. Public schools have higher standards for their students and teachers are held to a very high standard when it comes to teaching, yet this is not the case with private schools. Please do what's best for ALL children. DO NOT PASS VOUCHERS. The children who are attending public schools deserve funding and by continuing to withhold the extra funding is simple discrimination.

Rachelle Siemes
Self - FinTech PM
Austin, TX

I am writing to the committee to express my deep sentiment against this bill. It should not pass. Our Texas schools are already woefully underfunded. This bill will merely serve as a discount for families who are already paying for private schools. If it is truly meant to serve low and middle income families, then there should be an income cap so that those who have already chosen to spend the money required for private school are not siphoning the necessary funds from our public schools.

There are far too many schools and districts where teachers have to put up supply lists to "Go Fund Me" to have the necessary items to start the school year. (Do you know how much other first world countries are simply aghast at this?) Far too many schools that need infrastructure and physical plant work. Far too many schools that don't have a dedicated, full time librarian, nurse, art, music program. Schools that are considering or have gone to 4 day weeks!

This will do nothing to support rural students, who frequently have only a distant public school as an option. Don't take that away from our ranchers and farmers kids.

Kids in urban areas may get shut out of options. It is not inconceivable that private schools will simply raise their tuition in accordance with the voucher. Indeed, we have already seen this happen in other states. These private, religious, and charter schools are given no requirement to accept all students. They still pick and choose their students. How is that parental choice?

I implore you to consider the detrimental effect that this will have on all of our public school students. And understand that this bill will not miraculously open all private schools to any student who chooses to attend.

Thank you.

Regina Bishop
Self
Galveston, TX

School vouchers can not pass. It would be detrimental to the public education system. We need to give the next generations the tools they need to compete in a global market, not cut down funding for their educational needs to provide for the wealthy. Funneling government funds into the pockets of families already wealthy enough to afford private school and the private voucher management companies does not help the children who are entitled to this funding at all. Every single person should feel personally invested in the education of our future generations. They will be the ones charged with caring for us all. It makes no sense to give them subpar educational resources. Keep the funds where they belong, in the public education system providing better schools, better educational tools, higher teacher pay, extended day programs, and free lunches for all students. Block the student voucher program!

LONNIE KING

Self / purchasing agent

Houston, TX

Do NOT vote to pass this or forward it through the House in any shape or form. This is a subsidy for the wealthy and of no use to anyone is purports to empower. It will not make legitimate private schools affordable for average-income or low-income families. It will precipitate a wave of bogus private institutions that will pop up merely to take money from people without providing a true education. It will undermine our public school system. Vote AGAINST this bill so that we have no reason to vote against you in the next election.

Heather Stokes

Self / Investigator

Houston, TX

Respectfully, I wish you as my representative to vote NO on this bill. As a mother to a child with special medical needs, but no developmental delays, it's imperative that my daughter receive accommodations through her 504 plan at school to be a successful student, thriving member of our community, and develop her own sense of self worth and capabilities while learning to adapt with reasonable accommodation. She is not disabled in ways that the ADA protects her because she has a very rare autoinflammatory condition. She needs some physical accommodations to meet graduation requirements in Texas, which is something supported through her right to a good public education. With vouchers, the funds provided to public schools to accommodate resources to accommodate my child it would become difficult, disruptive, and cause irrevocable damage to her right to an education. We would struggle to find a school willing to accommodate her needs to allow her the same opportunity as her peers to quality education.

Please understand the implications of this vote. This is not a partisan issue. This is an issue of upholding the rights of every Texan student to start life out on the same foot as their peers.

Jana Reid

Myself

Granbury, TX

This is NOT conservative. It will tear apart public education and endanger teacher retirement. It is NOT proven. Vouchers in other states has no t improved student performance. Vote NO.

Amy Rueckheim

Self, clinical researcher

Austin, TX

Do not make my community more weak with worse schooling for Texas children. We need more funding for daycare and public elementary, Middle and high schools. I am a foster mother of 5 foster kids since 2017 and our children are not getting what they need through public schooling. Please don't make it harder for the children. We must put all We have into their education.

Julia Weatherby

self, student

Austin, TX

To the Education Committee,

I strongly oppose Texas offering private school or home school vouchers or Education Savings Accounts.

Over ninety percent of Texas school children are in public school. Our public school funding has not kept up with inflation. I support raising the basic allotment by at least $7500, and tying future funding to keep up with inflation.

My child attends public school in Texas, and I have seen how the school and district struggles to meet the needs of our school children. We don't have enough teachers, and the teachers we do have don't make enough in salary. The vast majority of them cannot afford to live in the community they teach in due to the high cost of housing here. My child's school struggles to keep kids warm when it's especially cold out and cool when it's especially hot out. Teachers and administration should not have to be concerned with HVAC issues. My child's school has difficulty in finding certified, qualified teachers. It is becoming more and more difficult for certified, qualified teachers to stay in the career of teaching in Texas, when the cost of living and housing is so expensive. My child's school and district is not unique. Many school districts in Texas are having a budget deficit. We can do better. Let's fund our schools and pay our teachers well, so that we have OUR choice of great Texas teachers!

Speaking of choice, here in Austin, we have choice for our students already. We can already choose homeschool, private school, public school, or charter schools. My child goes to a different school than we are zoned for, because we have choice. We don't need a voucher law for that. I also think of the many students living in rural areas where they don't get to choose between schools because there is only one available. Let's make sure every Texas child has the opportunity to go to a well supported, and well funded public school.

Thank you for your careful consideration on this bill.

Melissa Pumayugra, Madam

Self/professor

New braunfels, TX

As a public school graduate, a parent, and a professor, I value education. I choose to send my children to our local schools but I also know we are privileged in many ways because of luck, life choices and legislation.

Please don't allow vouchers to steal yet more of my public funds from our local schools.

Anamaia Goswami

Self - Student

Austin, TX

Public schools should not have to suffer, the students attending public schools should not have to suffer, they should be at the top of the state's priority list. Instead of properly funding these schools with the resources they need, tax dollars of public school teachers and parents (and older students) are being used to fund private education. If public schools are so unprepared to nurture young minds that you feel the need to provide financial assistance for students to attend private school, maybe you should focus on fixing our schools. It is ridiculous that private institutions with no mandated curriculum have these seemingly infinite resources. There is a lack of separation of church and state in Texas and this bill only serves to highlight and underline it.

Vanessa Mancia

Self/ teacher

Austin, TX

As a public educator I expected more support for our public education. The stress that is placed on well off campus are ridiculous and I CANNOT imagine other campuses. Please pick our kids and our campuses here in Texas.

Jennifer Hoskins

Self/Speech-language pathologist

Abilene, TX

It is not in the best interest of our already underfunded public school system to take money away from that system and allow it to be used elsewhere. My 2nd grade son attends a Title 1 school that relies heavily on allotted Title 1 money. Eliminating that money will cause deficits and gaps in the education of students who already come to school disadvantaged due to their economic status. Please do not require these incredible schools to jump through even more hoops just to simply educate its students. Vote "no" to the public school voucher program.

Paula Hutsen

Self

Magnolia, TX

Education saving accounts will not allow low or middle class families to gain private education for their children. Our public educators do not pick and choose their students, they open the doors and greet all students, providing each child the ability to grow to their individual potential.

The option of increasing public education by barely $200 per student and stating private schools deserve $10,000+ per student is appalling. Private education is not required to provide transportation, meals or even quality curriculum.

Olga Sarff, HB3

Myself

Houston, TX

I was a public school teacher and principal. HB3 will not favor the public school children. It will take the limited funds and give them to families who do not need them. It pulls money from our schools. Stop this careless decision. You are there to represent all families especially the underserved, especially the rural communities. Thank you for your goodwill for all.

Jessica Brown

Self

Aledo, TX

I strongly oppose the proposed ESAs. I am a conservative with a long history of voting Republican, but I can't support ESAs not only for the reason that it takes money away from public education but because they are not conservative when you are diverting $3 Billion dollars of taxpayer money without accountability and benefiting only 1% of Texas school children.

Lisa Robinson

self retired educator

Houston, TX

Vote NO on this terrible bill. It is bad for our students and teachers but also really destructive for our communities. Many small towns have no private schools whatsoever. What choice does this bill give them? Furthermore, in many small towns, the school district is one of the primary employers. Are you going to destroy the job base in those communities? Furthermore, as funds are taken from schools (in communities with private schools), it will be more and more difficult to provide a quality education to the students—this goes against the mandate of our Texas Constitution and the spirit of our great state. Do not destroy our public schools. They need and deserve your support. Using our tax dollars to support private schools that have no publicly elected school board also means Taxation without Representation. This vote will have lasting consequences for our children and our state's economy. Again, VOTE NO!

Alex Kotara
Self
Karnes City, TX

It is shameful that the House is so readily admitting defeat on their constitutional responsibility to ensure Texas has the finest free public education system in the world.

The lack of evidence to support that vouchers improve student outcomes should be enough to reject it alone. But the massive fiscal impacts and the lack of ANY ability to demonstrate whether it does or does not work, make it a bad bill, and one that won't be walked back in the future, either.

It should be voted down for these reasons alone, as they don't represent the values that Republicans and conservative Texans hold.

Kali Rodriguez
Self - success coach
Dallas, TX

I oppose this bill

Matt Joyce
self Wimberley, TX

My family is opposed to HB3 and the proposal to establish an education savings account program. Our children attend a rural public school. We believe this legislation would harm our children's education by lessening the funding for the local public school. We believe HB 3 is designed to stroke the egos of a few ideologues, including Gov. Greg Abbott, who are driven by politics and who have zero genuine interest in the education and betterment of education for Texas children. Rather, proponents of HB 3 wish to diminish education for Texans to score political points with a vocal minority of anti-government crusaders who wish to see public institutions fail at any cost. This proposal is a disgrace and a blatant attempt to undermine American Democracy.

Maggie Sandoval
Brownsville Educators and Students
Brownsville, TX

Buckley, you and Governor Abbott should be primary champions of public schools in Texas! Instead, you are sellouts! You are sellouts to the likes of Jeffrey Yass, Tim Dunn and Wilkes who are intent in the privatization of public schools in across Texas! As a conservative, I'm appalled at your lack of principles! I'm listening to today's testimony, you speak out of both sides of your mouth!

In the issue of students with disabilities, your bill places the responsibility of providing services to students in private schools back at the doorstep of public schools! So, why are you allocating large sums of money to those private schools?

Because you really don't care about students or your constituents!!

As a conservative, I'm done apologizing for you and others like you who are self serving and only want to enrich yourselves and your billionaire cronies!

Carlee Monthie, Ms.
Self
Bedford, TX

I AM AGAINST VOUCHERS!

Ezriel Neumann

Self

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Jammie Hayes

Self--30-Year Public Educator review resenting the future of Texas

Wills Point, TX

This is NOT a Republican vs Democrat battle. This is a battle over greed and privatization of our public school system. Most Republicans and Democrats do not support ESAs/School Vouchers. We are standing STRONG on this matter and it might be the only thing Republicans and Democrats BOTH agree on in Texas. Don't think the constituents will not vote you pro-voucher supporters out of office. Power is in the numbers. Listen to the people that voted you into office to speak for them.

Vote NO to vouchers/ESAs.

Sincerely,

Jammie Hayes

Isabella Kirchner

Self

Austin, TX

House Bill 3 (HB 3) threatens to divert critical public school funding to private school vouchers, weakening resources for students, and destabilizing the Teacher Retirement System (TRS) by reducing the number of active educators paying into it. Public schools serve all children, and shifting taxpayer dollars to unregulated private institutions undermines their ability to provide quality education. Lawmakers must vote NO on HB 3 to protect public schools, educators, and retirees instead of gambling with Texas' education system. This bill will hurt students, schools, and communities across Texas.

McMunn Heidi

Self

Houston, TX

This will only harm public schools. We see what you are up to.

Timothy Chen

Self

Plano, TX

Please vote no on HB3 and any other bills funding school vouchers. If there is enough taxpayer money to fund private institutions, then I would rather you send me a tax refund instead. I do not want to pay taxes to give wealthy families a discount on tuition they can already afford. This is not fiscally responsible.

Laurel Moore

Self

Conroe, TX

I am against this bill. Parents already have numerous choices and this bill gives choice to private schools regarding who they will accept. I do not want tax dollars to pay for private schools. I want tax dollars to fund public schools. Please fund and support public schools.

Carol Jackson, Dr.
Grandparents for Public Schools
Dallas, TX

The majority of children in Texas attend public schools. School vouchers would only help a limited number of children. They are cashing in to help those right money to pay for private education with public funds. Texas tax payer dollars should fund only public education. In the DFW area, school boards are closing schools because of lack of state funding which has not increased for many years. Charter schools are part of the problem, as state money follows the student. Now the Texas legislature wants to further erode public school by taking more money away from public schools with school vouchers. It is not about school choice; it's about financial theft from public schools!

Sarah Burns
Self teacher
Dripping springs, TX
Vote NO on HB3. NO to vouchers

Amanda Piepenburg
Self
Allen, TX
Vote no to school vouchers

Nancy True, Ms
Self
Hickory Creek, TX

I urge a hard "NO" vote on HB 3, and any other legislation that expands government apparatus and/or appropriations directed to private entities and/or families.

Considering the poor (and worsening) track record of government schools, the evidence of increased dissatisfaction statistically supported by a surging statewide exodus to private and/or home schools, I advocate a "separation of school and state" policy. Further government plunder of We the People to compensate for persistent historical patterns of failure with ongoing plunder is unacceptable.

“You can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, but you can not fool all of the people all of the time.” ~ Abraham Lincoln

Julie Jumes

Self

Fredericksburg, TX

Thank you for taking public comments from those you are there to represent. I am against HB3 because it is outside the constitutional mandate to provide "an efficient system of public free schools." The 2016 SCOT called our state education funding system "Byzantine" and admonished the cutting of inefficient code. There is already much, which costs taxpayers and is seemingly not written for the good of children but for business. For example start dates, written such that students don't start classes before a certain date in late August so that vacation and tourist businesses don't lose money. Most students across our state may not start logging all their "butts in chairs minutes" in order for their INDEPENDENT School District school to get the state allotment until that state law specified date. But, there are exceptions for DOIs, year around schools, charters, and now ESA students? Exceptions are inefficient to implement and enforce. Why not strike the law? Is it not unconstitutionally inefficient at the very least? The Tim Tebow Act is similar law, passed since the 2016 SCOT's admonishing to cut inefficient code, also written to require exceptions for a very small number of the 5-6 million students in Texas. The rhetoric "we all pay taxes so we all should have access" led many to believe Rep Frank wrote it to allow all students access to UIL, but he had to exclude privately educated students who weren't home educated to protect private schools from losing players to public school teams. My question, as a taxpayer: Can't private schools write rules in their own rulebooks preventing students from playing on their local UIL team? How could it possibly be an "efficient" use of our tax dollars to keep enforcing such exceptions to the benefit of businesses, rather than children? And, isn't HB3 doing the exact same thing? Back 30 years ago the SCOT ruled in the Leeper case that a home school in Texas is a private school. They did that because, like Kamala Harris was doing for the money in CA, districts here in Texas were jailing home school parents on truancy charges. Basically the SCOT declared that there were two types of students in Texas: government school students and private school students. There were no "accredited" private schools. That sort of state regulation and the sort in the Tim Tebow Act, which requires districts, the very ones jailing home school parents on truancy charges before the Leeper decision, to distinguish between home schooled students and other private students, to protect private school teams from losing players, is inefficient at the very least and probably throwing away education tax dollars in legal battles much like we will be doing when all those photo op private school kids, whose parents heard "universal" don't win the lottery. How can anyone believe this messy defining of differing weights and differing measures at all constitutional of good for children?

Gary Willson

Self

Fort Worth, TX

As a tax payer I am opposed to this bill and my tax dollars being used for private schools. The state of Texas is required by its constitution to provide for public education. Private schools should no longer be private if funded with public funds and no accountability.

Alicia Noyola
South Texas Association of Schools
Harlingen, TX

As a former superintendent and Executive Director of the South Texas Association of Schools (STAS), I and our organization strongly oppose House Bill 3 and its proposed Education Savings Account (ESA) program due to its harmful impact on public education. While expanding educational opportunities is an important goal, this bill undermines our public schools by diverting critical funding, reducing accountability, and widening educational inequities.

Loss of Critical Public School Funding

HB 3 diverts $1 billion away from Texas public schools—funds that should be used to support the more than 5 million students who rely on public education. These funds are essential for teacher salaries, classroom resources, special education, mental health services, and school infrastructure. Redirecting them to private education providers, many of whom lack accountability, weakens our ability to provide a high-quality education for all students. Texas would now be funding 3 school systems: Public, Charter, and Private. Currently public schools are woefully underfunded. Until public schools are fully funded, funds of any kind should not be diverted elsewhere. The $1B should be used to invest and seek to fully fund public education.

Lack of Accountability and Oversight

Public schools are held to strict academic and financial accountability standards to ensure taxpayer dollars are used effectively. HB 3 does not impose the same level of oversight on private and homeschooling providers receiving ESA funds. This creates a system where public funds can be spent without transparency or clear student performance standards. Texas must ensure all schools receiving public money meet the same high standards for student success including state assessments to ensure that parents can compare apples to apples. NAEP is not tested by all Texas students.

Widening Educational Inequities

The ESA program primarily benefits families who can already afford private education, leaving behind students in rural and low-income communities. Private school tuition, along with costs for textbooks, uniforms, and transportation, often exceeds the ESA amount, making it inaccessible for many families. Instead of diverting funds, Texas should invest in teacher recruitment, student support programs, and classroom resources to ensure all children—regardless of ZIP code—have access to a high-quality education. The fact that private schools have the ultimate decision on whether they will admit students with disabilities and economically disadvantaged students will serve to widen the existing inequities. Ultimately, it's not school choice, it's the private school's choice.

For these reasons, I urge you to oppose HB 3 and instead support policies that strengthen Texas public schools. Thank you for your time and consideration of this critical issue.

Wende Dwyer-Johnsen
Self
Fort Worth, TX

Please do not pass any bill that would provide public school funds to private schools. Keep public funds in public schools! No vouchers.

Rhonda Landrum, Mrs
Self
Oak Leaf, TX

Please keep public education viable for all kids!!! Say NO to Vouchers!!

Sarah Dickerson
self
Austin, TX
I oppose this bill.

Christina Fragale

Self

Round Rock, TX

As someone who works with the disability community, I plead with lawmakers to PLEASE not support the school voucher program.

Private schools are not obligated to serve students with disabilities—whether that is just allowing them access to the school through school admission or even providing specialized services and education that they need. It is so important to understand that BEFORE IDEA (federal law for educating students with disabilities) and the rehabilitation act, children with disabilities WERE excluded from schools. That's right. Exclusion and denial from school was the NORM, not the exception.

Please do not let the most vulnerable of children go back to these times nearly 50 years ago. Please do not funnel away money through the voucher program that could be used to better serve these students or give teachers a reasonable pay. We are already in a teacher shortage and this will certainly drive or keep teachers away.

Thank you.

Nina Reyes

Self

Austin, TX

Vouchers are welfare for the wealthy. Public education is our right.

“Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a native Texan, 5th generation, whose entire family are products of the public education system, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future. Public dollars belong in public schools. Give Texas school districts the funds to keep teachers, aides, resource teachers, special education teachers, everyone who works with children employed. Give Texas children what they deserve in their classrooms.

Karen Morton

Self

Sugar Land, TX

I am OPPOSED to school vouchers.

-there are not enough SEATS for all children to be in private school.

-there are. It enough schools in rural counties which is the republican voting base so this absolutely will BACKFIRE.

-check the socioeconomic background of republicans and find most do not attend public schools.

-you will turn Texas BLUE from watching what the president is doing and now this. You are ALIENATING your base!

- stop focusing on making schools Christian and start focusing on what makes our lives BETTER. ALL our lives matter! I thought that was your slogan??!

Signed a parent of a private school & public school child!

Denise Pullin

Self

Spring, TX

I am against school vouchers and for the support of public education and services for all.

Kelly Lwakatare

Homeschool

Houston, TX

As a homeschool mother, I do not support this bill. I do not want vouchers or any state money for my child's education. Please vote against HB 3.

Nona Allen

Self teacher

Pflugerville, TX

As a constituent of the State of Tx. and a retired public school teacher, I am asking you to say NO to school vouchers. Reason 1) I drive by 4 to 5 different elementary schools, on my way to my part time job, depending on which way I go. For the last two years, I see fewer and fewer white faces, on the playgrounds. Why?? Because the economically disadvantaged, can not send their students to charter and private schools, even with vouchers. Again, why?? Because they can not afford to provide their own transportation. So what happens?? We are ending up with segregated schooling, once again; even though it is again the law. Reason 2) Charter and private schools can kick children with behavioral problems or learning problems out of their schools. Public schools can not. So with vouchers, what is happening...public schools are ending up with nothing but economically poor students, behavior problems students and students with learning disabilities. Reason 3) School vouchers mean less students in public school, which then means less teachers. Less teachers mean less people paying into the TRS system. Meaning within years, the TRS will not be able to support itself and will collapse, and many retired teachers, will no longer have an income. Reason 4) Teachers obviously don't go into teaching for the money. (Especially here in TX) We go into it because we love helping children learn! But being able to support ourselves, is essential. Again, the less teachers at public schools, the less the pay that public school districts will be able to afford to pay. Eventually, meaning that a public school teacher, could actually end up in a poverty situations themselves. Then you REALLY are going to end up with unqualified teachers, because any qualified one with have the brains to pick another profession, just so they can survive.

Thank you for your consideration of my opinion,

Nona Allen

Christopher Spenrath
Self / Region Manager in Healthcare
Waxahachie, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Gwen Dixie, Ms.
Myself, voter aged 88. Retired.
Dallas, TX

I, and 50 relatives (brothers, sisters, mother, aunts, uncles, grandparents, my four children) all received education in Texas public schools, from elementary through college. Don't throw this out! Everybody needs them. My taxes should only go for PUBLIC schools. No school vouchers for private schools.

Patricia Edaburn
Self
Houston, TX

Please fund public schools. Vouchers will make the gap between rich and poor wider. As a former public school teacher I can attest to this fact.

Nicholas Feinstein

Self

Houston, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.

HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.

Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.

We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot.

This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.

Thank you!

- Nicholas Feinstein (Student in SBISD)

Brian Harville, Mr

Self

Allen, TX

No to vouchers!!

Kimberly Chamiok

Self

Caddo Mills, TX

Why School Choice is Wrong for Texas

School choice in Texas is marketed as giving parents more options, but in reality, it drains public school funding, benefits the wealthy, and harms rural communities—all while using taxpayer dollars to fund private institutions that aren't held to the same standards.

?? It Weakens Public Schools – Texas public schools are already underfunded. Diverting taxpayer money to private schools through vouchers or ESAs takes resources away from the majority of students who rely on public education.

?? It's a Privilege, Not a Solution – Vouchers rarely cover full tuition, meaning low-income families are still priced out while wealthier families get a tax break. Meanwhile, public schools—where most low-income students remain—suffer from larger class sizes, fewer programs, and school closures.

?? It Fails Rural Communities – Most rural areas don't have private schools, meaning vouchers do nothing for these students. Instead, their already-limited public schools are left with even fewer resources.

?? Private Schools Can Discriminate – Unlike public schools, private institutions can reject students based on academic ability, income, or special needs. Why should tax dollars fund schools that can exclude children?

?? It's a Political Scam, Not an Education Fix – The loudest supporters of school choice are politicians and lobbyists, not educators. Instead of privatizing education, Texas should be investing in teacher salaries, smaller class sizes, and fully funded public schools.

Public education is a right, not a privilege. School choice doesn't help kids—it undermines the schools that serve the majority of Texas students. Instead of dismantling public education, we should be strengthening it.

Mohamed Jafarnia

Self

Houston, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.

HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.

Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.

We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot.

This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.

Thank you!

- Mohamed Jafarnia (Parent in SBISD)

Joshua Feinstein

Self

Houston, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.

HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.

Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.

We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot.

This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.

Thank you!

- Dr. Joshua Feinstein (Parent in SBISD)

Minou Feinstein

Self

Houston, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.

HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.

Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.

We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot.

This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.

Thank you!

- Minou Feinstein (Parent in SBISD)

Melissa Jordan

Self

Nacogdoches, TX

36 year veteran teacher saying vote NO to the ESA. You are letting testimony from those in the field fall on deaf ears but we do have separation of church and state for a reason. Funding private religious schools is not separation. And private schools do not want academically struggling, disciplinary issues or special needs kids because it lowers their scores and image portrayed to the public. Your constituents are telling you NO but Abbott and those with million dollar donations tell you yes... who do you represent?

Cheryl Fisher

Cypress-Fairbanks ISD

Cypress, TX

I have been an elementary principal for 16 years and in education for 28 years. Public dollars are for public schools. As a taxpayer, I am not okay with my taxes going to private schools that have no accountability. Vote NO to vouchers. Parents already have school choice in Texas and vouchers have not been successful in other states.

Rachel Sollid, Mrs.

Self, self employed

North Richland Hills, TX

I strongly oppose HB3 because it is a direct attack on Texas public schools and an unconstitutional misuse of public funds. This bill is not about “school choice” – Texas parents already have school choice. What this bill really does is divert taxpayer dollars to private, mostly religious schools, something Governor Abbott has openly promoted in his push for vouchers.

If competition is truly the goal, then let’s be honest about the playing field:

- Public schools have been underfunded since 2019. Governor Abbott claims otherwise, but districts across the state are operating on deficit budgets because funding has remained stagnant while costs have skyrocketed. If the state wants public schools to compete, it should fully fund them first.
- This bill creates more government bureaucracy. Instead of piling on new regulations, we should be removing unnecessary restrictions to allow public schools to innovate—that’s real competition.
- Private schools don’t have to play by the same rules. They can cherry-pick students, avoid accountability measures, and sidestep special education laws. Giving them public dollars isn’t about competition—it’s about handing them a new revenue stream they didn’t have before. If they were truly competitive, they wouldn’t need a government subsidy.

The Texas Constitution guarantees every child access to a free public education. Yet, this bill forces local taxpayers—who already fund the bulk of our education system through property taxes—to now subsidize private, unregulated institutions. Why should struggling Texas families foot the bill for a coupon for wealthy private schools? That’s not competition; that’s a giveaway to those who don’t need it.

Texas lawmakers should reject HB3 and focus on fully funding public schools, not undermining them for the benefit of private interests.

Shannon Koonce

Self, special education teacher

Spring, TX

The impact HB3 can have on the future of Texas is pivotal. The underfunding of public education and the strong-hold on funds speaks volumes on what this bill

Is trying to achieve. Please consider the impact that this bill has on our kids and how it is not being advertised fairly to the public. This should go to a general vote and allow the people to speak!

Debbie Morris, Glen Rose Elementary Principal

Self

Nemo, TX

I'm opposed to HB3! Fully fund public schools!

Michelle Harvey

Self

COLLEGE STA, TX

Please oppose HB 3. Taxpayer dollars should fully fund public schools before considering vouchers. Currently, Texas provides about $6,100 per student—significantly below what's needed. Moreover, 158 out of 254 Texas counties don't have any private schools, making vouchers an impractical solution for many families. Instead of diverting funds to a voucher system that many cannot utilize or afford, we should focus on fully funding our public schools to ensure quality education for ALL Texas students. Please vote NO on HB 3

Debbie Van Aken

Bilingual Special Education Teacher

Pearland, TX

The core issue with special education is not parent choice—it is funding. Special education teachers, case managers, and general education teachers work as advocates for students with disabilities, ensuring they receive the individualized support and services they need. They collaborate with parents to develop Individualized Education Programs (IEPs), identify necessary accommodations, and provide essential resources.

However, public schools often struggle to fully meet these needs due to inadequate funding. Special education requires trained staff, smaller class sizes, specialized materials, and support services such as speech therapy, occupational therapy, and mental health counseling. Federal law mandates that students receive a Free Appropriate Public Education (FAPE), but funding shortfalls force schools to make difficult choices, leading to understaffed programs, overworked teachers, and insufficient resources.

The focus should be on increasing funding for public education so that schools can properly support all students with disabilities rather than shifting the issue to parent choice, which does not address the systemic financial challenges schools face.

Kathryn Brannen

Self / mother

Plano, TX

As a former public school student, a former public Title 1 school teacher, and a current parent of two public school students, I strongly oppose the formation an education savings account program that would divert public monies away from our public schools. These savings accounts do not provide students from lower socioeconomic statuses access to private schools, as evidenced by similar programs in other states. And even if they did, there are no private school options in over half of the counties in Texas. Moreover, private schools can deny admission for any reason. Public dollars must not fund these exclusionary tactics. This program is undeniably a veritable gift to current private school families at the expense of our greater communal good. Who wants to live in a generally less educated society? Democracy depends on an informed and literate citizenry, and this bill diminishes that potential; it will only further widen the divide between the haves and have-nots.

Anne Baumgardner

Self

Houston, TX

Our child has attended both public and private schools from day school to high school. We are acutely aware of the financial privilege of those who attend private. This privilege will NOT be overcome by siphoning $10K from public schools into our pockets NOR will it ensure that ALL Texas children have access to said private schools. This voucher scam undermines public schools that benefit ALL for private for-profit schools that benefit a few. Those of us with means can bootstrap our private education!

Ramiro Diaz

self

Austin, TX

I DON'T support Vouchers for Texas.

Erin Lange

Self, Public School Principal

Hewitt, TX

I am a proud public school administrator. I've been in public schools for 15 years and both of my daughters attend within the district I work. This bill will harm the students of Texas with such force, it is said it is even being considered. The public school system is already trying to work magic with Pennie's. I don't have enough staff positions to give students the education they deserve because the budget continues to shrink. This bill will pull more money from our public schools that we desperately need. Additionally; what support will the students who need help the most get? The charters and private schools in my town frequently send students back to us because they have IEP or behavioral needs. I am proud that we will work will all students, but that will become increasingly difficult when we have fewer resources and fewer staff. Just five years ago, educators were the heros- everyone saw how hard they work to care for children. Now, we've forgotten all about that and want to blast public schools to the ground. What will happen to our cities when our school districts decline? This bill is not only about education but about welfare for all citizens. I implore you not to vote this through and instead support public education and the thousands of adults just trying our hardest to make this world a better place.

Mary Amy Sample

Self

Flower Mound, TX

I strongly oppose HB 3 for many reasons. It will leave the most vulnerable children in our state without options. Private schools will not be required to accept certain students with disabilities, which will certainly leave some children behind. The bill also does not impose any admission or enrollment requirements on the private schools that choose to participate in the program, meaning they would face no state pressure to adjust their costs, ensure more racial and ethnic diversity, or accept students from different faith traditions.

Then there are the students that live in rural districts. They will be left behind with few options.

HB 3 would continue to leave low-income children behind. Children who come from homes where there is not enough food are too hungry to be able to concentrate in school. If you don't have enough money to feed your children, how will you manage the blockades keeping you from sending your child to private school? The Voucher Program is unlikely to be enough, and even if there was a private school that would economically work, how would a struggling families even get the child to the school or pay for the extras private schools would demand?

Let's make Public Schools better, making it desirable and inclusive to every child's situation. Please vote against HB3.

Kara Freeman

Self

Brenham, TX

Vote NO to HB 3

Sheila Musselman

Self

Clifton, TX

Please reconsider the voucher bill. It is only helping the wealthy parents and students. We all have a choice. We can go to public or private school. Public schools are paid by the taxpayers, and private schools are paid by parents. Why would a private parent not want extra money to help pay for their student's education?

Zenobia C. Joseph

Self - Educational Consultant/Policy Analyst, A+ WRITERS Consulting

Austin, TX

1. Federal Law: Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 “is a Federal statute and provides that no person shall, on the grounds of race, color, or national origin, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance” (FTA C 4702.1B, 2012). Also, “Title VI covers all of the operations of covered entities without regard to whether specific portions of the covered program or activity are Federally funded” (Ch. II-I).

a. HB 3, “Sec. 29.3715. Collection and Reporting of Demographic Information” includes gender, race or ethnicity.

b. Research: “Of the nearly 1 million [Texas] students studied, ... African-American students and those with particular educational disabilities were disproportionately likely to be removed from the classroom for disciplinary reasons.” Black males “had at least one discretionary violation (83 percent)” in Breaking Schools’ Rules: A Statewide Study of How School Discipline to Students’ Success and Juvenile Justice Involvement (Fabelo et al., 2011, p. x). Disability Rights Texas’ 2022 IDEA Parents Special Education Rights Manual also noted, “In Texas, Black students are disproportionately identified as needing special education services” (p. 16). HB 3, however, is silent on discipline. Representatives Talarico and Hinojosa noted discipline concerns.

2. Nonrenewal Concern: March 11, 2025 (before 11AM), Rep. Alma Allen asked about Sec. 29.356. Application to Program noting, “The comptroller ... may not require a program participant in good standing to annually resubmit an application for continued participation in the program” (p. 8). The “good standing” language is subjective. Chair Buckley said (to paraphrase) that a student in good standing need not reapply, but program application is not synonymous with school application acceptance nor guarantee of program continuance as St. Andrew’s illustrated in 2006—denying a $3M donor a renewal contract.

a. Example: “At Austin’s elite St. Andrew’s Episcopal School, everything from the architecture to the emphasis on tolerance is designed to reinforce a sense of community. But when an English teacher had her senior class read Brokeback Mountain, a fight between parents over the true meaning of Christian values threatened to tear the close-knit campus apart.” In the end, St. Andrew’s “decided not to offer the family a renewal contract for the next school year” (Spong, 2006).

b. Costs: Blacks wait 60 min. for buses, 10 times longer than whites. A $10K “voucher” will still deny minorities access to elite West Austin private schools. St. Andrew’s: $37K (K-5); Application: $125; New Student Fees: $1800; Activity: $175 + afterschool.

3. Recommendations: Amend Program Application to compel private schools to renew student contracts; require an education savings account refund if a private school is not a good match. Be fair: Deny "DEI" private school funding!

Shannon Maloney

Voter

Huntsville, TX

STRONGLY oppose this bill and any legislation which would give public funding to private elementary and/or secondary schools. Texans have been abundantly clear about this. Stop wasting time and playing games.

Cynthia Dwyer

Self

North Richland Hills, TX

The majority of Texasans do NOT support school vouchers. Passing school vouchers will ruin public education in Texas. Other states like Arizona have implemented school vouchers and have NOT seen the results that were promised. Stop holding public schools in Texas hostage by limiting funding. Support public schools the way they should be supported. School vouchers are a BAD idea.

Valerie McKenzie

Self

Woodway, TX

I oppose HB3 vouchers and ESAs. Voucher programs cost accelerates quickly. The current senate proposal shows more than $11 billion will be spent on vouchers through 2030, with $4.6B spent in 2030 alone. Additionally, the fiscal note on SB 2 shows an increase of 42 employees to manage the program. Properly fund public education.

Savannah Colbert

Self - Graphic Designer

Austin, TX

HB3 is a terrible use of taxpayer money. Stop forcing charter schools on us. Public education is the backbone of our community. Using my taxpayer dollars to fund schools that are unregulated and that can teach and push whatever beliefs they have with no oversight is an atrocious use of our money. Taking the focus and money to charter schools will also remove access to education for many children who cannot attend a charter school because of cost, location, and religious beliefs differing. Our workforce and economy will crumble if students are not given the proper education. I want all Texas children to be given the opportunity to learn. We need teachers who are certified and a learning structure that is backed by scientific research on how developing minds learn. That is what the public education system is set up on. Do not gut their funding in favor of pushing charters!

Juana Schmidt

Self

Bon Wier, TX

Against this!

Rosalinda Kitamura

Self/ teacher

Irving, TX

I am strongly against this bill.

Angela Herring

Teacher/TaxPayer

Eustace, TX

I oppose the school voucher system as it will only benefit very few. Not to mention these charter schools are not held to the same standards as a public school. Where is their data that supports that they teacher be highly qualified. Only a select few will benefit from this leaving the same children behind as always. This is a scam. FUND PUBLIC SCHOOL so we can offer our students more without having to always go to our own pockets as teachers that already have substandard pay where more and more is put on our plates every year by a disconnected legislative body. When is the last time ANY of them were in a classroom everyday, teaching children? When was the last time they were expected to live on a salary, that required to be a professional but paid as if they were a high school dropout? When was the last time half of your check went to health insurance that was a sorry HMO?? When?? If Texas is ever to be great, then it must invest in ALL children, not just a select few to cater to the upper class that make up the smallest population and already have more opportunities than most.

Andrea Rouse

Self/Driver

Dallas, TX

I am so against this.

Donna Olejniczak, Teacher

Self

San Antonio, TX

Please do not pass vouchers. It will exacerbate an already crippled system. The families I serve can not afford private education. The vouchers will not pay an entire year of school. When the kids are done using their vouchers, the parents will send the kids back to public Ed where the funding will be non existence for these kids because they were not there at the beginning of the school year. The districts have been under funded for 15 years and everyone is doing the job of five people. Voucher system will not help the majority, maybe just a minority. The far right is trying to go too far and take away Medicaid for special needs kids who need it the most!

Catherine Chesser

Self. Teacher

Richardson, TX

Public education is a backbone of society. By providing increased funding for private schools we put our most at risk Texans at further disadvantage. Students with disabilities, low income or rural students will not be able to access private schools or charters as readily as more affluent students. Further, by not imposing the same testing regulations on private and charter schools as public schools, this bill fails to hold such institutions accountable for student learning.

SANDRA ROLFE

TEXAS AFT

DESOTO, TX

I do not approve school vouchers. Our public schools will suffer.

Denise Wilkerson

Self

Arlington, TX

I do not want my tax dollars going to private religious schools. I believe it's unconstitutional. in Arlington where I live, parents have numerous choices as to where they can send their children. We have charter schools. We have magnet schools. And the school district provides transportation to any of the public schools in our school district. Vouchers do not give parents choices. The choice is with the private school, whether or not to accept the child. If Texas wants to improve outcomes for more students, they need to invest in food programs for our children, increased access to healthcare for our children, and improve the quality of our public schools through teacher retention programs.

Susan Mouser

Self, retired teacher

Abilene, TX

Listen to the citizens of Texas. Do not listen to big bank accounts who have bought most of our elected officials. NO to vouchers. YES to properly and completely funding PUBLIC Schools.

Cheryl Stockton

Self

White Settlement, TX

You are kidding! Vouchers are bad for students, parents and teachers. Stop the dumbing down of the United States. Trump is not pro US his closing the Dept of Ed is wrong, vouchers are wrong! Student, parents and the US will pay!

LeeAnne Arnold

Self

San Antonio, TX

I am against HB 3 and the creation of education savings accounts being made with public school money to pay for private schools. Please vote against it.

Katherine Meis

Self

Dallas, TX

Please protect public education and vote against school vouchers and for Texas children, many of whom rely on public schools, especially our rural and inner-city students. Vouchers would bleed the limited funds, private schools would just raise rates and are not subject to following state and federal regulations including IEPs and 504s, and vouchers have proven to not work in other states that have adopted this policy.

Sarah Yeager

Self

Austin, TX

I am a former Texas teacher and a current Texas parent with students in public education. I previously was an educator in AZ which has a voucher/esa system in their state. The absolute horrors which it caused in education caused us to move back to Texas so that our children didn't have to endure the hardships caused by this voucher scam. AZ schools were underfunded: curriculum was outdated (I used curriculum older than I was to teach struggling learners, and our maps still had USSR on them because districts were unable to purchase new) there were no supplies (pencils literally kept under lock and key and I had to justify as to why I needed paper and pencils) and teachers were paid below the poverty line (I was paid at a heightened level because of masters work earning 32k a year, a new teacher was earning 28k). Public Schools in AZ are closing left and right and parents are forced to send their students to far away schools that have no resources and very little staff due to no funds. Others have to sacrifice and pay for private schools, of which a voucher barely even scratches the surface of total cost coverage. Don't do this to Texas children. They deserve fully funded schools and more resources. They deserve the best curriculum and the best teachers who are paid more than a living wage, but a wage that shows them their worth and retains them for the future. Do not give my tax money to subsidize the rich!

Rosemary Cavazos

Self

Niederwald, TX

Please, vote no on school vouchers and commit to funding our public schools. Our children, especially our special needs children, need this voucher scam to be voted down.

Regina Ellis

Parent / self

New Boston, TX

No vouchers! Do your constitutional duty and fully fund our public schools instead of taking money from them to give to private schools.

Leah Mailman
Self- social work
Wolforth, TX

I am not in agreement with the voucher system unless there is some sort of protections/requirements that the private school provide accommodations for low income and special needs kids. The school voucher system is set to assist low income families and people who would not otherwise have access to private schools. Most low income families rely on bussing systems due to working regular school hours- thus leaving out those specific low income families. The private school can choose not to accept certain children- thus disqualifying special needs children. There also needs to be some sort of income limit. Most people who will/can attend private school can afford it and should NOT be assisted with funding. Funding/tax exemptions should only be offered to low income families or families below a certain threshold. If school vouchers do pass- they need to be regulated in ways that will actually help the populations that Abbot claims they are supposed to help.

David Chandler
Self, teacher
Houston, TX

Vote NO on this legislation. Texas public schools deserve more than to be pilfered by voucher programs. STOP THE PRIVATIZATION OF OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS. Vote NO.

Nahid Butters, Dr.
Self
Austin, TX

This bill will only need to the impoverishment of our public education system. We need to save our public schools. I do not support!

Domita Clark, Paraprofessional
EPISD
El Paso, TX
Fight for what is right

Sarah Norris
self, professor
Austin, TX

My kids attend Texas public schools, as did I. I believe our society depends upon high-quality public education. School vouchers will bankrupt our public schools and harm our kids. No to vouchers. Support public education.

Kecia Adams-Wright
Self
Argyle, TX

I strongly oppose the governor's voucher plan he is attempting to push through. Voters do NOT want this yet he continues. Please represent your constituents and fight against this!

Anna Couch

My family

Austin, TX

I oppose this bill as public money should only be applied to public services, most definitely including schools. As a former Texas teacher, I know that Texas public schools are severely under funded and need to be fully funded to solve many of the problems that are brought up when discussing public schools/school choice. Currently there are a plethora of challenges that public schools face that could be solved by funding them appropriately. Why are Texas schools one of the least funded schools in the country? If we value education, then adequate funding should be appropriated to it instead of taking away more dollars by directing public funding to private schools that do not have the same programs that students need to be successful, accountability, acceptance of all students that public schools provide. Public schools make sure to meet the needs of all students without turning any away with the resources they have available. Classrooms are having to be packed due to severe lack of funding, and not being able to hire the appropriate amount of teachers and support staff. There are many school choice options currently available and parents are able to decide what is best for their child and family as it currently is. With this "school choice" plan, how many students would actually benefit from the plan? Would all Texas students be able to attend the private school paid for by our public dollars? Or is this fund intended for only a select few? How will that be decided? And how is it fair to take public money away from all students to provide more "choice" for the few that would reap the benefits? If this is not a choice for all, then there is no choice. Let's instead provide for better education for all students by fully funding public schools where districts don't have to continually cut programs, staff, teachers, and close schools down simply because the budget is always falling short. Let's provide the resources that schools need and support our teachers who dedicate their lives to students instead of setting them up for failure. Let's work together to set our public schools up for success by fully funding them and treating public school teachers as dedicated, hardworking, selfless professionals that they are. Everyone will still have the same school choices as there are many currently available but this time public schools can provide better by having the resources they so desperately need.

Scott Miller, President of Progressive Information Technology

Small business owners

Dallas, TX

Vouchers will kill our workforce readiness. Goofy "schools" like Mercy Culture will graduated scientifically illiterate kids. Texas' economic miracle would be killed by greed. Vouchers are wrong for employers who need smart, informed workers, not flat earthers.

Penny Ghinaudo, Ms.

Retired teacher

Santa Fe, TX

Don't mess with Texas teachers

Julia Jackson

Self

Katy, TX

Texas needs good public schools. They are an imperative part of the American Dream. A voucher program will leave disproportionate groups of poor children behind. If we want to be a strong state, we need to provide all citizens with a strong education.

Thalia Loera

N/A

Houston, TX

These vouchers mean the disenfranchisement of the youth of our country. Without our support, our country will never be close to the great nation we could be. Do not pass the vouchers bill. It WILL affect you. I know you don't believe it, because of all the money you'll be buried in. But believe me, you and your will reap this terrible terrible lie you are about to sow.

Leata Needham, Mrs.

Self

Gordon, TX

I do not agree with HB3. I see the hard work teachers put in daily...even before and after contract hours, and on weekend, to support their students with little government support. Taking from the poor and giving to the rich. That is all this bill will do. It is selfish, and unacceptable! As a Sped teacher, I see all types of needs accommodated for in my tiny district. Taking away from students is blatantly not caring for children and their emotional, social, and academic well being. Shame on anyone pushing for this bill! Our kids are depending on you while you play games to get rich.

Dustin West

Self

Abilene, TX

Not in support of the bill. It is not true school choice unless it is available for all Texas students. There is no guarantee that the students who will need this bill the most will be even able to use it as there is likely a limited availability of resources. Our family uses our choice to send our son to a school district that better serves our needs. That is school choice. Not public funding private school because Timmy's mom doesn't like a how his teacher teaches social studies. Giving public schools the resources to succeed every Texas child is the best way to ensure our students in Texas stand a chance.

I know there is a poll listed in the Texas republican primary that is quoted saying Texans want school choice but the poll says nothing about using public money to fund a small number of Texas children. If the question had been properly worded, I doubt it would be the "proof" Buckley and Abbott declare it to be.

Krystal Schumacher

Self-Teacher

Katy, TX

We don't want the vouchers! Title I schools are already struggling. Abbott ILLEGALLY withholding money for 2 years because this didn't pass last time has only further hurt our students. Parents in Texas deserve to know that the public school is the best option. Fund the public schools and NOT private schools. Tax dollars are supposed to benefit everyone. Not a select few. We told you 2 years ago we didn't want vouchers. And y'all are so arrogant to push for it again. We said no! We're still saying NO! You are supposed to listen to your constituents, not to a few rich people that want more money for their private schools.

Mayra Olvera-Risser

Self

Richmond, TX

Many citizens like me do not approve of this bill. It was been rejected twice before. Why are our "lawmakers" continuing to push it. How about we introduce a bill to HELP our public schools flourish? Help our students, our teachers, our families—put faith back into our schools! Please stop pushing this parental rights narrative. Parents HAVE rights now! Nobody has ever denied them or taken anything from that. Instead focus parents and families to get involved in their children's education, invest in stronger public schools and teachers, in better programs, more support to our communities, and stop this divisiveness.

Stacy Walker

Self/College Professor

Spring, TX

Vouchers will erode our public school system and undermine the quality of life for most of our residents and students.

Emily Hessing
Self
Highland Village, TX

As a parent and public school teacher, I ask you to please vote NO on this Bill. Public Schools need more financial support. Private Schools should not be able to have public funds when they do not have the same requirements such as state testing, accepting ALL students, state certified teachers, etc... Please increase the basic allotment to Public Schools and give Teachers a much needed raise.

Polly Stelzel
Self
Lavon, TX

Why are we willing to provide $10000 per voucher for private schools and only $6200 for public school students? That is wrong on so many levels. Public school students should be given an equal playing field.

Zainab Tinwala
SELF
Coppell, TX

PLEASE DO NOT APPROVE THIS BILL. Texas needs Public School funding to be the most primary, foremost in urgency and of highest $$ value. Our future workforce and quality of life as a Texan is at stake. Our State needs to be the premier in public education across the country- with the rate people are moving here and the quality of companies we are attracting. As a business owner, it is impossible to find quality TX residents and we land up looking cross country or off-shore. Educating our future work force to a level beyond "standard" , "acceptable" "enough" is the need of the hour. We need cutting edge and quality of education on par with the WORLD in order to be the best manufacturing, technology units here. ESA is only helping a very very select few who can already help themselves. It DOES NOT help Texas - our people, our communities, our local establishments. PLEASE STOP.

Eddie Earwood, Mr.
self. teacher
Brackettville, TX
No Voucher

Daphne Neal, . Mrs
HFT
Houston, TX

I say no to school vouchers because private school funding takes away from public school funding. I am a teacher. My kids went to both private and public schools. I pay high taxes in the district where I live. I say no to school vouchers!!

Courtney Nesloney, RN
Comal ISD school nurse
Bulverde, TX

School vouchers are NOT what most Texans want! Public school funding is not good now and can't afford to lose any funding. Vouchers are used by students already attending private school

Patricia Murphy, Ms.
Self
Dallas, TX

I urge you to vote no on this bill. Keep public money in public schools! Don't siphon it off to schools that will pop-up just to make profit and/or to schools that do not service ALL students- who instead choose their "business clients." will

Richard Brewe
self
Houston, TX

This bill is an abomination against the idea of a civil society and the future of all children within the state. Ruining the value and status of public education across the state will only devalue the status of private education as well. There is no benefit to this bill.

Catherine Hanks
Self
Lufkin, TX

I am vehemently opposed to this bill. Texas already has among the lowest per student expenditures in the nation; Texas' public schools are already struggling financially. This bill will only serve to bankrupt our public school system. In addition the amount allotted per student will not be enough to cover private school tuition, so those who choose to attend private school will still need to cover some of the tuition expense, meaning that this is really just a break for wealthy and upper middle class families. Additionally, private schools are not subject to the same requirements as public schools- they are not required to educate all students, they are not required to meet the same academic standards, and there is very little financial oversight to account for how our tax dollars would be spent. Similar bills which have passed in other states have proven to be fiscal nightmares. Please vote "No" for house bill 3.

Maria Lopez
Aldine AFT
Spring, TX

The vouchers are not good for public schools

Allison Carroll
Self instructional coach
Kerrville, TX

I feel like vouchers will destroy public schools. At this point education is just crowd control. We need to put more money into schools to hire more teachers and reduce class sizes. That is key to a great education!

Mitchell Sanford
Self
Canton, TX

Vote no to HB 3. Take those funds and give them back to public schools that serve over 5 million students. This is nothing but a vendor bill to help a select few (that the private schools will select). It is NOT what your constituents want. Do the right thing and vote no to HB3.

Guadalupe Avila
Public School Teachers
Houston, TX

Do Not pass this bill. It will harm our Texas children, it will bankrupt public schools. Do Not vote for this disastrous bill. We will vote you out.

Mary L Riggs Cuyno

Self /Retired

Wichita Falls, TX

I oppose school vouchers paid for by public tax dollars. This benefits few students who already can afford private school and underfunds rural schools that don't have the population to support private schools. Vouchers take money away from communities whose only option is public school. Make no mistake, this bill is supported and the campaign funded by billionaire Jeff Yass to siphon off public tax dollars to line his own pockets. Privatization is right out of the private equity handbook. Children will receive fewer services at higher costs to taxpayers. Eventually, public education will be so underfunded it will no longer be an option. The underprivileged will suffer while the wealthier benefit. For politicians that push their Christian values on everyone including the placement of the 10 commandments in classrooms and forcing teachers to incorporate bible lessons in their curriculum, you sure aren't following the Beatitudes or the 10th Commandment that talks about not coveting. What kind of Christian takes from the poor to give to the rich? Shouldn't that be the other way around? Jeff Yass could have put that money toward public schools or paid his fair share in taxes, except he is not a Texan. He is an out of state donor. He's spending money toward wrecking our public school system because he wants everything privatized and profit-driven. Public schools are neither. Furthermore, he and the politicians he supports are buying "loyalty" from the private school students and parents through schools that have no public accountability, all on my significant property taxes here in Texas. Yass has stated publicly he wants to see the demise of public schools. If you truly want to give a voice to parents, then put this measure on the ballot and let the voters decide. Otherwise, this measure is just another get rich scam where children and taxpayers are being used as pawns. NO on taxpayer funded school vouchers!

Kimberly Cockman

AFT

Katy, TX

Vote NO

Ronald Nichols

Self

Centerville, TX

Please listen to the public who overwhelmingly oppose vouchers. We all know the story.... Greg Abbotts money source, which is from out of the State, is pushing this. Vouchers are not the answer to education!

Tracey Borchardt, Executive Director of Athletics

Self Educator

Odessa, TX

Treat all kids the same dollar for dollar

Carol Rogers

Self

Denton, TX

Please stop this bill! Look closely at other states who have implemented this. It does not work! Rural communities, low income families, children with learning/physical disabilities and our public schools will suffer. Release the funds that have been just sitting there and properly fund our schools and teachers. Thank you.

Jessica Brown, Dr.

Self

Houston, TX

Please vote no on any voucher scheme for Texas. I have two children in TX public schools, both of whom require some specialized support. I am concerned that this bill will harm special needs children— which is neither pro family nor pro life. Vouchers are bad for Texas families.

Melinda Buchanan

Self

Sanger, TX

I am writing in opposition to HB 3. This bill will create an enormous burden on Texas taxpayers as it creates an additional lane of school funding by subsidizing private schools. It opens the door for government intrusion into both private and homeschools.

Javier Vasquez

Austin ISD

Austin, TX

Hello. Voters voted for representatives to pass school choice. Let's make it happen!

- Javier the bus driver

Andrea Brown, Ms.

Self

Houston, TX

Dear Members of the House Committee on Public Education,

I am writing to strongly oppose House Bill 3, the proposed school voucher bill, as it poses significant risks to public education in Texas and its stakeholders, including students, parents, and teachers.

Impact on Public Education

House Bill 3 would divert taxpayer funds to private schools, undermining the already fragile public education system. This reallocation of resources would hinder public schools' ability to provide quality education, particularly for vulnerable groups such as low-income families, students with special needs, and English language learners. By prioritizing private education, we risk deepening educational inequities.

Concerns for Teachers and Parents

For teachers, this bill could lead to job insecurity, reduced morale, and larger class sizes due to funding cuts. As dedicated professionals, teachers are essential to student success, and any threat to their stability directly affects the educational experience of our children.

Parents may face challenges navigating the complexities of private education. While some may welcome the option of vouchers, many families lack the resources or time to research and afford private schooling. This could limit their choices, rather than expand them, especially for those already struggling to make ends meet.

Lobbying Efforts and Financial Benefits

It is crucial to scrutinize those lobbying for this bill. Organizations that stand to gain from the expansion of school vouchers often include private educational institutions and for-profit companies. Their financial interests raise ethical concerns about the motivations behind this legislation, suggesting a potential conflict between profit and the public good.

Effects on Retired Teachers and the Teacher Retirement Fund

The long-term implications of this bill on retired teachers and the teacher retirement fund are also alarming. A decline in public school funding could jeopardize the financial stability of the retirement fund, affecting the pensions of those who dedicated their careers to education. Protecting the interests of our retired educators is essential, as they deserve a secure retirement after years of service.

In summary, House Bill 3 threatens the foundation of our public education system, impacting students, parents, and educators alike. I urge you to prioritize the needs of public schools and the communities they serve. Please vote against this legislation and support initiatives that strengthen public education in Texas.

Thank you for your attention to this critical issue.

Louise Champagne

Self. Retired.

Riesel, TX

I am 100% OPPOSED to SCHOOL VOUCHERS. I am OPPOSED to any PUBLIC FUNDS being used for any PRIVATE schools.

We need to FULLY FUND our PUBLIC SCHOOLS and PROVIDE the best possible FREE PUBLIC EDUCATION for all TEXAS children.

Michelle Walsh

Self - market analyst and mom

Austin, TX

I feel strongly the state should support public schools and funding should NOT be used for private or alternative school funding. The state should also review and abolish the unfair Robin Hood tax plan.

Jacquelynn Erickson

Self

Cibolo, TX

I oppose this bill. Using tax payer money to educate students in a private setting should absolutely hold private/charter schools to the same standards of public education. This is yet more money being taken from public students making it harder and harder to educate some of the most challenging students while denying them their constitutional right to an education.

Cynthia Dominguez, M. Ed

Self

El Paso, TX

I am not in agreement with this bill. It is unfair and unjust to create the school choice vouchers because low income students would be affected the most.

Clara Peden

Self - stay at home parent

Houston, TX

I strongly oppose ESA. The state has failed for many years to fully fund public education. Our Governor has stated that parents should have options if their school is failing - parents can already leave for private school and the Governor is one of the individuals that has caused failure in public education. The state has not increased their student allotment since 2019. How can anyone pay their 2025 bills with their 2019 paycheck?

Suzann Benson

Self

Port neches, TX

No public voychers

Betty Sanders

Self, retired teacher

Taft, TX

Vote NO! Please consider working with public schools to solve their problems rather than working against them. Many families in many areas in Texas don't have the ability to offer or accept a choice of school. My area would require transportation out of town; many families wouldn't be able to provide that. So this program would not help them. However, figuring out how to improve discipline issues and retain good teachers would help everyone. Vote NO. Support public education fully.

Betty Sanders

Sheri Cota
Self
Fort Worth, TX

As a state, it's important to have a well educated society. Vouchers will prevent that from happening. It will mostly hurt rural families, who don't have as much access to private schools. See the data from Arizona. It's been tried already and is a massive failure. The wealthy few shouldn't get a discount on tuition at the expense of most of our students in Texas. Private Schools can pick and choose their students and often leave out special needs students. Private schools already have more resources available to them than public schools. What's to stop them from raising their prices, leaving even more students out? They don't even have to be accountable by taking STAAR, even though the vouchers would come from public funds. I urge you to think of all of Texas's students and not just the wealthy ones. Public schools need to be properly funded to benefit all of our communities!

Thank you!

Julie Seeley
Teacher/ self
Argyle, TX

No to vouchers by any name! Raise the basic allotment! Fully fund Texas PUBLIC schools with public money. No tax dollars to private schools. Raise the basic allotment! Give all public school teachers a $5000 raise, not some fake meet pay scheme. Preserve TRS teacher retirement! I have devoted 33 years to public school teaching. Abbott is in an unethical relationship with his friend Fass. Please do the right thing. Do not underestimate the power of teachers to vote all of you out.

Kelley Thomas
Self, Volunteer
Richardson, TX

Committee members, I respectfully urge you to oppose HB 3.

I'm Kelley Thomas, a proud public school parent of two who thrived in our neighborhood schools, a former educator, and a dedicated volunteer.

Some claim an ESA program won't defund public schools, but the math says otherwise. If just 2% of students in a 50,000-student district leave, that's 1,000 students gone. Using TEA's 2023-24 average M/O cost of $10,800 per student, that's $10.8 million lost. Spread across 60 campuses, each loses about $183,600—without reducing a single fixed cost like transportation, insurance, or utilities. There wouldn't be a need for a staff reduction. Schools would now need to cover the same costs with significantly fewer dollars. This is how public schools—traditional and charter—are seen as being defunded or could be described as systematically underfunded.

Some compare ESA losses to families moving out of state. But when families relocate, others move in, keeping enrollment stable. An ESA program permanently removes funding from the system similarly to an ongoing enrollment decline in many of our once fast-growth districts. We know that the impact of negative enrollment growth is forcing districts to increase class sizes, limit support staff, and close campuses. Even if only 1% of students leave annually after year one, the long-term effect will be devastating.

We all remember 2011's $5.4 billion education cuts. Schools slashed programs, laid off teachers, and relied on volunteers to fill in the gaps. Today, with rising deficit budgets, it's happening again—but now, the gaps are getting wider and the volunteer pool is drying up.

No matter where ESA funding comes from, diverting tax dollars to new system reduces available resources for Texas' infrastructure—roads, water, electricity. How can Texas remain a top destination for businesses if we gamble with education and critical services every two years?

The eighth-largest economy in the world should not risk its future on short-sighted policies. HB 3 threatens the stability of our public schools, communities, and economy. I urge you to reject this bill.

Tracey Rudnick
Self
San Antonio, TX

HB3 is not appropriate for Texas residents. It would adversely affect the students and their right to a free and appropriate education. FAPE. Texas students that are around or below the poverty line are still entitled to a free and appropriate education! They don't have parents that can drive them to their private school, they utilize the school bussing to attend. Sometimes these students don't eat unless they attend school. We are a country for ALL people, right? Not just the wealthy, right? Please think about the legal recourse and the people you are representing. Thank you for your time.

Carolyn Potter
Richardson High School PTA
Dallas, TX

Texas funds for Texas public education, not special interest east coast money.

Alison Westermann
Self, homemaker
El Paso, TX

Vouchers are a scam. Here's what they tell you: it's about parental choice. That's a lie. Private schools, on average, cost over $10,000 annually. Add the cost of books, uniforms, school lunch, fundraisers, gas or other transportation costs and you're looking at closer to $15,000. Per year. Do you really think private schools are excited about welcoming your children, or do you think they'll simply raise tuition to keep them out while also cashing your voucher? As a student of history, I can safely say that I know what they'll do. Leaving aside all the benefits of public school versus private, for now, did you know that in Texas, homeschooling counts as a private school? When you realize that, it all becomes crystal clear, doesn't it? Proponents of vouchers aren't pro-private school, they're anti-school in general. They support homeschooling as a way to contravene the foundational ethics and morals learned in a public school - lessons about interdependence, the value of all of our freedoms, and the shared experiences that build empathy with and for people whose lives are very different from our own. Homeschooling is not the enemy here, but it is the reason that vouchers are being proposed - to siphon money OUT of public schools and into the hands of individuals, who will not turn around and enroll their children in private schools, contrary to what they're telling us. The facts on the ground reveal that statement as a lie: there aren't enough private schools for all the children who will ostensibly take advantage of these vouchers. Don't be fooled - destroying public education is the goal here, and vouchers are simply a tool in service of that goal, which serves the ultimate goal - weakening and destroying the fabric of our democracy. Public education is worth protecting. Public funds belong in public schools.

Carolyn DEL RIO
Self
El Paso, TX

School vouchers will not improve the quality of education for Texas children, especially those in El Paso. Our public school system here outperforms state standards nearly every year. Area private schools offer less opportunities for students than public schools. What WILL help public education is have Governor Abbott give public schools the state funding necessary. We received zero dollars from the state this year. Texas should invest in their public schools as the majority of students attend public schools.

Lannie Gray
Self- Telecommunications Manager
Sunnyvale, TX

Texas House Bill 3 is a direct attack on public education. Instead of properly funding our schools, supporting teachers, and ensuring students have the resources they need, this bill pushes a voucher scheme that siphon taxpayer dollars away from public schools to fund private education with little accountability. Vouchers are NOT the answer—they divert critical funding from already underfunded schools, widening the gap between privileged and struggling students. Even with bipartisan opposition, Greg Abbott is forcing this through, ignoring the will of the people and the lawmakers who know this bill will do more harm than good. If we truly care about the future of Texas education, we should be strengthening our public schools, not dismantling them for political gain.

Chele Bowser
Self teacher
San antonio, TX

I vote no to vouchers

Jennifer Davis
Self, homemaker
Austin, TX

No vouchers! And fund our public schools properly. So many kids depend on public schools for an education. In addition, a lot of people don't have an option to send their children to private schools nor do they want to. We have loved our public schools so far and want to keep that option!

Siobhan Lilley
Self
Saginaw, TX

Vote NO for school vouchers! Public money is for public schools-let's improve our public education system as a priority before funneling money into the private sector!

Miguel Aceves
Self
Corpus Christi, TX

Vouchers do not guarantee that a child will be accepted into the school. Private schools have the option of not accepting students whereas public schools don't have that choice. This voucher program is only for the select few. There's also accountability issues. Are we going to have the Private schools accountable like the public schools.

Monica Land
Self
Nacogdoches, TX

As a teacher for 25 years, I'm afraid for my future as I approach retirement. I'm afraid of losing my retirement because of all the outrageous decisions being made by the government. Vouchers will ruin public education and make life miserable for the special education programs and the students they serve. This is robbing from the poor to make the rich richer! No to vouchers! Education is for ALL not just the rich!

Mary Ann Knight
Self
Mansfield, TX

I am OPPOSED to the ESA program as outlined in HB 3. The State does not fully fund public schools, refused to use the surplus to lift the funding to the level that it should be, yet HB3 proposes to pay families to go to private schools & homeschools. This is not what taxes are for; it is not supposed to be coupons for the wealthy. These ESAs do not cover private school tuition, so ESAs are essentially serving as reimbursement to those who can already afford private schools. We do not give reimbursement coupons to those who choose not to utilize public parks & public roadways.

Nicki Morrison
Self- Educator
Ennis, TX

ESA, vouchers, etc. will steal money from public education. We already have school choice in TX. Public funds should stay in public schools.

Stephanie Cantrell, Retired

Self/teachers

Arlington, TX

The voucher program is wrong!!! It will demoniac the finding for public schools and will lower the amount of money going into TRS!!! Our state will not be competitive with other states since we will not have enough educational resources and well educated students. This promotes elitist idéala and not education for all. It is lowering Texas education standards even more than they are now. Public education is important for our state and country so all may be on equal footing economically, educationally and politically. We need smarter people to help run businesses and keep our communities successful. Do not vote in favor of vouchers.

LETICIA M SALCIDO

Self/curriculum Specialist

Cibolo, TX

As a public school employee (TEA designated Master teacher and now a coordinator of Curriculum and instruction) and a product of the public school system,i know first hand how the voucher bill will affect all students and their families. Taking away funding from an already struggling system means the further loss of effective teachers, loss of resources for students and school, and overflowing classrooms where students struggle to get individualized attention. This bill does not care about children. This bill only serves to help those families who don't need the help and hurts those families that need it most. Texas pays millions for a standardized test that doesn't truly capture what students know and bases teacher effectiveness on one measure. This money could be better spent on students and this is where the real legislation should be focused!

Colin Shillinglaw

Self

Flint, TX

I am against HB 3 and all other voucher mechanisms. I do not see fairness or accountability in this. I grew up in private schools and realize that was an option , just like it is now. The 1 billon to private school will not help the problems with education. Please work on the issues that will really mean change. Thank you

Colin Shillinglaw

Christine Heath, Mrs

Self

Cypress, TX

I do not support school vouchers

Daniel Kline

Self

Denton, TX

I am against school voucher programs. They only defund public education, which fully services and supports everyone. Private schools do not.

Natascha Gonzales

Self- Teacher

Garland, TX

Texas House Bill 3 is a direct attack on public education. Instead of properly funding our schools, supporting teachers, and ensuring students have the resources they need, this bill pushes a voucher scheme that siphon taxpayer dollars away from public schools to fund private education with little accountability. Vouchers are NOT the answer—they divert critical funding from already underfunded schools, widening the gap between privileged and struggling students. Even with bipartisan opposition, Greg Abbott is forcing this through, ignoring the will of the people and the lawmakers who know this bill will do more harm than good. If we truly care about the future of Texas education, we should be strengthening our public schools, not dismantling them for political gain.

Stephanie Shatt

Self- Dyslexia Practitioner

Fort Worth, TX

I have been a Texas Educator for over 30 years. Never have I felt such budget cut backs as over the past 5 years. Teachers are underpaid, over worked (larger class sizes) all the while Texas has increasing demands due to state standards and the strains of society on our children. Texas public schools, is already underfunded by the state. Since school district funding is primarily based on student enrollment and attendance, if current students were to leave for private schools or homeschool, the financial impact would be great. The amount of the voucher is not enough to cover any private school of quality. Which means this is essentially, taking money from public school and giving to those who currently have enough to pay for private school and are already doing so. If taxpayer's dollars go to private schools in the form of vouchers, what type of accountability is going to be put in place for the private schools. Are they going to have to accept any and all students? Neither the private schools or parents will want this. I have had parents whose children attend private school express their concern for the vouchers. They do not want the state funds due to the strings that will have to be attached in order to hold private schools accountable to the money they are receiving. I have yet heard anyone in support of this voucher; Private school or public schools. My only conclusion is that this is yet another political stunt being pulled to line the pockets of someone with power. We all know this is not what's best for kids. If this passes and private schools are funded without state accountability, why would a public educator remain teaching for public schools? Isn't teacher retention already a concern?

I am entrusting you to represent the people and stop the politics affecting the future of our children. Thank you for your efforts.

Susan Cowden

self - Licensed Marriage & Family Therapist

Lubbock, TX

I am writing to ask representatives to vote against HB3. A strong public school system is in everyone's best interest and any money diverted from public schools is problematic. Parents and families do have the choice to attend private schools or home school with their own private funds and should not take funds away from public schools to do so. I support fully funding public schools.

Olympia McClendon

Self

Dallas, TX

This Bill would be detrimental to public school funding. Over 5 million students attend public school in Texas. Passing this bill would result in higher student to teacher ratios and fewer resources to educate those students. These outcomes with negatively impact the effectiveness of public education.

Ricky Brooks

Self

Pasadena, TX

Say NO. Stop attacking our future. Leave public education alone and support it for all children. Stop the steal.

Natalie Osborn, Mrs.

Self

Arlington, TX

I do not want vouchers. My tax money should not go toward the private sector. I have two children one of which is in public school. My second child will most likely go to public school as well. If I choose to put my students in private school I should pay for that choice. If private schools are looking to increase numbers then they should make it more affordable. However we know this is not the ultimate gain of private schools. As a public school educator this bill will cripple an already fledgling system. If the Governor and TEA want to discuss the issues that are currently effecting our public schools than please get a panel of those who are actually on the ground from large, and small districts. Parents, teachers, and administrators. These issues run deep and have been happening for years even prior to Covid. But moving funds from our public schools will not solve any of these issues. Vouchers are simply welfare for the wealthy.

Celia Rosas, Mrs.

Self

Dallas, TX

I demand that Governor Greg Abbott oppose any legislation, including H.R. 899, or efforts by the executive branch to abolish the Department of Education. Eliminating the department would devastate public schools, hurt students with disabilities, strip away civil rights protections for millions of students, and eliminate crucial workforce development programs that boost our economy. Education is a fundamental right, not a privilege for the wealthy. This savings program will not help our low/mid income students. It will completely eliminate the opportunity of the American dream. It will drown the hope of changing the circle of many including my own. I seek for a better future and our children are our future.

Morgan Kirkpatrick

Self/marketing coordinator

Lubbock, TX

As a former Texas middle school teacher, I urge the committee and all house representatives to listen to your constituents! That means you have to meet with them. If you're avoiding town halls because you expect dissent, that should tell you that we do not want vouchers. We want you to fully fund public education in Texas. We want public funds to stay in public schools.

I left public education in May of 2022 because I saw the writing on the wall - if you allow vouchers in Texas, you are allowing the destruction of public education. Are there improvements needed for Texas students and teachers and school staff? YES! That is why you must fully fund public education and keep public funds in public schools.

Thank you for your time and effort.

Arron Preston

Myself

Dale, TX

Vote no to welfare for the wealthy. Vote no to using public funds for private schools. Vote no to subsidizing the middle man industry of private school clearinghouses. Vote no to funding private schools who have no required curriculum, no required testing, no required standards, no requirements to accept children with disabilities or provide IEP services.

Vote yes to funding public schools and protecting the rights of children with disabilities.

Colleen Mladic

Self

Waxahachie, TX

This bill will irreparably harm students and lower their educational success. Public money belongs in public schools.

Daniel Wilcox Independent
Mansfield, TX

I am in strong opposition against HB3! Fully fund public schools! Inflation and unfunded safety mandates from the last session have the majority of public school districts in deficit budgets.

NICOLE MARKER
Self
Houston, TX

Please vote no on HB 3. Public schools deserve full funding.

Beverly Avila, Mrs
AFT
Mcallen, TX

Please protect public schools and employees. No vouchers or ESA

Shannon IRISH
Self and my public school attending son
La Vernia, TX

Texas refuses to properly funded public schools now suddenly there's so much money it can start paying for private school too? Texans don't want vouchers, they want their neighborhoods public schools to succeed and flourish. They want their neighbors who are teachers to continue to have jobs. We don't want vouchers and I think you overwhelmingly heard that yesterday.

Uyen Tran Parsons
self
Denton, TX

Born and raised in Texas, I am incredibly grateful for the outstanding public education I received growing up. House Bill 3 is a threat to public education as a public good, particularly for rural areas where school funding and great teachers are already limited. I also find it concerning that there is a education savings account program that does not guarantee everyone who wants a private school education could get a private school education. Please do not allow this bill to go forward. We need a remodeling of public education in Texas but not in this form. Please consider those who are most vulnerable in our state such as single parents, families of military service members, first generation students, and students with disabilities.

Natalia Jackson
Self/Social Worker
Lubbock, TX

I am opposed to this bill. Please do not use taxpayer money to fund expensive private schools.

Jessica Allen
Self/teacher
Nemo, TX

As a public school educator it is disheartening to see that our school funds will be given to private schools. As a special education teacher and we help fund private school students to be tested for disabilities doesn't seem fair. Us teachers do not care for a pay raise right now we want funded for help of our failed education system, we want funds for behavioral programs, we want funds for our special education programs! We need help because we are drowning. Please vote NO to vouchers! Please help our education system where we need it!

Herb Cox, Dr.

Self

Waco, TX

I am a retired teacher, coach and administrator having spent 29 years serving in Texas public schools.

Texans overwhelmingly have shown time and time again that they DO NOT WANT vouchers.

Our Texas public schools have been woefully underfunded with the basic allotment having remained the same since 2019.

This is unacceptable and does not follow the Texas Constitution Art. 7.

Please fund our schools at an appropriate level. If a $10,000 voucher is the number for students already attending private schools in the form of a voucher, why are public schools kids only worth $6,160 in the eyes of Texas?

Fund our schools, give every teacher a pay raise, and stop bowing down to the out of state billionaires who are pushing their voucher agenda/

If vouchers are so popular you shouldn't have any problem with putting them on a statewide ballot and let all Texas decide once and for all.

Remember, private schools are exclusionary by design; special needs students will be kicked to the curb. Vouchers are a return to the days of segregation.

Texas public schools serve all of God's children.

Thank you,

herb

Jerri Wells, Ms

Self

Kerrville, TX

I believe HB3 is not in the best interest of children. Diverting funds from public education which must serve all children to private and homeschool situations where those entities can refuse services to specific children doesn't help the majority of children in Texas. It will only benefit a small number of students and families while crippling public education even further when the rejected students from private and homeschool situation now must turn back to public schools that have fewer funds and fewer teachers due to the voucher program.

Also teachers will be leaving public education as there will not be funds available to maintain their salaries which will begin crippling TRS that teachers and staff have been REQUIRED to pay into that can leave many without retirement benefits in a few short years if this bill passes. Vote NO if you care at all about students and the vast majority of teachers who sacrifice their time, money and resources for public education on a daily basis.

Megan Barrett

Self

Dallas, TX

Vouchers are a scam and only hurt public education. Public education needs more money put into the classrooms not less. Charter and private schools are not held to the same standards and do not provide quality education as much as it is promoted. Many don't even hire certified teachers.

Cara Prentice

Self

Plano, TX

I absolutely oppose the school voucher scam. The Texas government sits in millions of dollars of funds for public education, while starving schools of that funding. It is abhorrent that you want to use MY tax dollars to give that money to private schools that can refuse to accept students that they deem "not acceptable." If you want to send your kids to private school, then do it, but I shouldn't pay for some rich kid that's already in private school. What about areas that don't have private schools? Are you going to provide transportation to other parts of the city?? Will you pay for after school care so parents that work have time to pick up their kids when their school is miles away from their home?? Will private schools provide for the needs of my child who needs special education services? No, they won't. Will private and charter schools have the same oversight as public schools? No, they won't. Stop the Abbott voucher scam and do something that will help the state. Districts are already closing schools and cutting programs. STOP starving our schools

Claudia Cortez
Self
Grand Prairie, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Mary Wilson, Ag teacher
Mary Wilson
Groveton, TX

I stand opposed to vouchers in Texas as written in this bill. No public money should be used to fund a private entity ever. Please vote No

Marcie Gollhofer
Self
Austin, TX

Vote no, please. Signed, former schoolteacher

KC West, Dr.
Self/Physician
San Antonio, TX

Please vote against vouchers. Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. There is nothing more imperative to our state than safe, quality education of our future leaders. Please fund public education for our children and our future.

Tiffany Burrell
Self
San antonio, TX

I oppose HB3 and any ESAs or voucher programs. I support the proper funding of public schools.

Sal Weston, Dr.
Self
Lone star, TX

This voucher bill is another socialist imposition on conservatives. We don't want the vouchers and their entitlements. How sickening it is to see the republican party being run by the progressives. You may pass this bill but we will not forget your actions.

Rena Curry
Self Azle, TX

Help.our public schools....

Lisa Nelson

Self/CPA for public accounting diem

Dallas, TX

I DO NOT want vouchers or "education saving accounts" . Texas has always had a good public education system and greed is trying to ruin it by passing this bill. Fund public schools, and let private individuals who chose to go to private institutions pay for those themselves. Our state should be all about equality and not about subsidizing private school for wealth friends of the elected officials. The people of this state do not want this bill. Listen to whom you are supposed to be representing. Do not allow this to pass!

Summer Rose

Self, small business owner

Austin, TX

NO VOUCHERS!!!!

Jackie Besinger

Self

Austin, TX

Against the voucher bill HB3 by yet another progressive bill by Buckley.

This crisis goes beyond a mere financial dilemma; it is a deliberate failure born from legislative neglect, resulting in chronic underfunding, outdated recapture systems, and burdensome mandates that lack adequate financial support. As we navigate these challenging times, we must acknowledge the alarming truths about the Texas legislature and its higher political echelons, which are misleading Texans while expanding government power at the cost of our freedoms. United as conservative patriots, we have a duty to resist government overreach before it becomes too late. While school choice is often misrepresented as a strictly conservative or American concept, its origins trace back to the 1930s through the early 1980s, shaped significantly by Soviet communist and socialist ideologies. Driven by University of California–Berkeley professors John E. "Jack" Coons and Stephen Sugarman, with voucher advocacy resonating with socialist progressives during the 60s, 70s, and 80s. This raises pivotal questions regarding the alignment of the Republican Party's current ideologies with those of progressive socialist and communist movements.

Why is the Republican Party supporting a system that fosters control while diverting taxpayer funds to private organizations? Texas already offers a range of educational options that do not require excessive funding to address deliberately created educational issues. To the "Republicans" in this committee and the Texas legislature, the funds you intend to redistribute for the benefit of your oligarch donors are not yours to bestow; as Texans awaken from your gaslighting, you will face accountability in this lifetime. To truly promote the "diffusion of knowledge," it is crucial that you abolish the detrimental legislation that has precipitated the decline of education and resources in our public schools. Moreover, your education savings account program fails to empower my family in making decisions that suit our needs; instead, it amplifies government control, creates a new class divide, and enriches the select few within the system. This approach paves the way for more legislation that will invariably force your centralized education, subject to manipulation by those in power, easily dictating the learning landscape in an all-digital framework.

Sarah Newman

Self, therapist

Austin, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas Constitution.

Tammie Seay

Self

Denton, TX

Fund public schools

Lauri wiss
Self,retired commerce, TX

A child is determined to be academically disabled. S/he applied and did qualify for a loan.Now, there is a requirement by the school to pay everything in two payments. The State sends the money.
Six weeks later the family is told the child is not a good fit,regardless of the reason.The loan must be repaid even if the child is not a good fit for the school.

The parent is now on the hook for the rest of the year's tuition!

What happens to the other two children that were admitted (PIGGY BACKED) to the school now that the handicapped child no longer attends? Will that money be returned to the state? What if there is no money?

The loan company will not return money to the state. Now what?
Will money now be given to the public school district?

The amount the state has given to the parent is more than the homeschooling amount.
Does the parent return the private school money to the state?
What about the money given to the other children attending the private school? Will they continue to attend?

So,it is only possible to go to the private school if the family can pay the amount needed for tuition over the stated amount and can afford to return the money to the state.

The private school has a physical building. Who will inspect it for ADA compliance, especially bathrooms and kitchens ?

Will private school fiscal data be on the TEA site along with their name in the private school directory?

What are the broken out costs for a special needs student in a private school ?

How will it be determined?

Who will the private school send their financial data to to confirm the appropriate spending by the

Would the per student special needs program costs be a separate category or would normal administration facility,food service,transportation, non special needs teachers and aides be included in the per student cost of the special needs

What happens if enough special needs children can't complete or progress in the school?

Does that mean other income students can then be slotted in as spaces become available?

Does the bill answer these questions?

Gary Haliburton

Elgin ISD

Elgin, TX

I am writing in opposition to HB 3 not only as a longtime public educator but also as a parent. One of the real issues I have with this legislation is that no insight has been provided into the oversight that will go into implementing these accounts. What standards will private schools in particular be held to when it comes to providing all students with the services they require? While some private schools provide accommodations and special education services that is usually the exception. While schools that accept students who have accessed ESA's be held to the same accountability standards as the public (or charter) school that could use the additional funding? Will those schools now be responsible for ensuring that students pass the STAAR test? Will they be required to show progress in the long list of areas that public schools are held to? If the real concern is to provide alternate paths for students whose families are looking for another choice, how will this plan assist families in rural areas? What about families that still can't afford tuition even with the money provided from the accounts? The average tuition for private schools in the state of Texas is just over $11,000, an amount which exceeds the $10,000 provided. This isn't factoring in transportation, nutrition and other student services. I think the state legislature needs to really ask themselves who this plan is really designed to help. It doesn't appear that this plan is designed to help families that need it most. What I really fear is that this is going to lead to the growth of for profit schools. The educational outcomes for these types of institutions is poor. Let's really do what is best for families and fully fund Texas public schools.

Mary Rice
Self - parent
Austin, TX

I do not support the concept of vouchers or education savings account. This is expanding the role of government in a fiscally irresponsible way. The state should focus on how to make the public schools they already oversee more equitable. This would allow the state and the legislature to adequately oversee the schools that they are funding.

Jennifer Dipasquale
Self
Austin, TX
No vouchers.

Judy Hubbard
Self
Abilene, TX

If public schools had the small teacher/student ratio that private schools had the quality of teaching would be better. Must concentrate on more pay and better working conditions to get better qualified teachers.

Heather Morrow
Public schools in Harris County
Spring, TX

My tax dollars should be used to fully fund our public schools. Want to improve education? Invest in our public school teachers and education materials. Vouchers will only disenfranchise the majority of our kids.

Lori Mitchell self, Project Coordinator
Dripping Springs, TX

I support Public Schools and OPPOSE HB3! This will only hurt public schools and hurt rural schools and students. Public Schools need more funding to provide better opportunities for the students. Vote NO on HB3! Vouchers are wrong! OPPOSE HB3.

Kirsten Tanges
Self
Bee Cave, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Michelle Durham
Self, therapist
Abilene, TX
NO vouchers

Don Hurst
Self
Garland, TX

Please support this bill. It is not welfare for the rich because most of them won't qualify under the rules. Who it does benefit is the low and middle class families that find that public schools are not meeting their child's educational needs, however they do not have the financial ability to chose other educational options. Thus bill is for those people and I ask that you support this bill for them.

Leslie Wasson
Klein ISD parent
Spring, TX

This is the stupidest thing I've ever heard.

Jennifer Ayers-Brasher
Self, Engineer
Austin, TX

If the Texas legislature opts to have a education savings account program for folks to utilize for non-public institutions and you feel the value per student is $10,000 per year or any other amount then I would like that equal amount to be spent and allocated for every other student including my son. I pay in far greater than $10,000 per year through my property taxes just for the educational portion. Yet that money does not go to my schools and does not support my son's education. In fact, less than half of what I pay in for education through taxes is provided as allocation for my son's single slot. There is absolutely no reason that you should look at providing a different amount per student in the voucher program than you provide for a student in public education if you decide that a voucher program is the way to go.

To be clear, I don't think the vouchers are appropriate. We have a system that we pay money into for education and if somebody decides that that's not what they want they want something different and they have the means to take take that route then so be it. But don't take that money away from our students, in fact, give the money to our students that we're paying in and is not going to supporting their education.

Texas's education system is in the bottom of the country. Why don't we want to make ours the best? Why don't we want to be the best? Our state has so many opportunities, but we need well-educated individuals to make those things happen. Our state is a leader in energy in this country, you need individuals to do those jobs, to make those investments and that only happens by having an educated population. We're not doing our children the service of being at the top of the board when we don't give them the proper funding in education that they deserve and that is needed to make those things happen. So instead of taking away from our existing education system it needs to be funded properly and we need to become the best.

Lara Wilcox
self and Kealing MS PTA
Austin, TX

As a parent of two children in the Texas public school system, I strongly oppose House Bill 3, commonly referred to as the voucher or school choice bill. While supporters argue that this bill offers families more educational options, evidence from other states shows that such programs often lead to negative outcomes, including budget shortfalls and underfunded public schools.

Arizona, Florida, and other states have implemented extensive voucher programs that have led to significant budgetary issues. Initially aimed at aiding disadvantaged families, the program expanded universally, resulting in budget shortfalls and diverting funds from essential services and projects. This expansion has resulted in underfunded public schools and a system that favors wealthier families. Let us learn from these failures; otherwise, we will not have a different outcome in Texas.

Texas public schools already struggle with chronic underfunding, teacher shortages, and resource gaps. Instead of tackling these pressing issues, HB 3 would redirect taxpayer dollars to private schools and unregulated educational programs that are not held to the same standards of transparency, accountability, or inclusivity. Unlike public schools, private institutions are not required to accept all students, including those with disabilities or specialized learning needs, making this bill fundamentally unfair.

Public education is the backbone of our communities and economy. If we genuinely want families to have true school choice, we must begin by adequately funding our public schools. Every child in Texas deserves a well-funded, high-quality education, regardless of their zip code. Instead of undermining our public schools by diverting resources, we should invest in teachers, classrooms, and programs that benefit all Texas students—not just a select few.

I urge this committee to reject HB 3 and instead focus on real solutions that strengthen our public education system for all Texas children.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Lara Wilcox
self and Kealing MS PTA
Austin, TX

As a parent of two children in the Texas public school system, I strongly oppose House Bill 3, commonly referred to as the voucher or school choice bill. While supporters argue that this bill offers families more educational options, evidence from other states shows that such programs often lead to negative outcomes, including budget shortfalls and underfunded public schools.

Arizona, Florida, and other states have implemented extensive voucher programs that have led to significant budgetary issues. Initially aimed at aiding disadvantaged families, the program expanded universally, resulting in budget shortfalls and diverting funds from essential services and projects. This expansion has resulted in underfunded public schools and a system that favors wealthier families. Let us learn from these failures; otherwise, we will not have a different outcome in Texas.

Texas public schools already struggle with chronic underfunding, teacher shortages, and resource gaps. Instead of tackling these pressing issues, HB 3 would redirect taxpayer dollars to private schools and unregulated educational programs that are not held to the same standards of transparency, accountability, or inclusivity. Unlike public schools, private institutions are not required to accept all students, including those with disabilities or specialized learning needs, making this bill fundamentally unfair.

Public education is the backbone of our communities and economy. If we genuinely want families to have true school choice, we must begin by adequately funding our public schools. Every child in Texas deserves a well-funded, high-quality education, regardless of their zip code. Instead of undermining our public schools by diverting resources, we should invest in teachers, classrooms, and programs that benefit all Texas students—not just a select few.

I urge this committee to reject HB 3 and instead focus on real solutions that strengthen our public education system for all Texas children.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Erika Hill
Self
Justin, TX

I am completely opposed to school vouchers in Texas!!!! Our schools have been handicapped for too long by underfunding. If the state government would simply value the generations growing up and the work our educators do on a daily basis then change can come for all!! There are far too many students in Texas for private schools to educate. They are unregulated compared to our public schools and should never be compared. If the same voucher cannot be provided to all students, and it cannot, then you cannot argue that the system is going to be fair and equitable for all. Vote NO!!!

Kari Ramsey
Myself
BRYAN, TX

I could go on on but I would just be saying what most people have been saying who are against vouchers (ESAs to make them sound fancy). So, I will just make a few points.
This is anti-Republican, anti-kids, and anti-education. At this point, Republicans voted for this are flat out deserting their principles and giving in to political greed. High-stakes testing, Mike Morath, and the Texas legislature are the ones who have destroyed public education in Texas not the hard working teachers, school staff, and administrators. Fix the system with adequate funding not giving that funding to private schools. Get Morath out of TEA. Have legislators do what is best for children not their political careers and bank account!

Carol Lewis, Dr.
Self
Houston, TX

The long term implication will be devastating as millions of the left behind (those not in the voucher program) are undereducated . They will not be ready for the 2040 workforce and our state will suffer. And we can't go back and change this. The fault will lie at the feet of Gov. Abbott and the rich, who don't need this. There is no state that had passed this when out on the ballot. The deficit will balloon and for what? To leave even more students in our state that ranks in the bottom half of states in student educational attainment' already. This is a bad idea!!!

Kathi Mckenzie, Mrs
Self retired
Dallas, TX

No vouchers! Vouchers take public money away from public schools.

Brett Anderson
Magnolia Montessori For all
Austin, TX

I oppose you diverting public funds to private schools, no matter what you call it. I am a Texas voter and I want you to fully fund existing public school mandates, not divert funds to unaccountable private and religious schools. I know that virtually every other state that has created a voucher system with the limited guardrails you are proposing has seen a decimation of their public school systems and increasing burden to their state budgets. We don't want any of that here in Texas. Please fund our public schools and don't pass the voucher bill out of committee.

Kayla Kellner
Self
Mansfield, TX

I do NOT support HB 3. Please vote against it.

Sandra Nannola

Self

Cedar Park, TX

Public schools need proper funding. We do not want vouchers for private schools. Public money should stay in the picnic school system!

Chrissy Blumer

Self

Houston, TX

I have homeschooled my children for 6 years. I am adamantly opposed to this bill. We do not want access to state curriculum or state standardized testing. We homeschool so that we are able to use curriculum that works for each child, as they all have learning differences. This bill will take away our freedom to do that, as we will begin having to "teach to the test". It will impose the exact thing we are trying to avoid by not utilizing public school. We already have the choice to use public school, and have chosen not to. Our children are excelling in homeschool.

Heather Barnett

Self

Austin, TX

Our public schools need to be supported by all governments to make sure our children have fair and equal education to private schools without government helping private schools in any way, as these are private schools and need to depend on their private funding that the public schools do not get or have the same regulations. Public schools are for our public and that is where the public puts their money and trust, unless they willingly choose to go to private then that is a private decision and I do not approve of my tax dollars going to help others because they choose to do something different. If you can't afford it, it is not an option. Our children and country deserve the best and we owe this in order to have a better country. Our public school teachers and staff deserve better and can make a difference with the correct support, fairness, and funding that they deserve! It is not fair to compare public to private schools when they do not have same funding or regulations.

Erin Carroll

Self

Leander, TX

We need to say no to vouchers and fully fund our public schools. You continue to say that public education is failing, well that is because the basic allotment for education hasn't been increased since 2019. That's why you think public education is failing. We need increase the basic allotment to $1300 per child. This will help cover the gaps that we are currently facing. Taking this money away from public education will not help those who are in need. Please say no to vouchers! Say yes to funding public education and raising the basic allotment to $1300 per student. Thank you!

Maria Le

Self

Burleson, TX

I am a deaf mom, who have children under section 504, not may private schools provided what my children needs.

Emily Domaschk

Self, auditor

Elgin, TX

I am strongly against HB3, which continues to underfund our public schools and will redirect public monies to private schools and homeschoolers with insufficient oversight to ensure the actual students get a quality education that meets their needs. A well-educated populace is a benefit to all.

Public schools are already underfunded and this bill proposes providing even more per student to those taking advantage of the plan than public school students receive. This plan is a boondoggle ripe for misuse, as private schools profit on students without anyone ensuring the students receive a quality education and not indoctrination.

It also leaves students in rural counties without equal opportunities as there aren't private school options available. When high schools are fielding six-man football teams due to small class sizes, you're not going to be able to have a robust public school and robust private school options serving the same areas.

Texas schools are already falling behind other states; the pride of Texas should be our kids and their futures.

And no one who is complaining about the public park down the road is demanding that their country club membership be funded by tax dollars. No one is asking that the city pave their driveway. Because public monies collected for the collective use should only be used for public schools.

My two sons attend public schools and they deserve to have more funding, which would allow their school to attract and retain teachers with more competitive pay, to improve their facilities, to provide funding to students for their award-winning extracurriculars, such as theater and robotics team and sports teams.

Please reconsider the impact and true costs of this bill. Even adding riders to limit wealthy people who can already afford tuition, or capping participation, or creating requirements for oversight of curriculum would help limit the harm of this bill. Arizona implemented legislation for school vouchers and the state has run a major deficit due to ballooning costs associated with their plan.

This bill is bad for our state, our schools, and our students.

Sarah Filip

Self-teacher

Fate, TX

I am writing to express my strong opposition to Senate Bill 2 (SB 2) and House Bill 3 (HB 3), which would divert critical public school funding to private institutions through a school voucher program. As a parent, community member, and educator, I am deeply concerned about the negative impact this legislation will have on millions of Texas students and teachers.

Public schools are the foundation of our communities—but vouchers will take away funding that schools desperately need for teachers, classrooms, and student resources. Private schools are not required to serve all students—they can deny admission based on disability, income, or other factors. This bill does not promote true school choice—it only benefits a select few while weakening the education system for the majority.

Instead of taking money away from public schools, we should be investing in better teacher pay, modernized facilities, and support for students with special needs. Texas ranks below the national average in per-student funding—our priority should be strengthening public education, not diverting resources to unregulated private institutions.

In addition, the Teacher Retirement System and Fund is also at stake with these bills. My husband and I have been forced for 20 years to contribute retirement funds into the TRS system with a guarantee of retirement benefits. We are very concerned about the negative impacts these bills will have on our future as educators and our retirement funds.

I urge you to vote NO on school vouchers and stand up for Texas public schools and teachers. The future of our children depends on it.

Betsy Choate
self and disabled son
The Woodlands, TX

I do not agree with the voucher program and tax payers funding it. The public schools are already struggling with budget issues and the ability to keep good teachers/staff. How do we know these voucher paid schools will have, at least, the same academic standards that public schools strive to uphold? Will their students be tested academically like public schools and held to same degree/rules as public schools? Will they submit reports to the state/public about their performance so the public knows their dollars are well spent? How will students with special needs be addressed to produce the best outcome/adult living experience as public schools have produced?

Randy Hudson, Mr.
self
Belton, TX

My name is Randy Hudson and I am a retired CTE teacher. I taught AV Production in Killeen ISD, Belton ISD and Academy ISD. I have witnessed first hand how bad legislation can affect the already difficult task of educating Texas students. Vouchers are a bad idea. As you already know, Texas is 45 in the nation in funding schools. Taking badly needed money from an already starving public institution does not resolve any of the many issues facing public education. To paraphrase a quote I once heard " you can not cut your way to excellence". Good public schools require the resources to be successful. You also know that vouchers are unpopular and have not been successful in other states. So one has to ask, Why then are we pursuing this realignment of funds? The answer is because it benefits only those families that can already afford private education and those that own the private institutions. If I owned a private school, I would be excited about this potential windfall. My school already is NOT saddled with the regulations and requirements that IS required of public schools. For example, My teachers dont have to be certified, we dont have to provide special needs services or transportation. We are not required to participate in state mandated testing or accountability standards. We can select our student body and teach any curriculum we see fit. All this already gives my private school a leg up financially because I dont have to pay for any of the regulatory mandates demanded of our public school systems. So vouchers for me means I can continue to do business at the same costs but now I can raise my tuition and make more profit. The taxpayers are subsidizing my business. To this I say NO. There is a place for private education and they are doing well with private funds. The private schools I have visited over the last year, all appear to be doing well without vouchers. Make no mistake. Vouchers are not about giving opportunities to students and parents from meger means. Its about increasing the divisions in our social and economic fabric. It is a way to limit the road to success and upward mobility to only those that have the means and to increase labor pools for those who don't. Give ALL Students the same opportunities to be what they aspire to be. Fund the public schools we already have.

Ali Coe
Self/ teacher
Fairview, TX

School vouchers should not be passed! This goes against everything that public education stands for. How can you approve money for vouchers when you are not aiding our public schools. This is not giving families choice this is dismantling our public schools! Give public schools the money not private schools! This bill would be stealing funds from public schools! Vote against HB 3!

Sarah Choate

Self

Spring, TX

If public funds are going to be applied towards private education, the same amount per child needs to be allocated, whether it's applied to public education or vouchers going towards private education. Additionally, private schools that access the vouchers will need to use the same educational teaching standards for both teachers and students, evaluation process for teachers, preapproved educational materials by the state, additional services as far as special education services if a student with a voucher that accesses the private institution has a disability (without additional payment requirement), and state assessments for students. Or the other choice is to get rid of all of these requirements for public education and no one has to do it. There are always choices for parents and there will continue to be choices, even without vouchers. But if public education funds are being used, the standards for which they are being used needs to be equal across public education and private education (when vouchers with public funds are being accessed). Otherwise, this is a misappropriation of tax payers tax money and unfair to adults and students across the state.

Martin Filip

Self

FATE, TX

?I am writing to express my strong opposition to Senate Bill 2 (SB 2) and House Bill 3 (HB 3), which would divert critical public school funding to private institutions through a school voucher program. As a parent, community member, and educator, I am deeply concerned about the negative impact this legislation will have on millions of Texas students and teachers.

Public schools are the foundation of our communities—but vouchers will take away funding that schools desperately need for teachers, classrooms, and student resources. Private schools are not required to serve all students—they can deny admission based on disability, income, or other factors. This bill does not promote true school choice—it only benefits a select few while weakening the education system for the majority.

Instead of taking money away from public schools, we should be investing in better teacher pay, modernized facilities, and support for students with special needs. Texas ranks below the national average in per-student funding—our priority should be strengthening public education, not diverting resources to unregulated private institutions.

In addition, the Teacher Retirement System and Fund is also at stake with these bills. My wife and I have been forced for 20 years to contribute retirement funds into the TRS system with a guarantee of retirement benefits. We are very concerned about the negative impacts these bills will have on our future as educators and our retirement funds.

I urge you to vote NO on school vouchers and stand up for Texas public schools and teachers. The future of our children depends on it.

Lisa Luedke

None

Hockley, TX

We have free choice of schools already! U can choose public or private. Vouchers is only giving the wealthy more money in their pockets. This does not help middle or lower class. They still wd not be able afford. The Bill is deceiving and should be up for vote for all Texans not just one political party!! I am a Republican and did not vote for vouchers!

Edna Suarez

Self

San Antonio, TX

I do NOT support the voucher program. Schools are already underfunded.

Debra Price

Self

Austin, TX

I am the mother of a high schooler in the Austin Independent School District as well as a college professor and the wife of a high school teacher. I oppose the establishment of the education savings account program. It threatens to reduce funding to our neighborhood public schools, which are already underfunded, and it threatens the solvency of the teacher retirement system, which my family will rely on for our retirement in future years.

Tracy Hearn

Self

Colleyville, TX

No vouchers. No ESAs. Public money for public schools only. FUND PUBLIC SCHOOLS!

Margaret Bloodworth, Dr.

Self

Fort Worth, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a native Texan, who watched my mom teach in the system for 25 years and I followed in her footsteps as a special educator the last 23 years, we are products of the public education system. I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution. I would also urge you to put the vote to the people, we don't want this!

Marisa Knox

Self

Edinburg, TX

As a Texas parent and educator, I deplore this bill that essentially defunds our public schools.

Courtney Mathews

Self

Dallas, TX

This grossly underserves special needs students who have few options for schools that are properly focused and trained in their needs. Both rural and urban schools are lacking. Twice exceptional students have zero options. My son had no school option in a major urban city. He is gifted, extremely intelligent, and needs emotional support for extreme anxiety disorder. Where would his voucher go? No school would fit or accept him because he was too smart.

Rebecca Pybas, Mrs.

Self

Burleson, TX

Vote NO!!!! Put ALL the money towards public school funding and not private entities.

Anthony Garza, Mr.

Self

Odessa, TX

NO TO SCHOOL VOUCHERS!

Freddy Ortega
Keller isd
Fort Worth, TX

Please use that money to fund public schools and not private

Dean Hendrix
Self
Hondo, TX

I am strongly opposed to the school
Voucher program. It is not equal and fair. Private schools have no accountability while public schools do. Private schools can dismiss problem students while public cannot. This bill is not good for Texas

Richard Goodwin
Self; Retired
Dallas, TX

The voucher plan is terrible legislation. It undercuts the state's traditional support of our public schools and gives rich people money to send their kids to private and parochial schools.
The plan is radical, unfair, unjust, and bad public policy.
Fully fund our public schools.

Kathy Shockley, Mrs.
Shockley family
Dallas, TX

Both of our daughters attended public school in Dallas. Our neighborhood public school has been a tremendous source of community and has truly improved the property values of the homes in the area. My daughters had friends from all sorts of backgrounds and that diversity strengthen their educational experience. It is essential that our public schools are fully funded and that if tax dollars are given to private schools, there must be transparency about test scores just like there is within the public school system. And if a $10,000 voucher is given to a family to take to a private school then there should be $10,000 in funding per people who remains in public schools.

Micah Timmons
Self, Public School Educators, Public School Children
Commerce, TX

Mr. Buckley,

As a veteran public school educator in the state of Texas, a product of Texas public schools, and a mother of four Texas public school children, I reach out to you today to urge you to stop the passage of HB3. The majority of Texas residents do not want a voucher system in our great state. We want our public schools fully funded as designated by the Texas state constitution. Vouchers will dismantle our public education system and leave many students behind. Please listen to your constituents! Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,
Nicole Timmons
Registered Voter
Texas Public School Educator and Parent

Amy Hall

Self - Educational Diagnostician

Goldthwaite, TX

I oppose the current bill disguised with terms including “school choice” and “education savings account” also known as vouchers to send a select few students to private schools at the expense of all tax payers. School choice is not truly available to all students throughout the state for a variety of reasons, including geographical, intellectual, and health/physical restrictions. I firmly believe this will cause a divide among classes and ability groups at the expense of those least able to afford it. I believe that lawmakers should listen to voters, and this bill is NOT a representation of what voters want!

Kayla Hewitt

Self - Writer

Abilene, TX

I am opposed to this bill as I am concerned about its impact on public education, which, for many Texas residents, remains the only viable option for education, regardless of additional funds dedicated to private education. Having my kids attend our neighborhood public school has been a wonderful experience, and I want to preserve that for other Texas families.

Laura Daulton

Self, substitute teacher, writer

Abilene, TX

Our communities are only as strong as our weakest links. If we cannot establish a strong PUBLIC education system, our communities will weaken. Put money back into public schools instead of freezing it since 2019 and expecting more and more of our teachers. They went through COVID teaching with no pay raises. That’s criminal. Our teachers need to be paid substantially more. Texas is 49th of 50 for teacher pay. Absolutely ridiculous. Do better. Don’t give this money to private schools.

Chasiti McKissic

DeSoto ISD

Glenn Heights, TX

No for vouchers!

Jennifer Waddell

Self, stay at home mother

Dallas, TX

I am very against this bill and believe it will be of great harm to our public school System. This is my top priority at this time. Thank you.

Courtney Milleson

Self, Professor

AMARILLO, TX

As a professional of higher education in rural Texas, please do not support vouchers in the state. Research from Oklahoma has shown the inefficiency this model. This is a model that punishes everyone for the few. If there are concerns about indoctrination in our schools - deal with those ISD’s. I dare say our rural Texas schools could lead as an example of quality without indoctrination.

Moreover, the model, in today’s current financial landscape will bankrupt rural Texas education. With the total decreases in educational funding over the past five years, local ISD’s are forced to ask local taxpayers to pay more. All while the State sits on a significant surplus. Why can’t we fund all education?

Please - do what is best for our future leaders. Support Texas public schools with your wallet, your guidance and prayers.

Kevin Edwards

Self

Lumberton, TX

With everything I have researched, vouchers will be bad for public education. I have seen nothing good about this. Not 1 article that explains the pros of a "savings" "voucher". Please do not pass voucher bill

Arnetta Murray

SELF

Iowa Colony, TX

I am writing to express my strong opposition to school vouchers and House Bill 2 (HB2). Public education is the foundation of our communities, and taxpayer money should be used to strengthen it rather than diverting funds to private schools that are not accountable to the public.

If private schools need additional funding, then those who can afford them should be responsible for creating a private fund to support families who choose that route. The burden should not fall on taxpayers, particularly when public schools are struggling with underfunding, teacher shortages, and outdated resources. Texas should be investing in our public education system to ensure every child receives a quality education, regardless of their zip code or socioeconomic status.

Furthermore, I urge Governor Abbott to stop holding our tax dollars hostage and instead allocate them to the public schools that serve the majority of Texas students. Our teachers deserve better pay, our schools deserve proper funding, and our children deserve equitable educational opportunities. HB2 does not address these pressing needs; instead, it undermines the work of educators and the strength of our public education system.

I ask you to stand with Texas teachers, parents, and students by opposing HB2 and supporting policies that fund and uplift public schools rather than dismantling them.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I look forward to your response and hope you will advocate for the future of public education in Texas.

John Reed

self

EL PASO, TX

I am about as Republican as you can get, and even I know (after 32 years as a teacher) vouchers are a poor idea. Here is what the voucher lovers do not understand/purposely ignore.

1. Private schools pick and choose kids. If a student does not make the grade and/or misbehave, they are kicked out at any time (Texas Senators admitted in the hearing on their voucher bill that there is nothing forcing private schools to take kids if they do not want them (discipline issues, special education, etc.). Where do they go? The public schools have to take every student regardless. How are you going to account for the differences? You say competition (how with an uneven playing field)?
2. You claim public schools will still be robust. When they lose money, what do you expect them to cut (art, music, etc.)? It amazes me that this is ignored.
3. Can you cite a study that says private schools are dramatically better as you claim?
4. How are you going to prove that private schools are accountable or is that not a priority?
5. Wasn't the point to charter schools competition? It is already here
6. Have you seen the amount of schools in financial distress already (staff layoffs, loans to make payroll, etc.)? And you want them to have less money?

John Reed
public
EL PASO, TX

This is a local El Paso expert on funding but is germane to the debate:

"This will make you ask yourself 'why does Gregg Abbott hate real Public School Districts like EPISD and Canutillo and their students'.

The increase in the state Basic Allotment promised by Abbott is just a little over $200 per student per year. This is less than 3%. This is inadequate.

This will do little if anything to help EPISD and Canutillo ISD.

This is at the same time Texas ranks in the BOTTOM 10 states for per student funding.

This is at the same time Abbott's Voucher Scam will give away $10,000 per student with little or no safeguards or controls.

This is at the same time Abbott is adding another $100 million to the for profit charters.

This is at the same time as Abbott sitting on an uncommitted $24 Billion Surplus as while he starves real Public Schools and their students of funding while adding more unfunded mandates."

Mauri Wesbtrook
self
Abilene, TX

I urge you to oppose HB 3. It will be costly and not in the best interest of all Texas Children. Public tax dollars should be used for public education.

Lillian Woolley
Self
Jacksonville, TX

I say no to this bill. I believe taking taxpayer money and sending that money to private schools via "choice" is a bad idea. We need to fix failing schools, not bankrupt them. We need to pay our teachers better! I also believe that it's not enough for low-income parents for them to be able to send their kids to private schools and it will only be a give-away to those that can already afford it. You'll be making a bunch of rich private schools richer and that's it. Why don't we create publicly-funded charter schools in certain areas for parents to have a "choice" of where to send their kids. I do see some benefit for helping home-school parents, but public funding for private schools is just not a solution. Or, if you really want to know what people think—put it to a vote statewide. Let us decide what we want for our kids! But this bill is not it! The biggest questions I have are:

How will the quality of these private schools be measured?

Will this create a segregated environment in certain locations?

Will this create a whole new class of haves versus have nots?

How will poor neighborhoods access these schools?

How will this help rural kids?

Will private schools move into low-income or rural neighborhoods?

How much will every student remaining in public school suffer because funds have been redirected?

Will this drain off good teachers from public education?

I understand the frustrations of parents and their concerns about education—but there are too many questions and not enough answers with the current bill!

Amy Boone
self
Abilene, TX

Absolutely no. I want ZERO dollars for vouchers. ZERO. Not a lower amount. Not an amount for certain earners. ZERO. No vouchers. This is truly the stance of 95% of Gov. Abbott's obsessive voucher social media posts and of all of the people I know in my VERY Republican city, Abilene. WE DO NOT WANT VOUCHERS.

Donna Bryant, Ms.

self

Houston, TX

I vote in all elections, & I am emphatically opposed to creating a voucher system for private schools in Texas. Vote NO on HB3—we the people will not allow you to destroy our democracy in this fashion.

Kamy Whatley

Self, territory manager

Groom, TX

HB 3 is NOT school choice! I am vehemently against HB3. It is masqueraded as school choice, but let me assure you it isn't. I served as a public school teacher for almost 20 years. Public schools do an outstanding job of taking ALL children and moving them forward. Public schools offer programs that private schools do not, while educating all children not "hand selected" ones. Removing funding from public schools is NOT the correct option. Vouchers are an illusion of free choice, and will cripple already struggling school districts. Schools need financial support to adequately run effective instruction. We live in a rural area. Our children attend a great public school. Our school depends on state funding. Our school has all kinds of special education programs, career development programs, reading programs etc., that aren't found in private schools. Many of the local kids don't have access to private schools due to our location. Vouchers would only further reduce funding to great schools providing excellent education. Vote no for this bill, let teachers do their jobs by providing adequate funding to schools for ALL kids. Private schools only serve the few they allow, they don't have mandated testing, they don't offer IEP, 504s, or other specialized programs. Public education for all kids is what's best for Texas!

Cathy Longley

Self Retired Principal

Santo, TX

No to vouchers! Stop trying to destroy public education. Greg Abbott must go if this is push!

Karen Marcucci
SELF / Quality Engineer
MANSFIELD, TX

I appreciate the opportunity to provide my thoughts on House Bill 2 (HB 2). While I support efforts to strengthen Texas education, I have serious concerns about certain provisions in this bill that could negatively impact public schools.

- Insufficient Per-Student Funding Increase. The proposed $220 per-student funding increase does not keep up with inflation or the rising costs of education. Schools are struggling with teacher shortages, aging infrastructure, and growing student needs. A larger funding increase is essential to ensure schools can continue to provide quality education.
- Restrictive Funding Allocation. Requiring 40% of new funding to go toward teacher raises, while well-intended, limits school districts' ability to address other urgent needs like classroom resources, technology, and student support programs. Districts should have flexibility in determining how to allocate funds.
- Charter Schools Were Meant to Offer Choice—But Haven't Solved the Problem. Charter schools were introduced as a way to give parents more options within the public school system, yet they have not delivered the widespread improvements promised. Many still struggle with accountability, funding equity, and accessibility for all students. If charter schools have not fully addressed these challenges, why would ESAs—essentially another attempt at school choice—be any more effective? Instead of repeating past mistakes, we should focus on strengthening our existing public schools.
- Lack of Accountability for Public Funds. Private schools that accept ESA funds are not held to the same financial and academic standards as public schools. If taxpayer money is used for private education, there must be strict oversight to ensure funds are used effectively.

Public education should be strengthened, not weakened. I urge lawmakers to reconsider HB 2's funding provisions, provide more flexibility for school districts, and ensure strong accountability for public funds. Instead of diverting resources to unproven programs, we should invest in improving our existing public school system for all students.

I appreciate your time and consideration and welcome further discussion.

Chelsea Bradley
Self
Amarillo, TX

Strongly oppose the establishment of this program it will defund our public education and harm the majority which attend public schools. My son is in an ECSI for being delayed speech and it would hinder his program as well.

Heather Huff
Self
Amarillo, TX

I am opposed to the vouchers and think it is not the best decision for Texas and Texas Education.

Emily Pfeiler
Special Education Teacher
Copperas Cove, TX

Please vote AGAINST HB3

S. Foust
Self
Buda, TX

I am a voter in HCISD and am against school vouchers. The districts have been stretched thin with diminishing resources and further defunding or reallocating resources is not the answer. We need to be supporting our schools with funding, it should not fall back on already heavily taxed parents to fund the gap (happening today. Schools with weak PTA's that aren't supplementing equipment and supplies are evident). Look at the states where these programs were implemented. They are some of the lowest ranked states for public education. Texas has a ways to go on this front, but vouchers are NOT the answer.

Bronwen Choate Educator
Graham, TX

Vouchers by any name are detrimental to a free public education. Follow the state Constitution which requires the legislature to provide a free PUBLIC education.

Ashley Hamilton
Self
Greenville, TX

I am a conservative Christian that votes republican. I am a homeschool and private school parent. I believe in less government and separation of church and state. I am adamantly against the School Choice bill for many reasons. Texans are speaking out against this bill and our representatives need to vote based on our will, not the big donors and career politicians pushing this through!!! The preliminary vote for "School Choice" is badly worded and most don't understand the consequences of a bill like this. People are waking up and speaking for themselves and thinking critically instead of what is being crammed down our throats.

Kelly Lazo, Teacher
Self
Caldwell, TX

This bill will be the beginning of the end of our public education system. I have talked in a low SES district for over 20 years and the fact that we are doing away with free and reduced lunches is abominable but worse is this bill & the effects it will have on the Texas public education system. Having taught in a low SES rural district for over 20 years this bill will not help any low income families. These students are working to help support their families. They do not have access to private schools because they do not have transportation, travel time, money for food etc. This is simply a way for the upper income families to get more money. Abbott has not increased funding for public education in 6 years. Where will the money come from to support vouchers? How about we fund the education system we have so that teachers & students can have supplies to teach ALL students which private schools don't do. Please look at the big picture. I know our legislators are smart enough to see what is happening here. Please stop.

Stephanie Speed
Self
Wolfforth, TX

My name is Stephanie Speed and I live in Wolfforth. I am a mama to 8 kids, ages 16 to 7. All of them have thrived because of public education. Four of our children are disabled. They learned to WALK at our local elementary school. This couldn't happen in private school. A private school wouldn't take them. Not a single one in Lubbock County. We are to love our neighbor. Our neighbor includes kids like mine who are excluded from so very many spaces including private schools. HB 3 would take precious money from kids like mine who use hearing aids, wheelchairs, walkers, and AAC devices. The services they receive are already grossly underfunded. This bill would deplete those funds and leave these kids undeserved and not having their needs met. Vote no on vouchers because ALL kids deserve to be educated and have their needs met.

Tana Weiss

Self

Katy, TX

I oppose HB 3. Fully fund our public schools. PERIOD.

Kim Stewart

Myself

Huntington, TX

I stand against HB 3.

Dixita Patel

Slef

Benbrook, TX

I do not support passing of this bill. Public wealth belongs to public schools.

Karen Holburn

Self, retired

Mabank, TX

Vouchers are not a productive way to ensure that Texas children receive a better education. Additionally, the $10,000 that goes with the child is more than public education students receive per child, but not enough to fund private school. Our tax dollars should not be spent to support private schools as the state has no way to hold private schools accountable to the same standards as required for public education. Public schools should be fully funded instead of withholding the funds as political pressure to get legislators to support vouchers.

Corry Scheuerman

Self

Austin, TX

No to HB 3 by Buckley. No school vouchers

Mackenzie Martin

Self, patent attorney

DALLAS, TX

I am writing to voice my concerns with school vouchers! This isn't about school choice — this is about additional benefits to the wealthiest among us (and to persons and companies outside of Texas with interests in privatizing education). Our public schools need MORE—not fewer—resources. Vote no to school vouchers!

Jeff Russell

Educator

Sadler, TX

I have in education for 20 years and now serve as a Superintendent of a small rural district and a Republican voter. HB3 is nothing more than welfare for the wealthy. In the Senate hearing it was clearly stated by Sen. Creighton that all remaining vouchers would go to those already in private schools following those that qualify. 100,000 vouchers, 24,000 private school seats available according to TEA. That means 75,000 vouchers will be available for the wealthy already in private schools following. Private schools should also be held to the same accountability assessments as public schools if they accept public funded ESA's/vouchers.

Heather Haley

Self

Allen, TX

Vote no on HB 3

Diana Patricia Torres

Self

San Antonio, TX

No

Katrina Brister

Self

Lingleville, TX

Oppose School Vouchers. There are so many reasons Vouchers are not good for Texas. If passed, vouchers will threaten rural schools and divert funds from public schools. There is no data or proof of better outcomes if school vouchers are passed. Not to mention, private schools have no accountability. I am a product of public education as are my husband and kids. Both my husband and I are successful owning our own business and I am a public school educator. My oldest son had a wonderful public education where he graduated with a 105.8 GPA and 8th in his class of 293 in 2024. He now attends TCU majoring in Electrical Engineering and playing football. His public education obviously was successful and pushed him in the right direction.

Oppose School Vouchers!!!!

Michael Yoder

Self

Laredo, TX

HB3. I strongly oppose HB3, the bill to fund private school vouchers via education savings accounts. First, this discriminates against rural areas that do not have private school options. Second, private schools determine who will be in the schools, a process that could be arbitrary. Third, much needed funding for public schools would be compromised. Fourth, the benefits would largely go to those willing to pay for private school tuition anyway, in which case it would be a reimbursement, most likely funded off the backs of public schools. School choice would be best accomplished by public school district. Thank you for taking my comments into account and for counting me as OPPOSED to this bill. Dr. Michael S. Yoder, Laredo.

Susanna Butler

Self

Austin, TX

This bill only benefits the rich and will ruin public schools in Texas. Public schools are already underfunded. This will only give $10,000 to every student-there isn't a private school in Austin that is only $10K.

Amy Belcher

Self

Amarillo, TX

I am a Texas parent and a proud Professional Educator who is AGAINST this bill. Public dollars should go to funding our public schools.

Amy Chamberlain

Self

Austin, TX

Please do not gut our public school system with School vouchers. As a product of Texas public schools and a parent whose children attended public schools, — while not perfect- the public education system is part of the bedrock of our informed public and democracy.

Leana Dusek
Self - Mom & HR Manager
Richardson, TX

As a mom with children in the public school system, I am begging you to increase the daily allotment that is given per student and increase teacher salaries. Our students, our teachers, our school, and our community deserve it. Please make these things priority.

Cathy Nichols
Self
Centerville, TX

I strongly oppose HB3. I do not want my tax money to go to for profit or religious private schools.

Grace Davis
Self
Canton, TX

We oppose this bill.

Kelly Espinoza
Self
Lubbock, TX

Say NO to vouchers. It is not what the majority of Texans want . Please listen to your constituents and not the big donors .

Gabriela Cowen
Self
Pflugerville, TX

Against Voucher Programs in Texas. FOR funding of our public schools so every child has an opportunity to success in Texas.

Mindy Hosein
self, educator
Plano, TX

I do not approve of HB3 in any capacity because I believe vouchers would be used by families who already afford private school and would ultimately just drive up the cost of private school. It is a poaching of tax dollars that would go to the owners of these schools while the vast, vast majority of Texas students have to settle for less. I am also offended by the lack of oversight tied to the money. Schools that accept these vouchers should be held to a standard and accountable for their performance.

Camille Rex
Self Dripping Springs, TX

I oppose

Rebekkah Hundt
Self
Fort Worth, TX

I am a public school teacher. Please do not pass this bill! Texas schools have already been gutted- you are harming our students, teachers and staff if this is passed.

Clarissa Schmidt
Self and children
Buda, TX

Please keep public funds in public schools. Fully fund our schools for the future of our children and the future of our nation.

Andrea McIllwain
Self Manor, TX

Say no to ESAs.

Paul Leazar
Self
Sachse, TX

The idea of harming our education system by filling private school coffers and leaving the public education system to rot should be a non-starter. Everyone deserves a good education, no matter who they are, or their background.

The fact that it has come this far should fill all those supporting this idea to gatekeep education with shame.

Vote this bill down, and keep giving every child the best chance possible!

Mary Gold, Mrs
Self- Educator
Brenham, TX

I'm against vouchers. Our students, parents, community and state will suffer. Public education is important for all children it gives them the opportunity to grow past their current state and better themselves. Vouchers will create an educational system of haves and have not.

Michelle Ulmer
Self
Austin, TX

"I oppose House Bill 3 and its proposal to implement school vouchers in Texas. Public education is the foundation of a strong society, and it must remain fully funded and accessible to all children. Instead of diverting resources away from public schools, we should be working to strengthen and improve the system we already have. We need to ensure that every child in Texas has access to the resources, support, and opportunities they need to succeed, no matter their background."

Carolyn Draper, LPC

Self

Cypress, TX

Subject: Oppose HB 3 – Protect Texas Public Schools

Dear Members of the House Education Committee,

I'm writing to express my strong opposition to HB 3 and to ask you to reject this bill. As a former educator and a parent, I'm deeply concerned about the harm HB 3 would do to our public schools and the students who rely on them.

Public schools are the backbone of our communities. They welcome every child who walks through their doors — no matter their background, their family's income, or their learning needs. Every dollar we take from those schools puts more pressure on teachers, weakens programs that support struggling students, and limits opportunities for kids who already face enough obstacles. Vouchers, no matter how they're labeled, take public money away from public schools. HB 3 is no different.

I've worked in schools, and I know how hard teachers are already working to support their students. They're navigating mental health crises, food insecurity, and learning gaps — all while being underpaid and overworked. Now we're talking about pulling funding away from those schools and sending it to private institutions that aren't required to follow the same standards, accept every student, or even show how they're spending taxpayer money.

I know there's frustration out there. Parents want their kids to thrive, and some feel like public schools aren't meeting their needs. But vouchers aren't the answer. Taking resources away from our public schools — especially in rural areas where a private school simply isn't an option — will hurt the very students this bill claims to help. The kids left behind in those underfunded public schools will pay the highest price.

Instead of funding a system that lacks accountability and leaves too many students out, we should be investing in the schools that are already working hard to support every child in our state.

Please reject HB 3 and stand with Texas students, teachers, and families who believe in the power and promise of public education.

Thank you,

Carolyn Draper

Jeff French

self retired

Newcastle, TX

We do not want and cannot use any type of vouchers or educational savings program. Preserve, build, and enhance Texas Public Schools. Pay teachers more money. Pay retired teachers more money! Help local ISD's retire debts for security hardening improvements. Confiscate Assault Weapons from public hands!

Lisa Williams

CFBISD

FRISCO, TX

Please consider the negative consequences that ESAs will have on public schools.

Crystal Poole

Self

AUSTIN, TX

I am a resident in Travis county and I opposed the use of public funds to be funneled into private schools. Or property taxes are for our public institutions that desperately need better teacher salaries, quality educators, improved learning materials, healthy school meals, and better facilities where children can thrive. There is no good reason the tax prayers of this state should subsidize high tuition private schools and families that already have an economic leg up over the majority population who struggle enough. Texans are tired of subsidizing wealthy families and wealthy business, a minority part of the populating that both with a silver soon has never had to worry. We're tired of being sold out to lobbies at the behest of the wealthy donors greasing your palms. Enough! Texans deserve better so this bill shall not pass!

Carolyn Draper, LPC

Self

Cypress, TX

Oppose HB 3 – Protect Texas Schools and Students

Dear Members of the House Education Committee,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB 3, a bill that I believe would harm Texas public schools, undermine the integrity of our education system, and jeopardize the well-being of students across the state.

As a former educator and school counselor, I've witnessed firsthand the incredible dedication of Texas teachers, administrators, and support staff. These individuals work tirelessly to foster learning environments where students feel safe, supported, and inspired to achieve their full potential. HB 3 threatens to undo this hard work by introducing policies that restrict educators, devalue their expertise, and create fear in the classroom.

Texas schools are already under immense strain. Educators are leaving the profession in record numbers — not because they lack commitment, but because they are overwhelmed by unrealistic expectations, diminishing resources, and increasing hostility. HB 3 adds yet another layer of pressure, positioning teachers as adversaries rather than partners in a child's education. This bill's language, which emphasizes parental control without meaningful collaboration, risks fostering division rather than unity.

As a parent myself, I understand the desire for involvement in my child's education. But meaningful partnership is built on trust — not surveillance, intimidation, or censorship. Our public school educators are professionals who bring years of experience and training to their work. They deserve respect, not punitive oversight that undermines their expertise.

I'm also deeply concerned about the way HB 3 would impact marginalized students. In my experience working with students from diverse backgrounds, I've seen how vital inclusive and supportive educational spaces are. When teachers feel afraid to address issues of identity, mental health, or social struggles for fear of reprisal, vulnerable students suffer the most. For some children, a trusted teacher or counselor may be their only source of stability and understanding. HB 3 puts that crucial support system at risk.

Texas has long prided itself on fostering resilience, innovation, and opportunity. But HB 3 sends a different message — one that prioritizes political agendas over students' best interests. If we want to prepare the next generation for success, we must empower educators to teach truthfully and compassionately, not burden them with punitive measures that create a climate of fear.

I urge you to reject HB 3 and instead support legislation that strengthens our public schools by investing in mental health resources, reducing educator burnout, and fostering partnerships between families and teachers — partnerships built on trust, respect, and shared goals for our children's success.

Our students deserve better. Please oppose HB 3.

Sincerely,

Carolyn Draper

Susan Willis, MR

self - healthcare administration

Fort Worth, TX

Say NO to Greg Abbott and his billionaire supporter. Private education should be a personal decision, paid for by personal funds. In Texas, we support public education for all.

Joy Chappell, Mrs.

Teacher

Keller, TX

I do not understand what has happened to our country when people are having to beg to have enough money to have public education for everyone. The fact that a few rich people are guiding the whole thing with these vouchers is just so disturbing. To think that we might give kids leaving public education more money than we feel like the ones are that are staying or worth. Absolutely heartbreaking

Mary Love Wright
self- retired teacher
Austin, TX

Having been a classroom teacher 1975-1981 and a Library Clerk for many years until 2011, I know the value of supporting teachers and schools! As a classroom teacher, every year I spent many of my own money for school supplies for students who could not afford their own. As a Library Clerk, I then spent money for books to give to students who couldn't afford to buy books through library book fairs or other projects to give away books. PLEASE DO NOT TAKE AWAY SCHOOL FUNDING! VOTE AGAINST VOUCHERS!!!

Judy Frankson
Self
Spring Branch, TX

This is not beneficial for all students. As a special education educator of 35 years this bill hurts those students I have serviced. Private schools do not accept children with special needs. I work in rural Texas. There are no private schools. No options. This bill is giving those that can afford private schools a discount. Private schools cost &12k a year, and that is the cheap private school). These vouchers will not allow those on a budget to attend because it doesn't not cover the costs. Please reconsider this bill. Give this money to public schools.

Erin Bodily
Self
McKinney, TX

Texans don't want vouchers!! This is a scam. It will hurt Texans and our country.

Talia Baker
Self
Montgomery, TX

Hello, my name is Talia Baker. I am registering my statement regarding the Education Committee hearing for House Bill 3 on Tuesday. As a homeschool parent of over 30 years, I value freedom from government strings and regulations in private education, and am against the expansion of government in the name of "parental empowerment." I would like to ask the Representatives to please join a large constituency of homeschoolers in opposing "school choice" legislation like HB 3.

Our families choice to homeschool was not an easy road. We made many sacrifices financially to accommodate our decision. And have never regretted any of those decisions. And now we 3 of 4 of those who are grown well adjusted, thriving adults. And the fourth is well on his way to the same outcome.

As a homeschool parents we have had the privilege and honor to raise our children in the manner we saw fit, and could tailor their education to each individual child. And I feel strongly that is a major reason they are the adults that they are today.

If this bill is really about children's education and the parent's ability to choose their child's education, then parents already have that right to choose, just as we did. As parents for our 4 children we have taken whatever means necessary to provide what they needed. We didn't need the government or any other entity in order for them to have or provide what they needed. A parent who truly wants their child to succeed will do everything to make sure that happens for their child.

I am also concerned for our public school system and how it will be affected by the passage of this bill. As I sit here in the hearing, I hear Representatives speaking out of both sides of their mouth. The honest truth is HB3 WILL affect public schools. There WILL be money taken away from the public school system. A system that is already broken!

I urge you to consider appropriating the taxpayer monies acquired for this system back into the public school system. Please put the money back into where it is needed the most, not in politicians pockets. Or the best option is to just let this go and finally never revisit it again!!

Thank you! Have a Blessed Day!

Amanda Mangelsdorf

Self, Parent

Jarrell, TX

As a proud Texan, I value the role public schools play in shaping our future. I oppose private school subsidies, also known as vouchers or education savings accounts. I believe private school subsidies are wasteful, deceitful, inefficient, and unfair.

Public school dollars should go only to public schools. Public schools in Texas are underfunded by billions of dollars every year. The Comptroller is projecting a large increase in state revenue over the next two years compared to the past two years, and that money should go to fully funding public education.

Private schools pick and choose which students to admit. Vouchers force taxpayers to subsidize private schools' preferences. And without elected boards or state oversight, vouchers give away tax dollars with no financial or academic accountability.

Public schools educate more than 90 percent of Texas students, serving all the students in their boundaries. They build the workforce that powers the Texas economy. We can't afford to underwrite a few special choices at the expense of our collective future.

We elect legislators to represent the interests of their communities. Responding to their communities, Texas legislators have rejected private school subsidies time after time.

In the face of increasing pressure from special interests, I pledge that I will stand with my legislators in opposing vouchers. When they vote against private school subsidies, I will make sure all their constituents know they did the right thing.

Rachel Nelson

Self- Speech Language Pathologist

Midlothian, TX

My name is Rachel Nelson and I am from House District 10. I myself grew up in the public schools and am now a doctoral student and certified speech-language pathologist dedicating my career to serving public school students, following in the footsteps of my mother, who has worked in special education for over 40 years. This has given me a deep, personal understanding of the challenges our public schools face. I am here today to strongly oppose HB3 and any attempt to divert public funds to private school vouchers, at the behest of billionaires.

My name is Rachel Nelson and I am from House District 10. I myself grew up in the public schools and am now a doctoral student and certified speech-language pathologist dedicating my career to serving public school students, following in the footsteps of my mother, who has worked in special education for over 40 years. This has given me a deep, personal understanding of the challenges our public schools face. I am here today to strongly oppose HB3 and any attempt to divert public funds to private school vouchers, at the behest of billionaires.

Those of you in favor of HB3 have spoken primarily in hypotheticals or one off scenarios of distant family members. I have lived it. I have worked within our proportionate share funds (which is the budget for ISD's to serve private school students) and have seen first hand how private schools fail their students with special needs. This includes situations as simple as denying accommodations/modifications for students who are only mildly impacted by their disability.

That means students who require intensive support will suffer the most with this bill. I've heard some offer the solution of private schools that are available and "specifically designed" to meet these needs but this is far from include and inclusion matters. Research shows that integrating individuals with special needs into general education classrooms is not only best practice for students with disabilities but also their typically developing peers. We see not only an increase in academic performance but also social-emotional development. Inclusivity is absolutely achievable in public schools if they are fully and appropriately funded. Vouchers will do the opposite.

Our public education system is only considered broken because it is underfunded. Focus on this instead of vouchers. HB3 is a direct attack on students, teachers, and Texas' future. Texas already has a school choice. A parent can send their child whenever they choose. I urge you to invest in the one system that serves ALL Texas children.

Thank you for your time.

Rhonda Russell
Self
Montague, TX

PLEASE do this one easy step to oppose HB3 on school vouchers! Just click the link and select HB3

I oppose House Bill 3 and its proposal to implement school vouchers in Texas. Public education is the foundation of a strong society, and it must remain fully funded and accessible to all children. Instead of diverting resources away from public schools, we should be working to strengthen and improve the system we already have. We need to ensure that every child in Texas has access to the resources, support, and opportunities they need to succeed, no matter their background.

Gary Willis, MR
self - retired
Fort Worth, TX

I am opposed to the voucher program proposed by this bill. We need to spend our funds on public education, not on subsidizing private schools.

Julie Ziegelgruber
Self/dental hygienist
Whitehouse, TX

Oppose Oppose Oppose!!!!!!

Vicky Harper
self
ROCKPORT, TX

I implore you to vote against this bill.

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a former public school teacher and product of the public education system, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our and future in accordance with the Texas constitution.

Jennifer Rivas
Self
Lubbock, TX

Please consider the impact this bill will have on public education. I am a teacher and we are drowning with the complexities of accountability and the reality of working with amazing children with a wide range of needs. Teachers at my school work hard to provide a quality education for students. Not funding schools like ours fairly, accusing schools of failing, and then directing funds to private schools who do not encounter the challenges we face everyday is insulting. Please listen to educators and families. We are working so hard to provide for all our students, and it would be refreshing to be acknowledged for our hard work, provided with the resources we need, and acknowledged with pay respective of a professional with a special skill set.

Joseph Lewis
Self
Dallas, TX

NO!!!! NO to savings accounts to allow public tax dollars to be used for private schools. This is not good for public schools and education. It's a scam to supplement "choice" segregation and disenfranchisement.

Steven Alford
Self, Program Manager
Fort Worth, TX

I strongly oppose school vouchers in Texas. Vouchers drain critical funding from our already underfunded public schools, which serve all students, including those with disabilities, low-income families, and rural communities. Private schools, which can cherry-pick students and aren't held to the same standards, primarily benefit wealthy families who can already afford tuition—not the students who need the most support.

Public schools are the backbone of our communities and a cornerstone of democracy. Instead of diverting taxpayer dollars to private institutions, we should be investing in our public schools to ensure every child has access to a quality education.

Vouchers are not about “school choice”—they’re about dismantling public education. I urge you to reject any voucher proposal and prioritize fully funding our public schools.

Thank you.

Laurie Hemphill
Self
Georgetown, TX

Please don't pass this bill. It will hurt public schools .

Angela Reyes
Dillman Elementary
Muleshoe, TX

I live in Muleshoe. There is not a private school anywhere close to me. I have 7 children. There is not a school in 200 miles. Our school is safe, we provide for SPED students, dyslexia, we are a blue ribbon school. We have a 1st grader that has a feeding tube and in a wheel chair. We do not need vouchers for private schools. We need more money to resource public schools. We need to pay for teachers to get better teachers to get better quality people to teach our children. They will be smarter, if we have better paid teachers.

Lindsey Hunt
Self
Austin, TX

Against the voucher system. As a Former teacher in AISD and parent to Austin students, I have seen less and less being given to students, especially programs outside General Education. Teachers are doing everything they can with less every year. We are losing GREAT teachers every year due to lack of support, funding, and ability to afford living expenses. We keep getting empty promises. Vouchers do not help.

Tesslyn Mustain
Self
Houston, TX

Hard no to vouchers. Data shows states with vouchers have not reaped significant gains in improved test scores. The majority that use vouchers were in private schools already; vouchers end up benefitting wealthy families. Call it what it is: ESA = Vouchers. Public money belongs in public schools. Parents already have choices for their kids' education. Calling this parent choice is disingenuous to parents. It will refund an already struggling public education system. Which private schools are qualified for vouchers? What about pop-up schools that suddenly appear when new money floods the system?

Marnie Pate
Port Aransas ISD
Port Aransas, TX

I am writing to express my strong opposition to any use of taxpayer dollars for private school vouchers through an education savings account plan. Public funds should be dedicated first and foremost to strengthening our public schools, which serve the vast majority of Texas students and are essential to our communities.

Diverting public money to private schools through vouchers undermines public education by reducing much-needed resources for teachers, students, and programs. Our public schools already face challenges such as teacher shortages, outdated facilities, and insufficient funding. Rather than allocating taxpayer dollars to private institutions that are not held to the same accountability and transparency standards, we should be investing in our public education system to ensure every child in Texas has access to a high-quality education, regardless of their ZIP code or financial background.

I urge you to prioritize funding for our public schools and reject any proposals that would use taxpayer dollars for private school vouchers, also known as education savings accounts. Texas students deserve a strong, well-funded public education system that supports their success.

Diane Nguyen
Self, Sales Strategy Manager
Wylie, TX

I do not support the voucher system. It favors the rich and negativity impacts the poor. Please have a heart and do not put the voucher system into effect.

Taylor Willis
Self, Executive Director
Fort Worth, TX

I am writing to express my strong opposition to school voucher programs in Texas. Vouchers are not the solution to improving education—they are a threat to our public schools and the students they serve.

Vouchers divert critical taxpayer dollars away from public schools, which are already underfunded and struggling to meet the needs of their students. Texas already ranks near the bottom in per-student funding, and vouchers would only worsen this crisis, leaving public schools with even fewer resources to serve the vast majority of students.

Furthermore, vouchers primarily benefit wealthy families who can already afford private school tuition, while leaving behind low-income families, students with disabilities, and those in rural areas where private schools are scarce. This has been proven in states like Arizona, where vouchers are primarily being used by students who were already attending private school. Private schools are not required to admit all students or provide the same level of services as public schools, creating a two-tiered system that exacerbates inequality.

Public schools are the cornerstone of our communities. They serve every child, regardless of background, ability, or zip code. Instead of dismantling public education through vouchers, we should be investing in our public schools to ensure every student has access to a high-quality education.

I urge you to reject any voucher proposal and focus on fully funding and supporting our public schools. Our students, our communities, and our future depend on it.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Margaret Coe
None, personal
Dripping Spgs, TX

I reject the premise that everyone is entitled to a private education. I support the premise that everyone is entitled to a quality public education. I disagree that schools that do not have to maintain the same standards or go by the same rules and where children can be rejected when they have special needs or for whatever reason should receive public funds. We have schools that all children can attend, and those should be fully funded, and they should be superior where that everyone has an opportunity to quality education.. The First Amendment of the Constitution at the United States of America is unambiguous regarding freedom of speech and separation of church and state. Putting public funds into religious schools violates the first amendment. This is still the United States of America and we do still have the United States constitution. That is the law of the land.

Lindsey Mayer
self, public education teacher
montgomery, TX

This bill secures inadequate funding for public schools that will harm the public education system from top to bottom.

Jason Smith
Our family, my wife and 4 kids.
Fort Worth, TX

Vote against House Bill 3. This bill gives well off people a subsidy for elite schools and denies needed funding that could go to support public schools. And this bill damages Texas traditions like Friday night high school football.

Joan Dumais
Self
Austin, TX

I am strongly opposed to school vouchers. Fund our public schools. We need strong public education. Do NOT use my taxpayer dollars to pay for private schools!!!!

Joy Cook
Retired educator
West, TX

Probably no one will read this but I am retired educator I taught 25 years in public and private. 8 years as special education teacher. I retired earlier than I really wanted but I was very disillusioned with the negativity thrown at teachers. Little to no support with out of control behaviors. I was sick from seeing teachers and staff being attacked on a daily basis. I always worked at title 1 school and even that is different levels. That 14 years was at an extremely low income schools. We had at least 10 different administrators and extreme teacher turnover. Now TEA has taken over but it's a mess. We had teachers who were not certified they were desperate to fill positions. Few to no subs to cover if teachers call in sick. Teachers many times walk before mid year.

I just don't feel that vouchers will do little to nothing to help students in this failing school. No private schools in the area and even if they could most could not pay the difference in tuition or transportation to get to schools across town.

Thanks
Joy Cook

Lastly, this type of school needs more than a ESA this money needs to be put in schools like these to attract experience administrators and outstanding teachers. They badly need a trained behavior specialist at each campus. So I feel money that would go to helping these type of schools who definitely need help.

Meshia Neely
Self
Springtown, TX

Each child deserves to be treated equal!! This voucher is complete bogus!! Why aren't all kids valued monetarily the same!

Ronny Luedke
Self - Teacher
Stephenville, TX

I am against any sort of vouchers. They would be a detriment to public education and segregation by wealth. Vote no, and don't be afraid of Governor Abbott and his rich out of state criminals.

Lynsey Littlejohn
Self, buyer and single mom
San Marcos, TX

I have watched and listened to democrats and republicans all over the state who have banded together to say they do not support this bill. In fact, I don't know a single person outside of the legislature who is for it. Please say no to vouchers.

Rebekah Ellis
Myself
Austin, TX

I oppose school vouchers. We all oppose school vouchers. Fund our schools and protect public education. Do your job!!!

Cindy Ashmore
Self
Lubbock, TX
Vote NO to HB3

Jimmy Lee, Retired
Self
Paris, TX

I want to go on public record opposing vouchers and SB 3.

Richard Wilkins
Public Education
Shallowater, TX

As a tax payer with 2 young children in an excellent school district, it will absolutely kill districts to allow the 'vouchers' program. School districts, especially those like our rural 3A district, rely heavily on our residential tax base to even have a budget worthy of the education our students deserve. Furthermore, I know first hand the importance of taxes as my wife is our district's highschool principal. I have listened to her conversations with our district superintendent and assistant superintendent on how to allocate funds in order to meet the needs of her staff and teachers. It is absolutely criminal what our State legislature has allowed with the 'holding hostage' of funds pending the outcome of this bill vote. Governor Abbott and his people have stolen necessary funds from the public education sector to get his bill passed and his personal agenda through. This is a textbook definition of what is wrong with today's political system. Our students, teachers, and districts need these funds in order to provide the quality education our students deserve. One individual being willing to sacrifice the future of our kids is unacceptable and absolutely ridiculous. I understand that every student is not as fortunate as my kids to be in a district that strives to and does excel, but there has to be a better way than taking a tax base from public schools and allowing it to be sent to private schools and other non state institutions.

Amanda Henson

Self

Lufkin, TX

We do not want a school voucher program. We want funding for our public schools. With adequate funding, public school will be an excellent “choice” for all. Then there would not be the need for choice. Find our schools!

Blake Brom

Self

Wichita Falls, TX

Public funds should go to public schools. Parents already have school choice. Do not pass HB 3

Michaella Robertson

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose HB3 in Texas because it threatens local control, undermines public education, and imposes unnecessary state overreach. This bill could limit the ability of communities to make decisions that best serve their schools and students while prioritizing political agendas over real educational needs. Texas deserves policies that empower educators, support students, and strengthen—not weaken—our public schools.

Arif Rahman

Self

Houston, TX

I would benefit from this bill but disagree wholeheartedly with it. Public funds should not fund private education.

Mara LaViola

Texans for Special Education Reform and Self

Austin, TX

Opposition to Educational Savings Accounts (ESAs) and Vouchers in HB 3

My name is Mara LaViola, and I am a parent of a child with disabilities and a public school advocate. I strongly oppose the inclusion of Educational Savings Accounts (ESAs) or vouchers in HB 3 because they take public funds away from schools while providing no guarantees that all children—especially those with disabilities—will have access to a quality education. I have opposed vouchers for years because they do not expand real school choice. Instead, they create publicly funded private schools for a select few, leaving the majority of Texas students behind. I have researched private schools, hoping to find options for my own child, and none would take him. Even when a school initially seemed open to admitting him, once they understood the extent of his educational needs, they would not allow him to stay. This is not about parental choice—it just sounds that way. The reality is that the power to decide who gets an education under a voucher system does not belong to parents. It belongs to private school administrators, who are not required to accept all students. Unlike public schools, which must educate every child, private schools can refuse to enroll students for any reason—academic ability, disability status, or simply because they don't want to provide the necessary supports.

Vouchers Weaken Public Schools

Public schools in Texas already face severe underfunding, with the state ranking among the lowest in the nation in per-student spending. Instead of addressing this problem, HB 3 would divert more public funds away from schools that serve all children, making it harder for them to provide quality education, retain teachers, and offer specialized programs. Rural communities would be particularly harmed, as private schools are often not available, leaving families with nowhere to use their voucher.

No Accountability, No Guarantees

Private schools that accept voucher funds are not required to:

Accept all students, including those with disabilities.

Follow state curriculum standards.

Participate in statewide assessments.

Provide special education services.

If taxpayer money is funding education, then schools must be accountable to the public. HB 3 provides no oversight of how these funds will be spent or whether students will receive a quality education. Public Money Should Serve the Public Vouchers do not improve education—they create a segregated system where public dollars fund private institutions that pick and choose their students. Texas should be investing in solutions that strengthen public education for all students, not funding private schools with no obligation to serve every child.

Rather than diverting funds to private schools, Texas should: Fully fund public schools so every child has access to a strong education.

Raise teacher salaries to recruit and retain top educators. Expand public school choice options within public schools. Improve special education services.

Ashleigh Thomas

Self—parent

Corpus Christi, TX

Texans absolutely DO NOT WANT VOUCHERS. This political play is being shoved down our throats by the governor's social media team as something good for us, but we see right through it. FUND TEXAS PUBLIC SCHOOLS and leave those who choose to pay for private education alone and let parents continue to choose like they already do! Give our public schools an equal chance! Fully fund our public schools!

Nicole Borgeson

Self

Manor, TX

School vouchers are welfare for the wealthy. Children deserve fully funded public schools. Teachers deserve pay raises. No to school vouchers. Invest in our public schools.

Leigh Rowan
Self / Real Estate Agent
Spicewood, TX

I oppose House Bill 3 and its proposal to implement school vouchers in Texas. Public education is the foundation of a strong society, and it must remain fully funded and accessible to all children. Instead of diverting resources away from public schools, we should be working to strengthen and improve the system we already have. We need to ensure that every child in Texas has access to the resources, support, and opportunities they need to succeed, no matter their background.

Emma Brom
Self
Wichita Falls, TX

Please use PUBLIC funds for PUBLIC schools. Gov. Abbot/ Texas has demonstrated a history of not adequately funding public schools- no budget raise even after major inflation since COVID-19. As a former Texas public school teacher, I know first hand the lack of support our public schools receive.

Sharon Rao, Dr
Self
Austin, TX

We do not approve of using state dollars to be used for parochial or religious schools or the voucher program. You are defunding public schools which educate the poorest propulsiion without the resources to go elsewhere. This ensures poor texas gets little quality education and ensure that these citizens end up with less opportunities.

Jill VanVoorhis
Self
Austin, TX

HB 3 is not an education savings account program... HB 3 is a coupon for people like me who could afford to send their children to private schools if we so choose. It appears that the intent of the Republicans in this legislature have only one intention, and that is to dismantle the public education system as we know it. In the long run, this hurts our state, this hurts our businesses, and most importantly this hurts our children.

The voters will remember this if you choose to vote for this bill. The backlash against Republican extremism is growing stronger by the day. Do what is right for our children, our schools and our state and vote against this.

Karen Miller, Ms
self/retired Social Worker Department of Defense
Austin, TX

This Bill will hurt funding for Education for the children of Texas, particularly those living in rural districts, but will hurt all students in Public Schools!

Darenda Ashby
Self
Hale Center, TX

I oppose this bill because it does not support public education in any way.

Deepika Srinivasan
Self
Austin, TX

I oppose HB3. I believe public school systems build opportunity to community members to access the best resources closest to home. Creating a voucher will drain and damage our public school systems, creating a class and privilege based school choice, not equal.

Melody Herrera
Self
San Antonio, TX

Please do not vote to defund our public schools, doing so will affect our most vulnerable populations in Texas. Our students deserve equitable school funding and voting for vouchers will create more of unequal playing field for students. We already have school choice, and I'm an example of a student who took advantage of school choice over 26 years ago. Please focus on paying teachers fairly and funding school districts based on enrollment and not on attendance this will help ensure all Texas students get the proper education they deserve.

Donna Peacock
Self (retired private and public school teacher)
Buda, TX

As a retired teacher who taught in both public and private schools, I am well aware that the same rules don't apply to both types of schools. Public schools accept all students. They accept the special needs kids, the economically disadvantaged kids, and the kids with behavioral issues. The private schools I've worked at won't take any of those children. How is it possibly fair to give taxpayer money to schools that refuse to help the kids who need it most? Say no to vouchers!

Jennifer McKallip
Self - teacher
Austin, TX

Listen to the teachers, listen to the parents, listen to the students, don't just listen to the money being thrown at you by religious fanatics lining your pockets and campaigns. Vouchers have proven to fail in other states, don't destroy public education for your religion. The private schools will not help the students who need the most help. They will take their money and turn them away. Leaving underfunded public schools to pick up the pieces.

Abbott has been holding a pay raise over the teachers' heads for years and has yet to follow through. I do not believe he will help us now either.

Tamara Weintraub
Self, parent
Mckinney, TX

As a Texas resident, a proud product of Texas public schools, a parent of public school children, and a member of my community, I strongly oppose school vouchers. First, this bill assumes the only valid choice for families is private education. Second, the current state of our public education system that politicians are deeming an unworthy choice is a direct result of the lack of funding, attention and care of our Texas leadership. The choice is clear: to right the ship and assume your elected responsibility to be a good steward of our tax dollars for all children by funding public education. Vote NO to vouchers.

Kevin Daughtry
Self, Parent, Business Owner
Pearland, TX

The math on this is simple, rich kids will move their tax money to private institutions and poor kids will be stuck with less resources than they have already.

This is all in the name of religious freedom and anti woke agendas supposedly ... but I can't think of anything less christian and cruel than stealing from the poor to give more choice to the rich.

There's nothing redemptive about school choice for those with privilege and closed schools for those without. This is wrong.

Jennifer Virdell

MABLE FALLS CHAPTER- TCTA

Marble Falls, TX

My name is Jennifer Virdell, and I am an Educational Diagnostician and member of TCTA at Mable Falls ISD. I am extremely concerned about any version of a voucher program, and I am asking you to oppose HB 3 or any other voucher legislation. Our public schools are the heart of our community, and the state should focus on these schools instead of diverting funds to private schools.

Please consider your vote carefully and vote your conscience, considering how it will impact ALL Texans both now and in the future.

Ashley Millsaps

Self, Project Director

Fort Worth, TX

HB3 is a shameful attempt to allow the rich to have a savings voucher that is paid for by the public. The idea of this bill is absolutely absurd and embarrassing. The rich can already pay for private school, and more money should be spend on PUBLIC SCHOOL education don't benefits more lower and middle class families. The idea that this is school "choice" is a JOKE. Our government officials need to fund our public schools appropriately and stop bowing down to their greedy rich donors.

Jana Breaux

SELF

Humble, TX

This legislative session should be focused on funding public education before funding against it. The proposed bill does address education for all, but rather education only few can afford even with the proposed educational savings account. Let's focus on helping all Texas residents and their children have the best education possible, not just an education based on what they can afford or what value of their property can afford.

Ruth Knight

Self (retired teacher)

San Antonio, TX

We want this bill to pass,

Rebecca Kepley

Self

Austin, TX

In every state that is established a program similar to this the funds have overwhelmingly gone to affluent families as basically a coupon. This is not going to improve the education or the lives of most families. It also drains funds from public education which should be the cornerstone and gold standard of our education in this country. Our children deserve the very best free education. The money for these programs would be better served by increasing teacher pay and increasing funding for resources and services for the students. My son greatly benefited from the special education programs that are going to be endangered by these programs. Voucher programs do nothing for children who receive these services. They drain the resources and provide them where they are not needed. Private schools and charter schools are businesses and I don't believe public funds should be used to subsidize private Industries. Most people making these decisions benefited from public education. Your children deserve the same. All of our children deserve access to a free education that is comprehensive and isn't afraid of factual, historical, inclusive, and equitable teachings. It breaks my heart how grateful I am that my son has graduated and is no longer dependent on the whims of people looking to penalize poor and disabled students while propping up the wealthy who already receive so many social safety net programs and tax breaks while contributing almost nothing to locally economies. Prioritize the children not those contributing to your campaign.

Yvette De Leon
Macedonian Christian Academy Alamo, Tx
EDINBURG, TX

Our family's annual income is below $60,000 for a household of four. Despite this, we prioritize paying for Christian Academy tuition because we believe it is God's calling for us to provide our child with an education that fosters faith and purpose. This expense accounts for approximately 10% of our income, but we are convinced it is in the best interest of our child. Many individuals oppose private school vouchers, assuming that families like ours can afford them without assistance. However, this is not the case for us, as we are making sacrifices to fulfill what we believe is our spiritual obligation. It is worth noting that those who oppose the bill often overlook the fact that children from families with incomes exceeding $200,000 also attend public schools and, in many instances, receive free lunch at taxpayer expense. Therefore, the issue is more complex than it initially seems, as both low-income and affluent families benefit from taxpayer support. Receiving assistance to send our child to our preferred school would be a significant help to our family. Thank you.

Feliza Fernandez
Cyfair isd
Cypress, TX
Vote no on hb 3

Louise Hanks
Self
Austin, TX

I strongly oppose HB3. I have worked as a counselor in Texas schools for years and I know that this plan will harm children. Please vote against HB3.

Stephanie Blakeman, Mrs frisco ISd teacher
Mckinney, TX

Do not pass vouchers!!! This will destroy public education!!

Yari Kemp
Self
Decatur, TX

As a parent, I take the fight to better our education system very seriously. The lack of funding for the student basic allotment compared to inflation since 2019, which you and I both know was already behind from 2011, is what needs to be addressed. PreK-12 needs to be properly funded. Furthermore, state mandates need to be fully funded state mandates for public schools. Thank you for taking care of the 5.84 million public school students in Texas.

Tammy Conrad
Self
Round Rock, TX

I have been a public school educator for almost 20 years. I oppose vouchers or educational savings accounts or anything else that takes public tax money and puts it into private schools. We must first put public taxpayer money into public education. It is part of the Texas constitution that we fund public education for all students in Texas. The per student allotment has not kept up with inflation and has not been increased since 2019. It is ridiculous to talk about funding private schools when we don't even fund our public schools appropriately. Besides this bill doesn't give parents a choice, but rather gives private schools the choice to take more money from the students that they choose. It doesn't hold them accountable for meeting the needs of every student or even accepting every student this bill will also in the end reduce the money going into TRS. We need to support educators who have worked so hard for so long. Tell our students become the best citizens that they can be. Please do the right thing and support public education. Thank you.

Ashley Pope
SELF- Tax paying parent
Dripping Springs, TX

Stop the madness. Texans don't want to fund private schools, that's not choice that's defunding public education. Public education in Texas should be the only focus. In smaller counties private schools, if they exist do not offer the same caliber of education. It was never about choice, it's about placating donors and a small roughly 20%.

If you vote this mess, we will exit you at the primaries. Enjoy your last term! Be warned!

Jorge Bosquez
Self
Cypress, TX

I oppose school vouchers. My tax dollars are meant for public schools not private schools or homeschooling. Fund public school education or stop taxing. Take the issue to the voters but do not pass this through. Texans do not want school vouchers. It's a scam!

Alexis Frezza
Personal
Cedar Park, TX

We need to find public education vouchers do not do justice to our kids. Please leave the money in the hands of our school boards so they can fund the education that's needed by our communities.

Maria Anna Barrera Esparza, Ms
Self
Spring Branch, TX

I am completely against this bill! Please oppose it! It is bad for Texas children and bad for Texas!!!!

Coretta Mallet-Fontenot, Dr.
Self - Organizer
Houston, TX

This bill would not benefit the families and communities that I come from in Houston. I have family members who are thriving in public education settings. Due to their disabilities they would not be admitted into private schools in our area. This bill would take funds out of the schools that service my family members. Please vote no on HB3.

Melissa Brewer
Self- homemaker
Dayton, TX

As a proud Texan, I value the role public schools play in shaping our future. I oppose private school subsidies, also known as vouchers or education savings accounts. I believe private school subsidies are wasteful, deceitful, inefficient, and unfair.

Public school dollars should go only to public schools. Public schools in Texas are underfunded by billions of dollars every year. The Comptroller is projecting a large increase in state revenue over the next two years compared to the past two years, and that money should go to fully funding public education.

Private schools pick and choose which students to admit. Vouchers force taxpayers to subsidize private schools' preferences. And without elected boards or state oversight, vouchers give away tax dollars with no financial or academic accountability.

Public schools educate more than 90 percent of Texas students, serving all the students in their boundaries. They build the workforce that powers the Texas economy. We can't afford to underwrite a few special choices at the expense of our collective future.

We elect legislators to represent the interests of their communities. Responding to their communities, Texas legislators have rejected private school subsidies time after time.

In the face of increasing pressure from special interests, I pledge that I will stand with my legislators in opposing vouchers. When they vote against private school subsidies, I will make sure all their constituents know they did the right thing.

Jessica Faulconer
Self
Lewisville, TX

I am a homeschool mom, and I oppose this bill! There are too many hidden strings tied to the money. Leave our homeschools free from government interference!

Heather Rangel, Mrs.
Self
Round Rock, TX

Vouchers will only benefit those families who can already afford private school. It will take funds that are already lacking in public schools and just be given to those who do not need the help. Public education is a vital need for our Texas communities, many students rely on these school for their education, some would never be able to afford the luxury of private schools. Teachers already break their backs for our students to do everything they can for them, they are underpaid and under appreciated. As a Texas native, I, as well as my children now, are all products of public education. I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please continue to fund public education for our children and our teachers, who deserve the best chance at fair education.

Jane Chaya
Self
Tomball, TX

Please vote down school vouchers. This is discriminatory to economically challenged families

Rebecca Coon

Self and my 4 Keller ISD kids

Fort Worth, TX

Our local CBS featured myself and husband and special needs daughter. You can watch that or read this. Vouchers will take our sad 44th place in education and make it 50th. It will pad the wallets of the rich, and leave the most vulnerable with nothing. My daughter could not go to any private school with her chromosomal condition. She is not alone. TX has thousands of wonderful sped ed kids—why is Abbot failing all of them so heartlessly???

Laurie Schaefer

Self

Allen, TX

I am absolutely against the voucher debacle and FOR funding public schools. You will turn the state blue in the next election if you continue with this nonsense.

Leah Anderson

Self

Brenham, TX

I oppose this bill.

John Litzler

Baptist General Convention of Texas Christian Life Commission

Dallas, TX

I write in opposition to HB 3. Thank you, Chairman Buckley, for listening to those who asked for public school funding and Education Savings Accounts (ESAs) to be addressed in separate legislation. I also appreciate that HB 3 prioritizes the most vulnerable students and families. This is something we care greatly about and I know it is the result of listening thoughtfully to constituents and stakeholders. That said, even as carefully as this ESA was crafted it doesn't assuage concerns of infringement on religious liberty and freedom of conscience. Public funds shouldn't be used to provide private religious instruction and worship. HB 3 would provide an ESA in an amount of over $10,000 per student to fund private education expenses. However, the average Texas household only pays a fraction of that amount in taxes for public education. The difference in what a family pays in taxes for education and what the family would receive in ESA funding will come from the taxes paid by other Texans, most of whom will not have kids enrolled in private school. Many people promote the idea that a parent's money should follow their child. Under HB 3, however, not only would that family's tax dollars follow their child, but other public funds will follow that child as well. That money will come from a diverse body of Texans who hold to all different beliefs and faith traditions. It violates the freedom of conscience of many of those Texans to compel them, through taxation, to fund private religious teaching with which they do not agree. It's understandable, for example, that a Muslim family may not want their tax dollars to fund a private Baptist education which teaches things contrary to the Muslim faith. Conversely, many Baptists would object to their tax dollars being used to fund a private Islamic academy which teaches things contrary to the Christian faith. We believe in choices for education for families, but HB 3's opportunity for "education freedom" comes at the expense of religious freedom. Therefore we must, respectfully oppose.

Brenda DuBose

Self

Etoile, TX

No vouchers!

Catherine Porter
Self
San Antonio, TX

Public education for our children is required by the state constitution. Using vouchers to siphon off funding is counter to the constitution. Vouchers only benefit those already wealthy enough to afford private schools, while not improving education for students. Fund public education fully for all students in Texas

Karen Turner
Self. Retired school nurse!
Jefferson, TX

I'm against school vouchers! 100 percent! Save our Public Schools!

Tracy Biediger, Dr
Self, retired
Boerne, TX

Please vote No to establish a voucher-like education, savings account program in Texas. This type of program has already been shown to fail in other states, such as Arizona, Arkansas, and Florida. It will primarily put money in the hands of wealthier families who are already sending their children to private school at the expense of the public school systems, which are sorely in need of additional funding. I do not want my tax dollars to go toward private, often for-profit, schools who will have no accountability and no obligation to serve students with disabilities or learning issues.

Jessica Picard
Self
San Antonio, TX

I want my tax dollars going to fund public education. Private schools don't need help, public school does. If you want to send your child to private school that is the responsibility of the parent to pay for that, not the tax payer.

Brooke Wise

self

Dallas, TX

Please do NOT support the educational savings account program. Vouchers in Texas education will be detrimental to students and schools by potentially reducing funding for public schools, leading to inequitable access to education, and undermining the separation of church and state. Vouchers will potentially harm students with special needs, and undermine the state's commitment to public education.

Here's a more detailed breakdown of the arguments against vouchers:

1. Financial Impact on Public Schools:

Reduced Funding:

Voucher programs could siphon funds from public schools, which are already struggling with inadequate funding and facing budget deficits.

Constitutional Obligation:

Texas is constitutionally obligated to fund public schools, and voucher programs could undermine that obligation by diverting funds to private institutions.

Impact on Rural Schools:

Rural school districts, which rely heavily on state funding, could be particularly hard-hit by voucher programs.

Teacher Salaries and Resources:

Reduced funding could lead to teacher layoffs, cuts to extracurricular programs, and even school closures.

2. Concerns about Accountability and Transparency:

Lack of Oversight:

Private schools are not subject to the same accountability and assessment standards as public schools, raising concerns about transparency and oversight of how voucher funds are used.

No Guarantee of Quality:

Private schools are not required to meet specific standards for curriculum, teaching, or special education services, which could result in a lack of quality education for students.

Limited Access for Students with Special Needs:

Private schools are not obligated to accept or serve students with special needs, and even if they do, these students may lose the protections they have under federal law.

Segregation and Inequality:

Vouchers could exacerbate existing inequalities in education by allowing private schools to selectively enroll students, potentially leading to segregation.

3. Undermining Public Education:

Erosion of Public Trust:

Voucher programs could erode public trust in public education by suggesting that public schools are failing to meet the needs of students.

Focus on Private Interests:

Voucher programs could shift the focus of education from serving all students to serving the interests of private schools and corporations.

Divisive Policy:

Vouchers could further divide communities by creating a two-tiered education system, with public schools serving those who cannot afford private education and private schools serving those who can.

Lack of Parent Choice:

Vouchers do not necessarily provide parents with genuine choice, as private schools may not be accessible to all families, and may not serve all students.

Dovie Carrell

None

Nacogdoches, TX

Please vote no to HB 3 regarding the establishment of educational savings account programs. Until private schools have the same oversight that public schools have, our tax dollars should not go to ESA's. Until private schools are required to accept ALL students, our tax dollars should not go to ESA'S. Until private schools have to teach the same TEKs as public schools, our tax dollars should not go to ESA's. Until private schools have to administer the same standardized tests as public schools, our tax dollars should not go to ESA'S. Competition is good but the playing field should be level. ESA's do not level the playing field and only benefit a small percentage of students in our state. Quit selling out to Wilkes, Dunn, and Yass. Listen to the people of the State of Texas. Vote "NO" to HB3.

Scott Camp

Self

Fort Worth, TX

NO to school vouchers. They do not work!

Sonja Shackelford

Self

Mineral Wells, TX

Fund public schools. You all should be ashamed of yourselves!! Parents already have a choice. It's ridiculous to hold funding hostage to get an agenda pushed through. I'm thoroughly disgusted. No one supporting this will have my vote...and I am a Republican!

Kenneth Barnhart

Self

Fort Worth, TX

Vouchers = Subsidized Segregation by Race, Class, and Special Needs. Vouchers = Welfare for the Well Off. Where are the private schools in small towns? Where are the private schools in impoverished urban areas? How are the people in impoverished urban areas supposed to get across town to suburban schools that may not even accept them especially if the student has special needs. How are poor people supposed to make up the difference between the voucher and the cost of tuition. They aren't, because this is for the rich people who already send their kids to private schools.

Amanda Candler

Self

Houston, TX

Strongly oppose!!

Emely Pereira

Self

Humble, TX

As a public school teacher myself, I serve low-income students and families. This bill would be harmful to the communities my district serves as we are already limited in the materials and resources to provide the best education possible that EVERY child deserves and has the right to receive. This bill would take away funding for public schools such as the ones in my district, this would result in having even more limitations on resources for us to use. This bill would not benefit thousands of students and families who are unable to enroll or afford in a private/charter school. Public education deserves just as much as private schools. This bill would harm teachers, other school staff, parents, and most importantly, our students who have the right to receive the best education possible.

Bonnie Russell
Concerned citizen
Roanoke, TX

Stand up against Gov Abbott and vote down the voucher scam. How can anyone support giving money to a school with NO accountability! It's reckless and nothing but a scam. Any school receiving dollars from the state should be held to all the same rules. Let them submit PEIMS reports and take accountability tests. Level the playing field or it's discriminatory against public education. How about some support for public education? Why are schools being held hostage with funding because a governor's deep pocket contributors want it? Put it to a citizen vote!

Emily Ueng
Self
Plano, TX

Texans- specifically Texas teachers and families, do not want this bill passed. Please do not initiate a savings account program for school vouchers. As a speech language pathologist working at a Title 1 school with children with disabilities, can you truly explain to me how this will help the families I serve and work with daily? My community needs funding provided by title 1 programming, counseling services, home training programs, free lunch and breakfast, access to trained SPED staff and SPED programming, all of which are not guaranteed or required in private schools. Additionally, the families within my community could not afford to attend the private schools in our area- even with a discount. And many families in my community would not be accepted due to the extreme special needs and services they require (e.g. OT, PT, ST, AT, and other therapies and services provided in the public school setting.) I urge you to consider what the majority of Texas actually want. We want thriving communities with flourishing and supported public schools- not a coupon for the upper middle class to enjoy while the rest (and large majority) suffer. I am a proud Texan who takes joy in serving children and families in my community. True Texans look out for the little guys, stand up for what's right, and look for opportunities to support one another. This bill strives to do the opposite. It aims to further the divide by helping a minimal number of people, while impacting everyone. I know this because unlike the public officials proposing this bill, I will experience the negative effects of this bill everyday along with the majority of Texans. Please look at the actual statistics and effectiveness of "school choice" in other states and see if that's truly what we want Texas to become. Thank you.

Teresa Rau
Self
Longview, TX

I am against ESAs!! ESAs do nothing to help the parents that need help. What happens when the low income families aren't able to participate due to being rejected by private schools or financial constraints? The wealthy will be the ones using them. They would benefit more by using the money to help pay for rent or mortgage in the school district of their choice. That would be the only way the parents actually have the choice.

Simon Slot

Self

Austin, TX

My name is Simon Slot and I have been a Texas resident for the past 15 years. I am opposed to the passage of HB 3 and I hope my testimony may persuade this committee's members to join me in opposing this damaging bill.

I am a product of Texas public education. It is because of the high quality of education and resources I received at Memorial High School in Houston, Texas that I was able to pursue my higher education dreams at the University of Texas at Austin. If I did not have access to high quality public education in my local area, my life would have been impacted for the worst.

This committee must oppose HB 3 for one simple reason: it deprives our Texas public schools of the funds they need to give Texas kids a quality education. In 2022, Arizona implemented a voucher program similar to the one outlined in this bill. In 2 years, the program's costs quadrupled and, as of 2024, Arizona now ranks dead last in quality of public education. Florida's voucher program siphoned billions of dollars from the public education budget, severely cutting much-needed resources from struggling public schools. If this legislature enacts the same voucher program model, as HB 3 calls for, Texas will follow both of these states in seeing the quality of our education system be severely affected.

Right now, 4 of my siblings are currently enrolled in Texas public schools. I fear that if this bill is passed they, and their classmates, will not have the same opportunities I did because I was privileged enough to attend a well-funded public school.

Our public education system in Texas is far from perfect, but HB 3 is a massive step in the wrong direction. It will defund thousands of neighborhood public schools, like the one I attended, while subsidizing private schools that are unaccountable to the government and the local community. I hope every member of this committee will take my testimony into consideration and stand against HB 3 for the sake of millions of Texas students and their futures. Thank you for your consideration.

Wesley Ruff

Self

Round Rock, TX

I do not support HB 3. This is an obvious scam to move public tax dollars into private institutions. Our existing public education system needs funding. Quit holding the needed funds that exist hostage. This will only hurt public schools that so many small communities depend on.

Stacy White

Self

Azle, TX

I'm opposed and request you vote against HB3. Texas schools need to be fully funded before vouchers are considered for private and home schooled children. Texas public schools are significantly underfunded and need an increase in funds to continue to serve students appropriately. Funding vouchers will cost the taxpayers of this state much more than what is being advertised. Private schools have no accountability therefore there's no way to measure the success of their students. As a taxpayer, voter, and public school administrator, I oppose HB3.

Emma Garrett

Self

Austin, TX

I support public education and do not want tax dollars diverted from public schools to pay for private schools. I also do. I want to maintain a clear separation of church and state.

Tim Hicks

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose this.

julie wilson
Self
Lakeway, TX

Welfare for the wealthy!

Sarah Moore
Self, along with all the other mothers and children across the state.
Austin, TX

School vouchers will further decimate an already broken public education system. The vast majority of our students live in rural areas where private schools either don't exist, or are impossible for them to get to because their regions and cities have no public transportation.

This is just another example of our corrupt state leaders stealing tax dollars from the poor, so that rich families who already send their kids to private school can receive a discount on their tuition. The value of these vouchers won't even cover tuition costs for poor families, let alone the other costs that go along with attending a private school.

And I share this feedback as a mother who had the privilege of sending all three of my children to private schools. I don't need a discount on my tuition. I need you to fix education for all the millions of kids who don't have the privilege my children have.

Katie Abrego
Self
Buda, TX

I am writing to express my strong opposition to House Bill 3 (HB3), particularly its provisions regarding school choice and funding for public schools. I understand the desire to provide diverse educational options, but I am concerned that this bill, in its current form, risks undermining our public education system and jeopardizing funding for our students' needs. Public education is already underfunded and school vouchers will take away from public schools while providing a discount to families that can already afford private schools. Instead of focusing on diverting funding to private options, I urge you to prioritize investing in our public schools and ensuring they are well-resourced to meet the diverse needs of all students. Please oppose this bill as it harms Texas students that are enrolled in public education.

Thank you,

Katie Abrego

Tammie Harness
Self
El Lago, TX

Fully funded public schools and say NO to the voucher SCAMS!

Joyce Hoover Individual
Georgetown, TX

No vouchers!!! Only giving the rich money!!!

Ella J McGovern McGovern, Dr

Community Member/ self

Arlington, TX

I am a retired teacher of 41 years. I have worked in the public schools for all those years. It is very important that we keep our public schools because public schools take everybody public schools educate everyone. I do not want my tax money going to private schools while my public schools do not have the money they need. I think it's very important that if you're gonna give private schools money, you make it an even Playing field and give public schools the same money

Joseph Brunson

self

Cypress, TX

My wife and I homeschool our three children and oppose this bill.

Amanda Broccolo

Self

Austin, TX

I am against this bill. The state should have the public vote this at the ballot box.

Solaris Ortega

Self

Austin, TX

To representative Brad Buckley,

As a resident of Austin and a dedicated advocate for public education, I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB3 and any legislation that diverts public funds to private and charter schools through vouchers or similar mechanisms.

Having worked in education, non-profit, and both the public and private sectors, I have witnessed firsthand the invaluable role that public schools play in building strong, equitable communities. Public schools are designed to serve all students, regardless of background or ability, and are held accountable to the public they serve. In contrast, private and charter schools have the ability to selectively admit students, establish their own criteria, and exclude those who may require additional support or resources. Allowing public funds to subsidize these institutions fundamentally undermines the principle of equal opportunity in education.

Public education is already underfunded and struggling to meet the needs of students and educators. Redirecting scarce resources away from public schools will only exacerbate existing inequities and hinder our ability to provide quality education to all students. Rather than funding private institutions that are not held to the same accountability standards, we should be investing in strengthening our public school system to ensure every child, regardless of zip code or background, has access to a robust and comprehensive education.

Our public schools are the backbone of our communities, and every dollar spent on vouchers is a dollar taken away from teachers, classrooms, and students who depend on public education. I urge you to oppose HB3 and any similar efforts to divert public funds to private and charter schools. Please stand with our students, educators, and communities by committing to fully fund and support public education.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Solaris Ortega

Austin, Texas

Tiffany Thomas
Self- Sales
Nacogdoches, TX

Vouchers should NOT be passed! The current bill only allows 1.8% of Texas School children. In rural East Texas there are a limited amount of public schools . HB3 will HURT Texas School children. They deserve better!

Shirley Dulworth
Self
Spring, TX

I do NOT support HB 3. The representatives and governor of our state government ARE NOT listening to the constituents. If they truly believed the majority of Texan voters supported the bill, they would put it to a vote. This is a scam that will benefit the rich and the rest of our Texan children will suffer the governors selfishness of still withholding money from Texas Public schools as he has done since 2019. He is holding funds hostage to get his way and make billionaire donors profit from privatization. Shame on our Texas Government for NOT listening to your constituents.

Claudia Moreno
Self/Educator
Red Oak, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the “bought”? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Sarah Callihan-Lewis
Self
Poteet, TX

I am a hard-core republican! Vouchers will be a detriment to our public schools. Private schools will not and do not have follow the same rules and regulations as public schools. This will just benefit those that can already afford it. As for homeschooling, there is technically no accountability for that either. Legislatures voting on this do not understand how public schools work and they do not care. Unfortunately, many republicans will jump ship because of this.

Traci Sigmon
Self, executive recruiter
Austin, TX

I support funding public education fully in Texas. I am a parent, PTA member, and a member of the Casis Elementary Campus Advisory Council. Gov. Abbott is holding hostage millions of dollars that could benefit our children. As a voter and parent, I ask that you support public education, not a voucher program.

Brigitte Grimm
Self/teacher
League City, TX

A closer examination reveals that school vouchers could have far-reaching negative consequences for public education, including reductions in funding, increased inequity, diminished accountability, and adverse effects on vulnerable populations such as low-income students, rural communities, and students with disabilities. These outcomes collectively threaten to weaken the public education system and undermine its ability to serve all Texas students effectively. When students use vouchers to attend private schools, the money allocated for their education is transferred out of the public school system. This loss of revenue creates a financial strain on public schools, which must continue to cover fixed costs such as building maintenance, utilities, and administrative expenses regardless of enrollment numbers. Unlike private schools, public schools cannot selectively reduce their operations based on fluctuating student populations. If even a small percentage of students in a district opt to use vouchers, the resulting loss of funding could lead to teacher layoffs, larger class sizes, and cuts to essential programs such as arts, music, and extracurricular activities harming quality education. This disproportionately harms students who rely on them most—those from economically disadvantaged backgrounds who may lack access to similar resources outside of school. Private schools have greater discretion over admissions policies than public schools and may choose not to admit certain students based on academic performance or other criteria. This selective enrollment process can lead to further stratification within the education system, where affluent families gain access to better-funded private institutions while disadvantaged students remain concentrated in struggling public schools. Many rural areas lack private school options altogether, meaning that vouchers provide little or no benefit to families living in these regions. Unlike public schools, private schools are not required to adhere to standardized testing mandates or report performance metrics publicly. This lack of oversight raises questions about whether voucher-funded private schools are delivering quality education or using taxpayer money effectively. Additionally, private schools are not obligated to follow federal laws like the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), which guarantees accommodations for students with disabilities in public schools. Studies from states like Indiana, Louisiana, and Ohio have shown that students who transfer from public to private schools using vouchers often experience declines in academic performance rather than improvements. Public education is designed to ensure equity by offering every child—regardless of background or socioeconomic status—a chance at success through free access to quality schooling. Vouchers threaten this mission by prioritizing individual choice over collective responsibility for educating all Texas students equitably.

Laura Santos Farry
Self -retired
Austin, TX

I oppose sending public funds away from public schools. Please listen to the people- they don't want school vouchers!

Emily Souza
Self
Austin, TX

Our school districts are already struggling to make ends meet because of the Robin Hood system and now you want to take more money away. I grew up in a state with excellent public schools and Texas is severely lacking, even without this bill. We are 43rd in education! That's embarrassing! Wealthy people can already afford to send their kids to private school and our tax dollars shouldn't need to fund their choice not to attend public school.

Bree Kimball
Self
Little Elm, TX

Please do not approve this, it is bad for Texas children. There do not need to vouchers, just provide more funding to public schools, not private schools.

Loraina Paiste
Aledo
Aledo, TX

We need education funded!

Thais M, Ms

Self

Cypress, TX

I oppose this bill. I believe students deserve strong public education

Megan Lorenz

Self

Austin, TX

Please don't divert money from public schools that are already so desperately under funded.

Rebecca Henson, R.N.

Self. Retired School Nurse, RN

Willis, TX

Vote NO to HB3. It's not good for TEXAS Public Schools or Texas Tax Payers.

Rosie Stevens

Self

Coppell, TX

Please do not fund private school vouchers. If you feel you must fund vouchers, please limit the funding to those that actually need it - low income families.

It is a responsibility of the state to properly fund our public schools which ensures that our children are educated and can provide a stable workforce for businesses in Texas.

Nancy Crichlow

Self/teacher (retired)

Austin, TX

I sent my child to a private school and taught in one, but I do not support HB3. Good public schools benefit all Texans by attracting businesses and educating the next generation of Texans. People who want to enroll children in private schools should have that prerogative, but public tax dollars should go to public schools.

John Roylance

Self

Conroe, TX

Texas House Bill 3 proposes Education Savings Accounts (ESAs), a voucher-like program that diverts public funds away from public schools to subsidize private education. While framed as expanding school choice, this bill primarily benefits private and homeschooling families at the expense of the 5.5 million students in Texas public schools.

Public schools, especially in rural and low-income areas, rely on state funding to provide essential services, including special education, transportation, and extracurricular programs. HB 3 would strip these schools of critical resources, further deepening educational inequities.

Additionally, private schools are not held to the same accountability and transparency standards as public schools. They can reject students based on academic performance, disabilities, or other factors, leaving vulnerable children behind.

Instead of weakening public education, Texas should focus on investing in teacher pay, classroom resources, and student support programs to improve education for all. Strong public schools benefit everyone, not just a select few.

Marsha Munoz

Self

Pflugerville, TX

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the proposed school voucher system in Texas. While I understand the intention behind the voucher system is to provide families with more options, I believe it poses significant risks to our public education system and undermines the foundation of equitable education for all children.

Public schools are the bedrock of our communities, serving children from all walks of life. They are responsible for educating the vast majority of Texas students, and diverting public funds away from these institutions will only deepen inequalities. Vouchers would disproportionately benefit wealthier families, who are more likely to afford private schools and who already have greater access to educational opportunities. Low-income families and communities of color, on the other hand, would be left behind, as they often lack the means to supplement any shortfall in education funding caused by this system.

Additionally, the introduction of vouchers could lead to a depletion of resources for public schools. Texas schools are already struggling with overcrowded classrooms, teacher shortages, and underfunding. Reducing funding for public education to support vouchers would only exacerbate these challenges, ultimately hurting the students who need the most support.

Public education is a cornerstone of a strong and vibrant society, providing all students with the opportunity to succeed, regardless of their background or socioeconomic status. Instead of diverting funds to private institutions, we should be investing in the improvement and expansion of our public schools so that every child in Texas has access to a high-quality education.

I urge you to reconsider this policy and instead prioritize the strengthening of our public schools. Our future depends on providing every child with the tools they need to succeed, and vouchers are not the answer.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Kelly Rizk

Self

Austin, TX

Public funds should stay with public schools. Please reject this bill to establish education savings funds or vouchers. ESAs are bad for public schools, communities, and learners.

Jason Miller

Self

Palacios, TX

I'm in favor of the bill HB 3, this will help small towns and communities. This will give money to help community home schools, more students will be able to attend. This will make public schools fight for students and make public schools go back to teaching basic subjects. One day this could lead to cutting the STAR. Test out.

Katherine Mesches

self

Austin, TX

I am completely against Abbott's voucher scam and want the lege to vote it down. It isn't choice, it is welfare for rich folks who already send their kids to private. Over 150 counties in TX don't even have a private school! So, they pay for a program they cannot even take advantage of? Privates are not held financially or organizationally accountable to the state (or anyone else) which is creating a situation ripe for unconstitutional policies and unethical business practices to thrive unchecked. Vouchers promote discrimination because these privates can choose to not admit a student for any reason; race, gender, religion, disability, etc... We need to put that $8 Billion into public schools throughout the state. TX schools are ranked #29th in the country. There is no excuse that we can't have worldclass public schools. Schools are a benchmark of a successful society and a growth-driver for communities. If we had a governor who wasn't obsessed w/passing vouchers because he's a handmaiden of MAGA and christian nationalists, we could use that $8 Billion to make TX schools the best. Why doesn't our Gov care about all TX children? Why has he spent years in the republican-controlled lege trying to pass vouchers and failing every time? It's obvious TX doesn't want vouchers. Not urban or rural, Dem or Republican. Stop pushing this voucher scam and start working on real issues that will benefit TX children, adults and families

Kay Hall

Self

Austin, TX

No Vouchers

Keep tax money for public education

Lisa Beyer

Self

Cypress, TX

Public tax dollars should not be sent to private education industries. The passing of this bill opens up much opportunity for fraud. It is a very expensive bill that will only aid less than 2% of Texas children. I am against this bill and hope that it is not passed!

Yvonne Rossman, Ms.

Self

Victoria, TX

I urge you to vote NO on HB3. Public schools are not adequately funded to meet all the demands of the students and the mandates which you all impose on public schools. Create a new bill which will help fund public schools.

James Hickey

Self

Del Valle, TX

Simply, the taxpayers should NOT be paying for tuition for private schools. Private schools should be paid for by the families attending them, and only those families or sponsors that choose to support to those schools. If vouchers are passed, there's no reason private schools won't choose to increase tuition costs by the voucher amount. So if a school charges $10,000 per year, and a voucher brings tuition down to $5,000, the private school could easily increase tuition to $15K or $20K to receive more money, or rather, receive taxpayer money when they're already receiving tuition payments from wealthy families already attending these school. Vouchers will take away so much money our public schools need. Governor Abbott talks all the time about how vouchers are good for ALL Texans, but that's a lie. And he's lying on behalf of TX billionaires Tim Dunn and Farris Wilks. Governor Abbott would rather benefit from his megadonors than ensure public schools receiving the funding they need so literally ALL Texas students receive a quality education. TX also has many rural areas that are served only by public schools. These vouchers will hurt those communities, those teachers, those kids, whose livelihoods and futures will be compromised because their local public schools will lose so much funding just so wealthy families can receive a small discount at the private schools they attend. If Governor Abbott wants to "save" education in TX, he needs to start with fully funding public schools so all TX students can receive the services they need to have successful futures. Public schools will never turn any student away because the public school must accept all students and determine which services are needed for each child to thrive from where they are. Does the child need special education? GT? Speech? Occupational therapy? Section 504 accommodations? Bus transportation? Free or reduced-price meals due to being from a low-income family? ONLY PUBLIC SCHOOLS OFFER THIS. PRIVATE SCHOOLS DO NOT. Private schools can deny any student admission. It's extremely unfair to even consider vouchers when only wealthy families will benefit from these. Vouchers ensure affluent families get help and lower-income families are left to fend for themselves. Vouchers are a horrible idea and will hurt the vast majority of Texans. I urge all TX Legislature members of the House and Senate to OPPOSE HB3!

Jennifer Miller

Self/bookkeeper

Dripping Spgs, TX

The majority of Texans don't want this. It will come at the expense of public schools and will benefit few. We want more invested in our public schools, higher teacher pay and more overall funding for the vast majority of Texas children who are currently and will continue to attend public schools. This bill goes against the Texas constitution and I urge you to stop it in its tracks NOW. We will remember who promoted and pushed this bill forward and will vote accordingly.

If it must pass, ensure funding is the SAME for children attending private or public schools, instead of this disparity of over 3k less for public kids. Ensure that ANY private institution which takes our tax dollars follows all rhetoric guidelines that our public schools must.

As a parent of a child with special needs to receive services from a public ISD, my money should not be going to private schools who will outright refuse my child because of his disability.this bill is not the answer to improving the dismal educational system in Texas.

Cassandra Hall

Self

Spicewood, TX

I oppose House Bill 3 and its proposal to implement school vouchers in Texas. Public education is the foundation of a strong society, and it must remain fully funded and accessible to all children. Instead of diverting resources away from public schools, we should be working to strengthen and improve the system we already have. We need to ensure that every child in Texas has access to the resources, support, and opportunities they need to succeed, no matter their background.

Mark Schupp

Self

Marion, TX

Public money should not fund private education. This will cost Texans more money. Use the existing money for more teachers and lower the teacher/student ratio to 15-16. That's how you improve education for all not just the upper class! That's also how you keep educators in the profession when they can actually teach. Public money should not fund private education!

Dana Thompson
self
Leander, TX

Keep private school vouchers out of public education!

Jon Hester, Mr
Self/ minister
Plainview, TX

My main concerns about using public funds for private schools and home school are 1) fairness and 2) control.

As for fairness, it doesn't make sense to me to fund at different levels. A student is a student. Costs are costs. Why are the amounts different? Sending more to private schools than public shows favoritism to private schools and would indicate that our state is indeed hostile to public schools. Make the amount the same, regardless of what school type is chosen.

As for control, the public school system is broken. Forcing schools to teach towards a standardized test and tying funding to the test results is illogical. Students don't learn the same and standardized tests penalize many learning styles and favor good test takers. Public school officials rightly are complaining that for their funding to be tied to test results and for private and home school funding not to be is unfair.

I don't believe the answer is more state control but less. Do away with funding being tied to test scores. It's a carrot and stick technique that has failed over and over again.

Thank you for reading my thoughts!

Joyce Peggram
Self/retired
Hale Center, TX

I strongly oppose school vouchers. We do not have enough in the area to support them. Would require travel which would not be good. public schools would suffer. Many of them have bond elections pending! Please vote no! Thank you

Kristi Swice

self, Licensed Behavior Analyst, Executive Director

Dripping Springs, TX

I am writing as a parent and special educator to urge you to oppose Texas House Bill 3 and any efforts to implement school voucher programs in our state. Vouchers pose a serious threat to our public education system and the well-being of our communities.

Here's why school vouchers are harmful:

1. Divert Funding from Public Schools – Texas public schools are already underfunded, and vouchers would siphon away much-needed taxpayer dollars to subsidize private schools, leaving public schools with fewer resources to support teachers, students, and programs.
2. Lack of Accountability – Unlike public schools, private schools that accept vouchers are not held to the same academic, financial, or ethical standards. There is no guarantee that students will receive a quality education or that tax dollars will be used responsibly.
3. No Protection for Students – Private schools can discriminate based on religion, disability, academic ability, or socioeconomic status, leaving many students—especially those with special needs—without equitable access to education. Public funds should not support institutions that can pick and choose their students.
4. Fails Rural Communities – Most rural areas in Texas do not have private schools, meaning vouchers do nothing for families in these communities. Instead of helping all students, vouchers disproportionately benefit wealthier families in urban areas, while rural schools continue to struggle.
5. Higher Costs for Families – Vouchers rarely cover the full cost of private school tuition, making them an ineffective solution for low-income families. Instead, they often serve as a subsidy for families who can already afford private education.
6. Weaken Our Public School System – Strong public schools are essential to thriving communities, a skilled workforce, and a prosperous economy. Redirecting public funds to private institutions undermines our commitment to providing a free, quality education for all children.

Rather than diverting money away from public education, Texas should invest in fully funding our schools, raising teacher salaries, and providing students with the resources they need to succeed.

I strongly urge you to stand with Texas families and educators by opposing HB 3 and rejecting school voucher programs. Please fight for policies that strengthen, not weaken, our public schools.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I look forward to your response.

Sincerely,
Kristi Swice

I urge you to oppose this bill and instead focus on solutions that prioritize the well-being, safety, and rights of all residents. Please stand against HB 3 and advocate for policies that truly serve our communities.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I look forward to your response.

Sincerely,
[Your Name]
[Your Address]
[Your Contact Information]

Ann Jenkins, Dr
Self
Cypress, TX

School vouchers will destroy the public school system. Many children, especially those from poor families, will be left behind. We are completely against school vouchers. Please listen to your constituents!!!

Greg Cooper
Self
Joshua, TX

Chairman and Committee Members:

I urge you to vote no on HB 3! HB 3 is not aligned with the Conservative planks and just the appearance of 75 Co-Authors signing on at the same time on February 26th, 2025 looks suspiciously staged! To those Reps who have potentially been under substantial pressure I urge you to lean on your District and Constituents to really gauge whether or not this is a bill worth championing!

Thank you for your time!

Greg Cooper

Corrie Peach McCulloch
Self. Paralegal.
Spicewood, TX

This is an absolute NO from me. This will gut our public schools and hurt the kids in rural counties especially while benefiting private schools and their owners. We would be better off funding our public schools more and providing better support to our teachers and families, while also providing Pre-K and other programs. My children are grown now but I care about my grandkids and their futures as well as the other children and families in our district and throughout the state. Please try to do something to help our public schools and not hurt them, and also to keep them free from religion. I could go on but I don't know if anyone will read this, but please please please do not approve this voucher program unless you are truly in the pockets of the private school owners and their financial institutions. Thank you

Betbirai Vera
Self
San Antonio, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a native Texan, whose entire family are products of the public education system, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future.

Ronald Fathauer, Mr.
Self
Brenham, TX

I strongly oppose.

Sean Ragsdale
Self
Austin, TX

As a father of 2 boys in AISD, we DO NOT WANT a school voucher program. The public has already said NO to this many times despite our governors misguided attempts to go against the will of parents and educators. This has been implemented in many states already and has been an abject failure. The results are in: SCHOOL VOUCHERS DON'T WORK!

Tabitha Romero

Self

Hockley, TX

Leave homeschooling alone. Though the money seems tempting, it comes at a price that is too high. Homeschoolers want to be left alone to educate how we see fit.

Sarah Dalton

Public school parent

Sachse, TX

Public schools need to be FULLY funded with public tax dollars. Parents ALREADY have a choice regarding education. There has never been a state school voucher program implemented that has been successful. Texans DO NOT support school vouchers!

Michelle Thorn

Self

Tomball, TX

I am a homeschool mom in TX, and I oppose this bill.

Kevin Ready

Self

Austin, TX

I am writing to express my strong opposition to House Bill 3, which would divert taxpayer dollars away from public schools to fund private school vouchers. This bill undermines Texas' commitment to providing a strong, equitable public education system for all students, regardless of their ZIP code or economic status.

Public schools serve as the foundation of our communities, educating over 5 million Texas children, including those with disabilities, English language learners, and students from low-income families. Redirecting tax dollars to private institutions—many of which are not held to the same accountability standards as public schools—weakens our public education system, leading to larger class sizes, fewer resources, and diminished opportunities for students who rely on them the most.

Furthermore, school vouchers do not guarantee access to quality education. Private schools are not required to accept all students, and they can impose selective admission criteria that exclude those with special needs or behavioral challenges. Public funds should be invested in strengthening our neighborhood schools, not subsidizing private institutions that operate without public oversight.

Texans overwhelmingly support strong public schools. Instead of diverting funding, we should be increasing teacher salaries, expanding student resources, and addressing school infrastructure needs. I urge you to stand with Texas families and vote against House Bill 3.

DeDe Church

Self - lawyer

Austin, TX

I adamantly oppose these bills that do nothing for so many districts without any private schools at all and take money away from public schools.

Janet Jones

Self

Bryan, TX

I am against vouchers. I haven't met anyone that is "for" vouchers. Democrats nor republicans. Vouchers will take funding away from public schools. We need to make our public schools stronger, not weaker. I also don't want my tax money funding private school ideals I don't agree with. I am a life long, born and raised Texan and attended private school 8 years, public schools 4 years.

Jason Pitts, Mr.

Self - Athletic Director

Diana, TX

Vouchers are a scam that only hopes to give discounts to the wealthy and keep middle and lower classes uneducated. Fully fund public education, as is your constitutional obligation.

William Lane

Self - Student

Houston, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

I respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because as a Texas high school student, I have read numerous studies that show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated workforce. HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents. Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools. I support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot. This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.

Thank you!

William "Arch" Lane

Brittany Fowler, Mrs.

Self

McKinney, TX

The voucher system is only going to benefit those who do not need it. It will take funds away from public schools in TX, the public school system that educates our kids, who the public school system belongs to. I have two kids in the gifted and talented program and one of them has a 504 that he depends on as a cross gifted and talented student. Please do not allow this bill to take this away from them, they deserve it. Private school is for parents who choose private school and do not need or want public schooling. Please do not do this to our children.

David Belote

Concerned parents, self

Mineral Wells, TX

Please vote NO to school vouchers! Fund PUBLIC SCHOOLS!! Let those who can afford private schools attend them. Most of us cannot afford them and we want better pay and less union interference in our public schools. This is of the utmost importance. Stop doing what rich campaign contributors want and do what is RIGHT FOR TEXAS PUBLIC SCHOOLS!

Greg Vidal
Self
Leander, TX

As a parent of young children in public education and an educator, I vehemently oppose the great state of Texas allocating any funds to subsidize a state voucher program in any form.

Parents already have access to school choice. The proposed voucher programs the governor and lieutenant governor, as well as all republicans are proposing is contrary to the essence of the State of Texas Constitution and benefits a small, small group of wealthy republicans. Furthermore, education should not be sold and the quality education of five million students should not be subverted to by those who yield from personal gain that would come through the allocation of public funds for vouchers.

Amy Gillis
Self
San Marcos, TX

This is unfair. Taking from under privileged children giving to the wealthy! Stop

Arturo Amezcua
Self
Pflugerville, TX

Do not move forward. Concerned Texan with children.

Cathy Hicks
Self / retired
Cypress, TX

Free public education is the cornerstone to democracy. Knowledge is power, and great teachers are present in every school in Texas. Educate children now, give them the tools they need to be successful, and society flourishes. We don't need to subsidize private education for the wealthy; private schools are their choice and should be paid for by them.

Dallin Wootton
Self, Physician Associate
Allen, TX

I strongly oppose the use of public funds to fund vouchers for private education. These vouchers will defund our already underfunded public schools and will have lasting, devastating consequences for our communities and schools. Vote NO on HB3.

Roxanne Williams
Self/ Retired teachers
Decatur, TX

I am a Retired PUBLIC SCHOOL teacher as is my husband. My daughter is a PUBLIC SCHOOL teacher now. We all oppose School Vouchers as students in the PUBLIC SCHOOL will not be treated fairly. We are also concerned about how the PUBLIC SCHOOL teachers will be treated as well as our TRS. The people in Austin need to listen to the voters as the majority of people are NOT in favor of this bill. We all know this is being done for the rich students and parents that attend private schools. PUBLIC SCHOOLS are for all as well as for the communities. PLEASE VOTE AGAINST THE PASSAGE OF SCHOOL VOUCHERS!

Amber Ruff
Self, educator
Round Rock, TX

The fact that this bill is even up for discussion is blasphemous. There are a lot of ways education can be improved, this is the OPPOSITE and will have no positive impact on education. Several states have already adopted a school choice program and NOT ONE has shown improvement. In fact, these programs are siphoning money from the state budget far over the estimated amounts.

Taking money from our public schools (that are held to standards) to hand out to private schools (that have to answer to no one but themselves) is not the education reform we need. Get REAL teachers, REAL principals, REAL support staff into a committee and make a plan for real change— do this with real statistics and case studies, not blind following. I'm embarrassed of Texas's current leadership and their willingness to degrade the education of its rising and future residents. Our CHILDREN are important. Our TEACHERS are important. Our EDUCATION is important. The egos of some of our state leaders and those padding their pockets are not important and should not be catered to.

Joan Stiver, Ms
self Retired Registered Nurse
Fort Worth, TX

Although I am retired, I have grandchildren who live in Texas. They attend public schools. Their parents cannot afford private schools. One grandson is special needs. Vouchers would be very harmful to public schools, especially in smaller districts in o Even though I am retired, I have grandchildren who attend public schools. Their parents cannot afford private schools. One grandchild is special needs. Vouchers would be very harmful to schools in smaller districts and schools in rural areas. Please do the RIGHT thing for children and parents and schools and vote NO on the school voucher bill!

Anthony Rigoni
Self
Killeen, TX

I am against passage of this bill. Taking money away from public education would be a tragic mistake for the tax-paying citizens of Texas.

Peter Witt
Self
College Station, TX

Destroying public education via vouchers is a bad idea...no matter how worded, the bill gives into rich donors who have a vested interest in profiting off of private, but voucher funded non-public education...we all know children with disabilities and learning disabilities, LGBTQ children, and children from poorer families will be greatly hurt by public funds being expended in this way...

Courtney Ivy
Shallowater ISD
White / Caucasian, TX
For bill

Kelly Brooks

Self

Temple, TX

I have several concerns with the voucher program. I believe a student should have to take all of the state mandated tests that are required of public school students if they receive any voucher money. It appears to be a way to get funding without having to have the requirements of public schools. The Texas legislature has places SO MANY requirements on public schools, some of which are ridiculous and excessive. Also this voucher system doesn't truly help the low income and rural students. I am especially concerned with any decrease in funding for our public schools. They are not funded enough to truly operate schools and educate students. Texas used to be the best state in the nation and it will only get worse if we do not educate our student. My last issue is that I think the vouchers should be no more than the parent pays in taxes to the local school.

Cynthia Kennedy, Rev.

North Texas Coalition against Christian National

Pilot Point, TX

State taxpayer vouchers will hurt our public schools by taking much needed funds away. It also uses taxpayer funds to pay For religious education which is a private choice. Keep our public schools strong for everyone.

Diana Elizondo

Self

Portland, TX

If people want to send their children to private schools, they need to pay for it. DO NOT deprive the children who attend public school, as it is, they don't have all of the material needed to provide a good education, depending on school district. Why should we pay for someone else's to receive a better education than most parents can afford, depriving our child the best education our tax dollars can provide. If someone can't afford private schools, send your children to public schools like the rest of us. I worked so my children could attend public schools and I helped them be the best they can be. So should privileged children from privileged parents.

Bonita Overbey, Teacher Aide

Self

Sherman, TX

I do not want this Voucher! Abbott has lied in so many ways on this Voucher! That money will not follow that child! Arizona is struggling from this Voucher! Let Texas Vote on it! If I want to Homeschool my grandkids, eventually Abbott will make them do background checks! That's ridiculous! The Government should not be running homeschool what they teach or not teach! NO TO VOUCHERS!!

Denise Patti, Mrs.

Self

Dallas, TX

No school vouchers. We sent 2 kids and now 3 grandkids to public school
Even though we could afford private.
No more freebies to wealthy people please!

Robert Jones

Self / IT Professional

Bryan, TX

I do not want the state to use my tax money to fund this. It only helps a small percentage of students. The money should instead be used to lower property taxes that will benefit more people.

Paulette Helberg

Grandchildren

Kyle, TX

I support public schools and strongly oppose HB3. If we have money for vouchers, we have money to fully fund public schools first!

Pamela Brown

Self retired

Austin, TX

I am a former longtime resident of the Rio Grande Valley and I've retired to Austin. So many if the public schools are already underfunded, especially when it comes to kids with special needs. I see no reason to do very our precious tax dollars to school vouchers for private schools. Many rural areas don't even have proper privates schools, so this is basically a transfer of tax dollars from the rural to the urban. Please don't vote HB 3 out of committee!

Jennifer Clarke

SETX Impact I initiative

Nederland, TX

Say No to vouchers. There are 5 million kids in Texas with a right to an education. Parents already have choice. Homeschool allows parents to be in charge of their child's education. Voting for state leaders also allows parents to dictate their child's education since the state controls it. Parents can also communicate with school staff and attend board meetings to be a partner in their child's education. And none of that requires starving millions of Texas kids of equitable access to education for a select few just so lawmakers and billionaires can make some extra cash.

Marisa Morales, Mrs.

Self

Uhland, TX

I write this as a public educator and a product of public education. Vouchers will not better the educational opportunities of a majority of our children. It has been said time and again vouchers are to the benefit of the wealthy and the detriment of the low income. Public schools have been there to support, educate, and guide students and provide them opportunities. Taking away funding from the masses and pretending this will provide them opportunities isn't fair. We know exactly who this will benefit and have no plans as to what will be done for special populations. Students who are considered title I & require special education services, 504 plans, IEPS will all be left on the wayside. Private schools have always proudly held the power to decide who they will accept and educate. Vouchers mean nothing to the families who have students that don't meet the criteria of these schools that will raise tuition rate once they're given this leg up anyway. Vouchers are against the every day people. Texans deserve better than to be given the boot because they're not rich. The rich have enough.

Jennifer McClarren

Self - Geologist

Gilmer, TX

I don't support this. It will not help anyone who needs it.

Elizabeth Archey

Self/Public School Teacher

Lewisville, TX

I've been a public school teacher at title I schools for 9 years now. Our public schools are underfunded. These vouchers will not help students whose families are struggling to pay rent or buy food. Students rely upon public schools for free meals. I do not agree with using taxpayer money to fund private school tuition. As a parent myself, I want my son to be at a funded public school and would never send him to private. Even with the voucher, I could not afford private school. Please vote against this. It will only harm public schools.

Tom Sagona

Self

Austin, TX

I attended the committee meeting this morning, March 11. The meeting was well run, although quite long with no breaks that I could see. I would like to have delivered comments in person, but couldn't stay that long. I have two comments to make.

1. I feel strongly there needs to be a cap on earnings to qualify for a subsidy. Many members expressed interest in helping those who aren't as fortunate, but the chair indicated he saw no limit to who receives help. There's a guy called Elon Musk, who lives in Bastrop and has something like 12 kids on a compound. It appears that the committee chair would have no problem with the state subsidizing Elon Musk to the tune of $125K. That's wrong. Let's put a reasonable cap on who gets help and save some of the money for those who truly need it.

2. Several members who supported the ESA seemed offended by the audience response. I thought the audience response was remarkably restrained and not invasive. And the chair seemed to agree, because he never called to silence the room, at least as of 1 PM or so. These members who were offended seemed to be implying that those opposed were somehow unfair. But this is a democracy and not everyone is required to have the same opinion. Instead of being offended that people seemed to have a different opinion, perhaps these members should read the room and realize that there is demonstrable resistance to subsidizing wealthy families. That was actually by far the biggest opposition to the ESA's. Maybe the committee should listen to the attendees and put some limits on who qualifies for an ESA.

KHEANAN TAYLOR

Self

Pflugerville, TX

I oppose

Brittany Miller

Self

Austin, TX

I vehemently disagree with the establishment of an education savings program. For the states that have pushed this through in the past, it has created a significant money pit. Also, as shown in previous states that have gone this route, the vast majority of people that will use this money are already attending private school and don't need the government subsidy. A strong, well-founded public education system in Texas is imperative to ensure a quality education for everyone, regardless of their socioeconomics. Vote NO for this bill.

Ruma Singh

Self Homemaker, Community Volunteer

Round Rock, TX

This bill only serves to undermine public school education and give money to already wealthy families. Taxpayer money should only be used for public school education that gives admission to all and has accountability and serves all kinds of children. Private schools have no accountability, they get to select who to admit, they have no school bus - they are only going to benefit the wealthy at the expense of public school funds which are already low. I do not want my taxes to fund this voucher scam. Both my children went through the public school education system and greatly benefitted from the diverse school population and the variety of academic and extracurricular programs. We need to strongly support this system by putting more funds into it to pay our teachers well, provide resources for our children, support a strong inclusive curriculum and provide the benefits of a well rounded education to all the children in our state free of cost. An educated population is the greatest asset for our nation and the world. We should not compromise this in any way. Instead of putting funds into the voucher system, we should invest more into public school system so that most parents can make that their school of choice. Our taxes should NOT be used to fund private faith based schools. That is totally unacceptable. Any school receiving our tax dollars should have accountability, should give admission to anyone, should provide transportation, should include programs for children with all kinds of needs and should be free of cost.

Megha Sethi
Self
Leander, TX

We don't want vouchers. We want funding for our public schools and basic $1300 allotment per kid. Those are basic requirements.

Rebekah Hinojosa
Parent of children in public schools
Houston, TX

Absolutely against vouchers. Fund and support our public schools. This bill will disproportionately hurt economically disadvantaged and special needs children.

Gina Busey
Self
Argyle, TX

I am the parent of two students in Texas public schools and am OPPOSED to the establishment of an ESA program. My tax dollars should be funding the public education system that our Texas Constitution requires. The public school system goes above and beyond to educate and care for over 5.5 million Texas children and it is sadly doing so right now without the support of those mandated to maintain it. As a parent, if I want to send one of my children to a charter or a private school, I already have that choice. For my other child who receives special education services, however, I would not have that choice and vouchers/ESAs would not help. Private schools are allowed to choose who they admit, and I'm comfortable estimating that the majority of them do not have the capability to serve students like mine. The Legislature is going to take money away from the public schools that can serve BOTH of my children (which then prevents the public schools from fully operating) in order to give it to private schools that can not only pick and choose who they accept but do not have the public oversight/accountability that is required from our public schools. If so many people in Texas want ESAs, why has this not been allowed to appear on a ballot?

It is time for our Legislature to fund our public schools. Not only that, it is time for our Legislature to respect our educators and support them instead of allowing the hostile, inaccurate, and never-ending negative political narratives to bring them down. My children deserve better from this state, and so do everyone else's. Our public schools serve 5.5 million children who are the future of this state. Uplift them, properly fund them and their educators, and watch them thrive instead of rooting for them to fail to fulfill a political checklist that does not serve the majority.

Brekka Larrew, Mrs

Self

Lakeway, TX

As a 29-year public educator, I have serious reservations about HB3. I care deeply about our public schools, which are the last bastion of connecting our pluralistic communities and helping our citizens growing up not in fear of people different from themselves. I've experienced first hand in my own life as a student in Houston ISD and seen in my students in both HISD and Lake Travis students connecting with those of other races, religions, and socioeconomic classes; these are connections that would not have been forged across such lines in many private school settings. Public schools educate all children regardless of disability or economic standing. It is an equalizer. Public school protects the American dream in our country. I worry that vouchers could undermine this essential institution in modern life. Affluent students and high academic performers who can qualify for private schools will take the money and run. Public schools will be left with the disabled and those with behavior problems. Those without the means to pay the difference in price between the voucher and the cost of private schools will take will be trapped in an untenable situation.

Please don't pass HB 3. If you want to privatize education, keep the playing field level. 1. Require STAAR and EOC from recipients of vouchers, or eliminate these requirements from public schools. 2. Require teacher certification in private schools, or remove certification requirements from public schools. 3. Provide equal dollar amounts of per pupil funding for public school students and voucher recipients.

If these three conditions are met, then the passage of vouchers may not undermine the institution of public education. If voucher are a must, please don't sacrifice our public schools in order to get your way with them.

Leila Anderson

Self/Marriage and Family Therapist

Austin, TX

I strongly oppose taking more money away from our public schools. This bill will only help those who can already afford private schools. As a parent of children in public school, I can vouch for their already being underfunded. It is absurd to think that our educational prospects as a whole will be improved by pulling more money from public schools.

Zachary Dunnam

Self

Austin, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

- 1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.
 - 2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.
 - 3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.
 - 4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot. This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.
- Thank you!

Melanie Sementilli

self

Austin, TX

School vouchers divert much-needed public funds away from public schools, undermining the quality of education for the vast majority of students. Instead of improving public education, vouchers primarily benefit private and religious schools, often with little accountability or transparency. They can exacerbate inequality by subsidizing tuition for families who may already afford private education while failing to cover full costs for lower-income students. Public dollars should be invested in strengthening public schools, ensuring all children have access to quality education regardless of their background or zip code.

Kristen Saarloos

My family

Fort Worth, TX

I'm opposed! This is not good for our public schools!

Liana Gonzales

Self

Austin, TX

No to Vouchers, Fund our public Schools!!! Each child needs at least $1300 basic allotment per child.

Scott Kowalski

Self/Senior Business Analyst

Houston, TX

NO TO HB3! NO TO SCHOOL CHOICE! NO TO VOUCHERS. Say No to School Choice in Texas

As a Texas community member, I want every child to have access to a strong, well-funded public school, no matter where they live. School choice programs take money away from our public schools and send it to private institutions that aren't held to the same standards and don't have to serve every student. This hurts our neighborhoods, weakens our education system, and leaves many families with fewer real options. Instead of diverting funds, we should invest in improving our public schools so all kids have the opportunities they deserve.

Victoria Matus

Self

Austin, TX

I am a Texas parent against school vouchers and education savings accounts. I have a child in public school and I support fully funding our public schools.

Eliz Markowitz, Dr.

Self

Katy, TX

Vouchers will only serve the affluent and divert taxpayer money to private institutions.

Donna Schmidt, Mrs.

Myself

Farmers Branch, TX

I vehemently oppose HB3, I am a teacher, this bill helps destroy public schools

Leigh Velasquez
Self retired
College Station, TX

I am totally against using my tax dollars to help rich people get their children into private schools. By using the tax dollars, the public school systems will suffer greatly. Some school districts are already at a disadvantage and this bill will undercut them to where children in rural areas might be without a school. Louisiana has a horrible public school system, most children attend private schools. They rank at the bottom of the US in standard scores. Do you want Texas to be right behind them?? No one would move to Texas because of a poor performing public school system.

Please reconsider for the sake of all of our children, not just the ones that can afford private schools, but want the public to pay for it.

Kayla Parker
Self
Denton, TX

Funding for public education has taken an unprecedented cut in the past 5 years causing deficits across the state as public school districts attempt to retain teachers and staff by continuing standard of living-related raises each year and some districts are sacrificing much needed facility repairs to keep up with budgets. There is suppose to be a separation of church and state and that is painfully clear in the way that private religious based schools do not follow any of the same guidance and laws implemented within the public school system especially related to health and safety. To provide funding to these private entities would not only cross the line of the separation but would also set the precedent that a "state-funded" private school entity did not have to follow the same state laws that public schools do. Perhaps if the public school funding and the individual school districts management of those funds were investigated and scrutinized to resolve budget deficits, then the quality of public school education would increase and resolve the issue of families seeking private school educations. Additionally, the families that can afford private school do not need a "price break" by the government to afford tuition and by providing that funding, the government would effectively be aligning with or endorsing specific religions. I stand in opposition of this bill.

Kelly Thompson
Self
Buffalo Gap, TX

I oppose vouchers. People already have school choice. What you view as "good" for 100,000 children does not work for the whole. Fund our public schools, pay our teachers.

Lisa Sellers
Self
Lubbock, TX

I am in favor of school vouchers. I put my 5 children in public school which was a terrible mistake! I homeschooled them for a while and then put them in a private school where they were taught by teachers who really cared about their academics and their character. We are a middle class family and private school was a financial sacrifice. We have 9 grandchildren now and they are or will be in private schools and one is home schooled. Our public education needs an overhaul and our teachers need to be empowered to teach and model good citizenship. Thank you for considering my thoughts.

Tana DeGraffenreid
Self
Rankin, TX

I am a public school teacher. I do not believe tax dollars should be given to schools, even through a savings account, when those schools are not held to the same high standards of public education and the rigorous testing required in public schools.

Alicia Torres
Self
El Paso, TX

We need to fully fund public schools! As someone who went to catholic schools her whole life, I understand that public schools are an even playing field for all. They service all needs and don't pick and choose who they educate.

Miranda Diaz
Self
El Paso, TX

Vouchers will only HARM our future. Our learners need all the support possible!!!

Chris Marek
Self/Sales
Austin, TX

I strongly oppose HB 3 because I support all Texas students and teachers.

Adam Holmes
Self
Lubbock, TX

Against! No to HB 3!

Laura Fisk, Mrs
Self
Austin, TX

I am a Texas voter. The allotment for TX students in public education has not raised since 2019. The vast majority of children in the state of Texas, who are the FUTURE of the state of Texas and our nation, attend public school. There has not been an increase per student in over five years. That in itself should be enough to be concerned as a citizen of this state. You are choosing to abandon children and defund not only their schools but their future by diverting funds with this voucher program.

If you want to pay to go to a private school - that is that family's responsibility to fund it. It is NOT the state's. The state's responsibility is to the children who are part of our public education system. The education of the majority of children is the most important right for any student. Every student accepted. Don't you want to provide the best opportunity through creating the best schools? Use the money to bolster students and public schools! Fund and support public education, our Texas children need it!

Elaine Andersen
Self
Pflugerville, TX

Public education should be your priority!! Providing a quality education to everyone, I literally mean everyone.. every race, every gender, every economic status, EVERYONE! Stop putting money as the focus for whose pockets it fills. Do the right thing! How can you sleep at night?! Be a good person, not a bad one! (And I'm refraining from my word of choice). Sincerely, concerned mom for not just my kids, but all kids!!

Elissa Marek
Self/Attorney
Austin, TX

I strongly oppose HB 3 because I support and want what's best for all Texas public school students and teachers.

Leonce Hall III

Community Voices for Public Education (CVPE)

Houston, TX

"I am a public school educator and a voter. I am deeply concerned about how school vouchers will harm public schools, particularly in the most underserved areas of our state. I urge this body to vote no on vouchers in any form, including Education Savings Accounts (ESA) in HB 3.

Milton Krumm

Self

Burleson, TX

I am against using public tax dollars for private schools. This bill will only line the pockets of the rich and continue to underfund public education as the Texas government has done for many years. Instead of lining the pockets of the rich, fund public education adequately and stop all the mandates imposed on public schools.

Dionne Anglade

Self, teacher

Katy, TX

I strongly oppose use of public funds, tax dollars being diverted away from public schools to vouchers that will benefit only a small fraction of Texas kids. As a teacher and a mother I know how important a robust public school system is to our states' children and our society. Having a well educated population benefits everyone. We must do everything we can to fully fund our public schools who serve all children. We cannot create the kinds of educational environments that our students need to thrive if we continue to strip money away from public schools. Please vote no on school vouchers.

Cecilia Villasenor

Self

Houston, TX

I have a special needs son in Houston ISD public schools and it's not fair to lose a program that benefits him to better his future just so someone can get a voucher so they can enjoy a better school just because this affects a lot of people in many ways

Carolyn Meredith

Self

Buda, TX

No school voucher program. Fund our public schools. Education savings account do not improve students education or provide choice for students who cannot already afford private education. Please fund the public schools which offer educational opportunities to all students.

Tracy Mitchell

Self

Austin, TX

This is a terrible bill and will continue to funnel money and opportunity away from those who need it most and to those who have much already. So many children will be left behind. An educated populous benefits all of us. No one wants this terrible bill. Fund public education and give the teachers the resources they need to be successful.

Sarah Morales

Self- school counselor

Aubrey, TX

I am an educator, a school counselor, I am AGAINST this bill of vouchers! Although I live in an area with an abundance of private and charter schools, they do not accept the students from my school. My school is over 50% free and reduced lunch. We are the most racially diverse 6A high school between the metroplex and Arizona. Our families cannot pay the difference the voucher offers them. They struggle with truancy due to lack of transportation, and are fighting the prison system. This is not giving school choice- school choice already exists with the transfer systems in place in local school districts. This bill gives a discount to the wealthy and privileged who are accepted at the private and charter schools. I am against giving my money and funding to schools who do not have to follow the same level of educational standard that Texas public schools have to follow. I am against funding schools with my taxes who don't have to accept all students.

Brianna Bischoff

Self

Cypress, TX

By establishing vouchers kids will suffer. We are already tight on funds with the public school system and education is a right. Please reconsider vouchers and do not pass this bill.

Sonya Letson

self

Claude, TX

I oppose vouchers to send public money to private schools. The legislature has woefully underfunded our public schools for years. Do the right things and make public schools a priority!

Julianne Matula

Self, Leander ISD, TCTA

Leander, TX

Until you can guarantee vouchers does not affect funding for public schools, teachers pay, teachers retirement, access for ALL students to benefit from vouchers, and full and transparent accountability from any school receiving funding from tax payer funds then we should NOT pass the voucher bill yet. We should focus on public education reform and funding policy FIRST and since we already have school choice I would like a full investigation on why parents who chose to leave public education and then return to see if it was cost/access or other concerns that affects students before approving a voucher program that could fund another broken system.

M Diane Dwight

None- Concerned Taxpayer & citizen

Austin, TX

Against public money for private schools. Particularly opposed to public money to subsidize private schools for those who are already attending them or have no financial need. Support public schools. Compromise by giving vouchers to low income parents in low performing districts

Alexandra Bohigian

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose this bill and am not in favor of vouchers. Public tax dollars belong to our public schools.

Tracy Wuster, Dr.

self, Professor

Austin, TX

I am opposed to the creation of education savings account program, which will divert much needed money from public education and does not provide protections for students with disabilities. I support the bill raising student funding for public education, but the increase is not enough to make up for inflation. Texas public schools are the backbone of our economy and our communities. They need more support, and I am opposed to public money being given to private schools and other options which are not accountable to state rules and standards. Our public schools have to educate everyone, they are accountable to the public, and they are filled with great teachers and great kids who deserve our support--and your support.

Patsy Gillham

Self

Cypress, TX

Vouchers will not serve children with special needs. Public school decreasing funding for special need student will be daunting! Private schools do not demand teachers to be certified. Many private schools are religious based and already supported by the church members that the school is associated with. The citizens most effected by this bill need to be the decision makers not just a few positions trying to stay in good grace with Abbott. Put vouchers on a ballot and rule by the people for the people, not special interest groups that will profit from a voucher system. Most don't have school buses so transportation for low income families will be a burden they can not over come.

Diana Dull

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose this bill because I want what is best for all students.

Paulette Garza

Self

Round Rock, TX

Please do not vote for Texas vouchers.

Alan Hutcheson

Self

Austin, TX

I am against HB3

Liezl Kwak

Self

Austin, TX

I am against this bill as it is fundamentally against the Texas Constitution.

Beverly Perrin

Self

Allen, TX

I am STRONGLY OPPOSED to this bill that will take funding away needed from public schools and will only benefit a small fraction of Texans.

Kimberly Crumedy

Self

Houston, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. I am a product of both public and private institutions and believe that my public education aligned more to what America looks like. I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas Constitution.

Lisa Tehseldar

Self

Houston, TX

I am writing an opposition to HP. 3.

school vouchers will take money away from our public school system, and deprive our students with special needs of much needed funding. Private school should be funded by the families who choose to send their families there, not by the public. Our education system in Texas needs support for teachers, curriculum, and all students. Private schools who receive voucher money will have the opportunity to select the students that they want. They do not have to offer services for students with special needs, they can choose to accept students only that are high-performing, and will not offer transportation or other services that are typically provided by public schools. In addition, private schools do not have the same regulations for curriculum, teacher credentialing, and other programs that public schools must offer. Please do not support the voucher bill.

James Maldonado

self

San Antonio, TX

I am against school vouchers. My daughter has been doing well in her special needs class at her public school. She has been achieving her goals. Vouchers would take away resources from this.

Monica Arste, Mrs.

Self

Round Rock, TX

I do not support vouchers!

Jacquelyn Padgett

Self

Austin, TX

I am expressing my opposition to HB3. As a graduate of TX public schools, wife of a public school teacher, mom of a public school student and board member of a public school district foundation, I know firsthand how crucial state funding is for public education in Texas. HB3 would allow taxpayer dollars to be given to private and home schools that have no accountability measures in place to ensure the funds are being spent responsibly. Additionally, the voucher scam will be used as welfare for the rich instead of to support Texans who need access to quality education. I strongly oppose HB3 because I have seen the evidence that school vouchers in other states do not end up doing anything aside from robbing public schools. Please vote in line with what the majority of TEXANS - not just Republican primary voters - want: vote against HB3.

May Nguyen self, family physician
Houston, TX

We should not use public funds toward vouchers. Vouchers subsidize private school tuition for the wealthy; 70% of voucher recipients nationally were already in private schools. Additionally, vouchers come in way over budget. Arizona's voucher scheme costs 1400% higher than advocates promised. Furthermore, vouchers have caused the largest academic declines ever recorded, surpassing learning loss from Hurricane Katrina and the COVID-19 pandemic. Finally, many voucher-funded schools discriminate against LGBTQ+ students or those with special needs. They have the ability to pick their students and kick out students that don't meet their criteria.

Tira Faison
Self
Houston, TX

Texasans need to keep the freedom to homeschool with liberty, without governmental limitations. The state has a responsibility to better manage and support public schools, private schools and homeschooling should remain options outside of influence of state regulations.

Elizabeth Hunt
Self
Midlothian, TX

No vouchers.

Candice Sendejas
Self
Round Rock, TX

I stand with public education. This bill only helps private schools. The students that attend those school can afford to do so. Public schools, specifically public charter schools, have higher testing scores, public education, and severely under funded. Those vouchers help the rich get richer and keep the low income struggling. Reallocate those funds to help all students. Tax payers funds should not go to a minority group. Use for the majority. Use our funds to help our students. Our funds our community.

Sarah Gabriel
Self/teacher
Cypress, TX

I am a Texas teacher. I started my career during COVID-19 and have loved my job ever since. It is not just a career, it is a passion. It is a need and desire to help the upcoming generation gain knowledge, while still ensuring that they know they matter. The students who walk into my classroom are the future. Not just the future for Texas, but the future for the US. The future for generations to come. In my five years of teaching, I have seen teachers, quality teachers, burn out and leave education. We are losing teachers who would have helped shape these students to be kind, smart, educated human beings. I have seen money that is supposed to be for public education held hostage in the name of school choice. I have seen teachers lose time to grade, time to plan, and time to prepare their classrooms because of budget cuts. We are losing the very people who can make a difference. We are losing the people who can ensure that our students graduate as critical thinkers. We are losing those who matter and we are using school choice as a bargaining tool. How can we ensure that Texas has the highest quality public education in the nation if we are pushing out good teachers, taking money away from districts, and calling it school choice. By doing so, we are ensuring the our public education system will lose the resources needed to thrive. We are saying that public education doesn't matter. That students don't matter. That teachers don't matter. We are making it impossible for teachers to survive and we are putting their retirement, their funding, and their passion for teaching at risk. I chose Texas as my home. I chose to teach in Texas. I chose to raise a family in Texas. And I chose to help my fellow Texans in an way I can. Please don't take away funding from public schools. If you do, it is a decision that will impact teachers, students, and public education for many years to come. The generations that come after us are the ones who will pay the price.

Haim Kamman

Self

Houston, TX

Support the bill!

David Wells

self

Splendora, TX

I stand in opposition to this bill. This bill does not adequately fund traditional isd students. this bill prioritizes the few in lieu of a few. This bill is not conservative and creates a whole new arm of the government. As a life long Republican i will tell you that you're wrong on this bill and is dangerous. Our public schools are the backbone of this great state, treat them that way by adequately funding them, create in inflation adjustment mechanism, raise the ada by atleast $1500.00, create a discipline mechanism that allows schools to actually punish the disruptor who cilontinously disrupt the education environment of other students. Schools should be safe, yet they're underfunded. take care of the public ed students before we ever consider privatized education. Help schools aquire the tools needed to educate our students.

Chriss Simmons

Self educator

Odessa, TX

I am a special education teacher in a Title 1 school asking you to vote NO on HB 3. The loss of funds to public education will be disastrous for the students I serve. I am also a taxpayer who doesn't want my hard-earned money going to for-profit private schools. Do the right thing for our children and our state!

Melissa Waelchli

Self

Austin, TX

I strongly oppose education savings accounts. I understand the goal is to give parents a choice in schools but Texas parents already have that choice. As the parent of a child with special needs that receives special education services, I can tell you that we looked into private schools for our child. None were a good fit or willing to work with our child's behavioral challenges. Thankfully, our child qualified for, what was called at the time, public preschool for children with disabilities. Our child was three years old when she began her public school journey. It was challenging, yes, but she graduates this year and it is all due to the dedication of the staff, specialists, and teachers at her public schools.

I can only imagine how much more incredible that journey could have been in a fully funded public school. Please don't deny families like mine the quality education their children deserve. We all know the ESAs would take funding away from our public schools. I know you say the goal of these ESAs is to give parents like me a choice in where to send our child. It turns out, no private school would serve our child, so what good would an ESA do for us or other families with children like mine? I think we all know the answer.

Fully fund our public schools and you'll see there is no need for an ESA program. I've seen the incredible work our schools can do while they are critically underfunded; imagine the heroes you all could be if you fully funded them.

Jill Baggett

Self

Buda, TX

I reject this and am against school vouchers

Pam Ward
Self
Abilene, TX

Fund Public Schools properly and see what a difference that makes. Do not pass Greg Abbotts private school agenda, he is being paid to push. He has lost the support of this republican Grandmother because of this money grabbing agenda!!!! Texans support our Public Schools.

Patricia Kelly
Self, Texas film worker
Woodway, TX

I strongly urge you to oppose HB 3 and any efforts to implement a school voucher program in Texas.

Vouchers divert critical public funds away from our already underfunded public schools, weakening the education system that serves the vast majority of Texas students. Instead of increasing educational opportunities, vouchers primarily benefit private schools that are not held to the same accountability standards, do not guarantee student protections, and often exclude students with disabilities or special needs. Public tax dollars should be invested in strengthening our public schools-ensuring smaller class sizes, higher teacher salaries, and better resources for all students-rather than subsidizing private institutions with little oversight. Please prioritize the future of Texas children by rejecting HB 3 and keeping public funds in public schools.

Breann Sanders, Teacher
Self
Caddo Mills, TX

My vote is NO!

Denise Evans
Self - Retired PUBLIC SCHOOL teacher
Denton, TX

I come to you as a proud educator who taught in Denton ISD for 35 years, and a current professor of education at the University of North Texas. As I look into the eyes of future educators, it is heartbreaking to know that they are going into a profession that Governor Abbott, Dan Patrick, and other state leaders despise and refuse to support. The profession I love, and the state I have been proud to call home are letting us down. Since taking office, Governor Abbott has done nothing but vilify public schools and public school educators. He has held funding hostage, and refused to release funds unless vouchers passed. I ask you, WHY has he been so adamant about vouchers? The answer is simple. Follow the money. When multi-millionaires who are from outside the state of Texas make huge donations and just happen to be vocal supporters of vouchers it's easy to see where Abbott's loyalties lie. I beg you, as an educator, and as a grandmother to say no to HB 3. Please do not support what WILL be the end of public education in Texas. Support our schools, support our teachers, and, most of all, support our children. We're counting on you to take a stand. Say NO to vouchers and save our schools!

Kat Munro
my kids
Kyle, TX

all this bill will do is give wealthy family a gift and take from my title 1 school that is freaking amazing i would never take my girls from Kyle elementary and wallice middle school bothe title 1 but both amazing teachers you are trying to kill the schools who foster low income kids

Shelley McCarty, Mrs

Self

Aledo, TX

Vote NO to HB 3

It is not fiscally responsible

It grows government

It's a universal lottery

Erin Murdock, RDH

District 13

Fort Worth, TX

Don't you DARE VOTE FOR THIS SCAM! I swear in all that's holy if you take my kids' education and jeopardize it in ANY WAY, I will homeschool them with your vouchers and teach them to honor the Constitution and take you all down politically! You will not, with my tax dollars, ALLOW PUBLIC EDUCATION TO BE DESTROYED WITHOUT REPERCUSSIONS AND EXTREME DISSENT! Spend ONE MORE DIME OF MY MONEY WHILE DENYING MY VOICE AND MY KIDS' RIGHT TO FREE AND FAIR PUBLIC EDUCATION!

Holly Thoden

Self

Austin, TX

Absolutely Oppose! I have 3 kids who have benefited from Austin public schools!

Christine Martin

Self

Cypress, TX

This program takes vital dollars from public schools that support all families, including low and high income. The program sends money to wealthier families who choose to send their kids to private schools while pulling funding from public institutions. This was verified by our esteemed governor. This isn't a political movement. This is an active attempt to defund and destabilize public schools. This is wrong for the families you serve.

Monzerrat Gonzalez, Mrs.

Self

Dallas, TX

I urge you to vote against HB3 and stand in support of Texas public schools. School vouchers do not benefit public schools or the majority of Texas families.

Public schools are the backbone of their communities. They provide special education (SPED) services, a safe learning environment, and essential resources like free meals—all of which many families depend on.

Vouchers do not make private schools accessible for lower- and middle-class families. For example, Alcuin School in Dallas charges $41,200 per year for middle school and $34,300 for lower elementary. Even with a voucher, most families simply cannot afford these costs. Furthermore, private schools do not provide the same SPED services as public schools. At Waypoint Montessori in Colleyville, we paid an additional $600 per month for dyslexia services and $300 per month for speech therapy—on top of tuition. These essential services should not come at an extra cost to families.

Public schools save lives by ensuring that every child—regardless of income or ability—has access to quality education and critical support. I urge you to reject HB3 and protect the integrity of Texas public schools.

TIMOTHY PRINCE

Self / retired

Austin, TX

Please vote NO on HB 3. I have nothing against an individual member of the public choosing to send their child to a private school but I am against the state using taxpayer dollars from the general public at large to subsidize the private school costs of others. I believe tax dollars from the public at large should instead be devoted to funding public education for the benefit of the public at large.

Rosanne Hensley

Self

Manor, TX

Please vote against HB 3. It will ruin our entire education system in so many ways and essentially make it less affordable for normal people to get a good education. Why would we support a bill that gives the rich more advantages?

Erika Conway

Self

Austin, TX

I am opposed to HB 3 due to the concern for even less funding of our public schools. I am the mom of 2 public middle school kids.

KELLY ABBETT

Self

Austin, TX

I am not ok with my tax dollars supporting private schools at all. Private schools are a school of choice and are already funded by parents. Public schools are already in desperate need of more funding and taking tax dollars and giving them to private schools, which again, parents pay for their children to attend, is not ok. We shouldn't be making our public schools jump through hoops to get funding that is needed and deserved.

Christa Donalson

Self

Cypress, TX

This is a coupon for the wealthy who already attend private school. Parents already have a choice in schools. Fully fund public schools to make them better!

Kim Pernell

Self

Austin, TX

As a Texas taxpayer, I would like my tax dollars to go towards supporting a high quality public school education for my children and all other Texas children. I believe that the education savings account program will undercut these goals and I do not support it.

Deborah Branch, Ms.

self

Fort Worth, TX

Vouchers take money away from public schools. Please get behind public schools. Our children graduated in 2020 and 2021 from public school and overall had a great experience. Fort Worth ISD already provides parents a choice. Work with the system not against it. Vouchers may benefit those parents whose lives and means allow them to drive their kids around town, whereas there are many who cannot do this and would be left behind. No one has to be left behind if we support our public schools.

Kristi Peeples
Self- Texas Certified Educater
Lubbock, TX

I am a proud Republican Texas teacher and I do NOT support HB3. Texas parents already have school choice. Texas public schools do not teach woke topics, they do not try to help students become transgender and hide it from parents. TPS do not support boys in girls sports. We just don't have these problems in Texas schools. We aren't California. Abbott is gaslighting the public to make them believe TPS are all under-performing. This simply not true. Public education is for all students: rich, poor, learning disabled, physically disabled, high achieving, and of average intelligence. How are private schools going to handle all these types of students? They can't! Therefore, how is HB3 fair to all Texas families? It's not. This HB is blatant discrimination for any student covered under special education. Rural families don't have access to private schools since most if not all are in larger cities. In Lubbock, Texas, which has been coined one of the "Points of Light", has a handful of private schools with enrollment ranging 11 up to 750 students. The big 3 districts, LISD, LCISD and Frenship Isd, serves 44,450 students of varying levels of needs. Money sent to private schools is taking resources from MOST of the students in Texas. This bill is simply not fair. Are TPS perfect? No. This is a systemic problem starting in Austin by Abbott holding the money hostage that belonged to Texas schools. Texas does not spend $16,000 per student, it's $1,600. Texas needs to support Texas students and Texas teachers. Stop wasting time and money by bullying the people of Texas to bend to the will of Abbott.

To Governor Abbott, you need to fire your social media content creator. The pictures of you with heads of companies and private school board members with big smiles on your faces talking about school vouchers is not a good look. It looks more like sleazy backroom deals. Where are shots of you visiting schools or talking with teachers? And fyi no one is concerned about high school football. That comment was so condescending and completely out of touch.

Praying you all vote with your conscience and listen to the majority of your constituents. Do what is right for all Texas students. God Bless Texas!

Paula Gorham
Self
Corpus Christi, TX

What happens when the kid can't pass the private school and goes back to public school 6 weeks into the year?

Del Van Cox, Mr.
Self
Abilene, TX

Public dollars should NOT be used for private schools!!!

Jennifer McDonald
Self
Wichita Falls, TX

This will weaken public schools and goes against conservative Republican ideals. Public education should be a top priority of the state and this bill will harm it by sending funds that should be used for public education into private interests. This is a vendor bill benefiting the wealthy while taking from Texas' most important resource—its children.

Michael Wright
Daughter teacher
Mansfield, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the “bought”? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Cassi Sweeney
Self
Austin, TX

I oppose

Amanda Alexandrowicz
Self, VP Finance
Allen, TX

I am against HB 3 and request my representatives to vote against it.

Carolyn Darden
Self
Shallowater, TX

Politicians whose family members do not attend public schools should not be making decisions that will affect the thousands of children who do attend public schools in Texas. You do not fully understand the negative impact this will have on Texas. You are allowing big money to cloud your vision of what is right. I have been a public school teacher for 40+ years.

Karen Cash
Myself/public schools in Texas
Nacogdoches, TX

This is a disgrace and a slap in the face to all Tx teachers, students in public schools with no opportunity to attend a charter school! For the many years that accountability was demanded of public schools, now you are considering giving state monies to schools with zero accountability. And this will most likely benefit the pockets of someone’s friend, campaign donor, blah! I beg you to give the public schools the money instead of someone who has plenty already

Brooke Rodriguez
Self
Mckinney, TX

I am opposed to HB3. It removes funds from already underfunded schools and does not provide the public education for all students that is required by the Texas constitution.

Christina Taylor

Self

Pottsboro, TX

I am a public school teacher and urge members to oppose the establishment of the ESA. Public schools are an integral part of our communities. They are often one of the largest employers and provide multiple resources for students and families. As a special educator for the last 16 years, I have taught students with some of the highest needs. Students that have required tube feedings, support with toileting and diapering, and support for regulation of behaviors. These students would not be accepted by private schools due to their complex needs. They deserve to have access to all the same educational opportunities as other students. However, private schools would be able to deny these students admittance. This alone creates a disparity in access for these students. Many of these students rely on school transportation services for students receiving special education services. Therefore, programs outside the LEA would not be accessible due to a lack of transportation available. Furthermore, public schools must also provide a variety of services for special education students including speech therapy, physical therapy, and occupational therapy to name a few. Private schools are not required to offer these services. Due to the fact that the ESA cannot afford all students equal access to school choice options, it is necessary that members vote "no". Thank you.

Deborah Harvey

Self

Houston, TX

Do not pass vouchers. This will only help the rich. Many rural areas do not have access to private schools. Thus is a class division. Poor vs. Rich. Shame on any if you that try to vote this in. Vote NO.

Lindsay White

Self

College Station, TX

I will never support vouchers for Texas. I never have & never will. They are a scam & deprive our children of the education they deserve. My son is autistic & has needs that private schools won't enroll him for. Only public schools accommodate him & this scam looks to undermine these vulnerable children who deserve equal chances. I've been the parent calling every single daycare in town, desperate to find ONE who will accept an autistic child just because they got diagnosed at two years old. Regardless of needs, the diagnosis alone excluded my son from all but two in a town with dozens of facilities. Imagine how that schools could do the same. That's what these bills would do in the end, putting money and power into the schools that would deny enrollment to those they deem less worthy. It's sad that lawmakers continue to push this under the guise of a good thing, some "savings". Our children, our future, should matter more to this state. This farce is the closest I've come to wanting to leave despite being from an Old 300 family and knowing nothing but Texas for generations. I hope the vision for Texas can begin to right itself soon.

Megan Kite

self, librarian

Austin, TX

I do not support the voucher proposal. Strong public education is a cornerstone of any healthy democracy; we need to support it, not chip away at it. Our public schools face many challenges, most of which are due to inadequate funding. With fully restored funding, schools will be better equipped to meet these challenges and prepare our future Texans for success. Please vote to FULLY FUND OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS and VOTE NO on any voucher/ ESA bill. In particular, I would like to see the basic allotment tied to inflation indexes and become enrollment-based. Thank you.

Jane Williams, Retired after 25 years in public school

Self - retired

Denison, TX

Why are you trying to ruin education in Texas? My family has a total of 83 years in the public schools and I have 3 children , 1 a doctor, 2 a Licensed Professional Counselor, 1 a stay at home mom with a finance degree and they were all educated in public schools. Don't let a governor who is bought with big money bluff his way into ruining public schools. We will remember who voted for this bill when election time comes around again.

Christy Dorr

Self - Owner/Broker of Real Estate Agency

MINERAL WELLS, TX

I am against vouchers and this so-called savings account. It is completely non-sensical. My children went to private Christian school and I taught there prior to moving them to public school in their later years. I had a choice back then, and parents have a choice now. Private schools have the option to refuse certain children. How is that choice? Public schools are required to teach to standardized testing. How is that choice? This bill has nothing to do with choice. I don't know a single citizen in Texas (who isn't in politics or part of a PAC), who is for vouchers! Please vote "NO" to this bill!!

Bonnie Clements

self / retired

Houston, TX

VOUCHERS / EDUCATION SAVINGS ACCOUNT PROGRAMS HURT PUBLIC SCHOOLS! NO TO SCHOOL VOUCHERS!

Jenna Amadi

Self- home maker

Austin, TX

I strongly oppose HB3 because it diverts critical public funds away from Texas public schools and funnels them into unregulated private institutions. This bill threatens the quality and accessibility of public education, particularly in rural communities that rely on public schools.

Texas is already facing a teacher shortage crisis, and underfunding public schools will only make it worse. Teachers are leaving the profession due to low pay and lack of support, and instead of addressing this, HB3 worsens the situation by draining resources from schools that need them most.

Public education is also a key driver of Texas' economy. Major employers choose where to invest based on the availability of a well-educated workforce. Without strong public schools, Texas risks losing out on business investments and high-paying jobs. 77% of Texas voters support increased funding for public schools, and up to 94% favor investments in teacher salaries, tutoring, and mental health services. Lawmakers should listen to their constituents and prioritize funding for public education.

I urge you to reject HB3 and instead invest in strengthening public schools, supporting teachers, and ensuring Texas remains a competitive, thriving economy for future generations.

Stephanie Wright

Daughter / teacher

Mansfield, TX

My daughter works at a low income school in McKinney Texas . This bill would hurt her students as they do not have good home lives and this school is their safe place . To many Texas schools are closing in the lower income areas. All children deserve the right to learn and without funding we are telling these children they are not worth it. Thank you

Alison Baker

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose this bill and I'm against school vouchers.

Susan Deaton

Self

Burkburnett, TX

This bill is welfare for the wealthy.

Dora Camarillo

Self

Arlington, TX

A public hearing at the Texas Capitol is happening on the school voucher bill (HB 3). Use the link below to ensure your opposition is on record. Not a drill. Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a native Texan, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution.” I work in the public school system with special needs children. What we need is more funding and supports to meet fully meet their needs. These students are entitled to an amazing school experience as well!

Brandy Nagel

Self

Pflugerville, TX

As a parent of a student in public school and with close friend and family of several ISD teachers and former teacher that have taught in charter/ private schools I feel strongly that vouchers should not be granted. Placing more focus on upgrading the curriculum and facilities of current public schools is something to be reviewed and focused on.

Stephanie Ramirez, Mrs.

Self

Tomball, TX

I am a public school educator of 8 years. I am also a product of a private Christian school from Texas. I went to private school K-12. While the environment was a positive, encouraging place, especially for my faith, I was desperately underserved academically. I also know that back in 2012, the school cost around $12,000/year, above the current stated average of private schools and most likely more because of inflation. With the current set up of the bill, the economically disadvantaged children intended to reach would not be able to pay for the rest of the tuition, not to mention uniforms, club fees, transportation. This bill is set to fail. It will only end up serving as a coupon for the wealthy. Not all private schools are equal either. They are broken and biased with minimal resources to help kids with special needs and academic needs. While public schools have been taking teachers on emergency certifications or probationary contracts, they are supporting those teachers to get them the necessary training for their positions. Private schools don't have to require certified teachers and even if they are, many teachers are required to teach outside of their certification because of a lack of resources lessening the quality of education. Please do not pass this bill and instead pour this money back into the public schools to make them better. We want to help our kids who don't get to choose where they go to school because they can't afford these private schools bills beyond said voucher.

Shannon Moreno

Self, Church Children's Ministry Director

Pflugerville, TX

Hello, I am writing in strong opposition to HB 3 that would utilize tax dollars for private school education. This bill proposes an egregious misuse of tax dollars that will benefit those who already have school choice options and lower the quality of education to children of those who do not have such a choice. I have worked with children in many different capacities over the years, from providing individualized therapy to working on DFPS cases to my current role overseeing the children's ministry of a church. Private schools are wonderful options to those who can afford it, but they are not the answer to the masses. We do not need tax dollars going toward private education to provide a coupon to families who either can afford the tuition or who just narrowly cannot and instead homeschool or select a charter school that better aligns with the family's educational goals. This bill will make little to no impact to families who already have the resources available to have a choice. It will, however, cause great harm in sucking dollars out of public schools for families who do not have choices and for whom this bill will do nothing to make private education more attainable. For families where the parent(s) do not have transportation available to take the child to a school where transportation is not available, or who live in one of the many counties in Texas that doesn't have a single private school, or who's children require special education services that private schools do not need to provide, or who's children do not yet speak English well enough to benefit from a private school education, this bill does nothing but lower the quality of education at the public schools their child(ren) will attend. In addition, while it is commonly thought that a private education is superior to a public education, private schools are not monitored nearly as closely and may have grave shortcomings not uncovered by purely academic outcomes alone. How would an average private school manage children who come from homes with food insecurity? What's the protocol in place when a child reports sexual abuse in the home? How would a private school manage a child in the foster care system who repeatedly smears their feces in the school restroom due to untreated trauma from extreme abuse and neglect? They wouldn't. They would kick the children to the curb and they'd land at the public school that can no longer provide previously available services due to tax dollars going to private schools. Let's call this bill what it is: a coupon for the upper-middle class to siphon money from public schools into the hands of wealthy owners of private institutions. This will lead to more educational inequality, which down the road will lead to higher delinquency, teen pregnancies, drug use, and many other negative social outcomes. If you want what is truly the best for Texas, do not pass this bill. Thank you.

Rebecca Moore

Self

Cypress, TX

Help education!

Alicia Markum

Self

Round Rock, TX

I currently serve as the Vice-President of the Round Rock ISD Board of Trustees, but I am writing to you today as the parent of two students who receive special education services. I oppose HB 3. At a time when public school districts across the entire state are running deficit budgets because state funding has not kept pace with inflation, it is irresponsible to pour 7 billion dollars into private institutions rather than the public schools that serve 5.5 million Texas children. The state has a responsibility to provide a free, quality education to all students and to transparency with tax payer dollars. Private schools are not subject to the same accountability measures or financial transparency as public schools nor are they required to accept all students, provide transportation, or provide free and reduced lunch. The last three exceptions mentioned exclude the very populations you claim to target in HB 3. In regard to students who receive special education services, most private schools are not equipped to support students who need services. The very few private schools with a more resource-rich environment than public schools depend on a family's private insurance to provide a therapist and 1:1 support. Public schools offer these services for free and with appropriate funding could offer more people resources on campus to provide support and intervention. After listening to 13 hours of discussion and testimony today, it is apparent to me that proponents of HB 3 are struggling the most to defend this bill. The data on cost and student outcomes simply doesn't support it as an effective use of tax dollars to provide students with more opportunity. I ask you to please vote no to HB 3.

Gwyneth Hutton
Self
Dripping Spgs, TX

I support fully funding and supporting our public schools. No school vouchers!!

Cathy Ash
Self
Georgetown, TX

Please enable parents make the best choice for their own child. The number of hours they spend at school will definitely shape their world view. Let us choose what they will taught everyday. Truth matters now, for the next generation and action for eternity. Thank you for your consideration.

Bergan Casey
Self
Austin, TX

This is the wrong use of education savings accounts. They're called 529 and other accounts for college (or private high school) established by parents. They don't siphon tax dollars away from public schools like HB3 does. Bad bill..

Robert Stabe
Self
KATY, TX

I am opposed to passage of HB 3. First, I believe it violates our state constitution regarding state support of religious schools. I do not want my tax dollars going to support private schools. In spite of anything that Gov Abbott says, if passed, it will take money away from our public schools. How can you approve providing $10,000 per student for private schools but only provide $6,000 something for each public school. Every article I have read regarding private school vouchers in other states show that they do not work and become a financial drain on the state's budget.

Curtis Wiseman
self
Fort Worth, TX

DO NOT put forth or approve any method of implementing "school choice" or "school vouchers" or any other euphemism for funding private schools. Parents HAVE choice now. Any one can send their kid to private school if they so choose.

What we need instead is INCREASED funding for PUBLIC SCHOOLS, period! Anything else only weakens the level of education in Texas. I want to live in a state with a citizenry that knows how to think, read, do math, etc. The best way for that to happen is to educate ALL students well. That means we need to support PUBLIC education, not subsidize private schools.

Steven Brown
Self
Austin, TX

I have been a special education teacher in Texas since 1991. There is so much we can do to lift up our next generation and our most vulnerable. Vouchers, which have proven ineffective at fixing the system's ills, have proven ineffective elsewhere. Please vote no.

Mike Carroll
Self
Graham, TX

I am absolutely against HB3 or any other bill that allows public money to go to private schools that do not have to follow EVERY SINGLE REQUIREMENT that public schools do. I keep hearing about competition but a competition is only fair if both sides play by the same rules. Texas public school funding has not changed in six years yet inflation has. Also the concept of a student being worth north of $10K if they go to a private school but only $6,300 if they are a public school student is a slap in the face. The Governor has spent the last four years crapping on public education and visiting nothing but private schools and it should be a slap in the face to every public school educator and friend of public schools in the state. Parents already have a choice where their child can be educated so the concept of "parental choice" is laughable. A parent can send their child to their public school that they are zoned for because of where they live, they can home school their child, or they can pay to send their child to a private school. Certain exceptions will allow the child to go to a school that they are not zoned for. Under no circumstances should by tax dollars go to a private school that doesn't have any of the same requirements as a public school. This is like me saying "There is a public golf course in my town but it doesn't meet my needs so I need more of my tax dollars than what I paid in to go to my country club membership."

I can count on one hand the number of Democrats that I have voted for in my lifetime so do not think that is why I am against this bill. All I hear from the Republicans in Austin is that property tax is theft and government is too big and bloated. BUT these same Republicans are in favor of taking my tax dollars and creating a new government entitlement to give it to people who for the most part do not need it. In my opinion the supporters of this bill have been either bullied by the Governor or bought and paid for by the billionaires pushing this or both.

Amanda Luddy
Self
Austin, TX

I am writing against HB 3. Private schools do not have accountability standards and do not admit all who apply therefore public tax dollars should not be spent on this tuition. The tax dollars should go to the underfunded public school systems and these teachers should get raises. It's embarrassing how little these professionals (many who hold a Master's degree) get paid. There is bipartisan opposition against this bill and the majority of Texans don't agree with it.

Emerald Amen
My family!
Buda, TX

I am a Texas Naive and I have 4 school aged children. I do not support nor do we want Vouchers! We even had one of our daughters attend private school for 5 years and we still do not support vouchers! Texas spoke when we voted, please listen to US! We do not want politicians using children's future to fill up their pockets while Texas children suffer!

Stephen Hodges
Self
Cypress, TX

I do not support this bill in any form. The state of Texas has a surplus of funds that is being withheld from public schools that desperately need it. People are free to choose private schools but the public tax dollars should NOT be funding ANY private schools. The bill as written will divert tax dollars to people who can already afford private schools. It does nothing to help struggling school districts or the children from low-income households. It just further undermines public education in favor of wealthy Texans. This is not good for Texas or for Texans!

Mary Hanks
self
LA PORTE, TX

Having attended Catholic schools for twelve years and then working in public schools for twenty-five, I can attest to the undeniable difference when comparing the two. My parents worked hard to provide their five children with twelve years of Catholic education. They worked hard because it was important to them. They were also required to volunteer their services on a weekly basis. They did this all the while paying their taxes to public education. School education is a choice just as college and higher education is a choice. When the choice to attend is made, the responsibility for payment falls on the one receiving service. When you take money from public education you are taking money from those in need to give to the rich. You have already recaptured money that wasn't yours to take. This has crippled many districts within the state. You have withheld funding in order to sell your voucher scheme all the while requiring more and more from your districts. Your plan has been precise and very unfair. The very people you claim to serve are the ones you harm. Inner city kids will not be attending your elite private schools because they will not be able to afford them. All you are doing is giving a $10,000 discount to the wealthy, like yourselves who already send their kids. You pile more and more responsibilities on educators all while denying them financial assistance. The STARR test does nothing more than line the pockets of companies producing the test and its study materials. I doubt anyone in the state capitol could pass this test. And yet, private schools or home schools are not held to the same standards as your public schools. We have seen this voucher system fail in other states and yet you are willing to risk the only education most children in this state will receive. I hope you wake up and realize that public education needs the money it is due to thrive and leave the wealthy to pay their own way.

Lisa Mason
Self
Mckinney, TX

Want to see price reduction

Carlos Castano, Mr.
Self
Austin, TX

I oppose this bill and do NOT support school vouchers!

Julie Dye
Self
Georgetown, TX

I send my daughter to private school. But I don't want to do that to take money away from public schools. I am against HB 3.

Caden Teliha
Self
San Antonio, TX

I disagree with the HB 3 and the establishment of an education savings account program.

Carrie Schaff, Dr
Self
Houston, TX

Rep Buckley seems to be unaware of the long history of advocacy to get IDEA passed. I would strongly recommend that those who support this bill do some work and then reframe the thought that a single parent on their own would be able to advocate for the same level of services for their child. This bill would take any supports away from families who desperately need these services no matter what their socioeconomic status.

Hannah Battaglia
Self - Tax Preparer
Buda, TX

I absolutely oppose school vouchers.

Lori Truitt
Self
Lubbock, TX

I am a local attorney, and I in no way support this Bill. This would be disastrous for our public school system and our families, particularly our rural families. Please reject this greedy and ill-conceived measure. Please take note of what has happened in other states who passed similar measures. It will not be any more successful here. I do not support this bill.

Sarah Guyote
Self - Homeschooling educator
Hurst, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a native Texan, 5th generation, whose entire family are products of the public education system, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Constitution

Janet Counts, Teacher- Retired
Self
Glenn Heights, TX

URGENT! ACT NOW THEN SHARE THIS POST!

Easy way to give comments without making a trip to Austin. This takes 2 minutes!!

Voucher bill being heard now!

Click and send:

<https://comments.house.texas.gov/home?c=c400>

Example you can copy and paste below!

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Andrea Nesbit
Self
Fort Worth, TX

I speak for myself, my husband and my 2 elementary aged children that we strongly oppose HB 3. This bill will NOT benefit our communities, our children or our public schools and teachers. It is obvious that the governor and proponents of school vouchers are gaslighting Texans and we don't want it! We have amazing teachers and wonderful school staff members, we have lovely and diverse classrooms where children of all backgrounds thrive. We could be doing better by supporting our public schools and teachers! That is where we want the money to go to. Fund our schools. Give our teachers raises. Support ALL Texan children who attend public schools. Parents already have a choice to send their child to private school. That's great if it works for them, but that should be kept separate from Texas Public Schools.

Moving forward with this bill would be purposefully and willingly lowering education in our state for the majority of our children. It will remove wonderful educators from our schools. Our children will suffer the consequences of your actions. Our communities by and large are against this. Put this issue to a public vote and let the people tell you what they really think.

Tiffany Fenton
Self
Buda, TX

My name is Tiffany Fenton and I am a STEM teacher in Hays CISD. I am extremely concerned about any version of a voucher program, and I am asking you to oppose HB3 or any other voucher legislation. Teachers and other employees are in desperate need of improved compensation, and low salaries are contributing to the shortage of qualified, certified teachers, Available funding should be directed into the classroom.

Kristin Wright
Self / Teacher Librarian
Nacogdoches, TX

As a teacher, a parent, and a taxpayer, I am vehemently opposed to any school voucher scheme. I do not want my tax dollars being used as welfare for the wealthy, as that is who will benefit most from vouchers. If you're truly worried about the quality of education poor and middle class children are receiving in Texas, then properly fund our public schools, recruit and retain quality teachers by compensating them well, and reduce the ridiculous amount of testing that steals WEEKS of instructional time every year.

Jessica Briggeman
Self
FT WORTH, TX

Please do not pass this! Unless you are prepared to provide public school students with $10,000 each, why should you only be giving it to kids to go to private schools? It doesn't make sense! Please do not abandon the majority of kids in our state!

Andrea Vega

Self

Austin, TX

As a parent with a student in public school receiving services for special education and another student receiving accommodations under 504, the voucher program would significantly hurt my children's education. I am a product of private and public school and have considered private school for my children. Unfortunately, there are no oversight of these schools or transparency of their services for my children. The public school has their meetings public, their meeting are recorded for posterity, etc. but the private school claimed they would not accept my child because of their disability and could not allow me to even observe a class. I am a former educator, I have a master's in special education and as a parent it concerns me when a school or any school has no transparency of how they accept student candidates or a board to determine what will be taught for that grade level. Because I attended private school I have had a look from the inside and there are positives but there are negatives. I watched students who didn't sing the national anthem loud enough get their hands swatted by a ruler, I saw students placed in corners for days on end because of typical class room disturbances. I spent my days in anxiety due to being out of line. I'm afraid that this type of teaching will become the norm as there is no oversight of requirements especially as the federal department of education has been dismantled. I highly doubt Texas will oversee the civil rights of children. Until parents have full transparency and oversight over what is taught in private schools, I will be against private school vouchers. As a parent I want a system where I have some governance over what a private school teaches. This bill does not provide me the ability to sue a private school for not accepting my child due to their disability, lack of privacy, or inability to provide services for my children. As a former educator, this bill doesn't require private schools provide FAPE as legislated by the Supreme Court. I am a moderate when I vote in Texas and always have been. However, education is important to me and my family. I will reconsider my voting in the future for all positions. Thank you.

Ronica Hutson

Myself

Flower Mound, TX

A little personal story, take from it what you will. I started a very small (less than $500) Roth IRA a year ago tomorrow to help with my retirement funds post divorce. I've watched it climb fairly steady the last year. Not huge, but still rising. As of right now, all the gains I made are GONE, and I am even lower than what I put in. I'd love to add money to it right now to take advantage of the low market, but my regular bills are rising fast and thanks to the Texas governor and his billionaire friends, there's still no guarantee I'll get a "raise" next year. I quote it because my "raise" can't keep up with inflation. If we don't get a "raise" next year, I'll probably be bringing home less than I do now, just like I'm bringing home $100 less a month this year than I did last thanks to rising insurance cost. And hear me say I do NOT fault our district—they are doing literally everything they can. It's the fault of the politicians (both state and federal) lining their own pockets and looking out for themselves and their friends instead of the constituents. Anger doesn't start to describe what I'm feeling right now...

JANIS REINKEN, MS.

SELF/ATTORNEY

Austin, TX

I oppose HB3/SB2. In past Sessions, a large Fiscal Note would kill a Bill. This one ought to sink HB3/SB2. The March 11, 2025 House FN shows ($1,010,815,140) for this biennium, at <https://www.legis.texas.gov/tlodocs/89R/fiscalnotes/pdf/HB00003I.pdf#navpanes=0> “Estimated Two-year Net Impact to General Revenue Related Funds for HB3, As Introduced: a negative impact of ($1,010,815,140) through the biennium ending August 31, 2027.” The five-year All Funds Impact would be “2030 GR Cost, ($4,896,756,092): Probable Savings from Foundation School Fund, $805,532,528; Additional State FTE’s, 46.0...” The introduced versions of the General Appropriations Bills include $1.0 billion in funding for an ESA program contingent upon enacting legislation.... “TEA assumes that the number of students who would be leaving public schools or home schooling to enroll in private school to participate in the ESA program would be limited by the capacity within private schools. The agency ... analysis assumes 24,500 students would leave public schools for private schools in fiscal year 2027, increasing to 98,000 in fiscal year 2030, and that 10,500 home school students would enroll in private school in fiscal year 2027, increasing to 42,000 by fiscal year 2030...” “Local Government Impact: This analysis assumes LEAS [Local Education Agencies] may experience a decrease in FSP [Foundation School Program] funding as a result of the bill....

I agree with the statement by Senator Robert Nichols on SB 2: Wed., Feb. 5, 2025 SENATE JOURNAL pp. 195 – 198.

<https://journals.senate.texas.gov/sjml/89r/pdf/89RSJ02-05-F.PDF#page=7> Please consider this quote: “For the past decade, I have seen various versions of a proposal to use state tax dollars for private schooling. There have been different names with different components, but ultimately, they each had one common element – public dollars for private education. While the latest proposal for Education Savings Accounts has made an effort to be more inclusive, referring to it as ‘universal’ and making it applicable to a larger group financially, it falls short of that goal and is still taxpayer funds for private education. This bill creates the illusion of choice but does nothing to guarantee that a parent's choice for their child will be fulfilled. It offers a chance, not a choice.

Ultimately, the true decision-maker in this system is not the parent, but the private school. If your child has discipline issues or needs accommodations for a learning disability, the school will have the choice to remove them. If you can't afford to transport your child to school, you don't have the choice to send them to private school. If the tuition is more than $10,000, parents would have to come up with the remaining balance.... Over 62% of children currently in public schools come from socioeconomically disadvantaged families and many live paycheck to paycheck. They don't have an extra $9,000 in their household budget. That's not really a choice.” Vote NO!

Akiva Diamond, Dr.

Self, oncologist

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

I have 6 boys - 5 are diagnosed with ADHD, and several with dyslexia and dysgraphia. We have significant costs associated with making sure they are able to learn within a regular classroom. I moved to Houston to work as an oncologist from Cleveland Ohio. Cleveland had educational choice vouchers enacted a few years before we left. I had no appreciated the significance of the extra services my children received due to the benefits of this vouchers.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Christine Fondren, Mrs

Self

The Woodlands, TX

I homeschool and I am grateful for the financial opportunity. The program by HB3 (there is also an SB2) would give $2,000 for homeschool families who apply and meet criteria. However the biggest problem with these bills is that the way they're written, it leaves the door open for future auditing and oversight of homeschoolers, which most homeschoolers want to avoid at all costs. Please vote against this.

Deborah Reveles

Self/retired

Frisco, TX

Do not use public school funds to finance private education. Vote against HB 3.

Debbie Van Aken

All Students

Pearland, TX

I strongly oppose voucher programs because they divert much-needed funds away from our already underfunded public schools. Public schools serve all students, yet they are expected to do more with less while private and charter schools operate with fewer accountability measures.

Meanwhile, Texas spends millions on Pearson standardized testing that isn't even academically appropriate for all learners. A one-size-fits-all approach does not work for students, yet we continue to waste taxpayer dollars on flawed assessments instead of investing in meaningful educational resources.

Our main concerns should be:

- ? Meeting the needs of all students through equitable resources and support.
- ? Appropriate funding to ensure schools have what they need to help students succeed.
- ? Raising teacher pay to attract and retain quality educators.
- ? Improving teacher retirement benefits so educators can retire with dignity after dedicating their lives to our children.

Raise Your Hand Texas states it best: "When funded properly, our public schools exceed expectations!" Texas students thrive when we invest in our public education system, ensuring they are prepared for post-secondary success. Instead of funneling taxpayer dollars into private institutions that are not held to the same standards, we should focus on strengthening our public schools for all students.

#FundPublicSchools #NoVouchers #StrongPublicSchools #PayTeachersMore #SupportOurEducators

jacqueline vaughan, Dr

Self

Bedford, TX

"Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a Texan, whose entire family has been a part of private and public education system, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and the future of our once great state

Stephanie Heimbuch

Self

Ovilla, TX

As a tax payer and 30 year resident of Texas, I am vehemently against HB3 and the use of public funds to pay for private school education of any sort. This will directly affect funding for public education in Texas as it has in most of the other states that have ESAs or vouchers. Public Education in Texas is 44th in the nation for funding and grossly underpaid teachers. Without additional funding for Special Education and Teacher pay, specifically through the increase in the basic allotment, then Texas will continue to become one of the worst funded public education entities in the United States.

This bill talks about how students with Special needs will be first in line. However there are only about 70 private schools in the state that will take students with medium to major special needs. Therefore this funding is not for those students. In addition, there is nothing in this bill to be a stop on these funds being used at private schools that promote religious beliefs. How does the state plan to ensure our public tax dollars are not going to terrorist groups hidden under the guise of "religion"? Which brings up the point that yet another agency will need to be created to have governmental oversight on these funds. Another agency means more tax dollars spent on giving people money to take their children away from public education instead of funding public education and making changes to laws such as Chapter 37. More funding to public education means better teacher pay and more return of our best educators that have left to go work for more money doing something outside of education. More funding to public education means smaller staff to student ratios, much like those in private schools, and in turn the ability to close gaps in student learning. More public education funding means more paraprofessionals to be able to support our students with special needs in classroom settings that will continue to increase their success rate instead of hinder it.

There is so much government oversight in public education right now that it takes so much of a districts time to complete all the compliance reports that are expected in so many areas. Special Education, Career and Technology Education, Gifted and Talented, CCMR, Bilingual Education, just to name a few all have compliance reports that must be submitted multiple times per year which takes extreme amount of hours to complete. Don't want so many people at the administration level? Who's going to submit all the reports you require? Teachers? In addition to the 8 hours per day they spend either teaching and planning? In addition to grading and parent conferences? In addition to the extra time spent tutoring and attempting to close gaps in their overcrowded classrooms?

I vehemently disagree with HB3 and propose you work to make public education better for ALL students in Texas, not just the few that can afford the private school costs that will most certainly inflate if this bill passes.

Robin Sedlacek

Self

Allen, TX

Make public schools great again. Fund them appropriately. Do not give into special interest.

Kristy Lines

self -- parent of student and attorney

Austin, TX

I strongly oppose HB 3, which creates additional funding problems for our public schools. Although vouchers will not cover alternatives to public schools entirely and such alternatives are not available in all areas, those who do leave the public system will take this subsidized tax money with them-- at the further expense of our drastically underfunded public schools. These other schools are not required to accept any particular student, are not required to accommodate special needs, and there is no provision for transportation. All of these factors make "school choice" a misleading term. This bill would only help those who already have means, leaving behind others in a system that will be further diminished.

Grace Holland

Self

Austin, TX

Tax payer money should not be going to private schools with no accountability. Why not invest properly in our public schools and make the great? Rural communities don't have access to private schools. In fact, even with this bill, private schools will still not be accessible for most families. This is incredible irresponsible! Please do not do this!

Dayna England

Self

Austin, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

- 1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.
 - 2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.
 - 3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.
 - 4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot. This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.
- Thank you

Jeannie Small

Self

Spicewood, TX

You can write this: I oppose House Bill 3 and its proposal to implement school vouchers in Texas. Public education is the foundation of a strong society, and it must remain fully funded and accessible to all children. Instead of diverting resources away from public schools, we should be working to strengthen and improve the system we already have. We need to ensure that every child in Texas has access to the resources, support, and opportunities they need to succeed, no matter their background.

Meredith Wooderson

Self, former Texas public school teacher

Austin, TX

Please, do not take more money away from our public schools. We moved home to Texas from out of state so our children could have a better education. In the last 9 years, we have watched public school funding become less and less reliable. After 10 years as a public educator myself, I could no longer handle the workload on such meager pay- my classroom teacher job became more challenging every year without the support of behavior specialists and enough special education teachers to support our student population. I spent so much money from my paycheck to buy supplies and support my students. I fear that many of our best educators have been and will continue leaving the field after lawmakers further restrict the funding our schools need. It is shameful that the GOP continues to push PUBLIC TAX DOLLARS for private schools. This should be unlawful. Please do not allow this voucher program to pass. FUND PUBLIC SCHOOLS. FUND OUR FUTURE.

Sarah Reyes

Self- future teacher

Red Oak, TX

Vouchers have been proven to not work. Most of Texas is against it. States with the voucher system have proven it doesn't work. And while I'm commenting, the US department of Education doesn't need to be dismantled

Makala Pollard

Self

Fort Worth, TX

No to vouchers

Martina Meritz
Self
San Antonio, TX

Please properly fund public education for our children. Public education has been essential for my children and my children have thrived despite constant obstacles and need for resources and money that should be given and allocated to our public schools. Those that choose private schools should continue to choose private schools, but not at the deficit of our public schools.

Tom Kennedy
Self teacher/coach
Cypress, TX

I am opposed to any voucher or ESA program for private, chart, or homeschooling - particularly without testing oversight that public schools are forced to use!

End the voucher push and fully fund public schools!

Katrina Morris
Self, attorney
Austin, TX

I am against HB3. I support fully and appropriately funding public schools in Texas as required by the Texas Constitution. Vouchers are absolute nonsense that will maybe help a handful of kids while definitely harming ALL the rest. We're trying to have a society here, and this bill does nothing to help that.

Rebecca Marrara
Self
Round Rock, TX

Please vote no on HB3 and fund our public schools.

Lindsey Lopez
Self -public Education - School Counselor
San Antonio, TX

As a 17-year veteran public school educator, I have seen the positive impact that public schools have on the lives of our students, and the positive impacts of public schools in their communities. Neighborhood schools are essential because they are open to everyone regardless of socio-economic status, disability, or familial support system. I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. This program will siphon off funds from already underfunded schools Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas.

Mary White, Mrs
Self Bellville, TX
No vouchers

Susan Young
Self - Teacher/Librarian
Austin, TX

I oppose HB 3. It will result in a taxpayer subsidy mainly to people who already have their kids in private schools. 150 counties in Texas have no alternative options to public schools. Those counties will get less funding under the voucher system. Charter and public schools don't have to follow the same regulations and standards that public schools do: accommodating students with special needs, evaluations via standardized testing, state mandated security upgrades to campuses etc. and some of our taxpayer dollars will go to third party middlemen like ClassWallet. States that have adopted wide use of vouchers have seen students educational outcomes worsen. Texas cannot afford to make this big mistake.

Jessica Reinartz
Self
The Colony, TX

I am writing to you as a concerned constituent to urgently request that you go on public record today opposing the school voucher bill currently under committee review.

School vouchers threaten to divert essential funding away from our public schools, undermining the quality of education available to the majority of Texas students. As someone who deeply values public education and its role in strengthening our communities, I believe this bill would be detrimental to students, educators, and families across our state.

Your voice matters, especially in standing up for the integrity of our public education system. Please ensure your opposition is entered into the public record and encourage others to do the same. The more voices speaking up from across Texas, the stronger the message will be.

Thank you for your service and for representing the best interests of our community.

Clover Yordanova
Self
Austin, TX

Texas has got to be one of the best states for public school, why throw it all away for a bill that only 100,000 students can use. Please don't make Texas an embarrassment

Amanda Jasso
Self
Elgin, TX

I am writing against HB 3, which leaves our children in public schools with even less resources than they currently have. I agree that parents should have choices for their children and their schooling, but this bill doesn't necessarily support that bc the private school makes the ultimate decision about who they accept, including who they decide is a "cultural fit." Our public schools need fixing, not more disinvestment. As Texans, we need to care about ALL of our children, not just children with parents that have means. Please take lessons learned from other states that have tried to implement something similar.
Thank you for your consideration.

Victoria Johnson

Self

Burleson, TX

I am a product of our public school system, as well as a public university in Texas. I have two young children attending the same public school district I grew up in. We have one small private school in our community that only goes through 5th grade. Even if this school was a possibility for my talented and gifted daughter, it would not be possible for my 2nd grade son to attend with his specified education plan established in conjunction with his teacher, principal and psychologist. The class sizes are at capacity and while our family may have the funding to attend this school, we would much rather continuing saving for college, technical and or job training to make them contributing citizens as adults. Our school district is efficient and effective with its resources, enable students to have many options within the district with schools of choice. Students from elementary through high school can have focus, and find what drives them. My kids are challenged in healthy and supportive environment, I'm so grateful for the wonderful teachers and staff who pour into our children. I can only imagine what our district could accomplish with more funding dedicated to them vs. less. We are setting students up for careers in fields that can grow, excel and pay well. We don't need arbitrary testing to determine what these kids have learned or what they'll be, when you invest in our kids you invest in our economic and community growth. I advise you all to reconsider the notion of investing in a select few students and invest in the system that educates over 90% of our kids. When we educate, we open opportunities for us all to do well.

Ruth Pierce

Self/Small Business Owner/Parent of Young Adult with Disabilities

Cypress, TX

Vouchers will do nothing more than subsidize wealthy families who can already afford private schools. Private school tuition is at minimum $25,000. If you give a voucher to a wealthy family, you just gave them a $10,000 discount and they will have no problem paying the extra $15,000. Providing vouchers to low income families to give them the choice to go to a better school is meaningless because they cannot afford the remaining $15,000 plus to cover the rest of the tuition. Schools for special needs children are even more expensive, some costing upwards of $40,000 a year. In addition, many schools for special needs children are very restrictive, only accepting those with sufficient speech skills, or high enough IQ, or no behavior problems, or fully toilet trained, etc. They will only accept the "disabled children" who meet their specific criteria for "disabled" at their school. Families of special needs children have so many other costs that they many of them struggle financially. The co-pays and co-insurance that they have to pay for all of the therapies and other medical needs for their children can be financially devastating. They don't have the money to pay for the difference in tuition between what the voucher would cover and the full tuition. We need to have schools that will accept all children with disabilities and that are required to provide a free and appropriate public education in the least restrictive environment. Those are our public schools. We need to invest the money that is proposed for vouchers into making our public schools better, all of them, so that all children, regardless of their family income and regardless of their ability or disability, receive a quality education in Texas. Vouchers will not do that. We need to support our teachers and give them the pay that they deserve. We need to support all of our school districts, throughout the state, so that they can all serve their students equally. The voucher bill will only make our current education system worse. For the sake of all Texas students, both able and disabled, please vote against this voucher bill and put those funds into our public education system.

Brooklyn Wolfe

Self

Cypress, TX

I'm a 10 grade student in a public high school, and I oppose HB 3.

My public school offers opportunities that allow me to pursue my dreams, take classes through the local community college, participate in extra curriculum activities that aren't offered at my nearby private schools, and be surrounded by people of varying backgrounds and beliefs. It is important to learn from those different than others, to celebrate those differences, and learn to mutually respect those differences. No one has bothered to ask the students of public schools why we CHOOSE public schools. Does our opinion not matter? We choose these schools to explore multiple opportunities, freedom of expression in our clothing and religious choices, and the extra curriculums offered.

What we don't choose is to have schools that are too hot in the summer and too cold in the winter due to budget cuts because of the lack of funding.

What we don't choose is a lack of teachers because they aren't paid fairly.

What we don't choose is multiple days of pointless testing that doesn't tell you anything about me, my grades, or my intelligence.

What we don't choose is to be ignored.

If you really want to know what it's like in a public school, come talk to us. I promise we will tell you, but don't make that choice for us.

Say no to HB 3.

Mikki Bevers

Self- teacher

Shallowater, TX

I am a Texas teacher, and HB3 will be detrimental to our already underfunded public schools! So many children rely on public schools to not only receive an education but also a warm meal. Public schools are what give all children a chance for a quality education that work hard to leave no child behind. These vouchers have already proven to not benefit anyone in other states that have passed them. Please vote no to HB3!

Summer Fritsche

Self

Houston, TX

I have homeschooled, done public school, and now do a private / homeschool hybrid. I oppose this bill. It steals funds from public schools, creating an even larger disparity in education, and allows more government overreach into homeschool and private education. Texans love our freedom, and this is the best state for parents to truly have a right to choose. Do not bribe us to allow more government into private education. If we wanted government standards, we'd be public schooling.

Ayala Tarshish

Self

Houston, TX

This bill is so important, being in a position of having to fund our children's education takes a toll on our school community, as we are committed to providing our children with strong academics in a healthy, nurturing and value driven environment. It is time!

Annaliese Mitchell

Self

Mckinney, TX

Vote No on HB 3. This harms teachers, this harms K-12 students. Private schools will just raise tuition. The kids of our state deserve more funding. Not rich kids who already go to public schools.

Cathy Boucher

Self

Cypress, TX

As a former educator in Cy Fair ISD, I'm appalled at the lack of reasonable funding for public education while pushing the idea of vouchers. I am strongly against school vouchers and hope our state representatives go back to funding public education to the level it should be for in our great state.

Jennifer Timmermans

self

Austin, TX

I understand this bill is being introduced as a law to expand school choice options for parents. Aiming "to provide families with the flexibility to direct their child's education by allocating state funds toward private schools, homeschooling or other educational services." It sounds like it might be wonderful, but if this bill takes funding away from public schools, you are hurting the families that cannot afford to make choices to attend schools other than public schools. Public schools should not have any funding taken away. They need those funds. We need more funding for public schools. Funding should be available to help aide teachers & students. Create smaller classes sizes; stop having 20+ students in a class. Have teacher aides floating between classes...I wish the people coming up with the bills have experience being in a classroom...someone with teaching experience in lower economic schools so you would understand what is truly needed. We should support our public schools. Not everyone really has a "choice" of which school they would like. Teachers need better salaries and support. Start by strengthening the public schools we do have! Stop shutting down public schools. Sigh

Mark Charlesworth

Self

Briarclif, TX

You can write this: I oppose House Bill 3 and its proposal to implement school vouchers in Texas. Public education is the foundation of a strong society, and it must remain fully funded and accessible to all children. Instead of diverting resources away from public schools, we should be working to strengthen and improve the system we already have. We need to ensure that every child in Texas has access to the resources, support, and opportunities they need to succeed, no matter their background.

Kasey Tam

Self

Amarillo, TX

As a resident in the Texas panhandle, we have many rural friends instrumental to our community/economy that will suffer greatly from the voucher program. I'm shocked that Texas politicians are continuing this voucher campaign regardless of constituent opposition. When Texans feel the pain this program will cause their community, the non-voting residents typically step up next election cycle. Praying our government listens to its constituent opposition on this bill.

Erin Brown

Self

Lakeway, TX

I greatly oppose "school choice" and believe we should fully fund public schools. Thank you.

Camille Adkisson

Self teacher

Pearland, TX

Say no to vouchers!! Texas public schools need to be fully funded.

Patricia Garris

Self

Spring, TX

I strongly oppose vouchers for public education for these reasons: 1) It is state welfare for the rich, 2) those who choose to home school should bear the cost of that decision, as the rich, for their private school decisions 3) it takes money away from public schools which are the backbone of creativity and entrepreneurship that drives the economy and the reputation of Texas excellence, 4) schools can decide who they will and won't accept, which is in direct violation of the use of public funds, 5) it discriminates against poor families, especially in rural Texas because of the boom threshold, 6) a family making over $150,000 should not be subsidized when the median income is less than $80K, 7) with a private school we would be paying for religious training which should not be paid for by the state. School choice is about families making the choice, not the government, with their money, not the public's. With money being taken away from public schools, our taxes would have to be raised to make up for that shortfall, that's double taxation and illegal. Lastly, rural areas will suffer tremendously under this bill leaving their schools even more financially challenged and leaving even more Texans unprepared for a fast-paced, changing job market and society. This bill should not be passed and would serve to undermine the commitment to equal education for all Texans and create double taxation of Texans to support the rich. School choice should be about families not the government. With the current budget surplus our schools need to see increased funding, especially since there has been no change in funding since 2019. We must invest in all Texas children not provide welfare for the rich.

Lisa Day

Seld

Austin, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a native Texan, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution.

Kristin Williamson

Self/controller

Briarcliff, TX

You can write this: I oppose House Bill 3 and its proposal to implement school vouchers in Texas. Public education is the foundation of a strong society, and it must remain fully funded and accessible to all children. Instead of diverting resources away from public schools, we should be working to strengthen and improve the system we already have. We need to ensure that every child in Texas has access to the resources, support, and opportunities they need to succeed, no matter their background.

Raymond Breeden, Mr.

self

Cypress, TX

This bill will underfund our Texas Public Education System and destroy TRS for the retired teachers. Please vote no on this bill. This will not improve the academic struggles of students in Texas. The money would better be spent on School Districts training teachers so they will be better equipped to educate the diverse student populations in our public schools. Also, money could be spent to pay educators better to attract more qualified individuals to the profession and those to stay in the profession to be paid better. Thank you for your time and thoughtful consideration on this bill. It will have a profound effect on the future of Texas for better or worse depending on your vote now.

Logan Hatla

Self- Teacher and parent

Haslet, TX

Texas should ensure the constitutional obligations to public education are fully met and funded before implementing an ESA/voucher program (Texas Constitution, Article 7).

Removes $1 billion from the state's budget that could otherwise fund Texas public schools.

Creates a new budgetary commitment in the state that will increase. SB 2 is projected to reach $4.6 billion in four years.

ESAs allow tax dollars to be spent without transparency or accountability. Private schools/students choosing vouchers should be subject to the same financial and academic accountability.

Comptroller has the sole ability to select five organizations to run the program, opening the door to political favoritism, lack of transparency, and a structure that benefits vendors and their pocketbooks rather than students

Skylar Sims

Self

The Colony, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Sherry Wolf

Self

Gainesville, TX

I oppose the funding of a voucher system. Parents already have school choice. This bill will not help the poor, but only pad the pockets of the rich and those looking to make millions by opening private schools. This bill will devastate our rural counties as well. Private schools don't offer free transportation or after school care that many low income families won't be able to afford. Private schools aren't held to the same standards or under the same governing standards as public schools. I am disappointed with the parks and recreation program offered by my community. Does that mean I am entitled to taxpayer money to buy a country club membership? Sounds ridiculous, doesn't it? It's just as ridiculous as spending millions of dollars to fund the private education of a few. I respectfully ask you to consider what is best for the majority of Texans, not a few. Oppose HB 3.

Marcia Wutke

self, teacher

Leander, TX

It is important to unite our citizens as these political times have caused much distress. Dividing our citizens into smaller and smaller unrelated groups causes even more disturbances in our ability to get along.

Crystal Contreras

Self

Austin, TX

I am writing to strongly oppose HB 3 by Representative Buckley, which threatens to undermine the quality of education in Texas. This bill does not address the real challenges facing our public schools—instead, it imposes unnecessary restrictions and diverts attention from the pressing needs of students and educators.

Texas schools are already grappling with underfunding, teacher shortages, and increasing student needs. Instead of supporting our teachers and ensuring that every child receives a high-quality education, HB 3 seeks to centralize control and limit local decision-making, which is crucial for addressing the diverse needs of our communities.

Furthermore, this bill places undue burdens on educators and school leaders, making it harder for them to focus on what truly matters: student success. At a time when we should be prioritizing increased funding, better teacher pay, and evidence-based solutions, HB 3 moves us in the wrong direction.

I urge lawmakers to reject HB 3 and instead invest in policies that strengthen our public schools, respect the expertise of educators, and prioritize the needs of Texas students over political agendas.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Ashley Kephart

Self

Austin, TX

I do not support the voucher program. Please do not pass this. Please direct the funding to public schools.

Alicia Johnson

FWISD

Arlington, TX

Against this bill!!!!!! Do not approve!!!! It's against public education and that's fair and free education for all kids!!

Ryan Wolfe

Self

Cypress, TX

I oppose HB 3.

This bill is fiscally irresponsible and in no way helps ALL Texas families despite that being the major selling point. It, theoretically, helps less than 2%. 2%. How does that come close to equaling all? The Governor has vilified public schools, but has made zero effort to improve public schools. This bill will have more negative effects on kids across the state than it will improve the education of the 2%. Let's improve education for the 5.5 million kids in public schools. As a parent, I already have school choice as do the "hundreds" of parents that Abbott has created photo ops with at private schools across the state. How do you explain their lack of choice? They clearly had a choice to send their kids to private school. It's their responsibility to pay for it, not the state's, not tax payers. They made the choice. Choice already exists. HB 3 does not increase choice, it only increases the government overreach into private schools. We, as Texas parents, oppose HB 3.

Lisa Leon, Dr.
self
San Antonio, TX

I disagree with our Texas Governor pushing agendas from top donors rather than an agenda for ALL Texas students. Public schools offer excellent programs such as band, orchestra, ROTC, FHA, sports, dance, IT, automechanics, Allied Health. These are available to ALL students, not just the privileged. Public school teacher are highly trained and qualified according to Texas education code to which exemptions for these qualifications are given private and open enrollment campuses. Private schools can exclude students from enrollment so to say this is for Texas is a lie. This is for business, it's about dollars, and donors. This will destroy the heart of our Texas communities, our Public schools. I get calls from private schools and parents, they are not equipped to provide an appropriate education to students who may have learning needs such as dyslexia or behavioral needs such as autism. This is an unfair and discriminatory bill. This will harm our communities and families of your constituents. Billi9ns will be spent to manage, businessmen will profit, and children will suffer. Please vote no.

Laura Luchsinger
Self
Spicewood, TX
I oppose HB3

“I oppose House Bill 3 and its proposal to implement school vouchers in Texas. Public education is the foundation of a strong society, and it must remain fully funded and accessible to all children. Instead of diverting resources away from public schools, we should be working to strengthen and improve the system we already have. We need to ensure that every child in Texas has access to the resources, support, and opportunities they need to succeed, no matter their background.”

Mike Hopper
self Athletic Trainer
Garland, TX

Please separate public school and private school funding (aka vouchers). They should not be tied together. Public schools need better funding mechanisms from the state government, but it should not be tied to the proposed vouchers program. If the vouchers program is so desperately needed and wanted by its proponents, it should stand on its own as separate legislation.

Tony Amendola
Self
Sanger, TX
No vouchers!

Tabitha Castillo
Self
Midland, TX

I am against HB 3. School funding is already in jeopardy and hurting public education. This will only make matters worse.

Megan Gaskins
Self, teacher
Conroe, TX

No to Education Savings account programs in Texas! Public tax dollars needs to stay in public schools only.

Jennifer Morrison

self

Carrollton, TX

This bill needs to not get out of committee. It will hurt so many special needs children like our daughter who was failed by the private school she attended from pre-school through mid fourth grade. At that time she was reading on a pre 1st grade level and her math school were 1st grade level at best. Today, after 2 years in public school she has greatly benefitted from the specific support provided to her by the Lewisville ISD. Her read and math are almost on level - that is 4 plus years of reading and math learning accomplished in 2 years.

Please, do not pass this bill out of committee and DO NOT PASS HB3 at all.

Sally Amendola

Self

Sanger, TX

Disallow vouchers

Atilano Sanchez, CPO ret.

self

Kemah, TX

Public school vouchers as set up in various other states such as Oklahoma, Arkansas to name a few have only benefitted those families who already were able to afford to send their children to private schools, in other words, public funds have are being used to subsidize the well off who don't need the help. What kind of safeguards, policies, programs will be put in place to ensure accountability of funds, transparency of pay to contracted personnel, accountability of personnel and leadership, testing transparency and accountability of students, equal access by all, certification of teachers and school personnel, etc, etc, etc.....If public funds are being used, the same standards of transparency, accountability and certifications as well as accessibility by all students and citizens should be upheld and maintained.

Riana Salinas

Self

San Antonio, TX

As a product of the public school system, in a low socioeconomic area of San Antonio, I can proudly say that PUBLIC education is the way to go. I ranked 3rd in my class, participated in sports, FFA, and National Honor Society.

I had peers attend private and charter schools— they received the same opportunities as I did. The difference, my family didn't have to go into debt for my education/I received my experience for free.

Now, as an adult, and educator, and mother of a special needs child... hands-down, Public is the best in job security, growth, and services for my child.

I have seen, first hand, private schools kick out special needs children (for behavior, speech, or developmental concerns)...

because they CAN. These children end up back in the public school system— and the services are by far unparalleled. My son has made so much progress (academically, physically, emotionally, and developmentally)— I am thrilled.

I know our public school system needs improvement, but like anything that needs improvement.... It must be invested in!

Don't take away from the public schools. Put back into those schools and teachers!

Rigo Garza

Macedonian Christian Academy

Weslaco, TX

School choice

Brooke Scarlett
Shallowater ISD
Shallowater, TX
Say no to HB3

Matthew Aulsbrook
Self
Colleyville, TX
I am opposed to HB3

PADMAJA ENJETI
Self
Plano, TX

Don't defund our kids. I support public education and public school

Vanessa Gonzalez
Self
Austin, TX

I am against school vouchers. Vote no to school vouchers.

Anna Wydeven self, public educator
Austin, TX

This bill will destroy public education. I oppose everything about a voucher system. Public education is a right, and Texas should use 100% of its tax dollars collected for education on public ed. Layoffs are currently happening without this cut to our funding. School choice already exists. The public does not support giving tax dollars back to the wealthy and the public wants our tax dollars invested in public schools and educators. We need substantial help-not in skill, but in resources. Do not let this bill pass. We do not want to fund privatized schooling.

Joshua Martinez
Self
Pflugerville, TX

This bill is the deciding factor for my family to have any kind of upward mobility. Public school is not an option for us and we sacrifice a lot to give our children a decent education while also paying taxes for a failing public school system. No sane person can look at the results of the public school system anything but total and embarrassing failure. We spend the most per student and get the least results compared to any other peer country on the planet. It's time to give us the choice we deserve and to stop protecting those who have exploited and failed our children.

Kevin Posival
Self / public school teacher
Temple, TX

School vouchers are it the answer to the state's education problems. You're allowing the rich to jump ship and the rest of our kids to drown, knowingly and willingly. If private schools are better, hold them to the same standards and let the public see which education path best serves the kids. Right now private schools have zero accountability and push kids into the world with the same limitations as public schools. The only difference is that the kids that come out of private schools rely on the means and abilities of their parents, not the private educations they received. Stop amputating and tossing the students of this state! Stop telling public schools what they should be doing better, but listen to them tell you what they need!

Julie Turner
Self-Parent of 2 in Coppell ISD
Coppell, TX

I am writing to express my opposition to House Bill 3. As a parent with 2 elementary school children in Coppell ISD I want my tax dollars to be used towards funding public schools, not vouchers or ESA programs.

Vouchers will divert taxpayer dollars from public schools, forcing them to cut critical programs and personnel. This will in turn harm the State's ability to abide by the constitution requirement of providing free public education.

Governor Abbott's pursuit to privatize Education doesn't align with the constituents he was elected to represent. Have you read his Facebook page comment section? It is clear, Texans do not want vouchers. This is reflected across public school, private school and homeschool families. I am asking for you to truly listen to us and vote against vouchers and ESAs.

At the very least, any voucher allocation should not exceed the basic allotment per student funding. Also, any school receiving vouchers should be held to the same testing and safety standard that public schools are held to.

We need an increase to the basic allotment per student and also to abide by the constitution allowing free public education both in Texas and the United States.

Please stand with us as you vote this week and represent the future that allows for the most growth and opportunity for ALL earners across the state.

Kia Biller
Self
Austin, TX

I am a public school graduate and parent of current public school student. I DO NOT support HB3 and ask you all to Vote NO. We should be supporting public education as required in the Texas Constitution by providing adequate funding for the best teachers and resources and facilities for our students. My property tax should support the schools in my school district and not be funneled elsewhere.

Madelyn Vieth
Self Valley View, TX

This bill will have damaging impacts for public school education across the board, most acutely in rural counties with limited schooling options and funds. This will negatively impact our Texas students, and our teachers, while only helping a statistically minute number of students. It is impractical and harmful, with nearly nonexistent benefits for the few. This is not a partisan issue, this is a community issue that will impact us ALL. Vote NO to establishing an education savings account program (aka vouchers).

Roopa Nalam, Dr.
Self
Houston, TX

I am a resident of Harris County. I have no children. I pay my high property taxes knowing those funds go to my community - public works, public education, efforts to assist the underserved. What I cannot abide by is having my tax dollars shunted to private institutions that aren't required to service disabled children. How is this a fair or equitable use of my tax dollars? How is this not just a wealth transfer from me to other wealthy Houstonians? Honestly, how is this even legal? Defunding public education who actually have to meet standards is horrifying, and this legislation is trash.

Susan Lorimer

Self

Plano, TX

As a mom and a Christian, I beg you, please do not waste Public Education funding to support private school kids! Studies have shown that in other states with similar voucher programs that the vast majority of the funding goes to subsidize private school tuition for kids that were already in private schools before the legislation took effect. How is that a good use of taxpayer resources? Texas is falling behind in education results. To continue to attract businesses to our state, we need a well educated workforce. Please fund our public schools!!! Vouchers are just taxing the poor and middle class to give to the rich

Sol Garcia

Self

Mission, TX

I am strongly against this bill! HB 3 weakens Texas schools by prioritizing taxpayer-funded privatization over real investment in public education. Our public schools deserve the investment this bill would give to private schools. This bill would only hurt our children.

Carrie Davis

Self structural engineer

Austin, TX

Vote no for vouchers. I do not agree with reallocating public school fund to support private tuition when public schools are already underfunded in our state, which has the eighth largest economy in the world but ranks 46th out of 50 in school funding.

Patricia Cummings

Self

Lorena, TX

I am against this bill. We do not want to expand the government.

Chasity Larios

Self

Austin, TX

This bill is a disgrace to all public school families. It takes tax dollars from school teachers, nurses and middle class families, then gives it to private school families who are often wealthier and already paying for private school. This was never brought to a vote and I know for a fact that people on the republican and democrat side of political parties are against this bill. We will all fight to remove Abbott from office at all costs as well as any politician who voted for this bill if it gets approved.

Stacy Wilson

self - stay at home mom & forced homeschooler

Allen, TX

I'm the mom of 3 kids, 2 who do great in the Public School system & 1 who we were forced to homeschool after 5+ years of battling the admins in the ISD to get appropriate instruction for our disabled child. Our ISD loves to brag about how wonderful it is, but they violate Federal Laws by treating many SpEd parents as if they are not the experts in their child & they don't need to have the data to collaborate with the ARD committee. They just want us to sign off on their plan. For 5 years, our daughter was not learning to read. We begged every year for direct/explicit phonics instruction, as all the research says that is best practice for struggling readers, and they gaslit, lied and refused. They thought she couldn't learn how to read. She could not read the word "bath" - a K level word - at the end of 4th grade. Because our ISD uses only Balanced Literacy, they assumed our child couldn't learn to read. After trialing a phonics program at home after school and finally seeing enormous progress, we withdrew our child from the rich ISD to homeschool. After just a couple of months with the right type of instruction for her, she is finally reading. I still have a kid in that school. Nothing has changed. They don't ask what we did. They don't care. Not all kids can learn in public school. Especially for disabled kids, public school wastes so much time: time from their day to go to medical therapies, time in school waiting on data collection and negotiating IEPs, time for evaluations. Outside of that system, these kids thrive. It's not a binary choice between public school & accredited private schools. Education outside the public ed system doesn't have to look like public school. University model microschoools allow students to get tutoring, interventions, and therapies on homeschool days. Homeschool is the ultimate IEP and work can be completed in 3 hours or less. We can mix and match different methods to see what works best for our child. We recently hired a math tutor to help better intervene there. We've seen impressive results after just one month. Her progress has been exponentially better in the 18 months we've been homeschooling than it ever was in the 5 years in public school with an IEP. All kids should have this opportunity. The public schools cannot serve our kids. We aren't getting the value for our tax dollars. We're "graduating" functionally illiterate kids who then go on to welfare for the rest of their lives. 95-97% of kids CAN learn how to read if they are taught a certain way. Public schools aren't teaching that way. HB3 is an excellent bill that will allow Special Needs kids to get what they need. 500% of FPL isn't rich when you have a kid with a medical disability. Those kids cost 10X as much to raise. They have big bills. Everything is more expensive. I would like to see that cap lifted and some additional funds allocated to homeschooling disabled kids. That's where they are served best when the public schools leaves them behind.

Adam Wisner

Self

Roanoke, TX

Dear House Committee Members - I am a parent of a First Grade student in NW ISD. I want to register my firm opposition to HB 3, for the following reasons:

School vouchers pose a serious threat to the quality and stability of public education in Northwest ISD (NISD), a fast-growing district in Texas known for its strong schools and community investment. While proponents claim vouchers increase school choice, they ultimately divert critical funding from public schools, exacerbate inequities, and provide little accountability for taxpayer dollars.

First, vouchers siphon money away from NISD, which already faces budgetary constraints due to rapid enrollment growth and inadequate state funding. Texas schools are primarily funded through local property taxes and state allocations, and when students use vouchers to attend private schools, those funds follow them, leaving fewer resources for remaining public school students. NISD, like many suburban districts, relies on stable funding to maintain small class sizes, hire experienced teachers, and invest in advanced academic programs. A reduction in funding forces cuts to essential services, extracurricular programs, and classroom resources, ultimately diminishing the quality of education for all.

Second, vouchers disproportionately benefit wealthier families while doing little to expand real educational opportunities for low-income students. The cost of private school tuition often exceeds the value of a voucher, meaning only those who can afford to cover the remaining tuition, fees, and transportation costs truly benefit. Meanwhile, public schools, which are required to serve all students—including those with disabilities, English language learners, and students requiring specialized support—are left with fewer resources to meet these needs. This deepens disparities rather than closing them.

Additionally, private schools receiving voucher funds lack the same level of oversight as public schools. They are not held to the same academic standards, teacher certification requirements, or non-discrimination policies. This means taxpayer money can go toward schools that do not provide a quality education, adhere to state curriculum standards, or accommodate students with special needs. In contrast, NISD is accountable to the community, ensuring high academic standards and responsible use of funds.

Finally, vouchers threaten the unity and sense of community that public schools foster. NISD schools serve as a central hub for families, offering extracurricular activities, athletics, and community events that strengthen social ties. Diverting public funds to private institutions undermines this shared investment in public education.

Rather than promoting school vouchers, Texas should focus on adequately funding public education to ensure that districts like NISD can continue to provide high-quality learning opportunities for all students.

Thank you for your time and representation.

Adam Wisner

Gayle Browning

Self, retired

Austin, TX

I oppose school vouchers. My daughters went to public schools and both received degrees, summa cum laude from public universities. My oldest daughter is now teaching middle school English and ESL in AISD. She chose to be a teacher instead of a doctor or lawyer because students need smart teachers. My other daughter works at the Bullock State History Museum because she wanted to put her Art History degree to good use.

Please put our billions of surplus dollars into public education and not to pay off private donors. Thanks.

John Drogin

Self / Small business owner

AUSTIN, TX

Please vote to empower parents with school choice. Do it for the children! Vote YES on HB 3. Thanks!!!

Elizabeth Henslee
Self- Veterinarian
CEDAR PARK, TX

I am against HB3 for these reasons:

1. The bill is funding MORE per student to attend private, than it is for public ($10,000/student for private, $6500/student for public)
2. Proponents claim that this bill is to help students in failing public schools. Failing public schools are usually in low income areas. Children in low income areas are much less likely to go to private school even with the voucher for these reasons:
 - The average cost of private school is over $20,000 per year. Even with the $10,000 voucher, low income families likely can't afford it. I don't consider myself low income, but I know our family can't afford a private school bill of 10-15K per year per child!
 - Private school does not offer free bus service or after school care. Low income families typically have two working parents, and it would likely to be impossible for most of them to pick them up in the afternoon.
3. You still need to test into private school, whereas public school is available for everyone.
4. There is already school choice in the form of Charter schools, which are free to those who get in via the lottery.
5. This bill will take children away from public schools, which will lead to even less funding of public schools. This as many public schools all over the state are in danger of getting shut down and teachers are losing their jobs. In my district 200 teachers are being let go and several elementary schools may be closing.
6. Public schools have not had an increase in funds since 2019, and the increase from $6000 to $6500 per student does not even keep up with inflation.
7. Community is important., and neighborhood schools foster community. In private schools children are from all over which makes it harder to foster that community.
8. FINALLY why are we giving public tax payer money to private, for profit companies? Why don't we invest that money into the schools that need it so we can actually help those low income students thrive? LISD is cutting 200 jobs and schools are in danger of closing, yet our representatives are wanting to give over 4 billion to private schools by 2030.

Heather Reck, Ms
Self - Project Manager
Fort Worth, TX

Voucher programs to better serve well financed private schools? For their acres of well watered campuses, field trips to DC by airplane, and security staffed entrances? Funding for extreme radical religious based programming that demonizes differences? Schools that 'select' what kids they will or will not educate? Schools with zero public accountability? I cannot understand the motivations to subsidize wealthy families already enrolled in private schools? What is the problem the state elected officials think they are 'solving' through a voucher or saving plan. This is ridiculous that I have to fight to fund and beg the state to release the money I paid already for my sons public education. Furious!

stacey Lawson
self
Austin, TX

School vouchers are an absolute disgrace. I will not support any of you moving forward if you vote in favor of vouchers. I have TWO kids in this school district.

Marta Rozanich
Self
Ft worth, TX

We do not need or want coupons for the wealthy. Most families can not afford private schools, even if you gave them $10k towards tuitions. Nor do rural communities have access to private schools. This will decimate our public schools. Please fix our current system, do not dismantle it.

Jennifer Goetz

AISD parent

Austin, TX

I urge you to oppose HB 3 and support Texas public schools. This bill threatens to weaken our education system, harm students, and divert taxpayer dollars away from the schools that serve the vast majority of Texas children.

Public schools educate over 90% of Texas students, yet HB 3 redirects funding to private institutions with little to no accountability. Schools already struggling with teacher shortages, aging facilities, and increasing student needs will be forced to cut programs, increase class sizes, and limit services as state funds are funneled elsewhere.

Unlike public schools, private schools receiving taxpayer funds are not required to:

? Serve all students, including those with disabilities

? Follow state curriculum standards

? Provide transparent student performance data

? Maintain the same financial oversight as public schools

If taxpayer dollars are being spent, the public should know how that money is used. HB 3 lacks the oversight and transparency Texans expect in public education funding.

While HB 3 is promoted as a "school choice," the reality is that it benefits only a tiny, privileged group of families. Vouchers do not fully cover tuition, leaving working-class and rural families unable to afford private school options. Instead, they are left with underfunded public schools that have even fewer resources due to this bill.

Public schools are the backbone of Texas communities—they provide opportunity, stability, and economic growth. When schools suffer, property values decline, businesses struggle, and workforce development weakens. HB 3 doesn't just hurt students—it hurts entire communities.

Texans have repeatedly opposed voucher schemes, understanding that public money should be invested in public schools that serve all students. HB 3 is simply another attempt to undermine public education under the guise of "choice." The real choice is to continue investing in a strong, accountable, and equitable public school system—or dismantle it.

I urge you to vote NO on HB 3 and protect Texas public schools. The future of our students, teachers, and communities depends on it.

Shannon Washburn, Dr.

self, veterinarian and professor

College Station, TX

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the proposed school voucher programs in Texas. As a concerned constituent, I believe that such programs would negatively impact the public education system and fail to provide the equity and quality our students deserve. School vouchers divert public funding from already underfunded public schools, further exacerbating the challenges faced by teachers, students, and families. Public schools are the cornerstone of our education system, and they serve the majority of Texas children, regardless of their socioeconomic background or zip code. Instead of funneling money into private institutions, we should focus on strengthening and investing in public education, ensuring that every student, regardless of their background, has access to high-quality learning opportunities.

Moreover, school vouchers often lack the necessary accountability measures, leaving taxpayers vulnerable to funding programs with questionable standards. I believe that public funds should be used to support public institutions that serve the diverse needs of all students.

I urge you to consider the long-term consequences of supporting school vouchers and to prioritize policies that benefit all Texas students by investing in and improving our public schools. Please stand with me in opposing this misguided proposal.

Thank you for your time and consideration,

Shannon Washburn, DVM, PhD

Nettie Phares

Self

Flatonia, TX

Seriously? You want more stupid people who refuse to go to a proper education and instead get brainwashed with raw milk, no vaccines, and radical cultist?

That's all this sounds like to me.

You wonder why people are getting the measles in mass in our state, it's because of crap like this. I refuse to give my money to people who can't even educate themselves enough to keep their children safe from nearly eradicated diseases while stripping money away from the rest of us. Both these bills look like cheap attempts to hide your true intentions.

Don't think we don't know who you are or what you're doing.

Tomas Rodriguez

Self

Austin, TX

HB 3 . I oppose this bill because it will not be sufficient for schools to cover cost for security officers, needed Counslors , special education teachers and operating cost . Inflation has affected educational institutions. This bill will further limit cause schools to provide services the legislature has required.

James Bolton

Self

Arlington, TX

This is by far the most ridiculous bill that has been written regarding education in texas, which is already bordering on abysmal, that I have ever heard of.

You would have people who can already afford to send their kids to private school get discounts for doing so at the expense of already underfunded public schools.

This is quite literally robbing the poor to feed the rich and is a gross miscarriage of justice and disgusting misappropriation of funding.

Ann Glenn

self/retired from working for the State of Texas

Austin, TX

I strongly oppose vouchers. Taxpayer dollars should not be spent on private enterprise that has not oversight or accountability. It would undercut our public schools and school teacher pensions.

Danelle Schwertner

Self - business owner/School board member - Miles ISD

Miles, TX

Chairman Buckley and committee members, I am a proud school board member of Miles ISD and a business owner in the state of Texas. I, along with millions of your constituents in the state of Texas, have wholeheartedly and repeatedly rejected the idea of "education savings accounts," or vouchers. In the past weeks, several legislators have been soundly rejected at their town halls by normal citizens on both sides of the aisle telling you that we do NOT want this. We want you to listen to us. When did Texas become a state that allows vendor bills to pass? Why are you letting donors line your pockets to pass bills that are not for the common good of Texans? Do what is right. Remove this bill from consideration. It isn't conservative, and it isn't right for Texans.

Logan Ellis

Self

Dallas, TX

I oppose ESAs and support public money being used for public education.

Barbara Hines

Self, retired

Terlingua, TX

JUST SAY NO! Vouchers take money away from public schools and will especially hurt rural areas and schools like Terlingua CISD. There are NO private schools for the children of Terlingua. The only other option is home schooling, which is not really an option, because most parents in this area have to work multiple jobs just so survive.

Texas education is already rated as one of the worst systems in the country. Spend the money it will take for this voucher program on public schools. Improve Texas public schools if you want to continue to see growth in our state.

JUST SAY NO TO VOUCHERS!

Andrew HInde

self

Cedar Park, TX

I adamantly OPPOSE school vouchers! I pay my property tax dollars to go to PUBLIC schools for PUBLIC school facilities and PUBLIC school teachers. Texas has a constitutional responsibility to adequately fund public schools, and this cannot be rewritten by a house bill, if you want to do this AMEND THE TEXAS CONSTITUTION! Vouchers will hurt my neighborhood public schools and by extension, the community I live in. Texas representatives work for the PEOPLE who elected them, not for billionaires pushing a social agenda, show some courage and stand up for regular TEXANs and say NO to school vouchers.

Bonnie Arango

Self

Oak Point, TX

I do not believe the voucher system is the best way to serve Texas students. The money used on vouchers and to maintain the voucher system would be better utilized by schools directly to help fund not only teachers but also towards cafeteria workers, counselors, and special education initiatives. We need to fund all areas of Texas schools, not just larger areas with private schools. Please do not allow the voucher program to be established in Texas.

Andria Castillo

Self

Austin, TX

Thank you for taking the time to read this today. I urge the committee to support our public schools and the dedicated teachers who serve our children.

As a substitute teacher at my children's elementary school, I see firsthand one of the biggest challenges our schools face: the inability to hire enough teachers. This issue is largely due to low pay and increasing demands placed on educators. Our teachers deserve better. They should be fairly compensated, have smaller class sizes, and receive the necessary resources to prepare students for the future.

Years of underinvestment in public education are having a negative impact. Like many families, I do not have the means to send my children to private school—nor do I want to. I want my tax dollars to be invested in strengthening our public schools.

I encourage you to spend a day substituting at a local public school to see firsthand the incredible work our teachers do despite limited support from the state. The future workforce of Texas depends on the success of our public schools. Without proper investment, we risk an increasing reliance on social welfare programs because we failed to equip today's students with the education they need to succeed.

I urge you to take action and prioritize our public schools—they are the foundation of our state's future.

Shira Goldberg

self, educator

Austin, TX

I am writing in opposition to HB 3. In my 15 years of experience as a public educator serving 40 campuses I have witnessed the deep inequities across Austin ISD. The resources across the city of Austin are unevenly distributed and the public school system suffers, meaning that the students then suffer. Introducing vouchers will definitively take resources away from public schools that are badly needed. Introducing a voucher system in this city will ensure that the families with the funds to send their children to private school will gain even more money, and the poorest and most disadvantaged families in our city will suffer the most. Our public schools are sure to end up educating the poorest children in our city and the children with disabilities. There are many, many instances of private schools not admitting or ejecting students with disabilities because they do not have the staff or training to educate those students. Do not take more money from our public school system that badly needs your support. Public education is the foundation of our democracy and should be a top priority in this state. Thank you.

Dulce Segura

Self

SAN ANTONIO, TX

No to vouchers!

JP Fugler

Lindale ISD

Mineola, TX

As a 14-year educator in Texas, I would like to formally advise against passage of HB 3. While the aim of the legislation claims to offer education choices to Texas residents, it is steeped with inequity. First, a simple comparison between the amount of money awarded through ESAs versus per-student funding in public schools proves this. Somehow, there is a significant discrepancy between the two, favoring ESAs for private schools as opposed to funding students in public schools. The only choice happening here is a choice to underfund public schools.

The second equity issue is that advocates of ESAs claims that they should be able to use their taxpayer money as they wish.

However, Texans without school-age children will continue to have their taxpayer money used for public school funding (and to offset the cost for ESAs). The argument that ESAs are fair taxation are false, as evidenced by these facts.

Instead of defunding public schools, legislators should support them by increasing per-student funding. Instead of holding school funding hostage to pass legislation in the name of "choice," legislators should recognize how unpopular this legislation is and act on behalf of the people of Texas, not the special interests of a few. These are conservative and democratic principles. Please consider removing support for this legislation on those grounds.

Tom Sagona

Self - retired

Austin, TX

- School vouchers should only go to students who attend the lowest rated schools
 - School vouchers should be awarded on a sliding scale based on parental income. Only the poorest families should get the full subsidy.
 - Setting the bar for aid at 400% of federal poverty level is way too high. Texas denied expanding life-saving medical care to those making from 100 to 138% of FPL, yet is willing to grant aid to families making 400%, when these people already have school coverage.

Who in house has received donations from Tim Dunn, Farris Wilkes, or any Christian nationalist group?

Tracey Ritchie
Self, COO
San Antonio, TX

I am requesting and urging the Texas representatives to vote NO on HB 3. Our children deserve fully funded education. Our state is ranked so low in our education efforts and this further impact our system, especially in rural areas. I have two children in the public school system and I want the state to commit to their and other kids futures. Not to provide additional benefits for wealthy Texans who can already afford to send their children to private school. Please vote no!

Elaine Fannin
Retired- self
Denton, TX

I am against ESA's also known as vouchers. The $1 billion allocated for ESA's should be given to improve Public School Education. Just think what could be done! The ESA allotment will help very few kids. Funding for public schools will help ALL kids. The Senate passed the bill now it's up to The House to determine how much will go to ESA's. The majority should go to Public School Education. The majority of Texans are against ESA's. The passing of this bill with little funding for public schools will destroy public schools. Please vote with and for what the public wants!!

Ruth Jungman, Mrs
Self
San Antonio, TX

Vote NO to vouchers. Support education for all by supporting public schools AND PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS.

Suzanne Backus self / Project Manager in IT
Austin, TX

School choice is already an option in Texas - there are private, charter and public schools from which families in larger cities can choose.
Data has shown that most voucher funds go to students already enrolled in private schools, often those from wealthier families who do not need tuition assistance.
In rural Texas, there are no private school options so this bill offers absolutely no benefit.
Simply put, passing HB 3 will strip much needed funding from our public schools, students and communities. The data simply does not support the narrative we've been fed. School voucher measures have failed repeatedly in Texas; this is still not an option that your Constituents support.
We do not support the passing HB3 - vote no.

As an alternative, why not hold the funds donated by Republican (Betsy DeVos) and billionaire donors (Jeff Yass) as Grants or Scholarships eligible only for new, low-income private school applicants using the income eligibility guidelines established to determine free or reduced lunch in Texas? Abbott can appease the deep pockets behind this initiative, only low income families, not currently enrolled, receive assistance with private school tuition, and the estimated surplus of $24 billion can be allocated to our struggling public schools. Seems like a win-win!

Amanda Craig, Mrs.
Self
Richmond, TX

Please vote for school choice.

Martha Griffin

self

Austin, TX

Who is this really benefitting? This will defund public schools. The estimate that this will defund Austin ISD is $30 million. At the same time, you want to provide school property tax "relief." Where is the money coming from to improve public schools? It is every Texan's right to a free public education (Article 7 Texas State Constitution.) What you are wanting to fund is not public education. Our school districts oppose this bill. What do you tell constituents who work in those districts and the families who won't have a private school opportunity or won't be accepted into a private school? What are you saying to them about their right to a free, public education? What do you say to the workers in districts who won't have jobs? I am a retired educator, with my most recent work being in Bastrop ISD as the coordinator for K-12 science. I have first hand knowledge of the kind of money it takes to run a quality science program for every student in a school district, and the resources that are needed for students who are English learners or have disabilities. New teachers (and there are many with teacher turnover) require a tremendous amount of support and that costs money. Please fund public schools instead of private schools.

Rachel Evans, Ms.

Self, attorney

Austin, TX

As a parent of two children in Texas public schools, and as an attendee of Texas public schools myself, I am asking that you do not pass HB3. Texas lawmakers' first priority should be to adequately fund Texas public schools so that every Texas child receives a quality education. Our public schools desperately need more funding; the basic allotment needs to be increased by thousands of dollars a child in order catch up with the AVERAGE funding supplied by other states. If Texas has $1 billion to allot to children's education, it should be allotted to our under-funded public schools, not private schools.

Andrea Beerwinkle, Dr.

self

Magnolia, TX

As a teacher, teacher-educator, parent, and voting Texan, I ask that lawmakers vote NO on HB 3. I want my public schools fully funded. Education savings accounts will only hurt our students and our schools.

Ezzard Castillo

Self

Floresville, TX

I respectfully request that the Texas House provide parents the right to choose the educational option best suited for their children. One system is leaving many children inadequately prepared. The test scores do not lie. Providing multiple avenues for parents to choose is the only way to narrow the gap. Empower parents to hold educational systems accountable. For the good of all Texas children please pass HB3

Mollie McKee Burnside

Self

North Zulch, TX

I am throughly against the establishment of a school savings account program. The voucher program will do nothing aside provide money or a possible fiscal discount to persona's already able to afford private school. Those that can't afford private schools already are not going to be assisted much with the amount a voucher would provide. This programming in the education system will further divide us socioeconomically.. all the while posing as a possibility for "anyone" to attend private school.. when effect this isn't true. Additionally, we already pay taxes for public school. Why should should the general public pay money for entry to a privatized establishment that may not even reflect any values of mine.

Kelsey Abele, Dr.

Self, Professor

Amarillo, TX

This is a shameless attempt to gut public education. If we want to support students, we must also support the teachers they rely on, and this bill serves to undermine teachers. Texas already has some of the most under-supported educational systems, this will further disrupt K-12 education and encourage capable, smart, and trained teachers to flee the state. To do this disservice to our educators is appalling work.

June Blackburn, Ms

“Overcomers of Cedar Hill”

Cedar Hill, TX

I support this bill and our group is requesting you submit to the bill as our Representative for School Choice in Texas! Thank you, June Blackburn

Jacob Girlinghouse

Self

McKinney, TX

Please vote no on HB3. Taking the already limited funding from our public schools will be harmful to all communities across Texas, especially the underserved communities. As the father of an elementary school student and a board member of the school's PTO, I know how much public school teachers already stretch themselves to make ends meet. If you're interested in school safety, the effective cut in funding from this bill will have a detrimental effect on student support, which will impact the mental health of our children. This environment lends itself to disaster, as we've seen in Uvalde and elsewhere. This bill is bad for teachers, students, and communities. Again, as a lifelong Texan, as a father, I implore you to vote no.

Norma Zamarripa, Mrs

Self

San Antonio, TX

No woke ideology in schools - end it now

Mary Theriot

Self/retired

Blanco, TX

Please vote no. As the grandmother of a special needs child, I beg you to support fully funded public schools for Texas and say NO to vouchers.

Paul Yamarick

self

Moulton, TX

Add foster children to the initial qualifications for applicants.
Escalate (or descalate) $ allocation based on applicant waiting list.

Colleen Garland

Self - outdoor learning specialist

Austin, TX

Educational Savings Accounts do not account for all the needs of every student. Like students with special needs, or transportation barriers. Taxpayer dollars should only go to programs that help ALL Texan students. Support our public schools and help all students. Vouchers hurt students and leave Texans behind.

Bridgette Goldstein People of Rural Texas
Mineral Wells, TX

Please vote NO on this bill as it will destroy rural communities. I live in Mineral Wells Texas (Palo Pinto County) and the public schools are the hub of our community. These savings accounts will take much needed funds out of already struggling schools and put them into private charter schools. These schools have a blank check to choose which students they will take and which ones they will not. This will leave special education students out in the cold. Lack of physical access is also a problem as there will be few schools and far between and they will not be required to provide transportation, putting undue stress on parents and families. Please vote NO on this bills. SAVE RURAL TEXAS Thank you for your time and attention.

Sonya Barbola, N/a
Self- teacher and mother
San Antonio, TX

NO VOUCHERS and NO ESAs. As a public school teacher and mother of children in public school, I am angry that more people weren't paying attention last summer before the November elections. I am angry that teachers are villainized by our own representatives and governor. FULLY FUND PUBLIC EDUCATION FIRST. Smaller class sizes and higher pay should be priorities though allotment. Dorazio's constituents need to pay more attention to how he votes. Thank you James Talarico for being the voice of public school teachers! People will see how local and state elections have consequences.

Feyi Obamehinti, Dr.
Self/ Education Management
Keller, TX

I would like to express my support for HB 3. Having worked with disadvantaged communities for most of my career in education, empowering and equipping parents with better options for their children paves the way for quality education for all students. It has always been a concern, that students that live in zip codes with failing schools do not have much option and access to quality education. When I ran for SBOE District 11 in 2018, providing parents with school choice was one of my priorities. Happy to see this getting close to a reality for Texas parents and students. An establishment of an education savings account in Texas is great not just our students but for our Texas economy. Thank you.

Gay Lynn Auld, Retired teacher
Texas Retired Teachers
Round Rock, TX

Vouchers are an unethical way to send middle and upper class students to elite schools. Texas citizens pride ourselves on paying our own way with our taxes, not getting soaked by people who can afford tuition but don't want to pay for it themselves. Greed on the backs of the majority of Texas students. Christians cannot possibly justify vouchers because Christ told us to care for the poor.

Allison Walker - Alred
Self
San Angelo, TX

Absolutely not. Our schools need to be properly funded. Vouchers will gut our district. Do better.

Teresa Whistler, Ms.

self

Austin, TX

I am a retired public educator who is very much against HB 3. We already have school choice. A parent can send their child to any school that they wish. If a parent wishes to send their child to a private school, then they need to pay for it. Public dollars are for public schools.

Private schools do not have to take the same tests as public schools and they also don't play by the same rules. Public schools take all children and private schools don't. So, don't give away our public money to private schools.

The ultimate goal of this bill is to close down public schools. I am against this bill.

Julie Paxton

Self, Customer Success Manager

Frisco, TX

I am absolutely against this bill. Although I attended private school, I would never expect nor want tax payer dollars to go to private schools. Please do not let this bill pass. Texas lags behind other states in education rankings because it does not invest in public education. I am outraged that Texas considers moving money away from public schools. Renowned districts are proactively closing schools because of this bill. It's absurd. Stop telling yourselves lies. The data isn't there, look at Indiana as an example. In neighboring Illinois, performance is better.

Meredith Gryseels

Self

Belton, TX

We do NOT want vouchers. The desire to do this and not properly fund public schools is sickening

Rita Hollaway

Self retired professor

Plano, TX

The savings account will not provide enough money to allow families to enroll in private schools. Also the schools will not admit all students.

Susanne Lankford, Mrs.

Self - public school substitute teacher

Dallas, TX

I oppose HB3 and any bill that using public funds to subsidize private school

Mayra Suarez
Self/Insurance Specialist
McKinney, TX

I urge you to vote NO on HB 3 and stand in support of our public schools, which are the backbone of our communities. This proposed legislation would divert essential resources away from public schools, potentially harming the education of millions of Texas students.

Diverting Resources: Vouchers may seem like a quick fix for some, but they take much-needed funding from public schools that already operate with tight budgets. When money is shifted away from these schools, it means fewer resources for students, less access to support services, and less ability for teachers to meet the diverse needs of their classrooms. The result is a weakened public education system that struggles to provide equal opportunities to every student.

Threatening Public Schools: Public schools in Texas are already facing significant financial challenges, especially those that serve low-income communities. These schools are the foundation of our education system, offering critical support for students who may not have access to the same resources outside of school. Vouchers only exacerbate these challenges by taking funding away from schools that are already underfunded. If HB 3 passes, we risk the survival of public schools and the future of our children.

Public education is the most equitable system we have to ensure every child, regardless of their background, has access to quality education. If we continue to divert funds to private institutions, we will further entrench inequality and leave behind the students who need our help the most.

Please vote NO on HB 3 to protect public education, keep our schools strong, and ensure every child has the opportunity to succeed.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
Mayra Suarez

Kirsten Brueggerhoff
Self - Bookkeeper
Goliad, TX

It is my understanding that the funds for school vouchers would be paid for by off-setting funds intended and already budgeted for public schools.

This is a form of "legalized segregation". You have to understand that poor people or under-served communities, which are people of color, cannot afford nor do they have the means to send their children to a private school. You say that they have a choice, but it's not really true or well thought out. If you deeply understood the realities of these families and their limitations, you would understand that it's not really a choice for them. They don't have the means (financially) to pay the rest of the money for a private school (after voucher is applied) - nor do they have the means to just pick up their home and move to a better location - for better schools. We are a rural community and these options are very limited. It is imperative that funds are not blocked or taken from the public school system. It is imperative that people of less means do not have to struggle even harder by having their child crammed into a crowded classroom with fewer teachers - which is what would happen if funds are taken away from the public school system. Why not invest in the public school system to help our youth achieve goals that they might not believe they are capable of achieving? Why not invest in counselors and excellent teachers and smaller classes to elevate these young people to the same level of education, as is promised by a private school. Shame on you for even considering taking funds away from our critically needed budget (which is already under-funded) and is imperative for most communities today. It is not ok to take from our public school systems to provide for the private school systems. I happen to observe that the home-school / private school sectors in our area are majority white children. This is why I am resolved that diverting (PUBLIC) funds from public schools to private schools is indeed a form of "legalized segregation" . Thank you for hearing me.

Tom Shallue

Self

Austin, TX

Tax payer money should not be used for private education. Our public schools are already underfunded.

Jacqueline Cooper

Self/attorney

Dallas, TX

I oppose vouchers in this form. It will further devastate Texas public schools which are already among the most underfunded in the country. It will put taxpayer dollars into the hands of many who can already afford private school. It blurs the separation of powers and is unconstitutional. It is theft and corruption and will hurt Texas school children and families. Instead of shifting taxpayer dollars away from public schools, use those funds to invest and improve them.

Alison Morrow

Self (homeschool parent, homeschool coach, homeschool tutor)

The Woodlands, TX

As a homeschool parent and advocate, I oppose HB3. Homeschoolers do not need or want government funds - many of us homeschool specifically to get the government out of our children's education. Welfare programs like these become hotbeds of fraud and waste and lead to tighter restrictions on homeschoolers - the exact opposite of the "freedom to choose" that these bills claim to support. There is no choice if every form of education is restricted and regulated by the government. My family moved to Texas ten years ago to escape government overreach in our children's education, and I am outraged to see Governor Abbott and so many supposed conservatives aligning themselves with the same WEF-backed, socialist programs that we moved to avoid. Public education is a wreck, but HB3 will not solve that problem, and will instead entrap all Texas children in government regulated options that strip parents of the ability to educate their child how they see fit.

Gone are the days that big government can hide behind rhetoric and slogans - the internet makes it easy for average citizens to see the web of payoffs, donations, quid pro quo agreements, and influences that lead to these kinds of legislative messes. We know this has nothing to do with making education better and everything to do with lining very specific pockets at the expense of Texas children. We will not forget who voted to take away our true educational freedom.

Babak Dahaghi

Self

San Benito, TX

If public funding is provided to private schools or institutions then they must provide the same services and access to all children. This bill would not obligate private schools to accept or offer services to children with special needs or disability such as special education.

It's wrong to allow private schools to take public funds but not provide these services. It excludes those most in need.

Ronda Pohner, Ms.

TSTA, Texas AFT, Self

Humble, TX

As a long time teacher, I do not appreciate Gov Abbott constantly pushing his voucher scheme that will harm public education. Parents who can already afford private school DO NOT need welfare. I have always taught in Title 1 schools and the lack of funding weighs on my bank account to provide what the schools cannot. My salary has been frozen for the third year in a row due to the state appointed undereducated uncertified superintendent that Abbott appointed for my school district, which is the protege to Project 2025. This abuse needs to STOP. Stop taking from the poor and giving to the rich. Your job is to represent the people, not Abbott's desire to appease only the rich and his MAGA regime. We are talking REAL children who will suffer and REAL teachers who will lose their retirement that they paid into their entire career.

Please vote NO on School Vouchers! The rich already have the means to take care of themselves. It is time to stand up to the BULLIES and those who only represent their self interest groups.

John p brown, professor emeritus

self

austin, TX

i am completely opposed to school vouchers, as long as education funding in general is so inadequate at all levels on a nationally comparative basis. This continues to be very damaging to the future of all Texans, though this Bills sponsors and the Governor ignore this .Additionally, the funding of special education is especially dire, and one would have expected the incumbent governor of all people to understand this. One can be very sure he and his conspirators against equality for all children, did not rise to high office by pulling on their own bootstraps alone vote NO on school vouchers

Suzanne McElhaney

Self/ Finance Manager

Melissa, TX

Do not pass this bill! No one except the wealthy and Abbott's wife want this. We as a state will vote you ALL OUT if you pass this socialist redistribution of wealth to the rich!

Mildred Rosenberg

NCJW and Congregation Agudas Achim

Austin, TX

I strongly oppose this bill because it provides funding to a minority of families at the expense of those who cannot afford or do not have the opportunity to have their children in private schools. Public schools are already severely underfunded, and any additional K-12 education funds should go to public schools. Private schools are comparatively unregulated and are not subject to the same testing and standards required of public schools. Neighborhood public schools accept all students, but private schools can deny admission or educational services to any student, including students with disabilities, among others. Use of tax dollars should come with standards and not allow cherry picking of the easiest students to teach. Doing so would leave only the most challenging students in public schools, at a reduction of funding for the public schools (as the daily census would fall if students moved into private schools).

Troy Moore

Self Retired

Hereford, TX

Strongly opposed to the Voucher system ! First, a bill of this magnitude should be presented to us, the taxpayers in the form of a referendum. Second, States that have implemented this system have not succeeded in educating the elite few, but have damaged the already struggling public schools where most of our future citizens are being educated. I absolutely believe that parents should have a choice in choosing how their children are educated, even in private schools. That said, it should not be at the taxpayers expense.

For the sake of brevity I will just state that if our legislative body feels compelled to be complicit in this fraud on the taxpayers and kowtow to the powers that be—SHAME ON THEM.

As an addendum, if you as a legislator feel the need to remove a billion dollars from the public school system, then at least have the common sense to put it toward vocational education which will be for the benefit of all rather than that of the elite few. Sincerely, Troy Don Moore

Jorge Solis

Brownsville ISD

Brownsville, TX

Pass the bill.

Valerie Lesly

Self

Dallas, TX

This is unacceptable to essentially defund public education. Please do not to this to Texas and our children.

Nancy Whitaker, Ms

Self

Katy, TX

As a retired Texas teacher, I understand the importance of public education in our state. Utilizing a voucher system in Texas will deplete services that are currently being successful in preparing students to be productive citizens, particularly with career studies such as cosmetology, auto mechanics, plumbing, carpentry, etc. Private schools also don't have state oversight of their programs or academic progress of students. How will the state measure student success/achievement of the voucher program? Students with special needs are often excluded from programs using vouchers. Money previously allocated for public education will be decline, and lets be honest, Texas now is the bottom 10 of states in per pupil expenditure. The solution is not to weaken public education by reallocating funds, but to strengthen them so that all populations can benefit not just those who can afford alternative private institutions.

Hayley Andringa

Self/Registered Dietitian

Austin, TX

I am the proud parent of two Texas public school students. I believe that public funds should stay in public schools. Establishing a voucher system for private education will directly impact the quality of education received in public schools. Private institutions are not held to the same standards as public schools and are not required to meet the needs of all students. Rural school districts without access to private schools are particularly vulnerable if this bill passes. It is shameful that Texas lawmakers who vote yes on this bill are ok with spending more money per private school student than per public school student. This is discriminatory and will only serve to decrease the overall quality of education in this state. We already have an embarrassingly low national ranking and this will only get worse if this bill is passed. Please fully fund public schools and leave our taxpayer money where it benefits ALL Texas students.

Helen Edwards

Self

Austin, TX

Fully fund public schools FIRST.

Crystal Saunders

Self

Austin, TX

I am opposed to the Voucher system. Put more miney into our public schools and our teachers

Donna Lambeth

self

Rockwall, TX

Hello. I am against this questionable savings account program. The Texas legislature and the governor have been starving our public schools of money for many years. Instead of making up for the shortfalls they have caused, this proposed bill will make more shortfalls. I have been in education for 25 years. During that time, I have watched public education be pushed to the back over and over again. This latest effort is the most egregious of all. It virtually guarantees the destruction of the public school system. It might take a few years but it will destroy everything we have built. Texas Republicans claim they are pro-life, pro-family, and, worst of all pro-Christianity. They are none of these. They are pro-make money for themselves and their donors. This is a terrible bill, and it will prove to be terrible for the state of Texas.

DIANA SERRANO

SELF - COMMUNITY OUTREACH SPECIALIST, MOTHER OF CHILD WITH DISABILITIES

El Paso, TX

HB3's focus on school choice and Education Savings Accounts (ESAs) will divert funds from public schools, potentially leading to reduced resources and quality. The bill includes provisions that will eliminate funding for Gifted & Talented (G/T) programs, which are essential for supporting high-achieving students. The bill's emphasis on school choice and ESAs will exacerbate existing inequalities, leaving disadvantaged students and underfunded schools further behind. This bill will lessen the resources available for special education programs. Special education programs will receive less attention and funding, leading to disparities in the quality of education for students with disabilities. This bill will not adequately address the specific needs of special education programs, which could result in insufficient support for students with disabilities like my 14 year old son who is on the spectrum and has ADHD and currently receiving special education services. I want to ensure special education programs receive adequate funding and support to meet the needs of students with disabilities and HB3 does NOT do this. I want children like my son to be protected.

TERRY MILLER RALEY

TERRY RALEY

Dallas, TX

NO SCHOOL VOUCHERS. They will benefit the wealthy and ruin schools in rural areas.

Carrilaine Schneckner

Self retired

Richardson, TX

Voucher system will destroy public education and irreparably harm Texas' children.

Stacey Enzor, Mrs.

Self

Houston, TX

I am writing to express my strong opposition to school vouchers in the state of Texas. Vouchers divert crucial public funds away from our public schools, which serve the vast majority of Texas children, to subsidize private and charter schools that are not held to the same accountability standards.

Our public schools are the backbone of our communities, providing education, support, and opportunities to students of all backgrounds. Instead of funneling taxpayer dollars into private institutions, we should invest in strengthening our public school system by increasing teacher pay, improving resources, and ensuring every child has access to a high-quality education.

I urge you to stand with Texas families and educators by rejecting any voucher proposals and focusing on policies that uplift public education for all.

Thank you for your dedication to the future of Texas students.

Judy Wall

Individual

Hereford, TX

I am against school vouchers.

Jan Rudnicki
Self
San Marcos, TX

?

?I am opposed to HB 3 and all other bills that funnel public education dollars to private schools.

Ironically, I am a product of private education - kindergarten through high school. I also started my career teaching for seven years in a private school in Pennsylvania. When my husband finished his PhD, we moved to San Marcos, Texas and have stayed here for 40 years!

One of the very first things we did was enroll our 5 year old son in the local public school. We also joined a local church, and for the next fifteen years I donated most my time and energy volunteering in those two institutions. Once my children were in secondary school, I enrolled at the University of Texas and received a masters degree in Library Science. In that capacity, I continued my teaching career, in a local public school.

Private school was my beginning, but public education has been my passion! Since I've seen both institution from the inside - as a child and as an adult - I have experiences that inform my opinions. Like any institution, there are pluses and minuses. In private school, I lived in a homogeneous world of like-values and culture, but internally there was plenty of neglect, incompetency and abuse. In public schools most of those negative issues were external: poverty, mental health, and physical disabilities. But we felt supported by our community, and knew we were doing our part for our town.

At one point, when my son was diagnosed with dyslexia, I inquired about sending him to a smaller, private school. The principal of that school, whom I'd taught with, said she didn't recommend it, because they weren't equipped to handle learning disabilities. Fortunately, San Marcos was developing a wonderful dyslexia intervention program. And with the proper help, my son graduated in the top ten-percent of his class. Every child deserves, and I pray they receive that type of support!!!

Texas public education is still chronically underfunded, and education savings accounts threaten to reduce public school funding further. I worry that, as more capable kids are siphoned off into private schools, public school teachers will be left to support an even greater number of challenges than I had to deal with. Private schools that accept vouchers should be required to also accept students with special needs and provide the same level of support required of public schools.

Furthermore, any voucher legislation under consideration should hold private schools that accept vouchers to the same standards of accountability and transparency as public schools. Private schools should be required to report and make publicly available their students' achievement, with the same testing requirements as for public schools.

How can we know whether voucher investments are worthwhile if private schools don't have to follow the same financial and academic reporting requirements as public schools?

Elaine Hooper
Self
Dallas, TX

Stop vouchers

Johnnie Sue Bucek
self/Registered Nurse
Arlington, TX

Dear Public Education Committee Members,

As a retired school nurse with the Arlington ISD for 40 years and being a member of a family of public educators since the 1930s, I am aware of the advantages of public education. Vouchers will strip the schools of much needed funds to function properly. It is the State's responsibility to educate ALL children. If parents want private education for their children, they can pay for it. I do not want my taxpayer dollars going to private or parochial schools. Tax dollars should NOT be used to give preference to a family's religion, race, or social standing. By underwriting private schools, the state is promoting more class distinctions. Education is best with Diversity. Equity and Inclusion.

Katherine Langford

self, retired teacher

Hurst, TX

I oppose the use of education savings accounts, a euphemism for school vouchers. First of all, it is antithetical to Article 7 of the Texas State Constitution which states that the state has responsibility to "provide suitable provision for PUBLIC schools" (adequate funding). It also states that no state money can be used to support any sectarian or religious based school. Second, Voters who can hold their locally elected school board members accountable have no say in how schools use voucher money. Also, rural school districts will suffer a loss in funding for their local public schools in areas where there are no adequate private schools. There are many more reasons that vouchers are a bad idea for Texas, too many to list here. Lastly, I want to remind you that Texas has the 8th largest economy in the WORLD, but ranks in the bottom quartile for education funding. This is an embarrassment and vouchers will not solve the problem. Please vote AGAINST HB 3. Thank you

Beverly La Rock

Self

Galveston, TX

I am asking you to vote NO on House Bill 3. There are too many children with disabilities and too many rural districts that have very few or no private school options. There are many fees associated with a private school which most low income and many middle c

Jean Lockett

Self

Weatherford, TX

Vouchers will take money away from Public Schools. Our public schools are already under funded and under staffed. Texas education deserves better. Bit no on HB3

Jack Evins

self; retired

Galveston, TX

HB 3 appears to enable further redirection of state funds away from public schools. I oppose this and similar efforts.

Emily Hermans

self, parent, educator

Austin, TX

I am writing to share my strong opposition to allowing taxpayer funds to go towards private school vouchers in Texas. This is robbing our public schools of desperately needed funds and putting them in the pockets of parents who can already afford to send their children to private schools. This can not happen, and I implore the committee to look at the devastating long-term impacts that such a plan would have on Texas's financial future. We need to more fully invest in our public schools, not siphon funds away from them.

Sean Price

Self

Austin, TX

I am a 10th-grade English teacher at Pflugerville High School in the Pflugerville Independent School District. I'm writing this testimony to oppose House Bill 3 and any other voucher measure before this year's Texas Legislature.

I teach at a Title I school that needs all the resources it can get. Texas public schools, where the vast majority of students will continue to be educated, are already underfunded. Texas school districts have not received an increase to the per-student Basic Allotment since 2019. With a $20 billion surplus and $23 billion balance in the Rainy Day Fund, as forecast by the state comptroller, the Legislature has no excuse not to increase funding for public schools. Public tax dollars belong in public schools, not diverted to private business interests.

I'm also very concerned that the current voucher bills will undermine the Teacher Retirement System (TRS). TRS is a pension plan, so it requires more teachers paying in than receiving benefits. Texas' population growth and other factors have made that no problem. But the Legislative Budget Board (LBB) found that vouchers will drain at least 1% of students from Texas' public schools. That means there will be a corresponding decline in teachers. Pretty soon, TRS will not see the teacher growth needed to remain financially sound and could go belly-up. At the very least, teachers will have to raise their contributions. Gov. Abbott and the head of TRS have denied this. But they have not refuted the LBB analysis.

Vouchers are touted as providing families a choice. This is a cynical contradiction of reality. Vouchers take away the choices families can make in education because they undermine public schools. Essentially, they divert resources and students to private schools, where families are at the mercy of unaccountable school officials for decisions on both tuition and curriculum. Vouchers are particularly destructive to rural areas, where public schools are the beating heart of the community. Undermining rural schools would be catastrophic for communities that already struggle to provide jobs and health care.

I urge the committee to vote against - and work hard to prevent the passage of - any voucher measure before the Texas Legislature.

Brenda Hodges

Texas teachers

Iowa Park, TX

I oppose HB2 and HB3 and ESA's! Please vote NO to these bills

Valeece Davis, Dr.

Self and Clinical Assistant Professor of Education

Conroe, TX

The truth of the matter is that all students deserve a quality education. With that said, I, a tax payer and mother of two children in public schools, do not believe it is equitable to use public funding for parents who choose other means to educate their children. Parents have a choice. To me, ESA accounts that allocate money for private institutions is simply wrong. Public schools are already underfunded, and teachers in public schools work extremely hard. Unfortunately, this is a program that favors the wealthy over the backs of hardworking, middle class and low-income families. Pay public teachers more and provide more resources to public schools. Private schools don't need this, and the main people concerned about school choice are the wealthy. Parents have options to homeschool their children, speak to principals, and vote for school board members to make change. Throwing money into the private sector will hurt most children in Texas, and favor the wealthy.

Sherry Carver

Tax payers

Wolfe City, TX

Our children in Wolfe City do not have access to a private school. I don't want my tax dollars being diverted from public to private schools. Public schools have already been gutted too much.

Toni Rocheleau
Self
San Antonio, TX

I am writing to express my strong opposition to school vouchers in the state of Texas. Vouchers divert crucial public funds away from our public schools, which serve the vast majority of Texas children, to subsidize private and charter schools that are not held to the same accountability standards.

Our public schools are the backbone of our communities, providing education, support, and opportunities to students of all backgrounds. Instead of funneling taxpayer dollars into private institutions, we should invest in strengthening our public school system by increasing teacher pay, improving resources, and ensuring every child has access to a high-quality education.

I urge you to stand with Texas families and educators by rejecting any voucher proposals and focusing on policies that uplift public education for all.

Thank you for your dedication to the future of Texas students.

William Bryan
Self
Austin, TX

NO VOUCHERS. Vote for Public Education.

Amanda Ellis
Self
Midland, TX

I am opposed to this bill for several reasons. Why do republicans want to create a new expensive program that requires more bureaucracy? This program makes no sense to me. I am a mother of 3 daughters educated in the public school system and a former teacher.

Adele Nelson, Dr.
Self
Austin, TX

Dear representatives, I write to state my strong opposition to vouchers. Both of my children (11 & 8) are in public school & are receiving exceptional services from professional, credentialed & dedicated teachers & administrators. Let me share that my son has special needs & had a very challenging return to school after the pandemic. We looked at private schools & were told by a responsible principal at a private school oriented toward inclusion that they were not equipped to support him. We instead transferred him to a better resourced & better led public elementary school with robust existing special education programs. He has thrived & is now in Gifted & Talented. A well-funded & professionally-led public school has been a literal lifesaver for our son & my family. My husband & I will be forever in the debt of these public educators & administrators. There are of course cases where a given child's needs can be better served in a private school setting, but the scale & structure of the voucher program this bill proposes without a guarantee that children will receive services & not be kicked out will result in harm to special needs children & their families. Furthermore, without a cap on family income to qualify, this bill will undermine the funding of public education in the very near term - endangering the services my son receives in public school. Finally let me add, I attended an elite private college prep school in north Texas & it academically prepared me for college, but with huge deficits in understanding society as a whole. The school also had minimal supports for learning differences, let alone neurodiversity and other special needs. Public education deserves more not less resources from our state! Thank you for your consideration.
Sincerely, Adele Nelson

Sylvia Campbell

self

The Woodlands, TX

To the Public Education Committee,

I would urge you to ensure that this bill, which establishes an educational savings account program, also addresses the needs of our Texas public schools. Specifically:

- Increase the basic allotment to help cover the cost of inflation since 2019.
- Increase the mandated allotments for Early Education, Teacher Incentive, and Compensating Education.
- Ensure that private schools meet the same requirements as public schools for school safety, appropriate curriculum materials, providing services to ALL students including special needs students, and hiring certified teachers.
- Require private schools to meet the same requirements as public schools for annual testing of students and for reporting student achievement data.
- Ensure that funds go to the students with the greatest need.
- Manage the program so that the cost does not become unaffordable in future years.

I thank you for your consideration.

Sylvia Campbell

Brittany Tones

Self

Cypress, TX

I am firmly against HB3 (and also SB2). My husband, a police officer, and myself, a specialist at a chemical company, are both middle class hard working citizens who had the privilege to live in a neighborhood where we send our children to public school. We firmly oppose the use of a tax credit to benefit families that are choosing to send their children to private school at the detriment of funding public education. For years now, the state has held our tax payer money (the revenue that we as citizens generate for the state) hostage and have severely underfunded our schools until the ESAs are passed. The target of helping 100,000 children get these tax credits while 5.5 million of our children in public school remain at schools that are underfunded and not keeping up with inflation is wrong. In other states, statistics prove that wealthier families that were already sending their children to private school are the ones who benefit. We remain at the bottom of states for funding per child, at the bottom of states for test scores, and at the bottom of states for teacher support. The state has a surplus of funding that must be funneled back to making public education the state's priority. School choice already exists for families that choose to send their children to private school. If our public education system was properly funded, our schools and children would be more successful and fewer families may even choose to send their children to private school of the public schools in their vicinity had the funds that need to facilitate success. Our teachers also deserve better treatment. Short staffing and low salaries are also hurting them which in turn hurts our children. I am asking you to listen to your constituents- hard working parents who want the best for the children's future. In a fully funded public education system like we ourselves went to and it made us successful. Please support our children, who deserve to have a funded transportation system, supported teachers, and enough funding to succeed. School choice already exists without ESAs as a tax credit to a select amount of families. We are concerned that the middle and lower classes will be impacted the most by diverting these funds, and especially rural families who don't have the choice of private school. Please fund our schools! If our representatives feel strongly about pushing these through, please at least let us parents whose children stand to lose the lost vote on this in a public forum. Our children deserve the best education they can get for a public education system that is for all, not just a select few.

Leah Raley

Self

Austin, TX

This bill is an embarrassment to Texas. No vouchers!!!

David Todd Harmon, Dr.

Self

Abilene, TX

A review of the evidence of the impact of vouchers and school choice is clear. It has hurt public schools and student outcomes in virtually every locale in which it has been instated. Why would we bring this failed idea to Texas?

Trecia Sterling

Self, Parent is 4 children

Houston, TX

I absolutely do NOT support school vouchers as proposed. It takes valuable money out of our public schools and will thus have a profound negative impact on all Texas children. Please at least consider raising the amount given for ALL Texas students to the exact same amount, instead of giving more to those wishing to go to private schools. Private school students should not receive more for leaving public schools. It is imperative to the students sitting on Texas public schools that you ensure their schools do not lose money due to your voucher plans. The schools are already operating on such low budgets — any cuts will negatively impact them. Please prioritize ALL students and not just a certain population. The future of Texas is dependent on you making the right decisions. Listen to the people of Texas and do away with the school voucher idea. Pour money into our schools, into the TEACHERS, and see what happens! I trust you will make the right choice for Texas students and vote NO on school vouchers.

Rebe Long

Self

Dallas, TX

alismithx 9h

From Create Mode >

Alright. Well in light of that, I'd like my public record comment to be.

- 1) Requirements on voucher receiving private schools to have these same types of standards and services as public schools to be able to actually enable new students to attend
- 2) Public school teacher salary raises
- 3) Basic allotment increase of $1000 at minimum, ideally more than voucher amount. Or creative funding measures that will immediately get money into classrooms equivalent to this amount.

Toshia Lee

Self

Desoto, TX

No

Bridget Peterson

Self

Leander, TX

Texas Representatives:

Your continued failure to elevate Texas public schools for the roughly 6M students so you can create “choice” for an additional 100K is astounding, disgraceful, and demonstrates your lack of care for your constituents and the future of our state. Surely you are well aware that a vote “for” a poorly worded ballot measure does not equate to support for using public funds for private education nor does not equate to a desire to further erode our public school system.

You repeatedly and continually fail to demonstrate how you plan to ADEQUATELY support and fund public schools (nothing presented so far is anywhere close in today’s inflationary environment) for the millions of parents who want to CHOOSE a STRONG PUBLIC school for their students and who are adamantly opposed to public funds paying for the private tuition of others. The Governor’s “Facts” on social media are anything but and the entire Texas Republican Party has had 10(!!!) years to move Texas up the education ranks. Yet, this body haven’t because it has been too occupied keeping women from having a CHOICE about their own bodies and holding education funds hostage until this voucher system is passed. Apparently Texas Republicans only support choice when it’s convenient for their own agenda. This is beyond not just my comprehension but most within my circle.

You sorely underestimate the power and will of all the “momma bears” in Texas fighting to ensure a bright future for their cubs and the countless dedicated educators and public support staff who show up for our kids everyday despite mounting pressures and shrinking resources by our state. We are not going away. And if you fail to support our kids, we will not forget and we will be ready to bring into office individuals who will.

Texas education needs your attention, but this is not the way. Vote No for HB3. Address the numerous issues with STAAR. Properly raise the basic allotment budget (more than $220) so that school districts can actually raise teacher salaries for all (not just a select few) and provide services that can support the majority of Texas students. Parents absolutely should have a choice, and many already do. Your job is to make Texas public schools strong. Do your job. Make Texas public schools better for all, but most importantly my two boys.

Eric Higginbotham
Self, public school educator
Little Elm, TX

As both a public school educator and a parent, I am deeply concerned about the continued underfunding of Texas public schools and the push for school vouchers. I urge you to prioritize fully funding our public schools at an inflation-adjusted level equivalent to 2019 funding and ensuring inflation-adjusted pay raises for educators. Texas students deserve a high-quality education, and public dollars should be invested in strengthening our public schools—not diverting funds to private institutions with little to no accountability.

The Texas Constitution makes it clear that the legislature has a duty to support and maintain a strong system of public education. Article 7, Section 1 states:

“It shall be the duty of the Legislature of this State, to make suitable provisions for the support and maintenance of a system of Public Free Schools.”

This is a constitutional responsibility, not a suggestion. However, since 2019, inflation has significantly increased the cost of running schools, while state funding has failed to keep pace. School districts are struggling to retain quality teachers, provide essential resources, and maintain safe, modern facilities. Without proper funding, class sizes grow, support services shrink, and students—especially those in rural and economically disadvantaged communities—suffer the consequences. Restoring funding to at least pre-pandemic levels, adjusted for inflation, is the bare minimum Texas must do to fulfill this obligation.

Additionally, teachers and school staff have faced rising costs of living while salaries have stagnated. If Texas wants to attract and retain talented educators, it must provide pay raises that keep up with inflation. Our teachers shape the future of Texas, and they deserve fair compensation for their dedication and expertise.

School vouchers would only worsen these challenges by siphoning taxpayer dollars away from public schools and directing them to private institutions that are not held to the same standards. Texas cannot afford to weaken its public education system by funding private schools that are not required to serve all students, follow state curriculum standards, or ensure financial transparency.

I urge you to stand with Texas families and educators by rejecting school vouchers and committing to fully funding our public schools. You have the power—and the constitutional duty—to ensure that Texas students receive the education they deserve.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I look forward to your response and to seeing real action to support Texas public schools.

Kathryn douglas
Self
MANVEL, TX

We are proud to support public schools this year. I grew up in an area with horrible public schools and HAD to go private thank goodness my parents could pay. We have chosen to join our neighborhood community together at the public school. It is thriving! We are excited. We are so excited to have our son ride the bus with his neighbors. Support that. Private schools can fund raise and are wonderful that they exist, however public schools have so many opportunities. We do not support the funds for private.

Lindsay Hinde

Self

Coppell, TX

Vote NO on the voucher!

When private schools drastically increases tuition in the mid-1990s, families fled Dallas to raise their kids in public schools in the suburbs. Public schools that provided better education than the private schools that didn't require teachers to be certified, extracurriculars and special needs. Our generation wants to provide the same exceptional education for our children. Vouchers can save families money, but the private schools can increase their tuition again, so that middle class families still can't afford to go to selective schools that don't have qualified teachers and the programs children need.

Put funding back into the public schools so that all children can have an equal chance of having a good education.

Lizzeth Saldana

Self

San Antonio, TX

Public Comment on HB 3 – March 11, 2025 (Public Education Committee)

I respectfully submit this comment in strong opposition to HB 3, relating to the establishment of an education savings account (ESA) program in Texas.

As a resident of San Antonio and a parent in North East ISD (NEISD), I am deeply concerned that ESA programs divert critical public funds away from the very schools that serve all students, regardless of ability, background, or income. Private schools are not required to accept students with disabilities, provide individualized education plans (IEPs), or offer the same federally protected services our children rely on to learn and thrive.

ESA programs like the one proposed in HB 3 create an inequitable system where public dollars subsidize private education with no real accountability, while underfunded public schools are left struggling to meet the needs of the vast majority of Texas students. This is particularly damaging in rural areas and communities already facing teacher shortages, outdated facilities, and insufficient resources.

Our focus should be on strengthening the public education system that serves over 5 million Texas children by increasing school funding, supporting teachers, and ensuring schools can provide essential services to students with disabilities, English learners, and those from economically disadvantaged backgrounds.

On behalf of my family, my community, and the students of NEISD, I urge you to oppose HB 3 and protect Texas public schools from the harmful impact of vouchers.

Thank you for your time and service.

Lizzeth Saldana

San Antonio, TX – North East ISD

Gina Kirkwood

Self

Austin, TX

Chairperson and Members of the Committee,

My name is Gina Kirkwood, I am a community member in Austin ISD in Austin and I am providing my written testimony to urge you to support legislation that will close the funding gaps in critical educational programs that serve our students.

The data from public school state funding allocations highlight a troubling trend—our schools are significantly underfunded in key areas, forcing them to absorb millions in unfunded costs. Special education, safety and security, transportation, and pre-kindergarten programs are all experiencing funding shortfalls that put immense strain on school districts and, ultimately, harm our students.

For example:

- Special Education: The state allotment for special education in 2023-24 was $31.5 million, but actual expenditures reached $53.5 million, leaving a $22 million shortfall. This gap is projected to be $20.3 million in 2024-25. Without adequate funding, students with disabilities may not receive the legally mandated services they need to thrive.
- Safety & Security: In 2023-24, the state provided only $0.9 million, but the actual cost was $8.9 million, creating an $8 million deficit. For 2024-25, the gap is projected to grow to $10 million, putting school safety measures at risk.
- Transportation: The 2023-24 state allocation was $1.5 million, while the cost of maintaining transportation services was $10.4 million, leading to an $8.9 million shortfall. In 2024-25, the gap is expected to be $8.3 million, making it difficult to ensure students have reliable and safe transportation to and from school.
- Pre-Kindergarten: This critical early childhood education program faced a $3.7 million funding gap in 2023-24, with an estimated $3.2 million shortfall in 2024-25. Underfunding pre-K limits access to high-quality early learning opportunities that set children up for future success.

Our educators and administrators are doing their best with limited resources, but without legislative action, these funding shortfalls will continue to compromise the quality of education and essential services for Texas students. We need a bill that ensures state funding keeps pace with the actual costs of running these programs. This includes:

1. Increasing the Basic Allotment at a minimum of $1000
2. Fully funding special education services to meet the true cost of providing federally required support for students with disabilities.
3. Increasing state funding for school safety and security to protect students and staff.
4. Expanding transportation funding to ensure students have safe and reliable access to school.
5. Boosting investment in early childhood education to support pre-kindergarten programs that lay the foundation

Public education is the biggest thing we do to impact tomorrow.

Alyssa Jacobs

Self

Austin, TX

Chairperson and Members of the Committee, My name is Alyssa Jacobs, I am a speech pathologist and community member in Austin ISD in Austin and I am providing my written testimony to urge you to support legislation that will close the funding gaps in critical educational programs that serve our students. The data from public school state funding allocations highlight a troubling trend—our schools are significantly underfunded in key areas, forcing them to absorb millions in unfunded costs. Special education, safety and security, transportation, and pre-kindergarten programs are all experiencing funding shortfalls that put immense strain on school districts and, ultimately, harm our students.

For example:

- Special Education: The state allotment for special education in 2023-24 was $31.5 million, but actual expenditures reached $53.5 million, leaving a $22 million shortfall. This gap is projected to be $20.3 million in 2024-25. Without adequate funding, students with disabilities may not receive the legally mandated services they need to thrive. My job is critical and the number of students requiring special education to access general education is increasing!
- Safety & Security: In 2023-24, the state provided only $0.9 million, but the actual cost was $8.9 million, creating an $8 million deficit. For 2024-25, the gap is projected to grow to $10 million, putting school safety measures at risk.
- Transportation: The 2023-24 state allocation was $1.5 million, while the cost of maintaining transportation services was $10.4 million, leading to an $8.9 million shortfall. In 2024-25, the gap is expected to be $8.3 million, making it difficult to ensure students have reliable and safe transportation to and from school.
- Pre-Kindergarten: This critical early childhood education program faced a $3.7 million funding gap in 2023-24, with an estimated $3.2 million shortfall in 2024-25. Underfunding pre-K limits access to high-quality early learning opportunities that set children up for future success. Our educators and administrators are doing their best with limited resources, but without legislative action, these funding shortfalls will continue to compromise the quality of education and essential services for Texas students.

We need a bill that ensures state funding keeps pace with the actual costs of running these programs. This includes:

1. Increasing the Basic Allotment at a minimum of $1000
2. Fully funding special education services to meet the true cost of providing federally required support for students with disabilities.
3. Increasing state funding for school safety and security to protect students and staff.
4. Expanding transportation funding to ensure students have safe and reliable access to school.
5. Boosting investment in early childhood education to support pre-kindergarten programs that lay the foundation Public education is the biggest thing we do to impact tomorrow.

Christina Cortopassi

Self - Nurse

Lewisville, TX

This bill does not need to pass in its current form or any form. Public money belongs in public education. The House and Senate members considering passing any kind of voucher system while continuing to ignore the crisis that they have created in public schools with a lack of funding should be ashamed of themselves. This is only going to further decrease the ability of our public schools to educate our children. It is a way to divert funds under the guise of “parental choice” but frankly that is laughable given the restrictions this state puts on our abilities to obtain healthcare for both our children and ourselves if we don’t happen to be rich, white, wealthy and male. Rural districts will be decimated by this program, and you all know that. I have had children in Lewisville ISD for 20 years and I have never seen the kind of chaos happening around school closures and budgeting. There is absolutely nothing beneficial about this bill for the average Texas family and I implore you to vote no.

Jennifer Beavers

Self

Flower mound, TX

I recently read an article on WFAA.com highlighting the ten North Texas schools with the lowest MMR vaccination rates—all of which fall below 60%, far below the CDC's recommended 95% for incoming kindergartners. Alarming, all ten of these schools are private and/or religiously affiliated institutions. Looking at the top 20 schools with the lowest vaccination rates, several more accredited private schools in our community also appear. And yesterday, the pastor of Mercy Culture Preparatory School uploaded a video bragging about his religious private school has the lowest MMR vaccination rates in the state. Given this data, can you explain why you support transferring $1 billion in public funds to private and religious schools that pose a direct public health risk to our community? Do you intend to allocate additional public funds to cover the costs associated with increased measles outbreaks?

Given the long incubation period and high contagion rate of measles, do you plan to amend the state's attendance policies? Will schools with low vaccination rates be required to pay higher taxes or fees to offset the community costs associated with disease outbreaks?

This issue is deeply concerning to my family, my church, and my community. I urge you to address these risks before further public funding is directed toward institutions that are not meeting basic public health standards.

Monica Tietje

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose HB 3.

Government for the people, in this case the education for all of the people .

This bill may give some people a chance to supplement the cost of a private education if the private facility is available and accepts them, and if they can provide their own transportation.

This small chance for some would be at the cost of all of the taxpayers and at the cost of the public school system meant to serve the entire public.

Absolutely unacceptable!

Monica Tietje

Caitlin Dodd, Dr.

self

Grapevine, TX

I oppose HB3. I am a proud graduate of a Texas public education and believe that Texas public schools should be fully funded and that public money should stay in the public.

Dana Weed

Self

Austin, TX

Must vote NO on voucher scam

Austin Howe

Self

Lantana, TX

I am a physician in the DFW area with two elementary age children attending school in Denton ISD (Kindergarten and 2nd grade). I would like to voice my opposition to school voucher bill. I do not want my tax dollars going to support private schools. Our public schools are underfunded as it is and I believe basic allotment needs to be increased by $1340 per student to keep up with inflation. Before becoming a physician, I was a public high school teacher in Louisiana. I know first hand what underfunded, poorly supported public schools are like. One of the reasons my family chose to relocate to Texas after I completed my medical training was for the high quality public schools. I know that the proposed legislation to establish a voucher system will weaken our public schools and the quality of the education my children, and all other Texas public school students receive. Passing HB 3 will result in a Texas that is undereducated. Passing this bill means my family is planning to leave the state to live somewhere where our teachers and students are supported. This isn't about partisanship, or living in a red or blue state. I have no problem with parents choosing to send their children to private schools, but taxes are to pay for things that are for the common good—roads, schools, parks, security. Please keep our tax dollars in our public schools. Support our teachers. Support our children. They are the future of Texas. Let's not ruin it before they have a chance.

Cristian Banu

Self - ramp agent

Cedar Creek, TX

I'm a Texan and I support empowering parents with ESAs. Hold the public indoctrination centers accountable and let parents decide what's best for their children.

Alanna Hill

Self - Project Manager

Rowlett, TX

I strongly oppose the establishment of the Education Savings Account (ESA) in HB 3. While the bill is framed as a way to increase school choice, it risks undermining our public education system, which is the foundation of equal opportunity for all students.

Redirecting funding from public schools to private institutions, especially ones that may not adhere to the same standards or provide equal access for all students, threatens to deepen educational inequality. Public schools must remain a priority, ensuring that every student, regardless of background, receives a quality education. The ESA program, by diverting funds to private schools, could exacerbate disparities and harm students who rely on public education for the support they need.

Additionally, the bill does not ensure that religious teachings will not become part of the curriculum in private schools receiving ESA funds. Public education must remain secular to ensure that all students, regardless of faith, have access to an education free from religious influence. We must protect the separation of church and state in our schools.

Instead of redirecting public funds to private schools, we should focus on improving public education—ensuring our schools are well-funded, accessible, and inclusive for all students. I urge lawmakers to reconsider this bill and invest in a stronger, more equitable public education system for every child in Texas.

Dayle Aldrich

self

Georgetown, TX

We adamantly OPPOSE Vouchers!

- Our Public Schools have been neglected for 5 years - DO NOT send Public dollars to Private Schools.

-State government has a constitutional responsibility to adequately fund public schools. Let's start doing that ! 5.5 million children are depending on it !

Darlene Cox
Self
Danbury, TX

No public dollars for private schools. Invest in our local schools. They are the center of our rural communities and we don't want to risk any additional loss in funding.

Kristen Bowdre
self
Austin, TX

I OPPOSE the establishment of an education savings account program.

Wendy McRoberts
Self
Danby, TX

Public dollars belong in Public schools. The 5% off the top of VERY VOUCHER ACCOUNT is just a windfall to wealthy donors setting up this system. Y'all have tried 3 sessions now to pass this. If TEXANS wanted it, it would have passed in one of the many special sessions y'all called JUST to keep trying to shove vouchers through with an unwilling electorate.

Jennifer Rodriguez
Self
Pflugerville, TX

I strongly oppose this measure. Taking tax payer money to pay for private education is unconscionable. You will deplete funding for public school and create a huge disparity it the education most children get versus the select few who receive vouchers.

Melissa Lane
Self - retired
Georgetown, TX

Public educational for all is a backbone of American society. Educating our youth to be life long learners sets them up to be responsible members of a community. Setting aside education funding for a select minority of students does damage to the whole. Private school vouchers DO NOT address the needs of all students. Students with hearing loss, vision problems, ADHD, and other physical and psychological learning challenges are not aided in this voucher process. In addition, in small rural communities, the public school is often a major unifying force in town life. Friday night football, school plays and concerts, pep rallies brings together a community. We need to strengthen public schools. Please vote no to private school vouchers and invest those budget dollars in public schools.

Elizabeth Harper
Austin ISD
Austin, TX

Do not further cut our Texas Public Schools to pay for vouchers. Release funding from the rainy day fund and avoid expanding vouchers. All students in public school deserve an excellent experience and the voucher program for schools is further strangling our public schools.

Janet Perrin, Ms
Self
Houston, TX

No vouchers. Keep public dollars in public schools

Cheryl Russell
Self
McKinney, TX

School vouchers will only create more segregated schools and a school system rife with disparities that most detrimentally impact vulnerable students. Stop catering our education system towards the most wealthy and upwardly mobile. Fund all public schools well in order to provide great programs for all students. Vouchers will have the opposite impact. Say no to vouchers!

Tom Sourbeer
Courageous Conversations
Georgetown, TX

Come on. You can't possibly be considering passing a bill that will be a knife in the heart of Public Education in our beloved Texas whilst giving a giant windfall to private schools. Support the Public Schools!

Rebecca Carvalho Taxpayers
Boerne, TX

The proposed "voucher" program is one rooted in financial greed for the private school that stand to benefit and the TX governor Mr. Abbott. Texas residents presently have freedom to choose public or private school for their children. The wealthy are able to afford these private schools yet less fortunate can't. The voucher program is giving wealthy individuals a discount on their school tuition. The private school is then benefiting from receiving TX taxpayers money. The private schools only accept who they want (certain GPA, no special needs). They are private so can turn away whom ever they choose. This is outrageous and should be illegal. Public schools in Texas have already not been provided enough tax dollars to function appropriately and be successful. With this program they will receive even less which will run them into the ground. Then what? Only the residents that can afford private schools get a better education? Let's be honest these "vouchers" are not going to last forever. We see right through the Governor's scheme. He has benefited from donations from the private schools in the past. This is fact. So, with private schools getting taxpayers money and benefiting from this they can return the favor to the Governor come reelection. This program will unbalance the system that is already broken due to not being properly funded, teachers not getting paid appropriately and TEA placing extreme demands on teachers. If a TX resident wants to pay the money to place their children in a private school do it. You have the choice now but don't use our tax dollars for private entities.

Peggy Kennedy
Self retired educator
Georgetown, TX

Vouchers will kill Texas public schools, especially in rural areas. If we don't serve ALL students, we will pay the price in increase crime rates, mental health issues, unemployment, and the cost of more prisons. I have seen all of this in my career working with underserved TX students, K-12, junior college, and the TX prison system.

Andrew Ryder
self, teacher
Fort Worth, TX

Along with my wife, I disagree with the student voucher plan. We are both educators and teach at TCU. Our son is a kindergartner in the public school system at Westcliff. We feel that public education is an important public good that we all benefit from. We feel the vouchers will harm underprivileged students and families, including those with disabilities, and reduce the resources available to them. This will harm society as a whole. We also feel it would be bad for those who work in education, including teachers and staff.

Lindsay Govindarajan
Cypress Fairbanks ISD
Houston, TX

No vouchers! Our public schools and all the children attending them will suffer.

Susan Brennan self - planner

Austin, TX

I am opposed to the proposal to use public school funds to subsidize private school tuition. The voucher program will serve to further gut public education in Texas. Emphasis should be placed on reforming public school education instead.

Diane Harris

Self

Dallas, TX

VOTE NO ON HB3

Mike Duffy

Cypress-Fairbanks ISD

Cypress, TX

No vouchers. Focus on public school system.

Christine McElroy

Self

Woodway, TX

NO to this. Signed, public school kids and parents

Tia Sheldon

Self

Fort Worth, TX

I work in accounts payable for a local school district and have seen how much costs for electricity, water and gas have increased over the past 4 years. Shipping costs have quadrupled, sometimes exceeding costs of goods. Please raise the basic allotment to help offset the cost of inflation. It's ridiculous that the state has a huge surplus and you only want to increase the allotment $200 per student. Please support the 5 million plus students across our state that will still be in public schools. Raise the basic allotment to $7500 per student, based on enrollment, not attendance. We have to provide resources and staff for ALL students whether they have perfect attendance or not. I am a conservative vote, but I do not support vouchers for private schools. I would support an individuals right to take the tax dollars they pay to a school district and use them for the school of their choice. For me personally, that would mean that $3600 each year, not $10000. Conservatives are supposed to be about common sense. I don't see the common sense in this current legislation.

Sarah Eskew

Self

Roanoke, TX

Please stop attacking our children and teachers. Stop holding OUR tax dollars hostage and fully fund our public schools.

Nancy Braunig, Mrs

Self - Retired teacher

New Braunfels, TX

I am against public school vouchers for many reasons. I do not think private schools want to be held to the standards that public schools must be. This bill would mostly help people whose children are already in private schools.

Pamela Culpepper

Self

Cypress, TX

No vouchers

Carrie Harper

Self / NYDB

Austin, TX

You have withheld funding from public schools and tried to break them in order to prove that they are broken. But they are not. You won't beat teachers and smart kids. But you can greatly damage the future of this state with this asinine bill that funds the wealthy off the backs of the non-wealthy. What's your answer going to be when the envy of America (Texas public school sports, fine arts, robotics teams, and more) go away? What will you say when we have a woefully inept working class because you stripped trade programs? What will your answer be when you have even more poverty and homelessness in your state? You're just celebrating your own pocket lining and ignoring everything else? Including children? Well paint your future bleak then. And don't ever EVER claim pro life.

Kelly Wussow, Teacher at a private school

Citizen

Houston, TX

I am a private school teacher and am 100% against the voucher program. We have the responsibility to prepare all kids for their futures - an educated society benefits us all. It is irresponsible to keep funds intended for public schools for the voucher program and to fund public/private schools with different amounts and not hold both to the same standards for attendance, testing, standards, and teacher certification. Please vote no!

Ellen Brady

Self

Dallas, TX

I am a Dallas resident, and my neighborhood schools are Dallas Independent School District. Although retired now, my previous employment took me into public schools in Texas, many of them poor-performing and in low SES neighborhoods. My concern with vouchers is the effect it will have on students in public schools who are already struggling. There are many options in DISD for students who have parent advocates to move their students through the processes for applications to magnet schools, but many students have parents (or only one, or another family member in custody) who do not have the resources to advocate for them. Many family members are struggling with the basics of food and shelter. If we take funding from the public schools, these students will have even less support. Please do not allow our students with the greatest needs to suffer by putting school vouchers in place in Texas. Let's put that energy and funding towards improving our current public school systems.

Leanne Burrough

Self

San Marcos, TX

No one wants this. Please vote no!!

Donna Nelson
self -parent and educator
Kaufman, TX

My name is Donna Nelson and I'm a constituent in Rep. Bell's district living in zip code 75142.

I'm calling to express my strong opposition to HB3 and ask you to vote against it.

Public funds should stay in our public schools, not be sent unaccountable private schools. Do not sell out our kids for billionaire donors — Texas families are watching, and so are your own children and grandchildren.

I implore you to vote NO on school vouchers and stand for strong public schools, not corporate interests. Thank you for your time.

Patricia Jakobi, MS
Self
Galveston, TX

As a person who has been a teacher in a rural high school, I am super concerned about the potential of HB 3 to lead to the closure of high schools in rural Texas. The high school is the major anchor for small towns that have already lost so many of their past industries and businesses. No more rallies, no more Friday night lights.

Jill Hill
Communities United for Public Education, and self
Coppell, TX

I want to make it clear that Texans do not want ESAs! Even in these divisive political times, this is an issue that both sides of the fence agree on. ESAs will not accomplish the touted goals. Significant barriers to choice will still exist for the very students the ESAs are said to help - low income and special needs. For many low SES and/or rural families, transportation will be an insurmountable barrier. In many rural districts, the nearest private school is too far away to make school choice feasible. Many low SES families, regardless of location, need their children to be able to walk to the neighborhood public school or take the bus to ensure they can consistently attend. The transportation provision in this bill will not solve the problem. Public transportation is not an accessible or safe option for many children. Private ride services would cost upwards of $3,000-5,000 per year if they are even an available option. Even families in higher income brackets will have difficulty benefitting from ESAs. I live in Coppell, and the ten closest reputable private schools average $27,000 per year. It's hard to imagine ESAs becoming anything more than a coupon for families who can already afford this choice.

Kids with special needs will also not be properly served. Even with the potential for special needs students to get a larger dollar amount, there will still be a lack of options and thus no true choice. Many private schools will not accept kids with special needs or learning differences, nor do they employ the necessary specialists to serve their needs. In the rare instance that a private school exists specifically serving kids with special needs, they are often upwards of $40,000 per year in the DFW area.

Additionally, ESAs will increase educational inconsistency. The requirement that private schools administer a nationally norm-referenced exam is not adequate to ensure that our kids are gaining the necessary knowledge and skills. Norm-referenced exams only compare the cohort of test-takers to each other - so if all of them are lagging in a certain skill, no red flags are raised. With different schools administering different tests, there will be no way to ensure that all Texas students are receiving adequate instruction. Criterion-referenced exams, like what is required in public school, compare against an expected benchmark to identify students who need extra support.

The end result is that all Texas students will suffer. Students who have no feasible choice but public school will be educated by a system further strapped for resources - Governor Abbott admitted that ESAs would take money from public schools. The Texas education system is educating the next generation of our workforce and state leaders. If we want to see Texas continue to thrive economically, we MUST invest in fully funding public education now.

Please listen to the voices of those most impacted by this decision and hear us when we say vouchers are not good for Texas.

Ranjan Misra
PISD - PTA (Lifetime Member)
Dallas, TX

- 1) Recipients of School vouchers will receive $10,000 per school year. Every voucher will reduce public school funding by $6,800. So where does the other $3,200 come from?
- 2) $10,000 impacts the cost of education for 1 child in a family. $6,800 impacts shared costs for multiple students. Where is the cost benefit analysis that any business would perform to determine the best ROI of our tax dollars?
- 3) What is the income distribution of families of students that attend Private schools, compared to that of families with children attending Public schools? If so, which income group benefits the most from School vouchers?
- 4) What are the results of the independent analysis of School Voucher programs for other states with similar demographics as Texas?
- 5) How do rural areas get impacted where they don't have access to Private schools like in the major metropolitan areas, and the families cannot afford to home school their children and still generate income to support their families?
- 6) Texas has one of the best Public Schools systems. Why wouldn't we invest more in it to make it more robust, instead of taking money away from it?

We all pay our fair share of taxes for public education, not to have it handed out to families who make a choice not to use public education? What is next State Universities?

Thank you for diligently considering our questions and voting on a bill based on what is right for the majority of Texans, vs. what partisan politics is driving. History has a way of repeating itself, so let us look at the other states that tried a similar approach. The public data is out there

Susan Wright
Self - homeschool co-op coordinator
San Antonio, TX

We want to keep our freedom to be able to educate our children in our beliefs to become responsible educated citizens. We do not want government interference. We do not want to answer to someone else's beliefs and ideas period.

James Mitchell
Self - Retired Military (27 years).
Round Rock, TX

How many more times do the good people of Texas have to tell the Abbott administration that we are NOT interested in, nor do we support, HB#, this voucher SCAM? How many times does this bill have to die before we move on to the things that matter to most Texans? Everything about this SCAM is reprehensible.

We will keep fighting this!

I am ABSOLUTELY OPPOSED TO HB3!

Mark Lindenfeld
Self
Fort Worth, TX

While I am not opposed to some public money going to private schools, the amount should be the direct cost savings that the public school would save by not having the student and in no case more than the state allotment. We do want to educate all children and many parents in private/church school are not rich, but they should not receive more than their marginal saving as the state provides the service already. Additionally, they should be required to meet all state testing and admission standards and be under the same denial and removal requirements as public schools. Can for profit private schools educate better under similar constraints? If they are allowed to reject SPED with services or behavior problem children, this bill will only serve to transition money away from public schools leaving all the hard to teach students in the public schools. Please modify the bill to a much lower more fair amount and make more fair requirements or do not pass this bill.

Joyce McQueen
Self, Retired Educator
Austin, TX

As a former educator for 34 years, I know that Texas public schools need more funding and general public support, not less. Texas is ranked close to the bottom of the 50 states when it comes to funding our teacher salaries and our schools. Our high school graduation rates are some of the lowest in our country. We will get what we pay for when it comes to outcomes for our students. Please do your job and protect our children and my grandchildren!

Maureen Saval, Ms
self
Leander, TX

School vouchers are nothing but taxpayer-funded scams, cannibalizing our public education system for the benefit of for-profit and religious private schools. They will line the pockets of private, predominantly religious schools. Studies have shown that 95% of voucher programs support religious institutions. It's a blatant robbery of public funds for private gain. Public school districts facing this threat are already on life support, especially in small towns and rural communities where public schools are often underfunded to begin with. That is why even in conservative areas, Republicans are opposed to a statewide voucher program. Private schools are allowed to cherry-pick which students to accept and which to reject. That means school vouchers help facilitate a two-tiered education system where private schools cater to the chosen privileged few. Meanwhile, public schools are left to educate everyone else with even fewer resources than before. Despite claims that vouchers give parents choices, in Illinois schools participating in voucher programs during the 2022-23 school year, not one Black student received a voucher at more than half of the schools. Latinos had only a slightly better record, with no voucher recipients at about a third of the schools. Instead of diverting funds away from public schools, states must focus on strengthening our public education system with more funding not less. We must invest in improvements, infrastructure, and our dedicated educators, not give away tax dollars to for-profit private schools. And that is exactly what Illinois did, They ended their voucher program and put that money back into public schools where it belongs. With Republicans in Texas voting against vouchers and Illinois ending its program, it's time to strike against school vouchers nationwide.

The future of our nation depends on the quality of the education we provide to all of our students. Support public schools and VOTE NO on the school voucher scam!!!

Jennifer Yarrow, PA-C
Self and the citizens of Texas, Physician Assistant
San Antonio, TX

My children have attended both public and charter schools. Although both systems have flaws, I am not in support for the education savings accounts. The families at the charter schools self select by income and parent involvement. Subsequently, the public schools suffer. Schools are part of a community and need the support of involved parents and additional funding. Legislators and wealthy families seem to forget that if we eviscerate public schools and do not provide good public education to ALL people in Texas we are going to have a dumbed down workforce. Public sector jobs such as administrative, nursing, food service, small business, city services will all suffer if there is not a solid public education foundation in the state. I have lived in other states with GOOD public education systems. The every day interactions at the doctor's office, dry cleaner, and restaurant are handled with much more professionalism, competency and efficiency due to the literacy and math skills acquired in a solid secondary education. Do you want your nurse or mechanic to be handling your body or car with a solid grasp of biology and physics? I do.

Adam Aaron
Self special Ed teacher
Katy, TX

This bill is so wrong. When did public become private? Rural schools and most Texas children will be negatively impacted by this bill. Do the right thing for all Texas children, especially those who are the most vulnerable among us. You know what's right, you know the definition of public and private that should be all you need

Megan Smith

Self

Temple, TX

This voucher program is only going to hurt Texas families. Even with the voucher, most middle class families can't afford the remaining cost of tuition. These private schools can refuse to enroll students with special needs. Our public schools are a basic human right and this is a travesty. Texas has always had school choice, it is not the tax payers' responsibility to pay for someone else's private school. If parents want their children to attend a private school, they can pay those tuition costs themselves. Do better.

Amber Epps

Self teacher at FBISD

Sugar Land, TX

As a public school elementary teacher, I urge you to vote against public school vouchers because I believe using public dollars for private education is not fair to the children and parents of Texas. With private school vouchers, there is little oversight of how the public funds are spent which is not a responsible use of tax-payer dollars.

Emily Hardeman

Self

Austin, TX

I am opposed to the passage of school vouchers for a myriad of reasons. They do not benefit the majority of students in our state, and especially for students with the greatest needs. By diverting taxpayer funds from public schools to private institutions, vouchers exacerbate existing inequities, weaken accountability, and fail to provide real choices for most families.

Defunding Public Schools – Public schools serve the vast majority of Texas students, including those with disabilities, English language learners, and students from low-income families. Voucher programs drain essential funding from these schools, forcing them to operate with fewer resources, larger class sizes, and reduced support services.

Lack of Accountability – Unlike public schools, private schools that accept vouchers are not held to the same academic and financial transparency standards. They are not required to follow state curriculum guidelines, administer standardized tests, or report student outcomes, leaving parents without reliable data to evaluate school performance.

Discrimination and Limited Access – Private schools can reject students based on academic performance, disability status, or behavioral history. This means students with the greatest educational challenges—such as those with dyslexia or ADHD—may find themselves without a viable option. Voucher programs do not guarantee students equal access to a quality education.

False Promise of Choice – While proponents argue that vouchers increase school choice, in reality, they benefit wealthier families who can afford to pay the difference between the voucher amount and private school tuition. Low-income and rural families often have no access to quality private schools, making vouchers an empty promise for many Texans. Texas should invest in strengthening public education, ensuring that every child has access to well-funded, high-quality schools with the support they need to succeed. School vouchers harm students by taking away critical resources, reducing oversight, and widening educational disparities. Public funds should remain in public schools, where they can benefit all students—not just a select few.

Amber Epps

Teacher at FBISD

Sugar Land, TX

As a public school elementary teacher, I urge you to vote against public school vouchers because I believe using public dollars for private education is not fair to the children and parents of Texas. With private school vouchers, there is little oversight of how the public funds are spent which is not a responsible use of tax-payer dollars.

Amy Greenspan

self; attorney

Austin, TX

I oppose this bill because it provides funding to a minority of families at the expense of those who cannot afford or do not have the opportunity to have their children in private schools. Public schools are already severely underfunded, and any additional K-12 education funds should go to public schools. Private schools are comparatively unregulated and are not subject to the same testing and standards required of public schools. Neighborhood public schools accept all students, but private schools can deny admission or educational services to any student, including students with disabilities, among others. Use of tax dollars should come with standards and not allow cherry picking of the easiest students to teach. Doing so would leave only the most challenging students in public schools, at a reduction of funding for the public schools (as the daily census would fall if students moved into private schools).

Mandy Riley

self

Cypress, TX

It is important that all kids in Texas receive a quality education. Investment in public education is beneficial in the long-term for Texas. The school voucher program takes money away from public education. Vouchers do not reduce public education costs; instead vouchers will force tax payers, like myself, to fund two educational systems -- the state voucher system which will benefit private schools and my local ISD. Additionally, I don't think it's appropriate for me, the tax payer, to fund an educational system that is not transparent to the state like our ISDs are. By breaking up the delivery of education in this way, we risk a poorly educated populace which can undermine Texas' ability to continue to be an economic powerhouse in the both the US and on the global stage. We need more investment in STEM education, and I feel that vouchers will not allow for our ISDs to to expend/create opportunities to ready Texas kids for the future.

Katie Lamin

self

Austin, TX

Please vote AGAINST this Voucher Scam. It represents a fight between a bi-partisan, pro-public education coalition vs. billionaire mega-donors who control Greg Abbott and Dan Patrick. We love our kids, believe in public school teachers, support our neighborhood schools and want them FULLY FUNDED. Texans are not interested in vouchers. To be sure, our local schools face many challenges, not the least of which is the deliberate underfunding of the Basic Allotment since 2019. Our local schools want to provide a stellar education to ALL students, and with full funding, they can do just that. You can say that the Voucher Scam would not defund our neighborhood schools, but frankly, we do not believe you. My own Eanes school district stands to lose over $3M if this voucher bill passes.

Most importantly, no credible research shows that vouchers improve academic performance; according to a report by the Center for American Progress (independent, non-partisan policy institute), the use of school vouchers is equivalent to missing out on more than one-third of a year of classroom learning.

As a certified and licensed Speech-Language Pathologist, I believe every child deserves the chance at a solid, free and public education. With the proposal of these vouchers, too many of our children will miss out - especially because 6 out of 10 public school students are economically disadvantaged.

Vote NO on HB3- Stand up to billionaires who want to control how our government works and control our way of life. Vote NO to stand up for ALL students all across Texas.

Thank you.

Adam Aaron

Self Special Education Teacher

Katy, TX

Public funds for private enterprise is morally bankrupt. Taking from the public to give to the rich is essentially giving them a brand new Mercedes for each child in high school. Texas needs all of its citizens to have an education not just the top two percent. Do what's right stand up for the 98% against the 2%

Jan Forney, Ms

Families

Houston, TX

The Truth is that Charter Schools
WILL cost Texas & Texans both short-term and long-term.

Shorter term charter schools represent a whole PARALLEL school system - essentially DOUBKING all the basic costs of having any school

Charter schools have been shown to be on average NO better than underfunded public schools, even by some who originally ADVOCATED for them.

And charter schools CHERRY PICK from our kids. They do NOT provide for ALL children to grow and learn or to become a strong part of our state's economy or of a good future for Texas

It's also sickening & wrong that the money for charter vouchers mostly goes to wealthier Texans who already are choosing to send their children to charter schools. It's NOT your job to subsidize their individual costs

It IS your job to provide funds to all public school districts, along with TEA lesson plans, to support public school districts & teachers working to provide for ALL our students. The Texas Lege has not been a strong partner in this, their most basic obligation

Please refocus your efforts on the greater good of Texas and its future

By supporting of high quality public education FOR ALL. Dont hijack funding for separate charter system for some kids, some families, weakening the state

We mustn't pay the price.

Thank you. Your vote is important

Families are waiting to see who they can trust ????

Marlena Hall

Self/ Banke Teller

Arlington, TX

I do not want public money to be given to private schools. The state of Texas should focus on raising public school teacher pay so that we have a strong middle class that can continue to compete in the future.

I want my taxes to go towards giving teachers a better chance at teaching our kids and not line the pockets of people who don't need my tax money to fund their private schools.

Diana Muniz

TSTA

Mountain City, TX

Vouchers tend to benefit families who are already in a position to choose private schools, often those with higher incomes or more educational resources. Families in low-income communities may struggle to afford the "extra costs" of private school tuition, even with a voucher, as these schools often charge more than the value of the voucher itself. This can further entrench educational inequality.

Private schools that accept vouchers are generally not held to the same standards as public schools, particularly in terms of curriculum, teacher qualifications, and student outcomes. This can result in a lack of accountability and transparency, making it harder to ensure that all students are receiving a high-quality education.

Vouchers could weaken the public education system, which serves the majority of students, including those with disabilities, English language learners, and students from low-income backgrounds. By encouraging the privatization of education, vouchers could erode the commitment to public schooling and reduce the investment in improving public schools for everyone.

Meaghan Danielson

Self

Austin, TX

I am against this bill. It will take money away from public schools which are the backbone of our society's educational system. We don't need to be investing less in our children, we need to be investing more.

John Pabst

self

Round Rock, TX

"[Mexico] has failed to establish any public system of education, although possessed of almost boundless resources, (the public domain,) and although it is an axiom in political science, that unless a people are educated and enlightened, it is idle to expect the continuance of civil liberty, or the capacity for self government."

- Texas Declaration of Independence

As explicitly mentioned in the Texas Declaration of Independence, public education is a primary responsibility and function of good government, because commercial markets do not accommodate universal access with acceptable quality. Our Governor and his moneyed cronies obviously do not believe in this central tenet of our Republic. I ask -- no, I implore -- our Representatives and Senators to block these efforts to disparage, dilute, and dismantle public education in Texas. Teaching everyone's children is a sacred duty of all citizens, one that can never be fulfilled by out-sourcing to greedy and discriminating economic interests.

Tracie Henry

Myself and family

Dripping Spgs, TX

NO to school vouchers

Kristopher E Halverson

Self

McAllen, TX

Bad idea. Bad. Bad Texans. Rich religious fanatics want me to fund their indoctrination Camps for Kids? Bad idea. I will fund schools for All Kids. All.

Ana Luisa Salas-Porras

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose Educational Savings Accounts in all forms. I am against using my tax dollars to fund private schools or home schooling without accountability. The Legislature needs to FULLY fund our public schools as mandated by the Texas Constitution. School vouchers will only further defund public education. Stand with Public Education & VOTE NO on HB 3 and all other voucher bills.

Suzy Alcantar

Self

San Angelo, TX

Leave our Public schools alone!!!!

Jessica Arn
Self
Pflugerville, TX

This does not benefit children or families equally, the program cannot be granted to all who apply first of all and TX has large rural populations that don't even have options outside public near them and do not have infrastructure to support at home learning either. The bill does nothing to address the application process and I've looked at pricing around me and the allotment proposed even IF I got approved would not cover the tuition fully IF the school even accepted my child and then there are transportation expenses and anything outside tuition on top of that. Better solution is better funding and accountability at our public schools.

Sheila Schatzke, Dr.
Self/Educator
friendswood, TX

Opposition to HB3: ESAs Undermine Texas Public Schools

I urge you to oppose HB3, which diverts public funds to private schools through Education Savings Accounts (ESAs). This bill weakens our public education system, lacks accountability, and benefits the privileged few while failing to serve all Texas students.

HB3 Violates the Texas Constitution

Under Article 7, Section 1 of the Texas Constitution, the state must provide a free and efficient public education to all students. HB3 contradicts this duty by redirecting taxpayer money to private schools that are not required to follow Texas Education Agency (TEA) standards. Public education is a right, not a privilege. If public schools are struggling, it is the Legislature's responsibility to fix them—not abandon them.

Public Schools Are Not Failing—The State is Failing Them

If the claim is that public schools are failing, then the real issue is a failure of leadership. The Legislature controls school funding, policies, and accountability measures. If schools are underperforming, it is because the state has not provided them with the resources they need. Instead of sending public money to unregulated private institutions, the Legislature should fully fund public education, recruit more teachers, and reduce class sizes.

As a Public School Employee, I See Success Every Day

My district does an exceptional job educating students while adhering to TEA's high standards. Public schools are transparent, accountable, and dedicated to student success. The real issue is that they are being asked to do more with less. Instead of investing in an unproven private school system, we should strengthen the schools that serve 5.4 million Texas students.

HB3 Wastes Taxpayer Dollars and Lacks Oversight

Private schools receiving ESA funds are not required to meet TEA standards. Similar programs in other states have resulted in millions lost to fraud and misuse. Texas cannot afford to fund a system without oversight.

HB3 Benefits the Privileged, Not Those in Need

ESAs primarily benefit families who can already afford private school tuition. The amount provided is not enough to make private education accessible to low-income students. Additionally, private schools can exclude students with disabilities, English language learners, and those with behavioral challenges. Public funds should serve all Texans, not just a privileged few.

Conclusion

The Texas Constitution guarantees a free public education, and it is your duty to uphold that promise. Public schools are not failing—they are being failed by inadequate state support. If the Legislature wants better schools, it must invest in them, not dismantle them.

I urge you to reject HB3 and commit to strengthening public education for all Texans.

Andrea Renfrow

Self

Kingwood, TX

I am a conservative classical homeschool teacher and am opposed to HB3. I don't believe it represents the desires or needs of Texas constituents, especially conservative republicans like myself who prefer less government involvement in the private sector and choose for tax dollars to be spent in a fiscally conservative and more responsible way. Texas has been the freest place to homeschool in the world and despite the assurances of many representatives, I don't believe this bill protects that freedom. Instead it sets a groundwork for the government to be involved in the private sector. The private sector should always remain private and a free market. Government subsidies always cause inflation and that inflation will affect everyone, not just those who opt to take funds. You can't legislate your way out of basic economic principles that have been proven elsewhere over and over again. Praying over all of you this week as you make hard decisions and that you remember as civil servants who you serve.

Claire Jackson, Ms

Self

Georgetown, TX

I am against school vouchers. Not only do we have a constitutional mandate to keep church and state separate, but going down the voucher rabbit hole will bankrupt our public school system in Texas. We are already not sufficiently supporting our public schools now, but spending taxpayer money on private schools will take more money away from our public schools. You only have to look at the other states who have pursued this option to see that vouchers are not a viable alternative for education in Texas. Vouchers do not help the poor, the disabled, or the marginalized children in our state. Only the wealthy who already have their children in private schools will benefit. If our state government can refuse federal funds for medicaid enhancement because of future costs, it would seem to me that this voucher action would fall into the same category of future runaway costs to the citizens of our state. And more importantly, separation of church and state is a First Amendment right in our US Constitution.

Alice Dorsey

self

Pearland, TX

Save Texas public schools by rejecting so called "school choice" Texas taxpayers dollars should never go to pay for private schools!

Trudy Richards

self / Akins ECHS PTSA

Manchaca, TX

As a parent of two public school graduates and one current public school student, as well as a former public school teacher, I am writing to strongly oppose any legislation that would implement a school voucher system in Texas. Vouchers divert critical taxpayer dollars away from our public schools, which serve the vast majority of Texas students, and instead subsidize private institutions that lack transparency, accountability, and equitable access.

Public schools are the backbone of our communities, and instead of weakening them with voucher programs, we should be investing in teacher pay, classroom resources, and special education services by drastically increasing the Basic Allotment and funding public schools based on enrollment rather than attendance. Our public tax dollars should remain in public schools, benefiting all students, not just a select few.

Please prioritize strengthening public education rather than undermining it with costly and ineffective voucher schemes. I urge you to reject any HB 3 and any other voucher proposals and instead focus on fully funding our public schools to ensure every child in Texas has access to a quality education.

Mitzi Jones
Self
Cedar Park, TX

Offering vouchers to those that want to send their kid/s school out of tax dollars is the best way to defund public education the GOP has found. These schools have no oversight nor are required to have an open acceptance policy.. they are able to discriminate at their leisure and they do. This will create a public school system that is unsustainable due to outgoing funds to private schools & that will not be what the majority of Texans want including me! The Governor & his buddies care not for the majority rule.. only appealing big donors so they'll keep donating. A less educated population will follow. Do not vote for this Jim Crow program or any voucher system.

Kanice Spears
Self
Pflugerville, TX

I am opposed to HB3! Please support public schools and say no to private school vouchers.

Danielle Camden, Parent Parent
Austin, TX

Not good for majority of students

Denise Coffman, Mrs
Self
Keller, TX

I am a product of the public school system as are my children and grandchildren. I want to go on record that I do not support HB3. Parents already have a choice of how they want to educate their children. Vouchers are not the answer. Please consider not voting for HB3. Again I want to go on record that I do not want HB 3 to pass
Thank you for your time. Please think back to the educators who taught you. Without them most of us would not be where we are today today.

Michelle Reinhardt
self
Austin, TX

As a lifelong Texan, public school graduate, University of Texas alum, and mother of two public school graduates, public education is the foundation of a stronger Texas both economically and socially. Please vote no on this bill that transfers billions of public tax dollars to private institutions and robs our public schools of the per student allotment of $1500 that is required.

Katherine Enyart
Self
Austin, TX

I am opposed to this bill. Please do not divert funds away from our public schools.

Monica Soukup
Self retired and part-time online college instructor
Austin, TX

Please do not support this bill. This bill will be detrimental to Texas public schools and students who attend public schools. I want my tax dollars to go to funding public schools which serve the majority of students. Taking money away from public schools will create a hardship on public schools to meet the needs of students.

Gregory Thomas

N/A

Terrell Hills, TX

I oppose education saving accounts and support public money being used for public education.

Aimee Smith

Self and others

Austin, TX

Why would special funding go to private school students and not all students? Are poor people less entitled to be supported by our tax dollars than the rich? That is elitism and unethical. All school systems should benefit from our tax dollars. I am not paying into a system that only cares about rich people.

Allison Worley

Self, literary manager, mom

Austin, TX

Vote no on HB 3! I want public education fully funded for my children and all children that attend public schools. This public education is crucial for the children of Texas. Please vote no! Thank you for your time.

Pamela Hanna

Self

Lubbock, TX

Please do not pass this bill if it places any restrictions on homeschool families. Part of the reason our family chose homeschool was because of the freedom it allows us in choosing our curriculum and deciding what is best for our child at any given time. It also allows us to travel with my husband for his job so our family can stay together, rather than be separated.

Homeschooling also allows us the opportunity to ensure our child masters each concept that is taught, rather than rushing her through something she might not understand at the time in the name of completing a timeline. Removing that opportunity for our family to choose will rob our daughter of much-needed instruction and mastery of the skills she actually needs to know and retain in order to be a productive, informed adult. Public schools currently teach students methods on how to pass standardized tests with little effort made to ensure that the students retain the information that they should be learning in the first place. No amount of money can make up for the loss of parents' freedom to choose what is best for their children and families. Please do not pass this bill!

Sarah Lenius
Self
Winnsboro, TX

I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB3, which proposes the implementation of school vouchers in Texas. While the intent of providing families with more educational choices is commendable, the voucher system outlined in HB3 poses significant risks to public education, undermines the foundational principles of our education system, and fails to address the needs of the majority of Texas students. Below, I outline the key reasons why HB3 is detrimental to Texas students, families, and communities.

1. Diverts Critical Funding from Public Schools

Public schools in Texas are already underfunded, with many districts struggling to provide adequate resources, retain qualified teachers, and maintain infrastructure. HB3 would divert taxpayer dollars away from public schools to private institutions through vouchers. This would further strain public school budgets, disproportionately affecting rural and low-income districts that rely heavily on state funding. Public schools serve all students, and they cannot afford to lose critical resources to a voucher system that benefits only a select few.

2. Lacks Accountability and Transparency

Public schools are held to high standards of accountability, including state-mandated testing, financial transparency, and adherence to curriculum standards. Private schools, however, are not subject to the same level of oversight. HB3 would allow taxpayer dollars to flow to private institutions with little to no accountability for how those funds are used or whether students are receiving a quality education. This lack of transparency undermines the public's trust in the education system and risks funding schools that may fail to meet basic educational standards.

3. Widens Gaps in Educational Access

School vouchers often benefit families who can already afford private school tuition or transportation costs. Many families, particularly those in rural areas, may not have access to private schools or the means to cover additional expenses not covered by vouchers. This creates a system where only certain students can access the benefits of vouchers, leaving behind those who need the most support. Public schools, which serve as the backbone of our communities, would be further marginalized, widening the gap between those with resources and those without.

4. Undermines Local Control

Texas has a long history of valuing local control in education. School vouchers, however, shift decision-making power away from local communities and toward private entities. This undermines the ability of school boards, parents, and educators to make decisions that best serve their students. Public schools are accountable to the communities they serve, while private schools are not. HB3 would erode this local control and prioritize the interests of private institutions over the needs of Texas communities.

5. Fails to Address Root Causes of Educational Challenges

The voucher system proposed in HB3

Martha Boethel

Self / retired

Austin, TX

As a lifelong Texan who worked for most of my professional career to support quality public education, I urge members of this committee to oppose HB3 and any other legislation that seeks to install any form of voucher program in Texas. The push for what's falsely labeled as "school choice" in Texas is not, and never has been, about the quality of education for our children. Rather, it's all about politics.

For 20 years our legislators have repeatedly rejected vouchers, despite an influx of outside funding and despite Gov. Greg Abbott's costly special sessions. Why? Because by any measure other than politics, they've proven to be a bad idea. Voucher programs have shredded state budgets elsewhere, e.g., Arizona's $1.4 billion budget shortfall (Talia Richman, Dallas Morning News, 1/25/25). Public schools, the lifeblood of most small rural communities, already struggle financially; despite rampant inflation and a budget surplus, Texas has not increased the basic public school allotment since 2019 (Chris Tomlinson, Houston Chronicle, 12/17/24). Research shows that "expanded voucher programs and charter schools... harm traditional public school financing" (David S. Knight & David DeMatthews, National Education Policy Center, 11/21/24). The real financial benefits go not to families but to companies that equate schooling with profit. With the implementation of vouchers, "the private school market floods with new pop-up providers," who are not held accountable — financially, academically, or enrollment-wise — as public schools are (Joshua Cowan, Brookings Institute, 8/15/23). Moreover, as part of the big "money grab," many private schools are raising their tuition rates "to take advantage of the new funding" (Alec MacGillis, ProPublica, 1/13/25).

Most significantly, vouchers do NOT improve student achievement — despite the fact that private schools often attempt to boost performance statistics by rejecting or dismissing students whose achievement lags. As the Brookings report concludes, "The last decade of achievement studies have shown negative voucher impacts." Moreover, "the larger the program, the worse the results tend to be."

After the recent elections, and thanks to the support of "billionaires from in and out of Texas," Gov. Abbott has claimed a renewed voter mandate (Jaden Edison, Texas Tribune, 1/23/25). The problem is that, as multiple polls indicate, the defeat of rural legislators who consistently voted against vouchers was a classic bait-and-switch. What motivated voters wasn't concern about vouchers but rather about the economy and immigration. "Only 2 percent of registered Republican voters listed vouchers as a key issue that affected their support of House candidates in the GOP primary" (Edison, Texas Tribune).

What should our legislature do to strengthen education in our state? Live up to its own mandate for fully funding public schools. Any less swaps our children's future for political gain.

Jennifer Petre

Self

Dallas, TX

I do NOT support this bill.

ANNA OKIVAS

Self

El Paso, TX

Hi, I am a teacher and feel that this bill will only hurt our students! Students who need our assistance and have special needs and disabilities! Please do not forget about them they deserve a voice also!

Meggan Fletcher

Self/sahm

Mansfield, TX

I cannot express how much I oppose this bill. It will lead to the complete destruction of our public school system!

Elizabeth Figueroa, Teacher

AFT

Corpus Christi, TX

School vouchers will hurt public schools and teachers. Our schools already don't have enough funding to operate normally. Teachers are spending their own money to make up for supplies needed.

Ronda Dexter

Self

Schertz, TX

I oppose this or any bill that would use public funds for private education. It will not help the majority of Texan families as many counties do not even have private or charter options available to them. It is fiscally irresponsible and not in line with the republican platform. You, Mr. Abbott, have purposely broken public education, by lack of funding, relying on an unreliable and horribly flawed test, and being swayed by an out of state donors "campaign" funds. This is simply a subsidy for wealthy families who are already paying for privatized schooling.

We already have School Choice! We don't want your subsidies or over site!

Fund public education!

Jolynda McGrath

Self

Montgomery, TX

There was almost 12hrs of testimony AGAINST HB3! Almost every Facebook post regarding vouchers wether posted by individual Reps and Senators or the Governor has pages upon pages of Texans speaking OUT and telling you Texans DONT want vOUCHers yet you guys keep pushing on because that's what your DONORS want. What you forget is most of your donors are out of state and cannot vote in Texas elections. There are far more actual voters that WILL remember this betrayal and vote you out! Public dollars need to remain in public schools with accountability!

Jennifer Pearce

Self

Dallas, TX

This bill is a disaster for Texas students and an obvious way to move resources from lower and middle income to high income Texans. Education is a matter of national security, we should be ensuring that a strong public education is available to all students.

Andrew Jordan

self

Austin, TX

Texans have repeatedly made it clear that WE DO NOT WANT THIS BILL. In turn, the Texas GOP has made it clear that they no longer represent their constituents. Instead, the GOP chooses to act as the personal servants to special interest groups, lobbyists, and whoever else lines their pockets. I am a life long conservative, a veteran, and small business owner, but I will no longer reward the GOP for abandoning the core pillars of the movement and replacing them with culture-war nonsense, straw-man excuses, hypocrisy, and a general lack of respect for the constitution or the people for whom they represent. HB3 is the final nail in a coffin that should have been buried years ago. I look forward to directing my vote, time, and money towards your termination as a super-majority.

Julie Collins

Self/retired public school teacher

Amarillo, TX

Vouchers would be a gross misuse of public school funds. The governor is holding millions of dollars to try and get his way. Use these funds to improve public schools, do away with testing and pay teachers what they deserve.

Dwain Knight
Self / Educator
Henderson, TX
No to vouchers!

Suann Claunch
Self Grandmother Retired public educator hub 3
Fort Worth, TX

Please don't shortchange students with this bill that will never provide a quality public education for most families - public education is a right; vouchers only support a minority of students and will never provide a level playing field.

Christina Cortez, Ms
Self teacher
Pasadena, TX

Voucher bill will defund resources public school need. As a public school teacher I see every year the increase in student with special needs that public schools provide. I see a decrease in average students ability because most go to charter schools. I have drawn the conclusion that most nonpublic education organizations do not provide the critical services our students need. Please do not pass this bill.

dawn carroll, ms
Killeen ISD
Killeen, TX

Public schools deserve better! Teachers and students work hard and we deserve funding and support! You need to go to public schools and see how our lack of funding has killed school having more restrictions with less support! Vouchers are ridiculous and this craziness has to stop! Next election will be the end of this craziness... i promise

Shawna Johnson
Self, Mother/ Full-Time Marketer
Dallas, TX

I greatly oppose HB3!! Vote No!

Natalie Tolentino
Self
Wylie, TX

School vouchers in Texas undermine public education by shifting focus away from strengthening schools that serve all students. A strong public school system is essential for providing equal opportunities, fostering community growth, and ensuring every child receives a quality education, regardless of their background. The voucher system is providing chance not choice. Private schools can still deny children based on whatever their qualifications are, as evidenced with the example of xemina yesterday. Testimony after testimony proved this is NOT what people want. Private schools have no regulations other than "good faith promises". As stated (in general) by representative Bernal, legislation is not a series of promises - that's not how legislation works. To demand regulations and rules from public schools and allow complete and utter free will to private schools makes absolutely no sense. Fully fund the system you were elected to represent and fight for ...as explicitly stated in the Constitution.

emmet campos
Self
Driftwood, TX

I support public schools and oppose HB3. No vouchers in schools, please fund public schools and raise teachers wages! Support the teaching of all histories and all literatures!

Elsbeth Allen Glaubitz

Self

Dallas, TX

I am against HB 3 by Buckley. All our children deserve access to quality education and public education is one of the greatest advancements in American society. Private schools do not deserve public funds, and private schools do not provide quality education for all students. Students with disabilities will be harmed and low income students who have no control of their families finances will be harmed. The vouchers steal public funds to support private institutions and this is wrong. Do not harm our society now and in the future by making education only accessible to elite families. Shame on anyone who supports this clear theft of funds!

William Harris, Dr.

self

Houston, TX

Unless this bill forbids those making more than $150,000 per year from the vouchers, it is a give away for the rich. It should also limit the amount a private school can charge for tuition to the value of the voucher.

Lloyd Pinkerton

Voting resident

Godley, TX

No vouchers or ESAs. Properly fund public schools. Vouchers will be the obamacare of education.

Erica Flynn

Self

Hurst, TX

I am against this Bill, because vouchers are not equitable in the amount funded, there is not adequate accountability for those funds, or availability for the truly needy students to use them. This will ultimately subsidize the wealthy who can afford to make up the difference in their private tuition. It will negatively affect the majority of students who go to public schools and it will be cost prohibitive in a very short amount of time. Vouchers have not been fiscally successful in any state that has implemented and the data shows what will happen. We need to look at other states and not do the exact same thing.

Mandy Twomey

Self, public high school band director and flag sponsor

El Paso, TX

Please step into the public schools and see what it is like. Please speak to your public school teachers. It is ignorant to think that you can pass laws over matters with which you have antiquated thoughts about. Walk our path before you decide how to pave it.

Naomi Bonney

Self

Fate, TX

Texas already has school choice. Texas's public funds do not need to be spent on private/homeschools as parents who choose to educate their children in private/homeschools already have e the all the funds they need to educate their children. The public funds need to stay and go to public schools and charter schools for needed teachers, facilities and other supplies. We also need to stop State Mandated testing and return all that money to the districts and charters for curriculum and teacher salaries.

Christina Putnam
Self
Nacogdoches, TX

No Vouchers!!! We might as well have Elon Musk running Texas. Denying the Texas Constitutional provision of public education for all by privatizing services is shortchanging taxpayers and Texas children. Abbott and his cronies must be invested in educational online programs for these schools. No!!!

Johanna Patricio Bueno, Ms.
Self
Denton, TX

I am against the HB3. This bill will harm public education.

Maile Quindara
Self
Lewisville, TX

To Mr Chairman and the Education House Committee:

Thank you for your 100% attendance and attention to this hearing.

I am a proud product of Texas public schools with a Masters in Eaelly Childhood Educacion from the University of North Texas (originally North Texas State Teachers College). I am currently a proud Lewisville ISD classroom teacher, 7 years in a Title 1 school and now 10 years as an English teacher in a Spanish Immersion Program. This program is designed for native English students the opportunity to become bilingual and bi-literate. 23 out of my 39 first graders are not zoned for this elementary school. 9 of those are out-of-district transfer students, some choosing to drive 40 minutes past multiple ISDs and alternative options to attend my school. Students are learning to speak the language of their grandparents and can finally communicate with them more fully. Due to lack of funding, my resources have been cut and I cannot receive the appropriate books based on the Science of Teaching Reading (which I learned in the state mandated Texas Reading Academy.) My own income and retirement is at risk with the start of a new Texas school funding system, and I already have to work a 2nd job to supplement the rising cost of living in the DFW area.

The Government Finance Officers Association of the United States and Canada (GFOA) has awarded the Certificate of Achievement for Excellence in Financial Reporting to Lewisville Independent School District for its annual comprehensive financial report for the fiscal year ended August 31, 2022 for the 24th time. And yet, we must close 5 elementary campuses. Public schools are the heartbeat of communities; we are a gathering place and a safe haven. Texas Friday night lights represents more than football: the musicians, the drumline, the cheerleaders, the drill team dancers, and all their parents coming together to support their team.

I am writing in opposition to HB3 and its loose statutes for ESAs. I am for an increase the basic allotment, to supplement - not supplant - state funding with local or federal dollars; and to update the school finance system to include enrollment-based funding; adjustments for inflation, student education, teacher compensation, and other costs outside of district control; consideration of regional cost differences; and accurate funding weights.

If school vouchers are inevitable, please write in an income cap, so that tax payers are not supporting wealthy families in HB3. Please use public funds to fully fund public schools.

Thank you for your attention and time.
Ms. Quindara

Tiffany Shaw
Self/Public School Educator
Garrison, TX

This bill is a slap in the face to EVERY public school educator who depend on YOU! You are in control of providing the needs of our students and our schools, as well as we, Texas public school educators, being able to survive financially. Educators have THE most important job, as I'm sure you have heard millions of times. You need to understand, though, that those of us that are still here supporting our students are here for because it is our passion! We are not just "teachers of education" anymore! Texas public school teachers parent, nurse, counsel, love, teach education, as well as how to be a good human. Our school children in public education NEED us! And you, you are taking away from what my school will be able to do to provide for us. I teach in a very small district, with low socioeconomic students, but it is my home. I love my school, my community, my students. I am requesting that if you want to contribute more, give it to the public schools you are invested in! Give the teachers that chose to be in Texas and educate ALL students a raise so that they can survive and maintain a household without stressing each month on how they will make it to the next pay check. If there is all this extra money laying around, give us the same benefits that state employees receive, because let's face it, we are state employees. We have always felt like our hands are tied because we have no way to advocate for ourselves, but you have opened the flood gates. We will not stop! All parents have a choice! And let me just say that students I have received in the past from private schools were not able to keep up with what we were doing in the public school classroom. We are already "behind" in Texas as compared to others places. I do not have enough room in this comment to begin talking about that though, but I will say stop making a test with a 40% passing rate and make something that is on level for these poor students. And, by the way, would ALL students at ALL schools in Texas be required to take this test that are funded by many businessmen who have a hand in politics? Back to the bill, most students in my school and schools alike would not be able to afford these private schools even with your little voucher. You need to rethink this! We, Republicans, are dissatisfied and disgusted and disappointed in you. Do better! You are taking away from OUR, YOUR kids. You are supposed to be an advocate for us, but instead you are hurting us financially, physically and mentally. There are SO many other things in education that would benefit from financial help rather than taking away from it. I love my job and my students. I am where the Lord wants me to be. You are making this very difficult for us all, though. It's very hard to find a teacher these days to fill any position. What are you going to do when we all say, enough?

Jennifer Powers, Educator
Self
Mansfield, TX

Before considering vouchers, let's first properly fund public schools. Vouchers do not serve all students—only those who likely can already afford a different school. Providing public funds to private entities is not a good steward of the public good. Giving public money to schools who do not have the same requirements and accountability measures is in no way acceptable. School vouchers are nothing more than a bonus for wealthier families. Properly funding public schools helps the entire state. Seeing our elected officials push for something very little of the state supports is disheartening.

Laura Stewart
Teachers
Houston, TX

I am a Texas public school teacher in Houston. I have taught for 38 years. I am opposed to vouchers for these reasons: It will harm rural schools most of all by taking funds away. Many rural districts do not have the option if choosing private schools because they are not available. It will also hurt suburban and city schools. There has not been an increase in the allotment per student since 2019. We have experienced a pandemic and inflation since then and are expected to keep up with those costs. The governor also demanded each campus have a police officer but did not provide funds for this.

Lastly, I thought republicans fundamentally did not believe in the redistribution of funds. Isn't that what vouchers are? Doesn't that go against Republicans basic philosophy?

Pamela Wells

Self

Cypress, TX

As a taxpayer, a retired public school educator, and a grandparent of a child in public schools, I send these comments against HB 3. There is no question that vouchers will reduce available funding for public schools which are the bedrock of our Texas economy. As a taxpayer I can say that vouchers are in no way conservative fiscal policy. They are welfare for the wealthy with little accountability. If you look at our neighboring state of Arizona it's clear that vouchers could cost far more than has been projected and could bankrupt our state. Please continue to fulfill your Constitutional responsibility to provide for our public schools. Thank you.

Barbara Hargrove

Self

Temple, TX

Stop throwing educators and public schools under the bus. You had TEA do what you wanted- made us teach to the horrible test and now you want to condemn public schools and give our funding to the rich! We have always had a choice- nothing new so don't try and make it sound so great. Make the private schools be accountable and take any that come to their door. You are an example of a leader who has been "BOUGHT ". Guess you look at your wallet instead of Texas and its schools. STOP the voucher drama and tell the billionaire to go buy someone else. SAVE our schools and reward our kids and teachers. This is my 50+ year in education and I am soooo upset that you are trying to demolish our schools because of the money you have been bought with. I am ashamed of you and your crooked governor, Lt governor and the other "bought" representatives. SAVE our public schools and get rid of vouchers. NO to vouchers!

Laura Grosskreutz

self

Haslet, TX

Public Education should be a constitutional right that cannot be changed by power hungry politicians like Greg Abbott! This is NOT IN THE BEST INTEREST OF TEXAS STUDENTS AND CITIZENS. It only benefits the wealthy. The majority of Texans will VOTE ANY REPRESENTATIVE OUT OF OFFICE FOR SUPPORTING VOUCHERS!

Melissa Dowdy

Self

Austin, TX

This bill absolutely should not pass, nor should any private school voucher program or "educational savings" program. This is a misuse of tax-payer money that should go to fund our public schools. Passage of this bill takes away money from the public schools, who are already severely under-funded due to the state not supporting them! All our children deserve a free and appropriate education, not a subsidy for the wealthy to get a reduced price for schools to which they're already sending their children. Taking money away from the public schools to fund this initiative means programs get cut and education suffers. It does not improve access to private schools to poor families, as they still can't afford the difference in subsidy. This will negatively affect my son's career as a high school teacher, and it'll ultimately trickle down to negatively affect my pension through TRS as a retired educator of 29 years. This is a reverse-Robin Hood plan that is a nothing more than a money grab for the wealthy, at the expense of the majority of public school children and teachers across the state. Not to mention that families in rural districts across the state have no access to private schools and so will be required to attend a failing public school system, only failing because you've refused to fund it appropriately! We rank 43rd of 50 states in per student funding. How embarrassing! Get your priorities straight and represent the majority of Texas families who want excellence from their fully-funded public schools--not these voucher scams!!

Rose Davis
Self
Bridgeport, TX

Say no to HB3. Private schools are not required to provide special education to students. Private schools can turn away any student for any reason. We do not need to provide private schools with public funding.

More than half the counties in Texas do not even have a private school option. This is literally taking money from the public and giving it to the rich.

Why are we letting donors outside the state of Texas decide how we run our education.

Clinton Gill, Mr.
Self
Lubbock, TX

I am writing to ask committee members to vote NO on HB3. The private schools that would benefit from this voucher scam would not have to follow the same rules as public schools, would not have to accept the same students as public schools and wouldn't have to provide the same services as public schools. This bill is nothing more than a handout to the rich. As a former public school teacher, I encourage all of you to go and substitute in a public school for a week rather than going to take a picture. Talk to the teachers and see what they have to put up with. What you will find is that teachers are cussed out on a regular basis, assaulted on a regular basis, have to clear their rooms on a regular basis because of wild student behavior, and much more. If Texas public schools are "failing" as you like to say, there is no one to blame but yourself because you have been in charge of the Texas government for at least the last decade. The rich billionaires from west Texas and out of state are pushing this agenda and you know it. Stop being afraid of the Governor and his rich friends and start representing YOUR CONSTITUENTS like you were elected to do.

Janet Tollette, Retired 5th grade math teacher - FRIENDSWOOD ISD
Self
Friendswood, TX

Do NOT vote for HB3. School vouchers is a terrible idea. I had a private school student join my inclusion classroom in May from some international charter school in Pearlsnd. This sweet, hardworking student didn't have the majority of the skills my low students had. Private schools do not hold their teachers to the high level of accountability that public schools do and parents don't realize this. This bill is a disservice to children.

Victor M. Renteria, Mr.
Self, Secondary - Level Math Teacher
El Paso, TX

I would want my Texas state Senators & Representative to vigorously oppose School Vouchers on favor of Public Education funding for all AND a "noticeable" pay increase for ALL TEACHERS !! The voucher measure, I believe, will re - introduce a "separate, but equal" mentality, funding, AND disparity for minorities AND handicapped/Special Ed. "Parental Control" of school curriculae
AND School Boards will only perpetuate favoritism, bias, AND limiting free/critical thinking in classrooms.

Ashlee Gonzales
Self
Corinth, TX

I do not support HB 3. Do not pass HB 3.

Morgan Agnew

self

Austin, TX

I understand having financial aid available to kids to get into private school if that is their dream, just like for college. But the rich people who can afford private school shouldn't get a discount. Instead, that money should go towards improving the public school system so that ALL KIDS can receive a quality education. The majority of parents can't afford even discounted private school and most of those schools don't offer comprehensive support for kids who have learning disabilities. How is taking only high test scorers with no special needs who can provide their own transportation (which usually equates to being middle or upper class) going to shrink the gap between the highest and lowest achieving students? Thank you for your time.

Chris Overton Overton

HEBISD

Grand Prairie, TX

If you feel this will help the education of children in TX, then ALL students should be funded equally. Give every child in the state a $10,000 ESA. They can take it wherever they want: public, private or home. Aren't you willing to invest in ALL children?

Sandy Bryant

Public Educator and Counselor

San Saba, TX

Help teachers make public education what it's intended to be!

Pam Paser

Homeowner

Plano, TX

I am against this bill. By passing this bill Texas is establishing a class system using Texas tax dollars. School funds should be used for the purpose of helping public schools. Shame on those who came up with this bill. I am sure those who did were entitled self serving individuals

Heather Does-Krell

Myself

Denton, TX

I do not support defunding our public education system to benefit a small group of wealthy people to subsidize their children's private education. This bill is bad for Texans and it's bad for our future plain and simple. Let's get wealthy, out of state donors out of our political system and do what's best for our own citizens.

Michelle Williams

Self

Dallas, TX

Good morning, my name is Michelle Williams and I would like to express my strong opposition to this school voucher scam. I understand and respect anyone's support for school choice, and I share your concerns about the state of our public education system. I think it's important to clarify that being against vouchers isn't the same as being against school choice. Texas families already have various options for education, including public, charter, and private schools, as well as homeschooling. The voucher program doesn't actually expand choices for disadvantaged students; it takes needed public funds to private institutions, which often serve wealthier families.

Our public schools haven't seen a funding increase in over six years, and vouchers would further drain resources, worsening conditions for the students who rely on public education the most. I agree that the system is far from perfect, and there's a lot of room for improvement, especially in how we support teachers and allocate resources. But I believe that dismantling public education through vouchers will only widen the gap between the haves and the have-nots, giving wealthy families more benefits (and more tax breaks) while leaving our most vulnerable students with fewer opportunities.

As your constituents, we ask that you honor the will of the majority of Texans who elected you. Most of us are against this measure, and we urge you to vote accordingly.

Emma Shobe

Self, QC Analyst

Justin, TX

I do not support this bill. Public money should be invested in public schools so that education can be improved for all students and not just the ones with access to and the ability to go to private schools. This bill stands to benefit the wealthy and line the pockets of the executives at these private schools and will only hurt the majority of students in Texas. If you all insist on going forward with this, include in the bill requirements to accept all students without the ability to expel them due to test scores or behavior and hold them to the same accountability standards as public schools so the public can see how these schools truly compare to public schools academically. Make it an apples to apples comparison and not apples to oranges. Force them to accept all students and serve them appropriately based on their disabilities, language acquisition needs, etc so they are comparable to our public schools and can be held to the same standards. I do not believe this will improve education for all students in our state and does a huge disservice to our populations with higher educational needs or to the populations of students without access to an accredited private schools. Do better for Texas and our students.

Steven Gallington, Mr

Fort Bend AFT - SPED Teacher Elementary

Missouri City, TX

I am against this voucher scheme. Four reasons to vote no on HB 3: 1) On average, 75% of ESA funds go to wealthy families with students already in private schools. 2) The remaining 25% of the funds go to substandard pop-up private schools and students' academic success plummets at these 'schools'. 3) Voucher schemes like this one have been failures everywhere they have been widely implemented. 4) Where vouchers are, taxes increase. 62% of Republicans in Texas oppose HB 3 for fear of property tax increases and lack of private schools in rural Texas.

Voucher schemes like this one have failed to pass in Texas since the first attempt in 1957. Why? Texans (your constituents) don't want it. Follow the Texas constitution, listen to the people, and reject HB 3.

Thank you.

Lindsey Williams
Self
Austin, TX
No school vouchers

Rachael Lawson
Self
Austin, TX

All Texas children deserve the best education available. Even with vouchers many of them cannot afford private schools. Private schools are not held to the same accountability as public schools. Say no to school vouchers.

Emma Cowan, Student UT AUSTIN
San antonion, TX
Slay

Chioke Coreathers, Mr.
Sheldon ISD - Teacher
Galena Park, TX

I SAY NO TO THE SCHOOL VOUCHER PLAN.

Karl Lewis
Self - retired
Irving, TX

Vote NO on school vouchers! It is not “parental choice,” it’s reverse Robin Hood (robbing public schools to pay for the rich). Abbott’s insistence on this bill belies his questionable ties to private schools.

Em Pruitt
Myself
Lewisville, TX

This bill is ridiculous. How can you call it “school choice” when the following circumstances are at play:

A family lives in a rural area. The closest private school is an hour and a half away. How is this school choice for this family? They won’t want to drive that far!

- families who live in extreme poverty can’t even afford to buy a car to drive them to a private school. They rely on the school bus to get their children to their neighborhood public school. How is this school choice for this family?

- a family (like my SIL) has 6 school age children. Even with vouchers there no one in the world they can afford a private school and they love their sweet neighborhood schools who bus their children to school and so t ask for extra expenses for field trips, uniforms, sports. Etc. How is this school Choice for them? She has NO choice but to send her kids to their public achool And you want to take money away from their sweet school.

-a child (like my own) who has dyslexia, dysgraphia, hearing loss and a cognitive math processing disorder, as well as being GT. He is best supported in his public school. And you want to tell me that this bill isn’t going to affect funding, etc? Give me a break.

-I have so many other examples. I’m a pediatric speech therapist and the kids I serve will be underserved because of this bill.

Does anyone care about these kids? About their families? Their schools? Their future?

-this bill os going to turn this state blue which is my fear. Because republicans like me will NO LONGER vote for the people who supported this awful bill

Ashli Milyo
Self
Hickory Creek, TX

I do not support HB 3.

Viola Guerra, Ms.
Self/ 5th Grade Teacher
Alvin, TX

Please support Public Education and say NO to vouchers!

Ricky Riddle
TRA
Fort Worth, TX

I am against any voucher scheme! Fund public schools now and give teachers a raise now! My taxpayer money is not to be used to give to the rich!!!! Pero

Rebecca Ginsburg
Self
Houston, TX

Vouchers not only pull money away from our underfunded (by the the state) public schools, but in states where they have implemented vouchers, the cost of private schools have increased. Further, private schools are not accountable to the state. I am fully against this bill. If you want vouchers, bring them to the voters and put them on the ballot instead of hiding behind your big donors.

Jaquita Madding
HartmanPTA- Teacher Appreciation Chairman
Wylie, TX

I say no to vouchers! I speak for my children, their friends, their classmates and our teachers!!

Earnol Brewster
Self
Marshall, TX

Please vote no on vouchers.

Kathleen timmins, citizen voter
People who know the truth of what you're doing
Dallas, TX

NO to VOUCHERS. YES TO PAYING TEACHERS THE PROFESSIONAL SALARIES AND SCHOOL DISTRICTS SHOULD GET AT THE VERY LEAST WHAT YOU WERE WILLING TO STEAL TO PAY FOR A VOUCHER.

Kirsten Ward

self/retired public school teacher

Fort Worth, TX

Public education is necessary for a truly free country to work efficiently. Teaching students how to think for themselves as well as produce new and better products for the future, is in the best interest of EVERYONE. When students only repeat what others have told them and do not think for themselves it is a black day indeed. The simple fact that as a High school teacher you are required (based on my recent job) to be a mentor, parent, coach, therapist, etc to each and every student in your public school cannot be monetized. When parents have given up on their children, we, the teachers, are still there to help the kiddos pick themselves up and continue on. HB 3 allots $10,000 for private schools, but only $6,500 to public schools.....that alone is discriminatory. In Brown vs Board of Education the Supreme court ruled that separate is inherently unequal. The difference in funding is blatantly unequal. Fixing the school system in Texas is of utmost importance for the future of the state and the country. Taking even more money away from struggling public schools will not make them better. All students are required to attend school in Texas. When the students are not allowed admittance to private schools, they end up in the public schools. These students usually require more services, supports and personnel to help them. Fewer funds mean fewer resources. Paying for remediation and incarceration of adults who were failed by the system is much more expensive than paying for good quality public schools.

Defund the required STAAR testing for students in public schools would help get rid of the text book monopoly on the districts. As a chemistry teacher my district did not even provide me with enough funds to pay for required lab experiments but they purchased text books that were not fully functioning because they were considered "HQIM" (High quality instructional materials) by the state funded review committees (I sat on one of these committees and our task was to determine whether each of the TEKS "could be taught by the teacher and could be learned by the student." The quality of the lesson was not something we were to look at. This does not make the text book "High Quality). Private schools are not required to adhere to the TEKS. With so much information readily available teachers should be showing students how to learn and how to think. Public school teachers, especially those in tested subjects, do not teach ANYTHING that is not on the test. This is called being "aligned to the curriculum." In reality they are just "teaching to the test," because bonuses and their evaluations require good test scores. None of these pressures are on the private schools unless you are talking about advanced academics and AP courses. Most of our public school students will not be going to the top tier schools or completing AP courses.

Please reconsider how changes are affecting our students. HB 3 is NOT the answer to Texas's failing schools.

Jessica Kelly

Self/homemaker

Orange, TX

School choice has always existed. Parent are free to send their child to a private school of they desire. This bill does not address the private school that has selective enrollment and will deny a child admission. Fund public schools properly. It is unconstitutional to use public tax money for private education.

Joni Gigliotti, Mrs

Self retired public school

Plano, TX

I strongly oppose the establishment of an education savings account. All you are doing is giving the people who already send their children to public school money to pay for it when they already have enough money to send their children to private school. You are putting money that could be used to strengthen public education in the hands of people who don't need it. You could do so much with the money to make public schools in Texas the best. So do not pass this bill. Pass one to give money to public school programs to help the less fortunate. I am a retired Texas public school teacher and you should be doing all you can to support public schools.

La Shanda Linley

Self/ education

Houston, TX

No,

Elizabeth Dennison

self

Katy, TX

I oppose the idea of an education savings account system in Texas. I do not believe that public funds should be used for private education. An ESA system in Texas would do more harm than good. It would weaken public schools, disproportionately benefit wealthier families, lack accountability, open the door to vendor exploitation of public funds, and fail to improve educational outcomes. Rather than diverting funds away from public education, Texas should focus on adequately funding and improving its public school system to benefit all students, not just a select few.

ESAs Divert Funding from Public Schools

Texas ranks among the lowest in the nation in per-student spending, leaving many schools underfunded and understaffed. When students leave public schools for private institutions, the funding allocated to them follows, leading to budget shortfalls that force public schools to cut programs, increase class sizes, and reduce resources.

ESAs Primarily Benefit Wealthier Families

While marketed as a way to expand educational opportunities, ESAs are more likely to benefit wealthier families than low-income students. Private school tuition often exceeds the amount an ESA would provide, meaning that only families with additional resources could afford to use them effectively. Meanwhile, lower-income students, who rely most on public education, would be left in schools with diminished funding and fewer opportunities.

Lack of Accountability and Oversight

Unlike public schools, private schools and homeschooling programs that receive ESA funds are not held to the same academic or financial standards. Public schools are subject to state-mandated testing, teacher certification requirements, and financial audits, ensuring that taxpayer money is spent effectively. ESAs, however, open the door to potential fraud, misuse of funds, and lower-quality education. Also, comparing the outcomes of public and private schools to each other when they are not held to the same academic standards is comparing apples to oranges. It is not a valid comparison when they are not held to the same standards and mandates.

No Requirement for Special Education Services

Public schools are legally required to provide services for students with disabilities under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA). Private schools, however, are not held to the same standard. With an ESA system, families of special needs students may unknowingly forfeit their rights to specialized services when they leave the public school system, leading to inadequate support for their children's educational needs.

Rural Communities Would Suffer the Most

In rural Texas, where private school options are scarce or nonexistent, ESAs would do little to expand school choice. Instead, they would simply drain funds from local public schools, which often serve as the backbone of rural communities. Without viable private school alternatives, rural students would be left with fewer resources and worsening e

Jose Carlos de la Puente

self / College Professor

Austin, TX

Many public-school districts in Texas are operating with large budget deficits because Gov. Abbott and the Legislature haven't increased their basic per-student funding allotment since 2019. And these public schools will continue to educate the vast majority of Texas students. Public tax dollars belong in public schools and should not be diverted to private schools and their upper-income students.

Wealthy families are major beneficiaries of similar universal voucher schemes that already have been enacted in other states, including Arizona, while many low-income parents, even with vouchers, can't afford to send their children to private schools.

And, as reported last week by the San Antonio Express-News, critics also warn that many special education students would get left in public schools that already are severely underfunded and understaffed. Vouchers that would be offered to special education students wouldn't come close to covering the high tuition charged by the few private schools that accept students with special needs.

Vote against vouchers!

Lyndal Chaffin
Former school board member
Farmers Branch, TX

1. Public schools are the lifeblood of neighborhoods and rural communities.
2. Vouchers will irreparably harm our public schools and especially those in rural Texas.
3. I IMPLORE all Texas legislators to reject the on-state and out of state mega-donors.
4. Mega-donor opportunists and dominionists eagerly await the outcome.
5. This is a battle against the "Trojan Horse" (vouchers) that is part of the plan to eliminate and destroy public education.
6. This is a battle against the decades long effort to destroy public schools as evidenced by the lack of funding and continued unfunded or under-funded mandates.
7. This is an effort to further divide our communities.
8. To suggest that a family should get over $10,000 per child when public schools on get only ~$6,100 based on attendance is HYPOCRITICAL.
9. Parents don't choose schools; schools choose students.
10. Vouchers are the biggest hoax in the history of Texas politics.

PLEASE - REPUBLICAN LEGISLATORS HAVE THE OPPORTUNITY TO DO WHAT IS RIGHT, NOT WHAT IS POLITICALLY EXPEDIENT!

Cindy Fleharty
Self
Leander, TX

No to vouchers!!!

Jeremy Newman, VP of Policy, Texas Home School Coalition
Texas Home School Coalition
Crowley, TX

Texas is home to between 500,000-650,000 homeschool families. Many of them survive on a single income so that they can provide the form of education they believe is best for their child. Homeschooling has been exploding in growth for several years, but growth is by far the fastest in minority communities who cite the condition of their public schools and their experience with racism in the public schools as the most common reason that they chose to homeschool. Another skyrocketing segment of the homeschool community is families with special needs children. These are families who are dedicated to doing what they believe is best for their children and desperate for options, but under our current system, many of them cannot access the form of education they know their child needs. HB 3 would help to give them that access. Under HB 3, low-income and special-needs families could use ESA funds to help cover the cost of home education and certain specialized programs that their child may need, such as tutoring, special needs therapy, or dual credit. This would be a game changer for those families. Not all homeschool families would want to participate, a right that HB 3 is careful to protect. But 71% of homeschool families in Texas support ESA programs because they know that increasing parental choice is good for children and good for families. We would urge the committee and all of its members to support and pass HB 3 and we thank Chairman Buckley for his leadership on this bill!

Clydene Pittman
Myself Homeschool teacher
Canadian, TX

I am not for requirements being put on an education savings plan or being funded by tax payer dollars.

Brittney Knight, Mrs
Self - therapist
San Antonio, TX

I support public education as it is more equitable for all Texans. Low income students who need a safety net will lose that if funding for public education is cut and the quality of public education suffers. Also, it is more beneficial when education is seen as benefiting the greater good, not a business model.

Julie Dishman

Self, contract specialist

Jersey Village, TX

I am opposed to the creation of an education savings account program using taxpayer dollars. Public funds belong in public schools. Please do not pass HB3.

Charlotte Dorsey, Ms.

Self -Retired educator, counselor

Dallas, TX

Our children deserve to have well funded public schools. This voucher scam will further reduce funds available for our most vulnerable students and their schools. I do not want my taxes used to give money to families for private schools...nor do my friends and family who send their children to private schools need those dollars. Too many teachers are leaving the field because they are already overworked and tired of using their own funds to try to serve their students well....Texas public school children deserve better.....

mark stevens

Self/retired

San Antonio, TX

This will have a detrimental effect on public education. Use these funds to improve public schools infrastructure and teachers salaries.

Bitia Gilliam

Self

San Antonio, TX

I do not agree with using public money for private interest profits. I do not agree with public money used for religious education. Stop sabotaging public education. Quality public education for ALL!!

Trina Barnette

Paraprofessional at a rural public school

Hico, TX

I am AGAINST any kind of vouchers for the state of Texas. The governor is delusional if he honestly believes that the majority of Texans want this nonsense. Vouchers will hurt our public schools and will only make the governor and his friends to line their pockets. Our educators work so hard from the cafeteria workers, bus drivers, paraprofessionals and teachers ALL deserve a raise and our public schools serve so many rural students that a voucher would never help. Please vote NO to any vouchers for Texas.

Rebecca Hankins

AAUP AFT

Bryan, TX

No to Abbot's voucher scam.

Tish Langland

Wylie ISD Council of PTA's

Sachse, TX

Please keep school funding in Public Schools. No to School Vouchers. Our kids now and in the generations to come will be the face of our state and great nation. By limiting these funds you are doing them a disservice. They deserve better.

Diana Bistran
Hartman Elementary PTA
Wylie, TX

I say no to Vouchers! I speak for my children in public school, their friends, and all our teachers

Pamela Hughes
Self, Candidate for Richardson ISD School Board, Communications Director in the UMC
Richardson, TX

I strongly oppose the use of taxpayer dollars for private school vouchers in Texas, as proposed in HB3. Public funds should be dedicated to public schools, which serve 5.5 million Texas students, not diverted to subsidize private education with no public accountability.

We have seen the consequences of voucher programs in other states like Arizona—blown budgets, no meaningful improvements in public education, and a system that primarily benefits wealthy families who could already afford private school tuition. There is no reason to believe Texas would be any different.

In February, I spoke with multiple legislative offices that represent me and Richardson ISD, and not one could explain how a voucher program would improve public education. Instead of fixing gaps in funding and services—especially in special education—the Legislature continues to underfund our public schools, criticize them for struggling under financial constraints, and then push for privatization as a supposed solution.

But this is not a solution. Texas' Constitution makes clear that the Legislature is responsible for an efficient system of public education. If there are shortcomings, it is on you, our elected officials, to ensure our schools have the resources needed to meet the standards you set. That means fully funding our schools and ensuring special education services are properly supported—not shifting responsibility to private school headmasters who have no obligation to serve all students.

Public education is the foundation of our communities, workforce, and economy. Please do the job we elected you to do—fund our schools and strengthen the only system that exists to serve all Texas children.

Kelle Spinn
Self - Retired Educator
Round Rock, TX

People who are set to make money through private schools are in favor of this bill. Those who care about what is best for the children of Texas, including parents and educators, are against it. Please vote no to HB3. Support us, and we will support you!

Jan Payne, Retired School Librarian/Tech Specialist
Self
Wolfforth, TX

I oppose this bill for a variety of reasons: separation of church entities and state, taking monies which public schools are in dire need of, the debasing of public educators, and putting the needs of disabled children in jeopardy. Private schools will not be held to the same criteria as public ones while public schools serve all children. "School choice" is a sham because parents already have choices! We sent one of our four children to a private school for some time, but we would never have expected tax dollars to pay for that decision!

Tiffany Anderson Ahmad
Self
WYLIE, TX

Keep public dollars in public schools. The solution to the problems in public schools is NOT to ignore them and give parents the "option" to send their children to school with unqualified teachers, biased curriculum and NO plan for special needs children.

Patricia Landers
Retired Teachers of Texas
La Marque, TX

Public schools are the lifeblood of Texas. Vouchers will harm our schools, our teachers, retired teachers and our children.

Harley Pier

Self/Former Teacher, Financial Advisor

Saginaw, TX

School Vouchers are a terrible Idea and the Majority of Texans agree. Please stop pushing the narrative that they do agree. None of polling shows this. All this will do is hurt public education and make us even worse compared to the rest of the nation. Instead of trying to take money away. How about you increase funding, take away standardize testing and put your time and energy to fixing the real problems.

Emily Strain

Self/interior designer

Dallas, TX

Increase teacher funding, providing raises

Megan Fuentes

Self

Richardson, TX

I do not want my taxes going to private schools. I support fully funding our public schools! No vouchers

Kelli Moulton

Self

Corsicana, TX

Oppose- no public funds should be used for private educational vouchers, or an ESA program . Let's first fully fund our constitutionally guaranteed public education system before we commit tax dollars to private entities. Choice already exists in Texas, let's look at the best of our current systems.

Daniela Reyes

Self

Levelland, TX

I'm asking you to reach out again for public comment because tomorrow the committee is hearing HB3 in regards to their ESA's; this is what I sent

As a public education advocate, teacher, and parent, I strongly oppose House Bill 3 and its push for an education savings account (ESA) program. This bill threatens to divert essential public funds from our schools, funneling taxpayer dollars into private and unregulated educational institutions. Instead of strengthening public education, HB 3 undermines its foundation by prioritizing a program that benefits a select few while leaving the majority of students behind.

From a public education perspective, the establishment of an ESA program weakens the financial stability of our schools. Public schools rely on consistent funding to maintain quality instruction, support services, and extracurricular programs. By redirecting state education dollars to private and homeschooling options without accountability, HB 3 erodes the resources available to students in public classrooms, especially those in rural and underfunded districts.

As a teacher, I see how policies like this directly harm students. When funding is siphoned away through ESAs, schools face larger class sizes, fewer support staff, and cuts to essential programs. This ultimately hurts the students who need the most support—those with disabilities, English language learners, and children from low-income families. Teachers are already struggling with inadequate resources, and HB 3 would make providing a high-quality education to every child harder.

As a parent, I want my child—and all children—to have access to a well-funded, strong public education system. ESAs prioritize individual choice at the expense of the greater good, leaving public schools to suffer while taxpayer money supports unregulated private institutions with no guarantee of quality or equity. Public education should be a public good, not a system weakened by policies that divert funding without oversight or accountability.

For the sake of our students, teachers, and public education system, I urge lawmakers to oppose House Bill 3 and reject the establishment of an education savings account program. Instead, we must invest in strengthening public schools and ensuring that every child—regardless of background or zip code—has access to a quality education.

LANET GRAY GREENHAW, Former Richardson ISD Board of Trustees member

Self

Richardson, TX

VOTE NO on SB3 for vouchers and ESA's! The Texas Legislature must fully fund Tx public education and raise the Basic Allotment and teacher salaries before considering dollars for private education. There is no way that a private school student is worth $10,000 and a public school student is worth only $6,160. That's wrong!

Lisa McMillian

AFT

Dallas, TX

Keep PUBLIC TAX DOLLARS IN PUBLIC SCHOOL ONLY??. My child went to private school and I had to work two jobs to do it. Therefore, I feel like if anyone wants their child to have private school needs to PAY for it on their DIME as I did?????????. Keep my TAX DOLLARS going to PUBLIC EDUCATION??????????

Adam Meester
Self
San Antonio, TX

Dear Members of the Texas Legislature,
My name is Adam Meester, and I am a Special Education teacher with 11 years of experience teaching in Texas. I am expressing my strong opposition to HB 3 and the proposed school voucher program. This program will not serve all students equally and risks creating a form of segregation that will disproportionately harm students requiring special education services. One of the most glaring concerns is that Texas law does not hold private and charter schools accountable for following the same Special Education standards as public schools. As someone who has taught in charter schools, I have witnessed firsthand the inadequate support these institutions provide for Special Education students. Over time, I have seen how these environments slowly dismantle special education practices and create segregated campuses, marginalizing students who require specialized support. Special Education is not just a professional passion of mine—it is deeply personal. I am a person with dyslexia. When I was a child, my parents considered enrolling me in a private Christian school, but when they toured the campus, they quickly realized that the school's special education program was grossly inadequate and lacked the necessary resources. Without the fantastic public school teachers who supported me throughout my K-12 journey, I would not have learned to read and write. These teachers, who undoubtedly faced numerous challenges within the public school system, showed up daily and gave their all to ensure that students like me had the chance to succeed. HB 3 threatens to divert much-needed funds away from public schools to private institutions not equipped to serve the diverse needs of Texas students. Voucher programs like this will only widen the gap between those who can afford quality education and those who cannot, creating an unequal system where students with special needs are left behind. I urge you to vote no on HB 3. Protect our public schools, our students, and the future of equitable Education in Texas. Sincerely,
Adam Meester Special Education Teacher

Holly Rohring
Self
Fort Worth, TX

VOTE NO- Texans do not want this voucher scam passed!

Antonio Mancilla, Mr.
Self Palestine, TX

Vote No on HB3. My taxes support public schools. We will remember how you voted!

Richard Meisel
Self
Lufkin, TX

As a 20 year plus veteran educator in my community I have seen first hand what our public school are capable of even though the state continues to ask us to do more with less. The voucher scam being pawned off as school choice is nothing more the man another money grab for those already in power. It will only benefit those who are already a part of that system or who have the means to afford a private school choice in the first place. Every state that has tried to implement this system has seen their public school system suffer, and good educators leave the profession. Town halls all across Republican districts are being called off because those constituents are letting their voices be heard and the politicians in those districts do not want to hear it! Why does our state continue to belittle and gut a profession that is so desperately needed! HB 3 and its counter part SB 2 are like trying to put a bandaid on a damn that's breaking. Do better! Be better for the future of our state, our children, and ultimately our country!!!

Aracelly Quintero

Self

Cypress, TX

Our public servants should represent the will of their constituents and the broader public. FUND public schools and NO to school choice

Karin Porter

Self

Carrollton, TX

I personally have attended public schools in Texas and worked in public schools as a teacher and Digital Learning Specialist for over 31 years. I retired and went to work for a Christian private PK - 12th grade school organization. I also sent both of my children to public schools and they are very successful adults. I have been pro public schools my entire life. I felt it was a calling to work and serve our children. And, I'm still that way at heart. It was a tough decision to go to work for a private school. They are great and I love that we can embed our faith throughout the curriculum. I am against HB 3. If our schools were provided the money they need to meet the needs of our bilingual, special ed and regular ed students I might consider. The $6000 vs $10000 amount per student isn't even equal to why would you give more money per student to a private school. And why are non-educators who make tons of money so adamant on support and paying politicians to pass this bill. The school funding has been held hostage for way too long because the community speaks out against vouchers. And sad thing is if this happens I believe the public school budget will continue to be way too low. Teachers deserve better! Communities deserve to not have to close their schools. It's astonishing how many public schools are closing in North Texas. Please, do not pass this bill. Then, put your time and effort into funding public education. Look for ways to give the abilities to discipline students. How our students AND many parents are treating educators are the problem. Give them the financial resources to handle behavior issues as well as the increased number of students on the spectrum. Addressing bullying would be another benefit. Once you take care of these things then look for ways to adequately fund vouchers without taking away from public schools. And set boundaries those that are rich do not get the money. I'm all for some families giving opportunities to choose to send their children to a school of faith and they can't afford it. But not just Willy nilly. This support for private school needs to be for those who need the support. Thank you for listening. Please do the right thing. Vouchers are not going to fix our public schools and make them better.

Erica Oadrta

Self

Willow Park, TX

HB3 in Texas is just another attempt to divert public funds away from our already underfunded public schools and into private institutions through a voucher system. This is a direct attack on public education, which serves the vast majority of Texas students, especially those in rural and low-income communities.

Vouchers do not guarantee better education—they just shift taxpayer dollars to private schools that are not held to the same standards of accountability and transparency. Instead of supporting all students, HB3 would prioritize a select few while leaving many behind.

Texas needs real solutions—fully funding public education, paying teachers what they deserve, and ensuring every student has access to quality resources. We should be investing in our schools, not defunding them.

Let's stand up for public education. Say NO to HB3!

Arlene Jacob

Self

San Antonio, TX

This is a horrible idea. Taking funds from public schools to create a voucher program for families who want to send their kids to a private school is not where Texans want their tax dollars going. How can public taxes go to fund private schools? Is that constitutional and legal? You need to make the right choice and do right by the Texans who voted you into office.

Cynthia Edwards

Self

Houston, TX

I'm am not in favor of school vouchers

Hannah Hill

Self

Nocona, TX

I have been an elementary teacher for 20 years. Please please consider the negative impact of this bill on small, rural districts. We need funds in our schools. Not money going to private schools who can refuse admission to anyone. Can you not see the gross negligence towards our students with special needs? Please do not do this.

lisa toomey

Self

Canyon Lake, TX

No vouchers! Yes to public education, growth for all students!! We need an educated, critical thinking generation, not haves and have nots!!

Deborah Watson

Self (retired teacher)

Aransas Pass, TX

This legislation is a coupon for the wealthy, who can already afford private school. It is wildly unpopular, and Gov. Abbott has only gotten this far in his battle to pass it because of bully tactics. Texans don't want this. A vote to pass it is a vote against your constituents, and goes against the mandate to provide a quality, free education in the Texas constitution. We, the voters, will not forget who chose to ignore our wishes. Billionaires do not get to dictate public policy!

Stuart Shulman

Self - Educator

Little Elm, TX

I don't think that there is much else that needs to be said that hasn't already been said in terms of the overwhelming and passionate display of opposition from citizens from every part, party, ideology, and walk of life. It is clear that the actual citizens of this great state are against this. The educators are against this. The schools are against this. Parents are against this. It seems that the only constituency that is for this is the donor class, out of state actors, oil billionaires, and corporations with interest in privatizing schools. Please hear the peoples voices. Please reconsider this. Please look at the evidence and data from other states that have tried the same thing and what it has done. Please consider reinvesting and tripling down on our many phenomenal public schools and institutions. If we truly want Texas to be the Lone Star State and one that is the belle of the ball, then we need to fully fund the best way to do that, which is our public schools. No subsidies for the wealthy. Fully fund public schools. Fill the gap between un and underfunded mandates. If you choose to pivot away from this voucher passthrough subsidy and invest in public schools and ALL of our students, Texas will soon have the most unstoppable workforce in the history of our state, and the nation. Thank you.

Mark Holmes, Mr.

Self - Tax Director

Dallas, TX

Vouchers are bad policy. Legislators can and should look to other states like Arizona and Florida to see the negative effects of vouchers on students, public schools, and state budgets. Public dollars should stay in public education, but any voucher passed by Texas legislators needs oversight, clear guidelines, accountability, and transparency. School vouchers are taxpayer-funded subsidies given to private schools and vendors without transparency and accountability for results. They often go by various names, including vouchers, education savings accounts (ESAs), tax credit scholarships, and virtual or special education grants, to name a few. Regardless of what you call them, school vouchers and ESAs siphon public dollars away from public schools without the accountability and transparency required of traditional public schools.

Linda Moore

Self

Sanger, TX

I'm totally against a voucher system in Texas. Public funds should not be used to fund private schools. I also believe in separation of church and state. There are no accountability requirements for the private schools. Fully fund your public schools and give teachers a big pay raise so we aren't at the bottom of school funding.

Lisa Barton

Self public school teacher

The Colony, TX

Vouchers are wrong for Texas. Parents already have school choice. It is awful that you would give more financial assistance to private schools than public schools. Private schools already don't have to take state mandated tests, and discipline problems are eliminated by expulsion. Some students will end up back in public schools anyway. Class sizes are already borderline too high, when students are sent back to public school, they will be out of control. Holding school funding hostage until vouchers pass is doing nothing but harm to the thousands of public school students and teachers that rely on that funding. Our governor does not have an education background, therefore he should not be pushing so hard for them to pass. He should interview teachers, parents, and administrators to get a real view of the effects of school vouchers. It seems he just wants to jump on the bandwagon. Vouchers are definitely going to destroy the education system in Texas. I think more research into the negative effects of vouchers needs to be done. Although I no longer have children in the education system, my husband and I chose to send our daughter to private school through grade 8. It was my choice to do that, and with that choice, came extra responsibilities, including working a part time job after my teaching job to afford tuition (without tuition assistance). This option is open to everyone. Please vote down the voucher system in Texas. Regular people, like me, will thank you for it.

Lindsay Attkisson

Self- school psychologist

Dallas, TX

As a public school mom and employee, I'd like to see our legislators increase the basic allotment provided to schools to fully fund public schools. I am against voucher schemes as they take money from public schools and public funds should be used to pay for public services. As a school psychologist working in public schools in Texas, I see the damage done when our students aren't fully supported. Special education students will suffer if vouchers are passed.

Ashley Hermann

Self

Anna, TX

I am against HB 3.

While I applaud the idea of prioritizing children that receive special education services and also low income students, the fact that families making well over six figures can STILL participate in the program is unsettling to me. Can there not be a family income cap? Why do families making 300k have the potential to possibly get a voucher?

I also have serious questions about how the vouchers will be evenly spread across the state. Or will we see concentrated numbers of vouchers in certain areas. I'd also like to know who or what is making the decisions about who gets picked. I understand there are prioritizations, but are we just picking names from a hat?

What happens to the voucher money if the student decides to leave chosen private school or is kicked out and returns to public school. Will the money be taken back from the private school?

Lastly, I listening to the hearing for 11 hours yesterday, I heard parent choice a lot. But it really did feel like school choice, because ultimately the private schools get to decide if you can enroll. I don't think most private schools have a nefarious agenda, but ultimately they ones who say accepted or denied. Not the parents.

I would encourage the committee to have an actual meeting with public educators from across the state to really get ideas about what we can do to better our public school system.

Karla Pardo, Constituent

Self - Parent

Coppell, TX

I wish the same level of energy by the governor and other supporters of these types of bills was used to protect my kids from gun violence. Tax money to help the common good. Vote no on this and any other bill that try to defund public schools.

Patricia Powell

Private citizen

The Colony, TX

Please do not pass HB3. Gov Abbott has already held public school funding hostage and has not allowed the schools to be funded adequately. This bill only helps the wealthy. It does not help SPED students, students in rural communities, low income. Once again all Gov Abbott is worried about is helping his wealth donors. Please stop this nonsense that most Texans do not want.
Thank you

Cynthia Strode

Self

Fate, TX

I am firmly against school vouchers. Public education needs to be fully funded to properly educate children in Texas.

Kate Edwards

Self, Consultant, Mother

San Antonio, TX

I oppose any use of taxpayer dollars to fund students attending private schools. Whether these are called Education Savings Accounts, "school choice," or parent empowerment, I urge you to oppose any legislation using PUBLIC dollars for PRIVATE schools. I firmly believe in parent choice, but this legislation is not CHOICE; it is a CHANCE. You are creating a lottery system for these vouchers, and at the end of the day, it is up to the schools to accept these students; it has nothing to do with parent choice. Parents can choose a private school, but private schools do not have to choose them. Vouchers are taxpayer-funded programs benefiting a small group of children. Public schools are required to accept all students. Public schools require annual assessments aligned to state curriculum to track student progress. Public schools report openly and are accountable for the use of taxpayer funds. Public schools have openly elected school boards. Public schools are held accountable for student performance. Public schools comply with federal protections for students with disabilities. Public schools accept all students. Private schools adhere to none of the above. These bills set the amount of taxpayer money that could go to a private school at $10,000. However, the current Basic Allotment is only $6,160, and even the 2/21/25 HB 2 proposed increase to $6,380 is a massive inequity for Texas public schools. Considering inflation, increasing the basic allotment by $220 is laughable. As a registered Republican, fiscal conservative, and a believer in the value of public schools, these bills are not fair to the children and parents of Texas, has little oversight of how the public funds are spent, creates Constitutional questions about separation of church and state, hurts public schools, leads to class segregation, and is not fiscally conservative. Please instead support an increase of the per-student Basic Allotment for school funding by an additional $1,340 to adjust for the impact of inflationary costs to our schools since 2019. The Basic Allotment for schools has not changed since 2019, but prices for everything have skyrocketed, causing cuts to my school's budget, which have resulted in bigger class sizes, a decrease of talented staff, and no salary increase this past year for our teachers. We are feeling it in a big way. Our budget situation is depressing, and we are faced with having to cut $5 million from our already-shrinking budget for the next school year. As a mother of three public school students, I CHOOSE to send my children to our public schools; they are extraordinary. However, our schools will no longer remain extraordinary if our state continues to engage in complete inaction for public school funding. The Texas Constitution outlines your responsibility to "establish and make suitable provision for the support and maintenance of an efficient system of public free schools." Please choose to fund public schools first before anything else.

Sharron Rogers

TPPF/self

Taylor Lake Village, TX

I became a single mom and was determined to defy the odds. I made sacrifices - sold homes and business and moved back to Texas so my son, Blake could be surrounded by family, community, tradition and love that supports the values I believe in. I never intended to live in the home I bought through Blake's school years but circumstances prevented us from moving. The public schools in our area had declined. I opted for private school so I could stay near my grandparents while they were still living. The position I accepted allowed me to be an active, present participant in Blake's life, but it was a financial sacrifice. I took on many consulting opportunities, sometimes working 3 jobs to pay tuition. But he attended the best school for him. After my grandparents passed away we moved to be in a better neighborhood, with great public schools. A few years after we moved Blake asked if he could go to public school to be with his friends - fellow boy scouts, teammates and neighbors. Through much consulting and prayer, we transitioned him into public schools. The choices I made for Blake were the right choices and they were my right to make. Fortunately, I was able to support these choices financially regardless of my current zip code. I know that burning desire that families have, that we all have - to provide what's best or something better for our kids. EVERY PARENT deserves that right!

Linda Zeccola

self; nurse

Austin, TX

Please support public education. My parents went to public school and so did I, and my children and grandchildren. I am certain I got a better education than some of my neighbors who attended private school. I worry about the voucher system taking away money from public education. We need to fully support public schools for now and the future.

Miranda Bauer
Self- Librarian
Joshua, TX

I am against HB3 for many reasons but mainly because it exacerbates inequality and harms the public education system that the majority of Texas students rely on. It takes money away from our underfunded schools at gives it to people who do not need it.

Shannon Reynolds
Self/retired School Counselor
Willow Park, TX

Please vote no to Vouchers.
The current bill is not going to help improve education in Texas. The voters of Texas DO NOT support this. If so many leaders believe Texans do support vouchers, why not put it to a vote and let the voters in Texas vote?!

Kim Broom
Aransas County Democrats
Rockport, TX

The establishment of our public school system is one of the greatest achievements in American policy. I have witnessed this personally. Although I am a descendant of multigenerational Texans, I was raised abroad in multiple third world countries. I have seen the impact of nonexistent or underfunded public school programs in countries from the safety of my privileged private education. America is the envy of the world for their commitment to primary education for ALL children. Establishing an education savings account program will stress an already underfunded public system. It will hurt rural kids the most who have little access to private schools or quality home schooling opportunities. Urban children will also see their public schools system degraded. I can only recognize positive outcome for a small privileged few who mostly already attend private schools. I am also concerned about individuals and companies that will emerge to game the system and cheat the government. Who will oversee this predictable event? I advocate for saying no to HB 3 and yes to keeping a strong public school system for our children and continue to be the envy of the world.

Karen Adams, Ms
Self
Georgetown, TX

I adamantly oppose school vouchers. Keep supporting our public schools.

Susan Nichols
Self
Leander, TX

If we have enough money to give a billion to Charter Schools why not give it our public schools?
Also, are Charter schools going to provide ALL the services that Public Schools do.
All the programs that aid our children to develop even if they learning difficulties?
Athletes that contribute to Complete Development?

Sarah Connelly
Self
Palo Pinto, TX

I believe HB 3 will be detrimental to public schools. It will take funds away from public schools that are already hurting. I think if HB 3 is passed it will lead to the demise of the public school system as we know it.

Shalini Toopran

Self

Pflugerville, TX

Stop it with the private school vouchers and divert the funds to public schools! Those who can afford private schools do not need vouchers. As a resident, I want our tax paying dollars to go to our public schools. TX schools are already suffering from funding and lacking infrastructure. Listen to your constituents and do the right thing

Michele Kadera

self

McKinney, TX

I am writing to express my strong opposition to school vouchers in the state of Texas. Vouchers divert crucial public funds away from our public schools, which serve the vast majority of Texas children, to subsidize private and charter schools that are not held to the same accountability standards.

Our public schools are the backbone of our communities, providing education, support, and opportunities to students of all backgrounds. Instead of funneling taxpayer dollars into private institutions, we should invest in strengthening our public school system by increasing teacher pay, improving resources, and ensuring every child has access to a high-quality education.

I urge you to stand with Texas families and educators by rejecting any voucher proposals and focusing on policies that uplift public education for all.

Thank you for your dedication to the future of Texas students.

Rhonda Thompson

Self

Dallas, TX

School vouchers are not in the best interest of Texas students and families and undermines our public education network, which serves as bedrock for Texas. Resources should be used to support public school system and not undermine it. Do not vote in favor of school vouchers.

Nicole Boehm

Self

Austin, TX

Education Savings Accounts (ESAs) may sound like a way to expand educational opportunities, but in reality, they threaten to weaken Texas' public education system and leave most students worse off.

Diverting Critical Public School Funding

Public schools are already underfunded, struggling to provide essential resources to the millions of students who rely on them. Taking taxpayer dollars and funneling them into private accounts—often used for private school tuition—means even fewer resources for the schools that serve entire communities. We can't afford to chip away at public education when so many students are already being shortchanged.

A System That Benefits the Few, Not the Many

Let's be real: ESAs overwhelmingly benefit wealthier families who can afford to supplement the funds, while lower-income families are left with little to no real options. Instead of increasing opportunity, ESAs widen the divide, creating an "education for the few" model rather than strengthening schools for everyone.

No Standards, No Accountability

Unlike public schools, private institutions and education service providers receiving ESA funds aren't held to the same accountability standards. That means taxpayer dollars could go to schools that lack proper oversight, fail to meet educational benchmarks, or even discriminate in admissions. Public funds should come with public accountability.

Texas Deserves Better – Fully Fund Our Schools

Public education exists to serve every child, no matter their background, income, or zip code. Instead of undermining it with ESAs, we should be focused on ensuring that every public school is fully funded, well-equipped, and supported.

I urge you to oppose this bill and instead increase the base allotment by a minimum of $4,000 per student—bringing Texas' education funding in line with the top 25 states in the country. Anything less is failing our kids and shortchanging the future of Texas.

This is a moment to do what's right. Let's put our money where it matters—investing in public schools, not draining them.

Nancy Martin, Dr.

Self/Retired

Dripping Springs, TX

I urge you to vote NO on HB 3. Public schools should be well-funded and well supported. This bill harms our already underfunded schools. This bill needs to be booted out the door.

Monica Sullivan

Self, baker and parent

Leander, TX

Not only is there a lack of evidence supporting the efficacy of ESAs, but there is ample evidence that these accounts are fiscally irresponsible often resulting in state-funded programs that balloon over the intended budget and are rampant with fraud and misuse. In fact, all seven states that have established universal school vouchers in some form have seen their budgets increase five to tenfold their intended amount. Florida, who has enjoyed a healthy budget surplus, is projected to be operating with a budget deficiency by FY 26-27 according to Florida Tax Watch, and in Arizona a 2018 study found it was 75% more costly to educate a student in the voucher program than their public school counterparts. Also notable, after adjusting for inflation, six out of seven of these states reduced or froze their public school funding and the portion of the state economy invested in public schools decreased in all seven states - a major concern when 90% of the student body still attend public school in most of these states.

What does that sound like to an average tax payer like myself? It sounds like state governments are using tax money to supplement more affluent families' education at the expense of the larger, less advantaged and more vulnerable population that public school is best suited to help. My concerns are not just for the negative impacts on Texas students either; public schools support economic ecosystems across our rural and suburban districts that are vital to the health of many Texas municipalities and our public school campuses are the watering holes of our next-generation leaders and entrepreneurs.

Educating the entire population has enormous benefits that have been documented in numerous studies including family stability, more productive citizens, less crime and less reliance on welfare programs resulting in less money spent by state governments and lower burdens on tax payers. Spending billions on vouchers that will, in reality, only help a small portion of the student population while not properly funding public school will result in a weaker and more dangerous society that costs tax payers more money.

When considering HB3, I urge you to remember the duties you hold as a legislature, not to your governor or to the radical whims of a few billionaires, but to your constituents. Remember your responsibilities to legislate in a manner that promotes good health, liberty and economical growth for the state over the next 40 years, not just political points in the ever-changing tides of the next 4 years, and your legacy will endure for it. I pray you understand the importance of keeping public dollars in public schools; if you must consider some form of 'school choice', ensure these schools receiving public dollars are held to the same standards of transparency and reporting that public schools are held to and charter schools should be held to. Thank you for your consideration.

Melissa Selden

self/teacher

Austin, TX

Hello,

As a public school teacher, I find great value in public education. I chose to go into this profession because I believe we should have an educated population and I wanted to be a part of a dynamic system where I work with the public. I believe people are stronger and able to take care of themselves better if they are educated. I also believe everyone deserves a free education provided by the government. It is a human right, in my opinion. Taking money away from public education to give to people for private education undermines this premise. There is nothing wrong with people wanting to use private schools for their children, but because there is no way to make it equitable for all Texas children, it should not be funded in any way with public funds. Not all areas of Texas have access to a variety of private schools. The amount of money being proposed would not be enough to pay fully for private school, which means families who can't afford it, even with the education savings account, will still not be able to attend private schools. Also, private schools are not held to the same accountabilities as public schools, so there is not a way to check on standards. Private schools do not have to provide for students' special needs, so families with children who have special needs will not be able to benefit. Public schools have a number of specially trained teachers who can meet the needs of all students and personalize instruction. Lastly, private schools are allowed to decline enrollment or ask a student to leave the student body. Public education, however, is for everyone. No one is left out or asked to leave. Taking money from public education to give to private schools that are not equitable and not prepared to meet everyone's needs is unfair to public school children because the money will be taken from their districts. Districts are already suffering because of unfunded mandates from the Texas Legislature. We should be proud of our Texas schools and teachers and doing everything we can to promote their success. The rest of the country watches us and sees the disrespect you promote towards your public schools and teachers. We want to be a model for the country, not a joke. Thank you.

Ash Malina

Self

Austin, TX

- (1) Fund our schools properly
- (2) Increase the basic allotment
- (3) Change funding to enrollment not attendance
- (4) All tax payer funding should meet the same requirements regardless of the institution —Special Education provisions included
- (5) Eliminate the STAAR test.
No vouchers!

Kasey Frye

Self

Buda, TX

I am opposed to HB 3. The creation of a school voucher system will have incredibly damaging and long lasting effects on education in Texas. This bill will also disproportionately harm lower income children by stripping school funding away from public schools. All children in Texas deserve to have access to great, equal public school education and HB 3 is not how we achieve that.

Naomi Dalach, Mrs

Self

Pflugerville, TX

I am writing to let you know that both me and my husband strongly oppose school vouchers or any type of school savings account. It is your job to provide a good equal education to all the students in Texas and not take away from our public school system which needs your help. If a parent chooses private education then it is their choice to pay for it. We don't even slot each student in public school $10,000 but want to give that to people who aren't held accountable as to the same rules our teachers have to abide by. The private schools can pick and choose students they want and don't have to provide services to all children's needs. So they can pick the cream of the crop regardless of needs. The wealthy families will be the ones benefiting from a bill they chose to take on when they chose private schools. They are the ones trying to force this down our throats. The majority of Texans don't want this. It's only governor abbott and his rich campaign supporters trying to dictate what they want. Why didn't they out it in the ballot at a regular election and hear what the people want? They know it would fail ! It failed through how many sessions last year that Abbott campaigned only for people that would back his wants to place them in office before he pushed for another vote. We live in a democracy not a dictatorship where he gets what he wants before the people's wants. I will do my hardest to not support or vote for anyone who forces this bill on us. I feel I have a say on my tax dollars and want them to go to our public school system not some rich private enterprise. Fix the system you have let deteriorate and needs funding not opening up a can of worms for more fraudulent use if our money then the children in the whole state I Texas will be neglected. Give the money to all if our public schools equally. Please do not vote for this bill or create a bill so it can be put up for a vote of all people not just a few who dint seem to care about everyone just a few

Sara Kinser

Self

Belton, TX

Who is Jeff Yass and why did a man from Pennsylvania donate nearly 12 million dollars to a Texas election? This bill is dirty dirty dirty and more people our great state are coming to understand Greg Abbott's scheme to get it to pass by primarying and replacing all GOP reps that would vote no to it. School choice robs from already underfunded public schools to give wealthy families a $10,000 per year coupon to attend private schools.

Do you know how many private schools are in my county and they are already basically full? 800 spots in a country with nearly 400,000 people. This helps no one except the 800 kids already attending private schools, whose parents can already afford it. No thanks. Public education is a constitutional right. No to "school choice"

Carolyn Grimes, Ms

Self, retired

Vernon, TX

As a product of Texas public schools, I am appalled by the suggestion that school vouchers are even being considered. Public schools already struggle with poorly paid teachers and very limited budgets. To give public funding for public schools to those who choose to send children to private schools is unthinkable. NO SCHOOL VOUCHERS!

Maria Hernandez

VELA

Austin, TX

School vouchers threaten students with disabilities by removing protections, limiting access, and increasing costs for families.

Loss of Federal Protections

Public schools follow the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA), ensuring services like IEPs and therapies. Private schools accepting vouchers are not bound by IDEA, meaning students can lose critical supports. For example, a child with autism receiving behavioral therapy in public school may not get any services at a private school. Parents also lose advocacy tools like ARD meetings and legal recourse if schools refuse accommodations.

Limited Accessibility

Private schools are not required to accept or support students with disabilities. A school can deny a child with a wheelchair if it lacks accessibility or dismiss a student with dyslexia needing specialized reading programs. This could leave thousands of students without a school placement.

Higher Costs

Vouchers rarely cover full tuition, leaving families to pay the difference. Public schools provide therapy, assistive technology, and behavioral support at no cost. A family relying on occupational therapy could pay thousands of dollars privately.

More Segregation

Public schools promote inclusion, but private schools may not. A student with Down syndrome learning alongside peers in public school may be placed in a separate setting or denied admission in private school, increasing segregation.

Extra Burden on Parents

Navigating special education is already complex. A parent familiar with ARD meetings and due process in public school must learn a new system with fewer protections. This is overwhelming, especially for working parents.

Unequal Access

Low-income families, English learners, and rural residents face barriers using vouchers. Many private schools lack bilingual staff, making it hard for non-English-speaking parents to advocate. Families in rural areas may have no private schools nearby, making vouchers useless.

Instead of funding private schools that can exclude students, we must invest in public education to ensure every child gets the support they deserve.

David Cook
Self
Wichita Falls, TX

Dear Members of the Texas Legislature,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to Texas House Bill 3 (HB 3) for the 2025 legislative session. While I understand the intent to improve public safety, HB 3 introduces excessive mandates that pose significant risks to our schools, communities, and individual freedoms.

HB 3 imposes unfunded security mandates on public schools, forcing districts to divert crucial resources away from educational programs, teacher salaries, and student support services. This financial strain hinders schools' ability to prioritize positive learning environments, creating spaces that resemble fortresses rather than welcoming places for education.

Additionally, HB 3's expanded surveillance policies and reporting requirements risk compromising student privacy and autonomy. These measures foster fear and suspicion, potentially isolating marginalized students rather than supporting them.

The bill also undermines local control by imposing one-size-fits-all security measures that fail to consider the unique needs of Texas' diverse communities. Local leaders, educators, and parents are best positioned to make decisions about school safety that align with their district's priorities.

Instead of restrictive mandates, I urge you to invest in proven strategies like mental health services, counseling programs, and educator training. These evidence-based solutions promote safer and more supportive learning environments without the unintended harm HB 3 may cause.

I strongly encourage you to oppose Texas HB 3 and focus on approaches that prioritize the well-being and educational success of Texas students.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

David Cook
4313 Sutton Circle
Wichita Falls, TX 76309
940-447-4652

Kendra Sullivan
Self - Speech therapist in schools
Houston, TX

I work for a charter school. I do not agree with the voucher program. We should not be abandoning children in need of a robust and full public education program.

Loree Foreman, Ms
Self/Retired Texas Public School Teacher
Cedar Park, TX

I do not support HB3. Please do not vote for it.

Christine Burch
Self - Retired Teacher
Cedar Park, TX

program does not create real choice for families. There are certainly many issues with our public education system that prevent it from effectively serving students, but funneling money out of this system and into private institutions through vouchers is not the solution to our problems. A strong public education system is integral to our democracy, and vouchers undermine public education. Additionally, these programs as implemented in other states lack proper accountability, exacerbate inequality, engage in exclusionary practices, fragment communities, exacerbate segregation, and decrease academic achievement. Instead of diverting funds to private institutions, perhaps you should focus on strengthening our public schools to ensure that every child, regardless of their background, has access to a high-quality education. This issue matters to me and I vote. Thank you.”

Tracey Hamilton, Mrs
Self. Homemaker
Waco, TX

I am strongly opposed to the establishment of these “savings accounts” (vouchers) our Public schools have been underfunded for years now... to further erode resources in order to support a benefit that would largely exclude the most needy children is unacceptable... as I'm sure you are aware it is highly unlikely that the full amount of tuition for private schools will be covered... nor would uniforms, books, transportation, extra fees,etc. In truth the poorest children would be excluded... the state has a constitutional duty to fully and properly fund our public schools and using public funds for private schools is also unconstitutional... other states have tried this with disastrous results (Arizona for example:total cost $800 million and counting) Any funds that are provided must be used to full fund only public education.

Hope Turner
self - design system program manager
Austin, TX

I do not support school vouchers. We should reserve tax money to fund public schools where ALL students are able to attend. This bill hurts rural areas where there is limited or no access to private schools. We are already behind other states in quality of education. If we approve this school voucher system, it will be an expensive failure.

Several U.S. states have implemented school voucher programs that encountered significant challenges and criticisms:

*Arizona: The state's universal voucher program led to a $1.4 billion budget shortfall, diverting funds from essential infrastructure projects. ?cite?turn0news8? Additionally, there have been instances of fraud; for example, two individuals were indicted for allegedly claiming vouchers for non-existent children, amounting to over $110,000.

*Louisiana: The voucher program faced accountability issues. In 2012, the state superintendent approved private schools for vouchers without established criteria, leading to situations where schools lacked adequate facilities for the number of students approved. An audit revealed that one such school had overcharged the state by $395,000.

*Florida: The Florida Opportunity Scholarship Program was declared unconstitutional in 2006 due to concerns about state funds being used for religious schools, violating the state's constitutional requirement for a uniform public education system.

*Indiana: Studies on the Indiana Choice Scholarship Program have shown mixed results. Some short-term studies indicated little to no improvement in student performance, and in certain cases, students experienced declines in achievement after transferring to private schools through the voucher system.

These examples highlight the complexities and potential pitfalls of implementing school voucher programs, including financial mismanagement, lack of accountability, legal challenges, and questionable educational outcomes.

Please do not let children suffer by implementing this voucher system. Thank you.

Tiffany Driver
SELF - EDUCATOR
Willis, TX

We do not want this. I literally cannot think of a single person/family (from either party) who agrees that this will benefit the average Texans.

Caroline Mithoff
Self
Austin, TX

The voucher bill is a scam designed by Abbott and his cronies to devastate public education in Texas. Public schools, unlike private schools, have to be accountable to the people they serve and cannot discriminate. We need to be building these schools up and paying teachers a living wage. Vouchers takes money from public schools and teachers and gives it as a discount to wealthy families who choose to send their kids to private schools. They made the choice to pay for school. Let them. It's time to fund public schools. This is part of your job as state representatives. Do it.

Dennis Kemp
Self-retired teacher-Army veteran
Lago Vista, TX

My wife and I who had careers in public education (for me it was after my service in the US Army) and we are staunchly against this bill and the ESA (AKA vouchers, no matter how you try to give it a new title to fool folks). It is absolutely untrue that vouchers will not have a negative impact on public schools or public school funding in Texas. That is what folks who don't understand how public schools are funded and staffed might believe, but those of us in education know better. If parents are given tax dollars intended to provide FAPE (free and public education) to use instead to send their kids to private schools then that means fewer butts in chairs in public schools. Public schools are funded based on attendance (butts in chairs). This means less money and fewer students. This also means that you need fewer public school teachers because you don't have enough kids to keep all of the teachers in your school (y'all try to say ESAs won't impact teacher retention and teachers won't be fired/RIFd/laid off whatever term you want to use). This then means that districts will be forced to combine students from several schools into one to fill the building to attempt to save money. That means that school buildings will have to shutter (imagine the millions of dollars wasted as a result!). Anyone close to the schools also knows that private schools pay their teachers even LESS than the paltry pay public school teachers get (thank you Texas legislators for continually finding ways to screw public school teachers and keep teachers among the lowest paid, most overworked career choices people with DEGREES can make) and they DO NOT have to accept students who have any sort of special needs. This THEN means that a good majority of students left in public schools will be those with behavior issues and special education needs that the private schools will refuse to provide and students they will refuse to accept. Wow. Then what have you single-handedly done to public schools? What teachers will want to stay in public education then? Private schools also hire mostly non-certified educators from sub-par prep programs and they are NOT held accountable in any way for the progress/learning of their students as they are not required to abide by ESSA, etc. Rather than pad the pockets of those constituents who contribute to your campaigns, think of ALL of the students and teachers in Texas you were ELECTED to represent. Please do not further strangle public school funding and add more to the stress of the dedicated public school teachers who are already treated poorly by our Texas legislators. Give teachers BIG raises (after all, they spend more time with kids than their own parents do). While you're at it, remove the age restrictions on teachers for retirement purposes. If you want to put teachers out of jobs, then at least allow those who meet Rule of 80 (TRS and ERS) to retire with 100% of the pay they have EARNED and eliminate the tiering system you put in place.

Njoki Kuria
Self
Grapevine, TX

School vouchers are a scam. They will defund public schools while giving vouchers to wealthy families who can already afford to pay the additional costs to send their children to Private school - (Private schools charge more for tuition than the vouchers will be worth, and low income families would not be able to meet the balance, in addition to raising extra funds required for activity fees, uniforms, etc.). Vouchers will divert resources from schools where they are needed. Every child in Texas deserves a quality education that is freely accessible and available without discrimination or selection. Private schools are able to give need-based scholarships to students who want to apply, and can choose to do so. Texas tax payer dollars should be funding strong public schools to educate ALL children without discrimination

Kimberly Harrell
Cypress Fairbanks ISD
Cypress, TX

I am writing to express my strong opposition to school vouchers in the state of Texas. Vouchers divert crucial public funds away from our public schools, which serve the vast majority of Texas children, to subsidize private and charter schools that are not held to the same accountability standards.

Our public schools are the backbone of our communities, providing education, support, and opportunities to students of all backgrounds. Instead of funneling taxpayer dollars into private institutions, we should invest in strengthening our public school system by increasing teacher pay, improving resources, and ensuring every child has access to a high-quality education.

I urge you to stand with Texas families and educators by rejecting any voucher proposals and focusing on policies that uplift public education for all.

Thank you for your dedication to the future of Texas students.

Chris Hunter
Self software developer
Austin, TX

This bill is clearly a give away of money to private schools and religious schools at the expense of public schools and their pupils. It's irresponsible and an offense to all Texans.

Trudy Baade
Self
Coppell, TX

Dear House Committee for Public Education. "TEXANS DO NOT WANT VOUCHERS. AT THE VERY LEAST, ANY VOUCHER ALLOCATION SHOULD NOT EXCEED THE BASIC ALLOTMENT PER STUDENT FUNDING, AND ANY SCHOOL RECEIVING STATE FUNDS SHOULD HAVE TO MEET THE SAME TESTING AND SAFETY STANDARDS. DIVERTING FUNDS WILL HURT PUBLIC SCHOOLS, AND WILL NOT GIVE CHOICE TO FAMILIES WHO CANNOT ALREADY AFFORD PRIVATE SCHOOLS. IN OUR AREA, TUITION TO REPUTABLE PRIVATE SCHOOLS IS ALMOST TRIPLE THE COST OF THE VOUCHER, AND EVEN IF THAT WAS COVERED, TRANSPORTATION WOULD BE A BARRIER FOR DISADVANTAGED FAMILIES TO USE AN ESA. ANY SCHOOL RECEIVING PUBLIC MONEY SHOULD HAVE TO MEET THE SAME REQUIREMENTS WHICH CURRENTLY INCLUDE STAAR TESTING, FINANCIAL REPORTING, SAFETY & SECURITY MANDATES, PRE-K REQUIREMENTS AND A-F RATING SYSTEMS OR ITS ALTERNATIVE. . OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS SERVE ALL STUDENTS, INCLUDING THE MOST VULNERABLE, AND DIVERTING FUNDS INTO PRIVATE SCHOOLS PUTS THOSE STUDENTS AT RISK. AT THE VERY LEAST, ANY SERVICE ASSESSMENTS DONE BY PUBLIC SCHOOLS SHOULD BE PAID FOR BY THE STATE.

PLEASE CONSIDER A LARGER (MUCH LARGER THAN $200/PP) INCREASE TO THE BASIC ALLOTMENT FUNDING FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS!!!!!!!!!!!!

Mary Hornby
Self, Research Assistant
Caldwell, TX

Vouchers are just a coupon for rich kids who are already in private schools, most of which are religion-based and also have tax breaks because of the religious association. Most normal Texans still would not be able to afford private school with no buses (parents have to have normal business hour jobs to be able to drop kids off at school!) and no support for things like required uniforms. Physically disabled children and children with learning disabilities will be left to the public schools with zero extra resources. I live in a rural county (Milam) & the only private school that serves PreK-8, is over 30 miles away. Very few parents I know have the luxury of such a long commute each day, on top if their work commute. It would have been impossible for me to work full time & enroll my children without the school providing busing. The 1 billion dollars the state is basically giving away to the rich, can be better spent on TX public schools. Do not pass Abbott's bill !

Vandi Alba
Self, retired Autism Consultant and Educator
Garland, TX

School Vouchers, education savings accounts, etc. will discriminate against those needing public education the MOST...the poor, minorities, and those needing special education. The rich can afford private schools, so let them access them. Keep public education funded to be sure ALL children in our state get access to a fair and equitable education. Equal education for ALL is a must for a free society to allow all students access to same future opportunities. Do not let the Texas Billionaires and Abbott reward their friends by allowing these unfair practices!

Steve Reynolds
Self
Frost, TX

I disagree with this bill for many reasons. Private schools and teach and do whatever they want without oversight. TEA has become the Enforcement Agency rather than a help to public schools. Abbott's buddy from Pennsylvania will get the contracts to distribute the slush fund and then Abbott will get kickbacks. Sounds like the Biden Democrats rather than Texas Republicans. I've been a Republican all of my life but quit voting republican the last 3 elections because of Abbott and Danny Goeb the Lt. Gov. They are corrupt and are only for their affluent backers.

Penny McAuley
Self
Garrison, TX

I have made my opinion known from the beginning. I am very much opposed to HB 3. I fear this will be the downfall of our public schools. Also, the private schools do not offer the services of a public school. Most importantly, the $10,000 will not help a low income family if the tuition is $25,000 a year. Most private schools in Houston are much higher than $10,000. Also, so many parts of our state do not even have private schools.

Ellen Raff
Stults Rd. PTA
Dallas, TX

ESAs/Vouchers are not the will of the majority of Texans. We love our public school districts and support our teachers who educate themselves for careers educating Texans. Public schools traditionally offer modern best-practice methods and excellent resources. Also public schools foster community in our cities and states. Texas is not like other states. So much of Texas is rural and those areas rely on public schools. Diverting funds from public schools results in LESS choice for Texans, not more.

Dorliss Kourey

Self

Cedar Hill, TX

This bill will kill public education, and I realize that is the intent. Republicans and democrats are united against this bill. Public money should only be used for public education! We should not be funding billionaires who want to take control of Texas Education. If this passes midterms will show how unhappy the voters of Texas are. We have a duty to the children of Texas to do what's right for them and this bill IS NOT it.

Shannon DeFord

Self

Amarillo, TX

As a 33 year veteran public school teacher, I see the value in public education. Diverting public funds to offset the cost of private school tuition for families with zero accountability or expectations of the school is wrong. Keep 100% of public money with public education.

Susan Noack

Self

Waxahachie, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Christian Linville, Ms.

Klein ISD

Tomball, TX

School vouchers will be detrimental to both teachers and public school students. As a fifth grade teacher, I see firsthand how underfunded we are and how overworked. The state has put regulations on accountability in all public school, which require tedious, testing, and constant rushing to push all the information in. Private schools do not have to live up to the standards and do not have the same accountability. Public school students deserve the same education as private school students and the same accountability should be had by private schools. As a public school teacher, I employ you not to dismantle this system. We are already being withheld the funds that we need for the students to have their supplies and everything else they need. Thank you.

Shawn Boyd

Self-Tax payer and Business Agent

Oak Point, TX

I graduated from a small East Texas school, Como-Pickton. I see the comments of the conservative teachers and administrators their on social media daily, worried that vouchers will take education money from the kids they teach and from programs they are doing a great jobs with. If they see it and they are conservative, why can't you as legislators see it? Just because the governor decides something is needed, it doesn't usurp what the citizens say. As a taxpayer, I am opposed to this plan. Money doesn't grow on trees and as Texas grows in people, we need a strong school system. If people can afford to send their kids to private school, fine. That's the way it's always been. The majority can't and they need public schools that function like Como-Pickton. Why the change right now? What is the driver for this change? I don't see it. I live in Denton County now. Why we would hurt what makes Texas special, our public schools, is a mystery to me. Please don't do this, you are in control.

Britania O'Brien

Self

Austin, TX

I am staunchly against school waivers in Texas. It will only cause harm to the children in our state.

Lydia Klespis, Mrs.

self/retired public school educator

Huntsville, TX

I am writing to voice my concern about passing a bill that would implement school vouchers in the state of Texas. As a retired educator, I firmly believe in holding all stakeholders accountable for the education of our youth. Accountability lies with schools, teachers, administrators, parents and the community at large including the state. The success or failure lies firmly with all. HB 3 would not hold private schools, receiving public school funds through vouchers, the same accountability standards. The state has implemented strict curriculum standards, extremely high stakes assessments, and complex teacher evaluation measures for public schools. These extreme measures are why our public schools are deemed unsuccessful. Will private schools receiving these funds be held to the same measures? I fail to see how giving funds to schools without any of these standards will improve education in Texas. I believe that public schools could serve our youth better and that change is definitely necessary, but passing school choice vouchers is not the solution in my opinion. Change for the better will only happen when we have accountability for ALL measured by the same standards. We only need to look at other states who have passed such a bill, such as Arizona, South Carolina, and Arkansas, to see that the desired outcome has not happened. Please consider all angles of this issue before passing HB 3.

David Patterson

self

Buda, TX

As a taxpayer, I want state revenue to go to public schools, not private schools. Please represent the majority of your constituents, not the minority. Thank you.

Cecelia Alongi Alongi

Self

Houston, TX

I am opposed to this bill. These schools are not held to the same standards as public schools leading to waste and lack of transparency

Tyler Spirlock

Self - parent

Granbury, TX

I strongly oppose HB3. I implore you to oppose HB3 with your vote.

Jessica Ferguson

Self

Thorndale, TX

It's a sad day to think that our elected officials who are here to look out for the greater good while being good stewards and serve as fiduciaries of PUBLIC funds, which is pivotal in the education of everyone, would think that it's acceptable to transfer public funds to private entities. My tax dollars, specifically the portion going to education should only be going to fund public school. School choice already exists in the form of homeschooling, private schools, charter schools, online school, and publicly funded schools. Those who choose education outside of public understand that it is their duty to pay taxes to fund public education even if they make a choice to send their children elsewhere. The foundation of education for literally everyone hangs in the balance of this decision and I pray that our legislators make the correct decision to vote against this bill. Protecting public education means protecting everyone's futures. Properly fund public education from teachers and administrators pay to programs, to money per student so that our public education system can have a fighting chance at being successful. High expectations with low funding is contradictory. Give us a chance.

Irma Guadarrama, Dr.

Self

Kyle, TX

I oppose HB 3 because instead of improving education it aims to further reduce public education thus neglecting students' needs. The bill does nothing but divide our communities and erode our institutions of education. Texas needs a strong, adequately funded public education if our youth are to participate in a better future for generations to come. This Bill proposes to eliminate opportunities for all our students. This is not who we are as Texans.

Alana Peddy

Self Retired Kindergarten Teacher 35 years

Mauriceville, TX

Please Vote NO to Vouchers!

Elizabeth Bomba

Self

Austin, TX

As the mother of four public education students, I would like to register my opposition to HB 3. There are many reasons that I oppose the bill, but I will keep it simple and state that the Texas Legislature has not and will not commit to fully supporting and fully funding public education (both traditional public schools and charter schools) and it should not be trusted to create a third system of education.

Vouchers for private schools undermine and erode the principle of accountability in education. Instead of creating a private system of education that further divides us, you and we should focus on strengthening our public schools to ensure ALL children, regardless of their circumstances, disabilities, or ability to pay, have access to a high quality education.

Mike Jones

Self

Chico, TX

Strongly oppose any Bill that will use Public Funds to establish ESA/Vouchers for private and home schools. Providing a Public Education is the only requirement in the Texas Constitution. Let's increase the Basic Allotment to $10,000 and see what our public school districts can accomplish.

Sarah Box

Self

Whitewright, TX

The voters do NOT want vouchers. You know it is wrong. Do not use public money for private schools.

Jeff Solmundson

self

Austin, TX

To those in favor of HB 3, here's an angle on the ESA's that doesn't get nearly enough of your focus: Texan households with no children in K-12 schools.

We pay the same property taxes that HHs with school-age children do but will have none of the say over how OUR tax dollars are spent.

It is inherently unfair for any carve outs to benefit one group of tax-paying Texans at the exclusion of all others.

If you really are a proponent of choice for how parents spend their tax dollars, I have a whole host of choices I'd like to make in how mine are spent!

The Houston Chronicle pegged the number of HHs without children of public-school age at approximately 70% of all Texas households. We have a voice, and we vote, too.

Shelli LeBlanc, Mrs.

Self

The Woodlands, TX

Vote No to school vouchers.

Giving tax payer money to private organizations and then have 0 accountability for the funds is paramount to robbing tax payers. Public schools have mandates by the state and federal government and if you are going to give money then hold them to the same standards as public education.

The state government and TEA are the ones responsible for our education system. If we are failing, which as a 32 year- retired public school principal I believe is a lie, the blame is with the appropriate support and funding from our state government.

Please fund public schools properly - end the funding formulary that is based off attendance. Everyone should be held accountable for the same standards and by the same rules.

Thank You,

Shelli LeBlanc

Public school parent

32 year public school educator - retired

Jerry Richardson

Self 34 year Sped Teacher

Waxahachie, TX

We are Texas! Not any other state. We pride ourselves in being the best. 34 years in Public schools as a general ed Science Teacher, former Coach, Assistant Principal and a Special Needs teacher. We're already underfunded and our governor wants to turn his back, not fix the problem but instead "fund" private schools? Leaving the poor students and students with disabilities behind? Private and Charter do not even have to have certified teachers. Why did I go into debt attending a state University for a low income job when I could have just went to one of the other. I have 5 certifications and I am shocked that our education system could be fixed rather than throwing money at a cheap alternative. Private is THAT... Private, to pick and choose. Public is the option and the governor's job to make it great!...NOT give up on it for a political run. Don't be a Perry. NO! TO VOUCHERS!!! SAVE PUBLIC SCHOOLS!!

Mario Orozco, Mr.

Gpisd

Grand Prairie, TX

Please listen to your constituents.

James Rice

Self

Perrin, TX

No Vouchers! If it comes to a vote, my expectation is that you will vote against vouchers. Seize this opportunity to fund schools. They have not been fully funded in my lifetime. Our public schools are a success story ask the doctors, lawyers, engineers and others they have produced.

Heather Chapman

Self

Buda, TX

Public education must be supported in its entirety as set forth in the state constitution!

Debbie Lewis, Career Educator

Self/Educator

Argyle, TX

I implore you to vote AGAINST vouchers! How about putting all that money into public schools to lead and model for the rest of the nation what can be done if public schools are properly funded!? Public education is the fundamental right for ALL. Vouchers are only help for the few that can afford to pay the difference between the voucher and what private schools charge. It's a scam to make the rich richer and poor without! Taking money from public schools will harm those students that are left because they can't pay, don't have transportation, and/or are not accepted at private schools making the divide much larger!! DO THE RIGHT THING for ALL Texas families!! Put the money towards public education not private school vouchers!

David Troiano

Self-retired

Highland Village, TX

I believe that the public education savings account program(vouchers) is a terrible use of funds. These funds (estimated at 1 billion dollars) will end up going to schools which are unaccountable for the quality of education that they provide and the services that they provide to students, especially those with special needs, if they accept that type of student at all. We have been underfunding public education for years and that needs to be addressed as well. So, if we have a $1 Billion to spend let's funnel it back into our public schools which provide services to all students and are accountable for the quality of the education that they provide.

Sylvester Gallardo, Mr

Teacher's

San Antonio, TX

Vouchers r your choice, not the people's choice. This was decided in the last legislative session. Yet, ur vindictive actions against those legislators do not change what the outcome was. Your solution is to put yes people in their place to get what YOU want passed, not the PEOPLE! Stop pandering to the lobbyists and start listening to the people! Education Funding needs to increase without any attachment to vouchers.

Jacquelyn Flynt, Ms

Self

Arlington, TX

I am deeply concerned about the implementation of vouchers in the State. No matter how I look at it, the practical outcome will be the defunding of public schools in Texas. I received an excellent education while attending public schools in Texas. I started off in private school, but after a disastrous year in 5th grade at what had previously been an excellent private school (we did maybe 3 math worksheets the whole year) I was behind going into 6th grade. My parents made the decision to pull both my sister and I from private school and placed us in public school. I went from the lowest performing math class in the 6th grade to completing AP Calculus by my senior year of high school. Public school got me on track. I graduated as Salutatorian in high school and the top 10 in college. I graduated law school with honors and a full ride scholarship. Public schools are not bad schools. They expose us to a wide array of different socioeconomic status, racial and religious differences and provide excellent education for ALL children with excellent support through IEPs for those who need them and performance and curriculum standards that are statewide. Private and charter schools do not have to educate ALL kids. They don't have to meet performance standards that public schools do and they are not free to ALL students. Removing funding from public schools to fund vouchers will leave children behind. It will also provide a false promise when vouchers only cover a portion of the costs of the non-public school. Public schools will lose valuable resources that help us all become active educated members of society and will further hurt children with special needs by leaving them behind in underfunded schools. SCOTUS has clearly stated that children in this country have a right to a free public education. When my parents elected to send me to private school they paid for it out of pocket in total. When we went to public school they paid their school property taxes that they had always been paying anyway even though we did not attend public school. Additionally, defunding public schools will lead to further teacher shortages. Teachers are not blue collar workers. They are white collar, highly educated individuals with special skills in helping students learn. There are teachers to meet the needs of ALL children in our public schools. They should be respected for their hard work and dedication not just for educating children, but also for playing a vital role in shaping minds with knowledge and preparing all of us for making a difference in our society as a whole. We should not be making their jobs harder with lack of funding, nor their lives harder for lack of compensation. Vouchers may help a few kids, but it will definitely help people who already have plenty more than it will help those who do not. And those kids left behind in defunded schools will suffer as will their communities. Say NO to vouchers and respect public schools and teachers.

Lilia Saldana

Self

Lubbock, TX

Against vouchers! Vouchers will hurt students and teachers alike. Vote No!

Cristen Wiggins, SE Teacher

Self

Fair Oaks Ranch, TX

Our public schools need funding. The governor, in the state of the state address, said that funding has consistently increased for our students. That's a lie that has put my district, NISD, and other districts in great debt. We need to do more for our students and vouchers are not the way!

Matthew Hessing

Self - Project Manager

Highland Village, TX

The school voucher initiative is not helping public schools. Our public education which is a core to the community and what makes Texas a great place is in jeopardy due to underfunding. The voucher program will further undermine the duties of educators across the state and force them to operate in even worse scenarios than we have now. Please do not vote in favor of the bill

Judith Wyble
Self retired educator
Spring, TX

Gregg Abbott and you are bought and paid for by Jeff Yass. We all know it! YOU don't want to help ALL kids, just those who you can help line your pockets!! HB 3 is a disaster!! We WILL vote you both OUT!! No to vouchers!!!

Jennifer Barling
Self
Mansfield, TX

This bill will not serve all students of Texas fairly, so it should not pass.

Chantell Edmond
Self
Friendswood, TX

I am a public school educator who has devoted 28 years to serving the children of Texas. I am asking that HB 3 does not pass but instead fully fund our public schools so teachers like myself do not have to continue to make up the difference to provide the best possible education for Texas students.

Terri Pease
Self
San Antonio, TX

As a public school parent, I strongly OPPOSE this bill. I could regurgitate the dozens of reasons why this is a bad bill (fiscally unconservative, steals resources from underfunded public schools, serves the rich, etc.), but my major concern is that it is being forced on Texans by Gov Abbott's egregious abuse of power. If this was an issue that was supported by the citizens of Texas, Governor Abbott wouldn't have to lie, manipulate, and threaten to get it passed.

PLEASE stand up for ALL Texans and oppose this bill. My children attend public schools in San Antonio and they are not being indoctrinated or exposed to "woke" ideology. They are loved, supported, and being prepared for their futures DESPITE the legislature's inability to fund their schools appropriately.

Listen to your constituents. Have courage to do the right thing. Millions of Texas children are depending on you to fight for them and not cower to the bully in the Governor's mansion.

Alexis Gross, Mrs.
Self
Fort Worth, TX

I strongly opposed this bill, and any other bill that takes public money for use in private and home schools. I oppose vouchers and demand that you fully fund public schools today.

Cheryl Sterling
Teachershb 3
Missouri City, TX

I'm concerned about Education's system in Texas. Let's make the best decision for our kids
No Vouchers

Jackie Freeman, Mrs
Self retired teacher
Universal Cty, TX

ESAs is a cover for the true identity ...it's a voucher. Mandated items but not funded have strangled public schools, not to mention funding for public schools has been slashed multiple times, teacher salaries ignored and held hostage, the list goes on... fully fund public schools... it is your constitutional duty to fund public schools NOT religious based schools and others. I strongly oppose HB3 because it steals money from public schools placing even more financial stress on an already struggling district! My district is closing a school, and some schools in my district are already lacking an art teacher because the "criteria" changed within the district because of the lack of funding... other positions are on the "chopping block" because of lack of funding...equality across the district is lacking because funding from Austin has been lacking. Remember your constitutional duty to your constituents is to fully fund public education. Vote NO to vouchers...

Judy Durland
Self
Troup, TX

Do not fund private school vouchers.

Liz Mangelsdorf
Richardson ISD
Dallas, TX

Vehemently against this Bill. Keep Texas money for Texas Public Education. Un light is today's new information about Dept of Education cuts, it is even more important to turn this Bill down, our children's Education is in serious jeopardy!!

Lenette Kelly
Self - retired educator
Bowie, TX

I oppose the establishment of ESAs for several reasons:

1. ESAs have little benefit for rural Texans who don't have access to private schools.
2. ESAs divert tax payer funds to private schools that do not have to meet the same educational outcomes that public schools do.
3. ESAs have been ineffective in improving educational outcomes in states where they have been implemented.

Please consider adding the 1 billion dollars that is earmarked for ESAs to the allotment for public schools. Public money belongs in public schools.

Kristi Kincaid
self
Houston, TX

I am opposed to vouchers. They ultimately ens of being coupons for the wealthy for children who are already in private school. They will take much needed funds away from our already struggling public school system. They give public funds to private entities with no public accountability.
Vote no on vouchers.

Carol Cozino
Self
Boyd, TX

I adamantly OPPOSE the dismantling of public education! Public dollars should only go to PUBLIC SCHOOLS!!! This will be remembered at election time! Represent the PEOPLE not only the ones buying you off! Texas government is a disgrace! Nothing democratic about it.

Meagan Sackenheim

Self-nurse

Lubbock, TX

Using public funds for private education should not be allowed. It isn't really choice. Private schools can deny anyone that they want so the reality is, the kids who might benefit from smaller class sizes etc. are still the ones that will be turned away. Vouchers only benefit certain individuals and the rich. Public funds should be used to improve our current public schools!!

Julie Cramer

Self

Mansfield, TX

I do not want school vouchers!!! I want our public dollars to fund education for all children!

Suzanne Powers

Self, public school teacher

Houston, TX

I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB 3 and the proposed Education Savings Account (ESA) program. This bill threatens to undermine Texas' public education system by diverting critical funds away from our already underfunded schools. Instead of supporting privatization schemes that primarily benefit wealthier families, the Texas Legislature should focus on strengthening public schools for all students.

Public Schools Need More Funding, Not Less

Texas ranks near the bottom nationally in per-student funding. Many of our public schools lack essential resources, struggle with teacher shortages, and face deteriorating infrastructure. HB 3 would siphon taxpayer dollars from these schools, worsening existing inequities. The Texas Constitution mandates "an efficient system of public free schools," and ESAs violate this principle by redirecting funds to private institutions that are not accountable to the public.

Lack of Accountability and Oversight

Unlike public schools, private schools and education vendors accepting ESA funds would not be required to follow state curriculum standards, administer standardized tests, or employ certified teachers. Other states have seen widespread fraud and misuse of ESA funds. In Arizona, parents used ESA money for personal expenses like luxury items and non-educational services. Texas cannot afford to waste taxpayer dollars on an unregulated program with little oversight.

ESAs Worsen Educational Inequities

Supporters claim ESAs expand school choice, but in reality, they primarily benefit wealthier families while leaving lower-income and rural students behind. Private school tuition often exceeds ESA amounts, pricing out many families. Additionally, private schools are not required to serve all students—they can deny admission based on academic ability, disabilities, or disciplinary history. Public schools serve all children, and they should receive the funding needed to do so effectively.

No Evidence of Improved Student Outcomes

Research shows that similar voucher programs in Indiana, Louisiana, and Ohio have led to declining student performance, especially in math and reading. Texas should not experiment with a system that has repeatedly failed elsewhere. If the goal is to improve education, policymakers should invest in teacher pay, smaller class sizes, early childhood education, and school infrastructure—proven strategies that benefit all students.

Protect Texas Public Schools—Oppose HB 3

Rather than weakening public education, Texas lawmakers should fully fund our schools and support policies that benefit all children. Public dollars should remain in public schools, where they can do the most good. I urge you to vote NO on HB 3 and stand with Texas students, teachers, and families.

Sincerely,

Suzanne Powers

Spowers820@yahoo.com

Pam Andrews
High School Counselor
San Marcos, TX

I do not agree with school of choice or school vouchers whatever you want to call it. I would like to know what will happen if a student chooses to attend a private school and the funds are taken away from the public school and then things don't work at the private school. I also want to know why private schools that will be receiving money from public school funds are not required to the same testing guidelines for state tests—EOC/STAAR. I have been reading on the bill and see different breakdowns of who will qualify but do not understand. Why can't the qualifications be put in bullet points and easily understood. What is 500% and 200% below poverty mean and is an income of 156,000 really considered needy. I have been an educator for 36 years and I never made close to 156,000. Who qualifies for this 10,000-11,500.00 money? It seems like anyone qualifies. I don't want to pay for a wealthy family to send their kid to private school or home school their kids. I am okay if people don't want to send their children to public school but I want them to pay for it. Public schools were created to give all students an education. If you don't like public schools then make changes to public schools. I don't want to here how wealthy families pay school taxes and then pay for private school tuition. I pay school taxes and don't have children. You pay your part because it is the way the system is designed. Lastly I get annoyed with using it as a way to help the needy and disabled. Families in need often times are getting by with feeding their families and getting them to the bus to make it to school. They don't have additional money to make the difference up in what the state is not giving them to pay the private school tuition. They don't have a way to get their children to the private school. In regards to the student's with disabilities often times private schools do not have the resources to support student's either disabilities. I think many of you in the public office have not fully done your research to understand our public schools. It makes me very sad.

Monica Dickson, Ms.
Self
San Antonio, TX

Vouchers do nothing but segregate the haves and have nots. These vouchers only help the people who can afford to take their children to private schools. These vouchers only help families who are already paying for private schools. These vouchers only hurt Texas public schools because there is less money in the pot to fund public schools. Texas public schools are already bleeding dry with no funds causing major negative impacts to our youngest Texans in school from Prek to 12th grade. Property taxes will have to go up to support local Public schools and families are already hurting economically. These vouchers will put a strain on the majority of Texan families who don't want to go to private schools. Plus there is a program in place already to pay for students who want to go to another school. There is no need for these vouchers. Vote no to vouchers! Government work for the people not for the small minority of billionaires.

Joseph Mire
Self Self Employed
San Antonio, TX

Defeat HB 3!!

Providing school vouchers to offset costs for private schools at the expense of public school programs is a fraud and theft perpetrated against the tax paying majority in Texas. It is designed to benefit the wealthy class minority at the educational expense of the majority, and sets up a has vs has not societal model, and threatens the future stability of this state. Funding for this measure has resulted in the unlawful withholding of budget increases to schools while school taxes have still increased and been collected. Consider the majority of you representatives that went to public schools - do you truthfully think as products of public institutions yourselves, that in today's school environment you would have prospered in the same way as you have? With the teacher student ratios already too high, and fewer vastly underpaid teachers entering the public school system, do you honestly think you would have had the same chances for yourselves then? Passing this bill equates to your ensuring today's students will not. Defeat this bill so you can look yourselves honorably in the mirror!!

Chana Temple
self
San Marcos, TX

As a middle income taxpayer, my demographic is who will most likely be affected by this legislation. My neighbor recently shared that based on the proposal, his wealthy daughter and her husband will most likely get to expect a voucher/ stipend to help pay for their child's $30,000 private school tuition. I like my neighbor and his daughter and grandchildren very much but we both agree that is a ludicrous concept. If I am going to be required to pay for my rich neighbor's rich children to go to private school I will start to make plans to relocate from the state I have called home for 40years.

abby brody
Self
GEORGETOWN, TX

State government has a constitutional responsibility to adequately fund public schools. Let's start doing that ! 5.5 million Texas children are depending on it !

Samuel Mendell, Mr
Self
Smithville, TX

HB3 Testimony Template – Herb Krasner

In your statements today and previously, you have consistently pushed the possible positive effects of this universal ESA program – without a single mention of the downsides.

Experiences in the other states has shown that Universal ESA voucher programs fail to achieve improving educational outcomes for students. In fact, research shows vouchers have substantial negative effects on academic achievement: For example: Studies in Louisiana, Indiana, and Ohio found that students who attended private schools using vouchers performed worse than similar peers in public schools. These negative effects persisted over years, meaning they were not a temporary result of students' transition to a new school.

Studies of voucher programs in Washington, D.C., and Alabama found no significant improvement in student test scores. Vouchers fail to deliver even on non-academic measures. Parents do not report greater satisfaction with schools, nor a greater sense of safety, with the use of vouchers.

Indiana's program has been described as the poster child for the segregating effects of vouchers

Claims that vouchers improve academic performance are simply false

Furthermore, vouchers harm under-resourced rural public schools and their communities, with no benefit to those rural students who cannot find any private schools.

Voucher programs drain millions of dollars from public sources but are subject to virtually no public accountability—a fraction of the requirements imposed on public schools. Unregulated, unaccountable voucher programs are a waste of taxpayer dollars.

It has also been shown in the other states that:

Vouchers are more expensive than public schooling

Vouchers shift education expenses to the parents

Vouchers subsidize private education for students who would not otherwise have attended a public school

Voucher programs do not change the fixed costs in public schools

Vouchers cost taxpayers money to subsidize private education – often for the more wealthy

Vouchers create new subpar education vendors to suck up the increased demand for profit sake

Question:

What makes you think that none of that will happen here in Texas starting next year???

Amanda Clayre Turner self- PE Teacher, elementary
Plano, TX

I would like to ask the legislature to say no to the education savings account program. I am in a district that is currently closing schools and I know our district is not alone. We need to do everything we can to continue to adequately fund our schools now and into the future. Texas children deserve equal access to a free and public education and this bill will undermine that. I work daily with kids who would not be accepted or have access to private schools and they rely on public education to give them equal footing and a fair shot in this world. The education savings account program would ultimately create a school system in Texas that is segregated by class. We need public schools. Public school teachers work hard with loving dedication to serve all kids that come to them in the way that benefits each and every student. I do not know anyone personally that endorses this bill. Across the divisive political spectrum I have seen friends and neighbors, fellow Texans, align on this very issue. The majority of Texans do NOT want this bill to pass. It's time our legislators listen to us!

Danielle Johnson
Self, elementary school counselor
Eules, TX

The so-called "facts" Governor Abbott is sharing about these vouchers are nothing but lies. Private schools and public schools cannot be compared to one another. It's apples to oranges. Public schools must admit any student living in their zone. We have students with a range of issues, from severe disabilities to severe behavior issues to refugee children who are illiterate even in their own languages, and we are expected to work miracles with them with very few resources. The basic theme in public education these days is "do more with less". Private schools would never admit or keep these students, nor would they offer services to assist these children. In fact, my school provides services to nearby private school students because their schools don't offer those services. So, not only are we providing services to public school students, we are using our limited resources to serve private school students as well.

The majority of families in Texas do not even have a private school near them. As for the vouchers themselves, they will not cover the cost of most private schools in Texas. It is gaslighting to tell families they will be able to send their children to private schools, knowing good and well they will have to come up with much of the cost out of pocket to cover the full tuition. Of course, this will just give extra money to the wealthy who can afford to send their students to the schools.

Personally, I have nothing against private schools. However, if private schools are going to receive public funds, they should be held to the exact standards as public schools. This includes accepting all students and providing needed services to all students. It also includes following the same attendance and testing requirements.

Abbott and his buddies should read the room, the majority of Texans are against vouchers! Stop holding public education, funds hostage! Release that money and invest in our public schools! If our public schools are failing, it is because that is exactly what Abbott and his buddies want. Our children should not be used as pawns and political games. Say no to vouchers!

Lana Sell
Self
Fairview, TX

I oppose the voucher bill

Ida Miller

self

San Marcos, TX

I am an adult who was publicly educated in Texas schools. My children attended public, charter and a private school, for which I paid tuition. I pay taxes. I want my taxes to go to public or charter schools. If Texas children attend private schools, this should come from scholarships or from the savings afforded non-profits through their tax exempt status--invest back into the children. Education savings accounts will hurt Texas urban and rural public schools by:

forcing rural communities to pay into a system they likely cannot access, failing to protect the rights of special education students, and leaving middle- and lower-class families with hefty bills for tuition gaps and expenses not covered by a voucher.

Our public schools deserve full funding and fair competition. Should taxpayer dollars pay for private education, then ensure full transparency and accountability for taxpayers and acceptance of all students.

Melinda Tilton, Ms

Self

Plano, TX

I strongly object to this bill. This is a terrible proposal which will weaken Texas education. The establishment of a savings account program will weaken our public schools for no compelling reason. We pay very high property taxes in part to fund our excellent public education system, one of the best in the country. The voucher system does no good to the majority of the population, most of whom rely on public schools to educate their children. The majority of the school age population would see no benefit from the voucher system. This legislation, if passed, would decrease the amount of money spent on each student by roughly $10,000 per student, per year. Texas, with a public education record which is the envy of most states, must not reduce benefits for public schools students. The proposed legislation is an effort to funnel tax dollars to faith based private schools. The majority of families who elect to send children to private schools are in higher income brackets and don't need financial assistance. The families who rely on public schools frequently have no other options, either because of financial constraints or because there is no private school close enough to attend. Establishing this voucher system does not provide enough income to afford private school, and does not provide the options necessary for those communities who don't have private schools nearby. Do not dedicate our public funds to subsidize private education. It is wrong and the majority of your voters don't support this.

Jeri Matthys

self retired

Lexington, TX

Tim Dunn and Farris Wilks are not elected officials and should not be governing Texas. Their plan is to make Texas a theocracy. Members of the Texas House should be allowed to vote their conscience on vouchers. Vouchers will decimate rural school districts. I can't finance repaving my driveway with government money. Why should wealthy parents get a subsidy from the government to send their kids to a private school. How will the comptroller's office keep tabs on all this money? I worry about accountability and transparency. Look at Arizona's massive failure with this program.

Shouldn't we be spending money on fixing our foster care system, our horrible healthcare system, bringing down our Maternal Mortality rates, our skyrocketing sepsis rates caused by the abortion ban? I am against vouchers in any form, there is already plenty of school choice in Texas. Let's give all the money we can to our public schools, the lifeblood of our rural communities. Pass this, and watch as your rural base votes you out.

Beverley Humphreys

Self - retired public school employee

Temple, TX

HB3

Texas public schools should be fully funded. I do not want my taxes funding private schools.

Joseph Fulco, Mr.

Self

Shavano Park, TX

HB 3 - As a former educator in the public schools I feel that vouchers are only good for "failing" schools. Schools who have positive score and attendance records in public schools should be left alone. Please consider this when deciding whether you agree with them or not.

Karen Sager, Ms.

Self, retired

Somerville, TX

School vouchers are a direct transfer of funds from public to private schools, and thus from the poor to the rich. School choice is a red herring, as most poorer people could not afford a private school, or have the necessary transportation, not to mention all the additional incidental expenses. Vouchers ensure that public school students, especially the disadvantaged or disabled receive a substandard education while subsidizing the schools that won't take them. NO TO SCHOOL VOUCHERS.

Lindsey Boyd

self/ substitute teacher Plano ISD

Plano, TX

As a public school educator and parent of four children who attend public school, I ask that our tax paid money does NOT go to fund school vouchers. Please stop calling it "a parents' right to choose for their child's education." Using tax money to offer vouchers does not provide an equitable choice for ALL students in Texas. It only furthers the gap between the wealthy and those who do not have the finances to pay for a private education. Instead, we should be funding MORE into the public education of Texas. Teachers should be paid more, administrators should be paid more, more teachers need to be hired to decrease class size, more support staff needs to be hired to provide additional support for teachers and students, and the list goes on. If we take away money from the public sector to give to the private, we are only hurting our schools, students, and staff, and we will fall further behind. I don't understand why the amount given for a private school voucher is $10,000 and the amount given for a public school student is only $6,000. Why are the amounts at least not equal? Even if I used the voucher to send my children to a private school, it would still not be enough of a financial discount to make it affordable for my family to attend a private school. Therefore, my children will lose valuable funding for their public school education. There are so many needs for our public schools, and the money to provide for those needs is ready and waiting to be used. Please, I urge you, to put that money to good use for our students and teachers and give them the financial assistance they deserve. Do not give it to those students and families who already have the financial resources that set them apart and give them a leg up over the rest of the students in Texas. Vouchers is not how I want my tax dollars to be spent, and I will not be voting for representatives at the local, state, or federal level who support private school vouchers.

Nicole Carignan

Self

Dallas, TX

Dear Members of the Committee,

My name is Nicole Carignan, and I am a Senior VP in Cybersecurity and Artificial Intelligence and an active member of my community. I write to you to express my strong opposition to HB 3 and to urge you to reject this harmful legislation.

The introduction of school vouchers will only serve to destabilize the already fragile public school finance system in Texas. Our public schools are already underfunded, and taking taxpayer dollars away from the public system through vouchers will further exacerbate these financial disparities. Every dollar diverted to private institutions is one less dollar available to our students, teachers, and schools.

Unlike public schools, which are subject to rigorous oversight, accountability, and transparency requirements, private schools that accept voucher funds are not held to the same standards. There is no guarantee that these institutions will provide a high-quality education, and taxpayers have no means of ensuring that their hard-earned money is being spent effectively. If we are going to spend public funds, those funds should go toward systems that are accountable to the public, not unregulated private institutions.

Vouchers disproportionately disadvantage rural and marginalized students. Many cities do not have private schools as an option. Additionally, marginalized students, including low-income students and students with special needs, are less likely to have access to private schools that can meet their unique needs. As a successful neurodivergent adult, I support 504, IEPs, and public education because this provides the support needed for ALL children. Vouchers will further entrench inequality and widen the gap in educational opportunities for those who need it most. Not only are private institutions required to provide support needed to all children, they are also not required to accept all children.

Vouchers impose a dangerous form of religious favoritism in our education system. By allowing taxpayer money to fund private schools with religious affiliations, we risk violating the principle of separation between church and state that is fundamental to our democracy. As a faith member myself, I believe that we should be providing for all children through taxes for public education regardless of their background, abilities, and/or religious beliefs.

Through my vote, support and advocacy, I believe we have a duty to ensure that every student, regardless of their background, has access to a high-quality public education. I believe that public schools should remain the cornerstone of our educational system, and I urge you to stand with our students, teachers, and communities by rejecting HB 3.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Nicole Carignan

Dallas, TX 75248

Denbigh Shelton

self

Austin, TX

My seven year old son and ten year old daughter attend public school. Public education is for everyone and the more we can invest in our public schools and support our teachers the better quality education for ALL Texas children. Diverting public dollars to private schools takes away from public school funding and funnels tax payer money into schools that don't serve ALL Texas children. That's just not right and not what tax money should be spent on. The purpose of paying taxes is to share the financial burden of resources that are available to everyone. I don't want my hard-earned taxes to go toward services that are not available to my family. Please don't take resources away from our public schools! If there are public schools that are not meeting quality standards or meeting the needs of families then let's use the money to invest in those schools and make them better.

Paula Pebsworth, Dr.

self

San Antonio, TX

I strongly oppose school vouchers because they divert critical public funds away from public schools, undermining the quality of education for the majority of students. Public education is a cornerstone of our democracy, meant to provide equal opportunities for all children, regardless of income or background. Voucher programs weaken this system by funneling taxpayer dollars into private schools that are not held to the same accountability standards.

Public schools must follow strict regulations, including standardized testing, special education services, and non-discrimination policies. In contrast, private schools that accept vouchers often lack oversight, transparency, and accountability, making it difficult for taxpayers to track how public money is spent. Many private institutions also have the ability to reject students based on disability status, religion, academic performance, or other factors, meaning public funds could support schools that do not serve all children fairly.

Voucher programs disproportionately benefit wealthier families while failing to serve low-income students as promised. The amount of financial aid provided by vouchers rarely covers the full cost of private school tuition, leaving lower-income families unable to afford the remaining expenses, such as transportation and fees. Meanwhile, public schools—which serve the majority of students—lose funding, leading to larger class sizes, fewer resources, and cuts to essential programs.

Additionally, school vouchers do not guarantee improved educational outcomes. Studies from states with voucher programs have shown that students who transfer to private schools using vouchers often experience declines in math and reading scores, with little to no long-term academic benefits. Rather than strengthening education, these programs weaken the overall system by prioritizing privatization over proven investments in public schools, such as teacher salaries, school infrastructure, and student support services.

Rural communities are especially harmed by voucher programs, as they often lack private school options. While urban areas may have more choices, vouchers do nothing for students in rural districts where public schools are the only realistic option. Instead of improving education for all students, vouchers drain funds from the very schools that rural families rely on.

Public dollars should support public schools, which are required to educate every child. Instead of diverting funds to private institutions with little oversight, we should invest in public education reforms that benefit all students, such as increased funding for teachers, mental health services, and updated learning materials.

For these reasons, I urge policymakers to reject school voucher programs and instead prioritize funding and support for public education, ensuring every child has access to a high-quality school, regardless of their ZIP code or financial status.

Janine Stephens

Self

San Antonio, TX

. This diverts funds from essential educational programs, Disproportionate

April Bergerson

Self

Wolfforth, TX

Vote NO on HB3. School vouchers are a bad thing for all Texas students.

Briana Frazier

Self

Frisco, TX

My twins are currently in the 5th grade at Little Elm ISD, a public school. As a working class family, we do not have the funds to send our kids to private school. Vouchers will not make private school accessible to our family because they won't cover the full cost, so we will still be forced to attend public school, only now, our school won't have the necessary funding to adequately educate our kids. School vouchers are just a way to subsidize the cost of private school for the wealthy at the expense of the working class. It's a thinly veiled attempt to line the pockets of those who can already afford to pay for top notch education. The majority of Texas families won't benefit from this system. We are tired of Republicans working against the majority of Texans. We see through Abbott's actions and will ensure that the GOP ceases to exist in Texas if you strip our children of their right to an education. As a former educator myself, I'm acutely aware of the difficulties public schools face daily already. Teachers will leave the field if you do this. We are already at the bottom of the list of quality education systems, so don't make it worse.

Martha Garber

Self

Coppell, TX

ESA and vouchers are not beneficial to Texas school children. These programs will only diminished public schools and result in poorer outcomes for Texas kids. We need programs that will put money directly into public schools and not divert public funds to support private initiatives. Please vote NO on educational savings accounts, and vouchers.

Eric Trigo

Self

Edinburg, TX

Please save our public schools and fund them appropriately! No to vouchers that only discriminate!

John Rische

Self. Retired

Lubbock, TX

Please do nothing to adversely affect the current teacher's retirement benefits.

Stacie Martinez

Self

Watauga, TX

I homeschool my kids. My in-laws fought for homeschooling rights in the 80's. I oppose any "school choice" bill. Parents in Texas already have "school choice". They can send their kids to public or private school or they can homeschool. Throwing more taxpayer money at a made up "emergency" won't fix the government's apparent inability to educate the kids already under their charge. Public funds should not go to private education. If more parents who could do so used the private school/homeschool choice, public schools wouldn't be so overrun and the kids would get a better education, if not the perfect one for them. Nothing is perfect. Life isn't fair and never has been. The government's job isn't to make life fair. A lot of education is up to the student to do, and that starts with parents exhibiting a love of educating themselves. Government involvement cannot solve most problems, as it has demonstrated, in most cases, thus far.

Jessica Marquez

Self/teacher

Kyle, TX

I oppose this voucher bill. Vouchers will hurt our public schools tremendously. We cannot allow our school funds to be cut even more. We are already underfunded. This bill will not improve our education, it will not give students or parents choice. Vouchers will destroy public education! Our children deserve a right to a free public education that is inclusive and equitable. Privatizing education is not the answer.

Vera Colodney, Ms

Self

Plano, TX

I am adamantly against the establishment of an education savings programs. Our public schools need and deserve this funding instead.

Jodey Christen

Self/homemaker

Carthage, TX

As a homeschool parent I am 100% opposed to school choice! My decision to homeschool came with the knowledge that it would be my responsibility to fund this choice. I do not want my daughter in public school only to be taught materials to pass a standardized test. Children are more than test scores! As a 8th grader she is taking 2 science classes, 3 grammar classes, a foreign language class, America history and an advanced math class. She gets one on one attention & is getting a better education than her peers. Parents who homeschool or send their children to private schools have always done so knowing they would pay out of pocket for it. Public money should not be used for private or homeschool education. If I didn't want my child to use a local public swimming pool I wouldn't expect the government to give me money to build one in my backyard!! Use PUBLIC money to improve the PUBLIC schools, which is what it is intended for.

Rebecca White

Self/Teacher

Rhome, TX

I am opposed to this bill. I believe it will harm public education. Public money should be given to public schools. Private schools do not follow the same regulations that public schools follow. We already have school choice, this is NOT a school choice bill. Every teacher that I've spoken to is adamantly opposed to vouchers.

Robin Shults

Self

Murphy, TX

Parents already have a choice in how to educate their children. My tax dollars should not be used to fund school vouchers. Charter schools exist to make their owners money and religious schools do not provide the level of STEM education that is needed to make America competitive. Fund public school. Retain teachers by increasing salaries. The people at the top of the education system are over paid. If you need to make cuts, cap superintendent salaries and end huge payouts when those people are fired. Reports from other states show it is the rural districts that are punish with vouches. There simply are no private schools for those students. There are church schools- it's called Sunday School and it does not need my tax dollars. Studies do not show that vouchers allow lower or even middle income students to attend private schools. Yearly tuition at Hockaday, a top private school in Dallas, is around $30,000 per year. If the state of Texas gifts me $10,000 I still will not be able to send even one of my daughters there. This doesn't include uniforms and others required items. Vouchers are tax payer funded scholarships for the rich. No vouchers! Increase funding for public schools. Public school children are our future.

Linda Atkins, Ms

Self

Temple, TX

School Choice - I believe parents should have a say in what they learn and where their children should go. They have a right to have their values taught to their children.

Donna Beto

Self-retired teacher (Life Member of TSTA)

Bryan, TX

I am a retired public school teacher with 36 years teaching experience. I oppose the small increase in the basic per-student allotment of $220; that is not enough. The increase per student needs to be, at least, $1,000 to even keep up with cost of living increases. Also, I urge you to vote "NO" to school vouchers, which would funnel tax-payer funds from public schools to private schools. Tax money does not subsidize private schools; Parents who choose to send their children to private schools pay the tuition.

HB 2-Increase the basic allotment to $1000 per student; NOT $220. Listen to the teachers.

HB 3- Vote "NO" to school vouchers. Listen to the majority of your constituents.

Respectfully,

Mrs. Beto

Allison Smith

Self

Lubbock, TX

I am all for school choice. But we already have that. The red tape and difficulty this will cause is not the answer to make a change in providing funding

William Logan Burton

Self and RFISD

ROCKPORT, TX

Please support HB 2 to increase funding for public education. It is nowhere close to what it needs to be but at least it appears to be a start in the right direction. As you know, the BA has remained at the exact same amount of $6160 since 2019. The proposed BA increase from $6160 to $6380 represents a 3.6% increase since 2019. During this same period of time, inflation has averaged 3.6% per year, for an accumulative amount of 23.4%. Over the past 5 years, Texas legislators have pushed more unfunded mandates onto public schools while also raising performance expectations. This demonstrates that Texas legislators actually expect school districts to provide more services, produce better results and yet, do it all with less resources. Its amazing to me that the leaders of our state have not yet addressed this huge public school funding crisis and that it never seems to be anywhere near the priority list. Here are some things that should be considered: Increasing basic allotment sufficiently so that schools can compensate teachers competitively with other professions and help attract more talent; considerations for increased insurance expenses along the Gulf Coast (ie, windstorm), complete restructuring of the finance system including recapture (ie, Robinhood), and Texas needs to stop taking school tax dollars away from tax payers where it is used to fill the state's general fund coffers. School tax dollars should be used on schools.

Sherry Boyd

Self

Spearman, TX

I live in a small rural community and am a retired, but part-time teacher. Districts like mine are already struggling to meet the needs of our students, paying our teachers and paying the bills. Our Texas constitution only addresses providing a public school system. The people of Texas are screaming NO VOUCHERS. We need to fully fund public education not private schools who hand pucks their students while public education takes them all. Texas should not subsidize the wealthy's choice of using private schools or homeschooling. Pay teachers an appropriate salary, we do have degrees and don't take from money that is needed for public education and give it to the richer group who can already afford that choice.

Patricia Jang

Self

Austin, TX

I am a parent of 2 AISD public school students and I adamantly oppose HB3. My tax dollars should not be used to subsidize wealthy families, who make up the vast majority of those that can afford private school. My tax dollars should be spent for the PUBLIC education. Texas already underfunds the public schools. It is appalling that Texas wants to spend money on a select, rich few than to help fund public education for the many deserving Texans.

Leah Davies, Mrs.

Self

Austin, TX

This bill would gut public education, and that is both unacceptable and shortsighted. School choice already exists in Texas, and as a voter and former public school teacher and student, I strongly object to the lack of standards that private schools are held to. I have loved ones with disabilities and the option that private schools have to refuse to accept students like my loved ones is immoral. Public schools must continue to be supported by Texas lawmakers if we want to continue to grow a prepared workforce. Even with the vouchers, many families are not able to afford private schools.

Sarah Swantner

self- mom and community volunteer

austin, TX

I oppose school vouchers in Texas argue because they divert public funds from already under-resourced public schools, potentially weakening the public education system. Vouchers may not truly expand educational opportunities for low-income families and might exacerbate inequities, and that private schools accepting voucher students may lack adequate accountability and transparency. Additionally, I have concerns about potential constitutional issues, like the separation of church and state, if vouchers support religious private schools.

Lauren Nevils

teacher

Dalhart, TX

As a public school teacher, taking money out of our funds to give to private school, will restrict our ability to reach our students that we currently serve. Taking money from us does not make sense. Also, private schools who do end up taking the money will have to follow the state's regulations and then what is the point of a private school? People send their children to private schools to keep the state out of their business. We already have parent choice. Don't take it from a system that is required to do more with minimum funding as it is.

Kellie Lewis

self

Austin, TX

- No to vouchers or ESA's
- Raise basic allotment to include inflation
- And change the funding from attendance to enrollment

Katy Schreur

myself - Austin ISD mom of 3

Austin, TX

Thank you for your work representing the people of Texas. Please consider the children you represent in this state when deciding how to fund education. As a mother of three I am deeply concerned about this issue.

Vouchers are detrimental to education, a public good. The legislation being considered will not give parents school choice, it will give private schools money that is allocated for public schools. These private schools have no government oversight and can choose who they allow in. Public schools serve every single kid, no matter what.

Please vote NO to vouchers and instead fully fund public schools by raising the basic allotment!

Hugh Robinson

Self - Retired (with 2 children in public school and 1 in private school)

Houston, TX

Chairperson and Members of the Committee,

My name is Hugh Robinson, I am a parent in Spring Branch ISD in Houston and I am providing my written testimony to urge you to reject the education savings account program. I have 2 children in public school and 1 in private school, so I see both sides of the education system - public and private.

The education savings account program will, I believe, hurt our state instead of helping it. Funding private education via vouchers doesn't have proper accountability so that we are spending public funds on institutions that do not have the correct oversight to ensure that those dollars are well spent.

Further, studies in multiple states have shown that "vouchers" do not consistently result in improved academic outcomes for low income students.

I fear that passing this measure will hurt our public schools, and that is why I am against it, even though I stand to gain financially as a parent who has a child in private school.

Corey Seifert

Self

Austin, TX

Vouchers will only further increase the deficit being created by state leadership through the unfair recapture program. Enrollment will decrease, causing the ratio to tip even further so that we are sending near a BILLION dollars to sit in coffers and not even be used for education. It's corrupt and you should all be ashamed. Our kids cannot receive a quality public education because you are willfully making it impossible for public schools to function with such reduced budgets. If you're going to give vouchers, then get rid of recapture or at least bring the criteria for calculating it into modern times. We moved to Texas for better public education opportunities and we will not be able to stay with how state government is trying to bury it.

Nathan Franklin

self

Austin, TX

HB2 and HB3 are bad for Texans because they divert public funds away from already underfunded public schools and funnel taxpayer money into private school vouchers, which lack accountability and do not serve all students equally. Instead of investing in teacher pay, classroom resources, and student programs, these bills prioritize privatization, ultimately weakening the quality of education for the majority of Texas children.

Nicholas Joseph
self, Engineer
Austin, TX

I'm writing to OPPOSE HB 3. Public money should not be given to private institutions, particularly when they are not held accountable to the same standards and test as public schools. If private schools take public money, its only fair they should have the same standardized test requirements and be subject to the same state grading system. Also, they must take all students, regardless of disability. If private schools are not required to do that, but take public money, then this bill creates a grossly unfair entitlement program that will benefit the rich and elite above the middle class. Please vote against. Thank you.

Sean Johnston, Mrs.
Retired educator
Sabinal, TX

Fully fund public schools and quit the voucher idea. You are wasting time and money with private school vouchers.

Linda Vineyard, Mrs
Texas Retired Teachers
Ennis, TX

The Texas Republican party is officially signing its departure. Texas voters will remember who is supporting vouchers thereby Democrats will be taking their places at the next election. Republican party, it was good while it lasted. Goodbye.

Victoria Beard, Ms
Self
Houston, TX

I am a public school teacher in Houston. If this bill is passed, public school will collapse & children with special needs whether physical or mental will NOT be served. And the middle class will not be able to pay for private school. I implore you to vote against this bill to save public school in Texas.

Alexis Atwood
Self public school teacher
Happy, TX

Based on the number of commentaries given yesterday and last night regarding the opposition to this bill, I cannot believe that you still think that the majority of Texans are for it. The only people who are for it are you, your billionaire donors, and those who seek to benefit financially, a.k.a. those who already have kids in private schools, who are basically getting welfare for the rich. This is not good for Texas public schools!

Angela Beasley
self
Austin, TX

The proposed school voucher bill in Texas would divert public funds away from already underfunded public schools, weakening the education system that serves the vast majority of students. Vouchers primarily benefit wealthier families who can already afford private school tuition, while rural and lower-income communities are left with fewer resources and fewer quality options. Instead of funding private institutions with taxpayer money, Texas should invest in strengthening public schools for all children.

Paul Bloss, Taxpayer

Fellow taxpayer

Coppell, TX

I can't believe Texas is moving forward with a bill that will establish a billion dollar plus tax dollar expenditure every year to fund private schools. We haven't raised the amount each district gets per student in six years so the rate per student should increase by almost 1500 just to keep up with inflation. I can't believe we even contemplate this new entitlement for private schools when we don't take care

Of the public schools first. Also this bill doesn't take into account the potential shortfalls it will create when our Public school teachers might consider moving to these new schools creating pension shortfall in the teacher retirement plan that will be tied directly to this bill and then we will have to make up the shortfall in the retirement plan that this bill will be responsible for.

Also the Governor tells us this will have no impact on High School football in Texas because you aren't cutting funding for schools athletic dept, but you are creating

New schools that can siphon off players and hurt our local High Schools.

Also you are creating new schools that don't have to have the same testing that we measure all of our public schools by, this is bluntly unfair, if the test are good for public schools than the same test need to apply for each private school.

Who will be monitoring the financial solvency of the schools you are funding because I have to tell you this amount of Money will only increase the chance of fraud if not monitored by the state which means further growth of state government.

The thought that our tax money will go to Private schools is so counter to the conservative approach of limited government and limited state funding. I can't believe after the years hearing from the State GOP how the democrats spend money then the GOP makes the the biggest state entitlement Program ever has made it easy to consider voting for the other party in Texas.

Sarah Alexander

Self, on behalf of my minor child

San Angelo, TX

Please do not let this pass. Vote no. No one wants it on either side. Taking funding fr out rural schools, so that rich kids in big cities can go to private schools is an awful idea. As a kid, I was poor and abused. I was smart, but had no parents, little supervision, and no one that believed in me. The folks that I lived with abused me in terrible ways. I was doomed to be another generation of poor white trash living in a run down trailer... until two rural public school teachers believed in me. These wonderful women told me I could do more, be more, so I went to college. I now hold a master's degree and ended cycles of domestic violence for my child and future generations of my Texan family. I'd have nothing without rural schools. Please don't do this. Another example: JD Vance was a poor kid too and look where he is now, the vice president. Don't take this money and reallocate it to kids who have all the opportunities in the world. They don't need it. Imagine if this bill keeps the future VP or even a rural mom like myself from breaking generational cycles and becoming something better and more productive for society. Give these kids a chance. Don't take money from them, vote no for vouchers.

Jennifer Sweet

Self - teacher

DENISON, TX

I am against any vouchers or ESAs in Texas. My tax dollars should go to support Texas Public schools. Public schools will lose money under the HB3 plan. If the governor is so confident that Texans want vouchers, we should be given the opportunity to vote on it. The Texas constitution states that the State of Texas will fund a free Public education.

Cody Bryant
Self
Double Oak, TX

I am writing to express my strong opposition to House Bill 3 (HB 3), a piece of legislation that proposes the establishment of an Education Savings Account (ESA) program aimed at subsidizing private school tuition and homeschooling expenses. While the intention of providing educational choice is commendable, the structure of this bill deeply concerns me for several critical reasons.

First, HB 3 disproportionately benefits affluent families who can already afford private school tuition. The proposed allotment per child, while seemingly generous, does not cover the full cost of most private school tuitions. As a result, the program is likely to serve as a subsidy for wealthier families rather than a genuine option for low-income families seeking quality education for their children.

Second, the funding provided through ESAs under HB 3 is not equitable when compared to what public schools receive per pupil. Public schools are already struggling to meet the needs of their students due to underfunding. Redirecting essential resources from public education to fund private school vouchers will only exacerbate the challenges faced by public schools, particularly those in underserved and rural areas.

Third, private schools are not held to the same accountability standards as public schools. They are not required to adhere to state curriculum guidelines, standardized testing, or reporting on student performance. This lack of accountability raises serious concerns about the quality of education being funded by taxpayer dollars.

Fourth, the impact on rural schools and low-income families cannot be overstated. Many rural areas do not have private school options, rendering the ESA program irrelevant to these communities. Meanwhile, diverting funding away from public schools serving low-income families will only deepen educational inequities and reduce opportunities for those who need them most.

Finally, HB 3 undermines public education as a public good. Public schools are foundational to a fair and democratic society, serving all children regardless of background, ability, or income. Diverting taxpayer dollars to private institutions threatens the sustainability of public education and prioritizes privatization over community investment.

In conclusion, I urge you to reconsider the implications of HB 3 and advocate for policies that truly serve all Texas students equitably. Public education should be strengthened, not undermined, and our focus should remain on ensuring that every child, regardless of their family's economic status or geographic location, has access to high-quality education.

Natalia Egan
Self Tutor
Houston, TX

I was a special education teacher for 20 years. I'm not anymore because I was driven out of my profession by bad policies and this will be the worst of them all. The admitted purpose of this bill is to defund public education. Please be serious. This is not best for students and especially special education students. Please do not sacrifice these children for the ability to privatize yet another system that should be paid for by our tax dollars. We need more money in schools and not less. We need to respect teaching as a profession and remember there is no state assisted child care or health care or assistance in helping with your child except public education. It's not the Bain's-Aid we have been trying to make it but it is an important part of our society. An educated society is a healthier one, but the billionaires running Texas politics want more money for themselves. Please be serious.

Regan Heydari
Self
Plano, TX

I am strongly against any type of voucher program for schools. Please do not vote for this bill. I have a young year old daughter and I don't want her participating in anything like this.

Karen Bodden

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose the establishment of educational savings accounts in Texas.

Nancy Bircher

Self

Corpus Christi, TX

This is to protest the passage of the school vouchers bill. While I have no problem with private schools, I do not believe tax payer dollars should fund them (via tax payer dollars being used to fund student tuition). The teaching of religious classes at private schools is one of the main attractions for some parents to send their children to private schools. That is fine, and that's where those classes should stay in private schools & not at the expense of public schools. Public schools deserve to have all of the funding possible to keep them up to (or even raise them) quality standards for ALL students of families with ANY income level. If a child comes from a poor family, it is not that child's fault. They should get a high quality public education just the same as a child from a high income family. School vouchers will NOT provide a low income family enough money to be able to afford the tuition of private schools, so school vouchers will only help those of higher income who can probably afford the private school tuition already, anyway. Richer people do not need subsidies for their children's education. Put that money into public schools & increase the quality of education for ALL students in families lies. not just the ones from high income families. Religion should be taught in churches & homes, not schools. Quit trying to cram it down children's throats. I am a Christian. It is MY job to teach my children religion & our church's job ... not the school system. Keep public tax money in public schools!! Tell the West Texas billionaire pastors who have Abbott & the Republicans in the Texas legislature to keep their religious beliefs in their churches and their church SUNDAY SCHOOLS, and leave the public school system alone! Keep public tax dollars in public schools!

Brandon Creecy

Self - Teacher

Bedford, TX

I do not support HB3 and voucher programs in general. HB3 does not require adequate accountability, transparency, and does not offer protections for students receiving special education services which means private schools can deny services to those who probably need it most.

Dustin Paschal

Self (Attorney)

Frisco, TX

Public education is the great equalizer for our society and our community. For those that may not have the resources or the connections or the familial history and background, public education ensures that every Texas child gets a free education to prepare that child for his or her future. I am the product of Texas public schools. Neither of my parents attended a four-year college. My father was a firefighter and my mother was an office administrator. At my public school in Garland ISD, I not only received a quality education, but I also received opportunities and experiences that gave me the foundation for college and later, law school. In fact, my senior year of high school was far harder than my freshman year of college. Our Texas kids deserve this same experience and this same opportunity.

It's not just that they deserve it - our state constitution mandates it. Our kiddos deserve better than receiving public schools that are starved of resources and left to die on the vine in the name of serving the few. Vouchers will not make our public schools better and they will not make a generation of children better. I implore you to spend our tax dollars on our public schools. Vouchers are not for Texas and you should vote against any bill that includes them.

Dana Rowe
Rowe and Rowe
Midlothian, TX

Strongly oppose! We expect our representatives to represent constituents and not a governor who has tried 5 times and has failed.
Defend public education !

Bo Baggs, Mr
N/A
Port Arthur, TX

As a parent of 2 school age children, I am adamantly opposed to HB 3. If there were truth-in-advertising for naming bills in the Texas Legislature, that bill would be titled the "Robbery From Public Schools Program". To be clear I am totally opposed to my tax dollars being given to unaccountable PRIVATE schools. Speaking of accountability, I, my wife (a teacher) and her colleagues in Lakeview Elementary and the Bob Hope Schools (High and Middle) will watch the vote closely and hold any of our representatives accountable for their vote on this bill. Choose FOR your constituents. Choose wisely.

Melanie Moore Vann
Self- independent insurance agent
Pflugerville, TX

Vouchers are another nail in the coffin for Texas Public Education. Abbott has systematically attacked our schools, teachers, and students by defunding public education while simultaneously working to undermine the quality of public education through STAAR assessments that are at best extremely flawed measures of student achievement. Public education is the foundation of democracy. Our political leaders must protect public education and vote against Abbott's continued efforts to enrich himself and his cronies at the expense of the people of this state.

Rita Berry, Mrs.
Self/ Retired
Austin, TX

I do not support the HB 3 bill.
We need more support for public education.

Leah Hall
Self/my child, Rodan and Fields Consulstant
Austin, TX

My child is a 7th grader at Kealing Middle School and I have a 5th grader at Highland Park Elementary (both AISD schools). Both my children's education have been dramatically impacted by financial struggles of the school district. The lack of spending on teachers and the school building up keep/repairs often leaves their classrooms without a teacher/with a substitute, no heat/cooling in Texas dangerous temperatures, and lack of necessary materials for students/teachers needed for learning which is inconsistent to other schools who have access to better resources/funding. My student has even asked to transfer to another school district so he can have a math teacher who doesn't leave for a better paying position. My husband and I contribute a significant amount of property tax each year and no longer appreciate being asked to pay additional costs to the school district who already receives billions. I support any opportunity for the funds we have already paid to be used to better the school environment for our students today.

Adam Parker

Self

McAllen, TX

Public Comment on HB 3 and Charter School Expansion:

House Bill 3 (HB 3) includes provisions that could expand charter schools in Texas, and while school choice is an important value, the expansion of charter schools raises significant concerns about the diversion of public funds away from traditional public schools. Charter schools are often touted as a solution to educational inequities, but in reality, they exacerbate funding challenges for public schools, which serve the vast majority of Texas students.

Public schools are funded primarily through taxpayer dollars, and every dollar diverted to charter schools reduces the resources available for traditional public schools. This creates a system where public schools, which are required to serve all students—including those with special needs, English language learners, and students from low-income families—are left with fewer resources to meet these obligations. Charter schools, on the other hand, are not held to the same standards and often have the ability to selectively enroll students, leaving public schools to shoulder the burden of educating the most vulnerable populations.

Taxpayer dollars should not be used to subsidize charter schools, which operate with less oversight and accountability than public schools. If parents choose to send their children to charter schools, the financial responsibility should fall on those families, not on the broader taxpayer base. Public funds should be reserved for public schools, which are the cornerstone of our communities and the only institutions legally obligated to serve every child.

Expanding charter schools under HB 3 risks further destabilizing an already underfunded public education system. Instead of diverting resources to charter schools, we should focus on fully funding our public schools, ensuring they have the resources needed to provide a high-quality education for all students. Charter schools may have a role to play, but they should not be funded at the expense of public schools and the millions of students who rely on them.

In conclusion, HB 3 should not include provisions that expand charter schools or divert public funds away from traditional public schools. Taxpayer dollars must be prioritized for public education, and charter schools should be supported by private funding if parents choose that option. Let's invest in the schools that serve everyone, not just a select few.

Teal Perez

Self

Frisco, TX

This is terrible and I do not wish for this bill to pass. It is not what is best for Texas Public schools or Texas children. Leave public funds public.

Charlotte Haney

Houston Independent School District

Houston, TX

I cannot believe that in a state that historically has been driven by fiscal prudence that we would do something so fiscally irresponsible. Other states that have done this have seen voucher money go mostly to family's that already have their children in private schools. Many of our rural counties do not even have private schools in which to use these vouchers. For residents in these counties, the majority of these vouchers will be used in on-line schools which are demonstrably inferior to in person schools. In a world which will be transformed in the new few years by AGI, we cannot afford to under educate our young people. Texas is conservative because fiscally conservative values have led Texas to be an economic leader in the world but our underinvestment in education threatens to jeopardize this success. This voucher scheme is a boondoggle that could cripple our long term success.

Sharon Meggers

Self

Plano, TX

I taught private school first.

It wasn't easy. They didn't have a curriculum & said to write my own. That says it all.

When I started teaching public school it paid $1,000.00 above the poverty line for a first year teacher.

The administration, staff & teachers were incredibly helpful. It was a successful career that lasted 31+ years.

After retirement I continued as a substitute teacher.

The district expected 100% from every student. Every program from Gifted to SpEd to ESL was designed to benefit student learning. Public schools are incredible and need to be fully funded. These dedicated teachers should have a salary that allows them to live & retire comfortably.

We follow the state curriculum whether parents like it or not.

It's required.

We barely have enough time to teach the curriculum, much less add our opinion.

We are professionally tested by the state.

We teach all children. We are well trained by in-service.

Public schools deserve to be treated with respect.

I oppose vouchers as a result of my personal teaching experience.

TRS Retiree

Erin McCracken

Self

Austin, TX

Thank you for taking the time to receive my testimony regarding HB 3. I wish to voice my opposition to the Texas education savings account program. I understand HB 3 aims to give Texas parents more choice in their children's education. However, I believe there is nuance involving the realities of perceived choice that is important to acknowledge. I spent many years as a mentor in public schools in Austin. I mentored a child whose father was incarcerated. She happened to live close enough to her middle school that she was able to walk to and from school. This was fortunate for her because her mother was not always able to give her a ride to school. The middle school this child attended had high teacher turnover, low testing scores, and lacked a well-funded Parent-Teacher Association. It's the kind of school we think of when we think of an underfunded, underperforming public school. It's the kind of school where a parent might want a different choice for their child. What I learned about reality is that my mentee's mother would not have been able to exercise another choice for her daughter and it's not because she loves her daughter less than other parents or because she doesn't want what's best for her daughter. It's because she is doing the best that she can with what she has. And her daughter deserves to have a quality public education option. I realized that, at the end of the day, there are always going to be parents who must—for a variety of reasons—depend on the neighborhood public school for their child's education. A savings account for my mentee's family would not have changed her situation, it would not have offered them a realistic choice or educational freedom. My mentee's mom did not have the tools to navigate a private school application process. Likely, my mentee would not have had the grades to gain acceptance into a private school. Even if accepted, $10,000 would not cover the entirety of the private school's tuition and her mom would be unable to cover the remainder of the cost. Unless the private school was within walking distance from where my mentee lived, my mentee would have had to rely on public transportation to get to and from school. There are thousands of school children in very similar circumstances as my mentee. What about Texas school children who do not even live in proximity to a private school? Perhaps they are in a rural county where a private school does not exist. It is for so many varied and complex reasons that HB3 IS going to leave hundreds of thousands of Texas school children out. For me, offering Texas families a "choice" is not going far enough to ensure ALL Texas school children receive the quality education that they deserve. For me, honoring Texas families means investing in Texas public schools so that regardless of where you live and of your circumstances, you can rely on your neighborhood public school to retain high quality teachers who have what they need. Please vote no on HB3. Thank you.

Ashley Gilbreath

Self teacher

Mineola, TX

NO to school vouchers. No to HB 3.

Jennifer Clifton
Self, Lawyer
DALLAS, TX

Parents do not want vouchers. We want fully funded public education that welcomes all kids including disabled children and those with special needs.

Victoria Dukes
Self
Houston, TX

Though I do support increasing funding for teachers, I do NOT support House Bill 3 in its vile attempt to privatize education. House Bill 3 is a disgrace to public school systems.

Chloe Mills
Self, nonprofit operations manager
Round Rock, TX

Please vote NO on ESA's for Texas and instead support public schools. As a child of a teacher and former school employee myself, I know that public school teachers make miracles out of bread crumbs. It is amazing to me that I can send my children to school everyday knowing that there are teachers and staff who genuinely love and care for them. Public education is a gift--let's give teachers and students the support they need! People will still be free to choose private, charter, or homeschool but public funding should go to public schools.

Stacy Hock
self
Austin, TX

I strongly support this great bill! Thank you for finally bringing universal ESAs to Texas!

Katherine Howard
Self - Registered Nurse
Houston, TX

Vote NO on HB 3. The state of Texas will fail the next generation - our future - by taking away funding for public schools and funneling it into vouchers that only a select few will benefit from. The children who will bear the brunt of this bill are who we are relying on to be our future nurses, doctors and other healthcare professionals in this state. As a nurse myself who is currently in graduate school to obtain my doctorate of nursing practice, I know that more than ever, this state is in need of well-educated individuals from ALL walks of life and areas of Texas to enter the healthcare workforce. The ability to succeed in any professional healthcare program, undergraduate or not, begins with a solid educational foundation - at our public schools. I do not want to hear anyone who voted for this bill ever complain about a healthcare worker shortage in the future when we see the effects of this disastrous proposition years down the road. I encourage you to think critically and with humility about the essential role that public schools play in the stability of our society and vote NO on HB 3.

April Eschberger, School Administrator

Self- public education

Rockdale, TX

School vouchers should not be approved until all stakes are held equal. When private schools, charters, and homeschools all have to meet the same standards it may be considered. Private schools do not have to offer special education services which is becoming very costly. Now that dyslexia devices have changed to be identified and served by special education look at the increase in the special education numbers. More kids qualify for dyslexia, more services, more personnel needed but unfunded with additional monies. Only public school are forced to take STAAR and be rated. How about all students regardless of school or homeschool take the test, get rated, and be held accountable for HB1416 hours. How about if the legislature do something about the "homeschool" students. Parents get mad at schools and withdraw their student to homeschool but never do one course or assignment. Then a year later come back to public school because they get tired of their child doing nothing. And guess who has to remediate the student who missed all of the school year or semester- the public school they reenroll. How about some accountability to all education services? How about these parents who are doing a disservice to their children. Public school has a lot more mandates they are forced to pay for with that money. Just think of the unfunded security measures public schools must pay for. Why do private school not have to meet these mandates? Their students are just as important, have equal risk of security, and no money from legislature to pay for these things, yet do not have to do them. Before allowing money to be used any place, start comparing apples to apples. Make things equal and more importantly equitable first!!

Gwendolyn Overturf

self

Gause, TX

THIS IS ABSOLUTELY RIDICULOUS. Texas is rural. Many kids think they want to go to a private school. Those private school kids come from families with money. Even if a rural kid uses public funds to go to a private school, the family of the kid cannot keep up with keeping up with the Jones'. The funds are not there (in the home). Even if the rural kid goes there, they will not be seen the same as the well to do kids. What will it do to the child's mental health? I have two of the smartest kids in this great state. They ALWAYS get top scores on state tests. I put my info in the submission, so you can look it up. We will not be using funds to send them somewhere with affluence. We will continue to send our boys to school in podunk small schools in Milam County (Gause and Milano). Underserved, and overworked, but the administrators, teachers, ancillary staff love, and honestly, care for my boys. My boys will get their scholarships the same way people have ALWAYS in this great state. By excelling. This ridiculous idea of giving state funds to allow kids to go to a different school than where they are from is wrong. If the parents have enough money to put them in a private school, that's fine. If a kid is in an area and they do not want to go to a school they are assigned to, they can apply as a transfer to another district. The district can approve or deny them based on their academic performance, and if they act up in school. I say leave it as it is.

Leslie McGuinness-Monclova

Self - former Texas K-12 teacher who couldn't pay her property taxes

Austin, TX

I am against school vouchers.

The most important thing the schoolchildren of Texas need right now is an increase of at least $1200 per year for the standard allotment.

I proudly taught elementary school in Austin ISD for 15 years and had to leave the profession because my salary could not keep up with the cost of living in Austin - most significantly, rising property taxes. 50% of my AISD school taxes leave our district for the state surplus, teachers are leaving because they need better paying jobs, and children pay the price.

Increase the standard allotment and make Texas public schools whole.

John Reed
self
EL PASO, TX

I am about as Republican as you can get, and even I know (after 32 years as a teacher) vouchers are a poor idea. Here is what the voucher lovers do not understand/purposely ignore. 1. Private schools pick and choose kids. If a student does not make the grade and/or misbehave, they are kicked out at any time. Where do they go? The public schools have to take every student regardless. The senate has already admitted that that there is no guarantee they have to take kids with special needs. How are you going to account for the differences? You say competition (how with an uneven playing field)? 2. You claim public schools will still be robust. When they lose money, what do you expect them to cut (art, music, etc.)? It amazes me that this is ignored as many districts are suffering due to no increase in money (only 200 more per student? seriously???) have you seen the amount of districts in financial strain and cutting programs and staff? 3. Can you cite a study that says private schools are dramatically better as you claim? 4. How are you going to prove that private schools are accountable or is that not a priority? 5. Wasn't the point to charter schools competition? It is already here! If you and the governor actually want to fix schools, how about talking to people on the front lines and not people who have no clue as to what goes on. What do voucher lovers have against public schools???

Or is this just to help rich kids? John Reed El Paso

<Texastwostep.pdf>

Susan Anderson, Dr.
Justice Network of Tarrant County
Benbrook, TX

My name is Sue Anderson. I am a resident of Benbrook, TX, a teacher educator, and the parent of two public school graduates. I also chair the Public Education Team of the Justice Network of Tarrant County.

Texans take pride in their public schools, which educate 90% of our students. Yet districts across the state, including mine, face severe budget shortfalls, leading to teacher layoffs and school closures. Many districts have already cut as much as they can. Vouchers (or Education Savings Accounts) will only make this worse. In Fort Worth alone, vouchers could drain nearly $30 million dollars, forcing the district to lay off teachers, increasing class sizes, and harming student learning. Evidence from other states shows that vouchers often lead to worse academic outcomes.

I am a believer in school choice within the public school system. My own children benefitted from these options when they attended Fort Worth ISD schools. However, school choice should not come at the expense of public education. Instead of diverting taxpayer dollars to private schools, Texas should strengthen the public schools that serve all students.

Unlike public schools, private schools receiving voucher funds are not required to accept all students, follow state curriculum standards, hire certified teachers, or comply with special education laws. For example, as a single mom, I once applied to a private school for my child with a disability, but she was denied admission. Even if accepted, a voucher wouldn't have covered tuition, which I could not afford without significant financial aid.

Rural and lower-income communities are hit hardest by vouchers, as they often lack private school options and if they do, private schools usually do not provide transportation. Public schools are the backbone of these communities, and diverting funds weakens local economies.

Vouchers primarily benefit wealthier families, as private school tuition far exceeds voucher amounts. In many cases, vouchers simply subsidize students already in private schools—at taxpayer expense.

The Texas Constitution guarantees a free and efficient public education system and prohibits taxpayer money from funding religious instruction. Diverting public resources to private institutions undermines these principles. I urge you to vote NO on HB 3.

Alexis Hall

self

Plano, TX

I am a certified special education teacher in an elementary school in Allen ISD. I write to you to express my strong opposition to HB 3 and to urge you to reject this harmful legislation.

As a special education teacher, I work with students with learning differences, speech impairment, autism, emotional challenges, and other health impairments. While always challenging, I enjoy my work. However, it is my belief that HB 3 will serve to further weaken an already financially strapped school district. We will underserve those most vulnerable and academically challenged students.

I am held accountable to my students and their parents through the development of fully customized lesson and behavior plans (if appropriate). Through collaboration with the parents, specialists, and co-workers, we work to bring the best outcome for the students under our guidance.

I have not seen anything in HB 3 that requires the same level of standard that we expect of our public schools. For example, private school teachers are not required to be certified. Private schools can pick and choose those students they wish to admit. Private schools have no required curriculum or testing standards. Why are we proposing to give public dollars to private institutions and require no accountability? Something is fundamentally wrong with this plan.

I urge you to stand with our students, teachers, and communities by rejecting HB 3.

Rebeka Villarreal

self

Austin, TX

I am writing to you as a concerned constituent but also as a former school social worker who has seen firsthand the profound impact that public education has on children, families, and communities. I urge you to NOT support school vouchers, a policy that threatens the very foundation of our public education system.

As a parent, I wanted nothing more than to see my child thrive in a safe, nurturing environment where she is valued and supported. After attending a private school from kindergarten through fifth grade, my daughter transitioned to public school, and it was a transformative experience. She graduated from that public school system, and the opportunities she had there played a crucial role in shaping her into the successful, compassionate young adult she is today and I want the same for all Texas children. The exposure to diverse perspectives, backgrounds, and experiences at my daughter's school was instrumental in her success, both as a learner and as a community member. Public schools offer more than just academics—they create environments where children from all walks of life come together, learn from each other, and grow into well-rounded individuals.

As a social worker, I've witnessed the immense needs of students who rely on our public schools not just for education, but for their basic needs—emotional, social, and psychological. These schools are often the only place where children receive consistent meals, counseling, and a safe, supportive environment. The holistic care provided to vulnerable students cannot be easily replicated in a private school setting that may lack the resources, diversity, and commitment to equity that our public schools offer.

School vouchers are not the solution. They take away from the already underfunded public schools, diverting critical resources to private institutions that don't have the same obligations to serve all students, especially those with disabilities, English learners, or students from low-income backgrounds. Public schools have an accountability to every child. They must provide services for all students, regardless of background, while private schools often have the freedom to pick and choose who they admit, leaving behind those most in need of support.

We must prioritize the health and well-being of our public schools and ensure they remain strong and accessible for every child. School vouchers will only deepen the disparities in our education system, creating a divide between those who can afford to supplement their education with private institutions and those who cannot.

I implore you to stand with families and reject school vouchers. We need to invest in our public schools, not dismantle them. Every child deserves a high-quality education, and that starts with a strong, fully funded, equitable public school system.

Thank you for your consideration and for standing up for the future of our children.

Stephanie O'Dell, Mrs

Self

Mckinney, TX

Private schools do not accept students with special needs. Keep public funds in Public schools.

Wenona Lewis

Self

Tomball, TX

Public money should not be allocated for private schools use. Your argument doesn't hold water. You can't say that you are "leveling" the field with "school choice" because private schools do not have to follow the same standards as public schools. If you want to "level" the field, require private schools to adopt the same state curriculum, publish their financial budgets, accept any student, and participate in the mandatory state assessment. Also- make sure that they must follow all of the unfunded mandates that are currently in place for public schools. In addition, make sure that the funding is only available if they meet the required attendance standards and the scores of the state assessments will determine whether they get their money the following year.

Make sure that all of the requirements that are placed on the public ISDs become applicable since the taxpayer is now paying the tuition.

Therese Progar

self

Richardson, TX

Sir, of the the bills that are being considered, I think your is the better. However, I do not support using my tax dollars for private schools. If we spent enough money, wisely on our public schools we could have a model Public Education System in the state of Texas. The money is there. The will is lacking. States that prioritize public education, have high performing schools, and a well educated populace. They set the bar high for teachers, pay them well, and value their service. They recognize the difficulties that may interfere with student performance and teacher success, as in overcrowded classrooms and challenging household situations, and special needs.

I truly wish every representative would spend one day in a public school classroom, just one full day, to see the challenges facing teachers, challenges that could be mediated just by reducing the student/teacher ratio. There are so many needs, and so little real dedication on the part of lawmakers to meet them. I think the solutions that are proposed lack any real experience of the problems.

I have worked in a state that was rife with private schools. Mississippi. The result is a very undereducated population with resulting economic, social, health and quality of life challenges. A state as rich as Texas should be proud of its public schools system, and the result should be one that is an example to the rest of the country. Giving public funds for private education is an admittance that the will to have exemplary public schools does not exist.

Cody Knott
Self Eastland, TX

Members of the Committee,

As a proud Texas public educator, I would like to ask you to reconsider this bill on ESA. For far too long, our public education system has failed its students, parents, and teachers. Before we begin to change and give away money for school choice, we need to ensure that the public schools are given the funding they truly need. It is crucial that we address the underlying issues within our public education system before considering additional funding for alternatives.

Look across the state at the mass layoffs, the teacher shortages, and the growing deficits that are plaguing our districts. Teachers are working harder than ever, but they cannot do it without the necessary resources and proper funding. Our students deserve better than overcrowded classrooms, outdated materials, and understaffed schools. The current state of affairs is unacceptable, and change must come.

One of the most immediate steps we can take is to adjust the Average Daily Attendance (ADA) funding. The current adjustment of $300 per student is insufficient to address the real needs of our students and schools. I urge you to increase the ADA to $10,000 per student. This adjustment would help provide the necessary support for public schools to thrive and better serve the students who rely on them every day.

Furthermore, if you are going to offer $10,000 per student for school choice, then this should be applied across the board, for all students, regardless of whether they attend a public or private school. Every student in Texas deserves equal access to the resources and opportunities that will ensure their academic success. We cannot afford to leave any student behind.

The future of Texas' education system lies in the hands of our lawmakers. It's time we make the right decisions to support our public schools, the heart of our communities. I ask you to prioritize the funding that will provide equitable opportunities for all students, not just a select few.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
Dr. Cody Knott
Eastland, TX

Kristin Barrow
Self
Smithville, TX

I am against HB3 because it would continue to limit resources to public schools including rural schools like Smithville ISD. It would also leave our kids with disabilities & behavioral challenges because private schools don't have to admit kids with those needs. It's inefficient & ineffective to direct our tax dollars to fund schools that have less oversight & those who can exclude unwanted students from enrollment. I want my tax dollars to fund public schools so they have the resources needed to properly help ALL kids. Additionally, teachers & staff should be provided additional money towards their salaries. Texas ranks very low in teacher pay in the country. My husband, a teacher, is now paid less in TX than he was in NC. The cost of living is so much higher here which makes it challenging to afford being here. In closing, our tax dollars should be spent in a way that helps that greatest number of students, not the fewest. THAT is the most efficient use of our tax dollars.

Lindsey Hall, Dr
self/retired
Plano, TX

I find the bill lacking in giving parents school choice. Most of Texas does not have access to private schools so there will be no choice for the majority of the state. For those areas with private schools, the choice is still lacking. Private schools are not required to have certified teachers, provide transportation, accept students with learning differences, disabilities, etc. Most parents are unaware of these differences and again this bill does not address these disparities or ensuring parents are aware of them. As written, this bill will in the main subsidize parents who have children in private school and not improve the quality of education as the bill proposes for the citizens of Texas. As money is a finite resource, spending money on private schools will weaken public schools as their state mandated requirements - accept all students, provide special education, provide transportation, etc will come under increasing pressure as money for these services will become more scarce than it already is. The increase in the student allocation amount is inadequate to meet current needs and as money is moved to private schools, I cannot see funding ever being allocated to meet public school needs.

In conclusion, HB3 as written fails to meet its stated objectives and should be voted down in its current form.

Carol Ahlgren, Ms
Self, Retired
ROUND ROCK, TX

DO NOT pass the private school voucher House bill, which will benefit high income families. the legislature MUST greatly increase the allocations for our public schools, which provide for the needs of all students, regardless of income or ethnicity.

Sara Reeves
Self
Round Rock, TX

HB 3 Defunds Public Education

Thank you for serving on the House Public Education Committee. I trust that you sit on this committee because you understand the value of public education for all Texans.

I am against HB 3 and encourage the committee members to vote against this bill. As written, this bill defunds public education at the expense of lower income families – transferring public funds into private hands to the benefit of wealthy families.

The Governor says he wants to give families the choice. But he's not really giving them a fair choice. The state of Texas woefully underfunds public schools. When one of the two choices is lavished with funds from wealthy families while the other of the two choices is starved by the state legislature, it is not a fair choice. And even with vouchers, it will not be a choice for families with low income. The vouchers will not cover the full and true cost of a private education, and families with low income will stay in public schools that are even more substantially underfunded than they are now. My own school district in Round Rock could lose up to $20 million a year to this voucher program, much of it subsidizing wealthy families who have the luxury of ignoring the plight of public education and who already send their children to private schools.

We don't want to choose private schools. We want to choose high-quality education and equal opportunities. Before considering a voucher program, first give families a real choice. A choice to choose a high-quality public education by fully investing in our public schools.

Thank you,
Sara Reeves
78681

James Bourque
Self - Attorney and Teacher
Cedar Park, TX

I oppose Gov. Abbott's Segregation Bill. In 1957, Texas Conservative's created School Vouchers to give parents the privilege of segregating from racially integrated schools. The Bill failed due to Progressive Democrats, but Conservatism has never stop trying. Today, HB 3 gives parents the privilege of segregating from culturally integrated public schools that teach Tolerance and DEI. Conservatism opposes DEI because they oppose equity and want meritocracy, exclusion, not inclusion, segregation, not diversification. An objective study of United States history would reveal Conservatism in general, social conservatism particularly and religious conservatism specifically have opposed and been wrong on every major social issue of equality since slavery. I ask members to see this error of the past reflected in Abbott's leadership in the present and oppose the idea you have the right to segregate in the name of freedom. This is not who you are, and I ask you to affirmatively make this clear, once and for all, to Gov. Abbott before it is too late. Thank you

Stacy Parker, Mrs
Self Mental Health Therapist
Post, TX

No to the public funding if private school education! Parents already have a choice of their children's education. But public funds should remain and solely go to public schools

Olivia Derr
Self
Austin, TX

Please vote no on HB 3 as it does not align with Texan values or fulfill any need we have in the state. Texans across the sate have consistently signaled that they do not want vouchers by voting NO since 1995. The Voucher Scam will blow up the budget-ballooning up to $6B by 2030, according to the LBB. FULL FUNDING FOR TX PUBLIC SCHOOLS is what is needed. Please increase the basic allotment by $1350 and Vote NO on the Voucher Scam.

As the parent of a special needs student who graduated from high school in 2021, I know first hand how public schools provide services that private schools do not deliver. My child needed the help of aids, learning specialists, behavioral support staff, occupational and speech therapists. We were fortunate enough to live in a well-funded public school district where parent fundraising made up for the gaps in service due to low state contributions. But now those contributions are even lower and if HB 3 is passed, our public schools will be even further degraded where children like mine won't have any chance at getting the support they need for future success.

We do not need to supplement the payments to private schools that will only benefit the wealthy families who already send their children to these schools. The majority of Texans need access to great public schools where we are giving all kids a chance to learn, grow and ultimately contribute back to our great society here in Texas. Please don't harm these Texans to help the few that are already set up for their preferred learning environment.

Rachel Moede
Self
Austin, TX

I am a public school teacher and understand what the Republicans in the State legislature are trying to do to public education. The plan is no secret and all Republicans who vote for this Bill will have to answer for it when hundreds of thousands of students and their families suffer because of this bill. We won't forget.

Michael Casavant
Self, Product Manager
Plano, TX

As a veteran who swore an oath to serve all Americans, I understand the fundamental importance of public institutions that provide opportunity for everyone. Just as I served without regard to background or wealth, our public schools must do the same. This bill, establishing an education savings account program, fundamentally violates that principle.

It's not about 'school choice'; it's about schools choosing which students they want to serve. This legislation creates a two-tiered system:

- For the wealthy: It offers a taxpayer-funded discount on private school tuition, a benefit they hardly need.
- For the vast majority of Texans, especially those in rural areas: It offers nothing. In counties where private schools are nonexistent, this bill simply diverts vital public school funding, further disadvantaging students who already lack resources.

This program isn't about expanding opportunity; it's about exacerbating existing inequities. Private schools often lack the same accountability and transparency as public schools. They can cherry-pick students, exclude those with disabilities, and operate without the same rigorous standards. This undermines the very purpose of public education: to provide a quality education for every child.

Let's be clear: this is not 'school reform,' it's 'welfare for the wealthy.' It takes from the struggling public system and gives to those who already have more.

Instead of subsidizing private schools that serve a select few, we must invest in our public schools, the cornerstone of our democracy. We must:

- Ensure equitable funding that keeps pace with inflation and the rising cost of living.
- Provide resources to support all students, regardless of their background or zip code.
- Strengthen accountability and transparency in public education.

If your oath to serve the people of Texas means anything, reject this divisive and harmful bill. Prioritize the education of all our children, not just a privileged few.

Brian Bloss

Self, public school teacher

Grapevine, TX

To the honorable members of the Public Education Committee,

My name is Brian Bloss, and I am a public school teacher and a conservative opposed to HB3. Before explaining my opposition, I want to thank the committee for splitting HB3 from HB2. However, I urge you to consider: How does HB3 improve our current situation?

Instead of allocating $1 billion for a new entitlement program, which will grow exponentially, HB3 undermines the ability of public schools to function, particularly in the face of an ongoing teacher shortage. I teach for Northwest ISD in Education Region 11, where 60% of districts are already in deficit. Estimates suggest my district could lose over $12 million in funding next biennium, leading to up to 206 staff positions being cut. Already, we're cutting 106 staff and raising secondary student-to-teacher ratios from 167:1 to 180:1. I currently teach 203 students, and this trend will only lead to fewer opportunities for meaningful relationships between students and teachers. I ask, how does HB3 make things better for students?

Moreover, the head of TRS has warned that even a 1% reduction in staff contributing to TRS could lead to insolvency. Governor Abbott has claimed HB3 won't affect TRS, but with fewer students in public schools, why would schools retain staff? How does this encourage new teachers when they face the risk of a compromised pension system? It doesn't, as HB3 doesn't require schools accepting ESAs to contribute to TRS.

Public schools also serve as a key factor for economic development and help maintain property values, which many teachers and Texans rely on for retirement. We're already seeing major districts closing schools due to budget deficits caused by Governor Abbott's decision to tie ESAs with public education funding last session. How does siphoning funds from public schools address the loss of this economic engine?

As a lifelong conservative, I must express concern that this bill creates a new entitlement without accountability. Governor Abbott has claimed this bill is vital to protect children from radical indoctrination like Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI). Yet, HB3 lacks any measures to shield students from such influence, and many elite private schools embrace DEI, as a core value in their selection of staff and what is taught. If protecting children from DEI is so vital, how can we support funding for private schools with DEI as a core value if we fear it as indoctrination? Furthermore, HB3 imposes STAAR testing on homeschool families, who already practice school choice. If this is about freedom, why impose new mandates on families who've chosen independence? Ultimately, the only beneficiaries of HB3 appear to be private companies administering the funds, which will receive 8% of the money allotted to the program annually for administration. This bill will lead to larger class sizes, fewer teachers, and declining property values, all in service of Governor Abbott's vanity project.

ann price

self/retired teacher

olney, TX

Please vote NO!! Public schools in Texas are already underfunded without vouchers. Good private schools don't cost $10,000.

Amy Somers

self

plano, TX

Vouchers are going to take money away from public schools. Private schools likely won't take the vouchers because that means that they will have to take STAAR testing since they will receive money from the state. so then people won't get to use the vouchers. also, vouchers are going to be a tax break for the rich. Texas already has school choice. No VOUCHERS

Margaret Karnowski
Richardson ISD
DALLAS, TX

I am a school counselor who frequently enrolls students who have left private school or been kicked out of private school due to behavior or nonpayment. These students are seldom better prepared than the students who have attended public schools their entire lives. Giving state dollars to schools that have no accountability whatsoever is a slap in the face to all tax payers. Public schools have standardized testing every year and have to accept every student who comes through our door. We have state requirements for class size, graduation credits, attendance, and curriculum. Education savings accounts would take money from them and give it to private schools that can have frequent school closures, no education or certification requirements for their teachers, and no curriculum standards. It is an unethical use of our tax dollars.

Shannon Fallis
Self
Amarillo, TX

We are in favor of vouchers and home school!

Adrianna Holland
Self/homeschool
Kemp, TX

“Hello, my name is Adrianna Holland. I am writing today regarding the Education Committee hearing for House Bill 3 on Tuesday. As a homeschool parent, I value freedom from government strings and regulations in private education, and am against the expansion of government in the name of “parental empowerment.” I would like to ask my representative to please join a large constituency of homeschoolers in opposing “school choice” legislation like HB 3. Thank you!

Eric Betts
self
Austin, TX

This plan is doomed to be a miserable failure that will devastate countless Texas communities and cause preventable, malicious harm everywhere else, and I suspect that deep down you know this but have agreed to go along with it because you're more accountable to a handful of our country's sadly bountiful supply of fanatical billionaires than you are to the public welfare.

Tanya Lovenberg
homeschool teacher
Nacogdoches, TX

Any step of the government to "help" when the help was not requested, is not "help", it is a back door to control. As a homeschooling mother who graduated from and raised my two oldest children in public (government) school, I have first hand knowledge that how I now homeschool my youngest is how God intended we educate our children. The system is corrupt, the schools are over run with people wanting to exploit our children in one form or another. We the people, we the PARENTS, say no to HB 3! We homeschool because we don't want or need your assistance in raising and educating the next generation of leaders, thank you.

Lynda Buckley
Self
Dallas, TX

Do not force school vouchers on Texas. We want our public schools funded properly. You are not doing what the majority of Texans want, only a few billionaires in west Texas. It is very transparent that this has been bought and paid for. I ask you and all the House reps, do your children go to public school? I would bet they Do Not. Let real Texans vote on vouchers. That is only right.

Rachael Barton
Self, pharmacist
Arlington, TX

I oppose this bill and any form of it. When the Covid 19 mandates were passed, citizens were opposing as they knew their freedoms were about to be ripped away from them under the guise of "protecting our health". One by one, every state in the entire United States of America put the same mandates in place regardless of what their citizens wanted. The same is happening with "school choice" and "education reform" bills. Parents, teachers, school administrators, and many others are jumping up and down begging our legislators to not pass this bill, yet one by one, I see states enacting the same legislation. Listen to your citizens. Stop lying to the public that this bill is supported when it is crystal clear that HB 3 is opposed by a large majority. Stop lining your pockets at the expense of our freedom. We see through it. We see the donations. We see the control you want. We see our rights once again being ripped away as our wishes fall on your deaf ears. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Shannon Varner
self
Richardson, TX

I am writing regarding the Education Committee hearing for House Bill 3 on Tuesday. As a homeschool parent, I value freedom from government strings and regulations in private education, and am against the expansion of government in the name of "parental empowerment." I would like to make it known that I along with a large constituency of homeschoolers oppose "school choice" legislation like HB 3. Thank you.

Elizabeth Seballes
Self
Mesquite, TX

As a homeschooling parent I stand with my fellow homeschoolers by voicing that I am against HB 3. We enjoy the freedom we currently have and want to keep it that way. We in no way, shape, or form want the government dictating what we teach our children. Many of us have found that our children excel in an environment not under pressure and based on their interests.

Heather Morse
self; unemployed
Houston, TX

I am a mom to two kids enrolled in public school, and a former public school teacher. The school that I taught at closed down last year as part of our district's efforts to close a $35M budget deficit as a direct result of this legislature's failure to adequately fund public education. The data from states who have previously passed vouchers is clear: vouchers disproportionately go to families already paying for private school and serve as nothing more than a coupon, state budgets balloon a direct result of vouchers, and educational outcomes statewide are either unaffected or decrease--never do they improve. Public school is MY choice. I didn't settle for it because we couldn't afford private, I chose it because it is the best for my family. And yes, not all families have the same choices or opportunities which is exactly why public education exists, and we cannot continue to be a great option without adequate funding. Additionally, the very system that is used to grade us, is broken, misleading and based on a single test taken on a single day that no private schools are required to take. At the very least, have the decency to level the playing field rather than holding public schools to an exceptionally rigorous standard in which the goal post keeps moving, while private schools get to choose which accountability standards they adhere to, and all the while legislators denigrate public schools for being 'underperforming.' As if closing the school I worked at weren't enough, vouchers stand to bankrupt TRS so even the retirement I've paid a decade into is now in jeopardy as well. The lack of suitable public education was one of the driving forces behind Texas declaring its independence from Mexico because we have always known public education to be vitally important. I taught this information to my 4th graders, and am looking forward to the day one of them becomes a legislator who will stand by their duty to their constituents to properly fund public education for the good of our entire state. Public dollars belong in public schools. The people know this, and if you were to put vouchers on a general ballot, that would be clear. Your unwillingness to let all voters (not just Republican primary voters) vote on this shows that you know this as well. Passing a voucher scam will defund public schools, balloon our state budget, grow government, and make a quality education a privilege rather than a right, dooming the future of this state's economy.

Patricia Bradley
Self-Retired.
Houston, TX

School Vouchers will take needed money from Public Education Budgets and hurt the children in Texas. School Vouchers will devastate rural schools and schools in small towns. All public schools will be negatively impacted. The future of this country will be negatively impacted by uneducated and undereducated citizens. The school vouchers will not give all children equal opportunity to receive a great education. The school vouchers will only benefit parents that already have a child(s) in private schools. It is a welfare check for the wealthy. I pray you will vote to oppose HB 3 and save Public Education for children who will be left behind because of School Vouchers. Thank you.

Joshua Gillispie
Victory Baptist Academy
Weatherford, TX

I want to first take the time and thank the legislator for taking so much time in consideration of the education of the youth of our state. I am writing in support of HB3. The separatist came to Plymouth in 1620 to seek a land where they could educate their children in accordance to their Christian beliefs. The first education law passed in America was the Massachusetts Act of 1642, the law expressed that parents are responsible to teach their children three things: 1. the laws of the land 2. literary values 3. spiritual knowledge. A founding principle of our nation is that the education of our youth is the responsibility of parents. The government has increasingly taken away the role of parents of providing education for their children and has become the only avenue many have to train their children. The problem with this is that government education has failed many students. Consider the US Government's own report about the status of government run schools, "If an unfriendly foreign power had attempted to impose on America the mediocre educational performance that exists today, we might well have viewed it as an act of war." (A Nation at Risk, 1983) Additionally the government educational system has adopted the religion of secular humanism. In 2025, the state of Texas has before them the ability to pass legislation that will finally give parents the ability to educate their children the way that is best for their children. These parents have paid sales tax, federal taxes, and property tax for the purpose of "education" but have seen little in the way of return on investment. It is time to place the education of students back into the hands of the parents. The legislator of Texas has no choice but to end the war on children, and allow parents the means and ability to do what is best for their student and their family. The House must pass HB3.

Lindsay Rankin
Self, stay at home mom/homeschool mom
San Antonio, TX

As a homeschool parent, I value freedom from government strings and regulations in private education, and am against the expansion of government in the name of "parental empowerment. Please vote no on this bill.

Jennifer StrawnWhite
Self
Keller, TX

I am commenting regarding the Education Committee hearing for House Bill 3 on Tuesday. As a Texas homeschool parent for the past 17 years, I value freedom from government strings and regulations in private education, and am against the expansion of government in the name of "parental empowerment." I would like to ask this committee to please join a LARGE constituency of homeschoolers in opposing "school choice" legislation like HB 3. Thank you!

Claudia Ibarra

Self / Homeschool Mom of 3

Wichita Falls, TX

As a homeschool parent, I value freedom from government strings and regulations in private education, and am against the expansion of government in the name of "parental empowerment." California offered "government money" to charter school but little by little they started asking parents to submit a sample of school work, to meet with a "teacher" once a month even though we were homeschooling and finally they wanted to incorporate their school curriculum in our homes! And they would only allow secular curriculum! So, we decided to move to Texas in the hopes of being free and now we are faced with this so called "parents empowering bill."

Tara Aycock

Self RN

Longview, TX

Hello, my name is Tara. I am writing regarding the Education Committee hearing for House Bill 3 on Tuesday. As a homeschool parent, I value freedom from government strings and regulations in private education, and am against the expansion of government in the name of "parental empowerment." I would like to ask Representative _____ to please join a large constituency of homeschoolers in opposing "school choice" legislation like HB 3. Thank you!

Roshawna Robinson

Self / Driver for Blood Bank

Bryan, TX

My name is Roshawna Robinson. I am communicating in regard to the Education Committee hearing for House Bill 3 on Tuesday. As a homeschooling parent, who withdrew my child from public school due to the failed system for special education students, I see how absolutely imperative it is that parents are free from government strings and regulations in private education. The government managed educational systems do not work. All of my children have thrived in our homeschool. I am against the expansion of government in the name of "parental empowerment." We already have school choice! It is a true choice that was made without government interference. I would like to ask Representative Michael T McCaul to PLEASE oppose "school choice" legislation like HB 3. We are Republicans, it's time that Republicans in our state start thinking like Republicans again and protect our freedoms! Thank you.

Kieran Sartor

Self

Weatherford, TX

I am writing regarding the Education Committee hearing for House Bill 3 on Tuesday. As a homeschool parent, I value freedom from government strings and regulations in private education, and am against the expansion of government in the name of "parental empowerment." I would like to ask, please join a large constituency of homeschoolers in opposing "school choice" legislation like HB 3. Thank you!

Lavina Bull

Self

Houston, TX

I am extremely opposed to JHR140 voucher progr4am. Please do not pass this bill. Vote NO!

Martha Rhoades, Mrs.

Self, Retired

Huntsville, TX

As a former Homeschooling parent, I valued freedom from government regulation and oversight in private education and I'm against the expansion of such regulation and oversight in the name of "parental empowerment". I am a School Choice supporter, but not at the expense of Homeschools.

Gayla Beimer
self
San Angelo, TX

As a homeschool parent, I value freedom from government strings and regulations in private education, and am against the expansion of government in the name of “parental empowerment.” I would like to ask you to please join a large constituency of homeschoolers in opposing “school choice” legislation like HB 3. Thank you!”

Savannah Marquez
Self
ROUND ROCK, TX

As much as I would love to be there to voice my concerns in person, I am teaching students in a public school today — fulfilling the mission of providing every child, no matter their background or abilities, with access to quality education. I am writing to express my strong opposition to H.B. No. 3, which seeks to establish an Education Savings Account (ESA) program in Texas.

Texas already offers school choice through public charter schools, magnet programs, and inter-district transfer options. Public schools are the only schools required to accept ALL students, regardless of disabilities, behavior, or socioeconomic status. They provide comprehensive services including special education, bilingual education, free and reduced-price meals, transportation, mental health support, and extracurricular activities — services that private and home-school programs are not mandated to offer. Public schools must also adhere to academic accountability standards, safety protocols, and transparency measures that ensure every student receives a fair and equitable education.

Public schools in Texas rely heavily on state and local funding, with a substantial portion coming from property taxes. According to the Texas Education Agency, 56% of public school funding comes from local property taxes, disproportionately affecting districts in lower-income areas. Schools in these communities already struggle with limited resources due to lower property tax revenues. Redirecting state funds to private and home-schooling options through ESAs will further drain critical resources from these already underfunded schools. As a result, public schools will face increased financial strain, larger class sizes, fewer academic and extracurricular programs, and diminished support services for students who need them most.

The ESA program will not provide equal opportunities for all students. Lower-income families will struggle to afford remaining tuition costs when private schools inevitably raise rates in response to state funding. A report by the National Bureau of Economic Research shows that voucher programs in other states have led to significant tuition increases, making private education even more inaccessible to low-income families. Private schools are not required to provide transportation or special education services, excluding families who cannot cover these additional expenses.

Public schools are the backbone of our communities. Diverting funds to selective private institutions will only widen educational inequities and harm students who depend on a well-funded public education system. I urge the House Committee to oppose H.B. No. 3 and advocate for policies that strengthen public education rather than undermine it.

Jonathan Porter, Chaplain
Self
Garland, TX

The passage of this bill will allow government intrusion into private homeschooling families lives. It is NOT something that the Texas homeschooling families want, or need. If we wanted (or needed) the government's help to teach our children, then we would have them enrolled in public school. If Texas has enough money to fund this bill, then the funds could be better used elsewhere - like actually paying all Texas Department of Correctional Justice employees that have not been paid overtime since last year. Better yet, if the state wants to keep the funds within the realm of education, then make the funds available for all students (including private schools and homeschools) to allow ALL youth to be able to getting a vocational-technical certification and/or an associate's degree from ANY school within the state. This bill needs to either 1) be allowed to die in committee, or 2) voted down by the general House. Stop trying to backdoor intrusion into private lives. Instead, make better use of the funds elsewhere and kill this bill.

Tracy Wolfe

Self, public school parent

Cypress, TX

I OPPOSE HB 3.

The Texas Constitution Article VII guarantees that "ALL Texas children have access to a QUALITY PUBLIC education. The state legislature is responsible for establishing and maintaining the system." Republicans have had control of the TX legislature for over 30 years. Ask yourselves why the system is "failing." TX is in the bottom 10 states for public school funding. Over 5.5 million kids enrolled in public schools that don't have enough money. Look up cause and effect. Not enough money =not enough resources/time to do the job properly. Conservatives are supposed to be Constitution advocates with a goal of smaller government. This bill increases government overreach especially in the private sectors of education. It is not fiscally responsible with an est negative impact of over $1B by Aug 31, 2027 per SB2. 158 out of the 254 Texas counties don't have a private school option, so how does this help them? This is estimated to "help" 2% of students; how does the equate to ALL TX families as is constantly being advertised? Yes, ISDs can limit transfers based on space and resource availability due to gross under funding. If funds increased, they could accept more transfer students. Private schools don't actually have to accept anyone as is their right. They do not have to and most don't accept students with IEPs, 504s, physical disabilities, or anyone else they deem unacceptable for any reason. Vouchers will not change private school admission processes. Public schools do not discriminate on gender, parentage, language spoken, race, religion, diagnoses, etc for admission purposes. Magnet and charter schools also have an admission process that limit the number of students admitted based on capacity and teacher availability. They; however, aren't being vilified by our government. Do what's right and listen to the people. Peruse Mr Abbotts FB pages for more information and comments by the people. A "win" on a republican primary ballot, where only 12.6% of registered voters actually voted does not equal a win. If you are so confident that this is what all of TX wants, put it to a public vote for ALL of TX; what are you so afraid of?

Melissa Scott

Self- home educator

Georgetown, TX

As a conservative Republican, I oppose HB3 and the establishment of an ESA/voucher program. This initiative is not fiscally conservative. Private education should be funded with private money and government should not endorse not interfere with the operations of the private education sector, including homeschools. If you look at other states such as Arizona, Indiana, and Florida, spending on voucher programs increases annually. Public schools in those states are suffering. We have an obligation to fund our public schools and that has not been happening in a responsible manner. The 5.5 million public school children in Texas deserve support and funding. This voucher program will only benefit a limited number of students, yet will cost billions to taxpayers and will leave our public schools even more under-funded. I implore you to vote for our Texas children and vote AGAINST HB3.

Rachel Harrelson

Self, homeschool parent

Burleson, TX

Please listen to the homeschool parents and the public school teachers who are saying this isn't the way to improve education in Texas. We already have school choice and we appreciate it. This is only going to pull money from public schools who are already struggling. It will also increase stress on homeschooling parents and students. We do not want this. No one seems to be listening to us. This only benefits the wealthy. If you really want to improve education in Texas let's talk about removing the standardized tests and let's diversify the way we teach in the classroom. It's been proven effective. That's why there is such a growing homeschool movement right now. Don't let the voices of a few wealthy donors drown out the voices of many concerned parents and teachers who love Texas.

Kayla Bingham

Self: homeschool parent

Allen, TX

Government funded Education Savings Accounts, vouchers, and other taxpayer funded mechanisms for private schooling or homeschooling are not "free market" educational options. If the state is funding and overseeing all the education - public, private, and home — it's a monopoly. The republicans who voted for the proposition saying they wanted choice and for "funding to follow the student" did not know these would be the bills to be written. This bill helps no one with their property tax burden, it helps almost no student without government strings, and it doesn't address actual issues in our government educational system. If parents have opted out (as we have) and chosen to reject government mandated education, we are paying property taxes for a service we've decided isn't beneficial. We've exercised a choice. If we were to take advantage of this program, we're still not getting to use our own dollars in a way we choose. The government gets to have a say. That's socialist, not conservative. That's nanny state government, not limited. "Just don't participate." I don't participate in welfare but I pay for it. I don't participate in Medicaid but I pay for it. I don't participate in public education but I pay for it. There's so many unnecessary programs already that I don't participate in yet I have to pay for: I want to keep my own money to exercise the choice I already have. This is a government program that will only expand and lead to more and more erosion of liberty. The fact that you are all so blinded by money, power, and political allegiance is disheartening and makes me ashamed to be a Texas Republican.

Kelsey Allen-Gassen

Katie, Fulcher, dyslexia, ADHD, learning disability, literacy coalition

Fulshear, TX

"Please close the $1.7 billion annual special education spending gap, adopt a better method of distributing special education funds to schools, and end the disability penalty that causes schools to lose half of their Basic Allotment general education funds for most students served by special education. In my district, insufficient special education funds cause denied or delayed evaluations, an adequate staffing, lack of effective dyslexia intervention and students being dismissed from dyslexia intervention before they are reading at grade level because of the lack of funding.

Natalie Betts

Self, AVP Sustainability

Austin, TX

I am a public school parent and strongly oppose HB3. Our public schools need more funding and support, our state does not need to divert funding to private schools where there is less accountability and less accessibility. In many communities, public schools are the only option. Texas needs to be considering ways to invest more in our public school system, our greatest economic asset. I am deeply worried about the future of my child's school if HB3 passes--we have seen how this system fails public schools and its teachers and students in other states. I am asking all members to oppose this measure.

Jarrell Patton
self
College Station, TX

I am here today to ask that you consider what 73% of Texas parents want: school choice. As a parent with children with unique learning and education needs, it is well within my right to choose where that education comes from. I want to make a few points that will help you come to a vote that will allow parents the right to decide where their children will get the best education that the parent deems best.

Carol Alvarado D-Houston stated in an article from the Texas Tribune dated February 5, 2025. "This program, the $10,000, is all from state money," "That's the big problem that many of us have with this. You are giving more per pupil to the voucher program as opposed to what the state — if you dwindle it down — to what the state is solely responsible" for. Let us be clear on a few points: Mrs. Alvarado uses the term state money so that those who do not know state money are taxpayers' money confiscated under the guise of law to fund anything in the state. She then leaves out the federal government funds schools as well, and according to the nation's report card on education, TX expends $11,049 per pupil.

Also, Superintendent Carrabine from Bryan, College Station area said, "If they want vouchers to pass, ask that they level the playing field and make sure that they fund public schools, as well as the voucher initiative,"

For clarity -----

College Station Superintendent Salary as of October 2023 - $280,320

Bryan Superintendent Salary as of October 2023 -$257,482

CSISD Teacher pay - base $51,750 / 30 years $67,500

Brya ISD is comparable

I want to counter the Superintendent with headlines and articles that explain why parents want a choice.

- Daily Caller- Not A Single Student Is Proficient In Reading Or Math At 55 Chicago Schools: REPORT, February 14, 2023
- New York Post- New Jersey ends basic reading and writing skills test requirement for teachers, January 6, 2025,
- The American Mind, A publication of the Claremont Institution- The Great Dumbing Down of American Education, January 16, 2025

I am not here to maline teachers; I know a few teachers who want to help children learn in the best way possible. However, as with most things, it is best to audit what requires more funding, teachers, or administration. The money is not in the teaching but in the bureaucracy. For instance, College Station ISD put a few bond initiatives on the ballot during the last cycle. One was to build a new 53-million-dollar football stadium, which my tax dollars would go to. There were some for computers and student-related items. If teaching is imperative, why fund a football stadium that does not teach the basics of reading, writing, or arithmetic? If the superintendents are worried about funding for the school, why not use the Blue Bonnet curriculum for K-5th grade and receive 60 dollars per student? The state Board of Education approves this curriculum.

CLEVELAND DEAR

Select...

Austin, TX

The diversion of public funds to support private religious organizations undermines the integrity of our secular education system. Voucher programs have primarily benefited affluent families, exacerbating inequality and draining resources from underfunded public schools that serve the majority of our children. We must prioritize equitable funding for public education to ensure all students, regardless of background, receive a high-quality education that prepares them for success. Funneling taxpayer dollars to religious institutions is a violation of the separation of church and state and a disservice to our diverse communities. I urge you to reject measures that defund public schools and instead champion policies that strengthen our shared commitment to accessible, inclusive education for all.

Susan Mouser, Retired teacher

Retired teacher

Abilene, TX

It is your Constitutional responsibility to fund public schools!

Katherine Dombrowski

Self / Engineer

Austin, TX

Vote no to the voucher system. Public taxpayer money should not be diverted to private educational enterprises, especially ones that will not be accountable in the way our public schools are accountable. Vouchers will undermine our public school system by drawing away the funds that go with the student; yet those public schools will be required to accept those same students if and when they decide to return to the public school system.

Parents already have school choice - many districts allow in-district and cross district transfers. Parents also have the choice to enroll in private school - but it should not be at taxpayer expense, especially when those private schools can be selective about who they admit and those same private schools do not have to provide special needs students with their full educational rights.

A great state and a great nation is built upon strong public education. Vouchers will undermine our Texas economy and our Texas communities.

Amy VonFeldt

Self

Kountze, TX

Please vote NO to HB3. A solution to the degrading public school system need not involve homeschools or private schools. A simple solution is to open each public school district allowing kids can move freely among them and let the competitive market work. The increased expense, in this case, would only apply to transportation costs. Homeschool and private schools in Texas didn't need taxpayer funds to establish themselves and we don't need it to continue. I've been homeschooling now for 13 years without government financial aid while paying for our local schools with my tax dollars. Listen to your voting base. Doesn't it sound silly to take our money and then give it back to us and tell us how we must spend it? There is a simpler and more fiscally responsible solution to this than what this bill is proposing.

Phyllis Hays

Self

LUMBERTON, TX

I vote NO to SB 3!

I do not believe for one second that state funds will go to private and homeschools without strings attached. The state has already "broken" the public school system. Why would we want to give the state our private schools and homeschools to break also.

I am a public school teacher. I see and feel the weight of state mandates on public schools and teachers. The state needs to let teachers be the professionals that they are and let them teach. Stop mandating us to a breaking point and then point fingers when we can no longer stand up to the unrelenting, impossible workload.

Pay teachers a professional's wage and stop allowing people who aren't even in the classroom, make decisions for them. Let teachers have a voice!

If you follow the money, you will find the motivating factor behind the push for vouchers. Please investigate who will be getting the kickbacks and do what's best for public schools!

Greg Abbott's posts on social media about vouchers and school choice is an embarrassment to our state. Texans already have school choice. They can choose. Leave it alone and stop sitting on billions of taxpayer dollars that should have already gone to public schools. My district is underfunded and in a deficit at the hand of our governor. Punishing students, teachers, and districts across the entire state is a true disgrace.

Do what's right and listen to Texans. It is the responsibility of our leaders in government to listen to the people. Anything less is a vote out of office.

Fully and properly fund public schools! Support ALL teachers and stop promising TIA incentives that will only be available to a select few. Just pay teachers what they deserve!

For the life of me, I cannot understand why all of this isn't common sense to people who hold such high offices and who make such massive decisions for so many people. Open your ears and listen to the people of Texas!

HB 3 is a NO for me, and guess what?

I'm a republican.

Thomas Burchsted

Self

Round Rock, TX

If you have a moment to leave a public comment for HB 3 babe. You can use this script.

I am reaching out to ask that you vote NO on HB3, the ESA/ School Voucher bill. As a parent and concerned Texan, I want my state to invest more in our public schools and into our Texas communities that rely heavily on the health of their local public schools.

HB3 will take tax dollars away from our public schools which will ultimately harm all Texans and especially hard hit will be our rural communities, less affluent communities and students with physical or learning disabilities, like my son, who relies on his public school's Special Education services and IEP to access a quality education, which all of our children are required by law to receive. The bill claims to give priority to children with disabilities and low income students; however it fails to address the lack of private and charter schools that can accommodate children with disabilities and it makes no requirements for private schools to follow federal and state laws ensuring students with disabilities receive proper evaluations and learning accommodations. The lack of private school options in rural and less affluent communities and the absence of school busing to these schools puts them out of reach for many communities.

ESA/ School Vouchers mostly benefit the wealthier families that already enroll their children in private schools. Families making up to $156,000 are given priority but the bill does not put in place an income cap so very wealthy families making over $156,000 per year can use our tax dollars to pay for their private school educations which is not right. As a result, school vouchers increase property taxes which most Texans are opposed to.

As a Texas parent, I am asking that you vote NO to HB3 and any School voucher bill.

Thank you for your time,

Thomas Burchsted

Sarah Gray

Self

Austin, TX

I am strongly opposed to the establishment of a voucher program, because that's what this is. Call it what you want, education savings account, whatever, but it's vouchers. A statewide voucher program will ruin our state budget, it would steal money from taxpayers to give to the rich, and it would decimate our public schools. The origins of vouchers date back to segregation, and it's clear the people who are supporting vouchers want segregation again — whether that be by race, income, ability, location, etc. How shameful. Let us say NO to vouchers and instead, invest and transform our public schools into the best they can be. A place where every child is accepted and where public school workers are treated with dignity.

Erin Tague

Self; Army Veteran, MBA, PMP, Homeschool Parent, Former Private School Parent

El Paso, TX

Greetings Chairman and members of The Committee,

I am writing to oppose HB3. While the idea of being in a position financially to afford private school is appealing, the idea of that financial assistance coming from the government is repulsive.

I oppose this bill as a matter of principle. This bill is presented as a conservative solution to a number of issues that exist in the public school system. However, this is not a conservative bill, and it does not solve any of the existing public school issues.

Let's take a look at the following principles, and ask if this bill aligns with them:

LIMITED GOVERNMENT

This bill grants new authority to the comptroller to provide funding for approved education-related expenses. It grants new authority to the comptroller to establish a process for the preapproval of education service providers and vendors of educational products for participation in the program. It creates a new program with a $1 billion cost. It creates a new layer of bureaucracy with "certified educational assistance organizations" through which parents must apply to the program. Therefore, this bill

EXPANDS government and INCREASES spending.

INDIVIDUAL LIBERTY, RESPONSIBILITY, & AUTONOMY

This bill fundamentally changes the structure of Private and Home organizations and educators who participate in the program. Those who don't participate in the program and assume personal responsibility for their choices will be affected by those who do participate in the program. If a private school participates in the program, the entire school is now subject to scrutiny by the state.

Students at that school who aren't enrolled in the program will be required to conform to the school's standards, which have conformed to the program standards. "Empowerment" is merely another term for "Welfare," and I think James Madison said it best, "Charity is no part of the legislative duty of government." This bill results in LESS INDIVIDUAL LIBERTY,

RESPONSIBILITY, AND AUTONOMY.

FREE ENTERPRISE

Texas implemented "free market" policies by allowing students to transfer to other districts. That should have solved the problem of "there is no competition for public schools." Why is that not the case? The definition of free market is, "an economic system in which prices are based on competition among private businesses and are not controlled or regulated by a government." Injecting government funding & regulations into the education economy through subsidies is CONTRARY to the conservative principles of FREE MARKET ENTERPRISE.

TIMELESS TRUTHS

The goal of education is not to pass a test, but to instill a love of learning at an individual level and develop knowledge, skills, and abilities. A child's education is not the responsibility of the government – it is the responsibility of the parent(s). We are not denying opportunity. We are rejecting legal plunder and redistribution of wealth. WE DON'T WANT HANDOUTS, WE WANT HANDS OFF.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Bryan Armes

Self

Lubbock, TX

I am a Texan, and I strongly urge you to oppose any efforts to divert public funds to private school voucher programs. Our neighborhood public schools are the backbone of our communities, and they need to be fully and adequately funded to ensure every child receives a quality education.

Chelsea Blue

Self

Bastrop, TX

Please hear the voices of freedom loving Texans! Texas is known nationally as "The Land of the Free" for homeschoolers. The numbers of homeschool families in Texas has skyrocketed, especially in recent years. This means we represent a very large, and growing, percentage of your constituents. We homeschool families do not want to trade our freedom for a check! Currently homeschoolers boast a significantly higher than average academic success rate due to the flexibility and parental autonomy that allows us to tailor our children's education to meet their individual and ever-changing needs. If we were required to conform to the mass-education system, the adaptations leading to our tremendous success would be impossible. We see colleges rapidly developing homeschool recruitment departments due to the well above average graduation and career placement rates of homeschool students. HB 3 seems to be a well-intentioned bill promoting school choice. The enormous oversight, however, is that in Texas homeschools are classified as private schools. As a result, homeschools would unintentionally be included in legislative restrictions and bureaucratic hoops, and it would open the door to the destruction of homeschool freedom in Texas. This is something even my private and public school friends do not want to see. Texas parents of all academic backgrounds and structures want to see parental rights and freedoms protected. They understand that homeschool freedom in Texas is an unspoken means of holding the education system as a whole accountable and leads to better education outcomes all around. No amount of subsidy would be worth the sacrifice of our children's futures. Our children are far too important! Please do not be hasty and push this sub-par bill through. It simply is not fit for passage.

I ASK YOU SINCERELY, PLEASE HELP KEEP TEXAS A SAFE HAVEN FOR PARENTS' RIGHTS AND HOMESCHOOL FREEDOM! VOTE NO ON HB 3!

Christen Shiman
Self - SAHM
Grandview, TX

I'm concerned about the lack of a spending cap in HB3 and the lack of a fiscal note to date with the possibility of not seeing one before the hearing.

Sec. 29.3521 describes this program as having no spending limit. With limitless money coming from the General Fund and creating another NEW fund and bureaucracy, I fear for the future state of our General Fund and the quick use of the Surplus.

HB3 is NOT fiscally conservative. In fact, due to its limiting of our current freedoms, it's far from conservative in general.

On that note, I would like to share my strong opposition to required testing for private schools and homeschools and use of public monies to fund private choices.

In regard to the often cited Prop 11, this question was much too vague. Once legislation is put behind the idea of "school choice", people are no longer supportive. First, in regard to "Texas parents and guardians should have the right to select schools, whether public or private, for their children" we already have the choice to select private school.

Public school, however, is a different story and the Prop wording was misleading, giving the idea parents' would be able to choose a specific public school. Why is there not a bill to open up district transfers across the state with the ACTUAL funding following the student? I understand district transfers are currently possible but it's discretionary and comes with potential fees. There must be a way to make district transfers easier and more appealing to both the family and the school. THIS is where the choice is lacking and where true competition can occur.

Which brings me to my second point in regard to "and the funding should follow the student". This is not occurring in SB2/HB3. A whole new fund is being created, it's not the money already set aside for education. I understand the opposition to using the Education Fund in previous bills, but I don't believe Texans realized they would now be paying twice for K-12 education. The Prop gave no indication that ADDITIONAL monies would be used to fund this new program and bureaucracy.

Finally, government oversight is an encroachment upon freedom. To be fiscally responsible, oversight is necessary when public funds are used but government oversight does not belong in private entities (private and home school.) Because these two things cannot coexist, ESAs and vouchers will never be an acceptable conservative solution. In addition, spending public funds in the private sector is grossly inappropriate.

I understand many of my comments were appealing to a conservative stance, but also recognize Democrats are not in favor of this bill. These school choice bills have done a job nearly thought impossible: uniting Republicans and Democrats. These bills are unpopular ACROSS the board (political party, income level, job, current school status, etc.), despite what our Governor would like us to believe.

Thank you for your time. I look forward to your votes AGAINST HB3.

Anna Fuentes
AFT
El Paso, TX

Please vote against school vouchers. They would be detrimental to our schools and our children. Private school vouchers would take needed funds from our public schools. Private schools do not provide for special needs students. Private schools already provide scholarships for students who cannot afford them. We do not need to give money back to the people who can afford to send their children to private schools. Please help our children and do the right thing!

Carol Villarreal
Self
San Antonio, TX

I am against HB3 because this would be detrimental to public education. My district is projected to lose $41 million in funding if this is passed. This would mean jobs and positions would be cut. With federal funds being projected to be cut this would make it even harder to provide the services to all our students.

I also believe that parents already have choices in where their child can go to school, but the tax payers should not have to pay for that choice.

Will the private schools accept all students or will they get to choose who is accepted based on if they can provide the services the student will require? I believe that if the school gets to choose who is accepted then it is not truly parent choice but it is actually school choice. Also, will the public school get some extra funding for the special education students that they will be required to provide services for even though the student is not enrolled in the school? The public school could be required to provide services to students that are not enrolled in the school due to federal IDEA laws so it would only be fair if they received some extra funding for those services.

Jonathan Thompson
Self
Cypress, TX

No to any voucher or education saving account bill that would allow families making over $160k/year to use tax payer money to supplement their choice to go to private school. As we've seen in other states, these saving accounts wind up being tax breaks to wealthy families who could go to quality public schools, but want to send their kids to private schools. Limit the bill to low income and families with special needs. There needs to be accountability and standards for schools that chose to take public funds as well.

Rosemary Hans
Self
Belton, TX

I'm a public school teacher and I am asking on behalf of other public school teachers do not pass the voucher. We struggle as it is with the little we have and we're expected to work miracles with students who come to us with emotional damage or low income. We use money from our own pockets to pick up what the district can't provide. I love my job and I love my kids. I've been doing this for 19 years now and I don't regret it. Please just support public school

Wilmalene Proffitt
Texas public schools
Goldthwaite, TX

I do not want to support education account program.

Chris Bright
Self
Richmond, TX

Please say no to ESAs. As a public educator I strongly oppose the voucher scam program. When speaking with people from other states, I've not once spoken with anyone that said their states voucher system was successful. People already have a choice of where to send their children to school. Private institutions will likely raise tuition costs. This getting old and tiresome. But the rich will get richer and the poor will stay poor. The states budget won't balance and everyone will wish it never happened. As an educator I will gladly forfeit any state mandated teacher raises so this atrocious bill doesn't pass

Carol Reed

Self/retired teacher

Cedar Park, TX

I, like so many other Texans, am totally against vouchers. I am for properly funding our public schools with money WHICH IS THERE to help the children of Texas—all of them, which is what public schools serve, not just a privileged few—to get a quality education that meets their needs. I have been a teacher since 1992 in public schools. I know how very hard I and my fellow teachers work, and I know how ridiculously low our salaries are compared to the business world. I know what incredible demands are placed on us. We deserve funding to support the programs our kids deserve, our districts deserve funding to support us. Vouchers are a scam being pushed upon us and I am standing up to call all of you who supposedly represent Texans to listen to those of us in education who know what we're talking about.

Kristin Keith

Self

San Antonio, TX

As a public school educator, I am massively opposed to this bill. This bill will defund an already massively underfunded public education system. The claims that it is to help those who are unable to access school choice is a lie. It is also not truly meant to help those in poverty. $160,000 annual income for a family of 4 is not poverty, in fact it is 50% above the poverty level. During the hearing private schools were praised for the things they are able to do, well, why don't you actually fund public education so we can do the same. In y own district I have direct knowledge of a student who does not attend private school while their siblings do. Why? Because they need inclusion services, some for direct behavior related diagnosis. The fact of the matter is this legislature is failing its state constitutional duty in funding public education. Instead of working to do that and improve schools that already serve 5.5 million students in the state, you are choosing to find a way to do what billionaires want. Each year our campus is losing allocations due to lack of funding. Each year my class sizes get bigger. Each year I am asked to do more with less. Each year I wonder, how much longer can I mentally and emotionally afford to do this, not to mention financially. Do better. Serve the students of this state fully, the way they deserve to be served. Just like Cinna was betting on Katniss, I'm still betting on you to do the right thing for the children of this state.

Sheryl Hutchens

Self

Houston, TX

I am opposed.

Kimberly Curda

Self

Richmond, TX

Vouchers are not conservative. They will wreck our budget. They will wreck our public schools. Homeschoolers don't want them either. The majority of Texans agree, say no to vouchers.

Layne Acker

self

Austin, TX

I DO NOT support vouchers/education savings account programs. Taxpayer money should and must be put into public schools, modernizing old buildings and increasing teacher salaries. For so many years, Texas has refused to adequately fund public schools. Education savings accounts will do nothing to help the state of education in this state. Giving taxpayer money to private for-profit charter schools who have no accountability is an egregious misuse of state funds. Fund our existing public schools properly!

Rachel Paddie
self retired teacher
Center, TX

I am absolutely against vouchers. Fund public education for all students.

Dvonne Ray
Self/public school teacher
Waxahachie, TX

There are SO many things wrong with public school funding and by allowing tax dollars to be shifted to private institutions, the state is showing that public schools continue to be at the bottom of their list of priorities. Teachers are asked DAILY to do less with more, and now we are going to take even MORE resources away??? And when the public schools don't meet the needs of their students, guess who gets to catch them up and try to get them back on track when they come back??? Yup.... Public schools..... and when private schools don't offer SPED testing for their students guess who is required to spend the time/money to do it??? PUBLIC SCHOOLS. We are left to clean up everyone else's messes with minimal funds.

Suzanne Fulghum, Teachet
Self / High school teacher
Conroe, TX

I am a high school special education teacher and whole heartedly believe this bill will not benefit any of my students, but it will decrease the money already allotted for them. The students I serve are mainstreamed into level science classes and my fellow special education teachers provide accomodations to make the curriculum accessible to them. Because the legislature has not even provided an increase to keep pace with inflation, my coworkers and I are often split between two classes per period to help the students receiving special education services. Just this practice has severely limited the amount of help the students receive and has significantly decreased the amount of science concepts and TEKS that are mastered. In addition, a majority of my students do not have access to transportation to a private school, there are no private schools in the area that my special education students would receive accommodations, and their families do not have the funds to send them to a private school. Please do not support this, or any bill, that will decrease the funding to students and special education students of our state.

Susan Conn
Self
Bronson, TX

There is already school choice in Texas. Taxpayers should not be footing the bill for private school vouchers. Invest that money in rural, low income schools instead.

Kim Mathews
Self
Wharton, TX

I am against HB 3. No vouchers. I am for raises for Teachers and strengthening Public Schools.

Deborah Hernandez
Self
Fort Worth, TX

Even though I am a diehard republican I am against the voucher. It's welfare no matter how hard you try to push it. I worked 2 jobs for my son to go to private school. That's what needs to be done.

Linda Russell

Self- Special Education Teacher (21yrs)

Cypress, TX

I oppose HB 3 and School vouchers!

Lauren Caplen, Teacher

Self...teacher

Cypress, TX

No vouchers

Sormeh Cole

Self - Public School Educator

San Antonio, TX

As an educator in public schools for the last 18 years, the child of two public schools educators who dedicated their lives to students for 27 and 33 years, and as a parent to two elementary age children, I adamantly oppose this scam of a bill. This will only benefit those who can already afford private school and will negatively affect most other students. The state has accused public schools of failing but in reality, the state has set up public schools to fail by refusing to fund schools properly. The state has failed student and educators year after year. Abbott continues to behave like a mobster and a crook by holding public funds hostage until he gets what he (and all those who are lining his pockets) want. We are near the bottom of all states when it comes to funding public schools and it has been proven that states that invest in public education and value teachers are the highest scoring states. States that have put this voucher scam into place (and that's what it is, regardless of what you call it) have not seen growth in their students and continue to fail educating all students. Public schools were put into place to ensure that ALL students are educated and that is not the case with private schools. The fact that the state is so blatantly giving private school students so much more money per student shows that they only care about those who are wealthy enough to afford private schools. If those private are being offered $10,000 per student, then so should public schools. All those supporting this bill are in the pockets of those paying them and not their constituents. It's shameful. This will negatively affect all of us who have been putting money into TRS. If those that support this bill actually believe that the majority of the people in the state want this then it should be put up for a vote by the people in the state.

Colleen Allan

Self

Magnolia, TX

I do not support HB3. I believe this bill will only help those who already have children in private schools. I also believe this will weaken public schools who are not receiving the same amount of funding per student. If the majority of Texas voters oppose this bill, what could possibly be the reason for passing it?

Sean Reno, Mr

TEPSA

Selma, TX

Our public schools need to be fully funded, and this voucher scam is negatively impacting that process.

Why not put the voucher system to a vote? Because you'll find that most people who have voted for you conservatively do not support this bill, nor do they support the voucher system.

I understand that many of the conservative campaigns were funded to change this, but you have to listen to the voice of your state and understand that the majority do not support this voucher system that will put money in the pockets of those already attending private school. This is a scam and it negatively impacts our educational system. Fund our system and see the impact that it makes.

Mary Darelus

Self - retired

Dallas, TX

I strongly oppose vouchers for the following reasons:

- 1) I do not want my tax dollars paying for private school tuition.
- 2) As proposed, vouchers will go to people already attending private school and should go to students who really need funds to change schools.
- 3) FUND PUBLIC SCHOOLS FIRST! The 5 million plus students in public schools need to be considered first.
- 4) The cost is outrageous for the number of people being served. The $5 billion it will cost could help ensure I have water and power to live out my days without worrying I will suffocate.

TO GOV. ABBOTT - as a lifelong conservative Republican I am exceedingly disappointed that you have allowed millions of dollars to blind you as to what Texans really want. I thought you were a man of character, but it seems you have been corrupted by money...such a shame.

I urge the committee to vote against HB 3, to get busy and fund public schools, to support the millions of children in our schools. Thank you.

Weldon Thomas

self - retired

Cooper, TX

I am opposed to this bill. I do not favor supporting private schools with money that could be used for public education. I am a retired public school teacher/administrator.

Janice Wright

Soli Deo Gloria School

Spring, TX

I direct a homeschool coop, which may benefit from this bill, yet we are supposed to this bill, specifically for homeschoolers. I do not oppose assisting parents in sending kids to private school, but homeschoolers are happy with no govt interference. We want to be free. It's not worth $2k to give any of our rights to government. Please do not include homeschooling in this bill and it will get more support.

Abigail Kehr

Self. Former teacher. IATSE 51 stagehand

Houston, TX

Public schools shouldn't be robbed of funding to support private education. Other states that have had similar ESA programs have not reaped the touted benefits. Instead of funneling money out of public schools, please adequately fund and invest in them. It is unacceptable to just hand over public dollars to private institutions that are not held up to the same standards as public schools. Further, unless these monies would be limited to use at non religious institutions, this move becomes state funded religion, flying in the face of the separation of church and state.

As a parent of a toddler, I'm scared of what will be left of our schools when it's time for her to start her education.

Underfunding and undercutting public schools will cost the future.

Raymond Fernandez

Houston

Houston, TX

I am against this bill as it will damage public education which is essential and a basic human right. If you vote in favor of this, I can guarantee that you will not get my vote. Additionally, I will make sure that your name and vote gets out so that you become very famous for your disservice.

Stephani Bercu

Self

Leander, TX

I am writing to express my strong feelings in opposition of HB3. Our public schools are struggling, and instead of investing into them you are wanting to provide funding for families to offset the cost of private schools. Our allotments have not changed in over 6 years, our basic allotment is less than the amount you wish to offset private schools. Our public schools have to jump through hoops and prove their value to receive their allotment. They are forced to teach students with funds that are based on attendance not enrollment. How can they prepare to teach to a full campus if they are penalized anytime a child is sick? There are no guide rails or checks and balances to ensure private schools are worthy of these allotments. I am urging you to STOP HB3. Public dollars should not go to Private schools. Public dollars should go to public schools based on enrollment; should be sufficient to cover the cost of any Government mandates, and should be sufficient for our public schools to pay our staff a living wage that represents the amount of education they have which makes them an expert in the field.

Rebecca Teng, Dr.

Self, physician

Austin, TX

I am a native Texan, physician, and parent who had the privilege of going through the Texas public school system in Plano, TX. My mother and brother were both public school teachers, and my son is a first-grader in one of the Austin public schools. Public schools allow opportunity and education for all students and is an investment in our future. Please do not decrease funding for them!

Casey Uphhes

Self

Dallas, TX

Keep Texas money for Texas children in public education. No vouchers, they are not the answer and Texans don't want them! We need more $ per student allotment. Support our kids, not east coast special interest groups.

Kimberly Caldwell

Self/Paraprofessional-Teacher

Texas City, TX

I have been working in my school district for six years, and I see how detrimental our public schools are needed. In my community, I see how these vouchers would impair our youth from attending schools. Being a single parent and a teacher, I notice that in my community there would be a lot of students not participating in these private schools; especially if their parents have to pay out of pocket additionally from the school taxes that are required. A lot of our lower income households would not be able to afford to send their children to a private school even though they are being assisted with the $10-13,000 voucher. It is unconstitutional, and immoral.

Marisa Hayes

Self- accountant

North Richland Hills, TX

I am opposed to this bill that will cripple public education in the state of Texas. So many businesses are moving to Texas from out of state - it's not just because of the friendly business climate. It is because our children receive an above standard quality education in the public school system. Please do not vote for this bill so that we and our children can continue to raise our families in this great state.

Amy Penny

Self educator

Midlothian, TX

I am in opposition to HB 3. I no longer have school aged children however I firmly believe in fully funding public education as a tenant of our State Constitution Article 7. I do not agree with my tax payer dollars being spent on private education that is not held to the same standards as public education in regards to state testing requirements, and state mandates.. It is not fair nor right for private schools accepting vouchers to have little to no accountability and transparency as public ISD's and Charter schools are required to have and be held responsible to tax payers. I am also greatly opposed to funding private schools who are not required to accept all students and are able to discriminate against students who receive special education services. I am asking that HB 3 not be passed.

Susan Attel

Self, Family nurse practitioner

Dallas, TX

Against HB3, keep Texas money for Texas public education, not for east coast special interest groups. Fully fund public schools.

Sandra Ayala

Self

Harlingen, TX

The voucher plan is basically subsidizing private school educations for the wealthy who would send their children to private schools anyway because they can afford to. Taking away money for our public schools is bad for our communities. It will result in less quality programs for our students, higher teacher to student ratios, etc. Also, with less people paying into TRS, this will make the teachers retirement fund vulnerable.

Erika Musick Griffin

Self - Public School Special Educator

Spicewood, TX

The proposals included in HB3 are driven by power hungry and money driven individuals with no true care for the public school children or their educators in the State of Texas. Fully fund public schools FIRST, and if any money is to go to private schools, hold them accountable for the same measures we hold public schools too. It is also important to realize that TIA is just a smoke and mirrors scheme to make it seem like the state is paying teachers, when it is actually so challenging to receive that it isn't effective. Additionally, recognize that all staff in public education are underpaid, not just teachers, and provide across the board raises to include paraprofessionals, support staff, professional (non-administrative) staff, custodians, cafeteria workers, maintenance workers, bus drivers, and all those who serve our students.

Debra Garcia, Ms.

Self

Houston, TX

Please vote no to vouchers. It WILL take money away from public school funding! Thank you for your help in this matter.

Ann Sinclair
Self, retired
Cypress, TX

I am absolutely appalled by this bill. Designed to help the rich, and cut funds to state schools. How could that ever be a good thing. Money offered doesn't cover tuition costs, so poor families can't use it. My grandchildren went through the public schools in Spring Branch, Houston. Excellent education. Their parents could have afforded private schools but they knew the state schools were excellent. There are also huge negative financial implications for the state. Look at the other states that have done this. Please vote against vouchers, or ESAs.

Rosetta Phillips
Self as a Texas Teacher
San Antonio, TX

I do not support this voucher bill. As a teacher in a high title 1 campus, I feel the stress of being underfunded as a public school. The Texas Government has withheld funding for 2 years from our public education system all because they are trying to set aside money for private institutions. I believe public tax dollars should not be spent on private institutions that are for profit. Public dollars should go to public institutions. Private dollars can fund private schools as it's always been for a reason. Another great issue with this is that the voucher bill would give private schools money with no stipulations while public schools have to go through strict calculations and qualifications for the same fund. It is wrong to have two different and unjust systems to be able to fully fund a school. It's a backwards system that benefits the private sector schools who will be getting double funded. Through taxpayer dollars and through private funding. Another issue many Texans have with this bill is the inequity in enrollment qualifications between the public and private schools. A public school welcomes and serves any and every child who comes through our front doors and we provide transportation when needed. Private schools get to hand pick and reject students by their own admission standards. They are highly selective and will not provide transportation for students in need. They will also base their choices on families who can afford to pay for expensive meals and uniforms in addition to the rest of tuition. They will not accept students from families who will struggle to afford the rest of the tuition and fees these private schools require a family to meet. I urge the Texas Legislature to consider how unjust this voucher plan will prove to be. The greatest benefactors of this plan are middle to upper class families who already have and already pay for children in a private school system. If you are adamant about passing vouchers for private education, make it fair for all children to access just as it is for public school.

Suzanne Thiem, Dr.
HFT
Houston, TX

Vouchers have been voted on multiple times. Texas residents have already spoken. We do not want vouchers. There are multiple studies proving that vouchers do not improve educational outcomes. The only reason Governor Abbott is continuing to hammer this one issue can only be to appease donors since it is certainly not in the interests of constituents that have already expressed their wishes.

Lou Rintala
Self
San Antonio, TX

I am a teacher at an urban district in San Antonio. I have seen the need for more funding to be able to serve our children better. Many of our inner city students have severe academic, emotional, economic, and behavioral needs that require immediate attention that can only be addressed with proper school funding. The use of vouchers only benefits a small amount of students in our state, but leaves out the majority of our children, especially in rural or inner city areas. I beg you to reconsider your position about school vouchers and support instead funding to better serve our students in public schools.

JayDe Fulker, Mr.

No

Lantana, TX

Dear Representative Buckley,

As a parent, I want the best education possible for my child and for all Texas students. That's why I strongly support full funding for HB3 to ensure school safety and quality education. However, I am deeply concerned about any efforts to divert public funds to private school vouchers.

Public schools are the backbone of our communities. Every child deserves access to a well-funded, safe, and high-quality education—not just those who can afford private tuition or meet selective admission criteria. Vouchers take critical funding away from public schools, leaving fewer resources for students and teachers who need them most.

Instead of funding private schools that lack accountability and transparency, I urge you to prioritize investments in public education, including better teacher pay, classroom resources, and student support services. Our tax dollars should strengthen the schools that serve the majority of Texas children, not undermine them.

Please stand with Texas parents and students by opposing vouchers and protecting public education funding. Our children's future depends on it.

Robert Mathews

Self

Grand Prairie, TX

This is a complete scam with no redeeming qualities. Similar scams have been pushed through in other states and they have ALL done more harm than good, not just to the school and education, but to the students and families that are lower income. Many students in my school district rely on the public education system for food, healthcare, and programs that can help them get out of abject poverty that has plagued their family. This bill will immediately take $3 million out of my school district's annual operating budget, which will cut teacher jobs, cut programs, and cut the benefits to our children. Governor Abbott and his Billionaire friends will be the only ones benefiting from this scam, and it is a scam in every sense of the word. It will not protect students who are not food secure, don't have stable housing, have a learning disability, happen to be a religion that is different from the school, and it certainly doesn't give them access to a quality education. The overwhelming majority of vouchers are going to families whose children are already in private schools, and the rest of the vouchers will likely send kids to lower performing private schools, which will put them even further behind. Please, for the sake of our students, say no to the school voucher scam known as HB3.

Xenia Zuniga

Self/ Teacher

Houston, TX

Dear Members of the Texas House Committee,

I strongly oppose HB3 as it diverts crucial public education funds while failing to adequately support traditional public schools. Public schools serve the vast majority of Texas students and should be prioritized when allocating state resources. By increasing charter school/ Private school funding without requiring them to meet the same accountability and transparency standards as public schools, this bill threatens the long-term success of our public education system.

Additionally, while incentives for extended instructional time may seem beneficial, they should not come at the cost of sustainable and equitable funding for all schools. I urge you to oppose HB3 and instead focus on strengthening our public education system by ensuring all students receive the funding and resources they deserve regardless of where they live.

Sincerely,

Xenia Zunig

Houston, 77095

Claudia Sylvester, Dr.

Self and Educator

Houston, TX

Gregg Abbott voucher is a failing bust for poor and middle class parents.

Amy Brown, Mrs

Self

Houston, TX

I don't believe that your choice to go to private education should be rewarded. You choose it most likely because you can afford it at some level currently. You choose it to keep a certain social status and or religious voice. Again the key word is choice. I am a public school educator and have been for 34 years. I have seen many changes in education over these years. This is one of the dumbest I have encountered. Especially if the equity in dollar amounts are not there. Whatever you think a private school parent should get to send to private school to educate their child so should every public school child's school get to educate that child. Fair is fair. Criteria for educating the children should be same as well as my tax dollars are also being used

Kelsey Plichta

Self

Plano, TX

ESA is not the answer to help with what many are saying are "failing schools." I work in a Plano ISD as a speech Language Pathologist. I see where the need is. I see what our schools are doing right. I keep hearing that this will give parents the choice that they need. Yes, there are some private schools that are for children with disabilities. Most of these schools are for students who have dyslexia and not intellectual disabilities. They also do not accept children with behaviors or those who are on the Autism Spectrum. Yes, there are some, but buy and large that is not the case. If we could invest more into special education departments in schools and provide paraprofessionals a living wage I think that we will see public education and those receiving SPED services thrive. Plano ISD is currently operating a huge SPED deficit. Yes, I know you have plans to fix that in other bills, but it will not fix or cover all of this defecit. Parents do have a choice on where to send their kids. Private schools do have scholarships. I know plenty of parents who work at private schools so their children can attend that school. That is their choice. ESAs have not been shown to work in other states unless you twist the data like many on this committee are doing. Do not pass HB3 to the floor. It will be a disaster for our state and our smallest learners.

LaPria Cashaw, Ms.

self

Houston, TX

I do not support the school voucher bill. It will take funds away from public schools. I do not support using my tax money for a select group of individuals to attend private school.

Julie Dowdy

Self/public school teacher

Idalou, TX

I am completely opposed to HB 3. As a public school teacher in a rural school that is underfunded, I believe the state should adequately fund public schools rather than give money to private schools. This is being improperly labeled as a bill on "school choice" but we already have school choice in Texas. This bill will hurt public education & I do not believe the majority of Texans support this bill.

Thalia Escobedo

SELF

McAllen, TX

I cannot believe we have to keep calling our representatives out like children. The majority of Texans fully support our public education system. We love our schools, staff and especially our teachers. You have been attacking our public education for decades and I have had enough. My children deserve the best education, and the best education is PUBLIC SCHOOLS! You withhold funds year after year and you treat our teachers less than what they deserve. It is time to vote AGAINST the school voucher scams. I WILL NOT SEE MY CHILDREN'S FUTURE COLLAPSE BECAUSE YOU ARE TOO COWARDLY TO STAND UP!

Jennifer Burcham

Self

Canton, TX

The voucher bill will hurt Texas public school children. My parents were both public school educators & I attended public schools as well as my 3 grown sons.

Public money does not belong in private schools. Also the Teacher Retirement System will become insolvent in 10.8 years if the governor gets his way with the expanded program.

So my Dad who worked his entire life for the good of public school children won't get his retirement because the Governor is so selfish & short sighted???

Eileen Mervish, Mrs.

Self, public school educator

San Antonio, TX

As a Texas public educator of nearly 2 decades, and the parent of two children with disabilities who attend Texas public schools, I vehemently oppose HB three. This bill will divert funds from our already underfunded Texas Public schools. In my district alone if one percent of our students were to leave for a private school under this bill, we would lose $10 million. Decibel impact my personal children, who, as you have heard through numerous accounts in testimony, would not be accepted at a private school as well as the over 100,000 students in the school district where I teach.

Instead of creating a third system to fund which the state cannot possibly maintain, I implore you to fully fund our public schools, To fully fund our special education programs and programs for emergent bilingual students. There is a direct correlation in academic achievement and per pupil spending, and the state has not provided an increase in the basic allotment for Texas students since 2019 despite inflation. The impact on rural districts will be devastating. These families often do not have private school options within 100 miles of their homes, but will be impacted by the cut and funding that their already small schools will receive.

I urge the members of this committee to kill this bill in committee and not let it reach the house floor. Do what's right for Texas kids, Texas teachers and vote no on house bill three.

Craig Campbell

Retired self

Austin, TX

If 62% of public school students are low income, then the state money should go there. This voucher program is to support an aristocracy. America was created to get away from aristocracies, we should not recreate such a society.

Meredith Butterfield, Dr.

Self

Austin, TX

Please say no to vouchers. Evidence from other states has shown it will destroy public schools in the state. We need the funding in our public schools. Also, eliminate recapture.

Craig Campbell

Retired self

Austin, TX

This will negatively impact retirees and TRS. The Actuarial Impact statements have not been accurate and complete. The one done on SB 2 was a sham.

Damarys Rodriguez, Ms.

Self

Austin, TX

Members of the Texas House Committee,

As a concerned parent of a child in an Austin public elementary school, I strongly oppose school vouchers and education savings accounts (ESAs). Instead, I urge you to strengthen our public education system by increasing the basic allotment to account for inflation and shifting funding from attendance-based to enrollment-based models.

Vouchers and ESAs divert public funds to private institutions, harming rural schools, low-income families, and children with special needs. They lack accountability and transparency, and rural communities would bear the financial burden without benefiting.

Public dollars should remain in public schools, which serve 90% of Texas children. Diverting these funds weakens our public education system and jeopardizes the future of millions of students.

The basic allotment has remained stagnant at $6,160 per student since 2019, while inflation has risen by over 14%. Texas ranks 46th in per-student funding, falling $4,400 below the national average. An increase is necessary to restore purchasing power and ensure districts can address local needs.

The current attendance-based funding model penalizes schools for absences beyond their control. Shifting to an enrollment-based model would provide more predictable and equitable funding, ensuring all enrolled students receive necessary resources.

Investing in public education is an investment in Texas' future. Vouchers and ESAs threaten to dismantle our public school system. Instead, I urge you to:

1. Reject vouchers and ESAs.
2. Raise the basic allotment with an inflation adjustment.
3. Transition from attendance-based to enrollment-based funding.

These changes will strengthen our public schools and build a brighter future for all Texans.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Damarys Rodriguez

Concerned Parent

Julia Goewey Ruiz

Self

Austin, TX

I do NOT support education savings accounts that divert public funds to private schools. This will erode our constitutionally mandated public education system in Texas. Support our Texas children, NOT the billionaires funding this request.

Colin Roth
Self
Plano, TX

I am vocalizing my strong opposition to this bill.

Jenna Napier self (office manager), husband (middle school orchestra director) twin 4 year olds (almost public school kindergartners who need fully funded educations)

Denton, TX

Please oppose HB 3 for the sake of my family and community. Public school funding is not just about what we personally use. It's about investing in a well-educated society and strong economy. Living in a state without fully funded, quality public education will make your world a mess, too, both socially and economically. This program would remove essential funding from public schools and lead to cuts in teacher jobs and payment, fine arts programs, essential services such as counselors, nurses, psychologists, and bankrupt the Teacher Retirement System. My husband is a middle school orchestra director in Denton ISD. He used to have an assistant director. His school has already cut some teacher positions and dropped some elective choices that students used to have for budget reasons. He no longer has an assistant director and runs a program of several hundred 5th-8th graders by himself. If the money follows kids out the door, fine arts programs like orchestra will suffer more, and my husband's job and retirement will be in danger. Excellent teachers such as himself will begin to migrate to other states. This isn't even to mention the broader and more devastating issue that students themselves will suffer the loss of these programs and services. Charter and private schools do not frequently have any, or great orchestra programs for kids to get the opportunity to participate in, much less for free like they do in public schools.

Texans see right through Abbot's attempt to paint this as a partisan issue. It's not. It's deeply unpopular among Republicans and Democrats alike. Texans will have your back if you oppose this. We will continue to mobilize and vote you out if you don't, in favor of someone who wants to represent us and our best interests as Texans.

Texans have always had school choice. This is not providing additional choice; it is providing a coupon for those who are already affording private schools, and putting more money into the hands of Governor Abbot's wealthy donors who stand to profit from private and charter school systems. Governor Abbot must divest himself of these large donations and return them in order to prove he has no conflict of interest here. Do not sell out our children to corporate interests.

Julie Moore
Voter
Burleson, TX

I oppose HB 3

Misti Neese
Self/Program Management Leader
Austin, TX

I oppose education savings accounts. Invest in our public schools rather than try to tear them apart.

Jim Flores
Self Finance
Arlington, TX

Vote NO to vouchers.

Aubrey Floyd
Self/Educator
Dallas, TX

As a constituent, educator, and mom, I'm writing to express my strong opposition to the school voucher bill, HB3, and ask all to vote against it. My local district Richardson ISD stands to lose as much as $15,200,371, which would be a devastating loss for our community. Public funds should stay in our public schools, not be divvied up to unaccountable private schools. Instead I urge our Representatives to fully fund our public schools.

Kristin Hildebrand
Self
Trophy Club, TX

I am asking that the basic allotment for public school students be raised to $10,000 per student. If we are going to give $10,000 per student to privateschools, then public school student deserve the same amount. You are sending the message that over 5 million Texas school children are worth less than their private school counterparts. Raise the basic allotment to $10,000 for public school students!

Megan Little Self
Austin, TX

I oppose the establishment of educational savings accounts in Texas

Nisma Jetha
Self
Rosenberg, TX

I oppose HB 3 as a mom in Texas. Attending private school does not guarantee better education and academic achievement. In fact, it increases discrimination among children and adults. There will be no guarantee of transparency and accountability of private schools. I am strongly against HB3

John-Paul Harris
Self
Burkburnett, TX

I oppose HB 3.

Christy Walters
NISD
Fort Worth, TX

ESAs allow tax dollars to be spent without transparency or accountability. Private schools/students choosing vouchers should be subject to the same financial and academic accountability.

Removes $1 billion from the state's budget that could otherwise fund Texas public schools.

Tarma Grady
Self
Austin, TX

Our public schools desperately need proper funding. I am strictly opposed to providing more public dollars to private schools than our public schools. We were drawn to TX because of many things but strong education was one of them. I no longer believe TX has strong public education. Please support our public schools!

Ashley Perraud

Self

Austin, TX

I strongly oppose school vouchers / savings accounts. They are welfare for the wealthy and will only further the decline of our public schools due to the states continually not funding public education appropriately since 2019.

- Districts are operating in the red and being forced to close schools and hire uncertified teachers.
- Rural schools get left behind

Karen Reyes

School counselors

Pflugerville, TX

This is giving $ for rich- our society will be negatively influenced! Vouchers = sabotaging public schools. AGAIN! Please vote NO for vouchers

Elizabeth Morris

Self

Hutto, TX

I strongly oppose this bill. We need to strengthen our public school system which gives access to education for EVERYONE. I do not want my money going to fund this. I would instead like it to be put back into our PUBLIC schools to strengthen them.

Sara Erikson

Northwest ISD/Teacher

Roanoke, TX

Please listen to the voices and pleas of the vast majority of Texas - increase the basic allotment per student to reflect the enormous rate of inflation. Strong public schools with properly funded programs and fairly paid teachers are good for ALL Texans. Public tax dollars should never be used for private citizens' choice to send their children to private school. If you insist on holding our public school funding hostage, at the very least increase the basic allotment per student. Parents, teachers, and KIDS deserve so much better than our elected officials are giving.

Gabriela Torre II

Self

Austin, TX

I am against HB 3 as I feel very strongly that vouchers are not helping the average Texan. This voucher will only put a huge strain on the public education system. I am against the bill and strongly urge you not to support it.

Nicole Young

Self/instructional coach

Haslet, TX

I would like to see the basic allotment increased to at least $7,500 to match inflation. More would be even better to help serve and fund public education. This would allow increased staffing for districts, pay raises to help our staff have a livable wage. Since 2019, inflation has risen 23% but basic allotment has not increased. The $220 proposed is a 3.5% increase but is not enough. I am asking for an adjustment to the basic allotment to $7,500 to match inflation with consideration to continue adjustments moving forward to in increase as inflation increases.

Gary Helmick

Self - maintenance

Haslet, TX

Increase the basic allotment! My kids deserve the same increase that you want to give for vouchers!

Dolores Kmiecik Graham

Self

College Station, TX

I am a Texan and support Education Savings Accts and empowering PARENTS to do what is best for our children. In the 1950s, my parents paid high taxes to send other children to public school, while paying tuition at a Catholic school for me/my brothers. My Mom literally washed dishes in the school cafeteria to pay the tuition. We never had money for a vacation. Instead, that money went to our tuition. My parents sacrificed greatly to afford this for us. Public schools are failing our children. Parents are in the best position to decide what is best for their child. Why are our children reading below grade level? Why can't they do math? My own children went to a Catholic school where parents waited in line, camping out overnight to enroll their child. Average standardized test scores at their school were in the HIGH 80th percentile!! Let that sink in. Why is it that national stats show that Catholic schools educate a child for 1/3 of the cost of the child to attend a public school with far better results? I have met parents whose children are bullied unmercifully in public schools and the teacher/principal/counselor does nothing. I have family members that gave up teaching in public schools, totally left the profession, because they got tired of being pushed around by students and going home with bruises. All public schools are not bad, but some are. Parents need to be given an option to move their child to an environment where they are not bullied, where they can flourish. My own nephew attended a public school and was hit by another student, who had a reputation for bullying his classmates. The SCHOOL DID NOTHING to the bully. This bullying went on and on. My brother called the school about the incident but the school did nothing. My nephew had no other options. A few years later, my brother / nephew were subpoenaed to testify against the bully in court and describe the incident where my nephew was hurt. The bully had continued to hurt students and finally hurt a student very badly. The parents were sued. Years later, my brother learned that the bully, now an adult, had been killed in a fight. I am sick and tired of the teachers' unions and bureaucrats fighting ESAs when they have no interest in our students and their getting the best education possible. ESAs would put the bad public schools on notice to get their act together. Or just go out of business which would be a blessing for the students. Also, parents deciding to enroll their children in non-public schools would get the benefit of their tax dollars for their children. I HAVE TO ASK YOU LEGISLATORS WHERE DO YOUR CHILDREN GO TO SCHOOL? If not a public school, why not? I would be very interested in seeing this stat. Also, I want to suggest that if a student is not reading, writing, doing math at grade level, they must attend mandatory summer school. I sincerely hope your legislators will do the right thing for children and support ESAs.

Michael Swanson

Self

San Antonio, TX

It is an ABSOLUTE disgrace on what is attempting to be done with HB 3. This so called "savings account" is effectively thievery of the highest order, taking money from where it's needed most, and giving yet another financial break to families who can already afford to send their children to private schools. And in the wake of what this bill does will leave behind a public education system holding on for dear life. Teachers are the backbone of our young society and it's vital that public school teachers especially have the funding available to help students learn and prepare to take on the world ahead of them. I urge every member of the legislature to REJECT this bill.

Silvia Revello

Self

Roanoke, TX

Please increase allotment for our PUBLIC SCHOOLS according to inflation to $7,500. The just over 6k isn't enough and it's causing terrible stress on our communities, our district has to max out ratios and our kids are suffering. Programs are being affected and we're EXHAUSTED of paying so much taxes for you to withhold them. Nobody wants vouchers we want the basic allotment to match current cost of living!!!! ENOUGH!!!! We are exhausted of begging to be taken out of the LAST of your priorities. DONT MESS WITH TEXAS CHILDREN

Nic Loyd

Self

Haslet, TX

Please fund schools to keep up with rising costs!

Stacey Faulkner

Self

Rockwall, TX

I am writing to voice my opposition to this bill. The overwhelming majority of Texans want fully funded public schools, not welfare for the wealthy.

Mary James

Self

Wylie, TX

I urge all of our legislators to vote no for house bill to and House Bill 3 regarding the state of education in texas. We are for public education and the appropriate funding of the schools that we have currently in existence. Appropriate funding will impact the quality and the longevity of the Texas Education system. Giving our money to private institutions when our money is being collected for a public Institution is unconstitutional in the state of Texas. The Texas Constitution states that a public education will be fully funded. As a special education teacher for 14 years in the state of texas, I can actually tell you that the quality of Education available for our special needs population does not exist outside of the public education system. Private institutions, even given the opportunity to have additional funds provided to go towards about your system, will still not have the quality of the staff, the training needed to evaluate and assist, and will not provide the services needed for the special population. I urge each of you to vote no on House Bill 2 and 3 and to support public education, properly funding it as our State Constitution states must be done. Many of our more rural areas in the state do not have systems available for private school or Charter schools. It is imperative to continue to fund the public education that will serve all students and meet the needs of all students in the state of texas. It has been said in a study in the state of Indiana that when vouchers were passed, private schools became less accepting of voucher money. They do not want to be held accountable in any way to the voucher system and the rules that will govern it, so they are going to not accept students who are paying by voucher. In indiana, a number of private institutions opened to accept voucher funds, and they were a scam. They did not provide a quality education of any kind for the students and we're only in existence in order to take the state's money and run. I would be very concerned given that voucher systems have failed and have shown to bankrupt the state of all of its educational funds within a number of years, including their retirement systems. My money went into my retirement system and I do expect the state to fully contribute to my retirement and not to drain those funds for all of our Educators and future educators. Please vote no to House Bill 2 and House Bill 3.

Kasie Castleberry

Self

Fort Worth, TX

Increase student allotment to $7500 and say NO to school vouchers

Suzanne Richmond

Self

Bedford, TX

Please vote no for HB3.

Andrew Mysyk

Citizen of United States, tax payer in Travis County

Austin, TX

Increase funding of the public schools by 1500 per student. As a mother and tax payer and registered voter and citizen, I do not support voucher program, please redirect funds to public schools.

Deidra Robertson
Self
Buchanan Dam, TX

As a retired public educator and Republican, I oppose HB3. This bill is not a fix for public schools. It is an abandonment. As many, many people have already said, we HAVE school choice! People move to areas for their schools, parents can transfer children across district lines, they can apply for charter schools and private schools and can choose to homeschool. The pitiful $220 you are "giving" public schools does not make up for a hostage takeover deficit left when schools were left without increases the last 5 years. Our small district sends around $5 million back to the state for recapture each year. We can clearly see that Robin Hood program didn't work and this is just another Robin Hood in reverse.

This is a slap in the face to the taxpayers, teachers, students and administrators of Texas! The fact that you have used other states data is shameful. Texas is a whole other state of mind! We are - or used to be -Trailblazers! The people you need to be listening to and meeting with is real boots on the ground seasoned teachers. You shouldn't be creating or passing bills about education without input from people who deal with problems day to day. The problems school today are because of policy and mandates from this very House. Public School Teachers spend way too much time documenting and preparing for a test that has been a failure since day one. Teacher pay now and most likely in the future is merit based and teachers must stay in a district for 3 years before they see a dime of increase! How would YOU like to have your livelihood based on a 3rd graders performance? We are not comparing apples to apples here. Private schools will not take the same test as public school students. Private schools can choose the test they want their students to take. If you take money from the public pool and send it to a private entity and testing is paid for public schooling from that same pool, then those students should be required to take the same test!

I would bet that most house members were public school students. They are here today because of a teacher. Teaching is the only profession that touches all other professions. You are requiring core classes to have certified teachers for public education but don't care whether private school teachers are certified? None of this makes sense! I would hope you decide to do what is right for the majority of Texans. It isnt just Democrats who are against it. I know many Republicans who do not want it. I know many private schools who don't want it and I know lots of homeschool parents who are afraid of regulation if they take money from the state. This is NOT a win-win situation for the children of this state. I hope you choose to do what is right and not sell us out to the highest bidder. Thank you.

Barbara Sliva
Self- Retired CPA
Bay City, TX

No public funds (taxes) should be given to private schools. This will only weaken our public school system and is anti Texan. It is creating a huge opportunity for fraud with the creation of private administration. TEA is already administering funding and a new bureaucracy is unnecessary- what will this cost. This bill goes against Texas values. Vote NO!

Phyllis Whitehead
Self/teacher
Dallas, TX

We do not want vouchers nor school choice. Fund our schools. We do not want teacher incentive allotment. Give us a significant pay raise.

If our tax dollars go to private schools then they must also meet the same federal and state mandates as public schools. Such as the following but not limited to:

1. State mandated TEKS and state mandated curriculum.
2. Private schools must give the STAAR assessments, End of Course Assessments, benchmarks, ...
3. Teachers in private schools must meet the same educational requirements, trainings (including the Reading Academy), and be certified through the State of Texas.
3. Each private school must have the same demographic numbers and public schools in their region. For example, If they have the enrollment as 3A public schools in their region, they must enroll the same percentage of special education students (including intellectually challenged and behaviorally challenged), 504, Dyslexic, Deaf, Blind, Dyslexic, ...
4. They must participate in the state school ranking system with the same actions depending on their scores that are based on state assessment scores.
5. They must abide by the same UIL rules and guidelines for academic and sports.

Phelecia Leitch

Self - Homeowner / Parent / Community Member

Fort Worth, TX

I am writing to ask that the allotment for students in public school be raised to $7500 per student. Our schools are suffering due to rising inflation and not enough funding. When our schools suffer and quality education declines, our housing values decline. Ultimately though, our children are suffering, our teachers are having to spend more out of their own pocket to support their classrooms and this isn't right or fair. When our state has a surplus of funding, the schools should not suffer. It is not right that funding was approved to be sent to schools, yet Gov. Abbot won't release the funding unless vouchers are approved. This is WRONG, WRONG, WRONG. I will no longer support a governor who punishes schools and children for his own political ideas. Please vote to support our student and schools and increase the funding allotment to $7500.

Amy Church

Parent of NISD student

Fort Worth, TX

Please increase the Basic Allotment to $7500. The current amount of $6160 was set in 2019. Since then, inflation has increased 23%. House Bill 2 (HB2) is currently proposing a $220 increase...a 3.5% increase in the same time frame of a 23% inflation increase.

Just like our households, NISD costs for bus fuel, insurance, program materials, and anything else needed for day-to-day operations have increased.

This lack of increase in the Basic Allotment is THE main reason for us increasing class sizes and reducing teaching positions. It's also THE main reason ISDs across the State are struggling financially.

If this proposed $220 increase doesn't change, NISD might be able to do a 1% salary increase for ALL workers ONCE during the next biennium. Again, inflation is up 23%, but we can only give a 1% raise over the next two years.

I don't understand why our State leaders hate our teachers and students so much. If anything, they need to abide by the TX Constitution and fund public schools properly.

Our students and teachers deserve better than what our State Leaders propose.

Heather Hamilton

Self

Anna, TX

Our family is opposed to this bill.

Christy Norman

self

Austin, TX

I want fully funded public education. I want more investment in our public schools, not diversions from them.

Lindsay Ruiz
Myself, engineer
Houston, TX

My name is Lindsay Ruiz and I am a community member in Spring Branch ISD in Houston and I am providing my written testimony to urge you to support legislation that will close the funding gaps in critical educational programs that serve our students.

The data from SBISD's state funding allocations highlight a troubling trend—our schools are significantly underfunded in key areas, forcing them to absorb millions in unfunded costs. Special education, safety and security, transportation, and pre-kindergarten programs are all experiencing funding shortfalls that put immense strain on school districts and, ultimately, harm our students.

For example:

Special Education: The state allotment for special education in 2023-24 was $31.5 million, but actual expenditures reached $53.5 million, leaving a $22 million shortfall. This gap is projected to be $20.3 million in 2024-25. Without adequate funding, students with disabilities may not receive the legally mandated services they need to thrive.

- Safety & Security: In 2023-24, the state provided only $0.9 million, but the actual cost was $8.9 million, creating an $8 million deficit. For 2024-25, the gap is projected to grow to $10 million, putting school safety measures at risk.

- Transportation: The 2023-24 state allocation was $1.5 million, while the cost of maintaining transportation services was $10.4 million, leading to an $8.9 million shortfall. In 2024-25, the gap is expected to be $8.3 million, making it difficult to ensure students have reliable and safe transportation to and from school.

- Pre-Kindergarten: This critical early childhood education program faced a $3.7 million funding gap in 2023-24, with an estimated $3.2 million shortfall in 2024-25. Underfunding pre-K limits access to high-quality early learning opportunities that set children up for future success.

Our educators and administrators are doing their best with limited resources, but without legislative action, these funding shortfalls will continue to compromise the quality of education and essential services for Texas students. We need a bill that ensures state funding keeps pace with the actual costs of running these programs. This includes:

1. Increasing the Basic Allotment at a minimum of $500
2. Fully funding special education services to meet the true cost of providing federally required support for students with disabilities.
3. Increasing state funding for school safety and security to protect students and staff.
4. Expanding transportation funding to ensure students have safe and reliable access to school.
5. Boosting investment in early childhood education to support pre-kindergarten programs that lay the foundation for academic success.

I urge you to prioritize our students by closing these funding gaps. Texas schools cannot afford to keep operating with such large deficits, and our children deserve better. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Elizabeth McQuiddy self, Melissa ISD teacher
Melissa, TX

I care deeply for the people in my community and in my state, and therefore, I strongly oppose HB 3, the school voucher scam.

Here are just some of the reasons I oppose HB 3, the private school voucher program:

1. Texas already has school choice for families beyond traditional public schools- public charters, public magnets, homeschool, online academies, and private schools.
Some public school districts are also open enrollment districts that accept applications to attend regardless of home address.
2. Parents can apply to send their child to a different public school/district if their home campus is underperforming per the Public Education Grant (PEG) program.
3. This bill essentially gives a $10k tuition discount to families who can already afford to pay private school tuition without a discount. This bill would provide “welfare for the wealthy” as TX Rep. James Talarico puts it.
4. The Senate and House have set aside $1 billion in their budgets over the next 2 years, but the fiscal note from the Legislative Budget Board indicates the voucher program will cost $4 billion PER YEAR by 2030. That is an unsustainable, fiscally irresponsible program.
5. Vouchers don’t give parents school choice. Vouchers shuffle tax dollars to unaccountable private schools. Those private schools are allowed to discriminate against our children especially those with IEPs and 504s.
6. The Texas House is proposing a $200 increase in the basic allotment, yet those members know at least 1,000 raw dollars (not accounting for inflation) is needed due to the expiration of some federal funds. Vouchers from HB 3 don’t address this need equitably.
7. What long-term data has the committee evaluated from other states to determine the success or effectiveness of school voucher programs? States like Oklahoma, Illinois, and Iowa provide sufficient data to prove voucher programs fail. Why would Texas consciously go against data and research to pass HB 3 unless it was to intentionally defund public schools and force public schools to fail?
8. Most importantly, I love my community and my state. Every aspect of our community benefits from a APPROPRIATELY funded public education system. I support school choice where parents can find the best fit for their child. Fortunately that choice already exists without HB 3.

Chelsie Wilson
Self
Spring, TX

Do not pull funds from public education. Do not defund our public education system in anyway. In fact it needs more funds. Please confirm you recorded this. Thank you.

Sara Stevenson

Self

Austin, TX

Public Testimony for HB 3

In looking over House Bill 2, I appreciate that it prioritizes lower income students more than does SB3, but as a former educator who never made more than $55,000 a year with twenty-five years of experience and a Masters Degree, I have a problem with “low-income” being defined as 500% of the national poverty rate. This means families of four making up to $161,000 per year are eligible for a government handout.

No longer are the ESAs solely for the families who can’t afford private school tuition or those with disabilities; now a family of four, making as much as $161,000 a year qualifies.

I’m thankful that portions of the bill look out for Special Ed students, but I find it ironic that the public schools have to do all the evaluations and come up with an instructional plan, and not the private schools the voucher child will be attending with the accompanying funds. Will the state reimburse the public school Special Ed. teachers making these evaluations for private school voucher recipients?

I also noted pages and pages spelling out the process for the comptroller and the vendors to organize the application process and disbursement of the vouchers in order to prevent fraud and abuse and to make sure the schools receiving vouchers are legitimate. Still, it seems strange to me that the Texas GOP, known for its calls for small government, is advocating a whole new bureaucracy, which costs money, to track and run this new branch of our education system.

In previous bills, the student had to be enrolled in a failing public school before receiving a voucher. Now children already enrolled in private schools are eligible. Promoters argue this is only fair because private school families pay thousands each year in property taxes to schools their children don’t attend. Well, if they deserve a taxpayer refund, what about all the Texas property taxpayers, including seniors, who have NO children currently attending Texas schools?

No, because contributing to public education is a common good; an educated citizenry benefits all Texans and the Texas economy.

Christine Yates
self/public school parent
Conroe, TX

Texas families are not looking to make things more difficult for ourselves. We see through this "savings account" as another way into the voucher scam you all are forcing onto us. Stop taking our money!

We want improvements in public education, as is our constitutional right.

THE TEXAS CONSTITUTION

ARTICLE 7. EDUCATION

THE PUBLIC FREE SCHOOLS

Sec. 1. SUPPORT AND MAINTENANCE OF SYSTEM OF PUBLIC FREE SCHOOLS. A general diffusion of knowledge being essential to the preservation of the liberties and rights of the people, it shall be the duty of the Legislature of the State to establish and make suitable provision for the support and maintenance of an efficient system of public free schools.

(Feb. 15, 1876.)

Sec. 2. PERMANENT SCHOOL FUND. All funds, lands and other property heretofore set apart and appropriated for the support of public schools; all the alternate sections of land reserved by the State out of grants heretofore made or that may hereafter be made to railroads or other corporations of any nature whatsoever; one half of the public domain of the State; and all sums of money that may come to the State from the sale of any portion of the same, shall constitute a permanent school fund.

(Feb. 15, 1876. Amended Nov. 8, 2011)

Sandy Graham
Self
AUSTIN, TX

Oppose private school vouchers and education savings account program.

Kendal Simpson
Self
Lucas, TX

This bill is insulting to public education. Improve the basic allotment increase. $220/student still leaves Texas lagging approximately $4,000 behind the national average. That means programs that have been cut stay cut, exemptions for large class sizes will continue to be the rule rather than the exception, and I will have to keep fielding requests to fund aspects of my children's education out of my own pocket. SPED is woefully underfunded. Security that is now required by law continues to be an unfunded mandate. And you are directing financial resources that could address all of this to a $5 billion ESA agenda that the majority of Texans do not support as it is proposed because it no universal subsidy is fiscally conservative, your ESA legislation included. Fund public schools first.

Paul Thrower
Texas homeschoolers
Keller, TX

I'm opposed to any bill that seeks to infringe on parents right to educate their children. We have homeschooled our kids for over 18 years in a college style setting at the cost of our finances and health. The sacrifice my wife makes is incredible. To hear of any bill that seeks to make more restrictive rules on homeschooling reeks of political bias and discrimination. Please vote no to such a waste of money and instead come up with plans on how to CUT the HUGE amount of taxes we pay for public education that our family does not derive any benefits from. And by the way, our coop homeschool group serves over 200 families and classes fill up in less than an hour each semester. 30 billion by 2030! To build new infrastructure likely and not improve public education one iota. Vote NO.

K J Speech and Debate
Plano, TX

interesting

Patti Clifford
Self
Austin, TX

Please do NOT vote for school vouchers. I do not want my taxes to support private schools. Taxes should be used for public schools who need the $$$!

Lauren Penn
Self
Denton, TX

Vouchers will negatively impact Texas students in the public schools. Schools are still not fully funded. Taxpayer money should not fund private, for profit schools that are not held to the same standards as public schools.

debby oatman self - swim teacher, parent, grandparent, ex-public school kindergarten teacher
Austin, TX

I oppose this bill because it provides funding to a minority of families at the expense of those who cannot afford or do not have the opportunity to have their children in private schools. Public schools are already severely underfunded, and any additional K-12 education funds should go to public schools. Private schools are comparatively unregulated and are not subject to the same testing and standards required of public schools. Neighborhood public schools accept all students, but private schools can deny admission or educational services to any student, including students with disabilities, among others. Use of tax dollars should come with standards and not allow cherry picking of the easiest students to teach. Doing so would leave only the most challenging students in public schools, at a reduction of funding for the public schools (as the daily census would fall if students moved into private schools).

Linda Antinone
Self
Fort Worth, TX

As a retired public school teacher for 34 years, I urge you to fund our public schools and increase teacher pay. We must have a well educated workforce and that is only achieved through strong public schools. Other states have tried vouchers and it has not worked well - check Arizona and Ohio. Costs have skyrocketed for the state budgets. Another point is if you want to provide parents choice, the amount parents vs receive should not be more than the allotment that public schools receive. Those private or home schools should also face the same accountability as public schools do. If not, how do we know that students are achieving their basic skills.

I urge you to do what you know is right for our children and for Texas.

Kelea Youngblood self - employed as the Chief Marketing Officer at the Austin Board of Realtors

Austin, TX

I oppose Texas voucher bills, as they take vital resources away from public schools. Instead, we should increase the basic allotment for public schools and fund them based on student enrollment, not attendance. Funding should follow the students, ensuring schools have the stability and resources needed to educate every child, regardless of attendance challenges. Let's invest in public education, not undermine it with vouchers.

Derick Deleo

Self

Van Alstyne, TX

Our state is already at an abysmal level of education compared to other states. Teachers are leaving the state, classrooms are overcrowded and under funded. And now Republicans want to take more funding away from public education to give a break to people who can already afford to pay for private education. YOU SHOULD ALL BE ASHAMED OF YOURSELVES. But I know you aren't because you're all just greedy, uncaring, power-hungry cretons.

Suzanne Robinson

Self

Georgetown, TX

Vouchers plans do nothing to improve the quality of education in Texas. Texas Public schools are consistently under funded, burdened with unfunded mandates, and over burdened with regulations that do nothing to improve education. ALL students in TX deserve quality education so instead of giving less than 2% a voucher, make real systemic change and fully fund our public schools.

Harold Maldonado

Retired Educator, grandparent

San Antonio, TX

Vote no. This item takes money and support from public schools and is a giveaway to the wealthy.

Andrew Keith

Self, teacher

Roanoke, TX

I'll keep this simple. Please increase the basic allotment to $7,500 for public education. We have not received an increase in 5 years, yet inflation is up to 20%. See what we can do with $7,500, compared to the $10,000 the voucher students will receive.

Pradeep Adapa

Self

Roanoke, TX

Would like the basic allotment for a kid in the public school to be increased to $1340 instead of $220 in the HB 2 bill. Due to inflation, the increase of $220 is not enough.

Ronald Mendoza

Self

Haslet, TX

You need to find public education properly. In the face of a 23% inflation rate since the last time the basic allotment was adjusted to think that a $220 increase will be a just adjustment is ridiculous! The basic allotment should be raised to $7500 per student to truly be able to keep up with the rate of inflation. Do what is right!

Karen Weir
self, management
Austin, TX

Please let's put this money into public education instead. Vouchers are not the answer.

Kate Hale
Self secretary
Haslet, TX

Instead of dismantling our public education system, you have a duty to strengthen it so that all students have an opportunity to thrive in school. If you intend to subsidize private schools at $10,000 you have obligation to provide that same level of funding to the public schools who will not discriminate against any child as private institutions may choose to do. Please set aside politics and instead vote for our every child, not the entitled few.

Amelia Carlson
Self
Lucas, TX

Education is the great equalizer in a country where the gap is continuing to grow. School choice widens the gap and takes away vital funding to public schools who need it most. Let's come together and boost the funding for public schools to give all students and teachers everything they need to succeed. Education is our future. Let's not ruin it. Vote no on HB 3

Dana Kincaid
Self
San Antonio, TX

HB 2 is a windfall for charter schools and further erodes our critical need for better public education in Texas. This appears on the surface to Support public schools but It will allow charter schools a double dip in funding. Support your public schools, it is what Texans want!

Katie Smith
Public school
Justin, TX

Keep funding our public school!

Suzanne Bazarian
Self
Austin, TX

I oppose the establishment of educational savings accounts in Texas.

Jennifer Crane
Self
FORT WORTH, TX

We the basic allotment to increase to $7500! Inflation has hit everyone including districts but only raising it by $220 isn't going to help anyone. The funding is there and people need it! Let the funds go back to public education! That is what it was intended for when it was collected. If I didn't pay my mortgage and spent it on a luxury item instead I would lose my house. The house aka our public schools are getting lost to those that already have the house the and luxuries. It's not fair! Once public education is not supported then just wait and see it will cost children's lives. We will see a decrease in our economy because more and more will not graduate and go on to be successful adults. The state will not be able to withstand it and go into more debt. It will ruin Texas!

Rosa Perez
Self
Converse, TX

This bill will hurt too many children. Vouchers are a scam.

Debbie Cervantes
Self
Houston, TX

Our Texas Constitution Article VII requires the legislation to provide free and efficient education for all. This has been done through our public school system. The efficiency has been managed by TEA. The rigorous testing for student accountability has most recently been STAAR. The accountability for teachers has been T-Tess and the new reward system the TIA. Schools are held accountable with the Public School Rating System or Report Card A-F. This is responsible and efficient management of Texas tax dollars allotted for education. With recent and coming inflation as well as with increases in autism, 594, IEP, and other equal access to education referendums the demand on the education system and schools is higher than ever. Stakeholders in colleges and the workforce have received investments in early college, technical and career schools, and advanced placement classes. The Texas public education system is a network and life cycle that is held together with state funding, local taxes, and federal monies. With any of those sources falling short, the budget deficits, school closures, and loss of instructors disrupt the network. If the state opens this door to fund privatized education and limit the state's ability to fund the well established and well run FREE (guaranteed in the Texas Constitution) and efficient guarantee of education in Texas. Texas cannot cover the full expense of private education, nor should it be required. Texas cannot threaten or abuse an efficient network of thousands of teachers and millions of students to prioritize 6% of Texas students in private education and their unaccountable, uncertified teachers, unrated schools, untested students. Education savings account programs are not providing free and efficient education - they are subsidizing expensive private education.

Catherine Rowan
Self
Luling, TX

Please vote no for this bill. This is a de facto tax kickback for the wealthiest in the state (who are already sending their kids to private schools!) and will not truly mean school choice for the masses. Why should constituents in counties or schools districts without private schools be in favor of this? There's nothing fair about school choice. Vote no.

Jenna Scott
SBISD
Houston, TX

I oppose the establishment of educational savings accounts in Texas.

Regina Pires
Self
Cypress, TX

We. Do. Not. Want. Vouchers. Fully fund our public schools using public tax dollars. No welfare for the wealthy.

Mike Scully
Self software
Round Rock, TX

As a conservative who left a blue state full of Rino republicans for the free state of Texas, I do not want to see our educational freedoms and independence taken away. Creating another welfare program is not fiscally conservative. Bribing people is not ok. This voucher approach is not sound or free. This will undermine public, private and homeschool education.

Do not sell out our education system for a failed pipe dream or shell game.

This will ruin education and part of what makes Texas great which is the lack of liberal influence. A single payer system will end up corrupt.

As a Republican I will campaign, vote and donate against anyone who supports this garbage. Please do not fall for the scam.

ChooseEducationIndependence.com

Elaine Foster
self - retired
Georgetown, TX

73% of Texas public school districts are underfunded & 17% are severely underfunded. HB3 further reduces funding for public schools and it uses public taxpayer dollars to fund private school tuition. HB3 has little oversight of how the public funds are spent, creates questions regarding separation of church and state, hurts public schools and leads to class segregation. Local schools in Georgetown ISD, my local school district, stand to lose more than 5 million dollars under this voucher bill which would be a devastating loss for our community.

Public funds should stay in our public schools, not be divvied up to unaccountable private schools. I strongly oppose this voucher bill and, as a constituent, I am asking you to vote against it.

Kristina Wang
Self
Austin, TX

I urge you to oppose HB 3 and support Texas public schools. This bill diverts taxpayer dollars from public schools, which educate over 90% of Texas students, to private institutions with little accountability. Schools already facing teacher shortages and rising student needs will be forced to cut programs, increase class sizes, and limit services.

Private schools receiving taxpayer funds are not required to serve all students, follow state curriculum standards, provide performance data, or maintain financial oversight. If public money is being spent, there should be transparency in how it is used. HB 3 lacks that accountability.

While promoted as a "school choice," HB 3 benefits only a small group of families. Vouchers do not fully cover tuition, leaving many working-class and rural families unable to access private schools. Meanwhile, public schools serving most students will be left with fewer resources.

Strong public schools create strong communities. When schools suffer, property values decline, businesses struggle, and workforce development weakens. Texans have consistently rejected voucher schemes, recognizing that public funds should support schools that serve all students. HB 3 threatens that foundation.

I appreciate your time and consideration in protecting Texas public education.

Kelli Galyean
Public school children of Texas
Carrollton, TX

The basic allotment increase is not a number that can be taken seriously if one considers inflation and the amount of money Governor Abbott is planning to steal from public school children in order to fund his voucher scam. This is an abomination and should not even be up for discussion.

Sara Suman

Self, stay at home mom

Leander, TX

I am sitting in my living room, angry and heartbroken, after learning that our outstanding middle school principal is being laid off due to necessary budget cuts. She is a leader deeply respected and loved by our community, parents, and staff. The atmosphere at this school is something truly special, and much of that is owed to her dedication and leadership.

This is happening before HB3 has even passed. I am terrified to see how much more our public schools, our students, and our children will suffer at the hands of a government that seems to prioritize the wealthy over everyday Texans. SB3 is not a bill for the poor, and claiming otherwise is a blatant lie.

I live in a suburb of Austin and qualify as middle class. If I wanted to move my children to a private school today, I would have to drive 25+ minutes each way, and even with vouchers, I would still need to pay over $30,000 out of pocket for three children. This "coupon" is completely useless to families like mine—we still can't afford private school. Meanwhile, those who can already afford private education will benefit the most.

What about the parents working 50+ hours a week just to make ends meet? The families who rely on public school buses for transportation? The parents in rural Texas with no access to private schools? These are the people who will be left behind. But the wealthy? They will benefit. They will take from the poor, from the middle class, and from Texas public schools and they will benefit. SB3 is a bill for the rich, and no amount of spin can change that reality.

As a state, we should be reinvesting in public schools, not stripping them of critical funding. I want to take a moment to express my deep gratitude for the incredible public schools my children have attended in Leander ISD over the past 10+ years. Public schools have supported and encouraged our children in ways we could not have done alone. They have challenged them academically, nurtured their talents and interests, and instilled in them a strong desire to pursue higher education and become a contributing member of society.

Our teachers, administrators, instructional assistants, coaches, and even custodians have gone above and beyond, dedicating countless hours beyond their contracts to support our kids. They have made a profound difference in their lives—and in mine. Now, watching one of these remarkable educators be let go due to lack of funding is completely devastating. And I worry this is only the beginning.

The everyday Texan is being punished by the choices Texas lawmakers are making regarding public education. This has to stop.

Vote NO on HB3.

Ashley Brewster

Self

Friendswood, TX

I am the mother of a kindergarten child in a public school. I strongly oppose the HB3 bill. I believe public funds should stay in public schools. This bill is only helpful for such a tiny portion of our population (the wealthy). The majority of Texas families will not benefit from this.

Josie Geck

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose the establishment of educational savings accounts in Texas.

Emily Holt
Self, Small Business Owner
Justin, TX

 This note is in regards to HB 2, which is not able to be selected on the website for comments.

Dear Members of the Texas House Education Committee,

I am writing to express my deep concern regarding the proposed increase to the Basic Allotment for public schools in House Bill 2. As a stakeholder in the Northwest Independent School District (NISD), I urge you to increase the Basic Allotment to $7,500 per student. The current Basic Allotment of $6,160 was established in 2019. In the years since, inflation has increased by 23%, yet HB2 proposes only a $220 increase—a mere 3.5% adjustment. This significant discrepancy is creating substantial challenges for our district and students.

This inadequate funding has real consequences:

- NISD is being forced to increase class sizes
- Teaching positions are being reduced and specials teachers and GT specialists are having to cover multiple campuses.
- The district may only be able to offer a 1% salary increase for all staff over the next two years, despite the substantial rise in cost of living
- Day-to-day operational costs have escalated for everything from bus fuel to insurance to classroom materials

The Texas Constitution establishes the state's responsibility to adequately fund public education. The current proposed increase falls far short of meeting this obligation. Our educators and students deserve better than what is currently being proposed. When we underfund public education, we undermine the future of our state. I believe strongly that investing in our students now will yield benefits for all Texans in the years to come.

Please consider amending HB2 to increase the Basic Allotment to $7,500 per student to help our district address inflation and provide the resources necessary for quality education.

Thank you for your consideration of this critical issue.
Emily Holt

Allison Wong
Self
Spring, TX

OPPOSE HB 3

Megan Culpepper
Cypress Fairbanks ISD
Houston, TX

No ESAs! No Vouchers! This is a scam to help the wealthy people pay their private school tuition, if it wasn't then there would be an income cap on who could apply for these ESAs but there's not. Fund public schools and stop catering to your billionaire donors, we all know who is really behind this voucher scheme. It hasn't worked in any other state and it won't work here. If public education isn't working then fix it! What you're proposing with this bill is not only stupid it's criminal. Do the right thing for the millions of Texas children in public schools and all the adults they employ!

Sancia Matthyssen

None

Georgetown, TX

Every child is entitled to a free and proper education.why would a country take this away? Why would the federal govt walk away from this responsibility to build a smarter, stronger future. Having an educated country enables us to compete. If parents have to pay for education, perhaps more mothers will choose to stay home and homeschool. Oh, but maybe that's the plan, keep women out of the workplace, out of sync, disconnected....this is not freedom, it's just the opposite. I see. Parents need to save for healthcare, disease, elder care and retirement- not school.

Chelsea Mongole

Self

Katy, TX

I am very against this. It will bankrupt public schools.

Alan Beck

Self

Fort Worth, TX

Please support public schools by increasing basic allotment to $7500 per student. Public schools are under funded. Short changing public schools is not why I voted for my fellow Republicans into office. We need to properly fund public schools. Funding private educations without having any meaningful academic measures in place to evaluate the success of state funded private schools is irresponsible.

Chelsea Abbott

NWISD

Roanoke, TX

Increase NWISD budget

Amy Gatlin

Self

Allen, TX

No to vouchers. Every state that has tried vouchers has data to show it harms public schools and costs much more than expected. Fully fund public schools. Increase the basic allotment by the rate of inflation. Fund the mandates. Give our teachers a COLA raise. Reimburse special ed at actual costs not a reduced rate. Schools are vital employers. They drive businesses to our state. They impact property values. Invest in our state by fully funding public schools. We could easily have the best schools in the nation if you vote for public schools and against vouchers.

Katherine Garrison

Self-teacher

El Paso, TX

I am a public high school and community college teacher in El Paso. This year has been stressful, budgets are tight. Neighboring districts are taking out loans, laying off staff, and closing schools. Purchase approvals are taking longer than ever. The adequacy of materials varies highly by school and inequity constantly rears its ugly head.

Meanwhile, charter schools are booming. They come into developing neighborhoods, building quickly with seemingly less red tape, and drain enrollment from public schools. It is my understanding that in Texas, charter schools get higher funding per student.

I have worked at a charter school. I spent 4 years working in horrible conditions at Harmony Public Schools. I watched time and time again as inexperienced, unqualified, uncertified individuals got promoted to jobs they couldn't do well. I watched hardworking teachers pick up their slack while the deans drove home in their Mercedes. This is what we want more of?

To add insult to injury, this Bill wants to further rob public schools while benefiting private interests. Inequity will only grow from here.

I am asking you to vote "No" on this bill as an educator, a mother, and a Texan. Thank you for taking the time to read this.

Jennie Lovejoy

Self

Roanoke, TX

How is this good for kids????

April Brinkmeyer

Self

Jarrell, TX

As home schooling is not an option for me, and there is no private school near me that costs $10000 per year, THIS SCHEME PROVIDES ME ZERO ADDITIONAL CHOICE FOR MY TWO DAUGHTERS. We will stay in public school because that is what is available and affordable to us. I would appreciate it if you would listen to your constituents WHO HAVE CLEARLY SAID REPEATEDLY that they do not want school vouchers.

Stop withholding money from our public schools. Fully fund them. Pay our teachers. STOP DISMANTLING my children's future over political theater and power grabs.

This push is disgusting. Let's be clear, what I've seen the last few years and how it's impacted my kids education has turned me into an activist. And I will spend every free dollar I have making sure those of you ignoring us have competition and risk losing your seats.

Do the right thing. Fund public schools with the surplus we're running and abandon the unwanted voucher scheme.

Page Hanna

Self, School Counselor

Fort Worth, TX

Please increase the basic allotment to $7500 per student and please do not approve a school voucher/ESA program where students attending private schools receive more funding per student than our public education students. They deserve to receive the same amount of funding per student.

Tracie Henderson, Mrs

Self

Friendswood, TX

Please do not pass this bill and take money away from public education. I already spend so much money on my classroom and students. These kids deserve more and not less. These vouchers only help the elite.

Wendy Valdes

Self/teacher

El Paso, TX

My 12 year old son Brandon is a student in a public school. He has Treacher-Collins Syndrome and has bilateral conductive hearing loss. Due to his condition, Brandon qualifies to be in special education and has an IEP. My son has received services from his public school since he was a few months old. The school district he is a part of would have the Auditory Impairment (AI) teacher visit us at home. She worked with Brandon and helped him with listening and speaking skills among other things. This AI teacher continues to work with my son, and will track his progress until he graduates from high school. Thanks to her, the speech therapists, special education teachers, teachers, and paraprofessionals, my child is thriving and loves school. He is on grade level and wants to be a cardiologist. None of this would have been possible without the support and services provided by his public school. A private school would never come close to providing my son with the services that have helped him succeed academically and emotionally. School vouchers will devastate already underfunded public schools, and will prevent children like Brandon from receiving the services and support they need. Please do not abandon children in special education. They matter and their education matters.

Valerie Martin

Self, house cleaner

Abilene, TX

I do not want my tax dollars going towards private schools. I believe the public school system will suffer greatly. Please vote no!!

Vanessa Andrews

Self

Bryan, TX

I am writing to implore you to increase the basic allotment to at least $7500 per student. Our public schools shouldn't be forgotten during the misguided push for school vouchers. I want my tax dollars to support the public schools that my kids attend.

Heath Nall

Self

Canyon, TX

Please fully fund our public schools. The truth is that school funds have been frozen for the last 6 years. Our school districts are struggling. Please vote "No" to vouchers.

Joanna Runkles

Texas Public School Students and Educators

Levelland, TX

As a supporter of Texas public schools, I want to thank my Representative Ken King and the representative from my hometown where I received an excellent public school education, Representative Lambert, for continually supporting Texas Public Schools.

Schools across our state are struggling with rising costs and funding challenges that are directly impacting our students.

Investing in our schools is about investing in the economic success of the state and creating a stronger workforce and more prosperous future. It is not about using public funds for private schools.

I urge you to stand against ESAs and instead to prioritize an increase to the Basic Allotment, which raises teacher pay, decreases recapture, and allows school districts to direct funding according to their communities' needs. Please consider the inflation rate since the last increase in 2019. It would take more than $1,000 per student to fund our schools equivalently. I ask that you recommend an increase that would significantly close that gap.

Texas students deserve strong, well-funded public schools. Thank you for your time and commitment to this important bill.

Michael Davis, Rev.

self (healthcare chaplain, spiritual care consultant, blogger)

Wylie, TX

I strongly oppose the HB 3 (and 2) bills. They are a two-pronged effort to ostensibly improve Texas education by creating a voucher program under the pretense of choice (HB 3) while also giving the illusion of supporting the public education system by adding a pittance of per-student funding increase (HB 2).

The proposal of vouchers is fundamentally against what the Founders of America believed in: a wall of separation between Church and State. Why? Nationally, religious schools claim the bulk of the voucher funds (between 82 and 98% - <https://www.washingtonpost.com/nation/2024/06/03/tax-dollars-religious-schools/>). It's curious that Republicans claim to want "American" values, the values the Founders intended, while happily gifting religious schools with taxpayer-funded vouchers. The downstream effects are that vouchers leech funds from already underfunded public schools and their employees. Even Buckley's HB 2 only provides a pittance of a public school funding increase.

Bleeding money away from public education is a thinly veiled attempt to move toward the radical dream of the Project 2025 playbook, a move toward a fundamentalist theocracy little better than those supported by radical Islamists. It is also a violation of the Founders' intentions by the Republicans, the ones who endlessly remind us of their wish to return to the vision of America's Founders. That is malarkey. They are breaching the very wall of separation that the Founders intended when the Revolutionary war began.

Julie deGraffenried

self, college professor

Chilton, TX

I write urging you to oppose any bill, including HB 3, that creates a school voucher (or "savings account") program aimed at diverting taxpayer, public funds away from public schools and toward funding private schools. I am married to a retired public school teacher, my children attend private school, and we are precisely the type of family who will be eligible for a voucher, yet I say this clearly: we do not want them or need them! We have never asked for them, and the enthusiasm with which Texas leadership calls for them makes me question whether those leaders listen to constituents or private donors. The arguments against school vouchers are logical & numerous. 1) Private school is a private family choice and should have no interference from the state. Vouchers will blur this line. Public funds should fund public schools. 2) Private schools are not regulated by the state. Public money should be go where it cannot be regulated. 3) There is no evidence from other states that have similar programs that they work. In fact, there is overwhelming data that vouchers are costly and do not benefit intended populations. 4) Instead of investing in private schools, why not fully fund our existing public schools? The Legislature has steadily decreased funding for our schools, and teachers' salaries are among the worst in the nation while their health care costs have skyrocketed. Until you have fully funded public schools, it makes no sense to propose funding other schools. 5) School choice is a myth. Private schools are under no obligation to admit children with vouchers. 6) Although the Governor argues otherwise (without evidence), a voucher system will hurt Texas high school football. If your goal is to lure sports academies to Texas, then know it will be at the cost of a long-standing community tradition of Friday night football. Do you want to be the legislators who kill high school football in Texas? 7) Many private schools are connected to churches or congregations. Public monies going to churches blurs the separation of church and state in dangerous ways and will open the state of Texas to costly legal challenges. Further, one presumes that private schools associated with any religion could be funded by tax dollars. How might your voters feel about Wiccan schools opening? Or Islamist schools? Or schools that openly espouse atheism? 8) Funding private schools is undemocratic. There is something beautiful about our community schools, with locally elected school boards and funded (increasingly because you all keep decreasing state funding) by local property taxes. School districts help us practice democracy and are the most obvious, tangible way most people can see their taxes at work.

Please resist the urge to play politics with our tax money and with our children's right to a quality, free education. Please, do the right thing and invest in our public schools and leave private schools to find their own funding. Thank you.

Chelsea Best

Self

College Station, TX

Strong public schools benefit the entire community by preparing an educated workforce and promoting economic growth. When vouchers drain resources, public education weakens, leading to declining student outcomes and fewer opportunities for future generations. Instead of investing in unregulated private education, policymakers should focus on strengthening public schools to ensure all students receive a high-quality education.

RG Clark
STRATFORD PTSA
HOUSTON, TX

I do not support this bill and will not support, promote, or vote for any legislature member who votes for this bill.

Amir Hirani
Self
Sugar Land, TX

stop the voucher scam; keep public school funding

Claudia Trachier
Self
GARLAND, TX

School vouchers rob public schools and benefit only the wealthy who don't need tax dollars to educate their children. They are also detrimental to special needs children and kids with behavioral issues. Starving public schools of much needed and available funding and holding teachers hostage by refusing to pay public school teachers a living wage for political points and control is unconscionable. Rural communities are already struggling to keep schools open and functioning. Fund public schools. Keep church separate from state. Religious instruction does not belong in public schools. This plan will save nothing and will in fact cost taxpayers more for less benefits to our children. Abbott's billionaire backers want vouchers and no one else. PS. Saying football is more important than education is not the reassurance he thinks it is. Insanity!

Kate Helms
Self - Engineer
Round Rock, TX

I don't want school vouchers because research in other states who've already adopted the vouchers shows it only helps the rich folks who already have their kids in private schools. The average Texan isn't going to magically put their kid in private schools because of vouchers. It just takes that money away from public schools that really need that money more. This bill will also disproportionately hit rural communities.

Erica Tinnin
Self
San Angelo, TX

In absolutely no way does this bill stand to help anyone but the wealthy.

Lisa Koenig, Teacher
Self teacher
Gause, TX

Please do not do this to our children and families. This doesn't benefit public schools, you know better. We are living paycheck to paycheck. It seems like an honest education isn't your main objective. Quit feeding the machine and do what's right for the children, you don't like progress then you pick something like this house bill, do not vote for this, teachers are not with you.

Terry Irwin
Nurse Practitioner - self
Austin, TX

I am adamantly against HB 3. Texas should invest more in public education. Teachers are having enough of a hard time as it is. HB 3 will only make it more difficult for the struggling public school districts of Texas. HB 3 would be a disaster for Texas students. The public does not want this voucher program. Invest in Texas, not privatization of education.

Joshua Morris
Self
League City, TX

Vote against this bill.

Marla Morris
Self
League City, TX

Vote against. This is a terrible thing for our public schools.

Shemica Allen
N/A
Rosharon, TX

Reject HB 3. It pays more per student to a private school than it does to a public school. The private schools are not required to accept you nor to provide any special education.

Jeffrey Traylor Citizens
Bartonville, TX

We do not support school vouchers. It is a poor process for improving education. The status quo is not sustainable but this option only benefits the wealthy as poor families do not have the flexibility due to transportation or extended time/cost.

Find a better alternative before you drop a bomb on public education.

Kate Edelman
Self teacher
West Columbia, TX

I do not want this bill to pass. Why are school who are not held to the same standards as public schools (no STAAR, not the same rating system, teachers do not have to have the same qualifications) getting more money per child than public schools? No education savings program!

Meagan Dowty, Mrs
Self
San Angelo, TX

This bill will raise property taxes, raise the student to teacher ratio, and take funds away from already underfunded public schools. We do not need to give wealthy families a break. If you want to make private schools easier to access, then force them to put a cap on tuitions - don't hurt the average Texan.

Samantha Miller Hemm

Self, Teacher

Spicewood, TX

My name is Samantha Miller Hemm, and have been a public school teacher in Texas for 11 years. I am writing today to urge you to vote against House Bill 3 because it would divert public tax dollars away from public schools, hurting the vast majority of Texas students.

Public education is the backbone of our state. It serves every child, no matter where they live or what their circumstances are. Vouchers do not create more opportunities for most families—they create funding gaps in the schools that educate the majority of Texas students. In rural areas, where private schools are scarce, vouchers provide little to no benefit while public schools remain underfunded.

House Bill 3 takes taxpayer dollars meant for public education and sends them to private schools that are not required to accept all students, follow the same accountability measures, or provide the same level of services—especially for students with disabilities or special needs. Public funds should support public schools, which serve every student, in every community.

If we want to strengthen education in Texas, we must focus on what will keep teachers in the classroom and improve student outcomes:

- Competitive teacher pay to help retain experienced educators and recruit new talent.
- Funding for classroom resources so that teachers do not have to spend their own money on basic supplies.
- Support for rural and small-town schools, which serve as the heart of many Texas communities.

I respectfully ask you to oppose House Bill 3 and instead focus on legislation that strengthens Texas public schools. Supporting teachers, funding classrooms, and ensuring every student has access to a high-quality education should be the priority.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Lauren Brown

Self

San Angelo, TX

Put this to a popular vote of the citizens of Texas since it is a public matter. This is a violation of our rights. Pockets are being lined with dirty money in exchange for votes. It's a disservice to our public education system, its students and all of its employees. This will cripple our public education system and leave many students behind. Many rural communities do not have access to private a school nor do the working parents have the ability, financially or physically, to homeschool their children. Many children will be left behind without a choice. The propaganda that has pushed this bill has been lying to the citizens, as well as the Set members who've already voted. This will line the pocket of investors of private schools. Look at the stats on the level of education and issues on hand from the states who have already passed this bill previously. Now, look back at the data from private jails and who financially benefited from that bill in the past. We must learn from our history. We must not repeat the same mistakes as before. We owe it to our children who are our future leaders, the educators who mold and protect our children, as well as the hundreds of thousands of Texas citizens who are crying out to put a stop to this bill! We will remember who traded in our public education system for their own personal gain come the next time we vote. Let your strong citizens of Texas have a say in such a major matter! That is how you give each family a CHOICE!

Edgar Jacome

Self

McKinney, TX

It's irresponsible to divert funds from public schools. Those willing and able to fund their children's private education should not have access to tax dollars every hard working, less fortunate, citizen contributes to. This only further divides and alienates our children, when we should be promoting and building upon the social welfare of our public education system. I urge our house representatives to oppose this bill, and support our hard working public school system. If choice is a concern, consider open enrollment plans as many school districts are offering today.

Tomeka Brown, General education teacher

Self

San Antonio, TX

I VOTE NO TO THIS BILL

Shannon Hix

Self

McKinney, TX

Public dollars belong in public schools. Texas taxpayers should not be forced to fund private and unaccountable education programs while our neighborhood schools continue to suffer. I urge you to stand with our students, teachers, and communities-vote NO on HB3 and say NO to vouchers.

Pat McCorquodale

Self, retired teacher

Mason, TX

This bill will seriously undermine public education, particularly in rural areas.

Deborah Harhai, Ms

Retired Teacher

San Antonio, TX

Please vote against this bill.

Oscar King

Self/Teacher

El Paso, TX

HB3 will devastate Texas public schools. It diverts crucial funds to private schools via vouchers, leaving already underfunded public schools to crumble. This isn't "choice," it's a calculated attack on our kids' education, especially in rural areas and for students with disabilities. It creates a two-tiered system, favoring the privileged. As a teacher, I see the harm this will cause. We must protect public education for all Texas children.

Merissa Hurt

Self

San Angelo, TX

As a child of a teacher and the problems they face today, the lack of pay just screams no one cares about our educational system.

Carrie Stovall
Self- Healthcare
Carrollton, TX

I am opposed to HB 3. As an alumni of the Texas public school system who went on to attend a state university in Texas, I am opposed to HB 3. As a wife of an alumni of the Texas public school system who now teaches school in the Texas public school system, I am opposed to HB 3. As a parent of an elementary school student who attends a Texas public school, I oppose HB 3. I would like to request before this bill is voted on to have members participate in this exercise:

1. Raise your hand if you attended public schools in Texas?
2. Raise your hand if you attended private schools in Texas?
3. Raise your hand if your children attended public schools in Texas?
4. Raise your hand if your children attended private schools in Texas?
5. Raise your hand if you have a current child in a private school?
6. Raise your hand if you have a current child in a Texas public school?

To any of the people that raised their hands around public school- Are you okay with the fact that your education or your child's education is worth less than someone that attends private school?

Public School education is the foundation of our country and our investment in our children and our future. The state of Texas has been withholding funding for our public school systems since 2019 that has been available and not providing this to our children and our students.

Why? I would like an answer from the leaders of our state as to why public education has not been provided additional funding for the last 5 years. My child deserves to have this answer from the leaders of this state. If HB 3 passes the answer is clear- public school students are not a priority for the current leaders of Texas.

I am opposed to HB 3. I do support taking this to the residents of Texas to vote on this bill if necessary.

Sue Tabor, Ms
TRTA retired teacher
Wichita Falls, TX 76308-4438, TX

I am a retired teacher with 43 years doing what I loved. Enlightening young children's minds.

My mother was a teacher for 32 years.

I have FOUR NEPHEWS that are basketball coaches in The Public School System.

Ty~Head basketball coach in Krum.

Zac~ Head girl's basketball coach at Reagan High in San Antonio!

Quinten ~ girl's basketball coach in Argyle.

Preston~Graduate assistant coach at North Texas State!

Please vote against The VOUCHERS!!!

TEXAS DOES NOT WANT THIS!!!

Victoria Farrell
self
Round Rock, TX

It has been repeatedly shown that school vouchers will take money away from public schools. I, and many other Texans, oppose the bill to fund private school education at the expense of public school children. I urge you to listen to the voters and vote against this bill. Thank you for your time.

Jody Gibson

Self - Marketing Communications Consultant

The Hills, TX

As a former employee of the supposedly "bipartisan" Texas Public Policy Foundation, I found myself, an Independent, working for a clearly far-right-leaning organization funded by Big Oil like the Strake family of Houston, and founded on the rip-off of "school choice" by Dr. Jim Leininger, who would like to cherry-pick results from years of scholarships provided to some children over the years. But what of our public schools? TPPF and those like Leininger would prefer to leave them to wither from a lack of funds siphoned off in the form of vouchers to private schools. The fact is, there is school choice right now -- there are charter schools, magnet schools and parochial schools. The supposed lie about all of the poor children school choice would help is just that -- a lie. If a school has too many applicants, THEN who does the choosing? And what about our students with 504s? My son was a victim of a school choosing -- not to admit him because he was diagnosed with Type 1 diabetes and therefore an "insurance liability." Make no mistake -- children with any physical ailment, including food allergies, will be denied admittance to private schools, as will children with learning disabilities like autism or dyslexia or behavior issues. And the poor children who score poorly on tests will also be left at public school, only to further this Christian Nationalist dream of the haves and have nots being even further separated, starting with kindergarten. One in 5 Texan school children will never have the option of going anywhere other than their rural school, so any House member from a rural Texas area who votes for this should be ousted. And we all know Gov. Abbott has spent at least $6 million to try to vote out these rural Republicans who are voting how their constituents want them to vote. School choice has not passed in over 20 years and for good reason -- TEXAS DOES NOT NEED SCHOOL CHOICE. It will only weaken the public school system and therefore eventually the labor pool. Colleges are public and private and the private ones cost more; this is not any different and therefore does not need to change. VOTE NO on this garbage bill of "school's choice."

Emily Lyle

Self teacher

Weatherford, TX

Please vote no to this bill. ESAs will be detrimental to our public schools and to the teacher retirement system. ESAs are not conservative or a financially responsible use of tax payer money. Any institution that takes tax payer money should be held to the same requirements and transparency as public schools.

Greg Sells

self-federal employee

Austin, TX

I am writing against HB 3 because it would divert needed funds from the public schools that the majority of Texans attend. Most school districts are being forced to cut their budgets because of the lack of state funding. Private schools don't provide the range of services public schools offer for special needs children, and many private schools are religiously affiliated, meaning they may be free to discriminate against certain children. Especially in rural areas, public schools are the center of their communities with their athletic and cultural activities. Most rural areas lack private schools.

Jill Simpson

Self

Fort Worth, TX

No to vouchers. They are a coupon for the rich. No other state has had success with them and it's just a scam for the rich. We have school choice now as you can choose where your child goes to school. We don't have to pay for rich kids to attend a church school. Put the money in public schools the way it is supposed to be

Marcelo Garcia

Self

El Paso, TX

This voucher program aims to undercut our already undervalued public schools. You want to keep uneducated, easy to control citizens. Without a quality, non-profit, secular education. You want to drive children to be homeschooled by religious zealots or to an expensive private school.

Allison Sozansky

Self - 28 year veteran teacher

Round Rock, TX

Texans have school choice. What we don't have is a legislature that has upheld our TX constitution and funded public ed. Every member of the legislature understands that public ed has been defunded since 2019. Do your duty for the children of Texas, instead of the bidding of Wilks and Dunn.

Kyle James

Self

Midland, TX

This is an unwanted bill that will not fix the education problem in Texas. How many thousands of dollars were spent senator/rep Crocket's education ? Money and school choice is not the issue. Unless you pay the teachers more and start teaching instead trying to pass a state mandated test. I graduated from high school in 1979 and I have more general knowledge than young people with a Dr degree.

Revamp the school board system that will allow people of the community to get involved and quit paying administrative personnel higher salaries than teachers.

Amanda Desch

Myself

San Angelo, TX

School voucher programs are often marketed as a way to provide parents with "choice" in education, but in reality, they are a scam designed to divert public funds into private hands while dismantling the public school system. These programs are not about helping students—they are about privatizing education for profit, weakening public schools, and abandoning the principle that every child deserves access to a quality education, regardless of their background or zip code.

Tarma Grady

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose using public funds for private education. This essentially only provides a rebate to those already able to send their children to private school. Lower income families or those in rural communities do not have the means or opportunity to choose private school. I do not believe my taxes should be a rebate to the wealthy. The average family could not afford the thousands of dollars out of pocket that is still required or in some cases provide transportation. Please reconsider keeping public funds public to enable a quality education for all.

Cynthia Torres, Superintendent

La Feria ISD

La Feria, TX

As the Superintendent of La Feria Independent School District, I strongly oppose HB 3 due to its lack of accountability and transparency in how taxpayer dollars would be used. Texas public schools must meet rigorous academic, financial, and operational accountability standards, ensuring that funds are spent effectively and that students are receiving a high-quality education. HB 3 circumvents these safeguards by funneling taxpayer dollars to private institutions that are not subject to the same level of oversight.

Public schools are required to administer standardized assessments, report student achievement data, comply with state curriculum requirements, and undergo financial audits. Private schools and other ESA-approved entities, however, are not held to these same standards. Without proper accountability, taxpayer dollars could be spent on low-quality or unregulated educational services that do not guarantee student success.

Moreover, HB 3 creates the potential for misuse and fraud. Other states with ESA-style programs have encountered cases where funds were used for personal expenses, unapproved services, and even fraudulent vendors due to weak oversight. Texas should not risk taxpayer dollars on a system that lacks financial controls and academic accountability.

If the goal is to improve education for Texas students, we must ensure that all schools receiving public funds meet the same high standards. Instead of diverting resources to an unregulated system, Texas should be investing in public schools that serve all children and are held accountable for student success.

For these reasons, I strongly urge you to oppose HB 3 and instead support policies that strengthen public education with transparency, accountability, and student outcomes in mind. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Misty Babb

Self

Pflugerville, TX

HB3 should not be allowed to pass for simple fact that the majority does not want it. This is just one reason and a good one. Plus we are overlooking the very simple fact that private schools means that their money comes from private funding. Not from government funding. What is so difficult for this to understand? The government should not be paying money into private businesses. Lastly, majority of the private schools seem to be of the Christian persuasion. Correct me if I am wrong (which I am not), but I don't think every child in Texas is Christian or should be forced into a school that doesn't align with their faith.

Pamela Meyer, Capt

Self

Aransas Pass, TX

Do not support vouchers.

Our Schools here in aransas county and all the surrounding counties ... the entire state need more money to raise highly educated students to carry us into a brighter enlightened future.

We need these highly educated students to create our future scientists , lawyers, doctors , designers , educators , parents... are entire future depends on these students .

Increase public school funding

Kevin Okerstrom

Self

San Angelo, TX

Funding private schools with public tax dollars is just dirty. Vouchers looks to drive daggers in public education. Look ground! Look at all the lawsuits against the states that have adopted similar systems.

Eduardo Brito

Self

Houston, TX

I am not for the Voucher program. I do not Trust Greg Abbott to effectively stand for Education in Texas. Education has been steadily defunded over the years in Texas (Rice University Kinder Institute for Urban Research 2024 73% of Texas School are under funded). Mostly at the hands of Abbott Texas Lottery which is supposed to support education is in shambles because of corruption. "This is probably the greatest fraud ever perpetrated on the State of Texas by any group," Senator Paul Bettencourt said at the hearing. (Quoted in NY Times article 3/7) As a resident of Houston our school district is being systematically destroyed by Abbott's Appointee at TEA Mike Morath and his cronies Mike Miles and appointed board. Miles has already failed in Denver and Dallas. Last election Miles forced a failed HISD Bond initiative that was voted against by the people because of the lack of trust. Then we have our President steadily dismantling the department of education. Texas is even trying to destroy 504 Civil Rights protections with Texas Vs. Becerra. Point blank tax dollars should not go to private schools. They're not even going to our public schools. Even if I were for the program the majority of current elected officials are not capable of effectively providing proper educational support for our children because they undermine it at every turn. The proof is in every action that has been taken against children over the past years. If you are really for the children and for education you will not allow the voucher program to pass and task our government officials to come back with something better. Those of you in an elected position that have children should be appalled at the state of education in our state and country overall. Passing this voucher bill will only prove you are not for children and are incapable of protecting children and providing for the needs of children. Even in regards to reproductive rights it doesn't matter if abortion is illegal you're gonna destroy children's futures one way or another because as it stands children are being attacked at every turn. DO BETTER. Stop this and DO BETTER.

Michaelyn Riley

Self

Austin, TX

As a public school teacher for over 12 years and parent of 2 children attending public schools, I am staunchly opposed to HB3. I urge lawmakers to consider the impact it will have on public education and children of low SES and their families, as well as those who receive Special Education services. School voucher programs disproportionately benefit the most advantaged students, who are overwhelmingly white and wealthy. There is no evidence that vouchers improve student success, but they do lead to discrimination since schools can decide who to provide services to and often choose not to do so to the most needy students. Please do not divert funds from our already struggling and needy public schools for the purpose of giving wealthy families a cut on their private school tuition. Thank you .

Robin Hartmann

Self

Dallas, TX

AGAINST HB 3 by Buckley

Rogers Hartmann, Ms.

Self

Dallas, TX

Absolutely against the voucher system. It's theft.

Brian Fernandes

self, Software Engineer

Austin, TX

I strongly oppose vouchers or similar mechanisms that divert public education funds to private for-profit companies. A strong public education system levels the playing field between people of different socio-economic backgrounds and is the foundation of a healthy democracy.

Beki Halpin
self
Pflugerville, TX

We should not be using public money to support private schools. These unregulated schools will suck desperately needed funding away from public schools. Louisiana tried vouchers and the majority of the schools that accepted vouchers did worse not better than public schools. Special education students will not be able to pay for the expensive private schools that can serve them and will, for the most part, be pushed onto public schools, which will be overburdened with the vast proportion of special education students. Rural districts will lose sufficient funding to keep their public schools open. Sports and extracurricular activities will be starved at public schools. Vouchers distribute more financial support for private school students than public schools will get per student and this is unfair. Public education has made our country strong and its destruction will be ours as well.

Caroline Payne
Self, Registered Nurse
New Braunfels, TX

Keep our public school fully funded. Vouchers are a scam and will pull precious dollars from our local schools.

Bryan Hallmark, Dr
Self
Sealy, TX

I believe HB3 as written will become unaffordable as it balloons to $4billion + in a few years. Creating more government isn't the Texas way. You all are obsessed with vouchers and I can't change that. Why in the world would you not just let a person take what they pay in M&O taxes and use that for private school or home school. It doesn't create more government, doesn't hurt public schools, and it is affordable. Some times you guys make me feel like I'm the smartest guy on the planet.

Dayna Oneal
Music therapy/self
Georgetown, TX

Please do not put forth this bill. Please ensure equal access for all through fully funded public schools.

Alana Greenwood
Self
Fort Worth, TX

Available funds should go to the public schools to build the best educational system for all Texas students. The vouchers only open up fractions and opportunity for corruption.

Jeff Johannigman
Self
Austin, TX

I oppose HB 3 because it unfairly benefits wealthy families to the detriment of the rest.

Karen Horgan
Self/retired
Fort Worth, TX

I am writing to register my opposition to HB3 and any voucher or ESA bills I urge you not to support any voucher or ESA School Choice Bills, as these do not align with the priorities of Texas voters or your Constitutional duty. Please vote NO on HB3 and vote YES to full fund public schools.

I am a mom to two public school teachers. I know first-hand how much vouchers will negatively impact public education. Instead of vouchers/ESAs, please focus on measures that will improve Texas public schools, for example:

- Raising the basic allotment by much more than the $220 in HB2 which would help to raise teacher salaries and provide more resources for students. Fully funding our schools will make them more successful.
- Supporting teachers by raising their salaries and providing better health care options.
- There are 5.5 million public school students in Texas. In fact, Texas ranks 2nd nationally in public school student enrollment. 150 Texas counties do not even have a private school. How will vouchers improve their schools? Bottom line - Public dollars should stay with public schools, which educate the vast majority of Texas students.
- Supporting a strong public school system statewide will produce an educated population will improve the quality of living for all Texans by decreasing crime rates, providing more jobs, better health outcomes, etc.

We have seen the harmful consequences of voucher programs in other states, and Texas should not follow the same path. Voucher systems have drained public school funding without improving student outcomes. Research from these states has shown that vouchers do not lead to higher academic achievement but instead weaken the public school system as a whole. Let's learn from others' mistakes.

As elected officials, it is your Constitutional duty to ensure the success of our public education system. This is one the main responsibility of our state legislature and we need immediate action to make improvements. The majority of Texans from either party do not support vouchers. Listen to your constituents!

Vote NO on any voucher or ESA bill. Vote YES to fully fund our public schools.

Thank you for your attention to this important issue.
Karen Horgan

Stacy Kimpel, Dr.
Self
Conroe, TX

I do not support school vouchers. This does not serve our public schools, teachers, or kids.

Janie Brittain

Self / Texans for Homeschool Freedom

Garland, TX

I would like to go on record as strongly opposing House Bill 3 (HB3). I believe in educational freedom and choice for Texas, but this bill moves us in the opposite direction. Any education freedom bill must protect the inalienable right and responsibility of parents to educate their children. This bill does not do that. HB3 expands government control into private and home schools. HB3 creates a new government regulatory bureaucracy and a "brand new economy" (as Jared Patterson admitted in a Facebook post), made up of public private partnerships using taxpayer dollars. PPPs are exceedingly dangerous because they combine the benefits of privacy and profit of a private entity with the government's power to tax and regulate under force of law. Vendors and others are jumping at the chance to make money in this new economy, regardless of the consequences to our freedoms, and to our children's education.

The proponents of HB3 (and SB2) are disingenuous when they say that the purpose of these bills is to allow children to escape failing public schools. These bills only apply to a tiny percentage of public school students in Texas. Around 98% of students will remain in public schools. The proposed legislation in HB1, HB2, and HB4 will do nothing to fix the root of the problems in public schools, so where is the concern for the 98% of children who will remain?

Proponents of HB3 are also disingenuous (lying) when they say that nothing will change for anyone who chooses not to accept the education subsidies. Basic economics says that an infusion of a large amount of money (subsidies) into a market will cause costs to go up for everyone. Our taxpayer dollars will produce winners and losers in Patterson's new economy.

Finally, control of the education of all children worldwide is a goal of the United Nations. Its United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) supports so-called "school choice" legislation because it furthers its goal of worldwide control of education. HB1, HB2, HB3, and HB4 work together to accommodate and further this goal.

The solution to our failing public schools is to return to what we know worked in the past: a classical liberal education model.

Nothing being proposed by the 89th Legislature is moving us in this direction. In the last decade or more, our legislature and TEA bureaucracy, under the leadership of Governor Abbott, has forced policies on public schools that have led to their near destruction and the failure of children to be able to read and write at a basic level. Why would anyone trust these same people to insert themselves into private and home schools?

Please VOTE NO on HB3 (and SB2, and HB1, HB2, and HB4). HB3 expands government control over our children. It will ultimately destroy educational freedom in Texas.

For Liberty,

Janie Brittain

Precinct Chair #1737 Dallas County

Linda Jackson

Personal

League City, TX

I am AGAINST HB 3.1

Aminda Pereira

Self

San Antonio, TX

I don't want funds to be pulled from my local schools to support. My tax dollars shouldn't be siphoned away from my community. Vouchers leech away resources and lead to a decline in the quality of education of public schools. My taxes shouldn't be supporting a private school. The fact that there is lack of regulation and the potential for discrimination makes it clear to me that voucher programs lead to more harm than good.

Claudia Cortez
Self/ Engineering Educator
Brownsville, TX

Dear Public Education Committee,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB 3, which proposes the establishment of an Education Savings Account (ESA) program. As a dedicated educator with 15 years of experience, currently teaching Career and Technical Education (CTE) Engineering at Porter Early College High School in the Brownsville Independent School District, I am deeply concerned about the potential consequences this bill would have on public education in Texas.

Public education is the backbone of our society, ensuring that all students, regardless of socioeconomic status, receive a quality education. HB 3, under the guise of offering school choice, would divert much-needed public funds away from our already underfunded public schools, further exacerbating educational inequities. While proponents of the ESA program argue that it empowers parents, the reality is that these programs overwhelmingly benefit families who already have the financial means to afford private education, leaving behind students in lower-income and rural communities who rely on public schools.

As an educator deeply involved in STEM initiatives, including my work with NASA HUNCH, Limitless Space Institute, and the Texas Space Grant Consortium, I have seen firsthand how investment in public education fosters innovation and creates pathways for students to enter high-demand STEM fields. The funding that would be siphoned away by HB 3 could instead be used to support CTE programs, STEM initiatives, and teacher development, directly benefiting students who may not otherwise have access to such opportunities.

Furthermore, public schools are held to rigorous academic and accountability standards, ensuring that all students receive a well-rounded education. Private institutions benefiting from ESA funds would not be subject to the same level of oversight, creating a system in which taxpayer dollars are used with little transparency or accountability. This lack of regulation risks diluting the quality of education provided to students while weakening the public education system as a whole.

Texas must prioritize strengthening public education rather than creating policies that undermine it. Instead of allocating funds to private and unregulated institutions, we should focus on increasing teacher pay, reducing classroom sizes, expanding CTE programs, and investing in advanced academic opportunities for all students. These are the initiatives that will truly improve educational outcomes and prepare our students for the workforce of the future.

For the sake of our students, our educators, and the future of public education in Texas, I urge you to oppose HB 3. Let us work together to strengthen the public education system that serves all Texas children, rather than diverting resources to private interests. I would welcome the opportunity to discuss this matter further and share my experiences as an educator who has dedicated my career to student success.

Thank you for your time

Cynthia Clegg
Self
Austin, TX

I oppose HB 3 and education vouchers. This will harm our public schools.

Stephanie Lerner myself, counselor
Elgin, TX

I am against the school voucher program (education savings acct). As a long-time public educator, I can promise you that ESA it is harmful to students and to the basic tenets of public education THAT OUR COUNTRY WAS FOUNDED UPON. Thank you.

Rebecca Berry, Mr
self
Stephenville, TX

In whatever way you all attempt to deprive Texas children an education, it is an assault against democracy and every oath you swore to assume office. Remember that.

Ron Fannin
Self
Denton, TX

I am concerned about HB3 for several reasons. First I think it very important that all Texas children receive the finest education possible. HB3 is in direct opposition to this. Taking money from public education for “education savings accounts” will disadvantage the vast skoriyyof Texas lids.

My second ferry is the eventual economic effect HB3 will have on the state’s economy. Even Elon Musk will be reluctant to operate his companies on a state whose population is poorly educated. This outcome is likely if HB3 is enacted.

Amy Shelburne
Self Teachers
Amarillo, TX

I strongly oppose HB3 and school vouchers and ask my rep to vote no.

Kimberlee McLeod
Self
Burnet, TX

Please do not pass House Bill 3. Please do not give tax payers money to private entities who are not accountable to tax payers. Please do not extend government reach into private schools and homeschooling. Please do not toy with the public school budgets and the future of public education unless you’re going to fully fund education. The future of Texas depends on the efficacy of its public school system. We have school choice. This bill and any other voucher bill is taking money away from public schools that desperately need it.

Fully fund education. Pay teachers as professionals. Make sure each child has a meal. Make sure supplies and technology are up to date. This is how you can help schools and students and parents.

Kate Skiff Parent
Austin, TX

Vouchers do not benefit the majority of students in Texas.

Catherine Ullman
Self and my grandchildren
Round Rock, TX

Strongly oppose school voucher program. This money should be directed towards improving our public education system not funding private education.

Margaret Meyer
self
Grapevine, TX

This bill is bad for Texas for many reason. First, it's contrary to Article 7, section 1 of the Texas constitution. It hurts our rural neighbors whose children often don't have any private school options. The lack of accountability of these publicly funded private schools encourages corruption. Public schools accept all children, including those with special needs, but these private schools can choose their students. Not fair and no good for Texas. Please do the right thing for Texans and vote no.

Cynthia Wesson

Self

Dripping Springs, TX

Please do NOT pass HB 3. It will destroy Texas Public Schools. This will happen first in Rural Communities then it will leach into all Communities.

This is wrong for all Texans! Please stop the nonsense.

Ronni Hardin

Self-teacher

Frisco, TX

Texas House Bill 3 proposes sweeping changes to the state's education system, including a drastic overhaul of school funding and curriculum that threatens to undermine public education. We oppose this bill because it would divert critical resources away from public schools and funnel them into unaccountable private institutions, further exacerbating inequality in education. By prioritizing a voucher system over adequate funding for schools in underserved areas, it jeopardizes the quality of education for the most vulnerable students. Additionally, the bill's restrictions on teaching critical issues such as race and history would stifle academic freedom, limit students' ability to engage with real-world issues, and deny them the opportunity to learn in an inclusive and diverse environment. Rather than focusing on divisive policies, we should be investing in strengthening and supporting our public education system to ensure all students have the opportunity to succeed.

Kathryn Kee, Former public school Asst Supt, Dir, leader, teacher

Self

Shady Shores,, TX

Please research the damage done and lessons learned from Arizona. Remember public schools and an equal, fair and free education is the bedrock of democracy.

Matt Eiben

My family

Taylor, TX

We already have school choice in Texas. This bill does nothing to further education. As a parent, we already have the choice to send our kids to public schools, private schools or homeschool. ESAs are not it. ESAs are merely a socialistic program of "spreading wealth" around. Instead, make meaningful property tax reform. Give exemptions to those that CHOOSE to educate their children outside of public schools (or simply do not have children enrolled in public school). We don't need to beg the government for our money back in the form of ESAs. ESAs have strings attached. My family and I are against ESAs and HB3 should not be passed.

Anne Mann

Self - parent, marketing, consultant, Texan

Dallas, TX

Please vote NO on public school vouchers. They dilute essential support for public schools, whose funding is guaranteed by the Texas Constitution that you swore an oath to support and defend. There are more than 5,000,000 children in public schools. At most, vouchers will only benefit about 10% of the Texas school children. We all know that "parent choice" is a false flag to hide the real agenda of privatization and support of private religious schools. The concern about uncertified teachers in public schools is magnified in home schooling. The past practice of underfunding (no increase since 2019) is consistent with handicapping public schools. The proposed increased support of $210 per student is insulting, insignificant and insufficient. That is clearly inadequate when the proposed diversion to private schools is $10,000 per student.

Thank you for taking the steps necessary to effect the improved education for the State's public school children that you claim, esp. when the federal government threatens to withdraw its support. Your vote will be observed closely.

Lynette Williams

Self

Richardson, TX

No vouchers - public school money already illegally kept from public schools, held hostage for a voucher program not voted on by constituents, public money should be for public schools only, separation of church and state, need accountability which private schools don't have, public schools teach the vast majority of Texas children and they are being denied that because of the money for schools being kept from them unconstitutionally

No vouchers, no vouchers, no vouchers

Legislation should be taking better care of public schools not trying to divert money due them

Anita Thompson, Ms.

Self

Houston, TX

This bill should NEVER become law in the Great State of Texas for many reasons, not the least of which is that it is a con to make poor and middle class school children cede their God-given right to public education to fund the education of the children of oligarchs and Texans who mistakenly believe that the public should pay for religious schools and education.

Donna Brasher, Dr.

Self- Director of Educator Certification

Lubbock, TX

It is time for the state of Texas to show America how important teachers are to this nation. In a majority of other countries, teachers are revered. Colleges are created specifically for teachers. In these countries teachers are among the highest paid careers all because they understand education is crucial to success. It is good that in America education is free to all, but that seems to have led to an era of disrespect. What is free is often taken advantage of and that is where we are. Truly money doesn't solve everything, but it does demonstrate respect for the position. Low pay and poor working conditions do not demonstrate that Texas has any respect for those to work daily with those who will become our future. I work at Texas Tech University and while I cannot speak directly for the university, I know I share the same thoughts as those in educator preparation in the college. We are concerned about enrollment and what is happening in our public school. Dedicated students are dropping out daily because they can get better paying jobs with much less stress. Passing this bill is a step in the right direction. Giving students who are in teacher preparation stipends during their teaching residency will help to offset some of the stress of working will also student teaching full time. It would be great to take this one step further and offer those in teacher preparation free tuition or even reduced rate tuition. This is a crisis and we must take steps to fully address the issues, not just bandaid them.

Amy March

Self

San Angelo, TX

Thank you so much for considering education savings accounts. We are a homeschool family with 3 children. I'm not trying to "drain public schools." I just want to be able to use my taxes for my kids' education like everyone else gets to do. I spend less than $1000 a YEAR on supplies and still have to budget carefully to make sure we have that, while also paying $6000 in property taxes for other peoples' kids to go to school. I keep hearing how this bill is unfair. Please, then, explain to me how this current system is fair to families like mine?

Rebecca McDonald, Dr

Self

San Angelo, TX

Strongly oppose the voucher program. Public here are in dire need of ADDITIONAL funding, not siphoning off what little they have to private schools. Invest in our children please!!

Teresa Newberry

Self

Forney, TX

As a retired teacher 30+years in the classroom) I am so frustrated with our state's lack of support for public schools. Rather than blame teachers for Texas's rank at 41/50 in education please quit underfunding them. This bill will harm all public schools/students but especially those districts and families most vulnerable. Please vote NO!

Lindsey Autry

Self

Austin, TX

These school vouchers will destroy the public school systems in Texas. Please do not allow this to go through.

Susan M Meyer

Ncjl

Austin, TX

I am against vouchers! Please list all private schools that cost under $10,000. How many openings do they have?

What are their requirements?

How many are not affiliated with a church?

Your constituents do not want this? Why not use this money to make public schools the best instead of 42nd?

Why not put this effort into improving transportation across Texas- high speed trains, lower property taxes, a better grid and things your constituents actually want?

Stephanie Baird

Self

MANVEL, TX

I am opposed to HB3. I believe the future of our children is in fully funded public schools and teachers paid what they are owed. We disrespect both by tearing down public schools instead of fixing the problems. School vouchers are a scam and a cop-out for a lazy, morally bankrupt system. You all have given up, but we have not. Our children deserve better than this, as do our educators. I know exactly the kind of education a funded public school can give, I had a wonderfully well- rounded education, mostly, here in Texas. I still remember my teachers' names all these years later. I implore you to not vote for this bill.

Thank you for your time.

Donna Kearley

Self

Lewisville, TX

I oppose HB 3 as it takes money away from public schools. We already have school choice as parents can choose to send their children to public, private, and charter schools or homeschool. Public funds should go to public schools. If I choose to send my child to private schools I don't want to be forced to use a vendor chosen by the state.

Elizabeth Hernandez

Self

San Angelo, TX

We need to save our public schools! Not everyone can afford to send their kids to a private school!!

Alison Takata
Self. Psychotherapist
Austin, TX

Dear Esteemed Representatives, I humbly urge you to vote against HB 3. As the parent of 2 public school students I know that our Texas schools are good but they could be even better with proper funding. This HB 3 bill takes precious money away from public schools and does not prioritize public school students where most Texas children are educated. Please do not support this bill. It will hurt Texas children and families. Thank you!

Matthew Winsor-Johns
Self
Plano, TX

I am deeply disappointed by the passage of the Texas voucher HB3 bill, which undermines the integrity of our public education system. This bill prioritizes private interests over the well-being of our students, teachers, and communities. Instead of investing in the resources and support our public schools desperately need, it diverts critical funding to unaccountable private institutions. This move exacerbates inequality by leaving our most vulnerable students behind and erodes the foundation of a strong, equitable education for all. I stand firmly against this bill and urge lawmakers to reconsider the long-term harm it will cause to the future of Texas' education system.

Texas must prioritize the future of our students by investing in our public schools, not catering to the interests of wealthy billionaires. Our schools are the backbone of our communities, and they deserve far more than the underfunding they've suffered for far too long. Every student, regardless of their background or zip code, deserves access to a high-quality education, and that starts with adequate funding. We need resources for better facilities, more teachers, and support staff, as well as programs that help every student thrive. It's time for Texas to show up for our kids — not the wealthy few — and ensure that our public schools are equipped to provide the education every student deserves. Our students are worth the investment, and it's time for the state to stand up for them.

Chelsea Cook
Saisd
San Angelo, TX

Texas has unanimously voted no!!!! Read the comments on the governors post! We do not want this!!!!!!!!!!!! The people say NO!

Larry Westbrook, Mr.
Allflex/Programmer
McKinney, TX

Vote NO to vouchers in Texas! We need to protect and fortify our public schools.

Zara Westbrook, Mrs.
Self/retired Texas teacher
McKinney, TX

Vote NO to vouchers in Texas! We need to save and revamp our public schools.

Patrick Fries
Self, UX Researcher
Georgetown, TX

Providing taxpayer money to non-public schools is not only a waste of our tax dollars but it is immoral. We trust you, our elected representatives to work in best interests of your constituents, whether they voted for you or not. It's clear that HB3 will not benefit the taxpayers of Texas. It is an enormous waste of OUR tax money and a breach of the basic trust between constituent and representative. Our public school districts, like mine in Leander ISD, are full of hard-working, committed professionals doing their best with resource shortages already. It would benefit my community and our beautiful state if the money allotted to pay for HB3 were instead invested into our local public school districts throughout the state. After all, we, as Texans, already have access to school choice through dozens (or more) of charter school systems and private schools. HB3 is unnecessary, wasteful, and an immoral injection of government where government is not needed or wanted by the citizens.

Melba Vasquez
N/A
Austin, TX

The voucher bill will be harmful to public school education. Please defeat it!

Susan Martin
Self
Houston, TX

I oppose HB 3, a radical shift in public funds, severely harming Texas students, especially Cy-Fair ISD. A cornerstone of excellence, Cy-Fair ISD faces dismantling, jeopardizing student opportunities. HB 3 diverts funds, creating a critical deficit. Cy-Fair ISD, reliant on state funding, faces devastating cuts. Recent funding issues have already led to transportation and staffing reductions. Further cuts threaten increased class sizes, limited student attention, elimination of vital extracurriculars, and dismantling of specialized programs (gifted, special education, career prep). The bill lacks accountability, raising concerns about taxpayer fund stewardship. Cy-Fair ISD, known already for great financial management, deserves strong support. Parents deserve transparency. HB 3 disproportionately impacts vulnerable students (special needs, economically disadvantaged), curtailing essential services and widening achievement gaps. It fosters segregation, creating a two-tiered system where affluent families access unregulated alternatives, while others are relegated to underfunded schools and face stricter regulation. Our current system already provides choices, this bill removes public funding guarantees. HB 3 weakens public school infrastructure, undermining community cohesion. Cy-Fair ISD, a community hub, provides jobs, training, and business partnerships. Our district helps kids through career readiness. This bill creates divisions in our community and threatens the ability of our district and all districts across Texas to serve our communities. I urge the legislature to reject HB 3, prioritizing public school support for all Texas students.

Sarah Meinzer, Ms
Self
Midland, TX

Vouchers will be the ruin of rural schools. The voucher scam is another example of the wealthy buying politicians. Tax payers should not be paying for the private educations of the wealthy.

Travis Horne, Mr.
self
Austin, TX

I am a public school teacher who has seen funds move away from public education for over my 15 years in the classroom. ESAs will do the same- pulling funding that should be dedicated to public schools would be spent on coupons for rich families sending kids to private schools, further defunding schools. Perhaps just fund public schools for Texans, a constitutional requirement that Texas has failed for many years.

Cynthia Almaguer

Self

Sealy, TX

I do not approve this bill. I do not want my tax dollars going to private schools who do not have to let the same standards as public. Fix public schools!!! We already have school choice. Rural area schools will suffer the most with this nonsense. The schools are already understaffed and the teachers are under paid. Think of the kids and our future, not your pockets and the already rich. A $10k voucher will not help the poor who still won't be able to afford the private school tuition. Listen to the people, we don't want it. Support the public education that accepts all kids regardless of their needs. They don't have the luxury of denying a student like private. Do what is right for all kids!

Dori Reuscher

Self

Wylie, TX

Establishing an education voucher program in Texas is a disastrous idea. It drains vital funds from public schools that serve all students, especially those in disadvantaged communities. Vouchers only benefit wealthier families who can already access better education, while leaving public schools struggling to survive. Private schools lack accountability and can discriminate based on disability or religion, deepening inequality. This proposal undermines our public education system and the future of our children. We must invest in public schools, not dismantle them!

Laura Bussell, Dr

Self, teacher

Frisco, TX

Please do not pass the vouchers. Defunding our public schools is not the answer!! We need to put MORE money into our public schools. Not less!!

Christian Meyers, Mrs

My family!

San Angelo Tx, TX

WE DO NOT WANT THIS!

Audrey Colwell

Self

Mckinney, TX

Texas residents do not want vouchers, we want fully funded public education.

John Cobarruvias

Self

Houston, TX

I am opposed to this bill. If this bill is to become law there needs to be a cap on the amount an individual can receive from the State, limited to the amount the parents pay in school taxes. If they pay $1000 in taxes then that is all they should receive in a voucher.

Milana Noueilaty

Self

Austin, TX

Texan parents have made it very clear, we do not want HB 3. We want more funding for public schools. Fully fund them and see just how good they can be. Stop putting big $ before the kids.

Scott Davis

Myself, a teacher & coach

Millsap, TX

HB 3 is a Trojan Horse that grows government, increases spending and sees private schools & home school groups come under government control. This isn't about educational freedom and choice as the bill gives the choice of schools to opt in and accept funds. Choice is a mere illusion and freedoms are restricted under this bill. This is not a good path to take towards fixing the damage that has been done to public ed. Instead efforts should be taken to audit the TEA, sever ties with Commit and other data collection groups, return to the basics of education. Remove technology from the classroom, eliminate testing contracts and repeal the STAAR.

Leigh Ann Parker

San Angelo ISD

San Angelo, TX

This bill is not what our state and schools need! Not every town has a private school and not everyone can afford private schools or even want to attend them. Stop trying to force us and just teach our children! Sad we are lowest country in education!!

Taylor Hurst

Self

Wylie, TX

VOTE NO

Dana Baker

Self

Wimberley, TX

Say NO to vouchers!!

Shirley Izbrand, Mrs.

Self

San Antonio, TX

HB2 Support our public schools! Support accountability. Support our communities. Support fairness. Support all kids of all abilities equally! No taxpayer money for private schools.

Tiffany Chan

Self

Houston, TX

Texans vehemently oppose the school voucher program. We already have school choice. The voucher program will provide welfare to the wealthy and degrade our public school system. If our public schools are floundering it is because Abbott has not increased funds per student despite soaring inflation & Texas sitting on a surplus of funds. Public money belongs in public schools. Do the right thing for ALL your constituents & vote NO for school vouchers.

Lisa Anderson

Self

Buda, TX

I oppose this bill and school vouchers.

Karen Laine
self, retired
Georgetown, TX

PLEASE VOTE NO on this bill. I have paid property taxes for decades, understanding that my dollars go to support the PUBLIC school system. Though I don't have children of my own, I've been happy to do this to ensure quality education for future generations of children. I do NOT believe my taxpayer dollars should be used to support private education. That is a parent's choice, but not a right that the public should pay for, especially at the expense of our public education system. We don't ask the government to give us public funds to improve other aspects of our private life - why should parents expect us to pay for their choice? That is akin to asking the transportation dept to give me a subsidy so I can buy a Cadillac instead of a Ford, because I choose to drive a higher quality car that has a more comfortable ride! If funds are allocated to support private education, then I strongly feel those of us that do not even have children should be provided a rebate on our PUBLIC SCHOOL tax obligation. Thank you.

Laura Cohen
Self
Dallas, TX

Tax payer money should support public schools.
If you go to private school, you pay for it.
Fund, and invest in public schools.

Sarah Zeller
Self- homemaker
Pearland, TX

Texasans do not want vouchers. As a parent and tax payer, I want my taxes to go to my local public schools. Strong public schools make our communities better. Parents already have the choice to send their kids to private school or to homeschool them. My 5th grader has attended private school (because we chose to send him there), and was homeschooled by me during the pandemic. He is currently thriving in our local public school. I never once thought that the government should subsidize those choices we made as parents. Most of those social media posts the governor has been making are misleading or in some cases, outright demonstrable lies. Enough already. We don't want vouchers. We want fully funded public schools. Listen to your constituents.

Tomas Ochoa, Mr
self harker heights, TX

I opposed HB3

Dara Nathan
Self - speech pathologist
Dallas, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Christie Lambert

Self

Denton, TX

I am vehemently opposed to SB3. Public tax dollars should never go to private schools. I have been a registered Republican my entire life. Several years ago I started voting against Republicans in my state of Texas because of what Republicans have done to education in Texas. We must first vote against SB3. Alongside of that, we must increase the spending allotment per student AND raise teacher pay AND reduce healthcare costs for teachers. We have had a budget surplus in Texas for years now at the same time our elected officials have been robbing our education system, our children, and our future. I hope you understand that Texans are overwhelmingly opposed to vouchers and are paying attention to how you are crippling our public education.

Delores Thompson

Self

Amarillo, TX

I feel that our tax dollars should support public education not private schools. Parents indeed have options and if they desire private schools, they should not use public money.

Brenda Thompson

self - bakery owner and social media manager

Sugar Land, TX

As a lifelong Texan, I am writing to express my opposition to HB3 (RE: proposed school voucher program). As a product of Texas public schools and parent to children who attended Texas public schools K-12 in the Houston area, I believe that we need to invest in our public schools rather than allocate funds towards families who either already attend private schools or homeschool or simply won't have a realistic option to attend a private school as is the case for many rural students. I have been a longtime volunteer in the public schools and know that they need all the funds they can use -- not taken away. Parents already have a choice so this bill does not change that. Please listen to your constituents who are OPPOSED to HB3 and vote no. Thank you!

Margaret Quinn

Self

College Station, TX

As a former educator and parent of a public school student, I can say with full confidence that this bill will only hurt our students and schools by taking critical funding away from already underfunded schools. Parents have always had a choice for sending their kids to schools with magnet schools, private schools, charter schools, and homeschooling. Taking public funding away from public schools and sending to private schools is not the answer to the problem you propose this bill to correct. To not hold private schools to the same standards of curriculum and educator certification and propose sending unequal funding doesn't make logical sense. This bill is not about one political party over another. This bill is about a redistribution of wealth that will disproportionately benefit the wealthy who can already afford to send their children to private schools. This is welfare for rich people who do not need it. The public overwhelmingly voted against this agenda the first time it came around, and we see through the farce of it now. We will not forget. HB3 will not help the people you claim it is most for. There are better ways to help students most in need of better educational opportunities. Properly funding our schools, all special programs, and educator salaries to recruit and retain high quality teachers is the first step. Sending public dollars to private schools who are not held to the same standards is not the common sense solution.

Harmoni Pliego

Self

Sachse, TX

As a homeschool mom, I support school choice vouchers. I struggle to cover the costs of our books and classes, while paying thousands of tax dollars that go to schools. I realize I have chosen to do that because I want a hand-crafted education for my kids, but if there was a way to utilize my tax dollars towards this, it would be incredibly helpful. I have friends in AZ who use their state's voucher system and have wondered if it would be more cost effective for our family to move to AZ. Also, I believe 2 of my 4 children would have completely slid through the cracks in a public school setting or have been forced to be on medication for ADHD in order for them to focus in a classroom setting. I am so thankful I can give them individualized attention by homeschooling them and school choice vouchers would only enhance the educational opportunities I would be able to provide for them. Thank you for your consideration.

Robbye Schroeder Kirkpatrick

Self

Austin, TX

I am a former public school teacher and a mother of 4 students with special needs. Please pass this bill!

Amanda West

self

Cedar Park, TX

Why would I want my tax dollars paying for rich kids to go to private schools and further damaging the public education system I need for my children and the success of my family? The rich can pay for their own special schools but keep my money in my schools for my kids. These people will be in control when I'm old and I need them to be capable and educated. We need the money we already pay that's being held hostage AND we don't need anything else to take away from investment in our children. Keep vouchers out of Texas.

Judith Bortnem, Mrs.

Self

Lantana, TX

I, my school, teacher, friends, my school, counselor, friends, and my friends that are in administrative duties at public school are totally against the voucher program. What's use the money to improve our public school education in a way that supports our students and teachers. If people want to send their children to private school, great, I just don't believe and neither do my friend that helping them pay for it when they are already able is fair and equitable!

Sydney Miller

Self Tax Consultant

Houston, TX

I'd like to express my concern over the House Bill 2 and House Bill 3 presenting school voucher program. Please strongly consider not passing these bills. This will harm the public school system and will create fly by night for-profit private schools. Low income families do not have the means to be able to take their children to private schools across town. There are already long waitlists for private schools without the school choice option.

Komal Parekh

Mom

Round Rock, TX

I do not support voucher bill

Diane Heller, Mrs.

Self

Victoria, TX

Please vote against this HB 3. As a former public school educator and a former private school student, the funds allocated to this voucher program should be allocated to the public schools!! Please vote AGAINST HB3!!

Kathryn Ivie

Self

Houston, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

- 1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.
 - 2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.
 - 3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.
 - 4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot. This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.
- Thank you!

Lauren Gutterman, Dr.

Self

Austin, TX

I am a parent of two students in the Austin Independent School District. I am urging you, in the strongest possible terms, to vote NO on House Bill 3. This proposed legislation would decimate the budgets of our public schools in Texas. It would unjustly use tax-payer funds, intended for public schools, to subsidize private education for the wealthy. I do not want my tax money being used to fund private schools that can pick and choose which students they want to educate, and discriminate against students based on race, gender, sexuality, religion, ability or other characteristics. We have seen in other states with school voucher programs, like Arizona, how this bill would lead to a massive shortfall in our public education budget. Furthermore, we also know that private schools will simply raise their tuition if this bill becomes law. Our public funds must support public schools, not for-profit schools that can discriminate against students and that do not have to meet state educational standards. For the sake of Texas's children today and in the future, please vote NO.

Joan Freeman

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose you diverting public funds to private schools, no matter what you call it. I am a Texas voter and I want you to fully fund existing public school mandates, not divert funds to unaccountable private and religious schools. I know that virtually every other state that has created a voucher system with the limited guardrails you are proposing has seen a decimation of their public school systems and increasing burden to their state budgets. We don't want that here in Texas. Please fund our public schools and don't pass the voucher bill out of committee. From a concerned Texas mom.

Bridget Leabo
Klein ISD
Spring, TX

I strongly urge you to oppose HB 3 and any efforts to implement a school voucher program in Texas. Vouchers divert critical public funds away from our already underfunded public schools, weakening the education system that serves the vast majority of Texas students. Instead of increasing educational opportunities, vouchers primarily benefit private schools that are not held to the same accountability standards, do not guarantee student protections, and often exclude students with disabilities or special needs. Public tax dollars should be invested in strengthening our public schools—ensuring smaller class sizes, higher teacher salaries, and better resources for all students—rather than subsidizing private institutions with little oversight. Please prioritize the future of Texas children by rejecting HB 3 and keeping public funds in public schools.

Russell Seal
Self
La Coste, TX

Please vote against vouchers or education savings account for students my own personal experience is I went to Catholic School in the first and second grade it was not able to read at that point my parents pull me out and enrolled me in public school and I had to take a summer school program to start to catch up and address my dyslexic problem it was not recognized at all at Catholic school the only thing I had to show for that was sore knuckles from the nuns coming up from behind me and terrorizing us. Public schools not only caught me up in Reading they help me discover that I was very talented in math and sciences and I was able to go up to the University of Houston to pharmacy school and spent on almost 40-year career as a pharmacist in San Antonio working on the south and Southwest side of San Antonio are public schools are accountable for students with special needs private schools from my experience are not taking care of and not accountable for students with special needs such as myself they just want to take the money do the job and not be responsible for the outcomes this is very serious thing please please vote against it.

Victoria Morris, PhD
Self - Professor
Galveston, TX

As a product of school choice myself, I do not support this endeavor. I gained access to better education through school choice, which also allowed my parents control over more elements of my education. However, this process hurt my community, fellow students, and my personal faith. My success came at the cost of lower funding and failing education standards of my community. The money that could have been invested in all was reserved for the few. As an adult, the religious aspect of my schooling means even less. While my parents attempted to instill Christian values, I could see the hypocrisy of these actions. The actions related to school choice are directly related to why I no longer attend any form of Christian church. Keeping me away from my peers and inside a Christian-only bubble directly harmed my faith in God. Please do not allow this bill to pass and continue failing education and failing Christianity.

Shannon Villegas
Self
Josephine, TX

HB 3 will harm private schooling by subjecting it to curriculum and testing standards decided by the same government entities now in charge of our failing public schools. There is no provision in the bill to protect the integrity and rights of parents who opt out of public schooling.

Marion Buscemi
myself
AUSTIN, TX

Public education is the bedrock of our community and all of society. It should be protected and encouraged at all costs.

Victor Wargo
self, Teacher
Hale Center, TX

As a Teacher, I oppose this bill due to the lack of reasonability of "school choice". Providing coupons for private schools is absurd given the fact that Texas does not have such schools for each student in the state to attend. That is the basis of school choice. Withholding funds from Public Schools to fund such an absurd idea is not a "Common Sense" approach; it is egregious and arrogant. Common sense would be that if Private Schools were in every town, but we do not have that luxury. As Texans, we must work with what we have and as Texans, we do a great job with it.

State Government has been going on and on regarding this issue for a while now and it's about time to put HB 3 to rest. Look at Michigan, they hate vouchers and Illinois ended their voucher system due to it wreaking havoc on their state. Who is selling who here? Someone is being sold and turning a blind eye to data. A simple Google search will tell you all you need to know regarding School voucher systems.

Thank you for your time.

Isabel Garza
Self
Ft Worth, TX

Please don't establish the education savings account program. Private schools charge tuition-unregulated-to the families whose children they choose to accept and enroll in their programs. It is a personal choice that families have to make and there is no guarantee the private school will accept the children applying. Taxpayers should not be forced to support private education that is selective and not benefitting all our Texas children. Public education is already under funded, and cannot afford another loss. In addition, property taxes are already expensive and difficult for us to pay-especially as a retired Texan. We can't afford for the taxes to increase to supplement the loss in funds for our public schools. Not to mention the uncertainty of the solvency of the social security program that I rely on.

Alexander Papavasiliou

Self

Austin, TX

Subject: Request for Increased Funding and Opposition to Vouchers/ESA

Dear Education committee

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the use of vouchers and Education Savings Accounts (ESAs) as a means of funding education. These programs divert crucial resources away from public schools, undermining their ability to serve all students equitably.

I respectfully request the following changes to improve the funding structure for education:

1. Increase the Basic Allotment to $7,500: The current funding allocation is insufficient to meet the needs of students and educators. Raising the basic allotment to $7,500 would better support our schools and allow for more equitable access to quality education.
2. Determine Funding by Enrollment, Not Attendance: Funding should be based on student enrollment rather than attendance. This would provide more consistent and predictable funding for schools, allowing them to plan and allocate resources effectively, even in times of fluctuating attendance.
3. Tie Funding to Inflation: Education funding should be adjusted annually based on inflation rates. This would ensure that the value of the funding keeps pace with the rising costs of education, maintaining its purchasing power over time.
4. Ensure Funding for All Current and Future Mandates: All current and future state or federal mandates should be fully funded to avoid placing additional burdens on schools. This would ensure that schools can comply with legal requirements without sacrificing other essential services.

I hope you will consider these requests as part of ongoing efforts to improve the education system. Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

Sincerely,

Mariah Dedrick

Self; Manager Information Services

Plano, TX

I oppose HB3. Taxpayer funding should be used to support public school programs and strengthen education for all Texans. Allowing taxpayer dollars to be used for private schools is despicable. Private schools can refuse to serve any child. That's why public schools should receive more support, not less. All great countries have an education system that supports everyone, not the few. Please don't do this to our kids.

Maricela Chibli, Mrs.

Self

Colleyville, TX

Don't hurt public education with this voucher bill! This will only help the rich!!
NO VOUCHERS!!!

Patricia Goode

Self

North Richland Hills, TX

Again I voice my opposition to transferring taxpayer funds to private schools. Follow the Texas State Constitution, Article 7 to fully fund public schools and NOT divert public monies to religious entities, including schools. Vouchers are NOT wanted by a majority of Texans, and you know it. Otherwise, the Legislature and the Governor would allow Texans to vote on it. Do the right thing for the common good of all Texans and all Texas children.

Drew Gassaway

self - software engineer

Round Rock, TX

I strongly OPPOSE HB3. As a parent with school-aged children I believe this bill will provide a negative outcome for my family and my community. I believe that any school receiving public money must be publically accountable. I do NOT support redirecting public money to private institutions, and starving public schools of funding they need to educate children. This is a high priority issue for me and I will be paying close attention to it and how members choose to vote on it. Please oppose and reject this bill.

Thank you,

Drew Gassaway

Melissa Bunzendahl

Self

Mckinney, TX

This bill is HARMING the people of Texas. The PEOPLE do not want this! Please vote to HELP the people of this state.

Mordecai Langer

Self

Dallas, TX

Please approve as this will help us getting our kids that are education that fits our beliefs and religion

Natalie Lange

Self - business owner

Brenham, TX

I am adamantly opposed to HB 3 and any bill that supports vouchers, ESAs, or anything else you call them. They are NOT conservative! This massive new entitlement creates more government and bureaucracy with little oversight. It's taxation without representation. Fund public schools according to your constitutional duty!

Pete Mitchell

Parent

Plano, TX

Please give the people freedom of choice! You take our money and then force us to go to the schools you want us to go to? NO! Either give us our money back and let us decide (best option), or pass this and let us decide.

Ana Macías
Literacy council
El paso, TX

Subject: Request for Increased Funding and Opposition to Vouchers/ESA

Dear Education committee

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the use of vouchers and Education Savings Accounts (ESAs) as a means of funding education. These programs divert crucial resources away from public schools, undermining their ability to serve all students equitably.

I respectfully request the following changes to improve the funding structure for education:

1. Increase the Basic Allotment to $7,500: The current funding allocation is insufficient to meet the needs of students and educators. Raising the basic allotment to $7,500 would better support our schools and allow for more equitable access to quality education.
2. Determine Funding by Enrollment, Not Attendance: Funding should be based on student enrollment rather than attendance. This would provide more consistent and predictable funding for schools, allowing them to plan and allocate resources effectively, even in times of fluctuating attendance.
3. *Tie Funding to

Subject: Request for Increased Funding and Opposition to Vouchers/ESA

Dear Education committee

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the use of vouchers and Education Savings Accounts (ESAs) as a means of funding education. These programs divert crucial resources away from public schools, undermining their ability to serve all students equitably.

I respectfully request the following changes to improve the funding structure for education:

1. Increase the Basic Allotment to $7,500: The current funding allocation is insufficient to meet the needs of students and educators. Raising the basic allotment to $7,500 would better support our schools and allow for more equitable access to quality education.
2. Determine Funding by Enrollment, Not Attendance: Funding should be based on student enrollment rather than attendance. This would provide more consistent and predictable funding for schools, allowing them to plan and allocate resources effectively, even in times of fluctuating attendance.
3. Tie Funding to Inflation: Education funding should be adjusted annually based on inflation rates. This would ensure that the value of the funding keeps pace with the rising costs of education, maintaining its purchasing power over time.
4. Ensure Funding for All Current and Future Mandates: All current and future state or federal mandates should be fully funded to avoid placing additional burdens on schools. This would ensure that schools can comply with legal requirements without sacrificing other essential services.

I hope you will consider these requests as part of ongoing efforts to improve the education system. Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

Sincerely,

Amanda Cordero

Self

Leander, TX

No

Susan Markus

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose HB 3. We need strong public schools for all Texas children. Vouchers will reduce funding for public schools and weaken our children's education. No no no!

Erin Bingham

Self.

Spring, TX

Stop forcing vouchers to appease your donors. This is the most fiscally irresponsible bill so the fact that it's being presented as the Conservative Priority is a joke.

Joyce Camhi

Self

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Brian Trittin

Self

Round Rock, TX

Vote NO please. This is not what public dollars should support. This does not represent the people's will.

Amy Turner

Self, AISD School Counselor for 17 years

Austin, TX

I would like funds to go directly to improving schools for those who cannot use vouchers to go to private schools ($10,000 doesn't go far when you are on welfare). As a Master's degreed professional with years of experience of the on the ground work in our public schools, we desperately need this money to go to our schools that serve all students. A typical income level of let's say a Westlake family that wants to send their child to a private school does not need $10,000 to go to let's say St.Andrews. But a lower income or middle class income family in South Austin, who wants to send their kid to private school, let's say St.Andrews as well, $10,000 is not enough for that family to be able to afford to go to St. Andrew's. Hence, that family is going to have to send their child to public school anyways. If the state funding is not being fed into that public school then the child will not be getting even close to of an equitable education as the upper class family who sent their kid to St. Andrews. Our public schools in Texas are already so underfunded and staff are so under paid (i.e. Master degreed educators can't afford to live in the city they work in) that we need the state money to go to public schools.

Gabriela Torre II

Self

Austin, TX

I'm strongly opposing this and recommend it does not pass.

Chloe LaPorte

Self

Austin, TX

No to public vouchers. We need to direct public funds to public schools so they can improve, increase teacher pay, and invest in mental health support for students. No vouchers.

Stephanie Noboa

Self

AUSTIN, TX

Against Vouchers!

Kati Moody

Self

Levelland, TX

This bill would have a nominal benefit for families who already have the power to choose the best education for their child while simultaneously having disastrous results for rural students who depend on funding for public education. Any representative who supports this bill has been tragically misled.

Mark Mosty, Mr

Self

Kerrville, TX

I am writing to state my opposition to the creation of Education Savings Accounts. The small town I live in (Kerrville) is largely centered on its public school system which currently has a deficit operating budget due to the Governor's actions. The president of our local school board recently commented that if the legislature would even the field (I.e. give each public school student $10k like private school students you would not have much opposition to the ESA scheme. Or only give them 6k like you do our regular kids. This plan is unfair to our kids and I urge you to vote to kill this bill.

Daniel Mireles

self

Georgetown, TX

I am not in support of HB 3. The voucher program decimates public schools and creates a terrible divide within communities.

Ann Potts

self

Keller, TX

The bill's financial analysis shows that most families that use the proposed vouchers will end up going to individuals already enrolled in private school. There are too many ways for private schools to prevent the vulnerable populations that the voucher is intended for to actually make use of the funds. The costs over the voucher amount, the transportation required, and the ability for private schools to deny entry for any reason will all result in vouchers going mostly to the families who are already capable of sending their students to private schools. No public money should be spent in private schools unless those schools meet ALL requirements of public schools including accepting all types of students including those with special needs, ESL, and more. Any school receiving voucher money needs to be required to follow the exact same testing requirements and teacher certification requirements that are required for public schools. If these requirements cannot be met, public money should never go to the institution.

Johnna Edone
self
The Woodlands, TX

All four of my children attended private school, and I am against this voucher program. It is too costly and not the best solution. It is going to grow government and have more government control over private and home school education. We could save billions if we deported the illegals and did not have to foot the bill for their education. The cost to educate people who broke the law and entered here illegally is draining our system. Why not eliminate property taxes and let people use the savings how they best see fit? This voucher bill will end up costing more, as does every government program, and our property taxes will be raised to burden the costs. This is not a conservative bill, and it is not as popular as you think. I am very conservative and against this bill.

Jennifer Stephens
Self
Sachse, TX

URGENT! ACT NOW THEN SHARE THIS POST!

Easy way to give comments without making a trip to Austin. This takes 2 minutes!!

Voucher bill being heard now!

Click and send:

<https://comments.house.texas.gov/home?c=c400>

Example you can copy and paste below!

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Rebecca Udman
Self
Richardson, TX

I strongly support this bill

Dini Druk
self - educator & parent
Richardson, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Maureen Sharp
Self, caregiver for dementia patient
Sanger, TX

Please listen to the Texas people and adequately fund our public schools! Vote school vouchers DOWN! It's giving welfare to the rich by stealing from the poor.

Kathryn Rodriguez, Mrs.
Self
Round Rock, TX

I am against this legislation. Our schools are already underfunded and this bill would take money from public schools. Also, it is not the responsibility of the state to help send children to religious-based schools, which this will do. The voucher program is unpopular with the public! Don't funnel money away from our public schools!

Robert Udman
Self
Richardson, TX

Strongly in favor of and supporting this bill

Kim Teutsch
Self
Hempstead, TX

We have homeschooled in Texas for the last 9 years and we oppose this bill. Keep homeschooling a complete free choice in Texas by not establishing ESA programs of any kind.

Monty Main
self Lindale, TX

I am firmly against HB 3. As a parent of a child that receives federal services this bill allows for my child to be excluded from utilizing the ESA voucher since a private school can refuse her admission. At this point it's not a choice for nether my child or myself as a parent it places the choice solely in the hands of the private school. IF choice was the goal this bill is the exact opposite. I vote in every election and I will actively campaign and vote against both Senator Hughes and Representative Hefner if they continue to support this unjust legislation.

Ashley Falkenburg

Self

Leander, TX

I urge you to vote NO on this. The voucher program will hurt all Texans and I want my tax dollars to stay with PUBLIC schools. We already have school choice and the voucher system is just helping the wealthy. We NEED to do everything we can to invest in public education. My son has special needs and has benefited greatly from his 504 and IEP plan. He has made so much progress and I desperately want to see better funding for our schools to help kids like my son and so many others. Please I urge you to vote no on this.

Sincerely,

Ashley Falkenburg

Migday Flores, Mrs

Self

San antonio, TX

Please vote no for this bill.

Yosef Cohen

Self

Houston, TX

Support this!!

Elizabeth Bray

Self - homeschool mom and insurance agent

Livingston, TX

I am against this bill. This bill will cost public schools important resources and will help very few families, namely families in larger cities with more options. Rural families will still have limited options due to distance to facilities other than the local public school. This is not the solution to the problem.

Heidi Wicker

None

Highland Village, TX

The voucher scam is not wanted by Texas citizens. Fund the schools and then we can discuss public welfare for private schools. You are not helping public schools at all and this is clearly not a popular choice, at all. Texas seems determined to become one of the worst states for education. It should not be a race to the bottom. Fund the schools!

Ashley Hamel

self, non-profit

Houston, TX

Vouchers defund public schools, harm student learning, and discriminate against vulnerable kids. Please vote no to the voucher program, and continue to support public schools.

Brooke Jones

self - Representing my children, my kids' school, their teachers, my school district, my community, Texans
Leander, TX

Texas does not need HB3. Texas needs our legislature to commit to its children, families, and communities, to invest in public school education at the level Texans deserve and demand! We have the largest public school system in the country, yet we are in the bottom third in spending. Our state has one of the largest economies in the World, yet we can't find a way to build an exemplary public school system? We should be focusing on making Texas education the leader in academic performance. The research shows that strong public schools lead to strong communities. Strong communities across Texas, leads to a stronger state. Instead, you're opting to defund our public school system and give taxpayer funds to wealthy families that are already sending their kids to private schools. If the goal of this bill is genuinely to impact the educational options for economically disadvantaged families, then put a maximum household income limit in place to ensure these funds will support those who need the extra support. There is no reason taxpayer funds should be accessible to families who can afford to pay for and are already sending their children to private school. School choice already exists in Texas, but every family must weigh which option works best for them. In a state where we have many challenges, especially facing the education and well-being of our children, this feels like a misuse of funds. These funds could be used to better support our foster care system, improve child healthcare throughout our state, ensure the safety of our children in schools, improve the communities surrounding our schools, yet we're discussing a tax-break for rich families.

Ish Kundawala

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose this bill as a Texas educator with a background in special education and in the arts. This will be disastrous for my students who need IEPs and whose supports are being defunded. We need more money for public education- not less. Private schools are not subject to the same standards and cannot always accommodate students with disabilities. This is illegal and also immoral.

Jennifer Donato

Pleasanton ISD

Poteet, TX

Economically disadvantaged student facts should be included.

Kelly Elliott

Self

Wimberley, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.

2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.

3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.

4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot.

This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.

Thank you

Renee McKinney
Self, Business Owner
Conroe, TX

My family & I (4 voters in this house) oppose House Bill 3.

All Texas students deserve an education that prepares them to succeed. This isn't going to come from subsidizing tuition for wealthy families at exclusionary private schools that pick & choose who will enroll using our tax dollars.

As a concerned Texas, I ask you to vote down HB 3, which diverts tax dollars from public schools. Public dollars should stay in public schools. Period.

Elizabeth Moran, Mrs.
Self
San Antonio, TX

Please vote NO to vouchers. This will not benefit the poor students nor students in rural areas. The funds should be used on funding the public schools and teacher pay. The teacher retirees are also concerned that this HB3 will affect their retirement funds. Vote NO!

Eddie Booth
Self
Canton, TX

Dear Honorable Committee members:

Please listen to The Public taxpayer. We have not voted for our tax dollars to fund private enterprise schools, which in large measure are not monitored at all. The majority of Texans do not want vouchers for private schools. Even your tricky wording surveys, calling it school choice, or education savings account program, does not change a pig to a lamb. When the public knows you are talking about vouchers, the majority is adamantly against it.

And passing out $10,000 plus per student, when public school gets less than 2/3 of that??? Why would you not support public schools at the same level? That lack of Public School support makes little sense, unless you really are trying to destroy the Public School system, as some Democrats claim. Please rethink this bill. We don't want vouchers. We did not vote for vouchers. We love our local Public School Districts. We have a say on decisions there through our elected school boards.

Additionally, we do not want you to monkey with our teacher retirement system. It appears that you could destroy that system as well, by opting teacher's payments out. If it ain't broke, don't fix it. (Especially to please your investment firm donors). Just stop it!

NO ON VOUCHERS! NO ON MEDDLING WITH THE TEACHER RETIREMENT SYSTEM!

Kristen Whisenant
Self/family
Dallas, TX

I do not support HB3 and I know it will ONLY hurt home, private, and public school systems.

Melissa Aufieri

Self

Austin, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

- 1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.
 - 2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.
 - 3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.
 - 4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot. This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.
- Thank you

Brenda Bernet, President
Clara Love Elementary PTA
Justin, TX

Please oppose the governor's plan to create a second system of education funding for private school tuition. This system is not a good use of taxpayer funds. Vouchers come with no taxpayer accountability to ensure private schools are providing the free and appropriate education Texas must provide to all children.

I am a taxpayer, home owner, active voter and very involved PTA president at a Title I school in Northwest ISD. We have a great schools in Northwest ISD, and I want it to stay that way.

But the state's actions with vouchers and withholding funds are a gut-punch to our schools. Our kids deserve better.

We have more than 8 million school-age children in Texas. Our state constitution promises a free and appropriate education to all children. We must prioritize a quality education all children, starting with public schools.

A $10,000 voucher is not enough to pay tuition at most private schools. The idea that private and home school kids are worth $10,000, and public school kids are worth $6,100 is unacceptable.

Texas kids deserve better. Our state needs to prioritize an education system where all means all. Texas likes to do things big and be the best, except when it comes to education.

Let's fix that!

Public schools must accept all children regardless of how they show up. Private schools can turn away kids and do not have to provide all the services of public schools.

Those services are necessary to provide a free and appropriate education to all kids. We need services for kids with learning disabilities and other impairments that make it harder for them to learn. Schools need to provide language services to kids whose parents do not speak English at home. It's best for kids to have a trained, certified teacher in the classroom. Our schools do seem safer with a dedicated security officer. Kids benefit and learn best when they are fed, and having breakfast and lunch at school helps make sure this happens. Then there's all-day pre-kindergarten and a massive testing and accountability system.

If these standards are necessary for public schools but not for private or home schools, we need to re-evaluate all the burdens placed on public schools.

I expect our state leaders to prioritize fully funding public education first. Our public schools need an increase in the basic allotment to match inflation and to compensate for all the extra requirements the state has put in place.

Texas kids are precious, and every single one needs you to fight for their right to a free and appropriate public education. A free and exceptional public education would be even better.

Asher Hecht, Rabbi
Chabad RGV
Mcallen, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to

Kimberly Trent

Self

Plano, TX

I beg of you not to do this. This will destroy our public school system. My late husband was a public school teacher for 26 years and a staunch Republican. He heard of this bill prior to his death, but said the Twxas congress was too smart to actually pass it. Please prove him right.

Destiny Varghese

Self

Murphy, TX

I am strongly AGAINST a voucher program. The voucher program will not help more families afford private school. It's a handout for the wealthy families who can already afford private school. It takes funding away from public schools and the large majority of Texas students when we need more funding. $10,000 is more per child than we invest in public schools. It's one of the most irresponsible proposals ever introduced. Please listen to the overwhelming majority of Texas families and do not pass this bill.

Amanda McBrayer

Myself/Homeschool Family of 8 years

Cypress, TX

Good Morning. I hope today is not a day of harshness but rather kindness, peacefulness, and understanding. As a fellow Republican I can appreciate what the governor is trying to achieve. I believe we as citizens should have our say where our tax dollars are spent and into what education our children receive. However, I think this bill will come with strings that will grow over time and the law will be manipulated into what the government thinks is best for our children and no longer what we the parents decide is best for them. The government will slowly use our tax dollars to fit their narrative and as citizens of the state of Texas our voice no longer be heard, because government will destroy what entitlement we have over our children's education. I would prefer the tax dollars for the school system to be reduced. I know as a fellow public school teacher that doesn't help all schools because of the needs of Title one schools. I wish that we had the option of donating our own funds to these organizations without obligation. Again, I ask you to reevaluate what is the long term goal of this law for the state of Texas. If you truly ask the right questions, I think you'll see that this will not be a friendly law in our state's future. I would love for my grandchildren to not be put in the same curriculum as the rest of the state because that is what has happened over time to this law; changes to reduce our ability to choose. Thank you.

Kris Quick

Self

Austin, TX

As a mother of 2 children in public school and a former teacher in a public school: I support our PUBLIC SCHOOLS being fully funded. I oppose HB3. Vote NO to the education savings account program. Save and fully fund our public schools!

Judith De La Farza

Self

Fulshear, TX

I am a Texan parent and educator who opposes HB 3 and any private school vouchers. Our students and teachers deserve fully public funded schools. Tax payer money should be used to fund public schools and should not be given to private schools without any accountability.

Frieda Chapman

Self

Wharton, TX

I am asking you to please FULLY fund public schools. Vouchers may work for some , but as a rural resident, we would not have been able to afford to drive our 4 kids back and forth to a private school out of town, let alone make up the difference that vouchers don't cover. And the nightmare of letting them participate in their extracurricular sports/activities would have be next to impossible going to a school so far away. Also, as a retired teacher, we need those specialists to help our struggling students, such as my precious grandson who has recently been diagnosed with dyslexia. Regular classroom teachers are not trained for that, nor do they have the time with a classroom full of students. These positions will most likely be cut. Private schools can refuse to help these students. I know a family who had 3 children in private school with severe vision issues, and the private school refused to spend money on accommodations for them. The parents had no choice but to pull them out and put them in public school. And guess what? They got the help they needed! This will not happen in private school. Vouchers will most likely be used by a minority of people, but don't the majority of our kids matter? Please use good sense. Please fully fund public schools.

Chaim Lazaroff

Self / Rabbi

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Thank you for support,

Rabbi Chaim Lazaroff

Jodi Cook

Self

Venus, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Genie Middleton

Self

Houston, TX

Vouchers are not what the people of Texas want. If you believe it to be so, put it to a vote. Public money should not be used for private school.

Amanda McKnight

Self / Teacher

Flower Mound, TX

As a career educator, the 2018 Region XI Teacher of the Year, a proud product of Texas public schools, and a parent of two public school teens, I adamantly oppose the use of taxpayer money to fund vouchers or ESAs. A significant raise to the basic allotment would impact more students across our great state, while ESAs will only benefit a select few. Additionally, I believe that vouchers will further segregate our schools, most importantly when it comes to general education students and special education students. Vouchers are a step backward, not forward.

I invite any representatives into my classroom on any day. If you could see the magic that happens in the public school classroom each day, I think you would see the value in public ed. Currently, teachers are being asked to do so much more with so much less, and it's taking some of that magic out while simultaneously hurting those who sacrifice so much for the future of Texas—the educators.

Please fully fund public education. Please support ALL Texas families.

And- if we do end up passing this legislation, make a level playing field. If it's required of a public school, require it of the private school receiving funds as well.

Thank you for making decisions for ALL Texans, not a select few.

Amanda Dunn, Dr.

Self

Magnolia, TX

Whether you support public schools, private schools, or homeschooling, the root of the issue is fiscal responsibility. We have always had school choice, and that should continue. However, the money allotted for education in Texas should support a free and public education available to ALL students. The states that have implemented similar programs have not been able to fund school choice AND other necessary programs. The lack of feasibility has been overshadowed by Governor Abbott's pressure to pass legislation that aligns with his personal agenda. All we ask as constituents is for our elected representatives to consider logic and feasibility over the governor's agenda.

Nancy Glass

Self

Austin, TX

This scheme would drain resources from classrooms, push communities to raise property taxes, and send public money to unaccountable private schools. This is not supported by the majority of your constituents. It would not be good for the students, teachers, parents, and retirees. Public school is for EVERYONE and the voucher program is NOT. Do not let the voucher program pass PLEASE. Do what is best for the State of Texas. Thank you

Stefani Kopenc

Self/freelance writer

N Richland Hills, TX

I'm writing as a Texas taxpayer, proud Texas public school graduate and parent of students educated in Texas' public schools. The Texas Constitution mandates the state educate its students via public schools. HB3 will take money from public schools and give it to the wealthy. Texas ranks near the bottom in per-student education spending. If history repeats itself, the cost will only grow. We have limited tax dollars.

Our teachers deserve a pay raise, our school funding doesn't need to be held hostage and vouchers will benefit only a small fraction of the students you are responsible for educating.

I'm urging you to Please Vote NO on HB3.

Jessica Espiritu
self - CF Manager
Richardson, TX

This is a terrible plan for Texans. It takes money away from all students and gives it to a select few. Even with the lottery for people that make less than your definition of "poverty", families still won't be able to afford it and that money won't go back into the student population. FUND OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS!

Kathryn Ochs
Self
Allen, TX

I strongly oppose Texas HB3.

Chloe Bird
Self
Dallas, TX

As someone who went to public school my entire life, I support funding for public schools and believe it's wholly important. Everyone should have an equal chance at a good education and by putting this house bill forward, which will eradicate many schools and teachers, a dangerous gap in education will form. Kids deserve and need a good education and their background should not matter in that.

Bethany Castro
Self, nonprofit director
Victoria, TX

As a former public school teacher and public school parent, I will answer "yes" when asked if our public schools can do better. However, Education Savings Accounts (ESAs) and taking money away from public education in Texas is not the answer. Please, for the sake of our kids and communities vote NO on HB3 and spend your time crafting a thoughtful, well-rounded plan on how to better public education for ALL Texans.

Lacee Osteen
Self
Houston, TX

I support/promote the school voucher program.

Kim Hardin, Dr.
Self, University Professor
Abilene, TX

A free and appropriate education is a foundational American right. In order to do this well, Texas public schools MUST be appropriately funded.

Joseph Matjjs, Mr.
Self
Brenham, TX

I'm urging all Legislators to vote no on HB 3. Taxpayers should not be paying for private school education.

Erin Oganessian

Self

Frisco, TX

As a resident of Frisco and a mom of two children who will attend public schools here, I strongly oppose HB3. While the intention behind school vouchers is to provide families with more educational choices, this bill ultimately undermines the public education system. There is overwhelming evidence showing voucher programs strip funds away from public schools, lack fiscal and academic accountability, and are used primarily by families with children already enrolled in private school.

These private schools are not held to the same accountability standards as public schools. This lack of oversight can lead to inconsistent educational quality and reduced transparency. Public funds should be invested in strengthening our public schools, ensuring that every child has access to high-quality education, well-trained teachers, and necessary resources.

Amy Vidal

Self

Leander, TX

I strongly oppose school vouchers. This will be undermine public schools which are already SEVERELY underfunded. This program would only allow wealthy families to save money on schools they are already paying for. Please do not approve of these vouchers

Robyn Howard

Self

Waco, TX

Please don't defund our public schools! This voucher scam only benefits those who can already afford private schools. I would rather my property tax dollars fully fund our public schools!

Jeff Irvin, Superintenden

Self

Quinlan, TX

I am opposed to HB3. No vouchers please!

Megan Creydt

self, executive producer

Austin, TX

I am dismayed to see this effort to gut our already underfunded public schools. We're in the bottom 10 of states in public education funding -- do we really want to race to the bottom, at the detriment of our children and of the future of the state? The most patriotic decision here is to invest MORE in public schools for the future of Texas and the country as a whole.

Jessica Kowis

Myself

Conroe, TX

My name is Jessica Kowis and I live in Conroe. I am one of your concerns constituents and an active voter, asking you to stand up for public education in Texas and vote against Senate Bill 2.

I am included in the majority of Texans who do not support a voucher system and am alarmed at the proposed funding for education. This imbalance between public and private funding will further the gap of opportunity for marginalized students in our state and strip away accountability.

We need a well educated workforce in our great state and that begins by investing in our local communities and neighborhood schools. I am asking you to step up for our future and a fully funded public education system and vote against any voucher measures.

Thank you for your time and I will be watching how you vote on this critical issue.

Kind regards,

Jessica Kowis

Emily Payne

Self/Educator

Belton, TX

As a Texas voter and resident, I am against education savings accounts. Aside from ESAs using public funds for private education, the lack of accountability, and private schools' ability to accept or reject students, ESAs will decrease public school funding and lead to even more financial difficulties in ISDs. For every student that is able to use an ESA, money is removed from a public school budget. Money used to fund ESAs is money that could and should be used to fund public education. Currently, many school districts are operating at deficit budgets. In my district, we are having to cut positions including librarians, teachers, and RNs. We are increasing class sizes, cutting career and technology programs, and shrinking administrative and professional learning budgets. We are having to outsource our custodial positions, putting some who have worked decades with the district in unknown futures. I work with teachers who already live paycheck to paycheck, split rent with roommates, and still must work second and third jobs. The future uncertainty, underfunding, lack of job security, and overall lack of appreciation, recognition, and pride in public schools is pushing quality educators into other careers. Students need qualified teachers and school personnel who are invested and come back year after year. Just this year, my school has lost four teachers since the year began, forcing us to consolidate classes or leave classes with long term substitutes. ESAs are one more layer in a system that already seems to be undermining public education when it could be choosing to build it up. Public education will serve almost all of the children of Texas. It could be the best in the nation.

Christopher Kirby

Self- Choir Director/Teacher

Lubbock, TX

Article 7 of the Texas State Constitution states that "it shall be the duty of the Legislature of the State to establish and make suitable provision for the support and maintenance of an efficient system of public free schools".

If our government officials believe that the system of public education is failing, it is their job to fix it, not subsidize private education as a solution. All public funds designated for education should legally only be allowed for public use, not private.

Public educators are required to have certifications and degrees, while private institutions do not have the same expectations. Using public funds through a voucher system to support these less-regulated institutions undermines the expectations of the public in supporting quality education. Private schools also do not have infrastructure to support special populations of students, so parents of students with special needs will be entirely unable to use the school vouchers in the same way as other parents, making the proposed system entirely unfair and biased.

Jacque Fowler
self, retired teacher
Austin, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,
We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

- 1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.
- 2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.
- 3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.
- 4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot. This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.
Thank you!

Juanita Allen
Self
Houston, TX

I am a homeschooling mother of three and I strongly oppose this bill. In fact, I have yet to meet a homeschooler who is not in opposition. Please represent the people of your state well.

Abbie Strunc, Ph.D., Dr.
Self- teacher educator and professor
Montgomery, TX

Personally and professionally, I am opposed to House Bill 3. The proposed educational savings account creates a system of welfare for the wealthy, who already have the means to send their students to the school of their choice. It is unconstitutional to use public, taxpayer funds to send students to faith-based private schools, and violates the Equal Protection clause of the 14th Amendment. Additionally, this proposed structure creates inequitable funding for public schools, removing public funds for public schools and diverts those funds to private entities. Further, there are no options for those Texans who live in rural parts of the state, East Texas, West Texas, Southwest Texas, parts of south Texas, and the panhandle. Limited or no access to other school options renders the point of this bill moot. Legislation of this cost without equal accessibility for all students is yet another violation of the 14th Amendment. HB 3 does not make sense for Texans. A third significant problem with HB 3 is the different accountability systems, or lack of for private schools. Public schools are subject to the state-mandated accountability system. Yet this bill would provide public money to private schools without the same accountability ratings. The impetus for “school choice” is the false narrative of failing public schools, but it’s fine to send millions of public money to private schools without requiring the same accountability structure? Any “research” or credit claiming regarding the efficacy of private schools over public would be fatally flawed and not trustworthy, reliable, or valid.

Another problem with the proposed voucher system is that students with disabilities are not guaranteed admission to private schools, nor are the private schools required to provide services to students with disabilities as they are guaranteed to receive from the local public school. IDEA legislation, first passed in Congress in 1972, assured students with disabilities will be provided services and resources in public schools. Whereas private schools are not held to the same standard or requirements and are unlikely to offer those services for students with disabilities. Public, tax payer funds should not be used to supplement private entities. Public schools are the center of community. They represent the cornerstone of a democracy and the realization of the American dream. As publicly funded, government entities, public schools are required to accept all students, provide a safe and healthy learning environment, and operate with a level of transparency and equity that is not required of private schools. It is not conservative or patriotic to distribute millions and millions of publicly funded, tax payer dollars to private entities. Particularly with many Texans without access to “school choice.” Public funds do not belong with private entities. For these reasons, I do not support HB 3, in any capacity, and I strongly urge Texas House representatives to vote AGAINST it.

Stacy Schochler, Mrs

Myself

Katy, TX

We already have school choice. And this bill only gives money to 100k students out of how many millions of kids in Texas? This is absurd. It also takes away freedom from homeschooling parents. I am a homeschooling parent and I oppose this bill.

Daniel and brocha leah Altman

Starr Family Jewish Day school

San Antonio, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them

Elizabeth Johnson

self

Round Rock, TX

I am a Texan grandparent who opposes HB 3 and any type of private school vouchers. Our kids and teachers deserve high quality, fully public-funded schools. Taxpayer money should support public schools. Taxpayer money should not support religious schools or curricula.

Kylin Lee, Dr.

self, licensed psychologist, mother of two school aged children

Austin, TX

I strongly oppose school vouchers and ESAs. Please fund our public schools appropriately with the money THAT YOU CURRENTLY HAVE.

ERICA Robinson

self

Lubbock, TX

FOR THE SAKE OF OUR CHILDREN, VOTE NO TO HB 3!

Ke'Ana Beadley, Dr.

Self- non profit administrator

Grand Prairie, TX

As a both a product of and a parent of student in Texas public schools I want to say we already have choice when it comes to our kids education. What we rely on our representatives to do is to ensure the value of these schools through adequate funding. The proposal would deeply decrease the already challenged efficacy of our school districts and teachers. Providing less money per student to attend public education while giving funds to private schools that even with the voucher help most families could not afford anyway. The focus of public education should remain on the majority not the few and it is quite evident that the majority of families do not want vouchers.

Judy Ludwig, Ms.

self; retired

Bryan, TX

I appreciate that the Committee on Public Education Hearing regarding HB3 was made available to interested individuals to watch. And that interested individuals could submit comments.

I oppose HB3. Public schools have for too many years been underfunded. I appreciate the comments from the representative from the San Antonio district (I apologize that I did not catch his name). I agree that this issue has been “politicized”. In the last election my district has lost two experienced House Representatives who chose not to run for reelection. I do not know their reasons for not seeking another term, but both, who are Republicans, opposed the private school voucher program. Why would a Representative want to run for reelection if the State’s top elected officials vowed to do all in their power to have that representative defeated in the election? What a loss of the experience and values of those Representatives.

I appreciate Mr. Hinojosa’s comments regarding his grandchildren’s experiences (chaos in that school) in public schools. I appreciate that he and the children’s parents want the best for them and had the resources to find alternate schooling for them. What of that public school that the non-disruptive students transfer from to other schooling options and that original school’s children are “given up on”? Many other committee members brought up other concerns that students not able to go to a private school are “disadvantaged” compared to those in a public school.

I am further concerned how the funding for this program would be sustainable for the future when perhaps the excess state funds are no longer available.

Again, I oppose HB3

Thank you for your attention to my thoughts.

Paula Krog

Self retired teacher/coach

Georgetown, TX

As a retired teacher/coach in Texas, I am against school vouchers. Nothing about this bill convinces me that this will be a good thing for Texas. The bill WILL NOT help underprivileged students! It will only give more $$ to wealthy family’s who don’t need the vouchers. Also, until all private schools who would receive state funds are held to the same standards as public schools, this is a bad bill. It will only weaken our public schools. Private schools should be required to give state mandated tests and provide all services to students that public schools are required to provide (SpEd, 504, etc). PLEASE do not approve this bill AND PLEASE provide the funding our public schools need. Every district in Central Texas and all across Texas are having to make deep budget cuts because the legislature has not given the funds to the school districts that are necessary to make our public schools great!
Vote NO to HB3!

Kelsey Schuenemann

Self - school psychologist

Victoria, TX

Please let us vote. This is an absolutely horrendous idea. No vouchers. Public money to fund public schools so we can actually educate these young scholars to become acceptable members of society. FUND PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Lori Hargrove
self - teacher
Waxahachie, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the “bought”? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Debbie Smith
Self
Austin, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,
We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

- 1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.
- 2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.
- 3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.
- 4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot. This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.
Thank you!

Judy Jensen, Ms
Self/graphic designer
Austin, TX

Texas' future is only as bright as the education Texas children receive—and every child deserves a quality education. Rural and urban, wealthy and poor, housed and unhoused. As a taxpayer, I strongly prefer to support every kid facing any number of challenges. Good strong public schools can aid these children and help them not only with learning, but food, housing, etc in a way that private schools will not. Bluntly, the rich will always take care of their own and they don't require additional assistance from taxpayers. If there is funding for education, please invest it in the Texas public school system. These students are Texas' next generation of skilled workers. Do what you can to ensure they have the very best foundation so that Texas will have the very best workforce. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Enan Francis, Rabbi
Torah day School of Houston Texas
Houston, TX

This is about protecting our children, preserving American values, and ensuring that education remains a foundation for success—not division.

Right now, classrooms are being used to push political narratives that distort history, undermine merit, and sow division among students. SB3 stops this by keeping schools accountable, ensuring curriculum transparency, and banning ideological indoctrination. Parents deserve the right to know what their children are being taught and to have a say in their education.

Casey Jones Educator
Slaton, TX

I know that I am not as educated on this as I should be since I am an educator myself and have been for 23 years now, but I do have multiple concerns. If we give vouchers for kids to attend private schools, how are they accountable like public schools are? If public money is going to go towards students attending a private school they should be held accountable. Does this apply to families who want to home-school? If so what do the funds go towards and how can you guarantee that those funds will be spent on education instead of other things? Also to go along with that, as educators be it at a private or public school, we are required to have a college degree and a teacher certification. Are parents who home-school going to be required to have a college degree as well as a certification? My last and most troubling concern is about how is this going to affect the TRS retirement system. For those of you who are sitting in that room today make a whole lot more than educators do and have an awesome retirement system. Teachers are highly underpaid, to begin with, which means our retirement will definitely not going to be as high as it should be. How is this going to affect the TRS retirement system? If it affects the amount I get in retirement who is going to be responsible that I can retire without having to hold two or more jobs just to make ends meet? Are you going to fund my retirement? Are you going to take care of me and my family? I highly doubt you will so why don't you 100% be positive that it will not affect us instead of just estimating what or how it will affect us.

Yosef Marrus
Starr Family Jewish Day School
Boerne, TX

HBS - Please, please pass this legislation! As a father of 6 Texans who all went to private Jewish day school, due to religious reasons, and as an administrator of a private jewish school for the last 28 years, we have so many families that cant afford to give their children the type of education they need and deserve. The families of our school all pay taxes and are also religious in nature and need to have their children in a Jewish/religious environment. This legislation would make a world of a difference. Thank you

Dara Chambers

self

Austin, TX

As a Texas taxpayer, I already pay high property taxes to fund public schools, yet our schools remain underfunded. Now, school vouchers threaten to take even more money away, further harming the system my family and so many others rely on. My children depend on special education services in public school—services that are already stretched thin due to budget constraints. If vouchers divert funding to private schools that are not required to provide these services, what happens to the students left behind?

Public schools must serve all children, including those with special needs, yet vouchers would drain resources while private schools pick and choose their students. They are not held to the same accountability standards, nor are they required to accommodate every child. Meanwhile, public schools would be forced to cut programs, increase class sizes, and struggle even more to provide quality special education services.

Instead of sending taxpayer money to private institutions that are not accessible to everyone, Texas should fully fund its public schools, pay teachers what they deserve, and ensure that every child—regardless of ability or background—has access to a quality education. Vouchers are not about choice; they are about dismantling the public education system at the expense of families like mine.

Additionally, vouchers primarily benefit families who can already afford private school tuition, as the voucher amount is rarely enough to cover full tuition, making private school inaccessible for lower-income families. In rural areas, where private schools are scarce or nonexistent, vouchers offer no real choice at all—just less funding for the local public school, which may be the only viable option for families. Instead of investing in a system that helps only a few, Texas should commit to strengthening public schools for all.

Jodi Young

Self

Dripping Springs, TX

Parents currently have a choice in school options. HB 3 doesn't establish choice, it subsidizes their choice. I do not support taxpayer dollars to fund private school and/or home schooling. The downstream effects have a negative impact on our current public education system and inherently will create a financial and class segregation. Your bill benefits those already in private school and not the majority of children in Texas.

Vicki Grabin Evans

Self as a Retired Educator

Richmond, TX

As a retired educator, I believe this bill is not in the best interest of public schools, private schools and homeschoolers. It believe it will eventually cost the taxpayers more money than our current situation. Many parents of private schools receive scholarships to cover tuition. Homeschoolers also don't need the states help to do a good job homeschooling. Please vote against this bill.

Stephen Chvatal, Retired

Residence

Tomball, TX

SB2 and HB3 will enable the parents to be in charge of their children not administrators.

Angela Clawson

Self

Plainview, TX

I believe this bill to allow charter and private school funding over regular public education is a horrible mistake. Teachers are already beaten down. Why would you want to make it worse? No one wants to teach anymore! Lack of public school funds only hurts rural communities. Why don't these organizations abide by the standards public schools must. Yet they get more funding, pay teachers less, and no STAAR testing! You are only hurting the majority of Texas children and teachers who love what they do. Please do not pass this bill. Get rid of testing that costs millions of dollars! Spend it on the majority of children! The majority of tax payers cannot afford private school or even have a choice of a charter or private school.

Thank you for listening to my concerns.

beverly deutsch

self

austin, TX

I vote NO. I also wanted to add: THE TEXAS CONSTITUTION

ARTICLE 7. EDUCATION

Sec. 1. SUPPORT AND MAINTENANCE OF SYSTEM OF PUBLIC FREE SCHOOLS. A general diffusion of knowledge being essential to the preservation of the liberties and rights of the people, it shall be the duty of the Legislature of the State to establish and make suitable provision for the support and maintenance of an efficient system of public free schools.

(Feb. 15, 1876.)

Kelley McGee, Mrs.

Self

Denton, TX

Educational savings accounts are NOT what Texans want for our students. I am an active voter and I do not support this bill for setting up education savings accounts. There has ALWAYS been choice. As a child, my mother chose for me to attend homeschool and private school. I later attended public schools and became an educator. My mom had a choice 30 years ago; just as I have a choice to send my kids to public schools now. I have served Texas students for 15 years. It has been very disappointing to see students caught in the crosshairs of refusing to raise the basic allotment. Raising the basic allotment will give all teachers raises, fund mandates like school security, prek, transportation and special education. This is our legislatures time to stand up for our students and fund public education. Texas public schools need a $1,400 increase in the basic allotment. This is key in ensuring we have support for state priorities and supporting all students. Do not pass or establish education saving accounts. There is no benefit to a majority of the 5.5 million students in the state. Our state constitution states we provide a free public education to ALL Texas students. It is your responsibility to fund public education. We do not need to privatize our children's learning for corporate advancement. It is very disappointing that this is even being considered after seeing how poorly it is going in other states. The other states are failing their children. Our children should come first. Do not pass HB3 to establish education savings accounts. Find our public schools!

Christina Misite

Self

San Antonio, TX

I oppose the establishment of an education savings account/school vouchers. This harms funding for public schools.

Melissa Neal

Self

Leander, TX

I am urging you to vote NO on SB2 School Vouchers. I believe that siphoning funds from public schools, where the majority of students are educated, to private schools, that are not regulated nor mandated to provide the services to ALL students, is unconscionable. I also believe that not providing the taxpayers the opportunity to vote on this issue is inexcusable.

Our public schools have been underfunded since 2019. They have been steadfastly educating our students — regardless of culture, religious affiliation, gender, and more — while being undermined by our state government that refuses to prioritize those same students.

It is abundantly clear that SB2 is not in the best interest of students nor the State of Texas as a whole.

Leander ISD, where my child is a student, recently informed the district residents that they are making difficult choices due to the upcoming financial crisis.

The State Legislature left $4.5 billion that was appropriated for public education unused last session. That had an impact.

Leander ISD is discontinuing its IB Programme, making staffing cuts, cutting other programs for our most vulnerable students, all while trying to maintain excellence in education. My child has an IEP and these cuts directly impact the quality of services that she needs to be successful in the classroom.

Again, I urge you to stand with our students, our public schools, and parents to ensure that the State of Texas remains a place where ALL students can receive a quality education. Please vote NO on SB2 School Vouchers.

Sincerely,
Melissa Neal

Kathryn Staph

Self/Teacher

Conroe, TX

I am a mother, homeowner, teacher. After 25 years in the private sector I chose to fulfill my lifelong dream of being a teacher. I have 10 years working with passion to advocate and push for our students growth and success as they take the next stage in life after high school. I have for 10 years watched this administration degrade and dismiss the voices of the teachers. This is the hardest job I have ever had, and something many of you will never acknowledge. I am making the same as a 10 year veteran teacher as I was making 20 years ago in the private sector. I should have enough desks in a classroom for the students, but I don't, I should have supplies for students not purchased by me, but I don't, I should have incentives provided for the students that I don't pay for, but I don't. You have failed time and again to provide adequately for the public education system, put unrelenting stresses on school systems and then complain when your goals are not achieved(although that was the plan, right).as a tax payer I oppose any voucher plan that uses my tax money for anything but public education.

Do you want to fix public education? Here are some suggestions 1. Ban all cell phones at all times(it has done more damage to these kids both in the ability to retain information, stamina, and the behavior issues that have become common place.2. Talk to teachers, stop changing curriculum for the sake of spending money. 3 Get rid of STAAR as it is a bloated ridiculous test that we spend a fortune only to have to undue what was taught in junior and seniors to prepare them for college. 4. Get rid of the credit recovery system, it has too many of our kids, they don't have to do the work and can go online a complete in two weeks(without learning anything) what we spend all semester doing. What type of message does that send?It's a waste of taxpayer money for students to be taught in a classroom and then repeat in an online program that they cheat their way through that we pay for! Also stop lying to your constituents, half the states do not have a voucher program equal to what you are trying to pass, 10 do and they all say the same thing at the end of the day, the money is going to people who already made the choice to send their children to private school. It is a scam to give more back to wealthy and hurt the public education system that you are supposed to be advocating for, that you are supposed to be fighting for. Do your job!

Andrea Sanchez

Self

Cedar Park, TX

I am against the voucher program as it will take money away from our children and ruin the future of Texas. Can y'all please stop destroying our state?

Cheryl Hassell

self, retired teacher

Keller, TX

NO VOUCHERS: As a former teacher, having taught in public, private, and charter schools, I have seen the strengths and weaknesses of each. As a taxpayer, I don't want my taxes going to private schools and do not want to increase taxes to pay for current private school kids to go to their schools at all, or for home school parents to get tax money. If you want to make a curriculum available to homeschoolers free of charge (using my taxes), then ok, but no, do not create a welfare program in the guise of helping parents homeschool. As a US and Texas citizen, I want our leaders to respect the separation of church and state, and to make any agency receiving my taxes to be accountable to that and all laws, including Ferpa, IDEA, and civil rights.

ESAs: If you want to allow parents to establish accounts specifically for education, ok, but they can do that now, without any added fees or government intervention. Why involve government in the money management of a household - not at all conservative. If you want to use my taxes for any of this? Hell, no. We do not use taxes to fund a 401K or a 529, so why would anyone advocate using taxes for personal savings for families? You can advocate for savings. You can offer a delayed or tax-free deposit to an account as those two examples do. But you have ZERO real reasons to use tax dollars for ANY of that.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS: Our schools, which are under gop control and have been for decades (so fix them instead of complaining about them), deserve to have the issues uncovered and addressed, for the students and for the teachers. The environment has changed, priorities of families and attitudes have shifted dramatically, as have the profiles of students. If you want to talk about that, having seen all three, I would be happy to. But don't use the need for reform, which is needed in pretty much every organization over time, to drain our schools and add more pressure to them. Don't use my taxes to create more bureaucracy. Do not use my taxes to fund schools that are not available to every student.

No. Just no.

Bruce Smith, III

self Education

Wortham, TX

I strongly oppose HB3, just like the overwhelming majority of Texas voters. ESAs should not be prioritized with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1,000 to make a meaningful difference for the more than five million students in Texas.

Your vote on this will not be forgotten. Will you stand with the majority of your constituents and reject this bill, or will you follow the billionaire-driven agenda? Will your legacy reflect service to children, teachers, communities, and taxpayers, or will you be remembered as one who was "bought"?

Now is the time to stand for the people you represent. Will you show the courage to push back against this unjust initiative, or will you allow fear to dictate your service? These words may be direct, but they echo the voices and concerns of your voters—your people.

VOTE NO on any ESA or voucher bill! Our children, teachers, and communities deserve leaders with integrity who will fight for ALL students. Your decision on this bill will be remembered at the next election.

Stephanie Vidikan

Self

Dallas, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Virginia Jackson

self/business owner

Dallas, TX

The government must fund all public schools and not divert funds to private institutions. If public schools are not up to par, it does not make sense to abandon them and pull funding away to alternatives... public schools will only get worse. Rather, it is the government's job to prioritize helping public schools be well-funded, well-run and successful in educating our children, no matter their economic class or where they live. This bill does just the opposite - PLEASE VOTE NO!!!

Michelle Smith

self Higher Ed

Wortham, TX

I strongly oppose HB3, just like the overwhelming majority of Texas voters. ESAs should not be prioritized with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1,000 to make a meaningful difference for the more than five million students in Texas.

Your vote on this will not be forgotten. Will you stand with the majority of your constituents and reject this bill, or will you follow the billionaire-driven agenda? Will your legacy reflect service to children, teachers, communities, and taxpayers, or will you be remembered as one who was "bought"?

Now is the time to stand for the people you represent. Will you show the courage to push back against this unjust initiative, or will you allow fear to dictate your service? These words may be direct, but they echo the voices and concerns of your voters—your people.

VOTE NO on any ESA or voucher bill! Our children, teachers, and communities deserve leaders with integrity who will fight for ALL students. Your decision on this bill will be remembered at the next election.

Lynea Sander

Self - homeschool mother

Tomball, TX

I am a 2nd generation Texas homeschooler and I oppose this bill. Government money for homeschoolers is a slippery slope to government control of homeschooling - all of us, not just those who participate in the ESA. My family has been in Texas since 1846 and the vast majority of us have remained here due to our relatively conservative values and love of freedom. Homeschooling in Texas is currently remarkably free from any government intrusion or surveillance and it needs to stay that way. Additionally, this is NOT a conservative bill in any form or fashion and Republicans who claim to be in favor of limited government should NOT be voting to increase the size of the government. I know many, if not all, of you have received a large response from the homeschool communities in your districts. Please listen to your constituents and vote accordingly.

Allison Craig
Public Educator
Lewisville, TX

Please vote No for vouchers. As a voting Republican, I do not see this bill as fair and equal. Public school children don't receive $10000 per student. Public schools have way more mandates and rules than private sector schools. This bill only serves very few students, not the majority. Don't cripple our public education system.

I am a public educator. My child is a public education student. She has had the most amazing teachers and school experiences. She is at the top of her class at a competitive North Texas public high school. I know she will be able to do amazing things due to her incredible teachers.

Vote No for vouchers!!

Rita Ramseur
Self
Georgetown, TX

Please do not vote for this bill. Public schools are the best place for education of all children to learn. These classrooms are controlled and overseen by state officials so quality can be assured. Private schools should not receive state funds no matter what terms are used to make it sound okay, ESA or vouchers or gifts. Please keep state money in the public schools and make the best choices for public education you can. Make public education the best you can with oversight and funding.

Mary Neal
Self; retired.
Spicewood, TX

I am vehemently opposed to the school voucher initiative. This initiative will not help those who need it the most, and will further tap into an already underfunded public school system!!

Holly Moore, Dr.
Self
Spring, TX

As an educator with three degrees in education, a public education background, experience in P-12 and higher education, and most importantly the mother of two children currently in public schools, I beg this committee to reconsider education savings accounts. As a former special education teacher and mother to a twice exceptional child, I cannot fathom how a state could allow public funds to be used towards education in the private sector that does not offer the bare minimum in protections to our most vulnerable and high need students. Furthermore, if there is a sincere belief that private schools offer a better education, particularly due to smaller class sizes and a lack of state testing, then why not consider offering public schools those same options? How are we creating an equitable policy if we know the majority of counties do not have private schools? I sincerely hope those on the committee will listen to the cries of public school families, staff, and administrators who overwhelmingly reject this plan to divert public funds away from public schools.

With thanks and hope,
Dr. Holly Tetreault Moore

Elizabeth Jackson
Self
Lubbock, TX

Texans have always had school choice. We don't want govt control of our homeschool or private school. We would rather you stop taking our money than "save" it for us. Stop funding TEA and STAAR. Abolish TEA. Control of local schools needs to be local only. Deport illegals and class size will resolve to normal levels again. Citizens only. Local control only.

Micaela Serven

Self

Cypress, TX

I was homeschooled here in Texas and am now homeschooling my own children. I'm opposed to bill SB-3; while the money is quite an incentive, especially for those children who could greatly benefit from it, it comes attached to strings that goes against the freedom we currently enjoy as homeschoolers.

Victoria Lara

Self / Account Manager

Kyle, TX

Families already have a choice for their children's education. Having sent my daughter to a public charter school for 3 years and moving her to traditional public school this year I am fully aware of choice. She has flourished at her new school both academically and socially. The overall environment and opportunities she is being given at her traditional public school is far beyond what she had available at the charter. I can only imagine a private school being similar in nature to the charter in that there is more autonomy to structure schooling as they decide. We need a well rounded, educated society for our future. Taking funds from one to give to another is not how we get there.

Chris Chambers, Mr

Self

Tyler, TX

Vote NO! We need good public schools for 99 percent. And the rich don't need addition money to pay for their children.

Becky Sternberg, Mrs

Self

Dallas, TX

Please pass this bill

Jennifer Hinds

Self

Abilene, TX

HB 3 and the school voucher program creates an inequitable environment for the millions of students in Texas. Public schools educate students from all backgrounds, ethnicities, developmental backgrounds, and many students with a wide array of special needs. Tax dollars should not be used in the name of choice; school choice already exists.

Many school districts have adopted deficit budgets; not because we are overspending or poor managers of funds, but because of a broken public education funding system.

Public schools have not received a funding increase since 2019. Our current basic allotment per pupil is $6,160.00. (61% of the proposed voucher amount per student). Through unfunded mandates from state and federal governments, inflation, and even a pandemic, public schools have continued to educate the students in our communities while receiving no help to do so.

The time is now for our Government officials to make this right for the millions of students, no matter their background, who deserve better. For our Teachers who deserve better. For the Future of Texas.

The Texas Constitution Article 7:

A general diffusion of knowledge being essential to the preservation of the liberties and rights of the people, it shall be the duty of the Legislature of the State to establish and make suitable provision for the support and maintenance of an efficient system of PUBLIC FREE schools.

Kelly Buchanan

Self

DENISON, TX

Vouchers for "school choice" is a bad plan that will negatively affect all Texans. This plan has been shot down numerous times by lawmakers because of the harm it will cause their constituents. Greg Abbott is trying to force this down our throats so that he can destabilize Texas schools at the behest of rich donors. He threatened lawmakers who didn't vote for this last time to fund their opponents in their next election. His actions are antithetical to the spirit of democracy.

The voucher program is essentially a hand out to rich families who already have children in private schools. I don't want my tax dollars being spent on a hand out to the wealthy. Parents have complete school choice currently. They just need to pay for their choices. Republicans hate welfare until it comes to the rich.

It should be obvious that a well educated population is one of the best ways we can improve society. Texas children deserve to be educated and have all the opportunities and experiences a good education brings. Data shows that education is one of the most significant factors in whether people vote republican, so maybe undermining public education is really a way to create more republican voters.

Judith Bortnem, Mrs

Self

Lantana, TX

I am absolutely against funding, private schools. If people want to send their children to private schools, fine. But they should not be rewarded by any extra monies. I think we would do well by providing more money and support to public schools. That will benefit the majority of students and teachers. Rich students will still be going to private school, only now we will be helping to pay for it and that is simply wrong. I have many teacher, friends, school, counselor friends, and friends who are administrators in public schools. Not one of them think that school vouchers is a good idea. They are 100% opposed to it.

Kathryn Patterson

Self

Dallas, TX

I am strongly against HB 3. Texas needs to fund its public schools so every child in Texas has the opportunity to receive a high quality education. HB 3 siphons much needed money away from public education. Thank you for your consideration of my view.

Veronica Viner

Myself

San Antonio, TX

I do not agree with the school voucher program. I do not want my tax money going to pay for private schools. All the children in the state need to have access to great education. This voucher program has not proven successful in other states.

Monika Bustamante

Self/Marketing

AUSTIN, TX

"School choice" is not supported by data and isn't supported by Texans! We've told you five times before--we want you to FIX recapture, pay teachers appropriately, improve funding for schools and especially SPED, and FORGET ABOUT VOUCHERS, aka "school choice."

Matthew Alan Taylor

Self

Granbury, TX

This is a program that only helps a select few of the whole. It's a tax break for the rich. I will not stand for the education of my children to be diminished cause the rich want to hord more money. Do not put the wants of a few over the needs of the many

Janani Chandrasekaran

Self

Leander, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

- 1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.
- 2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.
- 3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.
- 4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot. This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.
Thank you!

Susan Rushing

self

Nacogdoches, TX

Please vote no on HB3—the rural areas of Texas need to keep well-funded public schools!

Jacque Morris

TRA

Dallas, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the “bought”? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Mike Armand

Self

Nacogdoches, TX

I want you to adequately fund public schools and not use it tax monetary to subsidize the private school tuition of people who can already afford it. Private schools can select their students and expell students while public schools serve all.

Cathy Wilson

Public

Austin, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

- 1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.
- 2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.
- 3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.
- 4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot. This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.
Thank you!

Lisa Marchese

AISD

Austin, TX

Public funds should be used to fund public schools, NOT private schools. Vouchers are a subsidy for wealthy families who already attend private school. THATS it. Texas has 5.5 million public school students, and that money should be used to fully fund THEIR schools. This is non partisan, the majority of small, Republican leaning rural communities don't have a private school option. They need their public schools fully funded!

Shelley Barker

Self

Buda, TX

Please don't pass this bill.

Jeff Catlin

self

Arlington, TX

NO to the Governor's voucher scam! Welfare for the rich and for wealth transfer from tax payers and public schools to private schools and the wealthy

Andrew Hung

self / Applications Engineer

Houston, TX

Stop trying to defund public education. Diverting funding into vouchers is simply a clandestine way of funneling money from have-nots to the haves.

Lawrence Atkinson
Self - Education Professional
Leander, TX

As a 15-year veteran teacher, now working with districts across Texas, and a parent of two children in Leander ISD, I strongly oppose HB3. This bill does not address the real issues in public education—funding shortages, overcrowded classrooms, and teacher retention. Instead, it prioritizes private school stipends, benefiting wealthy families while draining resources from public schools.

Voucher programs in other states have overwhelmingly served higher-income families rather than low-income students. In Florida, 44% of new voucher recipients came from households earning over $120,000 annually, while only 30% were from families making under $55,000. Arizona saw over half of its voucher funds go to students from the wealthiest ZIP codes, many of whom had never attended public schools. Texas is poised to repeat these inequities, using taxpayer dollars to subsidize private education for those who can already afford it.

Public opinion is clear—Texans oppose these policies. A recent poll found that 65% of voters reject private school vouchers, and 82% agree they do not provide true "school choice" since private schools control admissions. Additionally, 85% of Texans recognize that proposed voucher amounts would not cover private school tuition, leaving middle- and lower-income families without real access.

Meanwhile, our public schools continue to struggle under inadequate funding. Instead of diverting funds to unaccountable private institutions, we must invest in higher teacher salaries, mental health resources, and classroom improvements that benefit all students.

HB3 is not about choice—it's about shifting public dollars into private hands at the expense of Texas children. I urge lawmakers to reject this bill and commit to real solutions that strengthen our public schools, ensuring every child has access to a high-quality education, regardless of income or ZIP code.

Lisa Moreno
Self
New braunfels, TX

Our children should not have to suffer without the plans set in place for their education. Not all students learn the same and removing IEP will have a major impact on all students, parents and teachers.

Davina Levin
Starr
San Antonio, TX

Please pass this bill!

Madison Coffelt
constituent
Spicewood, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. My tax dollars should not fund private schools.

Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda?

Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"?

Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will ALL remember how you vote on this bill.

Stefanie Auter
Self
Plano, TX

To call this an education savings account program is a misnomer. This is a reallocation of public funds to private citizens. We have school choice; parents are able to choose whether to send their children to public school, private school, homeschool, or charter. Using taxpayer funds to pay for certain children to go to private school is unconscionable. All polling shows that taxpayers do not want this; the only people who do want this have ties to private and charter schools and personally benefit from the defunding of public schools.

Amanda Cortez
Self
Kyle, TX
Opposed

Jenny McGuire, mrs
self
Georgetown, TX

I want my representative to vote NO on House Bill 3. I don't believe our public school system should subsidize private school education. That would just be giving more money to the rich who can already afford private schools for their kids. Public school teachers are already paid less and have fewer resources to work with. Don't take more away from them. Our kids that go to public schools will be the ones to suffer while the rich get their children's private education subsidized. Vote NO!

Rebekah Turner
Self, homeschooling mom
Cypress, TX

I am a homeschooler of four children, and I oppose this bill.

Joan Hicks
Self
Argyle, TX

I am Against HB 3! I am Against school vouchers and I want Public Schools FULLY FUNDED! Stop withholding money from Public School Districts and holding Public School Districts hostage until you get your school voucher agenda passed! FUND Our Public Schools! You have the money. Just do it!

Melissa Armstrong
Self - school counselor
LUBBOCK, TX

As a public school counselor, my job is to advocate for ALL children. I believe that there has always been school choice - parents have been able to choose whether to send their scholar to public school, private school, or choose the homeschool option. Every child is entitled to a Free and Appropriate Public Education. Funding private school with taxpayer dollars will reduce the increase in the amount allocated per public student. This will in turn affect the "Appropriate" part of FAPE. Does appropriate simply equal adequate or even less than?

It is misleading to parents to infer that with this money that their child would be able to attend private school. Private schools have always been considered to be "elite," and will continue to maintain that status by raising their tuition rates to keep out the "undesirables." In addition, there are no testing standards or teacher certification requirements for accountability purposes.

If the public education system collapses, will we then simply have hundreds of thousands of children who are unable to read, write, or do basic math? Please vote NO to HB3.

Sincerely,

Melissa Armstrong
School Counselor

Laura Michaelides
Self
Houston, TX

I strongly oppose HB3. Public school funds should remain in the public schools. This is at its root an unfair idea: and it's telling that the amount of money suggested is not enough to send a child to private schools for a year- so this bill helps only the top tier of earners in this state. We do not need to fund private school for this sector.

Our public schools need more funding, for smaller class sizes, better teachers, and social workers to deal with the all of the problems so many children face.

Do the fair thing- axe this bill. Thank you.

Julie Richard
PTA, self, Texas children and communities
Richardson, TX

No to vouchers and esa. Fully fund public schools!

Stephanie Martin

Self/ Teacher

Waller, TX

I am writing urging you to strongly oppose the education savings account program.

Allowing funds to go to religious schools through school choice programs violates the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment and undermines the separation of church and state. It also weakens public education by diverting resources away from schools that serve all students, deepening inequality in the system.

Religious schools receiving public funds also lack accountability as they are not required to follow standardized curricula, testing, or teacher certification requirements, leading to inconsistent educational quality.

Public funds should be used to strengthen public schools, not to subsidize private religious institutions that are unregulated, exclusive, and in conflict with constitutional principles.

Please take any action to ensure this injustice does not take place.

Thank you

Tina Kotrla

Self/professor

Houston, TX

Public schools and all students need the money that's going into the voucher system. Our public schools are in dire need of financial assistance. This is the future of our country we are talking about. Please vote against the voucher system and provide public schools with the financial assistance they so badly need.

Jessica Taylor

Self

Pflugerville, TX

I OPPOSE this bill. We need to invest MORE in public schools, not privatize the future of Texas. Strongly oppose this bill!

Rose Rapp

Self retired

Driftwood, TX

I am strongly against school vouchers

Melissa Elliott

self

Leander, TX

Please vote NO on HB3. As a mother and parent to a child in Leander ISD, I am appalled by the direction our representatives are headed. The state should be funding our public education system and not crippling it. This school voucher idea is not new and is being used in other states - and it's not going well. We should be focusing on funding out public education systems and supporting our students, teachers, and staff. My school district is having to drop educational programs (like IB) and lay off teachers already. Passing school vouchers will only make these problems worse. If you care at all about Texans or about our children, please vote no to this bill. Ask our governor to release the funding that was already allotted for public schools and increase the allotment per student during this legislative session. (Note, I am not a 'paid actor'. I am a registered voter in Williamson County who is fighting for my child's future).

Casey Holley
Self- state employee
Houston, TX

I oppose the establishment of an education savings account program proposed by HB 3 on the basis that a quality education should not be met with a financial barrier. A large majority of our students will be left behind educationally due to the discrepancy of funds provided to teachers' classrooms that are part of this program and those who are not. This bill would have us forget about educating children with special needs and those who parents don't have cash lined pockets. It's wrong.

Leah Smith
Self
Austin, TX

Dear Education committee

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the use of vouchers and Education Savings Accounts (ESAs) as a means of funding education. These programs divert crucial resources away from public schools, undermining their ability to serve all students equitably.

I respectfully request the following changes to improve the funding structure for education:

1. Increase the Basic Allotment to $7,500: The current funding allocation is insufficient to meet the needs of students and educators. Raising the basic allotment to $7,500 would better support our schools and allow for more equitable access to quality education.
2. Determine Funding by Enrollment, Not Attendance: Funding should be based on student enrollment rather than attendance. This would provide more consistent and predictable funding for schools, allowing them to plan and allocate resources effectively, even in times of fluctuating attendance.
3. Tie Funding to Inflation: Education funding should be adjusted annually based on inflation rates. This would ensure that the value of the funding keeps pace with the rising costs of education, maintaining its purchasing power over time.
4. Ensure Funding for All Current and Future Mandates: All current and future state or federal mandates should be fully funded to avoid placing additional burdens on schools. This would ensure that schools can comply with legal requirements without sacrificing other essential services.

I hope you will consider these requests as part of ongoing efforts to improve the education system. Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

Sincerely,

Joshua Euton
self and Financial Analyst
San Antonio, TX

Please do NOT pass HB 3 because it will hurt my 3 kids that attend public schools, and have special education services provided in school. If HB3 passes, schools will lose funding and one of the first budget items school districts cut is special education funding. I do not have the money to hire a tutor to teach my dyslexic 4th grader how to read and write correctly!

Tonya Dunn

Self-retired 33 year Texas Public School Educato

Lubbock, TX

I support public education. Public education is provided free of charge to all students regardless of any barriers students may have. Our public education system is not elitist, nor should it be. Our public schools can provide the education all Texas students need and deserve if public education were to be fully funded instead of money being set aside to create a caste system in Texas. To know that an out-of-state megadonor is behind this push shows that no Texas students are not at the center of this, but money, as well as political gerrymandering, are behind this.

Texas Public schools and Texas Public educators can and will get the job done. Please vote against establishing an education savings account program. Please create a bill that fully funds Texas Public schools.

Stacey Mcgee

Self

Allen, TX

This bill is not needed as parents already have school choice in Texas. This bill is redundant. Why is Texas willing to fund Christian-based private schools over its public school system? An educated society is meaningful and benefits everyone. Texas should fill fund public schools and not send tax payer money to religious schools.

Cheryl Doblado

Self

Waxahachie, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

April Hilland

My granddaughter and myself

Leander, TX

I am against the establishment of private school vouchers. I am the mother of two grown children. One of them needed to attend private school and the other we kept in public school. At no time did we expect to receive government subsidies in the form of school vouchers for our daughter who was attending a private school. I feel that it would be stealing from the public school system.

Private school vouchers will only make it easier for the wealthy to pay the tuition, a bonus check, if you will. If parents wish to put their children into a private school, that is their choice to pay the extra money in order to attain that level of education. Public schools will suffer if the private school vouchers are implemented. This disparity in funding will result in a greater gap of income inequality and opportunity for our children.

I now have a granddaughter in public school, and I am very concerned about her education, especially if vouchers have passed and more money isn't allocated for public school students.

As a registered voter, and someone with skin in the game, I implore you to allocate more money per student to the public school systems vs implementing the private school voucher program. It gives an unfair advantage to the wealthy and short changes, our children in public schools.

Thank you for listening.... And I hope you really are listening and doing the best for ALL children in the state of Texas.

Sincerely,

April Hilland

Joshua Mings, MR
Wise County Homeschool families
Decatur, TX

What freedoms does this bill provide that we do not already have? Your answer will reveal that it is not this bill that is needed but reform or removal of other burdens on taxpayers and citizens. As a homeschool father of 5, I ask you sincerely not to support this school choice bill. Please put the effort into eliminating property tax and overhauling the bureaucracy that has added cost to education agencies.

I implore you to consider what this bill will do. You know this is going to create more bureaucracy. How could it not? You know this is going to increase the regulatory power of the comptroller. How could it not? You know this is going to infiltrate the homeschool community, setting a precedent for approved expenses. How could it not? You know it increases government involvement in education. Again, how could it not?

The issue is, and started with, the perception that students can't switch to a different public school. In Texas, students can go to a different public school, even out of their district. Other school options? Any public school family who decides to leave public school is able to choose the public or private school they want or homeschool. Is it a hard decision? Does it mean sacrifice? It is and does, regardless of income. We all agree that public schools need to be fixed, so let's start there.

Ultimately, Texans already have choices. We already have a choice about how we educate our children and where we educate them.

'School choice' may be on the GOP platform, but SB2/HB3 is not what we in Wise County want.

I would like nothing more than to see the House vote against this bill. Vote against it and deliver bills that protect homeschool families from bills like this. Modifying the bill is caving to interests outside this county, this state, this country, and steals any amount of education freedom we have. So I ask again, what freedom would this bill provide that we don't already have?

Please represent us and vote against this bill that corrupts the values of the freedoms we hold dear.

Sincerely and with much respect,
Josh Mings and family

Janet Brown
Self
Belton, TX

For School Choice through education savings account program - 100%. Thank you for bringing this to Texas families!

Barbara Hamby Citizen
San Antonio, TX

I am a product of private schools, from first grade to senior in high school. My children went to public schools. I wholly oppose MY TAX DOLLARS going to vouchers for private schools. It's flat out wrong and un American. Please vote NO on vouchers!

Amy Butler
Self
The Woodlands, TX

I don't want vouchers. I want you to fully fund public schools and keep public funds for public schools only.

Susan Necessary

Self

Tyler, TX

I am vehemently opposed to this bill. As a Catholic, the wife of a former Catholic school teacher and mother of two Catholic school graduates, I very firmly oppose the use of taxpayer funds for private schools. Our money should go to support and strengthen public schools and to provide raises for public school teachers. Public schools are the backbone of Texas. Private schools are a choice. Let the parents making that choice support those schools. Private schools are not required to educate every child; they can, and do, pick and choose. Public schools are for EVERY child. That's where taxpayer money should go. NO PUBLIC NONEY FOR PRIVATE SCHOOLS!

Tracy Figlan

self

Leander, TX

I am against the school voucher bill HB3. As a property owner who pays taxes and who has no children, I want my taxes to go back into the public ISD. I attended public schools from K-12th, had a great experience. Communities need to be supported. Communities include residents of all walks of life: socioeconomic status, religion, color. I'm listening to the live hearing and I've got to say, the representatives who are for this bill are unable to answer questions that are asked. They answer with a general reply or unable to answer. They clearly aren't familiar with the bill they are supporting. Those who want to send their children to private schools, they can take out a loan from a bank. Thank you.

Jordan Rasco, Mrs.

Self/ Teacher

Wolfforth, TX

I strongly disagree with this bill's approach to school funding and teacher compensation. It does not adequately address the root causes of educational inequality and may disproportionately impact underfunded districts, particularly rural communities. Additionally, it fails to consider the unique needs of students requiring special services, potentially widening the gap in support for these vulnerable groups.

Joanne Gougler

self

College Station, TX

I am opposed to the establishment of education savings account UNLESS Texas voters are allowed to vote for this program. If voters approve educational savings accounts, then the legislature can work to enact this program. If voters do not approve establishing educational savings accounts, then the Governor and legislature should not force it through. My research into many "school choice" programs in states like Indiana, Arizona and Florida shows that the majority of "voucher" recipients already had their children in private education; this demonstrates that the supposed purposed of "school choice" to aid lower income families by allowing their children to attend private schools is a falsehood. Private schools in states with "voucher" programs have consistently demonstrated that they do not increase access for lower income students nor increase enrollment space to accommodate larger numbers of students. These are facts you can check if you are willing to do the research. As a public school teacher for 28 years, I have experienced first hand the devastating effects of our current state government's poor school funding. Bills are passed requiring districts to enact programs (HB 4545 for example) without any funding to make these programs impactful or viable. There is been no increase in the per student allotment in many years, yet the cost of everything needed for the most basic educational programs have sky-rocketed. SHAME ON THE GOVERNOR AND STATE LEGISLATURE FOR ALLOWING THIS TO HAPPEN WHEN WE HAVE A BUDGET SURPLUS! And now the Governor and legislature want to take even more funding away from Texas public schools? ?Schools that are not required to hire certified teachers, schools that have no accountability via mandated testing, schools that don't have to accept Special Education students, minority students, or students from different backgrounds? If my tax dollars are going to be given to private schools, then any school that accepts this money should be required to follow the EXACT same standards that every public school in Texas follows. Without these constraints, there is NO ACCOUNTABILITY as to how my tax dollars are spent. SHAMEFUL! I would love to visit with the Governor or any state legislator who is truly interested in hearing from someone who has first hand, real world experiences in Texas Public Schools.

Thank You!

Bobbie Rogina
Retired
Woodville, TX

I strongly oppose allowing people to pull funding from the public school system to use for private schools. This will severely hurt our society as a whole as public schools are the only line of defense that our society has to reach and help children who might otherwise remain uneducated, starving and uncivilized. There will be no where for the civilized to hide if the masses become uneducated and are not taught how to conform to civil behaviors at least enough to remain in school. Many parents will take vouchers to send their unruly children to private schools only for the child to be expelled from the private system and returned to the public schools without any funding to support them. Do not pass this sinful bill. We must be willing to help the least able have a chance to break the cycle of poverty.

Julie Cantu
Self
Buda, TX

I am against HB 3 and school choice. You know as well as I do that it will not benefit anyone other than those who are already wealthy enough to afford private school. Please stop using your power to help the rich, and for once do the moral thing and take care of our children of all social and economic status!

vanessapalafox76@gmail.com Palafox
Houston
Houston, TX

Please count me in I have my youngest daughter shes still in school thank you

Sonia Spindola
Self - Parent
Pearland, TX

TEXAS PARENTS DO NOT SUPPORT THIS BILL. Stop destroying opportunities for low-income children in this state. Do better.

Pat Mayo
Mothers for Democracy
Plano, TX

If you really think that Texans support this bill, put it on the ballot and let us tell you directly how we feel about it. To refuse to put it on the ballot says that you don't care what we think, you only care about your rich buddies. If you say, that's not true, then at least have a salary cap, where no one making over that amount can get any school vouchers because they don't need it. Say, $200,000. And, anyone currently enrolled in private schools are not eligible as they can already afford private schools. If you refuse any of this, then you are making it very clear that you don't care about anyone but your rich friends.

William Eason
Self
Dallas, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Sarah Bramhall
self
Round Rock, TX

As a former public school teacher and a parent to a kindergarten student at Deep Wood Elementary in Round Rock ISD, I am vehemently against this bill, which would siphon dollars from public education to private institutions with no transparency or accountability. Public education is critical to the prosperity of our state - padding the pockets of private schools, which are inherently not accessible to those who this bill SUPPOSEDLY benefits AKA children who cannot afford to attend, does nothing to create a brighter future for our children. Public schools must be appropriately resourced to provide excellent education to ALL if our state is to flourish.

Private and charter schools are not required to provide disability services to students, so students who must attend public schools in order to receive services would also be deliberately under-resourced if this bill passes.

There is a limited budget for this bill, so only SOME students will receive resources. What happens to the remainder, who are "left" in public schools?

We are already having problems losing bright teachers (myself included) to more rewarding careers... by reducing funding for public education, we risk encouraging more and more of this brain drain.

Please vote AGAINST HB3 and give the children of Texas a fighting chance.

Cayla Meyers
Self
Angleton, TX

Vote no. Keep funding public schools and teachers. I send my children to a private school by choice. I do not want the government controlling their school like the currently do with public schools.

Rachel Horwood
Future generations of Texans
Pflugerville, TX

Teachers in this state are expected to make data informed educational decisions, where is the data that supports that educational outcomes will be enhanced by the use of vouchers in this state? If you as a representative are truly representing your constituents and voting in the best interest of your communities you will vote NO to this bill. Take a look at Governor Abbott's Facebook page if you want to see what a bipartisan majority of Texans think of the idea of school vouchers in Texas.

Kayla Grantham
Self/ payroll specialist
Abilene, TX

Vote no!

Kristin Shelton, Mrs.
Self
Austin, TX

Vote No on HB3. As a public school teacher with 33 years experience, I know what public schools offer. The Texas Education Code requires us to educate all Texan children. Public schools are set up to do that. Taking students and money from public schools will not have the affect the proponents want it to have. Public schools should be fully funded before considering subsidizing private schools.

Patricia Woody
self - CPA
Mansfield, TX

We need to fund PUBLIC schools where the great majority of children attend and what we pay our tax dollars for. We do not want to subsidize private school.

Crystal Brown, Ms.
Self
Lubbock, TX

I'm against this! Pay teachers in public schools a fair wage.

Heather Johnson
Self/teacher
Austin, TX

Public tax dollars should only go to public schools. Period. I don't even understand why y'all are debating this. No public tax dollars should go to private schools. No public tax dollars should go to schools with religious backgrounds. Islam, Christianity, Scientology. I don't care. No public money should be spent on schools that are not public schools.

Only public schools should receive public tax dollars.

Ryan Mott
self
Austin, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

- 1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.
 - 2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.
 - 3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.
 - 4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot. This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.
- Thank you!

Rachel Watkins
Self
Austin, TX

Please put this money towards public education! The more educated we are as a society the better off we all are! Public education is important. Also calling this school choice is blatantly misleading. Private schools are not required to admit everyone that chooses to apply, there is no real choice in that!

Cooper Mason

Self

Kyle, TX

Don't mess with public education!! NO to vouchers!

Kathy Armstrnh

Myself

Plano, TX

My family is against vouchers as most of Texas is. Give our schools the money they need and stop lying about how vouchers will help families get a better education. This will only help the rich who already have enough money to pay for their private school. I'm tired of begging for our teachers to get a raise and for our schools to be funded especially when we have the money to fund them. Listen to what the people of Texas want instead of this unpopular bill.

Gilbert Garza, Mr.

Self, grandchildren and students in our rural community

Lyford, TX

This legislation is nothing more than a ploy to reward Jeffrey Yass and your other billionaire cronies /buddies who are seeking to destabilize public education in Texas in order to line their pockets. Buckley, Greg Abbott and the rest of them are vesting in the privatization of public schools! This bill takes from vulnerable students across Texas. Texas parents already have a choice!

Instead of being the primary champions for public schools, you are intent on crippling them!

Jeffrey Yass, Wilkes and Dunn have no business being involved in the future of public in Texas!

Vouchers are nothing more than welfare handouts for the wealthy!

Private schools do not have the resources to adequately meet the needs of students with special needs! In fact, the bill, if passed, still places the assessment, identification and diagnosis the responsibility of public schools! Your constant barrage of posts are evidence of your desperation in cramming this legislation down the throats of your constituents!

As a conservative I am appalled at how low the values of our Republican Party have fallen! This bill takes from our children, our communities and our educators! A disgrace!!

Greg Abbot himself acknowledged this would result in defunding public schools! Stop!! Do the right thing!

Defeat passage of this legislation! The future of students across the Texas are at stake!

Susan Smyth-Edstrom

Self

Trophy Club, TX

I am opposed to vouchers and want you to vote no. There is overwhelming input across social media, input from public school districts, teachers and parents for you to know this is not an option that helps support public schools and the majority of voters are OPPOSED. My hard-earned tax dollars should not go to this SCAM of a scheme by our Governor to fund private schools.

Vouchers have FAILED in multiple states and in AZ is bankrupting schools. The Republic controlled legislature has failed public schools for years by never addressing Robin Hood, recapture and funding our students appropriately. You have NO ONE to blame but yourselves, and this is not the fix. It will only make it worse. And you must ask yourself if a billionaire in OK has paid our governor so much for vouchers to pass - how can it be a good thing. VOTE NO. For kids. For schools. For us.

VOTE NO

John Lane, Mr.

Self

Houston, TX

Keep public funds in public schools! Vouchers will only increase costs for private school students. Keep public funds in the public schools. Vote no!

Lori Gutierrez

Self

Spring, TX

I do not support HB3 or SB13. I support Texas public education. I also entrust trained, certified, and educated librarians to curate their collections for their school libraries, not community members without the proper education or knowledge of the students they would be serving.

Martin Barlett

self/retired

Austin, TX

I am against HB 3 as I feel it creates inequity between vouched and public schools and will lead to the further deterioration of Texas's education system

Mark Johnson

self

Austin, TX

School vouchers are a way to funnel our taxpayer money into unaccountable schools that don't have the same requirements to serve all Texans. They are ways to funnel our taxpayer money to private businesses running schools that don't have to provide the same level of teaching expertise, same level of services for children who need them and localities that aren't lucrative enough for them.

Joseph Fox

Self

Lubbock, TX

I don't believe it is right to utilize public tax dollars for private schools. Public schools are already struggling with funding and this additional 1 billion should be used to bolster public schools, not funnel money to already profitable private schools that often have religious connections. Please be fiscally responsible and do not waste our budget surplus on lining the pockets of private businesses.

Carla Shields

Private individual

McKinney, TX

We moved to Texas for the strength of its school. My husband is a public school teacher and has been for 26 years, 25 of those years in Texas. It pains me to see the way his profession has been disrespected and under funded. If you continue to hold funds back from our public schools, you are hurting way more kids than you're helping. Listen to the people of the state. We don't want vouchers. We want more support in our public schools. We want to keep great teachers in the profession to protect the future by educating our children. Please don't bow to the few wealthy donors who are trying to influence how our state is managed and strengthened. Stand up for kids. Stand up for Texas!

Susie Bailey
Self-retired
Ben Wheeler, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

jason graves
Self
Fort Worth, TX

Hello, I am against this house bill. I don't think it will help any children. It will only benefit parents that are already in private schools by reducing the amount they pay. That will also lead to higher private schools and tuition expenses with the influx of public funding into the private schools.

Please choose to expand access to public schools and public charter schools by employing open enrollment across all public schools. Stop the standardized testing and use those funds to reduce class ratios. Studies show standardized testing does not lead to better education.

Jolene Slama-Saenz

Self

Austin, TX

Dear Education committee

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the use of vouchers and Education Savings Accounts (ESAs) as a means of funding education. These programs divert crucial resources away from public schools, undermining their ability to serve all students equitably.

I respectfully request the following changes to improve the funding structure for education:

1. Increase the Basic Allotment to $7,500: The current funding allocation is insufficient to meet the needs of students and educators. Raising the basic allotment to $7,500 would better support our schools and allow for more equitable access to quality education.
2. Determine Funding by Enrollment, Not Attendance: Funding should be based on student enrollment rather than attendance. This would provide more consistent and predictable funding for schools, allowing them to plan and allocate resources effectively, even in times of fluctuating attendance.
3. Tie Funding to Inflation: Education funding should be adjusted annually based on inflation rates. This would ensure that the value of the funding keeps pace with the rising costs of education, maintaining its purchasing power over time.
4. Ensure Funding for All Current and Future Mandates: All current and future state or federal mandates should be fully funded to avoid placing additional burdens on schools. This would ensure that schools can comply with legal requirements without sacrificing other essential services.

I hope you will consider these requests as part of ongoing efforts to improve the education system. Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

Sincerely,

Jolene Slama-Saenz

Jose Orta

none

Taylor, TX

I oppose education vouchers in Texas. The legislature should fully fund PUBLIC Education - that means funding the local school districts that are the heart and soul of communities throughout the State. Only 96 counties out of 256 have private schools - that means 154 have NO private schools to send children. Vouchers do not work in rural areas...do not defund our public schools.

Olivia Wildman

self

Austin, TX

This bill is an outright danger and could lead to the further destruction of our public school system. Vouchers do nothing but incentivize for-profit private schools, which the majority of poor, rural, and working class Texans could not afford, even with the vouchers. Taking away more and more of their public funding will continue to drain the public school system, and overburden boards and teachers even more so with shoestring budgets for all of the children who cannot afford private school. All children have a right to a proper education, as well as the socialization public schools offer them, meeting many students outside of their narrow view of the world. Even though I do not have children, I would much rather my tax dollars go to fixing and funding the infrastructure of our public school system than it be funneled off to a private institution who has no oversight on what it is teaching children. Public funds should stay in public works, and private schools can and do discriminate against potential students based on disability, religion, or identity—while still taking taxpayer money. Disabled students would suffer the most under this, as they lose their protections under the state and federal governments by attending a public school. On top of that, rural families would feel the brunt of this, as private schools can be few and far between, and they would be paying for vouchers they would have no meaningful access to. Texas schools are already underfunded. Instead of defunding them further, lawmakers should fully fund our public schools. Texans oppose vouchers. We must demand that lawmakers reject any plan that takes money away from public schools.

Yolanda Cadriel

Self, Ed. Diagnostician

Brownsville, TX

Vote No to establishing an education savings account program.

Vote no for any type of school voucher program.

Patrick Jones

Self

Austin, TX

I am not interested in supporting school vouchers. Please fully fund and fix Texas public education.

Danelle Cass

We Won't Comply

Conroe, TX

QUIT diminishing public schools and stealing from them to fund your good ol boys kids private school education.

Jessica Diric, Mrs.

Self, Principal of The Starr Family Jewish Day School

San Antonio, TX

As an 24 year veteran certified educator and principal (TEA Number 1137248), I am IN FAVOR of the establishment of school choice when pertaining to an TX education savings account program. My children have gone to both private and public school. I have also taught in both the public and private sectors. From my professional point of view, giving parents the opportunity to use State money to make decisions on where they send their children to school is important, and it gives them the ability to choose options that may not have been readily available. While I do understand that it impacts the finances of public schools, I feel that money to provide opportunity for not just "good" education in other settings, but "excellent" education, while allowing for the opportunity for a broad choice of options, including religious education. I support the HB3, and support important ties to the bill, such as teacher accountability, school accreditation, and some form of testing accountability. I thank you for your time, and effort to implement new ideas and bills such as HB3 for Texas government education spending that positively impact the youth, and our future educators, doctors, and business leaders of this State, and our beautiful country.

Abigail Coates

Self

Conroe, TX

Fund public schools. We just need more teachers per students. More paras.

Amy Johnson

Self

Spring, TX

I homeschool and am opposed to this bill

Rachel Mally

Self - parent

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

JEFFERSON ADAMS, Rev.

Self

AUSTIN, TX

Vote No to HB3.

It's a corporate handout to big business which also directly causes harm to children & communities across the state. It's especially harmful towards children on impoverished households or those in small, rural communities. Millions of people across the state already recognise this for what it is, despite the lies promoted by Gov. Abbot & others.

Dorothy Rhoads

Self - Retired Teacher & Librarian

Dallas, TX

No to House Bill 3. No to school vouchers. No to public money without accountability!

Texas public schools are available and accountable to all Texans by law.

This is NOT currently and WILL NOT be true of private schools under this measure.

Currently Texans have the right to transparency and accountability for their tax money and parents have the right to make an education choice for their child.

This will NOT be true under this bill because private schools have the choice to choose students while the Texas taxpayers will lose transparency and accountability for tax funds.

It is troubling that the accountability that the state feels necessary for local public ISDs is not needed for private schools that would receive taxpayer funds!

For one instance, consider that public school staff are mandatory reporters to CPS. This is not true of private schools. You only need to read the news to know that historically and currently churches (Catholic and other denominations) and private entities have a history of not exposing and reporting impropriety and/or abuse, often passing along the offender to other churches/schools. Many of those abuses are not discovered at all or years later after many lives destroyed in the process.

How will we even know the extent of this and other results of this bill without accountability?

LaRonda Davis

Self

Selma, TX

I am 100% opposed to HB 3 as this takes my tax dollars away from public education. I DO NOT support this push to send tax payers dollars to pay for private school. Those who can afford private school for their children should pay for it. Those who cannot afford it need, you need to budget accordingly and set aside money to meet the expenses and not expect other families to fund their choice of a private school education for their children. My children went to public school, applied themselves and worked hard to graduate at the top of their class, attending public school took nothing away from them nor did it place unwarranted obstacles in their way. Private school is available for those who can afford it.

Jane Bost, Dr.

Self

Round Rock, TX

Subject: Request for Increased Funding and Opposition to Vouchers/ESA

Dear Education committee,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the use of vouchers and Education Savings Accounts (ESAs) as a means of funding education. These programs divert crucial resources away from public schools, undermining their ability to serve all students equitably.

I respectfully request the following changes to improve the funding structure for education:

1. Increase the Basic Allotment to $7,500: The current funding allocation is insufficient to meet the needs of students and educators. Raising the basic allotment to $7,500 would better support our schools and allow for more equitable access to quality education.
2. Determine Funding by Enrollment, Not Attendance: Funding should be based on student enrollment rather than attendance. This would provide more consistent and predictable funding for schools, allowing them to plan and allocate resources effectively, even in times of fluctuating attendance.
3. Tie Funding to Inflation: Education funding should be adjusted annually based on inflation rates. This would ensure that the value of the funding keeps pace with the rising costs of education, maintaining its purchasing power over time.
4. Ensure Funding for All Current and Future Mandates: All current and future state or federal mandates should be fully funded to avoid placing additional burdens on schools. This would ensure that schools can comply with legal requirements without sacrificing other essential services.

I hope you will consider these requests as part of ongoing efforts to improve the education system. Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

Sincerely,

Jane Bost, Ph.D.

Jay Gersten

Self

Dallas, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities. Parents are the best suited to decide what education their child/children should receive. When public schools fail to deliver on not just educational opportunities and rigor, but on cultural education and diverge from the morals, standards, and philosophy the parents wish to impart on their children, parents should be enabled to place their children into a school that better aligns with their vision for their children.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

The idea that this bill is only for the rich and the wealthy kids is laughable. The rich and wealthy already can afford to put their kids in schools that align with their values. It is time all parents are given that ability and level the educational opportunity playing field.

Krista Wilkerson, Mrs

Self

Victoria, TX

I oppose HB3. Public schools should be fully funded and tax payers funds shouldn't go to private schools without accountability.

Vicki McMahan

My own children, students, and myself

Corinth, TX

It's deeply concerning that instead of investing in public schools, which serve the vast majority of students, lawmakers are opting to take funding away from these schools to support private schools through vouchers. This approach not only undermines the quality of education for students in public schools, but it also exacerbates inequalities in our education system. Private schools are not required to meet the same standards as public schools, which means that many of them may not provide the same level of oversight, accountability, or educational support that public schools do. This leaves vulnerable students without the resources they need to succeed.

Redirecting taxpayer money into private school vouchers instead of strengthening public schools will widen the achievement gap and diminish the quality of education for those who need it the most. Public schools are tasked with educating all students, including those with disabilities, English language learners, and students from low-income backgrounds—students who may not have access to the same resources or opportunities as those in private schools. With the money being taken away from public schools, these students will bear the brunt of these decisions, further increasing the disparities in education.

What's more, this shift to private school funding doesn't address the root causes of the challenges facing public schools. Rather than providing more funding to teachers, smaller class sizes, or better facilities, it redirects resources away from the public education system altogether. If we truly want to improve education for all children, we should be investing more into public schools—by increasing teacher pay, providing better classroom materials, offering support for students' mental health and well-being, and reducing the emphasis on standardized testing. Public schools should be the foundation of our education system, not the private sector that benefits the few at the expense of the many.

Redirecting funds from public schools to private school vouchers is not a solution to the issues our education system faces. It's a diversion of resources that hurts public schools and the students who rely on them. We must ensure that funding is used to strengthen public schools, ensuring all students—regardless of their background—have access to a quality education.

Lori Broughton
Self, Farmer, Rancher
Temple, TX

All my life I have heard some form of the phrase: “We need a well educated population to sustain and grow our country.” Vouchers do not achieve these goals. What does reach these goals is a robust, well financed public school system where all are educated to their fullest potential. This means meeting the learning needs of our children. The proposed voucher scheme creates a two tiered society where the people with the financial means receive the education the parents want while leaving all others without money to receive a lower quality education.

Priscilla Eureste
Self
Tomball, TX

I homeschool and am opposed to this bill.

Andrew Stalick
self
Austin, TX

Strong shared public schools are essential for a healthy, civically engaged population.
Vote against vouchers.

Ashley Garcia
Self
Dickinson, TX

As a public educator I strongly urge you to vote NO on any bill that contains a voucher, including HB3! Texas educators oppose vouchers and know this is not what’s best for public education in Texas!

Carisa Munoz
self
Austin, TX

School vouchers are bad for Texas because they divert critical funding from public schools, undermining the education system that serves the majority of students. Texas already struggles with underfunded schools, large class sizes, and teacher shortages, and vouchers would exacerbate these problems by redirecting taxpayer money to private institutions that lack accountability and transparency. Unlike public schools, private schools can selectively admit students, often excluding those with disabilities, behavioral challenges, or lower academic performance. This creates an uneven playing field, further marginalizing vulnerable students. Additionally, rural communities—where public schools are the only option—would suffer the most, as fewer resources would be available to maintain quality education. Vouchers primarily benefit wealthier families who can already afford private school tuition, while lower-income families receive little real assistance. Instead of vouchers, Texas should invest in strengthening its public schools to ensure equitable education for all students.

Patricia Adams
Self teacher engineer mom
austin, TX

Do not kill public education. Separate religion and state as per our Constitution. No vouchers it's a subsidy only the affluent can use and education is not a for-profit venture no should it be fun by overpaid well connected wonks. Policy such as this are destroying Americas future and science and technology.

Wendy Salome

Self

Austin, TX

I am deeply opposed to creating Education Savings Accounts for Texas students. ESA's drain funding from our (SEVERELY UNDERFUNDED) public schools. There is no accountability attached to the. ESAs will not improve student outcomes. ESA's increase taxpayer costs, which are already very high and already being mis-appropriated. Using ESAs allows discrimination. Most importantly, ESAs will decimate our rural Texas public school systems. VOTE NO ON THIS BILL.

Giovanna Couey

self, Marketing Director

San Antonio, TX

Though this bill is proposed as school choice, this is a terrible bill - allowing families to use public funds for private school tuition and other educational expenses will set the state of Texas back. As a taxpayer, I strongly oppose this bill, and know that if it passes, the future of education in the state of Texas will suffer. Our schoolchildren will get dumber, the money will go from funding public schools to funding charter schools, and the state has a 30% closure rate of charter schools, with 1:4 charter schools FAILING within the first five years. This bill fails both public school children, and charter school children. If parents want to send their children to private school, they should be allowed to do so, but not at the expense of others children in the public school system. Please, please, please vote NO on this bill. It would be a travesty if this were to pass in Texas, and would set Texas back further than they already are. If you needed additional data points, over 26% of the charter schools that close do so due to FRAUD and improper spending of funds.

Erin Hamilton

Self

Manor, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.

2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.

3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.

4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot.

This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.

Thank you

Stacey Miller

Self

georgetown, TX

My public and frankly exorbitant property taxes are to be used to fully fund public schools for the good of all texas children not just the privileged few

I want my public and quite exorbitant property tax dollars to go to fully

I want my public tax dollars to go to fully fund public schools not to go to the selected view that are admitted to private schools. Parents already have a choice. This bill provides basically a discount for school for kids that are already in private schools and to their wealthy parents. Please vote against vouchers.

Bri Rodriguez

Self

Austin, TX

This will gut our public schools. Leave our kids alone. Just remove state testing that will save millions and give it to the schools!

Diane Skeel

self

Austin, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. I moved to Texas 43 years ago, married a native Texan, and our son attended public schools, which served him well. We need good public education, and vouchers will destroy that. I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution.”

Jennifer Gajeske

Self

Brenham, TX

I am against HB 3. Vote no - HB 3

Claire Edmondson

Self

Houston, TX

Please vote no on BH 3. Our children’s future is at stake. Public education is to level the playing field for all. Please do that for our state and our children.

Shelby Castillo

Self/homeschooler

Houston, TX

I homeschool and I oppose this bill.

Mary Lopez

Self Self proprietor

San antonio, TX

We have too many kids to privatize all with vouchers and still end up having to pay out of pocket more to compensate the difference owed to the school every year for each student on top of all the extra school expenses we already have to pay into. We all know this will get siphoned off into a general fund for greedy politicians' hands. No thank you

Robert Williams

Self

Fort Worth, TX

Keep government overreach out of private and homeschooled children’s education.

Shelley Anne Smith

Self/Dallas taxpayer/technology manager

Dallas, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. I implore each of you to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and and the future of education.

Dorothy Shelley

Retired teacher

Austin, TX

I am a retired Special Education teacher, who taught students with learning disabilities, in the public schools, for 25 years. I am concerned about the affect the vouchers will have on the special education students who want to attend a private school. The private schools do not have to offer services listed on a student's Individualized Education Plan (IEP) nor honor the minutes allotted to each service. Whereas a public school is legally bound to not only provide the services but also the time allotted for each service. Public schools educate all students. Private schools can pick and choose which students they allow to attend their schools. Private school vouchers often fund poor-quality schools with no accountability or oversight making it easier for these private schools to hire teachers that don't have the proper credentials or any credentials at all. Private school vouchers don't have to provide accountability to taxpayers. Most programs don't measure success, student achievement, or use standardized testing to see if students are meeting the minimum education standards. Private school vouchers do not provide students with the same rights and protections they would have access to in public schools such as IDEA (Individuals with Disabilities Education Act), Title VI, Title IX, and the Every Student Succeeds Act. Students who attend private schools are also stripped of their First Amendments, due process, and other statutory rights guaranteed them in public schools. Last but not least, the money being taken away from public schools will have a profound affect on their extra curricular activities such as band and sports. The real possibility of public schools losing funding will result in the loss of these activities. These are two areas that my special education students were able to excel in.

Thank you for taking my comments into consideration. I urge you to vote no on this voucher proposal.

D. Christene Wood

Self. Attorney

Humble, TX

The Texas Constitution states public funds will not be transferred to private entities. Robbing tax dollars to go to vouchers is a blatant affront to the principles upon which Texas claims to believe. Vouchers are a scam in the making to keep middle and poor children at a disadvantage as well as to funnel money to Abbott's pals. Texans do not want to fund segregation 2025. Do not take us backward and hurt children who have the same right to quality education as those born with silver spoons.

Marianne Arnold

self

KURTEN, TX

Our taxes should pay for public schools. Vouchers, no matter what you call them, use our taxes to subsidize private schools for the children of wealthy people. They take away resources that the 5.5 million students in public schools need. More than half the counties in Texas do not have private schools. Vouchers disadvantage rural areas that do not have access to private schools. By taking away public school resources, vouchers shift more of the burden for school funding to property taxes.

Adohree Teague

Self

Frisco, TX

Vouchers will siphon funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a native Texan, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution.

Jessica Engh

Self

Magnolia, TX

As a parent and teacher I am vehemently against school vouchers.

Susan Kelly
Self; Retired journalist
Austin, TX

I am writing to OPPOSE creating an education savings account program. School vouchers, which are funded by taxpayer dollars, will take money away from public schools that already serve the majority of students. We are diverting funds from the majority of students to a small number of wealthy students who go to private school. Our public schools are already running at budget deficits because of a bill two years ago that mandated certain safety provisions that were not paid for by the legislature. House Bill 3 will further hamstring our public schools, our teachers and staff and cause districts to make cuts to educational programs and curriculum that benefit Texas children. Please vote NO on House Bill 3. Thank you.

Marlo Montemayor
Self
Elgin, TX

Privatizing public funds to channel them back to private schools will not only harm schools but also small communities who count on these schools to provide nutrition, jobs, and social interaction. Most of Tx is represented by a population who have no private schools to choose from and are already severely underfunded. These are the people who voted for you. You need to represent their best interests, and not those of who can already afford available options for their kids.

Joelle Zavzavadjian
Self
ARGYLE, TX

I am against HB 3, against vouchers, and I want our public schools fully funded.

Abby Pollard
self, program manager
AUSTIN, TX

I am a concerned voter and I ask to you prioritize fully funding public schools and oppose HB3, SB2, and any other voucher/ESA bill. Public tax dollars should stay in public schools.

Elizabeth Silva
Self
Houston, TX

As a concerned parent of two elementary school children in HISD, I'm deeply troubled by the implications of House Bill 3 and the push for school vouchers, especially in light of the TEA takeover. While proponents claim vouchers expand school choice, the reality is far less equitable. For families like mine, who can't afford private school tuition even with a voucher, this policy feels like a step toward further weakening our public schools.

Vouchers often fail to cover the full cost of private school tuition, leaving families to pay the difference — a financial burden many simply can't manage. Meanwhile, public schools, which serve the vast majority of Texas students, risk losing vital funding as resources are redirected to private institutions. In HISD, where the TEA takeover has already created chaos and instability, the last thing our children need is for their schools to be further starved of support.

My family depends on our local public school — not just for academics, but for community, extracurricular activities, and essential services. Vouchers threaten to undermine that by diverting funds away from the very institutions that educate the most vulnerable children, including those with special needs, English language learners, and students from low-income families.

If lawmakers truly want to improve education in Texas, they should focus on strengthening our public schools — not siphoning resources away from them. Our kids deserve stable, well-funded schools where they can thrive, and House Bill 3 puts that at risk. As a parent, I'm standing with other families to say: Texas children deserve better.

Emily Morehead, LPC-S

Self

McKinney, TX

I am a parent of a student in McKinney ISD. We are already experiencing tremendous cuts, and the voucher would eviscerate public education. On Friday, parents of McKinney ISD received notification of the following:

- Reductions at Central Office and Other Non-Campus Positions—MISD reduced 40 central office and other non-campus positions. The responsibilities and duties of the roles that were not refilled were distributed among existing staff.
- Reduction in Athletic Coaches and Fine Arts Assistants
- Gifted and Talented Reorganization- McKinney ISD is redesigning the GT program due to cutws.
- Campus Instructional Coaches- McKinney ISD will reduce by over half the number of instructional coaches supporting campus teachers.
- Elementary Intervention Specialists- McKinney ISD intervention specialists will be eliminated as part of instructional support restructuring.
- Clerical Support- McKinney ISD will reduce clerical support at central office and campuses. As a parent- I believe that The clerical support roles keep the campus safe and full coverage is necessary for security
- Summer School Offerings- McKinney ISD has eliminated elementary and secondary summer school. We will continue to offer federally mandated opportunities for our students.
- Special Education- Adjustments will be made
- Library Aides- McKinney ISD will eliminate library aides.
- PE Aides- reorganize the allocation
- Clinic Assistants- McKinney ISD will utilize floater nurses to assist in the clinic.
- Secondary Class Ratios- McKinney ISD has redesigned the campus master
- Bilingual Staff Ratios- All staffing allocations are based off of program enrollment by campus and student/staff ratio.
- Impact Counselors- McKinney ISD will reduce impact counselors by two staff members.
- Professional Travel- For 2025-2026, McKinney ISD will suspend all overnight travel.

ESA's will only further the deficit that schools are facing. Until we can support public education fully, we can't delegate tax dollars elsewhere.

Please support public schools with NO vote.

Marilyn Barlett, Mrs.

Self Retired Texas Teacher

Austin, TX

I would like to oppose house bill 3 as it is written. I feel that it should also have an attendance requirement just like the public schools. I do not want money taken away from the public schools to fund the private schools.

Denise McLemore

Self

Austin, TX

I OPPOSE this bill!

Diana Richards

Self

Sherman, TX

As a Hard R, rural, parent of school-aged children, I am Opposed to HB3. I am not a Democrat. I am not paid by anyone to testify today. I am NOT a fan of the Teachers Union, but conservative parents like me have been accused by our own party of these things. NOW - As a native Houstonian, who graduated from public schools, I know that the education system fell apart after the inclusion of Common Core (and subsequent renaming of Common Core to keep it in the TEKS). Go back to the basics in our public schools. Parents & Grandparents have brought solutions to TXLege for at least the last 6 years (prior to CV19), and we have been ignored. It's time to do the hard work of fixing the major issues in the TX public school system to provide a healthy, safe, and educationally excellent learning environment for ALL Texas students. Neither the State government nor Federal government should be in the business of picking winners and losers. Get to the ROOT of the issue in our schools. No more bandaids!

Carron Perry
Self
Flower Mound, TX

I do not support transferring monies from public schools for vouchers to private or religious schools.

Krystie Griffin
Self
Leander, TX

Please do NOT vote for vouchers. The only people who will benefit are those who are already in private schools. Our special education students will not benefit, our lower socioeconomic families will not benefit. Instead, pour that money into our public schools!

Jessica Lamberg
Self
Round Rock, TX

Vote NO on HB3 - fund and support our public schools in Texas.

Elizabeth Freeman
Self
Pflugerville, TX

Fund public schools. Texans DO NOT want the vouchers for public schools. Give teachers raises and fund their classrooms.

Mari Verastegui
Self/child
Kyle, TX

I am opposed to the voucher program for the state of Texas. My child is a public school attendee and the current resources are already stretched thin. Please do not vote to take away more funding from the public school system. Thank you for considering the feelings of your constituents.

Marla Bays Bays
Grandparents for Public Schools
Cedar Park, TX

Vouchers will only benefit the wealthy. They will not help public schools. Do the right thing and fully fund our public schools for the sake of ALL Texas children. Vote on HB3

Christopher Brower, Dr
Self
Argyle, TX

I am against HB3 and I am for fully funding our public schools!

Amanda Gonzales, Mrs
Self
San Antonio, TX

Public schools and public school teachers need more funding and higher salaries! Vouchers for private schools only benefit a selected amount of students.

Angela Gaither
Self
Fort Worth, TX

I oppose education savings account programs and urge Reps to vote no on HB3

Stacy Norwood
Self
Allen, TX

I don't want my tax dollars going to a school voucher system. Fund public schools! I have 2 kids in public schools and I want them to have a great educational experience.

Chris Womack
Self, writer
Austin, TX

Honored members of the committee,
I am the father of two Texas schoolchildren, and the son of a former Texas teacher and guidance counselor. So I am very well aware of the past and present condition of schools here in Texas.

Please know that I am deeply opposed to HB 3, the voucher scheme. Mostly I object to using public funds to subsidize, wealthier families, sending their children to private schools, when that money should support our starved Texas public schools.

Rural communities are well aware that public schools are struggling for lack of funding, and that private options are rarely available— and when they are, they don't provide transportation, eating facilities, special education, or even teachers comparable to those at public schools.

As a result, community across Texas have again and again rejected similar voucher schemes. That rejection, spans, partisans of every stripe.

Instead, I urge you to raise the per-student funding to a level above $1300 in order to make up for the shortfall, our schools have suffered as a result of the Texas legislature's neglect since 2019.

Thank you for your time, and I hope you do the right thing.

Chris Womack

Bonnie Koliba
Self
Royse City, TX

Public money for private school is a hard no, fully fund public education and stop with the voucher ESA nonsense.

Patricia Lewis
Self
Dallas, TX

I strongly oppose providing vouchers for private schools. I strongly oppose this despite having sent my son to private school and having struggled at times to pay for it. We need great public schools and to be great, they need to be prioritized and well funded. We need our citizens to be well educated to be productive and successful. I strongly oppose sending my tax dollars to religious schools or schools that can discriminate against students. Please reject school vouchers.

Laurie Bizzell, Dr.
Self/Clinical Psychologist
San Antonio, TX

I do not support the voucher program and the way it will dismantle public schools and our entire education system.

Erin O'Bryant
self
Austin, TX

I am opposed to the establishment of an education savings account program to benefit private schools, or school vouchers.

Maria Meza, Dr.
Self
San Antonio, TX

An education savings program is detrimental to education. It is a terrible idea and I see no benefit to students. My daughter attends private school but it is our choice and we can afford it. I would never take funds from public schools because they serve ALL students regardless of background, income, or ability. Public schools are truly the equalizer for our society and give an equal opportunity at a better future. The $10,000 voucher you are proposing will not cover the cost of tuition at most private schools. Also, what accountability will there be for private schools or parents who take the voucher funds and "home school" their children? I vehemently oppose HB3 by Buckley establishment of an education savings account program and so do countless parents I know whose children attend public and our own daughter's private school. The data and evidence from other states implementing vouchers have not shown a positive impact on increased student achievement and the only goal has been to privatize education. Please do not pass HB 3 by Buckley. Keep tax payer dollars in public schools.

Joe B Ferguson
Retired Teacher/Coach
Lubbock, TX

I am against conservative and I usually vote conservative but I totally disagree with my representative. I am against HB 3. State money should be used to fund public schools. When did Texas republican representatives become so anti public education?

Angelica Holt
Self
Austin, TX

I oppose this.

Erin Cloke

Self-psychiatric nurse practitioner

Austin, TX

Dear Education committee I am writing to express my strong opposition to the use of vouchers and Education Savings Accounts (ESAs) as a means of funding education. These programs divert crucial resources away from public schools, undermining their ability to serve all students equitably.

I respectfully request the following changes to improve the funding structure for education:

1. Increase the Basic Allotment to $7,500: The current funding allocation is insufficient to meet the needs of students and educators. Raising the basic allotment to $7,500 would better support our schools and allow for more equitable access to quality education.
2. Determine Funding by Enrollment, Not Attendance: Funding should be based on student enrollment rather than attendance. This would provide more consistent and predictable funding for schools, allowing them to plan and allocate resources effectively, even in times of fluctuating attendance.
3. Tie Funding to Inflation: Education funding should be adjusted annually based on inflation rates. This would ensure that the value of the funding keeps pace with the rising costs of education, maintaining its purchasing power over time.
4. Ensure Funding for All Current and Future Mandates: All current and future state or federal mandates should be fully funded to avoid placing additional burdens on schools. This would ensure that schools can comply with legal requirements without sacrificing other essential services. I hope you will consider these requests as part of ongoing efforts to improve the education system.

Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

Sincerely,

Erin Cloke APRN-BC

Cathy Bradley, Ms.

Self -retired

Dallas, TX

I am strongly against vouchers and urge you to protect and promote fully funded, high quality, public education. This bill is a scam and a misuse of public funds. Public education built this nation and this state. Do not destroy it.

Adrienne Gandhi

Retail worker/ self

Round Rock, TX

House Bill 3 (HB 3) threatens to divert critical public school funding to private school vouchers, weakening resources for students, and destabilizing the Teacher Retirement System (TRS) by reducing the number of active educators paying into it. Public schools serve all children, and shifting taxpayer dollars to unregulated private institutions undermines their ability to provide quality education. Lawmakers must vote NO on HB 3 to protect public schools, educators, and retirees instead of gambling with Texas' education system

Yessica Rodocker

Everman ISD

Fort Worth, TX

This is not going to help the greater majority of Texas and it will not only make funding schools harder. But it will take away from the students that want to learn and better themselves. We need to find ways to help public schools not take away from them!

Jeff Huerta

Representing my daughter's who can't fight this fight

San Antonio, TX

I am against this voucher scam. Constituents have already shot this down, but Abbott and his investment buddies don't care. This GOP leadership DOES NOT WANT TO DO THE WORK TO HELP PUBLIC EDUCATION. THE GOP LEADERSHIP ONLY SEE MONEY AND OPPORTUNITY TO USE OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS AS MONEY GRAB OPPORTUNITY. WE THE PEOPLE SEE THROUGH YOUR SLIGHT OF HAND MOVES. KEEP YOUR HANDS OFF OUR CHILDREN'S EDUCATION. WE SEE THIS VOUCHER PROGRAM AS A DIRECT PHYSICAL THREAT.

Victoria Laurie

Self

Plano, TX

Totally against school vouchers. We need to put more money into public schools. The lessons of Arizona (costing the state too much money and only benefiting the wealthy) is a cautionary tale to be heeded. What percentage of Texans would this even benefit ? How many people in rural areas could participate?

Lynn Baber

Self

Weatherford, TX

Options to escape poor public schools would be wonderful. However, funding two tracks because you accept one underperforming one is poor stewardship. Pass legislation to improve public schools. There's plenty of money to teach the basics. A Legislature that can't manage one bureaucracy well DOES NOT need to add another. If education were a road, this bill creates and funds a detour instead of fixing the existing road, while increasing spending to fix potholes and washouts again, and again.

Steven Deline

self

Austin, TX

This bill would be detrimental to Texan children & should not be passed.

Allowing for an option for parents to provide an adequate education for their children is a noble cause. Assisting children who are being bullied by allowing them to change schools is good. Supporting good homeschooling, microschoooling, & disability focused schools is a good idea. The problem is this bill wont do any of that, in fact it will hinder efforts to support children facing difficulties in their education.

As-Is this bill will not support children facing bullying as it has no teeth to require schools to accept these children when facing a crisis situation. The same can be said towards children with disabilities. The bill also has no capability of ensuring that children with disabilities will receive an adequate education as it does not place standards on private schools. There is a well-documented history of abuse towards disabled individuals in private school settings which this bill will be incentivizing allowing more of with the lack of state oversight.

This bill will not help homeschooling or microschoooling options as there is little evidence that parents who choose this option will apply for this. Due to a lack of standards for these options the children could lose out on foundational educational information necessary for them to thrive in the current work environment. One of the most important educational devices to best allow for children to learn is experiential learning in a social setting. Without standards like allowing for these children to be given this type of learning opportunities they will receive a substandard education making them unprepared for the workforce. There are parents in Texas who give exceptional homeschooling for their children as well as microschoools that give exceptional education for neurodivergent children & they should be supported. I do not believe this bill is going to have a positive effect for those parents.

This bill is going to take available funds away from potential public school allotments when Texas is ranked 40th in the nation in K-12 education. Teachers are migrating away from either Texas or the profession due to how funding is being allotted. Over 60% of Texas educators have stated they are considering doing so. Focusing on private schools, when the budget is teetering on causing an educational collapse in Texas is a dereliction of duty.

Lastly, the argument in favor of this bill is that it will help parents with allowing more choice for their children. The only thing this bill will do is increase private school tuition. Private schools are for profit institutions. Milton Friedman would argue this bill is nothing more than a subsidy for private schools & will incentivize private schools to increase tuition as if demand allows parents to already pay the amount they are, why would that differ based on a voucher. Parents not selected for the lottery will face a $10,000 increase in costs.

Please vote no.

David Flores, Mr

Self -

Austin, TX

This is theft of public services by the State of Texas to continuously deprive public schools of the necessary funding per pupil, only to turnaround and give this to wealthy families who already have the means to pay tuition to private schools. I am the product of Lubbock High School, which is a public magnet school and is recognized as a blue ribbon school for the curriculum and staff. My classmates have gone on to become doctors, winemakers, professors, and all other various occupations. There is no way this would've been possible at a private school. In addition, the funding for teachers and schools per pupil has not changed since 2019, even as the cost of nearly everything has gone up. Texas has some of the lowest paid public school teachers and it's gotten so bad the state has had to resort to removing certification requirements for teachers just to have enough to run classes. Thirdly, private schools currently operate with very little to no oversight with respect to curriculum, state tests, and teacher requirements that there is no way shape or form the State can determine if these schools are being properly run. This is a giant loophole created by the legislature in order to give private schools a leg up. Fourth, the other states that have implemented such a terrible public policy have found this it has failed. Arizona has enacted this policy and it blew a massive hole in their budget with cost overruns of $267 million! As a state with roughly 6 million school age children, and growing!, this very clearly puts Texas on the same path to fiscal insolvency. The State is already pulling back on infrastructure projects from TXDOT due to cost overruns and higher input costs, and soon the legislature will have to decide whether to repair roads or continue funding this handout to rich families. To conclude, this wealthy family handout will be a costly expense that will force the state to pull back on future services down the road, and does little to enhance student performance (since you have no way of evaluating), and will only serve to further weaken public schools of which the future leaders of this state have attended for decades with great success.

Whitney Digges

Self

Plano, TX

Please vote no on HB 3. Public dollars belong in public education. Please listen to your constituents and do your job. The people overwhelmingly reject vouchers. Fund our public schools!

Cindy McNeil

Self

San Antonio, TX

NO

Teri Botour

Self - Retired teacher

San Marcos, TX

I am a retired teacher with 40 years experience, and I am so dismayed with Greg Abbott's pursuit of vouchers to do away with public schools by not funding them properly, skewing the scores to make them look bad and withholding teachers pay raises until he got his way. The problem with the vouchers is only helps people that already have money who can afford to send their kids to private schools. The chance left behind in public schools, and those that have to go with poorly run charter and private schools will greatly be affected negatively when it comes to a proper education. Private charter and Christian schools do not have to follow guidelines public schools do. The teachers aren't certified, the turnover is significant in the kids are not getting a proper education. This is already going on so I can only assume it will get worse if vouchers pass today. I'm not sure his reasoning behind doing this, but I can assume it's driven by money not by his love of children. I also worry about community that is centered around a public school system, which gives children a sense of belonging when they grow up. This world is so self-centered with devices and all kinds of distractions, a public schools whole communities together. Please see any in your hearts to let the voucher system go and continue what we are doing because it works. It's President Trump dismantle that department of education, Greg Abbott will not fund public schools properly, which will affect special needs children, 504 children plus all the other kids who need affair in public education. And you and I both know the oversight on this money is very important and I honestly cannot see it working in the taxpayer's favor. Please say no to vouchers!

Teri Votour

Katharine Cline

self

Austin, TX

Hello, I am Katie Cline, a resident of Northwest Austin. I live next door to two public schools and they are vital to our community. I oppose this bill because I believe that it will be damaging to our public schools and our students with special needs. Our schools are already facing funding challenges, and this will only make that worse, especially in smaller communities. Strong public education is essential to continue developing our citizens and the Texas economy.

Amisha Mehta

Self

Buda, TX

I do not support this bill. It will take money away from the public schools who are already working with very little. There is no accountability for private schools, why should they receive tax payer money when they only serve themselves and not the public.
Vote NO

Jill Montgomery

Self

Stephenville, TX

Committee Members; These comments address the proposal to offer a voucher program rather than fund public schools. I oppose this approach and urge you to vote to keep public education a priority and to provide adequate funding to ensure the availability of quality education for our children. If you believe educating American children is expensive, please don't try keeping them ignorant. Thank you for your consideration of this request.

Sarah Jackson

Self

Temple, TX

Due to safety concerns of my five year old who is having to deal with death threats, chairs being thrown, and staff who refuse to provide my child a safe education. I just took him out of public school to homeschool him. I contacted police, administrators and all the processes available to me to help advocate to get my child a safe learning experience and all of those failed. I agree to the bill. As well as advocating currently to get more bills passed in Texas to fix the public school system so I can send him into public schools. However, there are a lot of issues with the Grievance process set up and districts trying to cover up incidents to keep their reputation. The school is collecting money off of each student that attends school and I feel if they can't provide my child a safe place to learn, as well as providing an education because with all the disruptions in class he obviously is not learning. I need to homeschool him. So, if a safe place can't be provided and an education can't be provided to the point I need to provide it, why would I not get paid to provide it?

menachem blecher

Chabad of The Woodlands

Spring, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Pamela Eason

Self

Kemp, TX

Hi - I am writing to express my concerns for HB 3. As a parent, in Texas, I already have the right to choose my child's education. I believe this bill in it's title is misleading parents in that it leads one to think we don't have "freedom to choose our child's school" We have homeschool, private schools, charter schools, and public schools to choose from. This bill follows a map from the UN Agenda and I'm disappointed in my leadership in Texas how they are trying to trick so many people.

carol torrance

self

austin, TX

HB3? Not just no, but HELL NO!! Tax dollars making their way to private schools do not help all Texas students and their families. These schools are not fully accountable scholastically or financially nor are they open to all students via lottery-type systems or zoning. A public school 9th grader could easily figure out who will benefit from these voucher schemes, and it's not them. Instead, fully fund public schools, the great engine of opportunity for ALL Texans and Americans. Thank you.

Dina Eagle

Self/SAHM

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

CHARLENE PEREZ

Self/Retired

HOUSTON, TX

Vote NO on school vouchers. Vouchers destroy public schools by diverting fund to wealthy private schools. Vouchers serve as discount coupons for the wealthy since private school tuition starts at $15,000 a year and goes up as the schools get more elite. Most working families cannot afford to pay the balance due; therefore, these vouchers serve the wealthy. Also, private schools are not held accountable to providing services for special need students. Private Schools pick the best students from the wealthiest families, leaving working class families out.

Bret Fulkerson

Self

Austin, TX

Let me be clear—I'm furious about this school voucher program. Families in rural areas don't get real choices from this. It's a sham. Our public schools are the heart of our communities, and they're already struggling. Taking money away from them to fund private schools that most of us can't even access? That's not just wrong—it's an insult.

I've seen what these voucher programs do in other states. They're a disaster. No accountability, more inequality, and they leave kids behind. They divide our communities, and they don't even deliver better results. Instead of tearing down public education, why don't you focus on fixing it? Every child deserves a good education, and public schools are the only way to make that happen for everyone. This issue matters to me, and I vote. Don't forget that.

Kimberly Kiernan

Self

Rockwall, TX

I am a parent and native Texan that believes our schools should be fully funded and that public money should be used for public education. Tax payer money should never be used for private education—especially without oversight. Our kids deserve better. Texas ranks in the bottom half of the nation for education. Let’s fund it instead. Encourage amazing public schools and services. Improve testing. With our surplus and backing by our leaders, Texas should be in the top ten. Not the bottom 25.

Esther Horowitz

Self

Lewisville, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn’t one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it’s time for Texas to join them.

Sarah Rucker

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose this bill and do not support school vouchers.

Chaya Kolodny

Self

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn’t one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it’s time for Texas to join them.

John Roff

Self - Engineer

Houston, TX

I firmly believe that this bill is bad for Texas and more importantly bad for my family. My wife and I recently moved to Houston from Midland, and we selected our house based on the highly regarded public school district. Taking funding from public schools takes resources from my family and others like us. This increases costs and decreases accountability for private institutions educating our state’s children. What are the testing and reporting standards? Will home school weirdos become more common? Will the abuse, silence, and negligence of SBC be perpetrated on more children? This is bad for education and bad politics since so many Texans oppose this bill. Tim Dunn’s money won’t protect your seat when people start realizing their children are being hurt

SHMUEL KARP

self

Houston, TX

I am writing in strong support of Texas House Bill 3 (HB 3) by Representative Brad Buckley. This bill is a crucial step toward expanding educational opportunities for Texas families by creating an Education Savings Account (ESA) program. HB 3 recognizes that every child has unique learning needs and that parents, not the government, are best positioned to make decisions about their children's education.

For many religious families, particularly within the Jewish community, education is not just about academics but also about values, traditions, and faith. Jewish families have a long history of prioritizing education, often seeking schools that align with their religious beliefs and cultural heritage. Unfortunately, the financial burden of private or religious schooling can be overwhelming, forcing many families to choose between their faith and access to a quality education. HB 3 helps address this challenge by allowing parents to use ESA funds toward tuition at religious schools, ensuring that children can receive an education that nurtures both their intellect and their spiritual identity.

The Torah teaches us that educating our children is one of the greatest responsibilities we have. Proverbs 22:6 states, "Train up a child in the way he should go, and even when he is old, he will not depart from it." HB 3 honors this principle by providing families with the freedom to choose schools that reinforce the moral and ethical values they hold dear. In a state that respects religious liberty, it is essential that parents are not financially penalized for wanting an education that aligns with their faith.

Furthermore, school choice is a matter of fairness. Families who pay taxes to support public education should have the ability to direct those funds toward the educational environment that best serves their children. HB 3 ensures that low-income and middle-class families have the same opportunities as wealthier families who can already afford private school tuition. By passing this bill, Texas will be taking a bold step in empowering parents, fostering educational excellence, and upholding the religious freedoms that our nation was founded upon.

For these reasons, I strongly urge the Texas Legislature to support and pass HB 3. This bill is a vital investment in the future of Texas children, allowing them to learn, grow, and thrive in an environment that reflects their family's values. Thank you for considering this comment, and I appreciate your dedication to the well-being of Texas families.

Monica Ramirez

Family

Allen, TX

As a mom of 4 children 2 currently in Tx public schools I oppose HB 3 & SB 2

Candy Noble hope you vote NO to HB 3 & SB 2

Jessica Gomez

Self

Buda, TX

I do not support of giving public funding to private schools.

laurie bennett

Self -teacher

El Paso, TX

Homeschoolers do not want this bill! This is taking away the freedom we have of homeschooling and knowing what is best for our children.

Shaina Marasow

Self

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them

Glyness Poblete

Self

SACHSE, TX

I am against the voucher program. I reside in a district with no charter schools and we continue to have high performing PUBLIC schools that provide access to those in the area who need it. All without vouchers. Public schools can and do thrive when given proper funding and attention. The needed findig ng and attention have shifted to the private sector leaving our public schools in need. Keep our tax dollars in the hands of the people who truly need it, not line the pockets of private investors/ institutions

Yosef Meyer, Mr.

Agudat Israel of America

Houston, TX

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Kelsey Dieterle

Self

Dallas, TX

I disagree with taking funding away from children and public schools in Texas.

Nechama Marsow

Self

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Larysa Mysyk

Mother of 3 kids

Austin, TX

Private schools funding will destroy home values, public education system, and will prohibit mothers to have any career due to scheduling. Vote no for voucher programs! Fully fund public schools!! Create programs for knowledge progression, focus on stem, these are jobs that are desperately needed to fill here is US, so we do not need to buy talent from other countries! Fund gifted programs! Fund and develop students in science education! Focus on the job market! Public schools focus on teaching religion not skills that are needed to survive in this world, stop setting up US citizens for lower level of education!

Levi Teldon
Self
San Antonio, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.*

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

*Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Aquiel Warner
self
Pflugerville, TX

Dear members of the committee: My name is Aquiel Warner, and I am proof of what funding our public schools can achieve. I attended a public elementary, middle, and high school in the Austin area, and now I have the honor and privilege to be the first member of my extended family to attend medical school, here in Austin, so that I can become a primary care physician and pursue my passion for rural healthcare. The annual cost of my local, private catholic schools is $8,000-11,875, affordable compared to most private schools, but even at $8000, the ESA does not cover the cost of transportation and potentially lost wages parents must take on to get their children to a local private school. ESA's won't help students who need help the most to leave failing schools, it'll only help families who already have the means, or close to the means to afford a private education. Meanwhile, programs like orchestra and robotics that first fostered my creativity and curiosity, and public school teachers like Mr. Rivers, who was the first teacher ever to make me feel and believe that I was intelligent, will begin to disappear from our public schools as their funding is chipped away by these ESA's. We can say ESA's won't touch school funding, but part of public school funding is dependent on school attendance, so fewer students means less money for the school, and less money recaptured from wealthier districts to go to helping schools that serve some of our neediest students, including rural schools. For students with disabilities, private schools are not required by law to provide accommodations, so these parents will have no legal recourse when a private school decides to end and declines to provide further support for a student. If you want students in need to succeed like myself, ESA's are not the answer. The answer includes funding more programs in our public schools to address achievement gaps, committing more resources to support students with disabilities, offering more programs to reward teachers who pursue additional degrees and certifications to become better at teaching, and paying our teachers better, so that they stay and inspire students like me to keep pushing to achieve our dreams.

ELIMELECH LITVINTCHOUK
Self
HOUSTON, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Uma Batna
Self
Austin, TX

I strongly believe Public school funding should be used for public schools only in Texas

William Lane

Self - Student

Houston, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

I respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because as a student of a public high school in Texas, numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force. HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents, including my own, already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents. Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools. I support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot. This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.

Thank you!

William "Arch" Lane

Carol Wetterauer

self retired RN

katy, TX

My name is Carol Wetterauer

Katy, Texas 77450

I oppose the passage of HB 3.

12 years ago my kids chose to buy a home in Katy ISD because of quality schools. They chose despite having to pay extra in property taxes, for the sake of providing an excellent education for their now 6 kids.

5 years ago my husband and I also moved to Katy ISD to be close to our grandkids. We were ok paying extra in property taxes because again, those taxes meant wonderful schools for our kids.

Today, I'm angry. The promotion of vouchers by our Texas legislators will lead to even higher taxes, decreased home value, and we will no longer have quality education for our kids.

I know this because the money for vouchers won't come from Texas' $23 billion surplus, but from money already allotted to our public schools. Because 73% of Texas schools are already underfunded it won't take long to see negative results. These would be school buildings in disrepair, fewer buses for the kids, fewer teachers due to low wages leading to crowded classrooms. These things are already happening in parts of rural Texas, and in voucher states such as Indiana, Florida, and Arizona.

Kenneth Heydrick, Dr.

Self - retired educator; 37 years

Austin, TX

I Oppose HB3 on Savings Accounts – Harmful to Public Education

Vouchers by any name take public funds and use them for private schools. I view vouchers as a scam with names such as education savings accounts, tax credit scholarships, or school choice programs.

Our Texas public schools are already underfunded, and our teachers are seeing the harmful affects of subpar funding. The Texas accountability program, called STAAR, will not be required of these voucher schools. In an age of rigorous standards, we need consistent and uniform accountability to demonstrate progress to parents and our communities. Lastly, voucher schools offer limited services to students and limited enrollment practices.

Texas already offers charter schools, which are a subset of public schools. Accountability and transparency of these charter operators are sometimes called into question.

Please remember that Article 7 of the Texas Constitution makes it clear that Texas taxpayers are only responsible for free PUBLIC schools.

Research shows that voucher programs often fail to serve students from disadvantaged or marginalized backgrounds. Vouchers are risky for rural schools and for students with special needs.

Please OPPOSE HB3 that calls for school savings accounts. Texas has REJECTED vouchers for decades. If parents want to send their children to private schools, then those parents should set up their own saving accounts, instead of using Texas PUBLIC school funds as their own school slush fund. Texans deserve strong and well-funded PUBLIC schools.

Thank you for your time and commitment to Texas PUBLIC schools.

Sincerely,

Kenneth Heydrick, EdD

Austin - 512-297-4030 – kheydrick@att.net

Kathryn Poth

Self

Austin, TX

Ladies and gentlemen,

I am asking that you vote against this bill and any other bill that leads to destroying our public schools. My tax money is to go to all the children. We used to have great schools systems in this state until the governor and legislature began cutting funding for public schools. I completely disagree with these new proposals for private school funding. As a Lifelong Texan, Voter and Tax Payer, I hope that you will stand up and do what is right for the children of public schools, oppose HB3

Sincerely,

Kathryn Poth

Kyle Dunn, Mr.

Self

Magnolia, TX

Any attempt to improve the safety of schools is a hollow gesture without addressing the root cause, the funding of schools. Class sizes will continue to grow and lead to more issues with closing of schools, cutting of positions, and deterring would-be educators from coming into the profession. Properly funded schools is a right given by law, school choice is exactly that...a choice, not something that should take away from what our citizens deserve. School choice would fail miserably in a public vote and has in many states, cowards pass legislation that they think is best for the few. The supposed underperforming of public schools was an intentional plan by continuing to underfund them. Stand up for ALL kids and hard working teachers by giving them a fighting chance. Fund public schools by closing the inflation gap with basic allotment increase of $1400 per student and increase incentives based on long-term success basis, not 1 years STAAR.

Dinah Miller

Self

Dallas, TX

Texas taxpayers are not responsible for private school tuition according to Texas Constitution Article 7. You swore an oath to God to uphold our constitution. Vouchers are about greed and segregation. Vouchers are immoral and unethical. Jeff Yass profiting off our tax dollars is scandalous. Vote against voucher scams.

Karenie Lee

Self

Spring, TX

We are a homeschool family and we greatly oppose this bill!

Areli Juarez

Self

Pearland, TX

I do not support this bill. As it is our public school systems are suffering from lack of funding and not having enough teachers. Allocating the money elsewhere would only benefit the private schools and divide funding. It will not benefit our children's education. We need to increase funding to our public schools and focus on making public education better instead of abandoning public education.

Shlomo Braun, Rabbi

Chabad of Lubbock

Lubbock, TX

Please support the HB3 and the education savings program.

As a Rabbi for the Jewish community, I can testify first hand how critical it is to allow all citizens to choose their school that will allow with the teachings of their faith and tradition.

Thank you for your support!

Mary Bouldin
Self, Attorney
Shallowater, TX

As a product of public education and a parent of 2 children attending public school, I absolutely do NOT support this bill. Private schools were created to be funded and run by private citizens/entities. The goal was, and still is, to be different from public school. They are not subject to State regulations or testing, and therefore have no place receiving State funding. As far as arguing for school choice, there is already school choice. Anyone can choose to send their child to public or private school. How that is funded, is no business of the State. Private schools have the option to offer scholarships to students who cannot afford to attend. Whether or not they choose to do so, is up to them. If the argument is that private schools offer "better" education or more opportunities, then I think that a closer look needs to be taken at the funding of public education. If there is such a disparity, why is that? If vouchers are the way to go, then let's give every child a $10,000 voucher to be used at their school of choice-public or private. That would allow true choice, correct? The fact that our elected officials have voiced their support for this bill, loud and proud, is a huge disappointment and honestly, a disgrace. I implore you to be better, to do better. For your constituents, but even more importantly, for the children.

Zachary Shanklin
Self
Cleburne, TX

It should be put into the record that the overwhelming majority of private schools do not admit children with Special Needs. Perhaps before voting on this, there should be bills introduced that either force these entities to create those functions (if they are now going to be seeing tax payer funds) or publicly admit we are forgetting these kids in this process.

Elisha Fishman
Self
Houston, TX

Every child in Texas deserves the education that's best for them and who better to decide than their parents. Property tax paying families should benefit from education dollars helping their own children as well.

Ryan Hernandez
Self
Houston, TX

As a mom of a special education student I morally cannot accept vouchers for my homeschool/private school child. My Christian up bringing taught me to give to those in need. If you have enough money to send your child to private school you have no business taking away from those who cannot afford to. Furthermore, rural areas are already desperately under funded and lacking the key resources to provide for their students. Schools in rural areas are the backbone of their communities and face the biggest threat of closures. Do not allow this bill to continue.

Gary West, Dr.
Self/a public school district
Selma, TX

Clearly, a reduction in funds for public schools means doing what we already do with fewer dollars. Instead of making the system financially leaner, the discussion should be about what can be done to improve the already existing system. Increases in pay, state insurance, etc. will help, for sure. So would exempting public schools means teachers from paying district property taxes. However, the removal of funds for vouchers and the like on an already strained system could break public education, and would certainly make it even more difficult to give a free and equitable education to our students. Do the right thing, vote no for vouchers.

Zach Freeman
self, father of 3
Grapevine, TX

As a taxpayer and a parent of children in the Texas public school system I am against the voucher scam. Creating a new government entity that will siphon billions of taxpayer dollars into private schools is not the way to address concerns with public education, especially since our public schools have gone underfunded for years.

Lezlea Ross
Self not employed
Bryan, TX

As a voter and resident of Texas with grandchildren attending public school in Brazos County, Cameron County, and in Harris County I do not support an Education Savings Account Program, School Voucher Program nor the de-funding of Public Education in Texas. Funding public schools is very important in the counties where my grandchildren attend school and in the rural areas of TX. Texas should be putting more funding into our public school systems. Isn't that what TX Lottery proceeds are supposed to be helping to fund? Please consider what's best for ALL the children of Texas. The establishment of an education savings account Program in Texas is not in the best interest of the children of Texans.

Steven Powell
self, physician
Austin, TX

This is an unconscionable power and money grab by private schools and their rich patrons, to gobble up as much public funding as they can, and without any oversight or accountability. Please stand strong against this BS

Rebecca Stephens
Self
Austin, TX

I do not support this bill. This bill does provide equal education opportunities for Texas students!

James Tyson Carthel

Self

Plainview, TX

Dear Members of the Texas House of Representatives,

As an award-winning educator with years of classroom experience, I write to express my strong opposition to the proposed School Voucher Bills currently under consideration. These bills represent a fundamental misdiagnosis of the challenges facing Texas education and would divert crucial resources away from the public education system that serves the vast majority of Texas children.

The Real Crisis in Texas Education

The narrative that public schools are failing Texas students is fundamentally flawed. Rather, it is our policy priorities that are failing our public schools. The evidence is clear:

Teacher Compensation Crisis: Texas educators are drastically underpaid compared to professionals with similar education and qualifications. This creates a self-perpetuating cycle where experienced educators leave the profession while potential excellent teachers choose other career paths.

Resource Allocation Issues: Too often, educational funding is diverted away from classroom instruction and teacher compensation. We must examine whether funds are supporting quality teaching or are disproportionately allocated to administrative positions and extracurricular programs.

Certified vs. Uncertified Instruction: The current system increasingly relies on uncertified or inadequately prepared teachers to fill vacancies, particularly in critical subject areas. This undermines educational quality and student outcomes.

Why Vouchers Are Not the Solution

Diverting public education funds to private institutions through voucher programs will:

Further deplete already strained public school budgets

Benefit primarily those families already privileged enough to supplement vouchers with additional resources

Lack accountability measures that ensure all Texas children receive quality education

Abandon our collective responsibility to maintain excellent public education for all

A Better Path Forward

Instead of undermining public education through vouchers, I urge the Texas Legislature to:

Substantially increase teacher compensation to competitive professional levels

Implement accountability measures that ensure educational funds reach classrooms and quality instruction

Strengthen certification requirements and provide meaningful professional development

Address inequities in school funding formulas that disadvantage schools serving our most vulnerable students

The responsibility for any shortcomings in Texas public education lies not with dedicated teachers or the institution of public education itself, but with policies that have systematically undervalued and underfunded this essential public good. The Texas Education Agency and state government must fulfill their constitutional obligation to provide adequate support for public education rather than abandon it through privatization schemes.

Our children deserve better than vouchers. They deserve a fully funded, professionally staffed, equitable public education system.

Robert Winegar, Dr
Self retired radiologist
Temple, TX

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

- 1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.
- 2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.
- 3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.
- 4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot. This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.
Thank you!

Lori Heilig
Self, Mom
Flower Mound, TX

Taking money from public school will harm special education programs. Private schools are not required to accept special needs students or respect laws protecting their right to a fair education. My autistic child is doing great in his Pre-K program.

Kay Shepard, Dr.
Self
Lubbock, TX

Parents currently have school choice. If they choose homeschooling or private school, they should have to use their own funds. If homeschooling and private schools take state money, I am assuming they would also be required to teach specific curriculum and administer specific state tests as public school? This is why many parents homeschool or choose private school, so that they do not have to take STAAR tests. Public school teachers and students who attend public school deserve the very best education just as anyone else and should be given adequate funds to meet student needs and give them the best education.

Judith (Judy) Richardson

Leap of Joy

Austin, TX

16 years ago, I started Leap of Joy to give kids in poverty an opportunity they wouldn't have otherwise. We have survived every storm along the way but deprivation has had a profound effect. That is why a voucher system can only do more harm to the families who are struggling to send their children to public school. And yet, they attend Title 1 schools with few amenities and yet it is where the children get their exercise on the playground since their apartment complexes rarely have recreational facilities. Some may argue, but these are poor people. What is their value to us? Why are we paying for them? I would say because their families are the support system of our community cleaning the hotel rooms. Doing the laundry. Preparing the food. Cutting the grass. Taking care of your children and trimming your trees and all th myriad other things they do. Now, poor people are being squeezed even further as all of the working class families. As it is, the schools can barely maintain their circumstances. Teachers many times pay out of their own pockets for supplies. It's not at your own pocketbook you have to look but into your heart to do what's right. If you consider it, what are the benefits of a voucher program? Short of giving a nice gift to upper class and rich families so their kids can go to the best schools, everyone else is left behind. What's the result of that? Uneducated populous sit around, drink beer and play video games. Will they do the work that brown and black people do? Or will brown and black get the proper education that gives them an opportunity to succeed beyond football and basketball. Like it or not, this is not your grandfather's Texas and you can't deport anyone because you don't like their looks. Texas is the most marvelous mix of ethnicities of every stripe from El Paso to Houston, San Antonio or Dallas. We must come together beyond our own selfish needs and if, you truly call yourself a Christian practice the teachings of Jesus or call yourself something else. We all need to be reminded what Jesus actually said. Treat others as you wish to be treated. Love one another as I have loved you. Render unto Caesar what is Caesar's and God what is Gods. Honor the separation. Please say no to the vouchers. The public school system may not be perfect, but it is available to all. Many places in Texas are remote. This would be difficult for them. This is the moment to decide what's at stake for the future and the consequences of your actions. Please do the right thing. Thank you

Laura Cortines

Self

Pflugerville, TX

Do not take money from the public schools. Most American civilians can not afford to put their children in private schools. Our public schools are where our tax dollars should be going. Not a expensive private school that teaches their religion.

Courtney Gray

Self

Whitehouse, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Lauren Blondeau

self

Leander, TX

Vote NO on HB 3. Don't take away money from our public schools!

Natasha Bryant

Self

Leander, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

- 1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.
- 2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.
- 3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.
- 4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot. This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.
Thank you!

Cyndi Norris, Mrs.

self

Canyon, TX

I am writing in regards to HB3. I believe that all Texas students deserve strong, well-funded public schools. I'm asking that you ensure all schools that receive state funding are held to the same transparency requirements, accountability standards, and enrollment practices as public schools.

Breanne Hause, Mrs.

self/homeschool parent and teacher

Houston, TX

I have homeschooled my children for 12 years, now, and I oppose this bill.

Sherri Smetana

Self

Austin, TX

Stop the voucher program!!!!

This is not school choice-it's an annihilation of public school and no choice except for the wealthy! Look at the states that have done this and failed! Texas is known for its wonderful public schools-please don't let us fail!

Fund our public schools!

David Kinnison

Self

Lubbock, TX

In a way this is subsidizing private schools and should not happen. The rich trying to find a new way to keep more of their money. I went to a private school that my parents paid for because it was a privilege to go to that type of school. Again, my parents paid for it and I also offered it to my son but he was happy in public school. This seems to be a way to pour money into private schools and not use it for our public school systems that could really benefit from that money going to them. I don't like to see my tax dollars going to this type of funding.

Sally Lehr
Self
Houston, TX

This bill will decimate public schools. Stop it.

Lesdy Canales
Self
Round rock, TX

I am writing to you today as a concerned Texan. Please vote no to school vouchers that would divert tax payer money to private and wealthy schools. As this would prove detrimental to those students and teachers that already don't have enough funds to operate at a higher level. I want all children in Texas to be successful as these children will be our future workforce.

Sarah Stayer, Dr.
Self- physician
Austin, TX

To the Honorable Members of the Texas House of Representatives,

I am a born-and-raised Texan, who attended public K-12. I have two kiddos in public school right now. Both of our children have a 504 disability and have been well supported in Texas public schools.

I am writing to express my deep concern regarding House Bill 3, which proposes the implementation of a school voucher program in Texas. While the intention behind this bill may be to provide more educational options for families, the evidence from other states suggests that such programs often have detrimental effects on public education and the students they aim to serve. In states like Arizona, Ohio, and Louisiana, voucher programs have led to significant budget shortfalls, academic declines, and unequal access to quality education. For instance, Arizona's universal voucher program has resulted in a $1.4 billion budget deficit, impacting other critical public projects. In Ohio and Louisiana, students using vouchers have shown significant academic losses compared to their peers in public schools.

In Texas, the proposed voucher program poses several specific challenges:

1. Financial Impact on Public Schools: Vouchers would divert essential funds from public schools, exacerbating existing budget deficits and potentially leading to school closures and reduced educational programs. Texas already ranks low in per-pupil spending, and further reductions would worsen this situation.
2. Lack of Accountability: Unlike public schools, private schools receiving vouchers are not required to adhere to the same accountability standards, such as the STAAR test, which could lead to uneven educational outcomes.
3. Selective Admissions: Private schools can choose which students to accept, potentially excluding those with disabilities or lower academic performance, which contradicts the goal of providing equal opportunities.
4. Inequitable Access: Many areas in Texas lack private school options, making vouchers impractical for families in those regions.

In light of these concerns, I urge you to reconsider the implementation of HB 3 and instead focus on strengthening and adequately funding our public education system. This would ensure that all Texas students have access to quality education, regardless of their background, disability or location.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
Sarah Stayer

miriam cotlar
self, accountant
houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Ken Fisher

Self, Software Quality Assurance

Austin, TX

I am adamantly against a school voucher program wherein public funds are directed towards private education. Public schools are worth every dollar of an investment for a consistent and expected level of performance and proficiency for every student and member of our society. Increasing public school funding is the answer to better education, not moving those funds to private schools.

Yitzchok Kolodny

self, CPA

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Suzanne Barnett

Self

Goliad, TX

I don't support vouchers. I vote republican.

Gold Iwe

Self and college graduate

Sugar Land, TX

Its immoral, wrong, and damn right evil.

Natalie Kretsch, Dr.

self

Austin, TX

Dear Education committee

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the use of vouchers and Education Savings Accounts (ESAs) as a means of funding education. These programs divert crucial resources away from public schools, undermining their ability to serve all students equitably.

I respectfully request the following changes to improve the funding structure for education:

1. Increase the Basic Allotment to $7,500: The current funding allocation is insufficient to meet the needs of students and educators. Raising the basic allotment to $7,500 would better support our schools and allow for more equitable access to quality education.
2. Determine Funding by Enrollment, Not Attendance: Funding should be based on student enrollment rather than attendance. This would provide more consistent and predictable funding for schools, allowing them to plan and allocate resources effectively, even in times of fluctuating attendance.
3. Tie Funding to Inflation: Education funding should be adjusted annually based on inflation rates. This would ensure that the value of the funding keeps pace with the rising costs of education, maintaining its purchasing power over time.
4. Ensure Funding for All Current and Future Mandates: All current and future state or federal mandates should be fully funded to avoid placing additional burdens on schools. This would ensure that schools can comply with legal requirements without sacrificing other essential services.

I hope you will consider these requests as part of ongoing efforts to improve the education system. Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

Sara Janes

Self, lawyer

Austin, TX

I support public education and oppose the diversion of any funds.

Marissa Finkelman

self - teacher

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Paige Giordano

Self

Kyle, TX

As a Texas voter and resident, the voucher program is a horrible idea. Public schools should be funded more to improve them, this voucher system will take away funds from an already underfunded (NECESSARY) education system. I was brought up in the public schools in Texas. I truly believe that the "no child left behind" by George bush is what made schools so bad, why so many people want to go to private. I am also aware that if the voucher system goes through, each voucher is $10,000, while the schools typically get only $8,000 per child. The math is not equal here, and it leads to assumptions that the government is purposefully trying to defund public schools, and in-term plunge the literacy rates in our state. Please put the money you would plan to give to voucher students back to the schools, pay teachers more, and allow teachers to hold kids back when they don't meet the requirements for each grade.

Ashley Goldman

Self

Austin, TX

Hello, my name is Ashley Goldman and I am a resident in 78731 zip code. I am asking my representative to vote NO on HB3. I want a fully funded public education, not welfare for the wealthy. Thank you.

Barbara Shadden

Barbara Shadden

Stephenville, TX

I am a retired public school teacher. I currently work for a private school to supplement my income. I am a parent of a child who could have benefitted from a private school education, but it was not within my budget. I pay property tax to my local public school district of a little over $3700 per year. I vote every election. I've taken the time to understand HB 3. My observation is that the allotment that could be provided to parents for private school from taxpayer dollars is not sufficient to cover private school tuition. It would not have allowed me to send my child to private school. The remainder of private school tuition beyond what the HB 3 provides was not within a public school teacher's budget. When I look around the private school where I currently work, those families fall into 2 categories: They can easily afford it, or They make financial sacrifices to afford it. While both those groups would love to have Texas taxpayers cover some of their child's tuition, they are not dependent on public assistance to do so. Many families who would love to have their child in private school cannot cover the remainder of the tuition.

I believe HB 3 benefits the wealthier families of Texas and does not benefit lower income families. Those families will still have their children in public school. Please consider who you are trying to serve. The upper income families are already doing very well. They are not in need of state assistance. Please vote NO on HB 3.

Thomas Cruciani

Myself

Dallas, TX

HB3 will be detrimental for our Public school and the student s attending them. It encourages practices that should have long stayed in the past but economically encouraging forms of school segregation.

A lot more is asked of public school teachers than of private school ones and yet the funding of public schools is going to be taken, long term, from the kids that need it most and with less supervision for what is being taught. HB3 is not in the best interest of Texans.

Viki Lacy

Myself- retired grandmother of 4

San Angelo, TX

Please do not pass this voucher proposal, which will only result in taking public monies and putting them in the pockets of the wealthy. Please fund and protect our VITAL public education system.

Melanie Atkinson

Self

Arlington, TX

Please say no to vouchers. Public education was my ticket out of poverty. Now I've given my life in public education in service of students looking to pursue their version of the American dream. Education is the great equalizer. Public education is the only place where every student has the chance to learn, earn a diploma, and better themselves towards a future for them and their family. Vouchers will endanger that. Please no vouchers! If you really believe vouchers are worth it, put it in the ballot and let the people decide.

Charlotte Gilman

self

Austin, TX

Dear Education Committee Members,

It behooves me as a property-tax payer, a retired teacher, a volunteer in public schools, and a citizen of this state of Texas interested in the important matter of the education of our precious children to share with you my opinion related SB3 as it relates to the critical matter of the financial support for our public school system, which serves 90% of our K-12 school children.

First of all, I believe our public money should go to supporting public schools not to those who have the means to send their children to private schools or people seeking to capitalize on income from private education.

It's bad enough that this richest state in the country is at the bottom among states in our funding of public education. Considering a proposal for vouchers, which would mean siphoning huge sums of tax dollars from public school funding, is unconscionable. Public schools are underfunded by billions of dollars each year. Funding has not been increased as costs have. An extremely high percentage (73%) of all Texas school districts are currently underfunded, and for 17% underfunding is extreme. Additionally, what sense does it make financially to fund two educational bureaucracies? Certainly, increasing funding for public schools and their teachers is where the emphasis should be.

My research convinces me that the voucher system proposed in SB3, and actually any voucher or education savings account program that might be proposed, would work to destroy/hurt our public school system in Texas as it has in a variety of ways where it has been adopted.

My daughter went to Bastrop public schools not only because that was what was available to us and what we could afford at that time but also because we believed in public schools. The "voucher" wouldn't have helped. She got a sound educational foundation and went on to study at Northwestern and Columbia Law School and now teaches at UT Law school.

Surely, the idea of equal opportunity for all is a basic American principle held by us all and giving more to those who already have more doesn't meet that ideal. A recent survey (A to Z research) of 1,275 likely midterm voters in Texas) found majorities, being concerned about effect on local public schools and property taxes, oppose private school vouchers even under euphemistic labels.

In Texas, we have fought against and defeated proposals to install programs such as HB3 in years past because our legislators have had the wisdom to believe in the concept and ideal of a public school system. I hope that will be the case again this time!

?

?

Dear Education Committee Members,

It behooves me as a property-tax payer, a retired teacher, a volunteer in public schools, and a citizen of this state of Texas interested in the important matter of the education of our precious children to share with you my opinion related SB3 as it relates to the critical matter of the financial support for our public school system, w

Ashley Carthel

Plainview ISD

Plainview, TX

Big fat no! You vote for vouchers you are telling teachers they are worthless and useless. So glad I went into debt getting my degree for rich people to continue filling their pockets while my children may or may not get fed because of the lack of payment I get. Crazy how YOU yourselves didn't get the positions you are in without an educator.... And now you are treating us like crap on the bottom of your shoe. Shame on you.

Saadyah Averick

Self

Dallas, TX

I fully support this bill and want it passed to support my special needs son and other children to achieve a fulfilled and enriched educational experience in the great state of Texas.

Taylor Carriker-Cavin

Self, Teacher

Austin, TX

I'm a teacher in Austin ISD. I'm also a military brat who graduated from an underfunded Killeen ISD school. Additionally, I've seen firsthand how charter schools operate—I worked for one for seven years.

They are businesses. Decisions are based on profit, not on what's best for children. Private schools will not be different.

They will take public money without the accountability that comes with serving all students.

HB3 claims that 80% of vouchers will be prioritized for low-income and special education students—

You're familiar with the Child Find obligation.

Private schools are not required to conduct evaluations or provide the same level of special education services. Instead, it is the local public school district that must step in and conduct ongoing evaluations and provide services.

I hear that private schools have students with special education needs— however in just the past school year, I have been on two ARD committees for students who weren't enrolled at my school.

Their parents had chosen to homeschool or send them to private school, yet it was still my public school's funds that paid for the legal responsibility to conduct their full special education evaluations, and host committee meetings to decide appropriate service timelines.

The public school is paying the salary of the evaluator, the special education teacher, the grade level teacher on the committee, and any associated service providers like SLPs, OTs, PTs.

There is no parent contract that is going to make a private school provide services when they utilize the LEA to legally provide!

And if a private school decides it cannot accommodate a child with disabilities?

They will simply deny admission.

Where does that leave our schools in 5 years, 10 years? Gen ed students have gone to private schools, and our schools are segregated by ability.

So, if HB3 is truly about supporting special education students, why are we diverting money away from the schools legally required to serve them? The Chronic Underfunding of our schools is causing the problems hb3 proposes to pay private schools to solve. What could 7 billion dollars do to create the environment parents are seeking in a private school?

This bill doesn't provide choice or competition— it allows taxpayer dollars to flow into private institutions with no legal responsibility to our most vulnerable populations. By the way, competition does not improve anything. Research shows that collaboration is what drives innovation, competition does not.

HB3 isn't about helping students or giving families "choice."

It's about segregation and moving public money into private hands while public schools are left with fewer resources and more responsibilities.

I urge you to stand with Texas educators and reject this bill.

Thank you for your time.

Lauren Piroso
Leander ISD
Cedar Park, TX

I live in Cedar Park, Texas and I strongly oppose Educational Savings Accounts (ESAs) and urge you to focus on supporting public schools, which serve 5.5 million Texas students.

ESAs divert vital funding from public schools, worsen budget shortfalls, and increase disparities, particularly in low-income areas. Private schools funded by ESAs lack transparency and accountability, risking misuse of taxpayer money. ESAs primarily benefit wealthier families, leaving low-income, rural and disabled students in underfunded public schools. They also risk increasing segregation by allowing private schools to exclude marginalized groups including disability populations.

Please prioritize funding public education for the benefit of all Texas students.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Lauren Piroso

Allison Hartman
Self
Austin, TX

Hello, my name is Allison Hartman and I am a constituent in zip code 78735. I am writing to voice my opposition to HB 3. I am asking my Representative and this Committee to vote no and to instead fully fund public education. We already have meaningful school choice in Texas - what we need are resources so that our public schools can deliver the education that each child in Texas deserves, and that which has already been mandated, with accountability and due process ensuring that delivery. We do not need resources for privatized schools to thrive with no or little accountability to the public. I don't believe proponents of this bill can point to any examples of similar laws in other states achieving any of the objectives that are the supposed motivation for this bill. To the contrary, voucher systems like this are a failed experiment, and if this bill moves forward, this will predictably harm more families than it helps. Thank you.

Laura Hoelewyn
Self
Nacogdoches, TX

I am against the school voucher program. Tax payer dollars should not be going to private schools and public schools should not be given less than private schools per student. Public tax dollars for public school students only!

Jhalima Ibrahim
Self
Houston, TX

Please reconsider this bill. It hurts public schools and the education of economically disadvantaged students. Please do not pass this bill.

Instead, allocate more money to fund our schools, to increase teacher accountability.

Tricia Gronnevik
Self
San Antonio, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a native Texan, 5th generation, whose entire family are products of the public education system, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution.

Victoria Rodriguez

Self

San Antonio, TX

I do not agree with my tax dollars being used to fund expensive private schools. I think this will encourage private schools to raise their prices in order to gouge money from tax paying dollars. I think we should use these funds to improve the lives of children where they are at currently.

Tobi Cornell

Self

Murphy, TX

Please do NOT approve vouchers for the state of TX. Doing so will make public education suffer. We need to increase funding to our public schools, increase teacher pay, and focus on the vast majority of students in TX who cannot afford to go to private schools. Vouchers of $10k for each student will not help that family pay for 4+ years of private school, as this would not cover tuition, and private schools will begin raising prices which will make them even more unaffordable. What the state of TX needs to do is prioritize public education and make sure that every student, regardless of finances or background, can get the best education possible in our public school system. Please say NO to vouchers!

Clara Reyes, house wife

self

Muleshoe, TX

I was a teacher last year, I am at home with my new baby right now. I vote no for vouchers! Teachers need a raise! I doubt I will return to teaching. It is not a well paying job and insurance is extremely expensive. If you want teachers back in the classroom, give more money to districts to pay teachers. Private schools do not need the money, rich people do not a coupon (taxpayer money) to take their kids to school

Julia Wynn

Self

Austin, TX

As a Travis County property taxpayer of over 30 years, I respectfully ask that my dollars continue to go to public schools. I am opposed to the private school vouchers that will take my money away from the public schools that I have supported for many years. My own child, now 19 years old benefited from public schools and now is a successful college student. The programs in elementary, middle and high school benefited our family and I enjoyed working for public schools for 9 years as a positive contribution to our community. Please do not take money from our public schools. Austin ISD would have to pay a huge chunk that they desperately need, not to mention how the rural school districts would suffer. These communities need their public schools. People that opt for private schools should pay for that. We people that benefit from public schools, need this money for higher education should that be what is right for our child or children. Stealing from public schools to help people send a child to private schools should not be an option, should they feel such a need. There are other ways. Also, special education in public schools will suffer tremendously should this bill be passed. Many people rely heavily on this. I am a huge supporter of The ROSEDALE School & the AISD school for the deaf. Please don't take from our community schools. It is cruel and heartless.

David Duffy

Self

Dallas, TX

Private schools are private and no tax dollars should be spent on private schools. Public schools are public and free due to public taxes. Please do not use vouchers!!!!

Tammy Loran

Self

Cisco, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Daniel Gross

Self

Houston, TX

Please support this bill to allow me to choose how to best educate my children

Jennifer Hanner

Self-teacher

Abilene, TX

I am opposed to tax dollar funding being used to fund private school vouchers. This will be extremely damaging to the majority of the students who will be in public education. Private schools only accept students that they choose, and public school funding should be increased and not decreased. Myself and every single teacher I know are opposed. Politicians should listen to the majority of their constituents who are opposed rather than the billionaires pushing for this tax break for the wealthy who already have their kids in private schools.

Jillian Stanley

Self

Waxahachie, TX

I strongly disagree with HB3. I have a kindergartner and a soon to be kindergartener attending public school in Waxahachie ISD. Please do not give more money to those seeking private school education. This will not be real "choice". It is not a fair "choice" when the private schools have the power. Private schools can deny admission to any child for any reason they want. Private schools do not have to provide transportation or special education services. The majority of counties in Texas do not even have a private school option! Texas families need more money for their already struggling public schools, not a voucher that will cover a small portion to attend a school they don't even have access to, or could not afford even with a voucher. The vouchers will not completely cover the cost for private school attendance, so all it will do is give a discount to already wealthy families. HB3 will bankrupt our public schools. I am fine with private schools, and I know they are a great option for some families (close family and friends of mine) that have the financial means to attend them, but public dollars are for public schools. You will be using the tax dollars of my hardworking family and neighbors to fund benefits for the already wealthy. Our community has multiple FREE public charter school options should they choose to attend one of those. Things look good on paper, but reality is rarely the same. I'm sure you know how the same data can be used for either side of an argument. It just depends which pieces one chooses to share. Please vote in favor of our public schools. No matter how much voucher money you try to provide, public schools will still serve a majority of Texas students. Please vote accordingly. Thank you.

Chris Hinkelman, Administrative Assistant

Magnolia ISD

Magnolia, TX

Support Public Ed all the way with funding. We have a great public ed system that our forefathers set up and it works as long as it is funded properly. Just because other states have vouchers doesn't mean Texas needs to. Since when has Texas done something because another state is doing it? We haven't. That's why so many people are moving to Texas because we don't operate like everyone else does. Please don't support this Bill regarding ESA/vouchers because Governor Abbott wants you too. Vote against it because that is what your constituents want. That is who you answer to. Abbott is only wanting this because of who is pressuring him to do it, his out of state donors. You as our representatives need to do what the people in your area/districts voted you in to do. Be our voice. Everyone is commenting loud and clear not to pass ESA/vouchers. Please listen. Do Not Vote for ESA/Vouchers.

Nancy Lacoste

self

Austin, TX

As a concerned parent of school-aged children in Texas, I strongly oppose HB3 and its voucher provisions. This bill would fundamentally undermine our public education system while failing to deliver on its promises.

Public schools are the cornerstone of our communities and provide education to ALL Texas children, regardless of background, ability, or circumstance. By diverting taxpayer funds to private institutions, HB3 would strip essential resources from already underfunded public schools that serve over 5 million Texas students. The projected fiscal impact of this voucher program would create an unsustainable financial burden on our public education system for years to come.

Private schools receiving these vouchers would remain largely unaccountable to taxpayers. Unlike public schools, they aren't required to meet the same standards for academic achievement, teacher certification, or special education services. They can reject students based on disabilities, religion, academic performance, discipline history, or sexual orientation. This creates a troubling two-tiered system using public funds.

For rural communities, vouchers offer empty promises. Many areas have no private schools within reasonable distance, meaning rural families would subsidize private education for urban and suburban families while receiving no benefit themselves.

The proposed voucher amounts would cover only a fraction of private school tuition, making this program primarily beneficial to wealthier families who can afford to supplement the voucher. Meanwhile, families like mine would see our neighborhood schools lose funding, resulting in larger class sizes, fewer resources, and reduced educational opportunities.

States with similar programs have shown disappointing results. Please look at the data. They've experienced declining test scores, reduced educational quality, and increasing inequality. In some cases, fly-by-night private schools have emerged solely to collect voucher money without delivering quality education.

Rather than diverting funds away from public education, Texas should focus on fully funding our public schools so they can provide excellent education to every child. We should invest in smaller class sizes, competitive teacher salaries, modern facilities, and expanded educational programs.

I urge you to reject HB3 and instead support genuine educational improvement that benefits all Texas children. Our tax dollars should strengthen public schools that serve everyone, not subsidize private education for a few.

This isn't about school choice – it's about ensuring every Texas child has access to quality education. HB3 moves us in the wrong direction and will harm the vast majority of Texas students, including my own children. Please vote NO on HB3.

Blake Spencer
CONROE INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT
Conroe, TX

Protect Public Schools! DO NOT USE PUBLIC FUNDS TO SUBSIDIZE PRIVATE SCHOOLS! OUR SCHOOL DISTRICT JUST PASSED A 2 BILLION BOND AND NOW YOU WANT TO FUND PRIVATE SCHOOLS WHO AREN'T REQUIRED TO Participate in standardized testing. This is WRONG!!!!

Johanna Chen
self
Cedar Park, TX

My name is Johanna Chen and I am a parent and educator writing to express my strong opposition to HB 3 and any voucher legislation that diverts public taxpayer money toward private schooling. Vouchers have been tried before in other states and have been proven ineffective. Above all, public funds should be used to support all of Texas's kids, not provide welfare for the wealthy.

Ann Smith
Self - attorney
Mansfield, TX

I am wholeheartedly AGAINST this proposal. I don't care whether you call it an ESA or a voucher or a hot air balloon -- by any name it will decimate public education. Please vote against it -- Texas education is falling behind faster and faster, and this will only hurt us.

Matt Cruz
Self
Spring, TX

Doesnt represent teachers, Public education, or the lower class. Stop using kids as political pawns

Suzanne Payne
Public Schools
Lubbock, TX

School vouchers will hurt our lowest socio economic students the most. As a public school teacher of over 30 years, I have only taught in title 1 schools as I felt that was my calling. First of all, this bill will not be accessible to all students, although it may sound like it. Realistically, many students from lower income families have parents who work atypical hours. They would not have transportation to access a private school setting. Secondly, I feel if those funds were put back into our public schools, we could make them rival any private school in the state! If I should choose to hire a security team to protect my house, those funds should come out of my pocket. I would not expect those funds to be taken from our local police department to pay for that service. Tax payer money is to fund PUBLIC schools. Parents choosing a private education should be expected to fund that on their own. Interestingly, I have a friend who recently moved over to teaching in a private high school from public high school, and she was shocked to see that student who had spent time public school had far better reading skills than those who had attended private schools since kindergarten. I am in no way a proponent of the current STAAR test, but having accountability in public schools ensures that students have the skills needed to advance. If you have not spent time in a title 1 school, you can't imagine the deficits that are overcome to get students on grade level. But it takes a village! We have to give all public tax payer monies to public education. Lastly, I have seen many young teachers, great teachers, leaving the profession due to poor pay. Teaching is hard work and "heart" work. Those students are our children for 10 months out of the year. We know their favorite teams, their interests. We laugh with them, cry with them. And it rips our hearts out when we have to call CPS because of abuse. I've bought school supplies so every student has what they need. I've fixed a little girl's hair every morning when her mom didn't/couldn't take the time to do it. I've taken clothes home to wash when they were filthy. I've given coats to students without one. Teachers give their hearts and souls. Taking money away will hurt the ability to keep people in education. It's already hard enough to find educators. Please do not touch taxpayer money designated for public education. Thank you.

Christina Edwards

self

Austin, TX

As a tax paying citizen and constituent of Texas, I am opposed to HB3. I do not want school vouchers or school choice when the funding and our tax dollars should be going towards public schools as the priority. HB3 is not equitable and will benefit those who can already afford and already go to private schools. Keep tax dollars public.

Crystal Alarcon, Dr.

self

Muleshoe, TX

I vote no to Vouchers/school choice! Yes to teacher pay raise! We live in a small town, we do not have private schools closer than 150 miles. Does not pertain to all Texans. Only a few hundred students want a coupon to pay for their private school. Schools are very safe now with millions spent already. We are a blue ribbon school. Not all Texas want ESAs. This bill is not for every TEXANS

Kerry Ringgold, Mrs.

Joshua Christian Academy

Joshua, TX

The introduction of a school choice bill in Texas will foster healthy competition between public and private schools, ultimately improving the quality of education in both sectors. Parents should have the fundamental right to choose the best educational path for their children without being forced to financially support a public school system they do not utilize. School choice empowers families, encourages innovation, and ensures that every child has access to the education that best fits their needs.

Joni Freeman-Trudo

Self-Physician Assistant

San Antonio, TX

I am writing in reference to HB 3 and the fact that I DO NOT SUPPORT THIS BILL. I do not support the distribution of public funds to people for a private school education because the people who are attending private school can already afford private school. I am the parent of two children, one of which has a learning disability that requires special education interventions, and taking the funding away from public schools who can provide these services is detrimental to children, and it's detrimental to the teachers who the government says they support but their actions don't say that. This bill does anything but support students and families and teachers...it takes, it does not give. And furthermore calling this school choice is BS. This is not school choice because even if a child wants to attend private school that private school does not have to accept them. Also, that private school does not have to be held to any kind of standards educationally, health related such as vaccine requirements, etc. It doesn't even have to have teachers who are actually qualified to do the damn jobs. There's a reason Texas lags so low at the bottom behind every other state in education because the policies instituted by this government and this governor are not sound practices. If people want to go to private school, they can choose to go to private school and pay for it, but not with public funds. Public funds stay in the public sector. Please release them. Do not do this to the children of Texas and the teachers of Texas. This will be detrimental. It will fail this state in every way, and if you vote to push this through you should be voted out of office. Losing these funds in the public education sector will cause loss of fine arts, loss of athletics, and UIL programs which are meant to improve and prepare students to lead productive successful lives. It will harm teachers who will then lose their jobs, possibly their retirement because there won't be enough money to pay them. The public does not support this bill and it should die.

KATHY ALLEN

Self

BURLESON, TX

Dear Members of the Texas Legislature, thank you for this opportunity to express my thoughts concerning the use of tax dollars to create vouchers to help students pay for religious or private schools. I am against the use of my tax dollars for vouchers. I am against giving tax dollars to religious and private schools that have zero accountability to the state for receiving voucher funds. How can the state provide tax dollars to religious and private institutions and give them the freedom to do what they want with the funds without the same accountabilities and unfunded mandates that are placed on public schools? I am against the bureaucracy that would need to be created to distribute voucher funds to religious and private institutions. How many millions would it take to distribute the funds? A decision of this magnitude should not be made by a legislative body, instead, it should be placed on a ballot for taxpayers to decide how their tax dollars should be spent. Please listen to your constituents and give us a voice in this critical issue.

Ellen Winstead, Ms

Self

Houston, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.

HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.

Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.

We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot.

This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.

Thank you!

John Gordon and Ellen Winstead

Elizabeth Sepper

self

Austin, TX

I am writing in opposition to HB3. The massive diversion of funding to private schools will make the rich richer and impoverish schools all over the state. Studies have shown that states enacting such give aways to private schools lose money. Fewer children are educated for far more money. Educational outcomes do not improve. Kids already attending private schools receive subsidies and then the schools raise tuition. No one wins. It is fiscally irresponsible for the state and its legislature to throw our state budget surplus to billionaire funders seeking to enrich themselves through private schooling. And it's immoral to steal from our children and deprive them of an educational system that can work for all Texans.

Megan Rieck

Self

Spring, TX

Public funds should be used equitably to lift up our existing education system. We can improve lives by supporting teachers properly with pay increases and affordable healthcare. Students need support across multiple levels - security, materials, nutrition, recreation, and most importantly equal access to a rigorous and adaptable education. Private schools are a choice and a privilege that can stay in the private sector. Public schools deserve the full attention and financial support of the state. Keep public funds out of private schools.

Kendall Harrison

Self

Buffalo Gap, TX

I am writing on behalf of myself, fellow public school educators, parents, and concerned Texas citizens. As a mother, a public school history teacher, a taxpayer, a voter, and a deeply invested community member, I urge you to oppose HB2&3 and any other school voucher programs that threaten the future of public education in Texas.

Governor Abbott and the Senate have presented a misleading narrative regarding public school funding, but my administration and local school board can tell you a much different story—one that reflects the real struggles our schools face. HB2&3 would be detrimental to Texas public schools, redirecting taxpayer dollars away from public education to fund private institutions with little to no accountability.

Where is the oversight for private schools receiving these funds? What standardized assessments will their students take to ensure academic progress? How does this bill address concerns about the separation of church and state when public dollars are funneled into private religious schools? These are fundamental questions that remain unanswered.

The truth is, this bill does not serve the majority of Texas children. It primarily benefits families already attending private schools, while public school students—especially those in rural and lower-income communities—will continue to suffer from underfunding. There is no significant evidence that vouchers will lead to a large-scale shift of public school students into private schools. Instead, HB2&3 will divert crucial funds from the public education system, leaving teachers, students, and schools with fewer resources and greater challenges.

Public education is the backbone of our state, and it is our duty to protect and strengthen it, not weaken it with ineffective and inequitable policies. I urge you to vote against HB2&3 and any voucher program that prioritizes politics over the well-being of Texas children. Instead, let's focus on fully funding and improving our public schools, ensuring every child receives the quality education they deserve.

Thank you for your time and dedication to serving the people of Texas. I hope you will stand with educators, parents, and students by opposing HB2&3.

Sincerely,

Kendall Harrison

Abilene, TX

Clelia Pena

self

Richardson, TX

I oppose HB3 because I want fully funded public education. I am a teacher at a title 1 school and I see first hand the needs of our most vulnerable students in public school. We already are short on funds, schools are closing and programs are being cut. Please consider that in order for all students to have a better education, public schools need to be better funded. Thanks.

Wendy McCurley, Mrs

Self - Accounting

Austin, TX

I am a constituent from Austin, TX and am against vouchers and for fully funded, high quality, public education. These vouchers are essentially just 'coupons' for the people that already send their kids to private school. Also, many rural areas of our state don't even have private schools to send their children to. Already, 50% of the American population reads under a 6th grade level. Our tax dollars are much better spent to provide public education for all children in our state. Tax dollars should not be used for any private institution. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sarah Burgess, NONEOFTHESE

self - operations manager

Galveston, TX

I am a product of a Texas public school district. I am a success in my life because of the people, chances, programs, and opportunities attending public school afforded me. I grew up with a penchant for giving back to my community and carried that with me even when I moved away from my hometown school district. Now, I see my friends' children and kids I've known since they were born go through public school and benefit from programs and after-school curriculum that alleviates their parents' financial strain, that helps them learn and become better humans. The fact is that my hometown district growing up and my district now, which I contribute to as a tax payer and community member, these districts do not have readily available private schools who would accept any and all students applying to them. I want fully funded public education, not welfare for the wealthy. This educational savings account is nothing more than a billionaire-funded primary that unseated hardworking and clear-eyed Republicans out of their own seats in districts where they stood up to the vouchers bill attempt in the 2023 legislative session. Resoundingly, Republicans and Democrats across the state of Texas have warned and provided real data of how much public schools stand to lose just so a small percentage of Texas families can have a little boost to paying for their own school choice. We have school choice, the program doesn't need to steal from underfunded public schools to serve who it's going to serve. Don't use public school students, teachers, staff, and their families as political pawns for our state's governor's out of touch directive. He is only listening to the wealthy few, not the many who will be hurt and suffer from defunding public schools in Texas more than they already are. I want this legislature to join work efforts and fully fund public schools, take care of our public servants in school districts, and pass legislation that makes it easier to live a self-determined life on their own terms.

Julie Licata

Self

Austin, TX

I strongly oppose HB3 because it diverts critical public funds away from Texas public schools and funnels them into unregulated private institutions. This bill threatens the quality and accessibility of public education, particularly in rural communities that rely on public schools.

Texas is already facing a teacher shortage crisis, and underfunding public schools will only make it worse. Teachers are leaving the profession due to low pay and lack of support, and instead of addressing this, HB3 worsens the situation by draining resources from schools that need them most.

Public education is also a key driver of Texas' economy. Major employers choose where to invest based on the availability of a well-educated workforce. Without strong public schools, Texas risks losing out on business investments and high-paying jobs. 77% of Texas voters support increased funding for public schools, and up to 94% favor investments in teacher salaries, tutoring, and mental health services. Lawmakers should listen to their constituents and prioritize funding for public education.

I urge you to reject HB3 and instead invest in strengthening public schools, supporting teachers, and ensuring Texas remains a competitive, thriving economy for future generations.

Douglas Mcmichael

Self

Austin, TX

This is a taxpayer subsidy for private schools; the majority of the benefit will accrue to people already sending their kids to private schools, i.e. do not need the money—certainly not at the expense of the public school system.

David Sanchez

Self

Buda, TX

I vehemently oppose the use of public funds for non-public schools.

Julie Cavazos
Self - Meeting planner
Argyle, TX

If I can't afford to send my own child to private school, why would I pay to send someone else's child to private school?

Amy Osborn
self
Austin, TX

As a Texas voter, I strongly oppose any effort to divert public funds to private schools, regardless of how it is labeled. Our public schools are the backbone of our communities, and I urge you to fully fund existing public school mandates rather than directing taxpayer dollars to unaccountable private and religious institutions.

History has shown that in states where voucher programs with minimal oversight have been implemented, public school systems have suffered significant harm, and state budgets have faced increasing strain. Texas cannot afford to follow this path. I ask you to prioritize the needs of Texas students by fully funding our public schools and rejecting the voucher bill. Please do not allow it to pass out of committee. Our children and communities deserve strong, well-funded public schools—not policies that undermine them.

Kathy Overstreet
Self
Fort Worth, TX

I disagree with the school vouchers.

Whitney Taylor
Self- Teacher
Liberty Hill, TX

?Say NO to VOUCHERS
??Fund PUBLIC SCHOOLS
??we need $1300 Basic Allotment per child

Jenna Cope
Self
Abilene, TX

NO! please vote no. Stop supporting billionaires and vouchers. Choose to support public schools FULLY!

Brandy Childress
Self
Red Oak, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the “bought”? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

lisa quick
self
san antonio, TX

No to vouchers - Don't destroy our public schools

Erin McBryde
Lufkin ISD
Lufkin, TX

This will be an open door for segregation. This does not offer an even playing field. You will be voting against what the majority of voters want. You are the same people who have strangled our public schools old to death. You don't want people to be upset with you or vilanize you for pushing your agenda. You expect those of us who have given our lives for the good of our children to just get pooped on and say thank you.

April Wilson
School choice
Denton, TX

No school vouchers! Not for everyone.

Sandra Thompson, Mrs
Self
Beaumont, TX

Vote NO on HB 3! No welfare for private schools!!!

Elizabeth Wagner
Self retired
Galveston, TX

This is a bad idea and will damage our public schools

Christine Demmelmaier
Self
Austin, TX

Public funds should be used to fund public schools, NOT private schools. Vouchers are a subsidy for wealthy families who already attend private school. THAT'S it. Texas has 5.5 million public school students, and that money should be used to fully fund THEIR schools. This is non partisan. The majority of small, Republican leaning rural communities don't have a private school option. They need their public schools fully funded!
Please do not pass this voucher scam!

Jennie Lou Leeder
Self, USA Club Head Swim Coach
Sunset Valley, TX

Public schools are required by law to provide an education for all students. It does not matter if you are an average student, star athlete, a student who can barely read, a child genius, or a student who needs special services, by law you have the right to a good solid education. The public school system is being asked to teach our children on a shoestring budget. Instead of taking money away, the Texas Legislature should be voting to add money to public school funding. By voting to make vouchers legal you, the Legislature who are suppose to look out for the welfare of our state are being derelict in your duties. Giving money to your campaign donors who own these private and charter schools is unforgivable. These schools are not required to accept all students and provide for whatever needs they may have. They are not required to give state and federal mandated tests. These schools can teach what they want, how they want and when they want. To compare these schools to public schools is a farce. It is time the Texas Legislature stood for all the children in this state. To provide the best opportunities for all our students. Fund public schools and teacher salaries at the highest levels. To enable our students to have success. Stop tying their hands with inadequate funding and threats of less money. Say NO to VOUCHERS and YES to PUBLIC SCHOOLS!

Derek Ensign
self, software engineer
Austin, TX

Please do not remove my tax dollars from public schools to be given to private schools. As a former Texas school teacher, and son of a Texas school teacher, I beg you to kill this bill and idea once and for all. My public education made me who I am today and we need to increase funding for Texas public schools, not decrease it. This is not school choice, it is a handout to wealthier individuals.

Breanna Rogers
Self
Pearland, TX

As a public education teacher, I have seen public education work wonders for students. I seen kids grow every year in their knowledge and confidence. Public schools give so much more to communities than just book knowledge. As a mom of kids in public education, I've seen how much they help my children grow each year too. And I've seen how much these schools give to their communities as a whole. Vouchers will destroy this. They will make it harder for communities to build and for kids to grow. They will ruin chances for all children and only help specific families that wealthy people deem worthy of help. Public education should be fair. Vouchers will ruin Texas and cost tax payers so much.

Gracie Chavez
Self
Mabank, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Lei Lei
Self/Engineering
Houston, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.

2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.

3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.

4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot.

This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.

Thank you!

Kat Murph
Self
Austin, TX

Public funds should be used to fund public schools, NOT private schools. Vouchers are a subsidy for wealthy families who already attend private school. THATS it. Texas has 5.5 million public school students, and that money should be used to fully fund THEIR schools. This is non partisan, the majority of small, Republican leaning rural communities don't have a private school option. They need their public schools fully funded.

Kathy Williams

Self, retired

Aledo, TX

I do not support school vouchers and HB3.

Public schools exist for the good of the general public. Public schools need ample public funding. There are school choices available for those who both desire and can afford such a choice just as there are mansions and Ferraris available for those who desire and can afford such luxuries. Families have been making school choices for generations. I know because I had the opportunity to attend private, parochial schools for twelve years. That was my parents' choice and they never thought it should be subsidized by the government. My mother was the principal of one of those schools and school vouchers were talked about YEARS ago. She knew it would benefit the attendance at her school but she never promoted or supported it because she also knew that it would take away from those less fortunate to have such choices in life.

Today the majority of school age children are from families that cannot afford such a choice and a $10,000 voucher is not going to provide such a difference to them. Many of those families who live in rural counties do not even have a private school available for their children to attend. A $10,000 voucher to those who are currently choosing private over public education will just be money in the pockets of those who HAVE. What a nice vacation it will provide those families! Meanwhile those that HAVE NOT will suffer. They will not have a fancy vacation or other such niceties. Instead their schools will be underfunded, their teachers will be overwhelmed and over burdened, and their education will suffer.

Tax dollars are not meant to pad the pockets of the rich. Tax dollars are meant to provide structure and protection to the public as a whole. If we do not offer a sound education to the majority, then not only will children and families suffer, but so will our communities. I am appreciative of the private education I had. I am equally appreciative of the public education my children were able to have, both of whom continued on to higher education. Without a solid public education children will not have such choices and their dreams will be smaller. That is the real school choice. Choose public schools for all those fresh little energetic minds as well as those with disabilities who also benefit from the structure of public education.

Protect the future of our children, our communities, and the great State of Texas. DO NOT APPROVE HB3.

Susan Hall, Ms.

self; retired teacher and current student tutor

Austin, TX

Our great state's public education schools have not received a substantial increase in basic allotment since 2019. The current proposed increase is a joke. It won't cover the materials needed for one student in an elementary classroom, much less those in secondary public education. Governor Abbott has done the 99% of students in Texas who attend public schools and their families a great disservice as he held this money hostage to get his school vouchers plan. I demand that you vote to fully fund public schools and vote against this voucher plan, or ESA's, or whatever sheep's clothing that Gov. Abbott is dressing them up in today to try to sell this scam. By any name, vouchers will defund our great public schools. I vote in every election and I will be watching today. Texans clearly do not want vouchers - voters on both sides of the aisle know it's a bad deal. Our children in public schools in Texas deserve your attention and your no vote on HB 3. With fully funded public schools, our public schools will meet any educational challenge head on and educate our children to their fullest potential. I would like for you to vote to:

* have the Basic Allotment tied to inflation indexes so Gov. Abbot cannot hold it hostage anymore

*Have the Basic Allotment become enrollment based and not attendance based

*For FULL FUNDING OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS to make up for 6 years of missing funding

*VOTE NO ON THE VOUCHER/ESA BILL

Thank you,

Susan Hall

11804 Rust Rd

Austin, TX 78750

Wendy Norman
Self
Montgomery, TX

I am not opposed to vouchers, but I do feel private schools need to be held to the same standards regarding attendance, testing, curriculum, and distribution of funds in order to receive taxpayer dollars.

Adam Prachyl
Self / Teacher and Coach
Waxahachie, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill ? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the “bought”? Will you stand for your people now? These words represent the thoughts and hearts of your constituents, your voters VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Tammy Wincott, JD
Self - Attorney
San Antonio, TX

Vote Against any rights to a school voucher and in favor of teacher raises and protections. We need more funding for our public schools not less. Any comments regarding Texas giving more to public schools is bull hockey; if, this were true, why are the public schools begging parents, students, and outsiders for simple school supplies like paper and pens in order to complete projects?! Schools aren't able to fund trips or regular curricular activities and you want to take away so we can have an even less educated Texas community. It is your job to see a bright future for Texas and its residents; therefore, you should be voting to see that even the least able person has the best chance for success and that my friends is in the public school system. If you believe that is not true, then it is the public school system that is broken and it is YOUR job to fix it not add more fuel to thee fire. If you are not part of the solution, you are part of the problem.

Janet Serrano
Self
Plano, TX

Please fund public schools and teachers. I grew up in Texas and am raising my 3 children in public schools. Parents already have the choice to pay and send their kids to private school or to homeschool. If they choose that then let them. It's not the monetary responsibility of the residents to pay for private education.

Vicki Williams
Self
Lantana, TX

This proposal is devastating to public education and primarily only benefits those who can already afford private education. This will further debase an already low ranked education system in the State of Texas. I urge you to vote no for the voucher program.

Jacquelyn Chambers

Self

Dallas, TX

Dear Representative,

As a taxpayer in the State of Texas, I do NOT want an Education Savings Accounts (ESAs) Program. I pay my public tax dollars and, therefore, want my money to Fund Public Schools in Texas. Public school funding has been stagnant since 2019 while we have had inflation of over 20%. Our children and all the educators, and staff, deserve to have the funding. To be clear, I want to reiterate the following:

? I do NOT want vouchers/ESAs.

? I support an Increase of the Basic Allotment.

? I support Funding Public Schools in Texas, including the inflation of over 20%.

Again, I support Public Schools and want my tax dollars to Fund Public Schools (not private schools) in the State of Texas.

Sincerely,

Jennifer Larrew

Self

Lakeway, TX

I am opposed to HB3 and using funds currently allocated to public schools for private school education. And I am in a unique space because we are planning on sending our 4 year old to private schools. We would not accept this money. Just because we have the capacity to send our child to private schools does not mean that families who can't should have worse schools. My degree is in special education and this bill will directly impact anyone with special needs.

No one, including us, HAS to send their children to private schools. We are choosing to because we feel that the Teks and legislature have made choices about curriculum and management of schools that we do not agree with. Thankfully we can afford to send our child to private schools to avoid this. I am sure HB3 is trying to make it more affordable for more families to choose this. In our case, we would still have to pay about 20k a year with the money, which is still way out of grasp of many families. Those families need quality public schools. Quality public schools are a right and shouldn't be eroded.

An option for those of us who don't like Texas TEKS, 10 commandments, and chaplains is to move out of state to a place we like the public schools. Again, many people do not have the finances to do so, and they should not be punished with bad schools.

So I am writing to you as someone who will not use the public schools begging that you protect them.

Thank You,

Jenna Larrew

Romeo Reyes, engineer

self

Lubbock, TX

No to school vouchers! Does not apply to all TEXANS. Yes to teacher pay raise! Does apply to all TEXANS!

Darcie Crumpacker
Self
College Station, TX

As a former public educator, I can say with full confidence that this bill will only hurt our students and schools by taking critical funding away from already underfunded schools. Parents have always had a choice for sending their kids to schools with magnet schools, private schools, charter schools, and homeschooling. Taking public funding away from public schools and sending to private schools is not the answer to the problem you probably this bill to correct. To not hold private schools to the same standards of curriculum and educator certification and propose sending unequal funding doesn't make logical sense. This bill is not about one political party over another. This bill is about a redistribution of wealth that will disproportionately benefit the wealthy who can already afford to send their children to private schools. The public overwhelmingly voted against this agenda the first time it came around, and we see through the farce of it now. HB3 will not help the people you claim it is most for. There are better ways to help students most in need of better educational opportunities. Properly funding our schools, all special programs, and educator salaries to recruit and retain high quality teachers is the first step. Sending public dollars to private schools who are not held to the same standards is not the common sense solution.

Courtney Lanning
Self
Lubbock, TX

The current voucher program as it stands will ruin public education. Please consider changing it to allow people who choose to send children to private school a tax credit on their property taxes. This would allow the public school system to keep their funds where they are and give everyone a "choice" in where they choose to send their children to school. There are options to the voucher program to benefit all and as it stands nobody benefits and the children suffer the most. Please consider allowing the residents of Texas to vote on this bill instead of deciding for us.

Jaqueline Amador
self
Buda, TX

Hello,
To whom ever it may concern. I would like to speak on behalf of myself, my daughter, and all families that go to Public schools. I would like to inform you that I am a single mother. I live and support myself and daughter on one income. I cannot afford the school voucher program and I am opposed to this bill because it will affect so many low income families on receiving a good education. My daughter is flourishing in public school with amazing teachers. This idea of school vouchers for private school will cause parents and students to not be able to attend school if public schools start shutting down. Private schools costs thousands of dollars a year. the vouchers will only help a fraction of that cost. And single mothers like myself or families who are low income will not be able to afford this program. I strongly believe this will affect students. Please find it in your hearts to not pass this bill. Please vouch for our low income and single mothers. Thank you.

Linda Estrada, Mrs.
Self, Public Education Advocate
Donna, TX

Please vote NO on HB 3. We already have many public-school districts in Texas that are operating with large budget deficits because Gov. Abbott and the Legislature haven't increased their basic per-student funding allotment since 2019. Also, these public schools will continue to educate the vast majority of Texas students. Public tax dollars belong in public schools and should not be diverted to private schools and their upper-income students.

Julia Smith
Self/Freelance Nonprofit Communications
Austin, TX

What is the positive case to be made for vouchers? Certainly it couldn't be cost savings, because it's blown a hole in every state budget where it's been implemented. And it can't be improved academic performance, because the data certainly doesn't support that. It's obviously not being done out of care or concern for the children of Texas. Do you remember President Bush's "No Child Left Behind" initiative? Vouchers are DESIGNED to leave children behind. Far from promoting "school choice," they promote school decay, eroding the funding and support struggling urban schools need to survive. How do voucher proponents plan to serve the students who are left behind in the public schools they're so eager to abandon? Isn't good public policy supposed to benefit the many and not the few?

Texans do not want school vouchers. You have tried and tried to pass them, session after session, and failed. Why not take the STRONG message that the voters are sending, and stop trying to force these terrible policy ideas into law?

Your job is to serve ALL the children of Texas. To make opportunities available for EVERY child. Any law you pass that deliberately undermines that goal is a failure on your part, and a shame that will follow you for the rest of your life -- because a vote for vouchers is a vote to weaken our public school system and leave children behind. Shame on any legislator who would choose to support this misguided policy.

Rachel Rivera
Self - CPA
Flower Mound, TX

Please reconsider the ESA program. As a parent of children experiencing school closure due to underfunding, I ask that you reconsider taking additional dollars of public money away from public schools. Please increase the basic allotment to reflect the huge increase in inflation over the last 5 years.

Private schools have no accountability and ESA programs have failed in every other state. ESA programs take away from our public education system. We should all be working to improve public education as it is a benefit to our communities.

I've not met any one advocating for ESAs, please listen to your constituents, we do not want ESAs.

Thank you for your time.

Bette Winegar
Retired Teacher
Temple, TX

This bill is not parent choice. Parents already have free choice. Public school enroll all students. Private schools do not have to take all students. Those with special needs are not going to be offered the same help as they would in public schools. Public schools serve all of the children of Texas. Private schools will be able to pick and choose who they will take. Private schools are not regulated, so the students who are sent to private schools are not going to have teachers held who are held to the same standards as public schools. Please do not allow a few citizens who want to spread their religious beliefs use tax payer money to educate children about their beliefs.

Private schools will take a student into their school and they can then remove that student for various reasons, then the child is sent to a public school but the money for that child is not sent to the public school. Poor use of tax payer money.

Polly Porter
Self
Woodway, TX

I support public schools and teachers. I do not support vouchers or HB3.

Darla Scates
Self, citizen
Canyon Lake, TX

Vote NO to vouchers. They will only benefit those who already have resources.

Jennifer Hanlon Patterson
Self. Stepmom
Douglass, TX

Public education is for ALL, and vouchers should never be used to fund private schools. I have a stepson with autism, adhd, depression, and have witnessed how private schools get to select which kids they will serve. This is not what our tax dollars should fund. Instead, fully fund public schools so they can educate ALL kids.

Amanda Flores
self
Austin, TX

As a concerned Texan, I strongly oppose the school voucher program. Diverting public funds to private schools undermines our public education system when it needs support most. These vouchers often don't cover full private school tuition, making them primarily beneficial to families who can already afford the difference. Meanwhile, our public schools—especially in rural areas—are left with fewer resources.

Private schools aren't held to the same accountability standards as public schools, and many can select which students they accept. This creates a system where public schools must educate all students while operating with diminished funding. The voucher program essentially asks taxpayers to subsidize private education for a few while the majority of Texas children receive less support.

Instead of vouchers, we should focus on improving public education by increasing teacher pay, reducing class sizes, and updating facilities. Our tax dollars should strengthen the system that serves all Texas children, not create a two-tiered education system.

Averi Lewis
Self
Lubbock, TX

Vote no to HB3. No school vouchers! Fund public schools!

Jose Mendoza
Self
Austin, TX

Measures like these have proven to be harmful in other states. Keep public funds for public education.

Devin Agonis
Self - Meeting Planner
Midlothian, TX

I do not know a single person with kids in school who is in support of HB 3. As a parent with three young children (a 2nd grader in public elementary and 4 year old twins who will attend kindergarten in 2026), this bill would be detrimental to our school district. Our kids deserve the opportunity to continue attending a school that is funded appropriately and provides educational services to the community.

AMY POPE

Amy Pope

Lubbock, TX, TX

As a second generation homeschool mom, I oppose HB3. The cost of this bill is two-fold. Firstly, it opens the door to future government regulation of homeschools and private schools. Texas public schools and teachers are in great need of support. I recommend developing a solution to properly fund public education and leave private education alone, or there will eventually be no viable education alternatives for the children who need a different approach to education. When bills such as this one have been passed in other states, government regulation has inevitably crept in, even for those who have chosen not to participate in vouchers/ESAs. Please do not allow this to happen in our great state of Texas. Secondly, this bill will come at a great cost to both public and private schools. I urge the House to shut this bill down and come up with a truly conservative plan to adequately support the public education system.

Carina Reyes, Asst. City Secretary

self

Lubbock, TX

NO to taxpayer money for rich people for private schools! Teachers need a raise!

Ezriel Weinberger

Self

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Sophie Owens

Self

Aledo, TX

Vouchers will destroy our communities

Robert Waller, Minister

Self. Retired Minister of 61 years.

North Richland Hills, TX

A rather stupid idea. It will not help those with limited means to afford a private school and the ones now affording private can still afford it. Public education needs funding now and you men have the responsibility to make their needs met. Stop this ridiculous waste of our tax money!

Brooke King

Self - School Librarian

Humble, TX

I oppose HB3 and instead want public education fully funded by increasing the basic allotment by at least $1500.

Ashley Nichols

Self

Dallas, TX

I do not support this bill, as I do not believe that our state tax dollars should be going towards private schools. They do not have the oversight that public schools are required to have and therefore we cannot know how this money will be spent. This bill does not help low income families send their children to private schools, it is a voucher for already wealthy families who have children in private schools. Do not let this bill pass as it will only hurt average Texas families.

Stephanie Davis

Self / Nurse Practitioner

Austin, TX

Please say NO to vouchers!

Karla Rivers

Self

Lubbock, TX

I am against this bill because it will harm public schools in Texas, especially children with disabilities. I do not want my tax dollars going towards vouchers for private schools. This money is better spent on improving our public schools. Teachers have one of the most important jobs there is and giving money to private schools that sometimes include unqualified people teaching our students does not seem like a good use of tax payers money.

Michelle Heard

Self. Mom of a Texas public school student

Austin, TX

Please increase funding for public school and don't approve the vouchers bill. I'm sure there's much this can be done to improve the efficiency of how funding is spent, but taking more away won't help. Let's get in line with national averages for per student funding and fund our schools and the future of Texas, our kids, properly!

Christine Sanders

Self

Buda, TX

This bill is not in the best interest of my children or any other low income families.

MIRANDA CLARSON

Self

Cypress, TX

I homeschool and I am opposed to this bill. I homeschool to be able to teach to my child's unique needs. Education is not a one size fits all as we see with our failing public schools. One child's needs will not match another's. Therefore, I oppose any legislation that attaches generalized standards, tests, etc. to homeschool families in Texas.

Chrystal Findley

Self former public school teacher, now home educator

Italy, TX

As a conservative home educator (and former Tx public school teacher) I am opposed to any form of ESA, voucher system, tax $ following a student, etc. This type of program is an expansion of govt interference in our lives. It expands an already too big state educational bureaucracy. Some may say just don't "opt in" to the program, but history has proved once regulation begins it does not end and will eventually extend to all private/home schooled students. I am opposed to this proposed state government expansion.

Alex Meyer

Self

Austin, TX

I support public schools and strongly oppose HB3. Fully fund our schools. If we have money for vouchers, we have money to FULLY FUND our public schools first!

Cynthia Matheson

Self

Tomball, TX

I am a registered voter in Tomball, Texas and proud to call myself a professional public school educator. I come from a family of teachers and my own children attend public schools. I speak for myself and the students in Texas (both public school and otherwise) when I say that this school voucher program is a bad deal. Texans clearly do not want vouchers- voters on both sides of the aisle have raised their concerns in person and online. Our public schools face many challenges, but with fully restored funding, they can meet those challenges and educate our Texas kids to their potential. Of course our public schools are struggling when the money already allotted to Texas children is being held hostage over this political stage. How can we best serve our students without essential staff and programs - staff and programs that state money is supposed to pay for but hasn't been released?? Homeschooling and private school parents don't want to be under the thumb of the same rules and regulations as public schools- that's why they already utilize "school choice" as it should remain.

It's no secret that Texas teachers are used to doing more with less. So taking away the resources teachers do have, and giving away their TRS retirement money on top?! It's a Texas sized boot in the gut. Please vote to FULLY FUND OUR PUBLIC SCHOOLS and VOTE NO on any voucher/ ESA bill. Again, I vote and this matters to me. Thank you.

Allison Kallenberg

self

FORT WORTH, TX

I am 100% against the school voucher program. Taking money away from public schools will not help, and Abbot should release the billions he is withholding from public education.

Daniel Ellis

Self

Woodway, TX

As a family with a special needs child, the public school in our county offers FANTASTIC resources, teachers and opportunities for him to thrive. We DO NOT want private school but want him to be a part of the public school system where he currently is receiving the special programming he needs to be a member of society. PLEASE DO NOT TAKE AWAY STATE FUNDING FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS WITH VOUCHERS. What a slap in the face to teachers who have made that their career!

Sharon Goh

Self

Austin, TX

I am against HB3 for the following reasons:

Drains Public School Funding: Reduces resources for already underfunded public schools.

Lack of Accountability: Less oversight for private schools, raising concerns about standards and fund use.

Increased Segregation: Can exacerbate racial and socioeconomic disparities.

Harm to Students with Disabilities: Private schools may not provide adequate special education services.

Potential for Misuse: Risk of taxpayer funds being misused.

Church-State Separation Issues: Concerns about public funds supporting religious education.

Rural Disadvantage: Limited private options in rural areas further harms public schools.

Jennie King
Self/registered nurse
Buda, TX

I oppose this bill as I believe every child deserves the same opportunities to receive a quality education! Not just the wealthy! Put our tax dollars back into our public schools!

TIFFANY ROBERSON
Self - CPA, rural public school parent
DEVINE, TX

I am writing to express my strong opposition to any bills related to education savings accounts (ESAs) or school vouchers. As a conservative Republican resident of a rural area, I am deeply concerned that diverting funds from public schools will severely harm our local school districts, which are already underfunded and struggling to meet the needs of students and teachers.

This is not about helping children—it is about shifting benefits to private schools and vendors who would oversee ESAs and vouchers. The corruption is blatant, and it is unacceptable. We already have school choice.

I urge you to let the people vote on this in the next election, rather than relying on paid pollsters or misleading ballot language that provided little detail. The people in our community overwhelmingly oppose these measures, yet it seems our voices are being ignored in favor of large donors who are influencing votes. As a conservative Republican, I find it outrageous that our representatives are not standing up for their rural communities.

ESAs and vouchers have failed in many other states, draining public education funds without delivering real benefits. Look at the disastrous rollouts in Arizona and Iowa, where costs have spiraled out of control, and families who were already paying for private school benefited the most—while public school students were left behind. Listen to our teachers.

If you truly represent us, then stand up for what you were elected to do: be the voice of the people. Read the hundreds of comments on Governor Abbott's social media posts—most Texans do not support this. I don't know a single person, Republican or Democrat, who is for this. Even my friends who homeschool or send their children to private schools are against it.

I pray that you choose to listen to the people you are required to represent—not the donors/vendors trying to buy our education system.

Jessica Levesque, Dr
Parents of schoolchildren in Texas
Austin, TX

I am the mother of 4 children. 3 are school aged who attend public schools in Texas. Special programs are being cut in school districts all across Texas. There is talk about stopping busses for some districts to save money. There are districts going to 4 day school weeks to save money. There are staff and teachers being fired to save money. Our schools are in need of better funding for teachers, staff, supplies, and facilities. School vouchers will take more funding away from our public schools. Governor Abbott was quoted stating this fact. School vouchers will only go to 100,000 of the 5.5 million Texas school children in Texas. The amount that is proposed to go towards a voucher $10,000 versus public school students is $6,000. This is unfair. Governor Abbott has stated that this has been done in other states. Yes, it has; and the voucher programs have failed. We do not want to fail our children. We do not want to take funds away from schools across Texas that are already struggling. Let's Make Public Schools in Texas Great Again! Let's invest our public funds in the public education of our little Texans. 5.5 million little Texans who are our future. 5.5 million Texans who deserve the best education possible. Let's not forget that there are many districts who do not have access to private education and those districts would not be able to utilize the voucher program. Let's not forget that the price of many of these private education programs is double that of the vouchers and will not provide access to lower income families. This program is not to help the majority of the 5.5 million Texas school children, it is for the select few. Millions of your constituents do not want this. 5.5 million Texas school children are counting on you for the support of their education. 5.5 million Texas school children want their schools to remain open. Make Texas Education Great Again! Vote No to school vouchers. Vote for the future of our children and public schools. No to school vouchers!

Amy Sue, Mrs
Self
Houston, TX

I oppose this bill. As a homeschool parent, I ask that Texas not intermingle bureaucracy with homeschooling. Thank you.

Richard Murphy, Dr
Self
Austin, TX

My name is Dr Richard Murphy, I'm a tenured professor of Economics at the University Texas at Austin, and I have been researching the causal impacts of education programs for 20 years.

As an economist I believe in the beneficial effects of market forces in competitive markets. There is excellent empirical research showing that competition between public sector schools, within a district, improves student outcomes, especially in the lowest performing schools. However, economic research from other states (Ohio Indiana ,Cleveland, Milwaukee, Louisiana) shows that students who are admitted to private schools through a voucher program perform significantly worse than if they had stayed in the public sector. Why is this the case?

The primary reason is because the 'education market' is not a competitive market. For the school choice market to be competitive parents have to be 'informed consumers', they need to be able to compare the quality of schools. In the public sector, parents can compare using school ratings. However without additional state oversight there will be no common benchmark between private and public schools in Texas. Parents making the important choice about where to send their child will be underinformed, meaning that schools may focus more on advertising rather than student achievement. If there is going to be a choice, at least let the parents be as informed as they can be by compelling private schools that accept vouchers to publish test score results of students that receive vouchers.

This is not a panacea however, even in Ohio where private schools are required to publish average test scores for students participating in their EdChoice program, students that move from the public to the private sector experience a drop in test scores. A common economic explanation is that it is rational for only the private schools who have trouble filling their spots to accept students on vouchers, which would be the lower quality schools if parents are acting rationally. So, parents are not getting the best of private school experience, but the worst.

Finally, parents are unlikely to get access to the best schools even with the help of vouchers as the popular private schools will raise prices in line with the subsidy. This is known as the 'pass-through rate', and is common with any government subsidy. Sometimes it is referred to as the Bennett hypothesis coined by the Secretary of Education William Bennett, who was concerned that increasing federal student loans allows universities to increase tuition fees. Providing state vouchers will do the same for private school fees, meaning that popular private schools will continue to be out of reach for most families.

Please contact me at my UT Austin email address if you have any questions.

Anne McCready Heinen
self, retired
Austin, TX

I am a parent of three children who went to Texas public schools. That the legislature would funnel money away from public education is a money grab and wrong. I strongly oppose it. In Austin alone, the already beleaguered school district will be drained of $18million, which will lead to fewer resources for students and teachers, increased inequity, larger class sizes, and less opportunity. Writ large across the entire state, it's easy to document how this will not serve Texas schoolchildren and the future of our state and the country — unless, of course, you want the populace to be less educated. Isn't that part of Project 2025?

Rebecca Barbier

self

Houston, TX

Texas touts on being a leader but we fail miserably in educating our youth. Using limited tax dollars to fund 100K students isn't leading in education. It is setting the stage for education to be strictly for profit or to settle on subpar. It doesn't matter what other states are doing or what the Fed's want, we need to fund our public schools so that we attract the best teachers and we provided EVERY child with adequate education that sets them up for success. Until private schools, charters schools and homeschools are held to all the same rules, curriculum, mandates, testing, evaluations, certifications, etc as our public schools, they should not be entitled to a single tax dollar. This is an attempt to undermine what voters from both parties have been screaming in Austin - Texans do NOT want vouchers. Out of state Billionaires and Abbott backers do - that's why they funded campaigns that ran out any representative that aligned themselves against vouchers. IF Austin believes that this is truly what Texans want, its an easy fix - prepare the bill and then LET US VOTE!!! Its our money so put it on the ballot. Why wouldn't you?

Kristina Lange, Dr.

Self

College Station, TX

It is extremely unfortunate that we have to even be having this discussion. Quality education should be FREE for EVERYONE. This includes students with special needs. On top of that. My tax dollars should fund MY school. This will create a hierarchy on purpose. As an educator, this will also affect my retirement funds. I did not vote for this. I do not condone this. Education is for EVERYONE.

Ally Thompson, Miss

Self

Beaumont, TX

No welfare for private schools! Vote NO on HB 3!!!!

Caleb Rogers

Frisco ISD

Dallas, TX

HB3 should not be considered.

Laura Kelly

Self

Waxahachie, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

William Lehner

Self

Austin, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.

2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.

3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.

4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot.

This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.

Thank you!

Erin Dickerman

Self

Houston, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.

2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.

3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.

4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot.

This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.

Thank you!

Sarah Rivlin

Community Voices for Public Education

Houston, TX

Please oppose HB 3. As a teacher, my school is already completely underfunded. We simply don't have enough staff in the building to ensure the safety of our students and our staff. Gov. Abbott himself admitted in a Feb. 12 X post that when families leave a school, funds leave with them. If even a small handful of students leave my school, we will lose even more staff.

In addition, I am concerned that vendors like ClassWallet and Odyssey will be benefitting from their access to taxpayer money at the expense of taxpayers, as they have done in other states with vouchers. We have already seen this happen. Why are there still inadequate guardrails in the bill to prevent this?

Diana Carranza
Self - Business Owner
Desoto, TX

I am writing to express my deep concerns about House Bill 3 and as your constituent, I urge you to vote against its passage. This bill proposes a school voucher program that would divert public funds—an estimated $1 billion over two years—from already underfunded public schools to subsidize private education. Texas public schools serve over 5.5 million children and are struggling with severe financial challenges, often forced to cut staff and resources. Redirecting these vital funds will further strain public schools, leaving the majority of Texas students in more dire conditions and widening the gap in access to quality education. Public schools are the bedrock of our communities, and their ability to provide equitable education opportunities should not be sacrificed.

Additionally, HB 3 lacks sufficient accountability measures for private schools receiving taxpayer dollars. Unlike public schools, private institutions are not held to the same oversight standards, particularly regarding standardized testing and services for students with disabilities. This creates a two-tiered system where public schools face strict accountability while private schools operate with minimal transparency, leaving students and families vulnerable. Furthermore, the proposed voucher amounts are insufficient to cover the full cost of private education, putting low-income families at a disadvantage and exacerbating educational inequities. Texas should prioritize strengthening its public education system, not undermining it with initiatives that fail to serve the majority of its students. I respectfully urge you to consider these impacts and vote no on House Bill 3.

Michelle Mock
All the children in Texas, especially lower economic children
Navasota, TX

Vote no to sea, vouchers or whatever you call them. FULLY FUND PUBLIC SCHOOLS!!!! Visit the public schools in your district and all across Texas. You will see the many great things that happen everyday! You will also see how lack of funding is a problem. Feel free to call me anytime. I'd love the opportunity to talk to you. Let's do a 4 way call with Abbott and Morath.

Victoria McCrary
self, marketing
Houston, TX

As a concerned resident of Houston, Texas, I urge the Texas House of Representatives to reject HB 3 and the educational savings account (ESA) program. This program would benefit only a small fraction of students while draining essential resources from public schools, leaving the vast majority of Texas students worse off. Investing in public education is the most effective way to ensure that all Texas students have equal access to a quality education. The ESA program is not about "school choice"—it's a diversion of public funds to private interests, pushed by Governor Abbott and billionaire donors, despite opposition from Texans across the political spectrum. Texans deserve strong, well-funded public schools that serve every student, not a program that prioritizes a select few at the expense of the many. Please vote NO on HB 3.

Quynh Nguyen

Self

Houston, TX

I am against this bill because it takes away funding from our public schools, from the families and communities that depends on public education. By passing this bill it will mainly help subsidize and fund already rich private schools and families. I am writing to express my strong opposition to the HB 3 Buckley Bill. This bill threatens to take away critical funding from public education, which is vital to the success of our students and the well-being of families in our community.

Public education serves as the foundation for our children's future, and by reducing funding, we are undermining their ability to receive a quality education. Without proper funding, schools will face difficult choices such as larger class sizes, reduced extracurricular activities, and fewer resources for students and teachers. This not only harms the students, but also puts a strain on the families who rely on public schools to provide educational opportunities, especially for those who cannot afford private education.

Additionally, this bill could have devastating long-term effects on our local economy and the future workforce. Education is key to building a strong, skilled workforce that can contribute to the success of our state and country. By decreasing investment in public education, we risk limiting opportunities for future generations.

I urge you to reconsider the provisions of this bill that cut funding to public education. Instead, I encourage lawmakers to focus on ensuring that public schools are adequately funded so that all students, regardless of their background or economic status, have access to the quality education they deserve.

Thank you for your time and attention to this matter. I hope you will take these concerns seriously and work towards solutions that prioritize the future of our children and families.

Teresa Faulkenberry

Self, retired teacher

Abilene, TX

Vouchers are not the answer!! As a retired teacher, and a grandparent of three public school students and one private school student, we are all in agreement! My private school parents are NOT in favor of school vouchers, either! There is no state accountability for schools and teachers in the voucher plan. I strongly encourage you to vote AGAINST THE VOUCHER PLAN! Vote NO!

Renee Henderson

Self

Leander, TX

I do not support school vouchers for the state of Texas. It is not good for our children and specifically for those with 504s and IEPs. Vouchers will eliminate the middle class in the long run due to increased separation between the Have and Have not. The best teachers will move to private schools leaving our public schools with new or less competent teachers for those students that can't afford private schools (once they raise the price 10k/voucher amounts). The students who have no choice will not have an equal education. Look at the state of Louisiana for reference (catholic schools vs their public schools) and tell me I'm wrong. Please fund our public schools!!! Please support the next generation whom will be caring for you as a senior citizen. You WANT that person to have a good education.

Karen Reid

Self

Royse City, TX

NO VOUCHERS. Our public schools need to be supported. Same allocation as HB2.

Rachel McKee
Self
Round Rock, TX

Focus on fixing what is wrong with our public schools, not encouraging people to leave them!!!

Kristen Harford
Self
Weatherford, TX

Vouchers will only help the citizens who need the least help. They will hurt our students — those who can never afford a private school or who don't have the means to attend an independent charter school, and even my well provided for children included. Vouchers will take away from children, cost the state too much pretty quickly down the road, and involve more government oversight on private schools. And the state government doesn't have the tools to have oversight on many of the other laws on the books, so why add another unnecessary job to the list? Keep public funds in public education. Find educators who care about students — not $$ — who can identify solutions. They are in our public schools right now and have great ideas. Please do not pass this law.

Amy Miskovsky
Self
Austin, TX

I am a parent of students in both private and public schools, and I oppose this bill.

Public dollars should stay in public education. School vouchers are taxpayer-funded subsidies given to private schools and vendors without any transparency or oversight.

Private schools are not required to accept all students, assess alignment to state curriculum, or track student progress. They do not have reporting or accountability for the use of taxpayer funds or student performance. Private schools also do not have to provide special education services for students with learning differences or disabilities.

For these reasons, I oppose this bill.

David Stasey
Self
ANNETTA, TX

HB 3 will damage Texas public education kids especially those families in Rural counties as they have no private school options. This will raise education costs to all Tax payers for the benefit of a few in Urban areas with access and ability. Please do not support this bill, it is bad for Texas. Don't constitutional job and fully fund public schools for the benefit of all Texans. Have good day.

BLANCA GALVEZ-PEREZ
self
Pflugerville, TX

VOUCHERS are a scam, we need more allotment to give the right services to our students who are in the public system.

Maricela Torres

Self

Red Oak, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Why is it even being considered for PUBLIC TAX DOLLARS to be used for a PRIVATE purpose? Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. Ask yourself, who are you truly representing and who you will have the most impact on when you vote. You will only be making the rich, richer if you vote in favor of this bill. Please vote in favor of ALL children in Texas and vote NO.

mary sullivan

self - non profit marketing professional

austin, TX

I oppose this bill and the school voucher program.

Demitra Xidas

Demitra Xidas

San Antonio, TX

I am all for vouchers. Public schools need to perform much much better if they want parents to respect their schools and send their children to school. Get back to basics.

Writing Math Reading Science and History Geography English. It is very upsetting and disappointing to see that we spend the most per capita and are at the bottom when ranked with the rest of the world. Be better. Administrators should be striving to foster and environment for learning. Discipline is important. Give the responsibility back to teachers. It is their class room. I am FOR the VOUCHER PROGRAM. Competition is good. It will produce desired results and lift everyone's boat eventually. I taught in these schools and even in Texas ridiculous ideology has crept in. New guidelines need to be administered by the state. Get rid of the Department of Education. We were much better before Carter created this useless organization wasting our tax dollars. I am totally against the bill that is being put forth. When neighborhood schools do better they will not have to worry about voucher programs. Their results will speak for themselves. Compete! Spirit of this country. Compete. Care and competency is what is needed and what I see lacking.

Anne-Marie Roundtree-Faul

Self

Katy, TX

I have been a public school teacher for 15 years. I have a Bachelor's, A Masters, and am Nationally Board Certified. My salary is less than 10,000 more than a first year teacher. Despite receiving high ratings and student achievement my salary has stagnated. I can't save because I spend my money on my classroom, students and the raises I receive don't match cost of living increases. Now, this bill threatens my retirement savings. Fully fund public education where 90% of children are educated. Pay teachers fairly. I'm watching young teachers flee the profession year after year. I love being a teacher. Even I have considered leaving.

Clark Flinn

Self

Buda, TX

To Texas Law makers:

My name is Clark Flinn, and I am a Registered Nurse in the central Texas area. My wife is a elementary public school teacher in Lockhart. Both of us are lifelong Texans and have our roots in rural Texas.

I write to you today to voice my disapproval for HB3, the school voucher/"choice" proposal.

Education is a right to ALL Texas children. Public education, without question, offers ALL children an equitable start in life. It does not matter if you are poor, rich, black, white, hispanic, disabled: the public school system is designed to give ALL children the opportunity to succeed in life. It is a bedrock principle of a democratic society. My tax dollars are for the funding of this system.

HB3 does not honor that principle. It creates the guise of "school choice" by taking OUR tax dollars to directly fund private school entities. Private schools do not have the obligation to educate the populace; they exist to serve the children whose parents can afford to attend. Ten thousand dollars will not give any underserved child an opportunity to attend a private school, if they will even be allowed to attend in the first place.

Diverting thus funding from our already neglected public school system will cripple the vast majority of rural, underserving school districts. These districts are the foundation of MANY rural communities across Texas. Many of them will cease to exist. Those communities will disappear from the gutting HB3 will promote. Teachers will lose jobs, students will be left without schools who care for them. Communities will be fractured permanently.

HB3 is nothing but a bill designed to enrich the private school sector and those who have children enrolled in one already. HB3 is a subsidy for the rich and powerful. HB3 is a handout of OUR tax dollars to the billionaire interests who own private schools across the nation. HB3 is an attack on our rights as Texans, and our children's rights to access EQUITABLE AND EQUAL education opportunities.

A vote FOR this bill is a vote AGAINST Texas children. If you TRULY cared about Texas children and protecting their rights, you would stand up against this bill and deny its passage. Do what's right for Texans.

Clark Flinn, BSN, RN

Julie Goldmann

Self

Austin, TX

This bill must be rejected. We already have school choice. The money given to vouchers enables wealthy families to subsidize their PRIVATE schools or home schooling without any proper oversight AND takes away money from our public school system. Enough is enough. Stop buying into this scam.

Diane Smith

Self - retired public education teacher

GEORGETOWN, TX

I oppose HB 3 because it will weaken public schools where the majority of children are taught. It will primarily help wealthy parents whose children are already in private schools. Many rural counties don't even have private schools. There is only much state money available in any given year. What if we don't have a surplus?

Rafael Ruiz

Self

austin, TX

I am against this bill. Stripping the terminology away, the voucher program is in short, a way to take public funds provided by taxpayers to support private schools. Many Texans have voted against bills like this but again and again, a variation of this bill keeps resurfacing. This is a classic pattern of destabilizing, defunding then privatizing. While richer Texans (who can pay for the full tuition of such schools) benefit, it leaves the rest of Texans holding the bag to pay for an education system that punishes the poor students. Having gone through the AISD and UT systems during my entire education, I had the benefit of learning side by side with students from different backgrounds and with different financial statuses. It enriched my view of the world and has helped me in every aspect of what I achieved in life. Don't deny future generations of young Texans the same privilege.

catherine bremer, Ms self; animal caretaker at Thundering Paws

Blanco, TX

No on School vouchers. I don't want our public schools defunded. many rural areas don't even have private schools.

Rachel McCleery

Self

Mansfield, TX

I am writing to oppose the creation of a school voucher system. As a parent and public educator, I would like my tax dollars to support public education. The creation of a voucher system takes from already underserved and underfunded populations and gives to those who do not necessarily need it. Please increase the public school allotment by $1500. Thank you.

Angela Smith, Dr.

self

Carrollton, TX

Money tagged for spending in HB3 should be spent on public schools. There is not enough money to actually provide school choice to all public school students. In addition, a portion of the funding would go to administering the bill, which is a waste of public funds. As a life-long public educator, I have been witness to the state under-funding and over-testing public schools and then saying they are failing. This bill is a slap in the face to all public educators who have taken multiple certification tests (required by the state), attended hours of professional development each year (required by the state), and worked diligently to provide a quality education to all students they serve. The governor and sponsors of this bill have betrayed the parents of Texas whose students attend public school by refusing to increase funding and introducing this bill instead. For real examples of the lack of true funding for public schools, take a look at the DonorsChoose website and the number of Texas teachers who are requesting funding for materials to teach with. This is a disgrace to our state. Teachers shouldn't have to beg for money to buy books and supplies for their students. The state government should not be providing funds that would go to for-profit or charter schools who are not required to follow admission or testing guidelines public schools are required to follow. Public schools should receive this money for use for all students, not only the few that could benefit from HB3.

JACOB HEYDEMANN

self

El Paso, TX

I went to public school my children went to public schools in Texas ,we need to support the public schools they are the foundation for our future. Our children's minds and bodies need to be fed so that we have the economic workforce needed for our future. Taking our public tax dollars to support private business in education will not benefit the majority of Texans, it will only weaken our public education that is mandated for all Texans. What about the rural population , the special needs students ,those families that can not provide transportation ? Our teachers need proper compensation . Our schools need to be safe havens for all children . Sometimes the school is the only place a child will get a good meal. Texas has a diverse population, public schools embrace that diversity. Not everything is made better by privatization. Please use the funds properly to make our public schools the best . That is the way to make the future of Texas even brighter. Thank you

Eliza Jeffords

Self

Cibolo, TX

Vote no. Vouchers will only benefit people who already have enough money to send their kids to private school because $10,000 is not enough to cover it, and there are many people who don't even have a private school as an option within a reasonable distance, rendering vouchers not as school choice but subsidy for the rich!

Abigail Minor

Self, teacher

Socorro, TX

Greetings, I oppose HB3 and any voucher funding scheme to funnel money away from public schools. Private and charter schools do not have elected boards or public oversight, such that they can be run like businesses where students are products. Teachers in private and charter schools are not usually represented by strong local unions. I am a public school educator, and so is my husband. We are both union members. We both attended public schools growing up, and our son (when he is old enough) will attend public schools. If parents wish to send their child to a private or charter school, they may— but not at the expense of public schools. Everyone in a community is expected to pay taxes toward public schools, whether their kids attend them or not. We already know public schools are hurting for funding— taking away more money from them will only do them harm. Please oppose any voucher program. Thank you,
Abigail Minor

Detrick DeBurr

Self

The Colony, TX

I am against any voucher program until public schools are adequately funded to keep up with inflation.

Karey Skiermont

self - parent and attorney

Southlake, TX

Public schools are the backbone of our democracy, but they have been inexplicably underfunded by the Texas Legislature for years. Vouchers will do nothing but undercut them further, and line the pockets of those donors who are pumping millions into the pro-voucher campaign. Vouchers will not help students who are not within range of a private school (i.e., much of the rural population), cannot afford the cost of tuition even with a voucher (i.e., much of the population of the so-called "failing" public schools which are dying for lack of funds), and will only serve to help parents whose children are already in private school. It's a scam on the people of Texas who believe that we are only as strong as our weakest link, and a boon to the fat cats, if vouchers are passed. This public school parent says NO!

Angela Manuel, Mrs.

Self - homemaker

Bryan, TX

This is a bad bill. In states which have passed such a measure it is statistically proven to overwhelmingly benefit the rich. It removes funds from already underfunded public schools. We rank at the bottom of state funding for schools, which is absolutely an embarrassment to our state. Please don't make it worse.

Laura Ramirez-Mann

Self

Buda, TX

I am strongly opposed using public funds to provide vouchers to families who would prefer to send their children to private schools. My tax dollars should not fund people's personal choice to not go to public schools. Choosing to take away dollars from public schools for a personal choice, seems ludicrous. These dollars should be going to getting teachers certificated, facilities updated, supplies for teachers and students, and support staff that will better our schools. Otherwise if we gut public school funding, it will be a self fulfilling prophecy that schools will fail. Instead of setting our public schools up for failure, we need to set public schools up for success. Vouchers are not the answer to better education. It is a way to provide welfare to the wealthy and/or religious individuals who want to abuse our tax dollars. Vote against school vouchers and FUND public schools.

Natalie McKay

Self

Kennedale, TX

Vote no to HB3. I have children in both public and private schools. If our state would FULLY invest in public schools our communities would thrive, not divide. Homeschool families do not want this. Private schools don't want to answer to the government. Parents and schools have always had a choice. Fully fund public schools. Treat teachers with the dignity they deserve and stop driving them away from the profession. Texas should be in the top 5 in education. Why are we not asking what Massachusetts has been doing for the past 10 years?? They have a globally ranked PUBLIC education system right here in the USA without ESA's. We are capable of having that, but that's not what this is about. You're puppets for the billionaires who fund your campaigns. Our public schools are being sold to the highest bidder to be destroyed so we can have Christian private schools rule the land. We don't want it!

Katherine Brown

Self

Lubbock, TX

School choice already exists, as parents are allowed to transfer their children to other schools. Please do not take funding allocated to public schools for these vouchers, as we are so proud of the public school education and access our students have now. Private schools will not start accepting just any students, we know this, and it doesn't necessarily guarantee a better education. Let's support our teachers and ALL students, and we know this bill is insanely unpopular. Please support our fellow Texans and students and not push through this school voucher program.

Quynh-Huong Nguyen
NAKASEC Action Fund Texas
Houston, TX

Chairperson and Members of the Committee,

My name is Quynh-Huong Nguyen, and I am here to voice my opposition to H.B.A No. 3, which mandates armed security officers in public schools. While intended to enhance safety, this bill disproportionately harms many communities, misallocates resources, and fails to address the root causes of violence.

Increased Policing Harms Vulnerable Students

Requiring armed security in every school will not prevent all incidents of violence but will increase student criminalization, especially among low socioeconomic and disabled students. Studies show that schools with heavy police presence experience more student arrests for minor infractions, exacerbating the school-to-prison pipeline. A safer school environment is built through support and prevention, not force.

Students in underfunded schools already experience heightened surveillance. More security does not mean more safety—it means more discipline, disproportionately affecting students of color, low socioeconomic students, and disabled students. Instead, we should invest in programs that promote well-being and conflict resolution.

Texas schools are already struggling financially. Mandating funding for armed personnel diverts money away from essential services such as mental health support, special education, teacher salaries and other educational resources. This bill ignores the real needs of students by prioritizing a security infrastructure that does little to prevent violence.

Rather than increasing police presence, Texas should invest in funding school-based mental health professionals, expand programs to de-escalate conflicts, invest in violence prevention initiatives, and ensure safety measures do not disproportionately harm marginalized students.

Texas children deserve schools that nurture and support them, not ones that police them. I strongly urge the rejection of H.B.A No. 3 in its current form in favor of solutions that create fundamental safety and equity in education.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Anne Johnston
slef
Austin, TX

The idea of school vouchers are absurd. I want my children to go to public school because it offers the most opportunities for education, exposure to all different types of people. Being able to spend time with people who live around you in all different socioeconomic situations is how you learn cooperation and empathy. A properly funded public school can offer more opportunities than private school. Our district recently got rid of the IB programs (which I was able to do as a high school student in a public school in Houston). Taking away these options to ALL students in the public school system is going to greatly diminish the open-mindedness of future generations. Please think of our children's futures rather than our wealth accumulation. Sincerely, Anne Johnston

Bryan Armes

Teachers

Lubbock, TX

I urge you to oppose HB 3 and SB 2, which would divert critical taxpayer dollars from our public schools to private institutions through an expensive voucher scheme.

At an initial cost of $1 billion in just the first two years, HB 3 threatens to drain resources that should be invested in strengthening Texas public schools. The financial burden will only grow over time, pulling even more funding away from the vast majority of students who rely on public education.

Voucher programs in other states have disproportionately benefited wealthier families while failing to improve overall student outcomes. Meanwhile, many low-income families, even with a voucher, are left unable to afford private school tuition. Texas should not follow the same failed path.

Public tax dollars should support public schools, not subsidize private education for a select few. I strongly oppose any effort to fund private school tuition through education savings accounts, tax-credit scholarships, or other voucher-style programs that undermine public education.

Texas students deserve strong, well-funded public schools. Please stand with educators, families, and communities by voting NO on HB 3 and SB 2.

Olga Anderson, Mrs

TSTA/NEA

Lancaster, TX

Please vote no to this lehislatr

Neyluz Dominguez

self

Pasadena, TX

Do not vote for this bill. Our public schools need funding and this bill diverts tax payers dollars from our public schools. We need public schools money to stay in public schools which is where the majority of children in Texas go.

Samantha De La Torre

Self, cooking instructor

Austin, TX

I oppose any publicly funded school voucher programs. Tax dollars should be going to public schools who serve all, not used for private schools who can deny access to anyone for any reason. These programs have caused other states to lose money in their budget! And they only serve to give a discount to wealthy families who can already afford private schools. Children who do not live near a private school or cannot afford it will have their education affected by a voucher program. My daughter attends Summitt Elementary school. She loves it and is thriving. She is already reading level two books and excels in every category of MAP testing. She deserves this education. Her friends deserve their education. Every kid across the state deserves a good education free from budgeting hindrances.

Keith Everett, Mr
self
Bastrop, TX

Having been a teacher for many years but now retired, I support public education in every way possible. Both my daughters are teachers - one in Texas and one in Florida. My daughter in Texas's job will be unduly influenced if the school voucher program is voted into practice. What is fair about private schools getting $10,000 per students while public schools only get $6500 per student. What is fair about private schools not having to prove attendance or lose money while public schools diligently keep attendance so they don't lose funding. What is fair about private schools being able to drop students who have problems while Public schools have to make plans for all students with all learning disabilities - emotional or physical. What is fair about rural neighborhoods with limited access to private schools they can afford being given less money and less opportunities within the public school system which will be underfunded. The political influence to get enough votes to pass this legislation when the majority of voters in Texas are against it, just not right or moral. Our legislatures need to start representing the will of the people and not the will of our governor. Please vote no to passing this legislation.

Carrie Jones
self
Dripping Springs, TX

Texas has been defunding public education for decades. Instead of allocating more of our tax dollars to private schools, let's fully fund public education. Parents have always had school choice; the majority of us prefer to send their children to quality public schools!

Sabrina Shaw
Self
Arlington, TX

Kill this bill!

Brian Phillips
Self
Kyle, TX

Parents deserve the right to choose the best education for their child. I support HB3 to give parents more and better options. The research is clear that school choice helps all kids, especially those in low-income families. Texas needs school choice now!

Karl Fickling, Dr.
Self
Grand Prairie, TX

Best wishes to all families that would choose to use private schools to educate their children. But that doesn't mean the rest of us should help pay for them to do so with our tax dollars. You've got all the reasons already before you (from religious objections, separation of church and state, harm to public school funding, etc.), and now we are possibly facing the need for more revenue if the national Education Department. So, just add my name to those asking you to NOT approve a "voucher" system," or savings account program, for education in Texas. Thank you.

Ann Towers
Self Woodway, TX

Vote NO. This is selling your soul to wealthy donors with special interests. It is also a tax break for the wealthy. No, no, no

Lupe Vega
Myself
Waxahachie, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

William Landers
Self
Bryan, TX

First and foremost I would like to preface what I am about to say with the fact I am a single adult with no children. I am making this comment as someone who will not benefit directly from private or public schools receiving additional public funds.

This ticket is simply a way to continue to de-fund and lower the quality of our public school system. The vouchers will be discounts for people who can already afford to send their kids to private schools and will not help any of the currently under privileged communities. If you want to actually do something useful for the school systems in Texas modify the Homestead exemption from removing tax dollars from our already underfunded schools and take it out of the $24 Billion surplus that the state budget had last year. This would keep home taxes low (relatively) for the people of our state while putting the money that schools needs for building updates, teacher raises, supplies, and anything else back where it belongs.

Nick DiVincenzo
Self
Fort Worth, TX

I am a parent who opposes HB 3 and any private school vouchers. Our kids and teachers deserve fully public funded schools. Tax payer money should be for public schools and not given to private schools and without any accountability. If people choose to send their kids to private schools they have the right to do so and can do so at their own cost.

Mackenzie Boyer
HISD
Houston, TX

As a public school teacher, I am deeply concerned about this bill being passed. Public education is in dire need of more funding. Redirecting funds to individuals to send their children to private and charter schools will result in fewer children getting a quality education and their various needs met. This bill will negatively impact families in Texas.

Megan Peglar, Rev.

Self

Austin, TX

Public funds should be directed to public schools, not private entities. I was educated in Texas public schools (San Antonio ISD, Waco ISD, and Galveston ISD) and went on to get my Bachelor's degree at TCU and my Master of Divinity at Brite Divinity School. In all of my public schools (of which there were many, because my family moved quite a bit), I was taught by caring, excellent teachers and was able to get to know other kids from all backgrounds. In the classroom and in extracurricular activities, I gained so much knowledge! My two (now adult) stepchildren were educated in public schools, and my beloved niece and nephews are in the public school system now. I shudder to think about this bill passing and taking away necessary resources from their schools. If we want a well-functioning society, we must equip every public school with the resources they need to deliver quality education that prepares every child for the future, no matter their color, where they live, their religious faith, or how much money their parents make. I have a problem with tax dollars going to religious schools that aren't accountable to taxpayers. Vouchers benefit wealthy families who can already afford private tuition, leaving working-class and rural families behind. Students with disabilities lose protections under federal and state law if they use a voucher to attend a private school. Texas schools are already underfunded. Instead of defunding them further, I urge you to fully fund our public schools. They could be the pride of Texas, if only you would support them.

Monica Trevino

Parent

Allen, TX

Vouchers will do irreparable damage to our public schools who educate the majority of our students.. Please vote NO!!

Nicole Manning

Self, unemployed

Selma, TX

Vote no!! This will destroy the public school system which is already struggling. Plus giving tax payer money to religious schools violates the separation of church and state and the Texas constitution. This is a scam that will only benefit the wealthy and deepen the divide between the rich and everyone else.

Jennifer Dewhirst

Self - educator

Houston, TX

Texans do not want this voucher program. It doesn't serve us, and it is designed to benefit lots of people, but not Texas students. It will decimate the public schools in many areas that are desperately seeking more dollars to best educate students. The fact that Republicans refused to add a conflict of interest/conduct amendment is very telling. Our country depends on a well-educated populace, & it seems evident that Texas is moving backwards. This will also take away money from the Teacher Retirement System, & teachers in TX have served the state and deserve the retirement that they earned. Simply look at other states that implemented similar programs & see that they haven't worked.

David Manuel

Self

Bryan, TX

While the idea of giving "everyone" access to private schools is nice in theory, there are several problems with using public funds for this:

1. Students of poor and rural areas, who should theoretically benefit from the program, will be unable to due to limited or no access to private schools.
2. Private schools have the ability to restrict enrollments, which create a barrier for ADA and special-needs students.
3. Since many private schools are religious, it would create an endorsement of religion (or would the state approve money to an Islamic-based private school?) If not, this is a violation of the 1st Amendment.

John Strunc

Voter, Texas citizen, Public Educator

Montgomery, TX

As a born and raised Texan, as a Republican voter, as an educator, I am strongly against this bill. This bill, along with SB 2 will continue the decades long trend of underfunding and undermining public education in Texas. The following are just a few of the reasons I am in opposition to this bill, or any other discussion of vouchers, ESAs, etc.

1) This bill will unconstitutionally shift public monies to religious institutions. While the argument has been made that the primary focus of the funding would be core instruction, those institutions would be able to use the public funds to advance their own religious programming. Will the institutions be required to submit their curriculum for state review? Will Islamic schools be required to prove that they do not teach an anti-Israel curriculum? Will the state force a Protestant world view upon Catholic institutions? These questions have not been satisfactorily answered.

2) This bill would divert funds from chronically underfunded schools. Despite the governor's statements that it would not, the math says that for every student who leaves a public school, it will be -$6,100 (approx.) per school. (Somehow this becomes +$10,000 at the private school). The governor himself did also admit to this.

3) This bill is welfare for the wealthy who are already sending their children to private schools. Despite the governor's statements pointing to other states that have similar programs, he ignores study after study that show less than 2% of the recipients of these funds did not attend private school originally. Instead, the remaining 98% of recipients were already attending private schools. This bill gives them a $10,000 break on tuition, paid for by the taxpayers, which includes those who choose to send their children to public schools.

4) This bill claims it will make private schools affordable for all Texans, which it does not. This is again proved by the statements of the bills supporters. They claim that $10,000 is the average tuition at private schools. They claim this money can be used for that tuition. When asked about transportation costs, they claim this bill can also be used for those. They ignore that every dollar spent on transportation costs is one less dollar to help cover tuition. This includes spending on extracurricular activities, uniforms, additional tutoring, and/or other fees, each of which would deduct the amount available for actual tuition. Again, this leaves those who currently can not afford a private school option without the option this bill claims to create.

5) This keeps private and public schools on an unequal playing field. Ignoring the funding imbalance, public schools will continue to be required to follow all state and federal guidelines. Public schools will continue to be required to administer and be judged by state exams, which remain poorly designed and developmentally inappropriate.

This bill is wrong for Texas and must be blocked. Thank you for your time.

Chris Kovatch

Self

Orange, TX

I oppose school vouchers in Texas because they take critical funding away from our public schools and funnel it into private institutions that aren't held to the same standards. Our public schools are already struggling with limited resources, overcrowded classrooms, and underpaid teachers—diverting money only makes these problems worse.

For rural communities like mine, where public schools are often the only option, vouchers don't offer a real choice. Instead, they drain resources from the very schools that serve the majority of students. Private schools aren't required to accept all students, meaning kids with disabilities, behavioral challenges, or lower test scores could be left behind. That's not fairness—that's exclusion.

Taxpayer dollars should be used to strengthen public education, not subsidize private institutions that operate without accountability. If we truly want to improve education in Texas, we should invest in our teachers, upgrade school facilities, and ensure every student—regardless of background—has access to a high-quality public education.

Lorena Snyder Atchley

Self

Conroe, TX

Public education needs to be funded. The vouchers, which have been used in other states, have shown to be destructive to public education. The majority of people in Texas do not want the vouchers, I truly hope you people listen. Do what's best for ALL TEXANS. Fund the public school system, quit playing games with children. Protect children of the state. They deserve to have proper education, no matter their economic status.

Holly Nelson

Self

Allen, TX

Please, do NOT pass school vouchers out of taxpayers' funds!!

Randolph Bauder

Self-Forensic Engineer

Bryan, TX

Alma Allens comments on concern with "one child" walking away from the public schools taking away funding from the public school is not the right way to approach this. She seems concerned about the money going into the public school system rather than the children's wellbeing or education. She also isn't considering that there are already thousands of children, including my own, who are already homeschooled and receiving no benefit from tax funded education dollars.

She is also stating that the teacher/student ratio has to stay at 22 to 1. What if there are less kids in the school, and the teacher child ratio is less, and the education quality becomes better as a result?

Leticia Lopez

Self

Midland, TX

I am wholeheartedly against the SB 2. The Vouchers are not beneficial to all Texas students. This Bill will benefit the wealthy & leave the students with the most needs out of getting what they truly need a Great Education. Look to the future...It will be a sad situation when The Future of our Country is not getting the Education they deserve & need in order for our State & Country to Thrive.

Shan Wang

self - Software Engineer

Lakeway, TX

Public schools are vital to the state of Texas. I vehemently oppose school voucher programs which take away funding from public schools which serve all Texans. Our public schools provide broad access to education resources which aim to serve each and every child in this state. Funneling public funds to private schools is anathema to access for all. Do not pass HB3.

Kathy Fellows
Self
Mineral Wells, TX

Good morning. As a mother and former student of the public school system, I strongly support HB3. Growing up, my parents had no school choice. We were assigned to a struggling school based on our zip code. It was underfunded, overcrowded, and lacked basic resources. Teachers did their best, but they were overwhelmed. My parents couldn't afford private school or to move us to a better district. They had no options.

Now, as a mother, I'm facing similar concerns—but today it's not just about lack of funding. I see political agendas and inappropriate content being introduced in public schools, often without parents' knowledge or consent. Topics like gender identity and sexuality are being discussed with very young children, and parents are being left out of the conversation. That's unacceptable.

I want to homeschool my son, but we live on one income, and it's financially difficult. HB3 would give families like mine real school choice and the funds to make it possible. This bill empowers parents to make decisions that are best for their children's education and future.

HB3 isn't about taking from public schools; it's about holding them accountable and giving parents alternatives when those schools aren't meeting their children's needs. Wealthy families already have choices—this bill gives middle- and working-class families the same opportunity.

Our children deserve better. Please pass HB3 and give parents the freedom to choose what's best for their kids.

Lisa Thorne
Self
Leander, TX

Thank you for considering my input on HB 3. As a product of Texas public schools and as a retired Texas public school teacher, I am adamantly opposed to this bill for implementing school vouchers. Texans need a strong public school system in order to meet the needs of our state in the coming years. Public schools need more funding, not less. Public schools are open to all students regardless of income level or learning needs. I'd rather pay taxes to fund all students having access to a strong education through the public schools than see my tax dollars diverted to private or homeschool families. I have 3 grandchildren in public schools here in Texas. Their districts are currently inadequately funded by the state. Two of these kiddos are in Gifted and Talented programs as well as having 504's for health needs. One grandchild needs Speech support as she has a language delay. Once again, Special Education is woefully under-funded. We have no business giving vouchers for private school when our public school students and their schools are making do with less $. Thank you. Vote No on HB3.

Kennedy LeFave
Self
Edinburg, TX

I am a Texan, my wife is a born and raised Texan, and so are our 4 children. All of which are homeschooled. I am in support of this bill for many reasons, but do not think this bill does enough. I believe the funding should be clear and even across the board, much like in Florida. Not discriminatory giving back to Texas' homeschool children just tuition while other Texas children receive enough funds to cover tuition and all the extracurricular programs that allow for a complete education. Other States have figured this out and I believe Texas can too! Let's lead the way Texas! Thank you Committee for your time in reading this.

Iris Suddaby
Self
AUSTIN, TX

Article 7, Section 1 of the Texas Constitution states that the legislature has a duty to "establish and make suitable provision for the support and maintenance of an efficient system of public free schools". Vouchers undermine this duty by diverting funds to private schools, which are not subject to the same accountability standards as public schools. Our public schools are the heart of our communities and our constitution protects this priceless institution. Going against our constitution to give our public funds to private companies is a unconscionable in our state.

Sabrina Broughton
Self teacher
Victoria, TX

I oppose HB3. Public schools should be fully funded and tax payer funds shouldn't go to private schools, especially without accountability.

Autumn Mendez, Mrs.
Self
San Marcos, TX

I strongly oppose this bill. Families already have choices when it comes to educating their children how they see fit. This will have severe effects on public education that is already grossly underfunded and has been for years!
Vouchers have been proven in other states to not work and only benefit the few that are already in private education instead of the many that still attend public schools.

Jennifer Downing Hale
Self/Professor of Nursing
Austin, TX

I do not support the creation of education savings accounts for private schools when our public schools are vastly underfunded. Why is the basic allotment for each of my children $6,160 while the allotment for a private school student $10,000? Even if I wanted to send my children to private school, the average tuition in the Austin area is $25,000- $30,000. This bill misses the mark on allocating our resources. Our public schools need funding to retain teachers, issue supplies, and provide support services. It is very frustrating to know that Texas sits on a billion dollar rainy day fund, only to see year after year the same $6,160 allotment for our public school children.

Jennifer Brand
Self- financial analyst
Flower Mound, TX

Our public schools need to be fully funded. Our teachers need to have appropriate support and resources. Vouchers will only aid the wealthy. It won't help kids with special needs or those with financial hardship. Do the right thing and fully fund public schools and teachers with TAX PAYER funds WITHOUT ridiculous stipulations.

Brad Little
Self
Bedford, TX

I think we should NOT pass HB 3. Let's call this what it is, a school voucher program, which by design, will take money from public schools, and will damage the education of the majority of people that can't afford to send their children to private schools. The voucher will still not provide enough money for normal working households to send their children to private school. This is another bill to put money in the pockets of higher income families, who already send their children to private school. In the next election, I will not vote for anyone who votes to pass this bill!

Laura Randall

self - retired teacher and parent of three public school grads

SPRING, TX

As a proud retired teacher of 30 years, parent of three successful public-school graduates, taxpayer, and lifelong Texas citizen, I am asking you to vote NO on House Bill 3 (HB 3) and stand with Texas public schools, students, and educators. This bill threatens to drain critical funding from our public schools by diverting taxpayer dollars to private school vouchers—hurting the very institutions that serve most Texas children.

Public schools are the backbone of our communities. They educate ALL children, regardless of ability, background, or zip code. Redirecting funds to private schools that aren't held to the same standards undermines our public education system and leaves rural and working-class communities with fewer resources and fewer opportunities for students. ALL students deserve a quality education, and this bill will give priority to those who can afford a private setting, weakening the public school system for the rest. As a teacher, I am very aware that there are problems in our public schools - most stemming from societal issues. Educators are tasked with a never-ending list of issues to address, and I want to see appropriate funding for public schools so educators have the means to do the work they are passionate about - educating our children to be the best citizens they can be. Without strong and secure public schools, our great state will become even more divided while the children suffer.

Additionally, HB 3 could destabilize the Teacher Retirement System (TRS) by reducing the number of active educators paying into the pension fund. Retired teachers, who dedicated their careers to Texas students, deserve financial security—not uncertainty. I know some like to focus on the myth that most teachers are "indoctrinating our children" and that many believe that teachers should not be respected (sadly, I heard this nonsense over and over at the polls), but I can assure you that the majority of teachers in Texas are giving 120% every day to make sure our kids are cared for physically and mentally. How many other professions are asked to take a bullet for their team and are trained to do that? Teachers are and would protect their kids at the cost of their own life. They are also guiding them to be respectful, responsible members of our society (but definitely don't do that through SEL because that's offensive to those who know nothing about it or our kids). They do all of this WHILE teaching the curriculum decided on by the state. It is grossly unfair to jeopardize the future of these hard-working teachers who have given so much to the children, and families, of Texas citizens.

I urge you to protect our public schools and educators by voting NO on HB 3. Instead of dismantling public education, we should be focusing on fully funding our schools, raising teacher pay, reducing class sizes, and strengthening TRS for current and future retirees.

Please stand with ALL Texas students, families, and educators—oppose HB 3

Arlis Brodie

Self

Houston, TX

Vote No on this bill. Not only will it bankrupt the state (look at Arizona) it will also kill public schools. Texans DO NOT want our tax dollars to go toward private education. As public servants, you MUST support public education and this bill will literally kill public education. There's no accountability for private schools and this will open up yet another avenue for lawsuits. Stop spending the public's money, my money, in this wasteful effort. Do you want your money to fund private Jewish , Muslim or other non-Christian education? As a Jew, I don't either. My choice i ok g schools , my money not public tax dollars. Vote NO

Lindsey Ross

Self

Buda, TX

I think this is completely against all that stands for fair public education for ALL! This merely serves the most wealthy. I'm appalled by those that support this bill, especially the ones that hide behind Christianity because Jesus would be mortified to see people prioritize the weather over the ones in need!

Elysia Yeager

Self/single parents of middle income

Houston, TX

Please support this bill. I am a single mom (currently unemployed due to the economy) whose kids go to private school. We are zoned to a C grade elementary school and given the current economic situation I can not afford to move to a better school district. My eldest is in a Montessori school where she is thriving. If she was in public school she would be looked over as one of the 'good kids' when she really needs extra assistance and time that public school teachers don't have.

My ex husband won't pay for anything beyond child support and scraping together what I need each month is a constant stressor.

I beseech you in behalf of all parents in my situation to please pass this bill!

Charlene Dailey

self

Pflugerville, TX

Dear Texas Representatives,

I encourage you to vote NO on HB3. I believe it would drain resources away from our already struggling public schools and be detrimental to our most vulnerable students.

Thank you for your time.

Alicia Dunn

Self - chief of staff to a medical school dean

Temple, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

- 1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.
- 2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.
- 3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.
- 4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot.

This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.

Thank you for your serious consideration for the benefit of ALL your constituents, not just a select few.

Justin Marston

Self/ Publically Educated Landscape Architect

Rowlett, TX

I am writing to express my strong opposition to the use of taxpayer money to fund private school vouchers in Texas. As a parent of three young boys in public schools, each requiring specialized support due to disabilities, I am deeply concerned about the devastating impact this policy would have on our already underfunded public education system.

Texas public schools serve over 80% of students in our state, yet they continue to struggle with inadequate funding. Families like mine—who rely on public schools to provide essential services, special education programs, and resources for children with disabilities—are being asked to do more with less, while private institutions stand to receive public dollars without the same accountability. Unlike public schools, private schools are not required to accept all students, nor are they held to the same educational and financial transparency standards. Diverting state funds to private institutions directly harms the vast majority of Texas children while benefiting only a privileged few who can already afford private tuition.

The financial burden on public schools is already evident. We receive near-constant fundraising requests to cover essential programs and supplies that should be funded by the state. If vouchers are implemented, this situation will only worsen, further reducing the quality of education and resources available to Texas students. Our legislators must focus on strengthening public education, not undermining it by redirecting taxpayer money to private entities that do not serve all students equitably.

I urge you to oppose any attempt to fund private school vouchers with public tax dollars. Texas needs leadership that prioritizes the education of all children, not policies that siphon critical resources away from the majority of families who depend on public schools. Please stand with the vast majority of Texans who support strong, well-funded public education and reject this harmful proposal.

Sean Kelly

Public schools

Waxahachie, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the “bought”? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Diane Samuel

Self

NEW BRAUNFELS, TX

I strongly urge you to reject any school voucher proposals that divert public tax dollars away from Texas public schools.

Vouchers do not increase educational choice. They subsidize private schools at taxpayer expense, often with no accountability, no transparency, and no requirement to serve all students. Texas already struggles with underfunded public schools, teacher shortages, and rural districts that would be devastated by losing even a fraction of their funding.

If you truly want to support educational choice, fully fund public schools, raise teacher salaries, and invest in better resources for all Texas students. Public tax dollars should stay in public schools that serve all children - not private institutions that can pick and choose their students.

Please vote NO on vouchers. 6 million Texas public school students are depending on you to protect their education.

Jennifer Guhlin

Self

Conroe, TX

I am a Texas resident and parent. My children currently attend and have graduated from public Texas schools. I fully understand this bill, and I do NOT support it in any way.

Ja Carter, Mrs

Self

Dallas, TX

This is not the answer to the problems in Texas schools. We need education reform that allows our teachers to teach. This is not the answer to the education problem. Teachers need to be able to teach the core subjects. The discipline problems are out of control. The number of non English speakers is a huge part of the problem. Can you imagine being in a class and not being an English speaker?

Rebecca Gerleman

Self retired

Plano, TX

I do not support the "education savings account program". Recently read editorial in the AJC about the failures of a similar program. Why don't you give the public a chance to vote on this issue? Public schools are struggling mightily and this will cause more schools to close, and make things worse.

Aaron Wolske

Self

Dallas, TX

I went to the public library the other day only to find they didn't have the book I was looking for. I asked them for a gift card for Barnes and Noble. This is school vouchers.

It pulls away money from an institution that needs it and gives to an organization that does not need it.

I don't and won't have kids, but I do not want my tax dollars going to a private school. My parents were teachers in the public school system, and I know first hand how even the best schools in the best neighborhoods need our tax dollars.

I do NOT want to subsidize the wealthy that can already afford to send their kids to private schools. Fund the public schools.

Michelle Smith

self

Justin, TX

Today is my youngest child's 13th birthday. I am up at 5 am writing to legislators to oppose HB3 (the educational committee that meets today). When we went to PTA Rally Day, her only question after meeting with Tan Parker and Mitch Little was wondering why private school students were worth $4K more than her in public education, and still didn't have to take the STAAR test that she despises. As a birthday present to Hope, our elected representatives, please OPPOSE HB3 for all of the 5.5 million public school children in Texas. This does not offer choice, it takes desperately needed funding from PubEd and gives it to private schools with no accountability. That is neither conservative, nor fiscally responsible. Please oppose HB3.

Jay Collette, Teacher
Mansfield isd
Arlington, TX

URGENT! ACT NOW THEN SHARE THIS POST!

Easy way to give comments without making a trip to Austin. This takes 2 minutes!!

Voucher bill being heard now!

Click and send:

<https://comments.house.texas.gov/home?c=c400>

Example you can copy and paste below!

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the “bought”? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Rob Waller, Mr
All Children of Texas
Waxahachie, TX

URGENT! ACT NOW THEN SHARE THIS POST!

Easy way to give comments without making a trip to Austin. This takes 2 minutes!!

Voucher bill being heard now!

Click and send:

<https://comments.house.texas.gov/home?c=c400>

Example you can copy and paste below!

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the “bought”? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Debra Justice
Self/Retired
Canton, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Catherine Martinez
Self
Austin, TX

An education savings program will not help the majority of Texas students. This bill will hurt more students than it helps. This bill will hurt rural school districts. This bill should not move forward and Texas representatives should focus on doing more to help all Texas students, not just the few who will be selected for this plan.

Rebekah Igo
Self
Fort Worth, TX

I oppose HB 3. I want equitable funding for public and charter schools. I want charter schools to get the same per student funding as public schools.

Olivia Kuchik
Self
Austin, TX

Please oppose this voucher program. It would take much needed funds from people who really need them. Public schools have had enough taken from them. The teachers work hard and underserved children can't afford to have less. Please oppose "school choice".

Lorraine Kostroun
Self
San Antonio, TX

I do not support HB 3!

Cristina Reyna-Neel
Self
Austin, TX

No to vouchers

Emily Novak
Self
Irving, TX

I am STRONGLY AGAINST HB3 and school vouchers.

Deborah Pina

Constituents

Odessa, TX

Say no to vouchers.

Veronica Lozano

Self

Kyle, TX

I strongly oppose the creation of an education savings account. Texans already have school choice and can opt to send their children to private schools. Unlike public schools, private institutions have the discretion to select their students. Diverting public funds to these accounts would only weaken public schools, which are essential for serving all students, regardless of their background or needs. Texans do not want this!!

Theodore Patman

self- advocate

Houston, TX

Hi, my name is Teddy Patman, and I'm 13 years old. I have Down Syndrome, and I really like going to my public school. I have a lot of friends there, and my teachers and the staff always help me when I need it. They support me with everything I need to succeed, like my IEP and accommodations, so I can do my best in school.

I don't think it's fair that private schools could get public money through HB3 and not have to follow the same rules that my public school does. My school is fully funded, and I get all the help I need to succeed. I'm really happy there, and I don't want to have to leave my school. I don't want other kids like me to lose the support they need because of this bill.

If private schools take public money, they should have to follow the same laws to help kids with disabilities like me. I want to stay in my school, where I am safe, supported, and where I can be with my friends. Please don't pass HB3. It's not fair to kids with disabilities like me.

Thank you for listening.

Melina Gosa, Ms

Self

Corpus Christi, TX

Texas does not need school vouchers Programs! Our children in public schools are the majority, the minority of students that want to go to private or charter schools. Those funds need to be the responsibility of the parents.

Patricia Sutkin

self

Dallas, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Autumn Scott

School

Austin, TX

No

Lauren Copeland

Self

Stephenville, TX

I believe in public education!! Let your voice be heard NOW! Feel free to modify my comment for yourself-

<https://comments.house.texas.gov/home?c=c400>

“I strongly disagree with this bill’s approach to school funding and teacher compensation. It does not adequately address the root causes of educational inequality and may disproportionately impact underfunded districts, particularly rural communities. Additionally, it fails to consider the unique needs of students requiring special services, potentially widening the gap in support for these vulnerable groups.”

Brittany Navarra

Self

San Antonio, TX

Vouchers will proactively hurt students. Gutting the funding to schools who need it the most is not only wrong it’s disgusting.

Joseph Azulay

Self. Manager

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn’t one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it’s time for Texas to join them.

Kelly Moore

Self - Executive Director of Software Development Firm

Cypress, TX

I urge you to vote against this school voucher bill. As a concerned constituent and advocate for a strong public education system, I firmly believe that this legislation will harm Texas students, teachers, and taxpayers. Rather than solving the challenges facing our public schools, HB3 diverts essential funds away from the very institutions that serve the majority of our children.

The Texas Constitution mandates that the state provide a "suitable" and "efficient" system of public free schools. A voucher program directly undermines this mandate by diverting resources toward private entities, many of which lack the capacity, willingness, or obligation to serve all students equitably. Public tax dollars should remain in public schools, benefiting the greatest number of students rather than a select few.

Unlike public schools, which must meet rigorous state standards, adhere to curriculum requirements, and undergo public financial audits, private schools receiving vouchers operate with minimal oversight. This lack of accountability means taxpayer dollars could fund schools that fail to meet basic educational standards. Many private schools are not subject to the same financial transparency laws as public schools. This opens the door for potential fraud, mismanagement, and misuse of funds—something we have seen in other states that have implemented similar voucher programs. Without stringent accountability measures, Texas risks wasting public money on schools that may not provide a high-quality education.

Proponents of HB3 argue that school vouchers expand parental choice. However, in reality, vouchers often benefit only a small segment of students—primarily those who are already attending private schools. Many private schools charge tuition rates that far exceed the value of the voucher, leaving low- and middle-income families unable to cover the remaining costs. Additionally, private schools can selectively admit students based on entrance exams, religious affiliation, and other criteria, excluding many children who would benefit from school choice the most.

If lawmakers truly want to improve education in Texas, they should focus on increasing funding for public schools, raising teacher salaries, reducing classroom sizes, and expanding access to advanced coursework and vocational training. Redirecting public funds to private schools through a voucher system does not address the root causes of educational inequities—it only exacerbates them.

Public education is a public good that benefits all Texans. When we invest in our public schools, we invest in the future of our state by ensuring that all children, regardless of their zip code, receive a quality education. HB3 moves Texas in the wrong direction by prioritizing privatization over public investment, harming our students and communities in the process.

Clarisse Manuel

Self - Research Specialist

Austin, TX

I am not in support of this bill. Public education is important. Because public schools are the form of education that all Texas children are guaranteed to have access to, we should prioritize public education as a necessity. While parents have the right to make the best choices they can for their child's education, this choice should not come at the expense of other children's education through defunding public schools.

Michelle Giesen, Retired educator

Self

Highland Village, TX

I think that supporting private schools will destroy the public school system. Funding is terrible now for public schools. The Robin Hood plan already takes away money from large wealthy districts which leaves them without adequate funding. I think that by passing this bill, it's going to destroy the public school system. The vouchers are not going to help poor families. This is not an equitable bill for all Texas families. God bless and hope and pray this does not pass.

Jennifer Diaz

Self

Krum, TX

This bill should not be passed. Vouchers deny, public schools, the funds that they are due by depreciating the funds available. They also robbed teachers of their TRS savings by ensuring there won't be enough left in the future. Most importantly, this bill gives money to private schools that are not held accountable and do not have to accept all students. Not only that, but not all of us have access to private schools in our area. The neighborhood where I live has no access to private schools, but our public schools are just down the street. People in my neighborhood would have to make large commute just to send their students to private schools if they could afford them and had the time to commute. No public transportation is provided to the private schools that are so far out of reach meaning money would go to a bill that would not benefit my community.

Melissa Prince

Self, public school teacher

The Woodlands, TX

Say no to vouchers! They will only benefit wealthy families already in private schools. Public schools need more funding to support teachers and students, and this bill will hurt public schools.

Paul Quinzi

Self

Austin, TX

Listening to the hearing today, it is shameful to hear the author dodge questions about taking precious money from public school funds, not to help vulnerable kids, but to subsidize millionaires. Why is welfare only ok for people who don't need it? Does it have anything to do with them being the source of campaign contributions? This is transparent thievery to benefit your cronies. We see through it.

Melissa Harcrow Harcrow

Self

El Paso, TX

School vouchers will further the economic, ability, educational, and racial divide in our state. I urge to first have an independent analysis and study of other places that have passed school vouchers and see how successful/unsuccessful it has been for those communities

Amanda Hunt

Self - Attorney

Houston, TX

As a mother and Houstonian, I am very against this bill. I do not want state interference in our local Houston public schools. The states involvement in our public school system has been disastrous. Parents in Houston do not want this bill.

Shmuel Slonim

Self

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Roland Manuel

Self

Katy, TX

School choice shouldn't come at the expense of public schools. Public education is very important!!!

Sylvia Rhee

Private citizen

Austin, TX

Vote NO for school vouchers and increase basic allotment for students.

Sandra McMillan

SELF/ retired

Hurst, TX

Against! All funds should go toward public education that will enhance our country. This voucher will benefit the wealthy not the betterment of the people. Totally against vouchers!

Dana Bjornstad

Self

McKinney, TX

This would ruin public education in Texas. It is a horrible idea and I am absolutely against it.

Cynthia Greenlee, Mrs

Lewisville Independent School District

Flower Mound, TX

School Choice Vouchers should not be approved. The money that taxpayers have spent needs to stay with the local school. I am an educator with Lewisville ISD.

Zalman Dubrawsky

Self

Dallas, TX

My daughter has bounced around schools, because some were not equipped to educate her. Please help her. Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Rachel Levertov
Chabad of Austin
Austin, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Mari Casserberg
Self
Dripping Springs, TX

At a minimum, private schools should be required to follow all state and federal laws if they receive public tax dollars. This is being enforced on a national scale currently under the Trump administration (LGBTQ discrimination and Palestinian protest at colleges.)

In other states, these voucher schemes have not improved the outcome for public education. The majority of voucher recipients are already enrolled in private schools.

We are already seeing allies of Governor Abbott opening private for profit schools so this voucher scheme has all the appearances of a transfer of public tax dollars to a small minority of for-profit benefactors (who also happen to be campaign donors).

Cale Sherry
Self- CTO
Plano, TX

I strongly oppose HB 3 as it diverts public taxpayer dollars away from public schools and funnels them into private institutions with little oversight. Public funds should be used to strengthen our public education system, not subsidize private education at the expense of the majority of Texas students.

Paige Taylor
Self
Missouri City, TX

The constituents of Texas resoundingly reject school vouchers. This will hurt rural communities and students with disabilities. Support public education in Texas and vote NO to vouchers.

Christopher Wolfe, Dr.

self

Irving, TX

It is surprising that Texas, which leads the nation in so many areas of reform, has been lagging in the nationwide movement for school choice. Schools are vitally important to society and the social interest in good schools is very important. But Americans have traditionally trusted parents to make the best choices for their children, and education is not an exception. It is essential to have a great mix of well-run public schools and a variety of private school choices. That pluralism is typical of America and one of its great strengths. Especially when we are dealing with children, who are so different, it is wrong to have a cookie-cutter mold that confines most parents (who cannot afford to pay for both public schools and for private schools) to public schools. Charter schools and private schools are an essential part of the educational mix, and that requires an equitable state policy of permitting parents to choose the schools they consider best for their children, by offering parents support for all educational options. The near-universal experience is that private schools typically do an even better job than public schools in producing the kinds of educated citizens we need.

We need good public schools, but, contrary to some people's beliefs, high quality public education is not primarily a matter of money. (If that were the case, our public school students would be showing great increases in educational outcomes, as we have invested more and more money in public schools over the last 65 years -- but educational outcomes have been falling, unfortunately.) Parents should not be confined to choosing public schools, for lack of financial resources, but should have the opportunity to send their children to the schools that will be best for their children. And this competition among various sorts of schools -- standard public schools, charter schools, and various sorts of private schools -- can be one of the best ways of improving public education.

For many years, those who strongly believe that their religious beliefs require them to send their children to schools that teach, not only secular knowledge, but also a religious perspective on all the different areas of study, have been discriminated against, forced to send their children to schools that offer a purely secular view in the various areas of study. Simply "tacking on" Sunday school classes is, in their opinion (and with all due respect for the opinions of others), inadequate for instilling religious and moral values in their children. As long as public support for private schools is available to every family, irrespective of its religious beliefs, Texas would not be advancing any particular religious beliefs. It would simply be empowering parents to educate their children according to their families' beliefs.

Please support educational choice for Texas parents. This will benefit Texas families and also the state of Texas and the nation as well. Thank you.

Yosef Levertov

Tamim Academy of Austin

Austin, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Ashley Whitt

Self

Austin, TX

I am hugely opposed to the voucher program. Texas needs to invest in its public schools. The answer is not to fund private schools that already have private funding. Why would you not invest in your own education system?? I understand people are upset with the quality of their public schools, and I wish that you would fight to better fund our Texas public schools so they can attract quality candidates and help them do their job to the best of their abilities by funding their classrooms. I know y'all can do better. You can fund public schools so they can provide livable wages to teachers and so classrooms have the necessary tools to teach our young Texans. Vouchers seem like you've thrown in the towel on public education or you're in the pockets of special interests. Either way, it's disappointing to say the least.

Darrell Alexander

Self (retired)

Alvin, TX

The Texas Constitution requires the state to fund PUBLIC schools, not private schools. Secondly, a program that could cost in excess of $1B for less than 2% of the population is not a good use of taxpayer $$$. Finally, if one is passed, I'm hoping it goes EXCLUSIVELY to low income or special needs students. Under no circumstances should ESA's go to any student/parent with a household income over $100,000.

Remember, you represent VOTERS and STUDENTS, not out of state billionaire donors. Voters are watching what you do!!!!

Isha Archer

Self, Stay at home parent

Houston, TX

I am a parent of two traditional public school students in Houston ISD, and I urge this committee to reject the establishment of educational savings accounts that will weaken our public schools and further fracture our community bonds.

My children's public schools are essential to the sense of community in our neighborhood and need more investment and support. I am a member of two PTO boards, and parents in the community work tirelessly to fundraise for our school and to volunteer at enrichment events that serve as enrichment for all our kids and are open to the community. Our meetings and events strengthen our community bonds, but we are sacrificing more and more of our time to fill in the gaps created by the disinvestment of Texas elected officials that are constitutionally bound to support and maintain our public schools.

I know parents of special needs who use existing provisions in state law that allow the use of state funding to enroll their special needs children in private facilities that are better able to serve them. These provisions likely need to be strengthened and better publicized, not replaced with ESAs that have been shown to disproportionately benefit wealthy families with children already enrolled in private school.

While the Texas legislature has refused to keep funding in line with inflation and tie investment to attendance rather than enrollment, I have seen class sizes increase, an increase in the number of uncertified teachers, schools unable to pay librarians, a reduction in the number adults on campus contributing to increased attacks on teachers and across the state districts are moving to four-day school weeks instead of five. Despite all these cuts, districts are still operating on a budget deficit - all of this in one of the strongest economies in the country. The Texas legislature is underinvesting in our children and we will all pay for it with increased crime and underemployment that weaken our sense of community.

Amy Cavender

Self, event producer

Austin, TX

I support public schools and oppose HB3.

Carol Wells

Self

Spring, TX

As a Texan and from a family of public school teachers, I oppose school vouchers and this bill. Please do the right thing for ALL students in Texas and vote against HB 3.

Linda Cowles

Self

Pearland, TX

No to tax dollars being spent on vouchers.

Candace Colschen

Self

Montgomery, TX

As both a parent of four children in public education and a teacher of 20 years I say NO TO THE EDUCATION SAVINGS ACCOUNT BEING PROPOSED!

The amount of CHILDREN that this would help if it passes is a drop in the bucket to the amount of CHILDREN this would TAKE FROM AND HURT!!! We are supposed to be making decisions for children and doing what is best for them.

Why has so much time, energy, and money been spent working on trying to get people on board with vouchers instead of spending the same amount of time and energy finding ways to support PUBLIC EDUCATION. A place where over FIVE MILLION CHILDREN attend. Attached to each of those FIVE MILLION CHILDREN ARE FAMILIES!

Stop using buzz words like parent choice because that has always existed. Private schools take away parent choice by CHOOSING who can attend their school not mention many deny children who have learning difficulties, challenges, or disabilities.

What is sad is that public schools have been attacked in order to try to convince the public vouchers are needed. What is crazy is that it wasn't long ago that public schools and teachers were being praised when they found ways to connect with their students and families while the Nation was shut down. How quickly we forget all the good they have done and do.

Not only does this bill HARM children due to the fact that it will be taking funds away from the children attending their neighborhood school who can't afford the difference, won't be chosen for the program, or wouldn't be accepted it affects the one thing teachers build as their retirement. The TRS will be impacted which impacts families and generations. Even a 1% shift in TRS could cause huge implications. States who have had vouchers are the poster child for the problems and challenges that come from making this choice. We have NEVER been a state that has followed others why are we choosing to now. Why can't Texas find a solution to crest a public education system everyone can stand for and be proud of. I know as an elementary teacher of 20 years in Texas I AM PROUD OF MY PROFESSION but even prouder of the children I have taught who have gone on to do great things.

Also, it should be added that public schools should be funded by enrollment and not on attendance. This would create a HUGE SHIFT IN FUNDING and would BENEFIT CHILDREN AND DISTRICTS ALL ACROSS TEXAS!

Renee Conley

Self

Austin, TX

I DO NOT support school vouchers or education savings accounts (ESAs).

- Currently, Texas public school districts receive a base allotment of just over $6,000 per student. This amount places Texas in the lowest 10 states on base per student allocations. School funding should not be tied to attendance. If the proposed voucher plan is put in place, Texas public school funding will decrease based on a decreased number of students attending. Increase funding to Texas public schools.

- Given the current economy, families meeting the federal low-income guidelines will likely not be able to afford the remaining private school tuition. Families with incomes up to $160,000 will be able to use the $10,000 as a subsidy to continue attending private schools they are already attending. Stop misleading the public by saying low income families will be able to afford private school tuition.

- Private schools have less oversight than Texas public schools. Public schools cannot pick and choose which students attend. Public schools take ALL students. If private schools accept the voucher funds, they should also take ALL students. Public schools have annual testing requirements. Private schools that accept the voucher funds should have the same testing requirements. Public schools must make efforts to hire certified teachers. Private schools that accept voucher funds should hire certified teachers.

- Despite the hefty dollar amount, less than 2 percent of Texas students will have a chance of receiving a voucher. The number is actually lower when the areas without private schools are considered. If there's not a private school in the area, this is not school choice.

- A legislative review of the proposed voucher program identifies the potential that it will weaken the retirement program for teachers. After dedicated years of service, Texas teachers deserve to retire and have confidence they will receive retirement funds they can live on. Increase Texas teacher pay without binding it to test scores. Secure Texas teacher retirement.

Shanna Norwood

Self

Conroe, TX

Worst. Plan. Ever. That is the short version.

I live in one of the more conservative areas of the state (montgomery county) and very very few people are desiring this voucher program to pass. Actually the opposite. We down right see this as working against the benefit of our children and students and teachers. My son will directly be effected. He is in special ed for behavioral challenges because of Autism. Some of the smartest people in the country are on the spectrum. He is brilliant. But not one private school, charter school, etc would take or retain him. (Except maybe Thrive, but the wait list for that charter is absurd and out of reach for most).

So we are in public school. And yes, there are definitely short comings in the school system. But the voucher program does NOT address the children most in need of such a program. It is a way to continue to give cuts to the wealthy who already send their children. It will not create competition. It will remove funding from the public schools so many rely on.

Please consider what the majority of people actually want. Not just those with money that make it seem lucrative. Don't be cowards. Stand up for the kids. This bill is not doing that, will not do that, and we all see that.

Erica Knisely, Rev.

self - minister and parent of public school student

Pflugerville, TX

As a parent of a child in public school I oppose vouchers and urge legislators to use the $1 billion dollar allotment for HB 3 to instead go towards funding public schools. I urge you to use your position to ensure that every child in Texas receives a quality, public education.

A diversion of significant public taxpayer dollars to private education that is not accountable to the community or held to the same standards as public schools would be a miscarriage of justice. Private schools are under no obligation to accept all students who want to attend. Under a voucher system, when private schools divert high- performing students from public schools, the public system is left with less funding to educate the remaining students, some of whom have extraordinary needs.

As a minister I am also concerned that vouchers allow for the violation of religious freedom. If a voucher program exists, the state cannot exclude religious schools from participating in it without discriminating on the basis of faith. However, including religious schools in a voucher program also discriminates on the basis of faith, because it forces the taxpayer to pay for a student to be educated in a faith tradition that may not be that of the taxpayer. American religious freedom principles require private schools to be privately and voluntarily funded.

I encourage you to use your office to protect the religious freedoms of Texans and ensure that every single child in our state receives a quality, public education by adequately funding our schools and opposing vouchers.

Mireille Patman

self

Houston, TX

I strongly oppose Texas HB3 because it allows private schools to receive public funding without being required to follow federal laws regarding students with disabilities, specifically those with IEPs and 504 plans. Under federal law, public schools are mandated to provide appropriate accommodations and services to ensure that students with disabilities receive a free and appropriate public education (FAPE). However, private schools are not required to adhere to these same standards. This creates an unacceptable disparity in educational opportunities for students with disabilities. If public funds are used to support private education, those schools must be held accountable to the same standards as public schools, including providing necessary services to students with IEPs and 504 plans. We cannot allow private institutions to bypass federal protections that are crucial for students' educational development.

Jennie Spurlock

self

Stratford, TX

I completely oppose HB3 being crammed down my throat. ESA's are NOT a priority in rural Texas and I am against tax dollars being used to support private and home schools. I would appreciate the House to increase the basic allotment for public schools by $1200 per students to allow a positive impact on the 5+ million Texas students. Along with other Texans, I will remember how you vote on this and ask you to listen to your constituents and oppose this bill. A positive vote for this bill will be documented as those who follow the billionaire agenda and will be labeled a "bought" politician who will not stand up to the governor and his school voucher platform. I encourage you to be of service to the children, teachers, and communities, as well as tax payers for not creating another financial burden in our state. Please vote NO to any ESA/VOUCHER BILL. CREATE a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for all children, educators, and communities that support public education. In addition, uphold the Texas constitution that you stated when you took your oath of office. ALL EYES of TEXANS are watching this issue.

Yaseen Tasnif
Self, University Student
Arlington, TX

The following comments are not on behalf of my employer or university.

I strongly stand against vouchers, which I firmly believe benefit the wealthy while siphoning money away from public schools that desperately need funding. I attended public and charter schools, and my siblings attend private schools, yet our family still believes in prioritizing the welfare of others who would be deeply harmed by this policy. We are inundated with facts, figures, data, and testimonies showing that the negative consequences of this bill far outweigh any potential benefits. Voucher programs in other states have already demonstrated their harmful effects. I urge all committee members to do the right thing and let this bill die a peaceful death in committee, keeping better ways to serve our children in mind.

Barbara Carneiro, Mrs.
Self
Abilene, TX

Vote No!!!! This will NOT help the majority of the state! No vouchers!!

Whitney Naquin
Self / homemaker
Driftwood, TX

As someone who cares about the future of the children of Texas and as a supporter of Texas public schools, I am writing to express my opposition to House Bill 3. Texas students deserve strong, well-funded public schools. I'm asking that you fully fund public schools FIRST, to at least the level that would match inflation increases since 2019. While even this falls short of the national average for per student investment for public schools and it is an embarrassment that Texas is so far behind, we should not be falling even further.

I would also ask that if you do continue to pursue vouchers, that you ensure ANY schools that receive state funding are held to the same transparency requirements, accountability standards, and enrollment practices as public schools. It is only fair that we should hold all educational institutions accountable to the same standards.

Thank you for your time and commitment to Texas public schools. Please do your job faithfully and represent the interests of all children in Texas by supporting public education today.

Timothy Macor
Self
Montgomery, TX

"I strongly urge you to oppose HB 3 and any efforts to implement a school voucher program in Texas. Vouchers divert critical public funds away from our already underfunded public schools, weakening the education system that serves the vast majority of Texas students. Instead of increasing educational opportunities, vouchers primarily benefit private schools that are not held to the same accountability standards, do not guarantee student protections, and often exclude students with disabilities or special needs. Public tax dollars should be invested in strengthening our public schools—ensuring smaller class sizes, higher teacher salaries, and better resources for all students—rather than subsidizing private institutions with little oversight. Please prioritize the future of Texas children by rejecting HB 3 and keeping public funds in public schools."

Shalvi Heymann, Mrs.
Self
Dallas, TX

Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities. Nearly half the states have a school choice program - it's time for Texas to join them!

Amanda Baugh

Self - Parent by the grace of God, Senior Enterprise Director, Digital Marketing Prosper, TX

SB3 is a harmful bill that poses a significant threat to the future of Texas, particularly its public education system and the well-being of everyday citizens. This bill's misguided policies will leave the most vulnerable Texans behind while empowering the wealthiest individuals and corporations to profit at the expense of our communities. It is a direct attack on the values of fairness, opportunity, and justice that we hold dear.

First and foremost, SB3 fails to support Texas' public education system, which is already underfunded and overburdened. This bill diverts resources away from our schools, cutting funding and exacerbating the inequality that already exists within the state. Rather than investing in our children's future by strengthening education, SB3 seeks to enrich special interests and billionaires who have no stake in the success of our schools. The impact will be devastating for students, teachers, and families, leading to larger class sizes, fewer resources, and a decline in the quality of education.

The bill's provisions will also have a destructive effect on Texas' communities. By prioritizing the profits of the ultra-wealthy over the needs of hardworking Texans, SB3 will drive a wedge further between the privileged elite and the working-class citizens who keep the state running. It will accelerate gentrification and displacement, leaving working families with fewer opportunities and lower standards of living. Small towns and rural areas will be especially hard-hit as SB3 continues to undermine local economies and erode the fabric of community life. The effects will ripple across the state, harming the very communities that make Texas great.

What makes SB3 particularly vile and disgusting is its blatant disregard for the people it claims to serve. This bill is not about improving the lives of everyday Texans; it is about consolidating wealth and power for those who already have far too much. It is a bill that reinforces systemic inequality, prioritizing the needs of the rich over the needs of the many. It sends a clear message that the voices of ordinary citizens do not matter, that billionaires and corporations are the true decision-makers in Texas.

As Texans, we cannot allow this bill to pass without standing up and fighting back. We will not support any Republican who votes for or champions SB3, and we will hold them accountable at the ballot box. We will vote them out of office and replace them with leaders who truly care about the people of Texas, not the interests of the wealthy elite. The impact of this bill extends far beyond our state's borders; if we allow it to pass, it will set a dangerous precedent for the rest of the nation. This is not just about Texas—this is about the future of the United States.

We will fight for a future where public education is valued, where our communities are strong, and where the interests of the many outweigh the desires of the few. We will vote, we will organize, and we will turn Te

Chana Naparstek

Self rabbi
Dallas, TX

Excited for this to pass!

Tabitha Geary

Frost ISD
Blooming Grv, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the "bought"? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Mary Wilson

Self

Austin, TX

There is absolutely no way I am comfortable having my tax dollars diverted to non-accredited education - no more than I would be comfortable having my tax dollars spent on a bridge or road that is not inspected by a certified engineer!

I am a mother with two children in the public school system. I have watched administrations and teachers beg their Community for simple things like classroom supplies. Our public schools are underfunded as it is. I am not okay taking more money out of their pockets!!!

Judith Sanford

Self. Mother, grandmother, volunteer, retired healthcare administrator

Austin, TX

Our democracy, our economy and our values are based on the participation of an educated Texas public. This bill will be a disaster for rural Texas as it will decimate their school districts!

Daniel Strassman

Self

Dallas, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Valerie Sandham

Retired

Georgetown, TX

I oppose vouchers for private schools. Our public schools have been neglected for 5 years. Please do not send public money to private schools, instead increase the per student base allotment by $1500.

Vouchers will hurt rural communities and neighborhood schools.

CHRISTOPHER BARNES

Self

Arlington, TX

Although there is evidence pointing to on-average better performance from charter schools. The question should be how do we reconsider our regulation of public schools to take advantage of the flexibility we give charter schools in determining curriculum and teaching methods that are most effective for the community they are supporting. Continuing to expand charter school funding at the expense of the public school districts they compete with will only serve to undermine the evolution of public school systems (less funding to make significant changes) and reinforce the idea that public school systems are underperforming. We also need to understand the end goal. If school districts are dissolved and the tax system that supports them ceases, how will these charter schools be funded in the future? How will children from disadvantaged communities be able to get an equal education as compared to children from affluent communities? The potential to devolve into separate and UNEQUAL education environments is a significant concern.

Debra Holmes

Self

Bedford, TX

I am against HB3. I believe the bill takes my tax dollars and uses it for money for private school students who are already going to private schools. Unfortunately this path will take money away from public schools, which are already underfunded. Additionally the private schools don't support all students. Those with disabilities may be rejected by the private schools who don't have to take students with learning issues, they don't have to accept all students as do public schools. They don't have to report academic achievements as public schools do. Ultimately my property taxes will increase when the state realizes they don't have enough money in their budgets. This bill ultimately only advantages those already being paid in the private sector.

Jessica Weinette

Self

Booker, TX

I am not in favor of public funds being diverted to private schools or homeschooling. I am not in favor of the establishment of an education savings account program.

Julie Callahan

Myself

Plano, TX

I do not support private school vouchers. This is an unnecessary diversion that only ensures our public schools will continue to underperform. Education funds are essential for public schools, a system that already struggles in our state. My district is one that is being forced to close schools as a result. Reject this proposal. It's not what's best for the majority of Texas children.

Troy Paul

self

Fort Worth, TX

Please vote down this bill. Thank you.

Ora Benton

Self

Round Rock, TX

Instead of diverting funds to private institutions, perhaps you should focus on strengthening our public schools to ensure that every child, regardless of their background, has access to a high-quality education. You, the members of the Public Education Committee are in charge of supporting and enhancing PUBLIC EDUCATION. The voucher program (HB3) does nothing FOR public education; rather it would take funds and facilities FROM our public schools. The public school system has many problems, and you should be trying to find productive ways to fix the system to more effectively serve our teachers and students, not trying to ignore and/or replace them. I would certainly rather my tax money be spent on improving the public school system than by sending tax payers' money to private institutions.

There are certainly many issues with our public education system that prevent it from effectively serving students, but funneling money out of this system and into private institutions through vouchers is not the solution to our problems.

Marilyn Harrington

Self and all grandparents

Boerne, TX

I am 78 years old and grew up in public education I've earned a BS, MS and Ph.D. Public education gave me every advantage in life. Texas underfunds its schools to the detriment of our economy and our livelihoods. We are ashamed of what has happened to us, our children, and grandchildren. We can afford to send our grandchildren and 3 of the six do in Massachusetts. One grandchild has severe dyslexia and is in a great public school special education classroom. Private schools will not have to provide for her - public education does. In no way do I want my hard-earned tax dollars to go to a private and/or religious school. If a family chooses that, then they should pay for it themselves. That's their choice. But do not insert the 10 Commandments and my money into the educational system. Greg Abbott has been bought and paid for by billionaires. He is selling out our children and their future. I am ashamed that I live in Texas. It's embarrassing.

Donna Walker

Self

Cooper, TX

I value most of Republican values. Although I've put other issues over education in the past, I will no longer vote for candidates that vote for devaluing public education. Public education is for all children. Even though money for these bills is coming from a separate fund, it will still take away from the public education budget. This will tie our hands (even more than now) to provide the best education for all students with inadequate funds. This will not help students to choose a private school as the fees are already out of their reach. Public school is appropriate for all. The parts of public school that people are upset about are those requirements set in law by our government. Again, this will be the reason I and other educators will vote for others in the future.

Jeana Bahl

Self

Parker, TX

As a parent with 2 kids in public schools, I am completely against school vouchers. Please consider the following reasons:

1. Undermining Public Education:

School vouchers divert essential funds away from public schools. Public education relies on stable funding to maintain infrastructure, pay teachers, and provide resources. When vouchers allocate this funding to private institutions, public schools suffer, resulting in reduced quality of education for those who remain in the public system.

2. Lack of Accountability:

Private schools that receive voucher funds are often not held to the same standards of accountability and transparency as public schools. This lack of oversight can result in uneven educational quality, unregulated teaching practices, and potentially discriminatory admission policies. Public schools, in contrast, must adhere to strict standards and are subject to government oversight.

3. Inequitable Access:

Vouchers often do not cover the full cost of private education, making it inaccessible to low-income families who cannot afford to pay the difference. Wealthier families benefit disproportionately, widening the gap between socio-economic classes. This inequity contradicts the principle of providing equal educational opportunities for all students, regardless of their background.

4. Erosion of Community:

Public schools serve as community hubs, bringing together students from diverse backgrounds. They foster social cohesion and mutual understanding among students of different socioeconomic, ethnic, and cultural backgrounds. Vouchers that promote private schooling contribute to fragmentation, undermining the sense of community and shared identity that public schools cultivate.

5. Constitutional Concerns:

The use of public funds to support private, often religious, schools raises constitutional questions regarding the separation of church and state. Government funding directed toward religious education can be seen as an endorsement of specific religions, which violates the Establishment Clause of the First Amendment.

6. Lack of Proven Effectiveness:

Studies have shown mixed results regarding the effectiveness of school vouchers in improving educational outcomes. There is no consistent evidence to suggest that students who use vouchers perform better academically than their peers in public schools. Without clear proof of their efficacy, diverting funds to a voucher system is a gamble with the future of public education.

Overall, school vouchers pose significant risks to the public education system, social equity, and community cohesion. Public funds should be invested in strengthening public schools, ensuring all students receive a high-quality education, and fostering an inclusive society.

Nick Scottino

Self

McKinney, TX

We must continue to fund public education

Rodrigo Pereira

Self

Mckinney, TX

Texas Education Savings Accounts (ESAs) represent a dangerous diversion of public funds away from the state's public education system, undermining the foundational principles of equitable access to quality education. Instead of redirecting taxpayer dollars to private institutions or allowing wealthy families to benefit from government-funded accounts, we should be prioritizing the funding and strengthening of public schools. Public schools serve the majority of Texas students, particularly those from low-income backgrounds, and provide crucial services such as special education, free or reduced-price meals, and support for students with diverse needs. Diverting funds to ESAs would disproportionately benefit affluent families while leaving public schools underfunded, exacerbating disparities in educational opportunities. To ensure that every Texas child receives a high-quality education, we must focus on properly funding and supporting public schools, investing in teachers, infrastructure, and resources that benefit all students, not just a privileged few.

Devony Arrington, Dr

Self

MCKINNEY, TX

Myself and my community share extreme concern for development of the voucher program in Texas. Our schools are already under funded as evidenced by an email from our public ISD this week detailing significant cuts in personnel and valuable educational programs for our students. THIS WILL HURT TEXAS. Texas is already hurting!! Our public schools will fail if any less money is available to them. They already cannot exist with what they have and give appropriate support to our students.

Molly Hornbuckle

None

Georgetown, TX

I'm appalled after reading the Williamson Sun newspaper regarding the financial crisis they are facing. This is not unique to Georgetown. It is happening everywhere. The Texas Legislature is starving our public schools over the past several sessions and vouchers will make it so much worse. You must restore public funds to our schools for ALL our students. No Vouchers!

Kristen Pereira

Self - talent manager

Mckinney, TX

School vouchers destroy neighborhood schools by siphoning off essential funding, which weakens the very foundation of public education. As more resources are redirected to private institutions, public schools—especially those in underserved communities—struggle to provide a quality education. Instead of supporting vouchers, we should focus on fully funding public education and increasing the student allotment to ensure all students, regardless of their background, have access to high-quality education. By investing in public schools, we can reduce class sizes, improve resources, and create an equitable system where every child has the opportunity to thrive.

John Taylor

Self

Plano, TX

I beg you to protect our public schools by voting against the school voucher program. The majority of Texans are against this program so it is impossible to understand how it keeps going forward, unless the people wanting to build private schools are buying votes. I have begged Senator Paxton to explain why she promotes this bill but have not received any response for the last two years. I grew up in a small town and had 47 people in my graduating class. Private schools do not exist there. Yet, the Texas senate is willing to defund small schools like this. It appears Texas legislators are ignoring their constituents and listening to big donors. SB4 will further erode funding for our public schools. Texas'education system is ranked #41. We should not allow it to go any lower.

Angela Adams-Nance

Teachers

Spicewood, TX

As a public school teacher with 20 years experience who also went to private schools for my personal education, I can tell you this bill will be disastrous for education. It only benefits rich people. Our education system is great because it is available to everyone. It needs to be properly funded. Teachers need to be set up for success by having classes that are not overcrowded and adequate pay. Vouchers will cause classrooms to continue to be overcrowded because districts will have to find ways to save money because they are not properly funded. Do not pass this bill. Fund public education properly.

Desiree Hollingsworth, Mrs

Myself

Austin, TX

The strength of a society depends on education. The wealthy will also suffer if the large majority is not capable of carrying their own weight. Stop taking away from those that need it most.

Mary Alice Williams

self

Austin, TX

Dear Members of the Texas House of Representatives,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to House Bill 3 and the establishment of an Education Savings Account (ESA) program. While I support improving education in Texas, diverting public funds to private education through ESAs undermines our public school system and exacerbates educational inequities, particularly in rural communities.

Public schools serve the vast majority of Texas students, including those with disabilities, English language learners, and children from low-income families. Instead of directing taxpayer dollars to private institutions with little oversight, we should invest in strengthening our public education system by increasing teacher salaries, improving resources, and ensuring equitable access to quality education for all students.

ESA programs are especially detrimental to rural communities, where public schools are often the backbone of the local economy and one of the few accessible educational options. Unlike urban areas, rural regions have fewer, if any, private school choices, meaning taxpayer dollars will be siphoned away from already underfunded rural public schools with no real benefit to local students. As rural districts struggle with funding shortages, teacher shortages, and limited resources, ESA programs will only further weaken these schools—forcing cuts to essential programs and diminishing educational opportunities for children who have no other options.

Additionally, ESA programs lack sufficient accountability measures to ensure that funds are used effectively and equitably. Private and charter schools are not required to serve all students and are not held to the same transparency standards as public schools, leaving our most vulnerable children behind.

I urge you to reject HB3 and instead focus on policies that support and strengthen Texas public schools for the benefit of all students, families, and communities—especially those in rural areas where strong public schools are critical to both education and the local economy.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Mary Alice Williams

Austin, TX

Niti Shah
Self / Clinical Nutritionist
Irving, TX

I oppose the voucher bills. Please don't mess with Texas public schools. It took so long to make them great! Please don't ruin it!!!

Tambralyn Suhler
Self Retired AISD Employee
Austin, TX

As a native Texan and lifelong public servant and educator, I am strongly opposed to this bill or ANY bill trying to take away money from public education. It is nothing more than folks in power intentionally trying to destroy education by defunding it even further. As a tax payer, I expect my dollars to be used for the good of every person living in this state, not the whims of an all powerful governor of his own making. Affordability, Education, Healthcare, and Public Safety is what I want my tax dollars to go. Only an educated society ensures prosperity and future success of a functioning society. Vouchers are inequities, a tax break for the rich, a dead end for everyone else. Quit ruling for the rich they don't need school choice.

Astrid Han
Self
Houston, TX

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.
HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.
Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.
We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot.
This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.

Thank you!
Astrid Han

Elaine Coloura
Self
Cibolo, TX

Vote no!!! Takes money from public schools with zero oversight in private schools. low income families still cannot afford private tuition even with this. I vote NO NO NO!!!

Kathy Sokolic
self
Austin, TX

This bill hurts our most vulnerable. The educational system has already been casting out our kids with any sort of issues, pushing them out of our system and making it impossible for parents to get the right kind of education for our kids. We have seen a dismantling of our system over the last few decades. This leaves only the rich to get richer as the charter schools are the only ones making money, while casting out our kids who need help. This is Texans turning into Nazis and I do not want to see this. All this funding should go back to the public school districts with extra support. Stop picking and choosing who gets to be successful. Texas is better when we all succeed.

Rene Philippe, Mr.

Self, security

Austin, TX

I oppose Texas voucher bills, as they take vital resources away from public schools. Instead, we should increase the basic allotment to $1300 for public schools and fund them based on student enrollment, not attendance. Let's ensure schools have the stability and resources needed to educate every child, regardless of attendance challenges. Let's invest in public education, not undermine it with vouchers. Thank you.

Nancy Fitzgerald, Dr

Retired Teachers

Port Bolivar, TX

Please vote no. This move for voucher system is unfair to public school systems across Texas

Bradley Reynolds

self - public school teacher

McKinney, TX

Dear Committee Members,

I am writing to express my strong opposition to HB00003I. I believe that government funds should not be used to subsidize school attendance in institutions that are not held to the same accountability standards as our public schools. Public schools operate under rigorous admission criteria, testing, and performance metrics, which ensure that all students receive a quality education that is both measurable and equitable.

This bill, however, appears to prioritize funding for schools outside the public system—schools that do not follow the same standards or metrics. Without comparable data, it is impossible to ensure a level playing field or to guarantee that taxpayer dollars are being used effectively to support student learning. As an educator and coach, I have witnessed firsthand the benefits of accountability and uniform standards in public education, and I worry that diverting funds to less-regulated institutions will undermine our efforts to improve educational outcomes for all students.

I urge you to reconsider this bill and its implications. Our children deserve an education system where every institution is held to the same high standards of accountability, ensuring fair and transparent evaluation of performance. Thank you for your attention to this critical matter.

Sincerely,

Bradley Reynolds

Rhonda Wolf

Brazoria county homeschoolers

Richwood, TX

I strongly oppose this bill and urge our Texas reps to listen to the people of Texas. Most homeschool, private school, and many conservatives all oppose this bill and it is falling on deaf ears. Listen to the people!

Brooke Sanchez, Post Secondary Advisor

Waxahachie ISD

Waxahachie, TX

Instead of defunding our schools, let's actually fully fund them so the resources needed to support, protect, and educate our schools, staff, students and families to the full extent they deserve!

Brandy Smallwood
Self/ small business owner
Austin, TX

I am opposed to school vouchers. The per student allotment for public schools should be increased to $7500 (or more!)

Karina Moreno
Spring Branch ISD Parent
Houston, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.

HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.

Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.

We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot.

This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.

Thank you!
Karina Moreno

Ashley Jackson
Self - Realtor
Austin, TX

I am AGAINST school vouchers. I oppose taking public dollars and using them for private school. I oppose further defunding our public schools by diverting money to private schools. This will be devastating for rural Texas where there are not private schools. STOP DEFUNDING TEXAS PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Sandra Rios
Self
San Antonio, TX

I do not believe education savings accounts, vouchers, or whatever name you want to give them are the right move for Texas children. Texas residents already have school choice. Families can already decide between a variety of options for educating their children. I've heard Representative Buckley's assertion that vouchers are needed for special needs students because they cannot get the services they need from public education; however, in my experience nothing is further from the truth. Two of my children were special needs and both flourished in Texas public schools. I also work in a public school and see first-hand every day the care and services our special needs students receive. I've watched teachers bend over backwards to provide differentiated instruction to their students, despite the limitations levied on them by TEA in the form of TEKS, measured by STAAR tests. Rather than throwing public dollars at private institutions, we should be learning why the districts who struggle to provide necessary service are struggling and investigating ways to fix it. Additionally, you should be preparing our state for potential disruptions in federal funding to our public schools, not actively creating programs that will further harm them.

Karen Samford
self, freelance writer
FRISCO, TX

Please do not entertain the notion of education for sale. All Texas children deserve a fair education.
thank you.

Natalia Arzeno, Dr
Self, data scientist and parent
Austin, TX

Dear Education Committee,

I'm writing to voice my strong opposition to vouchers and Education Savings Accounts (ESAs) as a way to fund education. These programs take critical resources away from public schools, making it harder for them to serve all students effectively.

Instead of diverting funds, I urge you to focus on strengthening our public school system by making the following changes:

1. Raise the Basic Allotment to $7,500 – The current funding level isn't enough to meet the needs of Texas students and teachers. Increasing the basic allotment would help schools provide the high-quality education that every child deserves.
2. Base School Funding on Enrollment, Not Attendance – Schools shouldn't lose funding when students are absent. A funding model based on enrollment would give schools more stability and ensure they have the resources they need year-round.
3. Adjust Funding Annually for Inflation – Costs go up every year, and school funding should keep pace. Tying funding to inflation would prevent budget shortfalls that make it harder for schools to operate effectively.
4. Fully Fund All Mandates – When new state or federal mandates are introduced, they should come with the necessary funding. Unfunded mandates put an unfair strain on schools and take resources away from students.

Public schools are the foundation of our communities, and they need reliable funding to do their job well. I urge you to make these changes to ensure every Texas student has access to a strong, well-supported education.

Thank you for your time and for your commitment to Texas students.

Leslie Hay
Self/Assistant Director
Katy, TX

Dear Texas Legislator,

As a proud Texan, I value the role public schools play in shaping our future. I oppose private school subsidies, also known as vouchers or education savings accounts. I believe private school subsidies are wasteful, deceitful, inefficient, and unfair.

Public school dollars should go only to public schools. Public schools in Texas are underfunded by billions of dollars every year. The Comptroller is projecting a large increase in state revenue over the next two years compared to the past two years, and that money should go to fully funding public education.

Private schools pick and choose which students to admit. Vouchers force taxpayers to subsidize private schools' preferences. And without elected boards or state oversight, vouchers give away tax dollars with no financial or academic accountability.

Public schools educate more than 90 percent of Texas students, serving all the students in their boundaries. They build the workforce that powers the Texas economy. We can't afford to underwrite a few special choices at the expense of our collective future.

We elect legislators to represent the interests of their communities. Responding to their communities, Texas legislators have rejected private school subsidies time after time.

In the face of increasing pressure from special interests, I pledge that I will stand with my legislators in opposing vouchers. When they vote against private school subsidies, I will make sure all their constituents know they did the right thing.

Sincerely,
Leslie Hay

Michelle Cole
Self
Buda, TX

Opposed to school vouchers!

Rob Noland
Self
Arlington, TX

Our students deserve better than a voucher system.

Susan Studebaker
Self
Crockett, TX

School vouchers will significantly decrease public school funding (less students) without improvising the education that we provide to students in this state. Proposals to provide private schools with more funding per child than public schools and which have no assurances that children will meet the same criteria make no sense. This is not to mention the large numbers of "eligible" students who will not be able to participate because of transportation needs, special ed requirements, etc. Children in public schools have access to reduced meals, which may be the majority of the nutrition a child gets in a day. They also have access to counseling and other services. I do not have a child in the school system but I support a healthy public school system so that we may have a productive workforce for the future. I oppose school vouchers and the proposed education savings account program. Thank you

Alexandra Furlong

Self

Austin, TX

Please vote NO against school vouchers. Please INCREASE basic student allotment to $7500. Thank you

Princeton Palmer

Self, Teacher

Lubbock, TX

Establishing ESAs will empower Texas families to make the choice that is right for their children's education while also providing the impetus for public schools to make wiser spending choices that actually improve student learning outcomes. Schools in many countries around the world achieve greater academic success than American ones despite having far fewer resources. The notion that simply pumping more money into the system will solve our problems is naive at best and malicious at worst. Rewarding dysfunctional school systems with more money will only exacerbate their problems unless concrete steps are taken to address the root causes of those dysfunctions. Introducing competition into this important sector of the economy and society would force all schools (public and private) to cut wasteful spending and offer the best possible academic product in order to attract more students.

Klaus Pfeffer

Self

austin, TX

I do not support taking money from Public education funding for ESA's. Our public schools are already underfunded, unless you can match the money for ESA's with public funding per student then I can't support. Please advocate for equal amounts to Public and Private school allocations.

Karen Samford

self, freelance writer

FRISCO, TX

Please cease and desist thinking that a voucher program will do ANYTHING to improve our public school system! Please let go of and vote NO to any notion to make a good education available to ONLY those who will be able to afford one.

Thank you for reading this far.

Mrs Karen R Samford

Mary Ann Climer

Self

Dallas, TX

I oppose the school voucher and all means thereof. Public education is the fabric of our democracy. As happened with publicly funded charter schools as loosely defined as they are, publicly funded private schools will crop up and scam students and taxpayers. ESA will only encourage more.

Nhi Lieu, Dr

Self

Austin, TX

Please vote NO against school vouchers and increase basic student allotment to $7500.

Yehudis Rosenberg

self

Plano, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Karesha Pigmon

Self

Rowlett, TX

I strongly stand against HB 3 as I believe it will devastate public education. It fully benefits the wealthy and does not take into account all students in Texas. Please do not vote in favor of this bill!

Anne Waggoner

self, student at ACC

Austin, TX

Vote NO!

My name is Anne Waggoner and I am a proud parent of 2 AISD students. One is a graduate and now in college. The other is a junior in high school. I am also a student currently working toward a degree in Child Development and Early Childhood Education. In other words, I graduate in May and will be a teacher.

I am in complete opposition to HB3.

No matter what you call it (education savings accounts, school vouchers, school choice), HB 3 simply takes public money and uses it for private gain to the detriment of our children and our collective future.

My reasons:

1. Tax payer money earmarked for education should stay in public schools. Not just a select few.
2. Private schools are unregulated. As such, they do not need to offer all of the services that public schools do. In other words, they do less with more money. Children with special needs do not get the education they need at private schools.
3. Vouchers only allow children into private schools that can pay the difference in tuition. That leaves the lower socioeconomic children in public schools that will now have even less funding.
4. Rural families have very few "choices" other than public schools anyway.
5. Private schools do NOT offer a better education for children than well-funded public schools do. Instead of taking money from public schools, the legislature should be supporting public schools only, funding them better so that they can work as intended.
6. This country has been leading the world for money years. All with a publicly educated work force.
7. Private schools segregate. One of the prize programs my children were in was dual-language. Yes, they learned Spanish, but even more important is that they learning about culture, people whose families have less, people who have different cultures, and that they are all the same. By separating our children into private schools, we eliminate the part of education that is about learning about people who are different than us.
8. Our society is stronger when we learn to interact with people who are different than us. Private schools do not do that.
9. This version of the bill allows money to be given to children with disabilities first. However private schools often are not equipped to help these children so this does NOT help them. It's just making it should like it does.
10. I am opposed to public money going to religious schools. Separation of church and state is an important founding principle of our great nation. Public school money has not business being spent at religious schools.

Again, vote NO! I am a proud graduation of public schools and am proud to have sent my children to public schools. We have all received a high quality education.

Kimberly Lovejoy, Ms.

Self

Harker Heights, TX

As a Texas Licensed Professional Counselor, combat veteran, former military spouse, constituent in the Bell County area, and a provider of mental health services in the Bell Country area, I am highly opposed to HB3. It is concerning that taxpayer funds would be redirected to private schools who have limited accountability. Furthermore, I am deeply concerned about how this will further strain an already compromised mental health system in the state of Texas, particularly in schools. In light of recent events in the KISD in which a middle-school student was stabbed and killed, I urge you to support the use of taxpayer funds to support the mental health needs of our students.

Ann Tate

Private

Dallas, TX

If you believe this is what people in Texas want then put it to a VOTE! This is not supported by your constituents and we won't forget the transfer of wealth you take from our children!

Margaret Heiss, Ms.

Myself

Alice, TX

Don't agree with vouchers!

Heather Pagano

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose you diverting public funds to private schools, no matter what you call it. I am a Texas voter and I want you to fully fund existing public school mandates, not divert funds to unaccountable private and religious schools. I know that virtually every other state that has created a voucher system with the limited guardrails you are proposing has seen a decimation of their public school systems and increasing burden to their state budgets. We don't want any of that here in Texas. Please fund our public schools and don't pass the voucher bill out of committee.

Karen Johnson

Self

Keller, TX

I am against taxpayer money going to pay for private schools. Here in Keller there are schools that are in financial trouble already. Private schools don't have to deal with special needs kids and poor kids can't afford them even with the vouchers. The public schools here used to be good but if you keep underfunding them, they have no chance to improve. Please do not support vouchers for private schools.

Lacey Chancellor

Self / Homeschool parent

Tomball, TX

I homeschool my children and I oppose this bill. It is not in the true interest of homeschooling families. Please vote against it.

Karol Ann Michelsen

Self Teacher

Canadian, TX

An assault on public schools by Gov Abbott and friends. Already proven to be a scam and money maker for the rich who fund and want to run "for profit" everything. Please know rural Texans need the funds and support that you in the Legislature are killing with this propaganda of better education for all.

alina averick
self
Dallas, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Katherine Martinez
Self
San Antonio, TX

Please do not vote for HB 3. It would not be equitable for families living in rural areas. Thank you for representing your constituents honestly.

Erin Duyka
Self BCBA
Porter, TX

Say no

Chyenne Degelman
Self- Texas Counseling Association
Austin, TX

To incolude counselors

Amit Kalra, Dr.
Self
Frisco, TX

Please do not push this bill. Education savings program should be a separate program instead of being withdrawn from school funding. The next generation of Texas Work Force will be impacted by this decision. People start abusing these vouchers by treating children as sources of income. Misrepresentation of funds maybe used for WOKE education schools. Legislatures will have to create rules after rules and eventually the voucher will have no monetary value to meet the demands of high cost of private schools and inflation.

These young children will be your caretakers, how educated do you want them to be. If you want to control expenditure and then place limits on salary like there is for Federal jobs. Let the state decide the statewide salary expenditures. Or start using special tax incentives for the homeschooling parents. A private structure will not operate in the same controlled manner like a public structure where all children are equal right now. Is this the legacy you want?

David Kessler

self

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Aiden Briese

Self

Austin, TX

I urge the House to vote NO on this bill. School vouchers have been used in other states and data has clearly shown that it is damaging to the education system. It has been proven that 1) states are struggling with the programs' cost and lack of transparency and accountability; 2) school vouchers are being used by families with children already in private school to subsidize their tuition; and 3) Voucher programs' skyrocketing costs will divert funding not only from public schools, but also other critical public services. This will hurt Texans in a great way, especially Texans that live in rural areas who don't have access to private schools and students who need extra care. Tim Dunn and the Wilks brothers have been trying to push this system since Rick Perry was in office. I desperately urge them to stay out of our political system and get a hobby. Texans have voted NO against vouchers time and time again. This bill is an abuse of power for certain representatives to line their pockets at the expense of the people they serve. This will not improve the lives of everyday Texans. Please vote against policies that hurt the majority of people that you serve.

Crystal Beito

Self

Tomball, TX

I am vehemently opposed to this bill. Texas has always been the best state in the union, until it comes to our public school system. Underfunding, cutting important programs, prioritizing sports programs over educational excellence have all played a role in the decline of the education of our students. But...it is the responsibility of the Texas government to clear up missteps and get those public school systems back on track, a responsibility that it seems the state has obfuscated for years now. Our public school systems deserve better. This bill as written will add a new and separate budget line item outside of the already established tax burden of public schools with an expectation of expanding exponentially over the the next 5 years and beyond. It allows for the fuelling of taxpayer dollars to private companies that we do not have oversight or accountability of. It allows unchecked government control over private and homeschools that violate the Texas constitution and undermine the freedoms our state is famous for. This is unsustainable as demonstrated by several other states that have similar failing programs right now (hey Oklahoma!).

All Texas children deserve better, not just the ones that qualify for what's left of this program after the fat cats get their share.

Denise Kudva

Self

Spring, TX

I am disappointed on the push for vouchers for education in Texas. Our public schools are extremely valuable assets to our community and a reason why we moved to our home.

This bill appears to grow the state government, favor vendor profiteering, add regulations to private and home schooling, and is predicted to financially burden the state to the tune of many billions of dollars.

This is not a conservative approach to governance. Please vote no to educational vouchers.

Alysia Stanton

Self

Lantana, TX

I support the full funding of our PUBLIC schools. I am not in favor of the use of vouchers. This bill would undermine the public school system.

Blake Jennings

self

College Station, TX

I do not support this bill. As a pastor and leader of a local charitable organization, I strongly believe we should invest more money in public schools to lift all children up. This bill does the opposite. Our communities will be weaker if this bill passes, and our children, especially those most vulnerable will suffer. Please reject this bill.

Rykiel Pritchett

Self

Lake Jackson, TX

HB 3 does not truly provide school choice for all Texas families. Voucher programs in other states have proven that they primarily benefit wealthy families while leaving rural communities, low-income families, and students with disabilities behind. The amount of money designated does not cover the cost of expensive private schools, along with their associated transportation and supply costs. Many low-income families cannot cover the gap to take advantage of this voucher program. Students in areas without public schools cannot take advantage of the voucher program. Students in areas with limited private school availability, which cannot accommodate every person in the area wanting to take advantage of the voucher program will also lack choice. There is no scenario in which this program benefits every Texas family as is continuously purported. Finally, the majority of homeschoolers who have opted out of public schooling restrictions and mandates have zero interest in participating in the state testing requirements for homeschoolers associated with the voucher program.

Kristie Shackelford

Self

Waco, TX

I do not support HB 3 or taking funds from public schools.

Karen Ruffner

Self / Rn

Montgomery, TX

Oppose school voucher bill. Texans have already voted no. Public schools need the funds and teachers. Private school is a choice. We had our own kids go to public schools. Except for our youngest our choice was private school. We paid for it. I donot want any services take away from children that need it in public classrooms. Private school usually doesnt offer that. Some peoples religion doesnt always fit a private school. Public may be better for them. Make it equal by allowing parents to make a choice with no govt involved. If private you pay for it. If public the taxpayers pay. The teachers need to be able to educate. They will not be able to if this vote goes through. Many factors involved.

Marie Dadap

Self

Austin, TX

Please say no to school vouchers. This will drain the public school system of much needed money and resources. Private schools should not receive tax dollars unless they are held to the same standards as public schools, and accept and educate all students.

Jade Vitug, Dr.

Self

Dallas, TX

I oppose JHR 140 due to its use of tax dollars that would have otherwise gone to public public schools. Public schools are already underfunded enough as it is. I would rather see my tax dollars go towards funding public schools rather than private schools.

Zoe Wafelbakker

self

Manchaca, TX

A mother of three children, one with special education needs.

If this bill is passed my SPED child will be forced to go into a 'special ed school' since the resources will be limited at public schools, despite public education being the best environment for her. She has cognitive delays and speech and language requirements. The neurotypical private schools will not have the resources for her that she requires. A general education and special education mix is where she thrives, so she can interact and make friends with neuro typical kids. She struggles now, but this may not be for the future. By selecting a special ed school that is almost institutionalizing our daughter. One special ed school you must pay an extra $2000 a year just to have PE! She thrives at PE and is an excellent runner, alas we will have to pay more for her to even have that 'privilege'.

We are blessed to earn more than the $161,000. However with the average private school in Austin costing $13,000 and special ed schools ranging from $22000 - $40,000, we are potentially paying up to $66000 per year on educating our children. Which, will all end up being at different schools. So then how does one manage the logistics of collecting children after school, where they could potentially be located all around the city, not close to where we reside....after care programs will need to be considered at an additional expense.

Beyond our circumstances it needs to be considered the lunch meals that are provided for families over the summer. How, how are these families going to even come up with the difference between $10k voucher and $13k private education (average in Austin) if they are even struggling to feed their children?

Beyond that again, with such an influx of students going private, how on earth can private schools take so many children on when local schools, like ours - Manchaca Elementary have over 700 children? There are already wait lists for private schools. How can they be accommodated?

One last comment is, private schools can pick and choose who enters. For example a lot of children would thrive at Rawson Saunders, yet they specifically say on their admissions page 'Please note that Rawson Saunders is not equipped to serve students who require significant accommodations and supports related to behaviors and conduct'. My daughter who has no behavior issues and has perfect conduct would not be admitted as she falls under 'significant accommodations' with the requirement of speech therapy and academic life skills.

Christian Lopez, Mrs

Self

Highland Village, TX

Please do not pull public funds to give to private entities without installing a checks and balance across the board. If public must meet specific criteria and standards and testing so must the private entities receiving funds

Jessica Dvorscak

Self

Austin, TX

No school vouchers! Texas needs to fully fund public schools. School choice is a fallacy...we have choices. It is our responsibility to provide an education for EVERY child in Texas through public schools. We need to support public education and stop giving wealthy people more money. Public education for all Texas students!

Stan Van Hoose

Self

Austin, TX

HB3 is not a bill to support Texas education. It takes money away from our public education system; a system that is set up for all kids not some kids. It gives more financial support with less restrictions (testing, transportation, attendance requirements, special education) to the private programs. How can you defend such a system? A system where many families that support HB3 are already sending their kids to private/charter and are going to get financially rewarded if this bill passes. As someone who spent their learning years from elementary through college (University of Texas) in the public school system, I appreciate the opportunity that I had to learn in a diverse environment, a place for all students, where the color of my skin, my faith, my financial background didn't matter. My children also went to public universities after graduating from the Texas public school system. And now my grandchildren's education is at risk. Please vote No for HB3. Thank you.

Susan Syler

Self

Galveston, TX

I vehemently oppose HB 3. Texas public schools have been constantly underfunded, and this bill proposes to take $1 billion to fund private school vouchers for 100,000 students. Why not allocate that money to public schools for teacher raises, so Texas can attract the best and the brightest to teach our children. At the very least, amend the bill to add a hard income cap on who can access the vouchers. Research shows that about 75% of vouchers in other states have gone to students already attending private schools.

Alexis Sanford

self

Austin, TX

Quality public education is essential for a thriving state. Vouchers will gut an already struggling system. We need to invest funds, talents, and ideas into public education not take it away. Vouchers are the anti-solution.

Amy Warren

Self. Graphic designer

Eules, TX

Please fund public schools at 2019 levels plus inflation. We love our local public schools. Every child in Texas should get a quality and free education. We can be the best if you fund it!

Frank Weskamp

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose any school voucher program, or any publicly funded program that subsidizes private schools. Using tax payer money to fund private schools is the equivalent of turning a public park into a private golf course that is still funded by the local tax payers.

Amber Rice

self

San Angelo, TX

I have serious concerns about this bill defunding our public schools. Parents, teachers, private schools and the general public have been voicing an overwhelming disapproval of this suggested bill. Most families would not be about to afford the portion of the cost the voucher does not cover for a private school and especially during a time in which our economy may be threatened by Tariffs and families that may be faced with unexpected job loss caused by the unstable political climate. Private schools are also not required to accept every student. They have the discretion to not to accept a child. School choice already exists. These vouchers are not doing a public service for Texas parents or children. It's doing great disservice by making it harder for our public schools to provide our children with a good education. This committee really needs to consider all outside unstable factors that could also cause devastating impacts to families and make trying to fund private schools almost impossible.

Tamara Ozen

Self, mother

Buda, TX

Please don't take our public school funding away. It is vital for our children to have successful educational opportunities. The percentage of children this bill will reach is not enough to justify the cost.

Andreana Tomz, Parent

Self

Copper Canyon, TX

As the daughter of public school teachers, a product of a public school education and a parent of public school students, I implore you not to pass this bill. We need to make Texas smarter and stronger. Taking funds from public schools will be detrimental to us ALL - for many years to come.

Amber Wood

Self, Public School Teacher

San Antonio, TX

No public money for private school vouchers! Vouchers are a political move to support wealthy families. This voucher program has repeatedly been rejected by Texas Voters. Abbott continues to try and pass this measure. Why? Politics! Public schools are underfunded, required to accept ALL students, mandated to provide state curriculum, required standardized testing, comply with federal protections for students with disabilities. This voucher plan pays private schools more money per student with NONE of the requirements of public schools. This makes absolutely zero sense. Why are taxpayers going to carry the burden of private school tuition? Public schools have long been the hub of neighborhoods. Parents rely on public schools to educate and care for their children. Parents already have options (charter schools, home school) if they aren't happy with public schools. In my experience, many students who leave to these other schools return to public schools to meet their needs. Look at voucher history in other states. It is not going well. As elected officials, speak up for those in your state and Vote NO ON VOUCHERS!

Paula Yoder, Dr

Myself

Granbury, TX

STOP THIS AND GIVE FUNDING BACK TO PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Linda Mundwiller, Mrs

Self

Houston, TX

Vote No

Kate Hix
Self, Attorney
Austin, TX

My name is Kate Hix. I'm an Austin parent sharing testimony AGAINST HB3. My opposition is based on the needs of Texas public schools and students and the well-documented problems with these programs in other states.

Texas has rejected vouchers again and again.

Session after session, communities across our state have told lawmakers that vouchers are the wrong choice for Texas and Texas lawmakers have voted in the interest of their communities. The conversation is different this time – not because the needs and values of Texas communities have changed, but because the resources being used to push vouchers have grown. It's important to make the choice that's right for Texas students and taxpayers, not for people who hope to profit from Texas students and tax dollars.

Vouchers undermine public education

Vouchers can undermine public education by diverting resources away from public schools, which educate about 90% of Texas children and offer a range of academic options, extracurricular programs, and student supports. Public schools are valued by communities across our state. Rather than diverting money to fund an unaccountable private school system, the legislature should invest in our public schools.

False promises of academic outcomes

Some supporters justify vouchers by promising better academic outcomes for students “trapped in failing public schools,” which struggle when they are starved of funds needed to meet student needs. Other states offer many well-documented failures to improve student outcomes with vouchers – programs described by economist and former voucher supporter Josh Cowen as delivering “dreadful academic results for voucher users.”

Lack of accountability and transparency

Vouchers offer families and taxpayers fewer opportunities to find out what's happening inside their child's school because private schools are exempt from state accountability and assessment standards, financial reporting requirements, open records laws, special education rules, student safety rules or curriculum requirements.

Benefit to wealthy families

In state after state, vouchers are being used primarily by students who never attended public school.

Please invest in public schools. Vouchers are NOT the answer.

Dawn Tunnell
Self
Red Oak, TX

I completely oppose this bill. When voting you need to decide are you one of the “bought” or are you truly representing ALL kids? School vouchers do not represent all kids and I don't want my tax dollars funding private schools when they are not held to the same standards as public schools and they don't have to accept ALL kids.

Cori Hutchinson
Self
Denton, TX

Public schools are the backbone of our state. In promoting school vouchers, we take away resources and funding from public education students, teachers, and staff and lessen their opportunities. If we are not satisfied with the quality of education given in public schools, let us instead work to reform and improve these schools for those students who do not have the opportunity or resources to move to a school that would be eligible under the education savings account program. I'm a proud alum of Texas public schools, and I want to see improvements for them, not buyouts to attend private schools!

Taylor Stone

Self

Rowlett, TX

My name is Taylor Nichols Stone and I am an attorney in the Dallas area. I was born and raised in a small town near Lubbock, Texas. My parents were public school educators—my dad retired as a superintendent. I actually also taught for two years before attending law school. There is no way that vouchers would actually benefit the children of Texas—especially our most vulnerable groups.

This legislation and the push for similar legislation is clearly stemming from the push of billionaire activists whose goal is to dismantle public education. ANY passing of voucher legislation would have a wide sweeping detrimental impact on students and teachers in our great state for generations to come. I'm not sure I fully understand the goal of the billionaire activists pushing this agenda, but the reality is that this agenda would ensure that the gap between the rich and poor in Texas would continue to grow at an alarmingly increased rate. Economically disadvantaged and rural students would feel the brunt of the impact the worst.

Please—I am begging you—do the right thing and vote against this bill. Stand up for what is right, moral, ethical, and beneficial to your constituents. The children and teachers of Texas are depending on you.

Diane Lassman

Self

Victoria, TX

Against vouchers

Amanda Clair

Self

Dallas, TX

Hi! I do not want taxpayer dollars used for vouchers. Instead I ask that you INCREASE funding for special education and diverse learners. Our public schools have wonderful staff and teachers who are underfunded. By funding public schools instead of vouchers you can better fund our schools so ALL students not just some can get the education they deserve. Thank you.

Yvonne Barrera

Self/ former educator/ small business owner

Cedar Park, TX

I vehemently oppose school the creation of a savings account program. This tax dollars, if available for use in education, should be put forward to support all taxpayers. If I choose to eat organic and pay more for my grocery bill— that's a choice. No other taxpayer should carry that cost. If someone chooses to send their child to a private institution, then that should be at their own expense. We need to make sure we support our school districts by providing them with the resources they need to to help every single student in the state of Texas succeed.

Jennifer Margulies

Self- nonprofit consultant/parent

Austin, TX

I urge a no vote on HB3 for several reasons: 1) public dollars should be used for public education, the only free education guaranteed to every student in the state, regardless of religion, ability, race, ethnicity, sexuality or gender. Giving public dollars to private schools undermines funding for public education, already lower in Texas than in most states in the country. 2) government support for private religious schools violates the separation of church and state, using state dollars to fund religious education. While this may be a feature, not a bug, of the bill, it remains unconstitutional. 3) In state after state with ESA/voucher systems, studies have consistently shown for decades that it is families who were already using private education who benefited the most from vouchers. The amount of voucher funding provided doesn't touch the tuition cost for the vast majority of students. That average tuition cost cited by the bill supporters is an average of tiny schools and large schools, so it's a misleadingly low number. The rhetoric about ESAs serving underprivileged students is just that: rhetoric, not borne out by the track record. 4) Private schools have the ability to pick and choose the students they serve and the services they provide. Our tax dollars should not be funding entities that discriminate and that are not accountable to students, families, or taxpayers.

Matthew Arnold

self (software engineer)

Austin, TX

This program is plainly inefficient and a wasteful use of taxpayer dollars. Please redirect your energy into adequately funding our public schools and their programs rather than designing convoluted systems of handouts for your wealthy friends

Melissa Key

Self

Lubbock, TX

I am absolutely against this program of taking funds out of public schools and using them to fund private education. Parents already have the choice where to send their children to school. This will only benefit a minuscule amount of children and the majority will suffer, and put Texas even further down the list on education.

Vicki Richardson, Ms.

Self

Lubbock, TX

Take vouchers out of put it to a vote. The citizens of Texas do not want this.

Ellen Hutto

Self/retired public school teacher

Houston, TX

I support public schools and OPPOSE HB3.

Flo Dobrowolski

self

Austin, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

- 1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.
- 2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.
- 3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.
- 4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot. This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.
Thank you!

Gilda Powers

Self

Austin, TX

Public education in Texas is in need of support. Through this bill, the republicans led by Abbott will only reduce funding to public schools, and promote divisive economic measures. Public schools receive an amount per child and serve children of all economic backgrounds. The benefit will only be for those rich enough who already have their children in private schools. A working family relies on the services provided by public schools, I.e., school buses. How can a working family be able to take their kids to and from school and still make it to work on time? Our teachers deserve better salaries. Our schools need upgrading. Small rural communities do not have the luxury of private schools. This only benefits the rich. Please vote no on school vouchers.

Trenton Vela

Self

Spring, TX

I strongly urge you to oppose HB 3 and any efforts to implement a school voucher program in Texas. Vouchers divert critical public funds away from our already underfunded public schools, weakening the education system that serves the vast majority of Texas students. Instead of increasing educational opportunities, vouchers primarily benefit private schools that are not held to the same accountability standards, do not guarantee student protections, and often exclude students with disabilities or special needs. Public tax dollars should be invested in strengthening our public schools—ensuring smaller class sizes, higher teacher salaries, and better resources for all students—rather than subsidizing private institutions with little oversight. Please prioritize the future of Texas children by rejecting HB 3 and keeping public funds in public schools.

Noelle Newby

Parent

Austin, TX

I am a parent of private school students, and I oppose this bill.

School vouchers are taxpayer-funded subsidies given to private schools and vendors without transparency and accountability for results.

Private schools are not required to accept all students nor assess alignment to state curriculum to track student progress. Private schools do not have reporting or accountability for the use of taxpayer funds or student performance. Private schools do not have to provide special education services for students with learning differences or disabilities.

For these reasons, I oppose this bill.

Danica Thornton

Self

San Antonio, TX

Public dollars should only be spent on public education. Parents have school choice and the ability to send their children to another school but the public shouldn't pay for that. Public dollars for public schools

Cynthia Levinson

Self

Austin, TX

HB 3 disenfranchises more public school students than it helps. Kill this bill!

Jane Wright
self/homeschooling mom
Melissa, TX

Hello,

I am a resident of your district and am asking that you vote "no" on HB3.

We are a conservative homeschool family that currently exercises "school choice", as made available by our Texas constitution under the Leeper Law.

Using the financial numbers discussed in the education committee meeting earlier this week, it is clear that HB3 will put "school choice" in the hands of few. 92,000 or 1.43% of the Texas student population to be exact. Additionally, those that will benefit are the 5 new vendors (CEAO's) that are the new businesses created by taxpayer funds, not families like ourselves or our neighbors.

As our representative, I ask that consider the future impact of HB3 by looking at states like Arizona, Florida, Arkansas and Oklahoma. The adoption of similar legislation in these states has resulted in: an increase of state debt, the forcing of small co-ops and private schools to shut their doors, an increase in access to poorly written curriculum from companies who have altered curriculum to become "approved" options, a mishandling of funds, negative impact for public schools and low income families, encouraging an increase in tuition prices of private schools and an increase in government regulation and intervention. As a conservative, I know you are opposed to more government regulation and intervention.

As homeschoolers, we enjoy the complete freedom of homeschooling in Texas with absolutely no partnership or oversight from the government. Please keep it that way by voting no to HB3.

Thank you for your time and for your service. I look forward to hearing from you.

Kind Regards,
Jane Wright
Melissa, TX 75454

Melanie Jackson
Self/ teacher
Richardson, TX

While I appreciate the House taking a more measured approach to school vouchers than the Senate, I still find it deeply troubling that instead of simply funding and making our current system better, they are taking away from it. We do not need public dollars going to private entities. It is the definition of wealth redistribution, and if, this was a liberal idea, the conservatives would be up in arms about it. I also find it troubling that this continues to be a very unpopular idea that the GOP seems very dead set on passing for some insane reason. The GOP holds town halls where people are angry because they continue to push and push this wholly unpopular idea down our throats, and then they wonder why people are booing them or are angry. It seems that the GOP doesn't care to listen to the people who they serve, they are only listening to their own echos. This idea needs to be done, and then we can move on to more productive conversations that will actually help the millions of kids who are served by our public education system.

Tiffany Bell
Self
Spring, TX

I strongly urge you to oppose HB 3 and any efforts to implement a school voucher program in Texas. Vouchers divert critical public funds away from our already underfunded public schools, weakening the education system that serves the vast majority of Texas students. Instead of increasing educational opportunities, vouchers primarily benefit private schools that are not held to the same accountability standards, do not guarantee student protections, and often exclude students with disabilities or special needs. Public tax dollars should be invested in strengthening our public schools—ensuring smaller class sizes, higher teacher salaries, and better resources for all students—rather than subsidizing private institutions with little oversight. Please prioritize the future of Texas children by rejecting HB 3 and keeping public funds in public schools.

Shannon Woodward

Self

Montgomery, TX

"I strongly urge you to oppose HB 3 and any efforts to implement a school voucher program in Texas. Vouchers divert critical public funds away from our already underfunded public schools, weakening the education system that serves the vast majority of Texas students. Instead of increasing educational opportunities, vouchers primarily benefit private schools that are not held to the same accountability standards, do not guarantee student protections, and often exclude students with disabilities or special needs. Public tax dollars should be invested in strengthening our public schools—ensuring smaller class sizes, higher teacher salaries, and better resources for all students—rather than subsidizing private institutions with little oversight. Please prioritize the future of Texas children by rejecting HB 3 and keeping public funds in public schools."

Velma DeLeon

LFCISD

San Benito, TX

JANIE LOPEZ refuses to listen to her constituents regarding this subject. Her community has made countless request for a town hall so she may go over the pros and cons and answer questions. She refuses to return emails, calls, and doesn't not respond to her legislative duties. We the people of San Benito Texas request a town hall and her cooperation in correspondence to her constituents.

Melanie McCammon

Self

Cedar Park, TX

I oppose the establishment of an education savings account program, because it would erode the strength of our public schools by siphoning taxpayer funds away from public education and toward private institutions and home schooling. Because we fund our public schools based on attendance, encouraging parents to remove their children from public schools decreases the money available to our public schools, hampering their ability to educate the children of Texas.

Jason Miskovsky

Self, software engineer

AUSTIN, TX

I am a parent of both private and public-school students, and I oppose this bill.

School vouchers are taxpayer-funded subsidies given to private schools and vendors without transparency and accountability for results.

For this reason, I oppose.

Cindy St John

self

Austin, TX

Please vote no on ESAs. I don't want my tax dollars paying for private education vendors.

Marissa Mapes

Self

The Woodlands, TX

I am a parent of 2 students who currently attend public schools. We chose these schools for our children and chose to live where we do for the schools. Our community thrives on the public schools as a way to bring us all together and to have a common goal. Small, rural communities do the same. Public schools are the hearts of communities. Please consider this as you listen to the push for vouchers. It will hurt communities in so many ways.

I am also a speech language pathologist in public schools and work with and abide by special education laws to make sure that every student has the ability to attain a free appropriate public education. I am very concerned that private schools do not have to abide by the same rules/laws and money will be taken away from students who need it the most. Please do not leave any Texas student behind. Please do not approve vouchers. Communities and students with disabilities are at risk if vouchers pass.

Nicol Henderson

Self

KYLE, TX

Save our public schools! Absolutely NO VOUCHERS!!!!!!

Rachel Fitzgerald

Self

Houston, TX

OPPOSE HB3 because:

1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.

2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.

3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.

4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot.

This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas as a whole. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars.

Charity Cavazos, Instructional Assistant Professor

Texas A& M University

Brownsville, TX

Secure funding for public education FIRST

Claire Boyle

Self, Office Manager

Austin, TX

I disagree with this bill. Vouchers would not make private school attainable for my family. I want public schools to be better funded and teachers paid more. My school is experiencing a lot of staff changes because teachers are not paid enough. We love our school and hate to see these teachers not recognized. Please shift funding into public schools. Private schools do NOT need more money.

Susie Dorman
Self/school counselor
Canton, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the “bought”? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill now. Please do the right thing.

yehuda Grossman
HB 3 by Buckley
San Antonio, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Velma DeLeon

LFCISD

San Benito, TX

Subject: Strong Opposition School Vouches

Dear Member of Congress,

As a mother of five sons in public schools and a current employee of the public school system, I'm deeply troubled by the actions of Greg Abbott, which seem to undermine my chosen profession. It's disheartening to see teachers and public education increasingly facing challenges. When did we become the scapegoat in the push for voucher for private schools?

I'm writing to voice my strong opposition to the recent budget cut, implemented with the intention of holding this money for vouchers, affecting our public school. As a speech pathologist, I've seen how these cuts hinder our ability to support special needs students with the necessary technology and equipment.

I'm particularly concerned about voucher programs, which risk excluding vulnerable special needs students from the resources they require. I urge you to vote against budget cuts that allocate money for vouchers and support adequate funding for our public schools.

Therefore, I urge you to vote resolutely against voucher programs and to work tirelessly to secure adequate funding for our public schools. It is imperative that we ensure our public schools can continue to serve all students effectively and inclusively.

Thank you for your attention.

Sincerely,

Velma DeLeon

Speech Language Pathologist

Los Fresnos CISD

Tamara Pedraza

Self - sales

Dallas, TX

When considering JHR 140 it is important to remember that tax dollars collected no longer belong to the individual, but are meant to serve the greater good of the State of Texas. Public education is, and should remain, fully funded by the people and any monies collected for that purpose are ethically bound to remain in the support of public education to ensure that every child in this state has the opportunity for a quality education. If the school system has deteriorated to the degree that the public has lost confidence in its ability to teach their children than the solution is to address this within the public school system. I no more have the right to demand my tax dollars back to fix the road in front of only my house than anyone has the right to demand their tax dollars back to fund private education. Nothing helps us more than a strong public school system. Every child in this state deserves an equitable, accessible opportunity to learn. Diverting funds earmarked for PUBLIC education panders to more affluent voters at the expense of children who could also achieve great things for this state, and country, with the foundation of a free tax payer supported education, as intended. What helps society as a whole helps everyone. Please consider this and vote against JHR 140.

Kenneth Temple

Self CFO

Ovilla, TX

I completely oppose HB3 along with the vast majority of voting Texans. ESAs are NOT a priority with our tax dollars. Instead, increase the basic allotment for public schools by $750-$1000 to allow a positive impact on the 5+million students in Texas. We will ALL remember how you vote on this. Will you listen to the majority of your constituents and oppose this Bill or will you be one who blindly falls in line with the billionaire agenda? Will your legacy be of service to children, teachers, community, and tax payers or will you be remembered as one of the “bought”? Will you stand for your people now or will you end your service as one afraid to stand against a tyrannical push of our governor? These words may seem harsh but they represent the thoughts and heart of your constituents, your voters, your people! VOTE NO TO ANY ESA/VOUCHER BILL! Our children, teachers, community, and future deserve your courage to push back against this scam that only represents the chosen few! Create a legacy of courage and ethics and stand for ALL children. We will remember next election how you vote on this bill.

Makayla Mcglon

Self

Taylor, TX

Public education is a right for all Americans. It only helps boost our economy in the long run. Public school has helped generations of Texans get a a start in life in is a Pilar to our society. If most funding goes to private schools public schools will close and children of lower and middle class families will bear the consequences. This is not fair. Keep education free and public. The people who can afford private schools already send their kids there. This will be a huge mistake if this bill gets passed. As a fellow Texan, born and raised in the public school system, please keep our children in mind. ALL children, not just the rich ones.

Robert Patman

Self

Houston, TX

I strongly oppose Texas House Bill 3 (HB 3), which introduces an Education Savings Account (ESA) program to direct public funds to private schools. While the intention of expanding educational options may seem beneficial on the surface, this proposal endangers the integrity of Texas's public education system and jeopardizes equitable access to quality education for all students.

Public schools play a critical role in providing education to children across Texas, regardless of income, location, or background. Diverting public funds to private education through ESAs will disproportionately harm rural and underserved schools, further straining already limited resources. These schools are vital to their communities, and diminishing their funding risks undermining opportunities for countless students.

Additionally, private schools are not bound by the same accountability and transparency measures as public institutions. They are not obligated to follow state curriculum standards, administer standardized assessments, or accommodate students with disabilities. Public funds should not be allocated to institutions that are not held to the same standards of oversight and public accountability.

The proposed ESA program also raises significant equity concerns. The families most likely to benefit from this program are those already able to afford private school tuition, leaving lower-income families behind. Furthermore, many rural communities in Texas lack access to private schools entirely. For families in these areas, ESAs provide no meaningful alternative, yet these families would still face the negative consequences of reduced funding for their local public schools.

Rather than allocating funds to private schools, the Texas Legislature should focus on investing in public education. Prioritizing teacher pay, classroom resources, and support services for students will ensure lasting benefits for all Texans.

In conclusion, I urge policymakers to oppose HB 3 and commit to strengthening public education, which remains the backbone of our state's future. Thank you for the opportunity to submit these comments for the public record.

Leann West
self
Nacogdoches, TX

This bill will do more to harm public education and student in the state of Texas than any previous legislation. The authors of the bill are fooled into believing that they are supporting public education, but in reality they are abusing their power. ALL should vote NO on this insulting legislation

Sheri Allen, Cantor
Makom Shelanu Congregation
FT WORTH, TX

As a Texas Resident for over 30 years, as well as Jewish clergy, I value the role public schools play in shaping our future. I oppose private school subsidies/vouchers, and believe that they are wasteful, deceitful, inefficient, and unfair.

School vouchers are taxpayer-funded scholarships for private school tuition, most of which benefit religiously segregated schools. This is simply another assault to religious liberty – and violation of the separation of church/state. The Texas Constitution is clear that public funding is not to support religious schools or the teaching of any particular faith.

Public school dollars should go only to public schools. Public schools in Texas face enough challenges without funding being diverted elsewhere, leaving fewer resources for schools that serve the majority of our nation's students.

Public schools in Texas are underfunded by billions of dollars every year. Education funding should prioritize students of all faiths, identities, and abilities. Vouchers do not address the needs of low-income, at-risk students such as transportation, free and reduced lunches, textbooks, assessment of special needs, access to additional remediation programs, the full cost of tuition and more. Additionally, without elected boards or state oversight, vouchers give away tax dollars with no financial or academic accountability.

Public schools educate more than 90 percent of Texas students, serving all the students in their boundaries. They build the workforce that powers the Texas economy. We can't afford to underwrite a few special choices at the expense of our collective future.

As a Texas Resident for over 30 years, as well as Jewish clergy, I value the role public schools play in shaping our future. I oppose private school subsidies/vouchers, and believe that they are wasteful, deceitful, inefficient, and unfair.

School vouchers are taxpayer-funded scholarships for private school tuition, most of which benefit religiously segregated schools. This is simply another assault to religious liberty – and violation of the separation of church/state. The Texas Constitution is clear that public funding is not to support religious schools or the teaching of any particular faith.

Public school dollars should go only to public schools. Public schools in Texas face enough challenges without funding being diverted elsewhere, leaving fewer resources for schools that serve the majority of our nation's students.

Education funding should prioritize students of all faiths, identities, and abilities. Vouchers do not address the needs of low-income, at-risk students such as transportation, free and reduced lunches, textbooks, assessment of special needs, access to additional remediation programs, the full cost of tuition and more. Please oppose HB3 and all efforts to divert public funds to private schools.

Kim Kass
Self
Austin, TX

I strongly oppose this bill.

Robert A Bauer
Robert A Bauer
Dallas, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

William Gober
Self
San Angelo, TX

Texas was built on the promise of opportunity, and our public schools have long been the foundation of that promise. From the one-room schoolhouses that educated our earliest settlers to the thriving districts that have shaped generations of leaders, public education has been the great equalizer—ensuring that every child, no matter their background, has a chance to succeed. But the proposed school voucher system threatens to undermine that legacy by diverting critical funding away from public schools and into private institutions that are not accountable to taxpayers.

In communities like my hometown of San Angelo, where our public schools serve as the heart of our neighborhoods and the key to our children's futures, this policy would have devastating consequences. Less funding means larger class sizes, fewer resources, and diminished opportunities for the very students who need them most. Texas cannot afford to turn its back on the schools that have built this state—we must stand firm in our commitment to strong, well-funded public education for all.

STOP THE SCAM!

Joseph Henderson

Self - teacher

Kyle, TX

The creation of a voucher system in the state of Texas will do nothing to help lower and middle income families, while providing a cost break for the wealthy. The availability of a voucher which does not come close to covering the cost of a private education will not be an incentive to lower income families, and instead should serve to raise the cost of a private education in the state of Texas by an average approximating the value of the voucher, thus doing nothing but adding funds to private schools while depriving the public schools in their area of much needed funds. If you want to fix education in the state of Texas, force the governor to stop playing political games and release the funds schools need to operate effectively. Revisit the standard allotment, which has not increased in years, to better reflect the cost of educating a student in our current economy.

Joy Clark, Dr.

Self

Belton, TX

I am writing to express my strong opposition to Texas House Bill 3, a legislative proposal that threatens to divert essential funds away from public schools, thereby significantly impacting special education services. As a neuropsychologist specializing in working with children and adults with disabilities, I am deeply concerned about the potential consequences this bill poses to the vulnerable populations I serve.

Public schools play a critical role in providing equitable education opportunities for all students, including those with disabilities. The funding allocated to these institutions supports specialized programs and services that are crucial for the development and success of students with diverse needs. These services include individualized education plans (IEPs), speech and occupational therapy, and access to trained special education professionals who are dedicated to fostering an inclusive learning environment.

It is important to note that private schools are not required to provide the same level of resources or accommodations for students with disabilities as public schools. This means that if funds are diverted from public schools, students with disabilities may find themselves without access to the essential services they need to succeed. The lack of mandated support in private educational settings could leave many students without the necessary interventions and accommodations that public schools are obligated to provide.

House Bill 3 threatens to undermine these efforts by reallocating funds away from public schools, which could lead to reduced resources, larger class sizes, and diminished support for students requiring specialized attention. Such changes would disproportionately affect students with disabilities, who rely on consistent and tailored educational support to thrive academically and socially.

As a professional in the field, I have witnessed firsthand the transformative impact that adequate funding and resources can have on students with disabilities. These students deserve the opportunity to reach their full potential, and it is our collective responsibility to ensure that public schools are equipped to meet their unique needs.

I urge you to consider the long-term implications of House Bill 3 on the education and well-being of students with disabilities. By opposing this bill, you can help safeguard the future of special education services and uphold the principles of inclusivity and equal opportunity in our public education system.

Haley Horan

self, non-profit professional

Houston, TX

No to vouchers. Listen to your constituents. Public dollars belong in public schools.

celesa roach, mrs self - taxpayer/teacher
Allen, TX

This bill will only serve about 25k students who are not currently in a private school. The other 75k students are already enrolled in a private school setting. Most families even with the added funds will not be able to afford a private school, and many already have waiting lists. In addition, 158 counties do not even have access to a private school remotely close to them, yet we are using their tax dollars to fund the wealthy in the larger metroplex areas. The biggest concern is the study that shows this voucher program will likely impact and defund the TRS retirement system starting in about 11 years. This not only impacts public school employees, but state college and university employees as well. Teachers in the public schools deserve better, our students deserve proper funding versus having funds on hold while our governor pushes an agenda led by his wealthiest donors. It is clear the majority of Texans do not want a voucher system, and you owe it to your constituents to not allow this to pass.

Eliyahu Block
Self
San Antonio, TX

We would be so grateful if the state of Texas would allow us to choose th education for our children and alleviate the tremendous financial burden that come along with that.

Sharon Gamliel, Mrs.
Self
Dallas, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Bailey Bodenheimer
Public Education
Flower Mound, TX

"The task of the modern educator is not to cut down jungles, but to irrigate deserts."
- C.S. Lewis

Vouchers create deserts.

Mary Katherine Marston

Self

Rowlett, TX

I am a former educator with three young boys. I feel passionate about fully funded public schools. Two of my boys are already in public schools and the youngest will join when he turns 3. If SB 2/HB 3 ends up passing, Garland ISD where my of my boys goes will stand to lose about 21 million dollars in state funding. My other son is in Mesquite ISD to attend the Mesquite Regional School for the Deaf (a phenomenal publicly funded program) would lose almost 16 million in state funding. Both districts would have to cut hundreds of teaching positions and class sizes would increase by about 7%. Our kids and teachers need smaller class sizes to thrive and this is the exact opposite. I do not have numbers on how this would impact funding for special education services, but it is valid to assume it will not be good, especially if the Department of Education is disbanded. My younger two boys are partially Deaf and will need special education services throughout their entire school career. There is not a private school option that would meet their needs. They and countless other Texas children need the expertise of special education teachers and individualized services so they can be the best versions of themselves.

While this bill does increase the per pupil allotment, it still ranks Texas in the bottom of states in per pupil allotment. If we want the state to continue to grow and thrive we must invest in our students and teachers. We are doing a disservice by allocating so little funds to them.

Additionally, it is absolutely ridiculous to give public tax payer funds to private schools without any accountability. I do not understand with in these uncertain economic times and when the federal government is focused on eliminating "waste and fraud" how can tax payers be aussrued that their dollars will be spent correctly? Public schools are held to incredibly high standards and have many rules on how funds can be spent. This is creating a seprate and unequal education system. Especially for our rural school districts and counties that do not have a private school option.

Peggy Larson

self

Dallas, TX

It is imperative that we continue to support public education in our state. Vouchers do NOT do that! I know countless students who have benefited from a Texas Public education and have gone on to do wonderful things for our state.

Mary Jane Williams
Family to Family Network
Houston, TX

Thank you Chair Buckley and Committee Representatives,
Family to Family Network is a 30+ year parent organization creates success for children with disabilities by empowering families in the greater Houston area by providing information, training, referrals to resources and support as they attempt to navigate the extremely complex education, health care and social service systems trying to get help for their children. Family to Family Network believes that all children have value and belong in our communities, not segregating them to "special" places. Children and youth with disabilities do not have "special needs"; they have the same needs for access to quality education, transportation, employment, independent living and social lives. Current funding for services for students with disabilities in education has been underfunded for years.

We are writing to oppose the educational savings accounts presented in HB 3 due to the fact that HB 2 reflects a change to an intensity level of funding and will change the IEPs of over 595,000 students with disabilities. If this bill is put in place as of Sept 1, it will be impossible for families to know what level of funding will be available for their ESAs. While $30,000 may cover some students with disabilities in private placement, our fear is that the majority will not receive that amount of funding that will make private placements accessible for their individuals with disabilities. In addition, for much of the rural areas of the state, there are no private placements available. Will those rural areas be provided with additional funding for their school districts to adequately provide educational services for their students with disabilities? If the budgeted amount for the bieninum was used in public schools, the educational services provided could benefit all students with disabilities. Also, private schools should be subject to the same Federal laws protecting students with disabilities. As an organization who hears from families whose students were enrolled in charter schools that were dismissed because of their disability (even though they are required to follow TEA/IDEA law and rules), we are positive that this will happen with private placements also. In addition, there appears to be a wide latitude for providers providing the service (especially around therapy services) and may need some additional thought as there are current ABA providers who are not providing services by a Licensed ABA but by Rehab Techs. While Family to Family Network agrees that ABA services are often needed for some students with autism, how will the Comptrollers office determine that there is an "educational" benefit to any "therapy" services provided?

For these reasons, Family to Family Network is against the Educational Savings Account portion of the bill.

Thank you very much for committing to the education of all students in Texas.

Terri Purdy
Self
Austin, TX

As a supporter of Texas public schools, I am writing to express my opposition to House Bill 3.

Texas students deserve strong, well-funded public schools. I'm asking that you fully fund public schools FIRST, to the level that would at least match inflation increases since 2019. I would also ask that if you continue to pursue vouchers, that you ensure ANY schools that receive state funding are held to the same transparency requirements, accountability standards, and enrollment practices as public schools.

Thank you for your time and commitment to Texas public schools.

Lauren Bereuter
Self, nurse practitioner
Roanoke, TX

Increase the basic allotment to $7500

Tania Cohen
Self
Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Hang Doan-Meany
Self
Austin, TX

Writing to oppose HB3 (private school vouchers)

Karin Doerr
self/instructional assistant
College Station, TX

I am strongly opposed to state tax money being given to parents/private schools without oversight. I cannot think of any currently existing welfare program that hands out tax dollars without oversight.

When WIC and SNAP benefits are given, there are limits on what they can be used to purchase. They cannot be used to purchase expensive prepared foods to help ensure fiscal responsibility. They cannot be used to purchase alcohol. Instead, they have limits to make sure that affordable, nutritious food is purchased to keep families healthy. Under HB3, there are only the most minimal requirements to ensure that funds are being spent in a fiscally responsible manner. A parent could purchase home-schooling materials at a significantly inflated price, wasting tax dollars. HB3 also has no requirements to ensure that students are receiving a quality education with their ESA. While there are many great private schools in our state, without oversight, there is nothing to prevent state tax dollars being wasted on a school providing an inadequate education.

ESA supporters claim that school choice is a necessity. However, we already have school choice, WITH appropriate oversight. Charter schools play that role in our state. Even in small, rural communities, charter schools exist to offer school choice. These schools allow parents to choose where to send their child, but at the same time have oversight to ensure that state tax monies are being used appropriately to provide an education.

My other concern regarding school choice is that private schools don't necessarily provide families a choice. They are under no obligation to accept a child into their school. They can deny a student a spot at their school due to lack of space, disability, differences in religious beliefs, or a myriad of other reasons. Giving an ESA to a family of a child that will not be accepted into any local private school is NOT choice.

I understand ESAs are probably a foregone conclusion. Please strongly consider adding oversight requirements to ensure that tax money is used wisely to provide an education. The provision allowing ESAs to be used to pay for required uniforms seems like a waste of tax dollars. Uniforms are not necessary to receive an education. And please ensure true choice is offered by requiring private schools that accept ESA funds to accept any and all students that apply, just as public schools must do.

Michael Nowland

Self

Magnolia, TX

Please do not pass this bill. If you do not personally benefit from this bill there is no reason to do this. There has been lots of data provided by past voucher education systems and they do not work. Our students live in poor communities. We do not want to go to charter schools. Superintendents at charter schools often make millions but somehow those schools can also unexpectedly close or shutdown. There are several reports of this happening. We can use this money to reduce class sizes instead which, as a teacher, I know personally how effective this would be. We don't have to do this.

Richard Rodriguez

Self

Victoria, TX

I oppose HB3. Public schools should be fully funded and tax payer funds shouldn't go to private schools, especially without accountability.

Jacquelin Justice

Saigling Elementary PTA in Plano Independent School District

Plano, TX

Voucher programs in other states have exploded beyond their initial budgets, draining resources from public schools. Worse, vouchers do not improve student achievement and, in many states, lead to a decline in achievement. Furthermore, the reality is that vouchers are not about "parent choice" because the only choice in a voucher program belongs to private schools that can hand-pick their students and are not accountable to taxpayers or the state. Texas parents already have school choice, and vouchers undeniably funnel public tax dollars away from our already-strained public schools.

OPPOSE HB3 because:

Studies show vouchers do not equate to improved academic outcomes.

HB 3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas families already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity with public money.

Public money means public accountability. Any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing, and accountability requirements as public schools.

Texans should decide! Vouchers would use public dollars for private education—Texans deserve a voice in this decision. Urge lawmakers to put the measure on a statewide ballot and let the people vote!

Sarah Belyi, Mrs.

A parent in Round Rock ISD

Austin, TX

As a lifelong Texas, who went through public schools, I DO NOT support this bill for school vouchers... it's ridiculous. We ought to be funding and supporting our public schools and teachers so much better than we have been, it's disgraceful. It clear that the real mission here is to ultimately have more control over the schools and their curriculum, so that religious zealots can try to infuse their doctrine into our education system. There's good reason for separation of church and state, and maybe some folks need reminding that that separation is essential to the health of our democracy.

Lauren Dorff, Mrs
Glen Oaks PTA
McKinney, TX

I am a voter and a parent. I oppose HB3 for what all it takes away from a great majority of students in our state. Parents have always had a choice of where to send their kids to school. Giving money to wealthy people to go towards the private education that they are already giving their kids is welfare for the wealthy. Public funds given to private organizations with no oversight is ridiculous, unconstitutional and against everything that Texas used to stand for. Private schools do not usually accept children with ANY disability of any kind, they do NOT provide transportation, and they do not have to accept anyone that they do not want to. They also do not serve our rural neighbors. 90% of Texas students attend public school so let's do all we can to make it great.

By not raising student allotments since 2019 is ludicrous. Holding public school funding hostage with this voucher nonsense for the last three years is shameful. Start representing your state and not your billionaire sponsors. You have time to do the right thing even as you wrote this stupid bill. Be better for your state.

Funny how there hasn't been a single rally for people asking for vouchers, only those many, many, many people rallying against it. Guess our voices don't count anymore.

Nancy Hester
Self , retired
San Antonio, TX

I am strongly opposed to this bill. My concerns are the discrepancy between the amount of the vouchers vs. the amount per student given to public schools, the fact that states who have implemented vouchers are facing financial crisis, that vouchers benefit the privileged, for example those who are able to transport their student, that public schools actually offer a lot of choices to students, that private schools are able to select their students while public schools do not, whether schools accepting vouchers will be held to the same accountability standards as public schools, if private schools will now be required to provide services to special needs students. While my children are now longer in school, I do have grandchildren in school who are taking advantage of school choice already through the public schools actually offer. Those in favor of vouchers stays that there aren't enough choices provided and that underprivileged families can't afford to move to areas with more choices. I contend that those families most likely can't provide transportation to a private school, and that those in that situation likely don't have private schools readily available either. If we need more choice for students, then public schools should be properly funded in order for Guam to be able to provide those choices. I recently attended a course fair at my grandson's high school and was astounded at the many opportunities available to students at no extra cost to their families. Many opportunities for college hours and certifications in various fields are available. Please do not allow this bill to move forward. If the Governor is so sure that Texans want vouchers, it should be put up for a vote of the general population rather than a bill that has already been defeated. It is reprehensible for this to keep being presented over and over when it is clearly not supported by a majority of citizens. If you in fact represent your constituents, you will not send this bill to the floor or vote for it. As a taxpayer. I will be watching.

Jennifer Kim
Self
Katy, TX

Public education needs to be supported as much as possible. Those who can afford private school can already do so. We should not be weakening our public school system.

Jacqui Calloway
Creative Action
Austin, TX

As a certified Texas teacher and someone who works as an arts educator with elementary, middle, and high school students, I implore you to continue to prioritize public school in your funding decisions. Private schools will remain out of reach for low-income families or students with specific behavioral or learning needs. They are not equipped to serve every child, which is the mandate of public schooling. Please use public funds to benefit those who need them most, in order to help the next generation be more successful and well-prepared for the future.

Michael Freberg

“self” / Parent

Austin, TX

I am writing to strongly oppose HB 3, the largest and most expensive school voucher scheme ever proposed in Texas. This bill takes taxpayer dollars meant for public schools and redirects them to private schools that lack transparency, accountability, and equal access for all students.

Public tax dollars should support public schools, which serve every child, regardless of ability, income, or background. Texas lawmakers have not increased the basic per-student funding allotment for public schools since 2019, despite rising costs, inflation, and a record budget surplus. If there is money in the budget for education, our priority should be fully funding public schools first—ensuring teacher raises, better resources for students, and improvements to school infrastructure—before sending tax dollars to private institutions that are not accountable to the public.

Furthermore, HB 3 does not even prioritize the students who need the most support. It allows families already in private schools—including those making over $200,000 per year—to receive taxpayer-funded vouchers. Wealthy families will get a discount on private school tuition while public schools lose funding, harming the vast majority of Texas students.

This bill also fails students with disabilities. While HB 3 offers larger voucher amounts for special education students, private schools are not required to accept them or provide the necessary services. Public schools are legally required to serve all children, yet HB 3 shifts funding away from them to schools that are not obligated to meet these needs.

Texas public schools educate more than 5.4 million students—far more than private institutions ever will. If we truly care about education, we should be investing in strong, well-funded public schools that serve everyone, rather than subsidizing private schools that can pick and choose their students.

HB 3 is bad for Texas families, bad for students, and bad for our public schools. I urge legislators to reject this costly and irresponsible voucher scheme and instead invest in fully funding public schools, raising teacher pay, and ensuring that every Texas child has access to a high-quality education.

Sincerely,

Michael Freberg

Austin

Elizabeth Lister

Self

Tomball, TX

I homeschool and want to remain able to teach what I want too. That is what free choice is. I do not want to have to be told what to teach. That is not free choice. I am against this bill bc it is not considered free choice. Fix the terminology and ask us parents before submitting a bill. The people have a say when it comes to certain criteria.

Brian Merrell

Republicans

Bryan, TX

I am writing to express my deep concern and strong opposition to House Bill 3, specifically regarding the inclusion of Educational Savings Accounts (ESAs) as a mechanism for diverting public education funds to private and charter schools. As a lifelong advocate for public education and someone who deeply values the role of our public schools in shaping the future of Texas, I find this bill to be a direct threat to the integrity, equity, and effectiveness of our education system.

While I understand the appeal of school choice for some families, the reality is that ESAs will siphon critical resources away from Texas public schools, ultimately harming the majority of students—particularly those in rural and low-income communities. Our state has long faced challenges in adequately funding public education, and House Bill 3 threatens to exacerbate these issues rather than address them. I urge you to oppose this bill and stand with Texas students, teachers, and communities that rely on strong public schools to thrive.

The Danger of Diverting Public Funds from Public Schools

Texas public schools serve over 5.4 million students. Unlike private schools, they are required to educate all children, regardless of socioeconomic background, disability status, or learning needs. Public education is the foundation of a thriving democracy, and it is unacceptable to weaken this foundation by redirecting taxpayer dollars to private institutions that are not held to the same standards of accountability, inclusivity, and transparency.

ESAs function as a form of voucher system, where families receive taxpayer-funded dollars to apply toward private school tuition or other educational expenses. However, there is little to no oversight on how these funds are spent. Public schools are required to meet stringent academic standards, financial reporting requirements, and accountability measures, yet private institutions that receive ESA funds would not be subject to the same scrutiny. This creates an unequal playing field where public schools must continue to meet high expectations with fewer resources, while private schools benefit from public funding without having to meet the same obligations.

Furthermore, public school districts in Texas already struggle with inequitable funding. The state's school finance system relies heavily on property taxes, which means wealthier districts can generate significantly more revenue than lower-income districts. Instead of addressing these disparities and investing in equitable funding models, House Bill 3 would take even more money away from the very schools that need additional support.

The Impact on Rural Communities

Rural school districts in Texas stand to suffer the most under House Bill 3. Unlike urban areas, which have more private school options, most rural communities rely solely on their public schools for education. When state funding is reduced due to ESAs, these schools will be forced to cut programs, increase class si

Mary Spradlin, Rev.
Pastors for Texas Children
Fort Worth, TX

I write in opposition of HB 3. Specifically, I am against any voucher/ESA bill. Vouchers take public funds and give them away to private entities with very little oversight. Our tax dollars should not be used to support private entities, especially at the expense of our children. ALL children in the state of Texas deserve the very best education we can provide. There are many flaws in our current public school system. Many of these flaws are caused by mandates passed down from the Texas legislature and TEA. It is your job to work to fix these problems and to improve our public education, not give tax dollars away. My rep has told me that, "if HB3 can help those families whose kid is being bullied, then it is a good thing." He then admitted that, at first, it will help less than 1% of the schoolchildren in Texas. He also told me that if this doesn't work, he will work to rein it back in. I believe we can all agree that that won't be happening. What will happen is that the legislature will work to expand vouchers, to give more money away. We can see right now how this is harming the budget in states like AZ. We know the trajectory that is intended for vouchers, and it is one that will do harm to this state.

Regarding HB3, here are some of my specific concerns: 1) I see no clarity in how the lottery is to be administered. The bill names different "tiers" of economic and ability statuses, but gives no clarity to how these will be prioritized. The bill vaguely leaves details up to the comptroller to determine. If you were to vote on this bill as written, you wouldn't even know what you are voting on. 2) Parents don't have to resubmit annually. Why do parents have to submit annually for CHIP, creating a barrier for low-income children to receive health benefits, but parents wouldn't have to re-apply for ESAs? 3) I don't see anything that specifically states that teachers/tutors cannot be a registered sex offender. It's definitely possible for a registered sex offender to not be on a "no hire" list for public schools. 4) The 85% funding - what is this? What amount will ESAs provide? 5) Any money remaining in ESA is carried forward. There is no limit on this. A parent could get an ESA when a child is in K, then save and save and cash it in when they are in middle school and private school is more expensive? 6) Up to 8% of funds can be spent on administrative costs, between comptroller and CEOs. How is this fiscally conservative? 7) No refunds allowed. So schools win if a kid moves, drops out or is expelled. And Texas loses when kid then returns to public school and now is costing the state double. 8) No requirements for curriculum or outcomes - why are we spending tax money on this? 9) Tax $ go to support schools that can discriminate based on a person's race, religion, etc. Not okay.

You know this is wrong. Texans do not want this. People who want to dismantle public ed want this. Our children and families are counting on you. Vote no on HB3.

Grace Elliott, Mrs.
Self, retired public school teacher
Arlington, TX

As a former public school teacher and tax payer, I want every penny of school funds to go to public education. My daughter and grandson, also public school teachers, have taught in several schools in Tarrant county, and some are really underfunded, depending upon their location. The students in these schools are just as important to the future of our nation as any other children. If any parents want their children in private school for any reason, they are free to pay the tuition. Private schools do not accept students with special needs. Staffing for those special needs children costs real money. I repeat, I don't want ANY of my money to be taken from public schools and given to private schools.

Deborah White
Self -store manager
Austin, TX

I am writing as a Texan to urge you not to use our taxpayer dollars for school vouchers. I have lived in Texas all my life and am a mother with a kid in public school.

Anna Roth
Self, parent
Austin, TX

I am against the establishment of an education savings account program. Public funds should stay with children in public schools.

Mariel Salcedo

self - project manager

Austin, TX

I wholeheartedly disagree with HB3 and as a Texas resident think it'll cause harm to families with students in the public school system. I urge my representatives to vote against this ridiculous bill.

Tami Griffitt

Self-accountant

Amarillo, TX

We should be using our public- funded tax dollars to make our public schools better! They should be receiving ALL public funds. Private schools are meant to be just that and should be paid in full by the parents that want their child to be secluded from the public. Get the public schools to the same level of education as the private schools. This should not be an option for the rich and entitled to get a discount for their entitled unaccountable children! Teachers in public schools need raises! Programs in public schools need the funding! Do what is right with our tax dollars.

Wendy Kinkade

Self - Vision Therapist

Schertz, TX

PLEASE Vote NO. We already have school choice. If you want to fix Texas Ed, stop spending millions on testing that has taken the fun and interest out of teaching and learning. Elementary students should not have anxiety over testing!

MAKE LEARNING FUN AGAIN.

Testing used to be unannounced, we would head to the auditorium and lose one day of instruction. Now EVERYTHING in curriculum/scope and sequence REVOLVES around the STAAR. I'm a vision therapist and many of my patients have difficulty reading due to eye coordination issues - they cannot track through a passage - and they are terrified of the STAAR test. How is this good for our students?

We have fantastic teachers in public schools who are leaving in droves because they aren't allowed to TEACH. PLEASE...

LISTEN TO THEM.

SUPPORT THEM.

PAY THEM.

Yes, there are woke teachers in the metro areas, and this should not be, but vouchers doesn't address this, and expecting school choice to be the answer to Tx Ed issues that are as diverse as our state is small minded and flat counterproductive.

Please tell Abbott to read the comments on alllll his FB posts. . .

TEXANS DON'T WANT VOUCHERS. Thank you for listening to us!

Jennifer James

Myself

White Settlement, TX

I'm opposed to HB3 because it expands government and we don't need government in home and private schools.

Megan Moore

Self

Boerne, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a native Texan, 5th generation, whose entire family are products of the public education system, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution.

Katarina Myers

Self

White Settlement, TX

I am a product of the Texas education system and have lived here my entire life. I strongly oppose this bill and ask for the vote to be no. I have 2 sons who rely on 504. One of my sons learned to read specifically due to the help he received through 504. My other son has a non specific memory disorder and cannot retain short term information he utilizes special education services and without 504 he will not learn to read. I am asking you to vote no, this bill is not for Texas children and we owe it to them to provide them with the best education possible. The future of our state is dependent on the striking down of this bill.

Rebecca Brasher

Self- stay at home mom

Fort Worth, TX

I am against the creation of school vouchers or educational savings accounts for private schools. Other states experiences have shown that the majority of people who end up benefitting from these programs are already enrolled in private schools and well above the poverty line. Please focus your attention on increasing funding for public schools so every student in Texas can have access to a world class education! The basic student allotment hasn't been increased since 2019, but inflation has increased the costs associated with running a school significantly. Our schools desperately need an increase to the basic student allotment in order to maintain the programs that help students succeed and attract the best teachers. Funding for schools also needs to be tied to enrollment, not average daily attendance. Very few costs associated with schools go down just because students are sick one day.

Susan Malone, Former Elem Music Teacher @ Corey Academy Arlington ISD

Self

Arlington, TX

I would like to go on record as being vehemently opposed to HB 3 and SB 2.

All Texas students are Texans, and we should treat all of them as such equally.

If you are going to spend $10,000 each on private school students, you should spend $10,000 each on public school students. If the budget can't handle that, divide the funds equally among all students. Period.

Texans are opposed to these bills and you need to listen to your constituents' wishes.

Jody Rodriguez, Ms.

Self

College Station, TX

Subject: Protect Texas Public Schools – Oppose Vouchers in HB 3

Dear House Public Education Committee Members,

As a dedicated educator with over 21 years of experience in primary education and literacy, I am deeply concerned about the impact of school vouchers in HB 3 on Texas public schools. Our public education system serves over 5 million students, providing equitable opportunities for all children, regardless of their background or zip code. Redirecting public funds to private schools through vouchers undermines this mission, taking away critical resources from the students who need them most.

Vouchers do not promote school choice; they create an uneven playing field where private schools can selectively admit students, leaving behind those with greater needs. Meanwhile, public schools remain accountable to taxpayers and serve every child who walks through their doors. Instead of diverting funds, we should focus on fully funding our schools, increasing teacher pay, reducing class sizes, and providing the support necessary for all students to thrive.

I urge you to stand with Texas public schools and oppose vouchers in HB 3. Our students, teachers, and communities deserve strong, well-funded public schools—not policies that weaken them.

Thank you for your time and commitment to Texas education.

Sincerely,

Jody Rodriguez

Literacy Specialist & Advocate

jrodriguez@csisd.org

MaryMargaret Hansen, Ms.

self

Houston, TX

Texas does not need or want school vouchers. Small TX towns which do not have private schools will be hurt as their local public schools will have less funding for teachers, books, supplies. Schools in small TX towns are community places - think of Friday night football for which Texas is famous. Why weaken that whole long-standing system to give money to folks who wish to send their kids to private schools? There is NO good reason for doing so. Don't let yourselves cater to a very small group of old wealthy white men who have no real interest in educating Texas kids and who threaten a primary opponent for those who disagree. Do not give in as it will hurt small Texas towns and the kids who grow up there. Be a hero. mmhansen

Karenna Malavanti

Self

Woodway, TX

Vouchers will largely benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from our underfunded public schools and the kids who need funding/education the most. I am a proud graduate of Texas public schools, and I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution.

Amanda Windsor

Self - educator

Pearland, TX

I strongly oppose the HB 3 Voucher Bill because it threatens to siphon much-needed public funds away from Texas public schools, especially harming students in special education. Vouchers primarily benefit private institutions that are not required to follow federal special education laws, such as IDEA (Individuals with Disabilities Education Act). These schools can deny admission to students with disabilities or refuse to provide necessary accommodations, leaving families with fewer rights and no guarantee of services.

Meanwhile, public schools will still bear the responsibility of serving the vast majority of special education students—but with even fewer resources. Special education programs are already underfunded, and removing more money from public schools will make it even harder to provide appropriate support, hire specialized staff, and meet legally required accommodations.

This bill does not promote school choice; it promotes school exclusion. The burden of educating all students—especially those with the greatest needs—will still fall on public schools, but with diminished funding and increasing challenges. Texas must invest in strengthening public education, not diverting tax dollars to private institutions that lack accountability and inclusivity. I urge lawmakers to reject HB 3 and prioritize real solutions that support all students.

Alanna Park

Self

Tomball, TX

Vouchers will hurt public schools. Let the private schools follow TEA guidelines and let public schools have more authority in making decisions for their district. No more government overreach. Be more conservative. Less government. We don't have the money for unfunded mandates.

Stephanie Hilz

self

Austin, TX

I oppose this bill and I'm against school vouchers.

Kim Uhlmann

Self

Garland, TX

"Argument Against the HB3 Texas School Voucher Bill

Introduction

The HB3 Texas school voucher bill, promoted by Governor Greg Abbott, threatens public education while disproportionately benefiting the wealthy. Proponents claim it expands “school choice” by funding private school tuition with taxpayer dollars. However, evidence from other states shows vouchers fail to improve outcomes, primarily serve as discounts for affluent families, and disadvantage lower-income and middle-class students. Instead of increasing opportunity, HB3 would deepen inequality and divert essential funding from public schools.

Failure of Vouchers in Other States

Arizona: Ballooning Costs, No Benefits

Arizona’s voucher program led to $300 million in budget overruns, with 80% of recipients never having attended public school—a direct subsidy for wealthier families.

Florida: Academic Decline and Fraud

A 2020 study found students who switched to private voucher schools performed worse on standardized tests. Additionally, Florida’s program has suffered from fraud and unregulated spending.

Indiana: No Student Gains

Indiana’s voucher students scored lower in math compared to public school peers. Over 60% of vouchers went to families above the state’s median income.

Wisconsin: Increased Segregation

Vouchers fueled racial and economic segregation, with wealthier families moving to private schools, leaving lower-income students in struggling public institutions.

HB3: A Giveaway to the Wealthy

1. Private Schools Are Still Too Expensive

The average private school tuition in Texas ranges from $10,000 to $30,000+ annually. HB3’s $8,000 voucher doesn’t cover the cost, leaving lower-income families unable to afford the remaining tuition.

2. Rural Families Get No Benefit

With few private schools in rural Texas, families in these areas would see no real choices—just weaker public schools due to funding losses.

3. Special Needs Students Are Left Behind

Private schools aren’t required to accommodate disabilities as public schools are. Vouchers could leave special needs students without crucial services.

The Harm to Public Schools

1. Less Funding, Larger Classes

Public schools lose money for every student who takes a voucher, leading to program cuts, layoffs, and overcrowding. Fixed costs remain, but budgets shrink.

2. Lower Teacher Salaries

Texas already ranks 42nd in teacher pay. HB3 would make retention harder by reducing public school funding.

Conclusion

School vouchers have failed in other states and will fail Texas. HB3 would shift resources away from public schools, benefiting only families who can already afford private education. Instead of dismantling public schools, Texas should invest in them—ensuring every child, regardless of income, has access to a quality education. Lawmakers should reject HB3 and prioritize public schools.

Christopher LaPell

Self

Spring, TX

We are a homeschool family and oppose this bill.

Lynn Bell

Self

Austin, TX

I strongly OPPOSE using taxpayer money to fund private school vouchers. Texans have "school choice" now -- they already can go to any private school they want. What is wiser and necessary is MORE FUNDING FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Shannon Boon

self

Buda, TX

I oppose this bill. Do not defund our public education system to give breaks to the rich and religious organizations. I am against school vouchers.

Erik Fredrickson

self, postdoctoral researcher

Austin, TX

Taxpayer money should stick with public, accountable schools and not be funneled into private institutions. The proposed program would set up a false "choice" by pulling funding and students from our public school system, inevitably weakening it, leading more families to want to leave it, etc. As a resident of Texas, I oppose the aims of this bill.

Sarah Crosby

Self

Cypress, TX

I strongly oppose this bill. As a homeschool parent, we have enjoyed the freedom to choose to homeschool our kids in a way we see fit! This will just be a back door way to regulate homeschooling under the guise of "choice". We have chosen to educate our kids not in the public sphere because the public schools are failing our kiddos- if the government starts regulating homeschooling, I can guarantee it will be the same way.

Felicia Hudson

Mansfield ISD

Grand Prairie, TX

Vote No to Vouchers

Scott Koumalats

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose HB3. This bill is not a choice for parents, but instead a way to misuse public school funds for private school gains. Listening to the testimony today has shown that the funding is estimated to go towards students that are already in the private school system. There is not a guarantee that this bill helps public schools and most likely will negatively impact them. If the desire was to enrich students then these funds could instead be allocated towards early childhood development and daycare funding.

Braden Morehead

Self

McKinney, TX

Absolutely no one on either side of the aisle is supportive of this dumbass bill. Pay teachers more, improve public schools, do the right thing you idiots

Jonathan Serna

Self, Teacher

Victoria, TX

I oppose HB3. Public schools should be fully funded and tax payer funds shouldn't go to private schools, especially without accountability.

Meghab Ackley

Self

Austin, TX

This bill would be a disaster for public schools in Texas. Rich Texans don't need vouchers. Poor Texans need public schools. An uneducated electorate is a detriment to all of society and will put more of a financial strain upon all of us. We need to educate everyone in order for us all to live better lives. Please please do not pass this unjust bill.

Jan Ashcraft

Self

Cibolo, TX

Please vote no on school vouchers. I am a retired Texas teacher. I got my excellent education in a public school, Irving ISD. I got my BS in Ed. from Stephen F. Austin. School vouchers harm our public schools. They don't take care of our most vulnerable students, that need special education. They don't help Texas students in our rural areas. Vouchers only benefit the wealthiest people that are already sending their children to private schools. Fully fund our public schools and give our teachers raises. The billionaires buying politicians shouldn't be making this decision. The majority of Texans DO NOT support private school vouchers. Please, listen to us!

Betty Elizarraraz

Self

Waxahachie, TX

We do NOT want school choice or vouchers. Our dollars should go to PUBLIC schools. Not private or charter!

Sharon Blake

self

Granbury, TX

Please VOTE NO for school vouchers. It is a shameful scam orchestrated by religious right billionaires, who are lining the pockets of politicians, with No PROMISE of providing the BEST EDUCATION FOR TEXAS STUDENTS. Schools are an integral part of our communities. The rural schools, which there are many, will suffer under this crazy shit. The State should provide Funds that would assist our PUBLIC SCHOOLS to hire the Best Teachers with a minimum pay of $80K, not only allowing a descent living wage for Teachers, but also encouraging a competitive market in hiring. Year Round School options should also be considered. We were under the impression that Lottery monies were to be used to help fund our schools, what happened to that? If the state has monies to transport immigrants around the U.S., without promise of a reimbursement from the Federal government, then you have money for schools. Those promoting vouchers only have their own self interest at heart. Just say No to Vouchers.

Judith Crumpler, Nurse

Self

Abernathy, TX

The fact that a private school student is worth more money than a public school kid is absolutely ridiculous. Private schools can deny entry to any student while public schools cannot. Rural Texas does not have private schools so we do not benefit from a voucher program. If you actually cared about education each institution would get the same amount of money per child then maybe our public educators would have access to resources to implement engaging curriculum. Private schools get tuition money and donor money so they don't lack money, they don't lack resources, they compensate their employees fairly, their students get access to different education because not only do they have money but they don't have to follow the rules like public schools do. Our public educators are stretched thin, paid poorly, and continue to show up and pour into the future generations. Additionally, I find it as a citizen of this great state highly concerning that so many representatives that are encouraging this bill have relatives that either work for private schools or sit on boards for private schools. Your family members should not be benefiting from a bill while public schools continue to suffer from poor funding. Do better.

Mindy Trejo

Self

Schertz, TX

Vote No- this is not in the best interest of all students and the details of the voucher payments do not match up with the broad generalizations that have been told to the public.

Lavetta Garvin, Mrs

Self

Haltom city, TX

Please vote against vouchers and properly support public education.

Becky Lawson

Self

Dallas, TX

No to vouchers! Quality accessible public education is a right not a privilege!

Darcy Lynx, Dr

Self, scientist, teacher

Cedar Park, TX

I am writing to fully support our Texas Educators in providing special education and ensuring equal access to education for all, including disabilities, learning challenges, color, race, religion, national origin, language, gender, orientation, and more. Especially in an era where we are seeing the state take part in a court case to challenge the constitutionality of 504 accommodations and rolling back DEI inclusions, I ask Texas to stand firm in educating every child in the community. First, this grows and supports communities, helping lift communities out of poverty. Second, the curriculum and especially some of the placement and support opportunities for seniors and post senior students in special education means that many students who would be otherwise challenged can find meaningful work and help in their own support. This helps grow communities as well. Finally, many students who use special education of 504 services are incredibly intelligent, thoughtful minds who are capable of great things, given adequate support. I have ADHD, I have an incredibly bright daughter with autism and ADHD, and I teach dyslexic and other neurodiverse children. I have gone on to get a PhD in chemical and biomolecular engineering and my daughter is, with some small supports, in the upper level of all classes. The students I work with professionally are bright, make amazing connections, and have deep and complex understanding of the science classes I teach. However they struggle with language reading and writing. What a small price it is to support these students so that we can help them realize their full potential as they inherit from us as a part of our next generation of community members.

Terry Brandhorst

Self

HOUSTON, TX

As a retired educator in the public school system, I am adamantly opposed to this legislation. This program, regardless of how labeled, will take funding away from public schools it mostly enables the wealthy to offset their CHOICE of private schools.

These private schools will be exempt from accountability tests and choose which students to enroll. This program is inequitable for the students in Texas.

Rural schools and students with special needs will suffer more than others. A solid financial investment in these students will provide a means to them becoming functional and contributing adults in Texas.

Invest in our future of all students.

Do not line the pockets of the wealthy!

Theodore Lowe

Self

Spicewood, TX

I am opposed to Vouchers and opposed to this Bill. Fund Public Education. It's pathetic where TX ranks in what is their most important duty. Let the Feds pay to protect our borders and re-direct that money to our schools.

Craig Campbell

Retired self

Austin, TX

I am opposed to HB 3 for several reasons.

As Senator Robert Nichols has pointed out it is in conflict with the Texas Constitution concerning the Separation of Church and State.

The biggest advocates are billionaire Christian Nationalists whose aim is to destroy public education. The advocates for this have lied and attacked public schools and teachers calling them Marxists and Groomers. This level of disrespect for teachers should not be rewarded

Billionaires funded dishonest attacks on members of the House because they stood up for their communities. This isn't fair.

Out of state billionaires want to turn education over to corporate Wall Street, so they can monetize education and reward their stockholders. Corporations by law are required to put stockholders and profits first. This is not fair.

The money for public schools came from property taxes approved by voters in the school districts. To divert to private entities whose loyalties are to the stockholders of these conglomerates who are motivated by greed and profit compared to the educators who made a lifetime commitment to service is not fair.

The largest vote in 2022 Constitutional Amendments was not on property tax relief but on support for retired teachers. Eighty percent of the people want you to support public education.

According to the Texas Monthly this is the same program that was advocated in the 1950s after the Brown Supreme Court decision.

As I read HB 3, Elon Musk can send his 14 children to school with $10K a piece because his income is zero. There is no measure of wealth other than annual income which is easily manipulated. Persons with multiple homes and vast capital holdings are eligible. This is not fair.

If this were a legitimate program one would use eligibility for reduced lunches, food stamps, or 200% of federal poverty guidelines which is commonly used for housing vouchers. This is not fair.

Parental Choice is the phrase used to sell this program as if parents are saints. Last year there were 235,000 child abuse and neglect investigations in Texas. How many of them will apply for home schooling funds so that can buy more drugs?

Last week it was revealed that a charter school principal was drawing a total $870,000 in three different schools in his network. If I was a betting man, I would say that this kind of scandal will be repeated in this new environment. The nine lawyers and 33 additional staff that the Comptroller's Office will hire will be busy.

Certified Educational Assistance Organizations We need a middleman to do keep the state's hands clean. People like this are around to help people with college admissions. There have been a number of wide-scale scandals and bribery in this field of college admissions. In other states these organizations seem to be by religion Christian Evangelical, Protestant, Catholic, Jewish, Lutheran, Islamic, Hindu, etc.

Ernesto Garcia, Mr.

Self, retired

Keller, TX

I oppose any form of voucher program for private schools. Most private schools are religious so this would violate separation of church and state. Also, private schools do not have to follow the rules and guidelines set for public schools and can choose who to admit. Public schools have been shortchanged financially by the state for too many years. They need a large infusion of cash from the state.

Marie Jackson

None

Flower Mound, TX

Please vote NO on this bill.

Ann Koonce

self

Round Rock, TX

I oppose this bill and I'm against school vouchers for Texas.

Carolyn Rogers

Self

Aledo, TX

No! No! No! No vouchers for private schools! Public money is for public schools, not to be used as a subsidy for rich kids who are already in private schools. Look at other states with vouchers: Majority of voucher users already attend private schools (and therefore can already afford them). Vouchers steal funding from public schools & there is zero evidence they improve overall student success. Private schools are not accountable for how they use the funds. Vouchers are rooted in segregation - if rich people want their kids in school with other rich kids, they can (and already are) pay for it out of their own pockets. Vouchers are a scam to funnel MORE money to the rich.

Swarna Madduri

Self/admin

Dallas, TX

I understand the fundamental importance of public institutions that provide opportunity for everyone. Our public schools serve without regard to background or wealth. This bill, establishing an education savings account program, violates that principle.

It's not 'school choice'; it's schools choosing which students they want to serve, creating a two-tiered system:

- For the wealthy: It offers a taxpayer-funded discount on private school tuition, a benefit they hardly need.
- For the vast majority of Texans, especially those in rural areas: It offers nothing. In counties where private schools are nonexistent, this bill simply diverts vital public school funding, further disadvantaging students who already lack resources.

This program doesn't expand opportunity; it's exacerbating existing inequities. Private schools lack the same accountability and transparency as public schools. They can cherry-pick students, exclude those with disabilities, and operate without the same rigorous standards. This undermines the very purpose of public education: to provide a quality education for every child.

Let's be clear: it's 'welfare for the wealthy.' It takes from the struggling public system and gives to those who already have more.

Instead of subsidizing private schools that serve a select few, we must invest in our public schools, the cornerstone of our democracy. We must:

- Ensure equitable funding that keeps pace with inflation and the rising cost of living.
- Provide resources to support all students, regardless of their background or zip code.
- Strengthen accountability and transparency in public education.

You took an oath to serve the people of Texas so, reject this divisive and harmful bill. Prioritize the education of all our children, not just a privileged few

Polly Johnson

Self

Houston, TX

The future of our state and country lies in the hands of our young people . The world is becoming a more complicated place in which to exist and to earn a living . In order to be well prepared for this, young people must have a good education. A good education should be available to ALL kids in Texas in our public schools .

In 2024 Texas , a wealthy state, ranked 44th in per capita student spending . This was lower than in 2020! This is shameful!! Texas must spend money on offering a good education to ALL students in public schools , not in providing assistance to parents who can already afford to send their kids to private schools.

Vouchers would be used more in larger cities where greater numbers of private schools are available. Texas's education money should go equally to all areas of Texas by increasing per capita student spending .

Laurie Sparrowhawk

self

Austin, TX

I am a parent of 3 school aged children who attend public schools in Texas. As Texans, I would like to think we all share a common goal: to build a stronger, more prosperous state for everyone. Our future depends on the education and success of our children, and the strength of our state is directly tied to the strength of our public education system. House Bill 3, which proposes diverting public education funding into private school vouchers, threatens to undermine the very future of Texas.

By shifting money into private school vouchers, we are prioritizing the wealthiest families who already have access to educational advantages. These are not the families who are being left behind. For the vast majority of families in Texas, even with a voucher, private education will remain out of reach. Meanwhile, public schools (which educate the majority of our children) will suffer from reduced resources, larger class sizes, and fewer opportunities. This leaves working- and middle-class families, as well as rural communities further behind. Again, this leaves most children in the state with fewer and lesser opportunities than they currently have.

In summary, the path proposed by HB 3 does not lead to a stronger Texas. It leads to a less competitive one.

Rebecca Saldana, Mrs.

Parent/taxpayer

Houston, TX

Esteemed Committee Members,

We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because:

1. Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force.
 2. HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents.
 3. Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools.
 4. We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot.
- This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill.

Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution.

Stephanie Ranieri

self

Highland Village, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution. If you fail to properly represent to the will of Texans, the next step will be finding your replacements

Ruth York, Mrs
Self (Direct Sales); Texas Family Defense Committee
Cisco, TX

We oppose House Bill 3.

We oppose HB 3 because:

- *It grows government.
- *It is not fiscally responsible.
- *It comes with "strings," contrary to Republicans' expressed wishes.
- *It claims to be "universal," but is actually a lottery.
- *We believe it is a "vendor bill" benefitting special interests.

IT GROWS GOVERNMENT. It requires a new structure in the Comptroller's office to administer the program. That includes deciding which curriculum is approved for purchase -- quite a broadening of the Comptroller's duties.

IT IS NOT FISCALLY RESPONSIBLE. Its billion-dollar price tag triples in three sessions, according to the bill's fiscal note. This is from general revenue, in addition to public school funding.

IT COMES WITH "STRINGS." We need accountability for public expenditures, but the Republican Party explicitly repudiated strings for any such program because we want the private and homeschool space to be free of governmental restrictions. Testing, audits, accreditation and restrictions on curriculum decisions will inevitably shape the now-free home and private schools -- and their providers -- to conform to standards similar to those imposed on public schools. "Teaching to the test" will invade this educational sector, too, in order to continue to receive the government cheese.

BEWARE OF DECEPTIVE TERMINOLOGY. These are not "educational savings accounts"; they are educational spending accounts. Eligibility is not "universal"; it aims to help a limited few determined by lottery and discriminatory criteria. It is more "school capture" than "school choice", since we already have all the same choices. It does not empower parents; rather, it limits parental decisions while it creates dependency.

WE BELIEVE IT IS A "VENDOR BILL" benefitting special interests. Without negating valid concerns for our children's education, we anticipate Certified Education Assistance Organizations, testing services, and software and textbook publishers will readily mine this new "captured" educational field. Data mining and erosion of privacy are related concerns.

BOTTOM LINE

We ask that the legislature confine itself to its constitutional duty to maintain "an efficient system of public free schools." We suggest a return to the paper-and-pencil-and-textbook standards that in past decades allowed Texas schools to produce great doctors, scientists, innovators and a "general diffusion of knowledge."

Rather than enabling a few thousand students to leave "failing" schools, recognize that MILLIONS of students will remain in the public system. There lies your constitutional duty, along with a massive chunk of our State's budget.

Instead, let's make Texas public schools great again! Please OPPOSE HB 3.

Cheryl Crafton
Self teacher of 25 yrs
Canton, TX

As a tax payer and a public school teacher I do not approve of funds dedicated to education of the majority being used for the few who have access to more resources than the average student or family.

Jeaneane McNulty

Self

Austin, TX

I am strongly opposed to any legislation that distributes taxpayers dollars directly to individuals without accountability and oversight, and this is the effect of HB3. Education is a public service that Americans and Texans have long supported with our tax dollars because it so clearly benefits our society as a whole. Just like roads and other infrastructure, it is something we all benefit from indirectly and do not expect to have direct control over, but that we rely on government to manage efficiently and responsibly. How ridiculous would it be to propose that instead of funding public highways adequately, we instead give a chunk of that money to individuals who prefer to put that toward building a private driveway, since they own a helicopter? They still receive all the indirect benefits of the highway system, and as it falls into disrepair, they can simply use the parts they need without paying into it's upkeep. Meanwhile, the average non- helicopter owner, who can't afford to build a private drive even if they don't pay their taxes, is stuck using crumbling highways 100% of the time with no other options. This bill would represent an unprecedented redistribution of wealth from those who can least afford it, to those who really don't need it. And our State as a whole would suffer for it. Please oppose this and all other voucher schemes. Keep public dollars in public schools!

David Goldstein

Chabad of West houston

Houston, TX

Please support HB3 and the Education Savings Account program. Every child in Texas deserves access to the best educational opportunities.

Education isn't one-size-fits-all, and families should have the freedom to choose the best option for their child. This bill empowers parents to make those decisions, benefiting students, educators, and taxpayers alike.

Nearly half the states have a school choice program — it's time for Texas to join them.

Melissa Baldwin

Self

Fort Worth, TX

I am a naive Texan. My husband and I both attended Texas public schools. Our 4 children attended public schools. For your grandchildren, I implore you to vote NO for school vouchers. Don't deceive parents and abandon Texas children over this folly.

No to HB3

Piper Nelson, Executive Director

Self, ED

Austin, TX

I am firmly against this legislation. Education vouchers benefit such a tiny percentage of the population, while the dollars spent on vouchers will financially destroy so many of our public school districts. Please do not pass this legislation.

Melissa Wann, Ms

Self/geologist

Austin, TX

Fund our public schools. The voucher program (now billed as a “savings account”) strips away money from our public schools & is basically a give away to people that can already afford to pay for private school. TX already has school choice options for kids in “failing” public schools so quit labeling this as school choice.

How many times has this been brought for a vote? 5? 6? If the House thinks this is what Texans want, then put it on the ballot instead of kow towing to wealthy special interest.

Our children deserve better. Increase teacher pay & work together to end wasteful spending & high admin salaries.

Vote NO on establishing an “education savings account” which is just another name for school vouchers.

Shane Allbritton

self

Houston, TX

I am a Houston resident with a child in an A-rated, music-magnet elementary school. Like many others, we moved to this neighborhood for the community surrounding the school and several high-functioning schools in the area. We are a thriving, supportive community of parents, zoned children, children bused in from across the city, and very diverse in terms of socioeconomics and cultures. We have the best talent at our schools to nurture children's academic journey, as well as their musical journey. A majority of the families here cannot afford private schools even with the choice funds being provided, therefore would have to endure at a school which is, already, being stripped of accredited teachers, nurses, and some libraries and more should the voucher program pass. This is a very successful model, all kids are thriving here and we don't want it dismantled for the benefit of more affluent families that can already pay for private school. Please don't pass this bill, look to the successful schools, such as ours, and other magnet schools that produce incredible results without alienating people based on their culture or socioeconomic background. It works so well, please save our public schools. The voucher program will only divide our families and leave most of us with even less resources.

Thank you

Alejos Salazar, Dr.

Lasara ISD

Harlingen, TX

As the superintendent of Lasara ISD, I urge you to oppose HB 3 because it fails to provide real choice for low-income families—the very students this bill claims to help. While ESAs are promoted as expanding educational opportunities, in reality, they leave many families behind and primarily benefit those who already have access to private education.

The cost of private school tuition often far exceeds the amount provided by an ESA, and parents must cover the difference out of pocket. Additionally, families must also pay for uniforms, textbooks, technology fees, transportation, and extracurricular activities, which can add thousands of dollars in additional costs. For low-income families, these expenses are simply unaffordable, meaning ESAs do not provide a real alternative. Instead, the primary beneficiaries of this program will be families who are already paying for private school or those who can afford to make up the cost difference.

HB 3 also does nothing to expand the availability of private education in rural areas, where the nearest private school may be hours away. In many cases, public schools are the only viable option for students, making ESAs an empty promise for a large portion of Texas families.

If we truly want to expand opportunities for students, we must invest in improving public schools rather than diverting resources to programs that primarily serve a select few. Funding should be directed toward proven strategies such as hiring more highly qualified teachers, reducing class sizes, expanding student support services, and increasing access to advanced coursework and career training programs.

I respectfully ask you to oppose HB 3 and instead support policies that provide real, equitable opportunities for all students—regardless of their income or ZIP code. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Martin Klein

Self

Allen, TX

I am opposing the above mentioned bill. Texas has a responsibility to fully fund public education and not misappropriate funding for private or religious education.

Chelsea Best

Self

College Station, TX

Texas must fully fund public education to ensure the state's long-term economic success, workforce readiness, and social stability. Public schools educate the vast majority of Texas children, yet they remain underfunded, leaving many students without the resources they need to succeed.

Investing in public education directly benefits the Texas economy. A well-funded school system produces a skilled workforce, attracting businesses and boosting economic growth. When schools lack funding, students graduate unprepared for college or careers, leading to higher unemployment and a weaker economy.

Teacher shortages are another major concern. Without competitive salaries and adequate resources, Texas struggles to retain qualified educators. Underfunding schools forces teachers to work in overcrowded classrooms with outdated materials, leading to burnout and high turnover rates. When teachers leave, students suffer.

Pam Beard, Mrs.

Self

College Station, TX

Please protect teacher retirement in this law. For those of us about to retire and for the new teachers coming out of college. It would be a travesty for teachers who have dedicated their lives to public service to be left without retirement because too many leave the public education system on a whim. Also please protect the education of those who will home school their children without the time or knowledge to do so. Those who just want the money. Thank you.

Kristen Trout

Self

Austin, TX

Please keep public dollars in the public schools!!!!!!

Amanda Runnels, Mrs.

Self, stay at home parent.

Pearland, TX

This voucher will drain $8,657,817 dollars from my children's future school district. There will be 161 fewer teachers for students causing classrooms to become overfilled and students not receiving the instruction and attention they need with a projected student/teacher ratio of 7.22%. It will also mean 173,156 fewer books in the library. Do not do this to our students, invest in them rather than private education. The private schools are not hurting for money, they are being paid by the wealthy Texans that CHOOSE to send their students to those schools. By allowing this bill you are taking that choice away from the millions of students that will not win in the so called lottery.

Michael Ogg
Self
Brenham, TX

As an educator with over 20 years of experience in the Texas public school system, I firmly believe that parents have the right to decide what is best for their children. However, I cannot support legislation that benefits only a select few while leaving the majority of Texas students behind.

The fundamental purpose of public education is to serve all children, not just some. Unfortunately, in recent years, the state government has turned its back on public schools. Texas prides itself on being a leader, yet we rank near the bottom in school funding. Our students, teachers, and communities deserve better.

While this bill would allow parents to send their children to private schools, it fails to address the urgent crisis facing public schools. Texas public schools are underfunded, understaffed, and expected to do more with less every year. If we continue down this path, the damage to our public school system will be greater than what we witnessed during the COVID-19 shutdowns.

Fix school finance first. Increase the basic allotment per student, fully fund special education services, and ensure teachers receive salaries that reflect their value. Make Texas public schools the best in the nation before passing legislation that diverts funding elsewhere.

I urge you to stand with Texas public schools and fully fund them before considering private school subsidies. Our children's future depends on it.

Thank you for your time and commitment to Texas students.

Sincerely,
Michael Ogg

Catherine Wesley
Self
Sugar Land, TX

This does NOT represent what we want for our public schools. You are taking away funding from communities as well as closing doors for even possible private education for most children. I implore you to speak out for your constituents and NOT for the benefit of only the wealthy. Please protect ALL children, you represent ALL of your constituents.

Jennifer Ogle
Self / Physician Assistant
Houston, TX

Please don't support a bill that will weaken our public schools. School choice is a tax break for the rich and does not help low income families get a private school education they can afford or logistically attend. Schools receiving public money should have public standards and accountability. Please fix our public schools first.

Poppie Swarb
Self
Caldwell, TX

No to vouchers. Those states that have implemented vouchers have nearly bankrupted their public education system. Don't do this in Texas. No to vouchers.

Alison Bentley-Hercules, Dr

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose HB3 because I believe that as a society, we have an imperative to make free, appropriate public education available to all students. HB3 takes taxpayer dollars out of public schools to subsidize private school vouchers. This is unacceptable and negatively impact children's educational outcomes as well as our communities as a whole. I support Texas children and families and ask you to stand with us against HB3.

Amber Downing

Self - SAHM

Austin, TX

My name is Amber Downing and I am writing to document my opposition to HB 3. I am a graduate of Texas public schools. I am also a parent of two children currently enrolled in Austin ISD, and an involved school volunteer. I have seen firsthand how continued yearly budget reductions have impacted our students, our teachers and our district. HB 3 is not a step towards school choice for parents, as we already can fully choose where we send our children for their educations. The only entities this bill gives "choice" to are private schools, which do not have to accept students, do not have to provide services to those students in need and are not held accountable by any state education guidelines. I oppose giving public money to private schools that do not have to adhere to the same rules and standards that our public schools are required to adhere to. Keep public money in public schools. The only problem with the Texas public schools is that they are not fully funded and have not been properly fully funded for years. Texas needs to increase funding for our public schools by at LEAST $1300 per student to account for inflation since 2019.

Vouchers do not make sense for the majority of our rural districts, either, as there are no private schools to even send your children to. These areas rely on public schools and as such, these public schools and all public schools in Texas, need to be fully funded.

There is more than sufficient documentation that voucher programs in other states have ruined public education in those states, both financially and academically. Let's make sure that Texas learns from these mistakes and does not go down the same road to ruin with our own voucher program.

Additionally, companies coming to Texas will be needing an educated workforce. Let's not let our states' children and families down and let's not let the future economic prosperity of Texas and its' companies down, by adopting a voucher program.

Shirley Adams

Myself

Galveston, TX

Vote no. Save public education vote

Rebecca Saldana, Mrs

Parent, taxpayer

Houston, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools. As a native Texan, taxpayer and a parent of children currently attending public schools, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution.

Erika Woods

Homeschool community

Denton, TX

We have homeschool our children since the beginning of their education and intend to continue that way. We are a working class family and have learned to manage our expenses. We do not support this bill and what the government to stay out of our lives as much as possible. Keep Texas free!

Kelly Guerin
self
Cypress, TX

I am a homeschooling mother to two boys and I OPPOSE this bill. I OPPOSE it even though it would be nice to have that stipend per child to cover homeschooling expenses, I also know that in accepting it, I would be letting the government make decisions for me about homeschooling my children and I want the government to stay out of it completely. I want to KEEP MY FREEDOM to homeschool my children as I see fit. I do not want $4000 if it means the government will step in and tell me how to teach my children. NO THANK YOU. That money should go to public schools that need it so that students who have to attend the schools can be better supported in whatever way they need to be. Maybe if the schools were better supported, there wouldn't be so many people pulling their children to homeschool, even when it is a financial hardship to do so. You need to listen to your people. Everyone is commenting on your pages about how the voucher program is not equitable in MOST counties in Texas! Give that money to the existing schools so they can BE BETTER and leave homeschooling families ALONE!!

Steve Dobney
Self
Cypress, TX

School vouchers steal money from public schools to lessen costs for affluent people who can already afford private schools. These people are a very small minority of citizens. There are many areas in the state that do not even have access to private schools. This is welfare for the wealthy and theft from public schools. Stop pandering to wealthy people. You were elected to represent ALL Texans.

Kirsten Martin
Self
Buckholts, TX

As a Texan who is for quality education for ALL, I do not support HB 3 the education savings account bill. This bill will not help public schools or students. I urge all representatives to fight for Texas children and oppose this bill.

Ellen Gibbs
Self retired UT Library
Austin, TX

I am against vouchers. Public money must not go to private schools.

Jessica Goodrow
Self / Teacher
Conroe, TX

I am a public school teacher and parent of an elementary aged child NOT in favor of school vouchers. Fund public schools adequately before using money to support and fund private schools.

Renee Noelle
Self
Georgetown, TX

Say NO TO VOUCHERS!

Lea Walker

Self- PEIMS Director (Public Education Information Management Systems)

Galveston, TX

Support our public schools! We deserve the funding in the public schools. Show our teachers and students that they are worth just as much as those that choose private schools. Build and grow our public programs to elevate the ability of our public schools to educate our students. The voucher program will reduce our enrollment and further create a disparity. Our public schools students, teachers and staff deserve better. Please support public education in Texas.

Deborah Arya

Self

Austin, TX

Vouchers will only benefit families who can already afford private education while siphoning funds from desperately underfunded public schools and rural communities. As a native Texan, whose entire family are products of the public education system, I implore you all to vote against the establishment of a voucher program. Please fund public education for our children and our future in accordance with the Texas constitution.

Jeanne Carter

Self

College Station, TX

I am not in support of state tax dollars supporting private schools. If lawmakers are forced to vote for vouchers, please vote to give public school students equal funding.

Sara Tucker

self, social worker

Austin, TX

Please don't defund our public school system by setting aside tax money to pay for private schools. This is not the way to improve education in Texas; it will only cripple school districts and harm students and learning in our great state.

Christan Reilly

Self

Austin, TX

I oppose you diverting public funds to private schools. I am a Texas voter and I want you to fully fund existing public school mandates, not divert funds to unaccountable private schools. I know that virtually every other state that has created a voucher system with the limited guardrails you are proposing has seen a decimation of their public school systems and increasing burden to their state budgets. We don't want any of that here in Texas. Please fund our public schools and don't pass the voucher bill out of committee.

Shanda Bourn

Self-assistant principal

Abilene, TX

Please say no to vouchers and yes to funding our public school-we must have more funding in order to do the work ahead of us-education of ALL Texas students.

Katie Scott

Self - social worker and mother

Buda, TX

I am against the establishment of an education savings account program. As a proud parent of a public school child, a social worker, and a product of public schools, the idea of not fully funding public schools so that people who can already afford private school can get a break is infuriating.

Fredi Bleeker Franks

RAC-TX

Houston, TX

Esteemed Committee Members, We respectfully ask that you OPPOSE HB3 because: 1 Numerous studies show that vouchers do NOT equate to improved academic outcomes for kids. Texas can only continue economic growth and prosperity with a well-educated work force. 2 HB3 is NOT a school choice bill. Texas parents already have school choice. This bill funds private school selectivity — which means that PRIVATE SCHOOLS decide who to accept and who not to accept — NOT parents. 3 Public money should have the SAME accountability standards. Public money means public accountability — any school or entity receiving tax dollars must follow the same standards, mandates, testing and accountability requirements as public schools. 4 We support Texans having a voice on this issue. Vouchers would use public dollars for private education — Texans should have a say on the ballot. Some representatives believe that Texans had a say during the primary. However, the measure on the ballot during the primary does NOT give anyone a mandate for vouchers as it was vaguely worded and did not include specifics about how little oversight there would be for public dollars. Put vouchers on the ballot. This entitlement bill does not benefit Texas but only a few Texans. Please reject this bill and look for a measure that holds all schools equally accountable for public dollars. Thank you

Roslyn Sords, Ms

Self

San Antonio, TX

